DEMONSTRATION TRAIN

Railroad [illegible] Six Car Train Here [illegible] Monday Evening

LECTURE AND DEMONSTRATION

The Demonstration Train is scheduled to reach Carrizozo on Monday evening at 5:30 p. m. and will remain here until the next morning at 5:30 when it will go to Capitan and return at 10:30 when it will remain another hour. The train is fully equipped with demonstration outfit and a number of lecturers. Monday evening there will be a series of lectures and stereoptican views at the Real Hall which has been hired by the Commercial Club for the evening.

The people are urged to come out Monday night and hear the lectures and see what can be done in agricultural ways in Mew Mexico

"The Agricultural College Bulletin sent to the Outlook has to say:

The Agricultural College Demonstration train for 1913 will be run over the El Paso and Southwestern and Rock Island lines, starting from El Paso Friday, January 17th, and covering every mile of track of these lines within the state of New Mexico from El Paso, on the south, to Dawson, on the north, and from Rodeo, almost on the Arizona line on the west, to Naraviza on the east. Last year's Demonstration Train over the Santa Fe was visited by over 35,000 persons. The El Paso and Southwestern, not to be outdone, is placing at the disposal of the college a special train of six cars, including two automobile cars for live stock; a flat car for some of the bulkier exhibits, and for use as a lecture platform, an express car, which will be filled with agricultural exhibits, a passenger coach, to be used as a lecture car; and a private car for the staff of twelve persons from the college who will accompany the train.

This is a part of the policy of carrying the college to the farmer. It is intended to arouse greater interest in good farming, to give instruction in methods of farming, to encourage the children to take an interest in the farm, and in the study of agriculture. It will be, so far as possible, a traveling agricultural college. Last year men drove as much as thirty miles in some cases to see the Demonstration Train, hear the lectures and ask questions in regard to their own agricultural problems. There will be something for every member of the family. Every person who lives on a farm, or who is interested in farming, or who eats the things that are raised on a farm, should prepare to turn out when the whistle blows, give the Demonstration Train a rousing welcome, and make the best use of every minute while the train is at the station.

EXPERIMENTAL FARM

The Experimental Farm Committee this week started R. E. Phillips with his large well outfit to work on the ten-acre patch near town which is to be equipped as a demonstration farm. Mr. Phillips is busily at work and is down a number of feet already. After a water supply is procured the committee will immediately fence the ten acres and commence plowing and preparations for the coming year.

SCHOOL NOTES

Picacho intends to open a room for the district below the Sunset Ranch.

The applicants of the mid-winter examination have all returned to their homes. Miss de Agusyo by the Capitan train to San Patricio, Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Burnett and Mrs Perkins to Aucho, and Mrs. Sidney H. Cox to Nogal. Miss Carrie Covington and Mrs. W. L. Gumm took examination on professional subjects.

Corona has been unfortunate in its elected directors Mr. Porter resigned for lack of time to attend to the duties, and T. M. Du Bois was appointed in his place Lon Jenkins has moved to El Paso and by the request of the board A S. McCamant was appointed. F. L. Atkinsom is in California for his health. The appointed directors are taking hold of the work as if they had election promises to fulfill. Three directors will have to be elected by this district in April.

Poll-tax lists are to be posted the first of February. "One list of the able-bodied male persons of the age of twenty or over residing in the district posted in a conspicuous place." Notice the word "residing," not legal voters. If poll tax is not paid thirty days after the first demand (posting is considered a demand) the clerk may bring suit in the name of the school district.

HOME MADE BROOMS

E. T. Collier of Coyote station was down this week interviewing local merchants and selling them brooms made from broom corn grown in Lincoln County. Mr. Collier, planted a small acreage to broom corn this year and raised as fine broom corn as can be seen anywhere. This winter they have a broom maker at the Collier ranch and the product is being disposed of locally. About 1500 brooms will be made from corn planted by the Colliers. The brooms are made in different weight and are put up in classy style.

Mr. Collier is enthusiastic over the matter of planting of broom corn in Lincoln County and is urging the farmers around Carrizozo to put more acres into broom corn the coming year. He agrees to take the full product off their hands and hopes that at least 1000 acres will be planted during the coming year.

This is a home industry not hitherto figured on and one which pays well to handle. The local farmers should not overlook the opportunity that presents itself in the growing of this corn

AUTO MAIL RATES

Mr. Farnsworth the contractor on the Carrizozo-Roswell automobile mail line, which is to start operations on February 1st, has made public the rates for carrying passengers between points in a letter to the Carrizozo Eating House.

The rates as stated will be: Carrizozo to Nogal $1.20; Carrizozo to Capitan $2.40; Carrizozo to Fort Stanton $3.10; Carrizozo to Lincoln $4.10; Carrizozo to Hondo $5.20; Carrizozo to Tinnie $6.70; Carrizozo to Picacho $8.10; Carrizozo to Roswell $10.50.

CIVIC LEAGUE MEETING

The Women's Civic Improvement League met in the Commercial Club headquarters on Wednesday afternoon of this week with a reperesentative number of members present.

The chief matters coming up before the League for consideration were: The matters of securing a Club House for social and public meetings; the matter of raising more money for additional street lamps and the matter of Junior work and entertainments for the future. Committees were appointed to have charge of the three main subjects coming before the club

The Club House committee is composed of Mesdames Haley, Rolland and Dingwall. The Junior Work Committee is composed of the entire League and a committee on Amusements was appointed composed of Mrs. W. L. Gumm, Mrs. H. B. Hamilton and Mrs Fred Jones.

The children will meet with the League on Tuesday, January 28th at the Commercial Club Head quarters.

The members of the League will meet at the home of Mrs. G. L. Ulrick on February 4th.

TWO NEW PUMPING OUTFITS

Marvin Burton has been in El Paso this week and while there purchased a complete pumping outfit with engine for his homestead near the city. He will install a centrifugal pump which will give him sufficient water supply from one well to irrigate at least five acres. Mr. Burton will plant a variety of things this first year in an effort to experiment with the best products. He will also start a small orchard, which he intends adding to later.

George Lee, our progressive butcher, has also a large sized pumping outfit on the way and will have it installed in a short time. Mr. Lee is going into the farming business on an extensive scale and will plant a large acreage this year. He has ordered grapes and a variety of berries, which he will also plant. Mr. Lee has trees on the way from Nebraska which he intends to plant on two sides of his claim as a windbreak. He is using poplars and cottonwoods. Mr. Lee has been quite successful in his former farming experiments and undoubtedly will be very successful with his new venture.

The water is here as well as the land. All that is needed is to put the water on top of the soil.

—H. S. Campbell left today for El Paso where he will spend the week end.

—Several cars of hay have been shipped from this place to El Paso during the week. It brings $13.00 a ton.

"BILLY LEA" DEAD

"Billy Lea," a very early settler in Lincoln County, died at the house where he had lived alone many years, last Tuesday morning apparently from heart trouble. Mr Lea was a well known character in the county, and had lived on a small ranch just over the Nogal hill for over thirty one years. He had been in ill health since the recent storm and had called a neighbor to his assistance just before he died. Funeral services were held at Nogal on Thursday. Mr Lea originally came from Missouri, and had relatives in Roswell, New Mexico.

FARM AND ROAD IMPROVEMENT

DAKOTA TYPE OF ROAD DRAG

Different From Others and Is Improvement Because Dirt Cannot Accumulate Underneath.

Mr. J. E. Millett of Hudson, S. D., sends us a sketch of a road drag which he uses which is a little different from any others we have seen described, and we think it an improvement, says the Dakota Farmer. We think it is an improvement because there is nothing between the two planks to gather the dirt under the drag. He takes two pieces of bridge-plank each 2 feet long and three pieces of 2x8 4 feet long to make the drag. The bridge-plank are stood on edge 3 feet 6 inches apart and the three pieces of 2x8 4 feet long are spiked on the top with very heavy spikes. This allows the cross pieces to extend 6 inches back of the back plank of the scraper. Iron braces are then extended from the bottom of these upper planks to near the bottom of the scraper planks. These braces should be good and heavy and may be made out of an old wagon tire or any old material of that kind. A piece of wagon tire or something of that character is then bolted onto the bottom of the scraper to do the cutting. A chain with large links is attached as shown in the cut to which the horses are hitched with clevis and ring. By the use of the chain the angle at which the grader will run can be easily changed by moving the clevis one way or the other and attaching it through a link of the chain. We think probably this is an improvement on the present types of drags as it leaves everything clear underneath, but would suggest that possibly the cross-pieces should extend more than 6 inches back of the rear drag.

Millett Road Drag.

Use of Spreader Best.

The piling of manure in small lots as it is hauled afield may have some points in its favor, but from the standpoint of realizing the largest possible good from the fertilizing elements contained is plainly a poorer method than scattering from the spreader.

Handled in this way, the soluble portion of the fertilizers that the manure contains soaks at once into the soil, while if the manure is put in piles there is a loss by chemical changes and the escape of gases.

Stable Manure Lacks Phosphorus.

On account of the relatively high percentage of nitrogen and potash in stable manure it is wise to add phosphoric acid to it in order that it may be a more nearly balanced fertilizer.

It is a good practice to use acid phosphate in the gutters of the stable, as this will absorb the odors and may fix any ammonia that is present. It has not been shown, however, that mixing the fertilizer with manure affords any other advantage over applying it separately.

Value of Windbreaks.

Windbreaks are popular. They make the farmstead look better and they make the buildings and yards more comfortable for the people and the stock.

Potatoes for Seed.

The heaviest yielding hills of potatoes are not always the best for seed. The number of plants in the hill must be taken into consideration.

Best Silo Crop.

The best crop to put in the silo is corn.

GOOD ROAD BUILDING RULES

Deputy Commissioner of Michigan Gives Several Excellent Hints for Constructing Highways.

(By FRANK F. ROGERS, Deputy Highway Commissioner of Michigan.)

Never drag a dry road.

When dragging let the team straddle the wheel track.

It is absolutely necessary to use tile drains where roads cross springy soils.

A rise of six feet in each hundred feet of length is the required grade for state reward roads.

Loose sandy roads should be nearly level, with very shallow gutters to remove the water when the ground is frozen.

The cost for regrading old roads to fit them for the state reward restrictions has been between $200 and $400 per mile.

Where tile drains are not needed, the bottom of the open drains should usually be at least two feet below the crown of the road.

No roads can be made good until the hills have been graded down to reasonable inclines and the road beds suitably shaped for travel.

Frequent scraping of sand roads with the road-scraper, or other scraping tools, is not only a loss of time and money, but a positive injury. Turnpiking up the sand simply helps the wheels to cut into it that much deeper.

Directions for making the plank road float may be obtained by writing to the state highway department at Lansing, Mich. This float is recognized to be the most useful road tool in existence. It can be built for about $3.

The time to use the float drag is, (1) In the spring when the frost has left the ground and the road begins to dry, but while yet muddy. (2) Immediately after very prolonged rainy time throughout the season. (3) In the fall, just before the ground freezes. (4) In winter if frost should happen to leave the ground.

Gravel roads are popular in Michigan:

(1) Because they are durable and satisfactory.

(2) Because they are easily built and easily repaired, requiring no expensive machinery.

(3) Because the first cost is low.

(4) Because they draw a relatively large state reward, frequently one-third or more of their cost.

(5) Because they are a labor proposition from start to finish and keep all the money spent in their construction at home.

If you have gravel, build a gravel road.

HANDY FOR BREAKING STALKS

Implement for Use During Winter Months Is Simple and Any Blacksmith Can Make One.

For breaking stalks in winter, a tool is very simple and easily made. The plank is about 8x8 inches, and long enough to break five rows. The manner of hitching, says the Practical Farmer, is also easy, and any blacksmith will soon make it.

Handy Stalk Drag.

Bolt the rods to the plank about four feet from the ends, to prevent plank from jumping. On lower front edge of plank nail an old wagon tire, with worn side of tire next to plank, with sharp cutting edge down. Use when stalks are frozen.

Make Silos Deep.

You should always have your silos made deep so the silage will pack good.

Good Roads & Farm Notes

Good roads cost money, but they are worth it.

It's a wise farmer that knows his own seed corn.

Shooting quail ought to be made a penitentiary offense.

Deep-plowed land has a great capacity for storage of moisture.

A heavy crop of weeds will check the growth of the clover a great deal.

A clover sod turned down makes an excellent foundation for a corn crop.

The ground for sweet clover seed should be prepared the same as for alfalfa or clover.

Hay stacked in the open loses 25 per cent. of its value by spoiling on the sides and bottom.

It does not pay to devote high-priced land for long periods to pasturage and the production of hay.

Rotation allows or assists nature to repair her waste places and incidentally facilitate the war on weeds.

KEEPING THE LAMP IN ORDER

Considerable Careful Attention Needed, if the Light Is to Be of the Best to Be Attained.

Despite the reign of the electrolier the lamp still has many followers. Many take to lamps because they must; some because the light it sheds is softer, more becoming and better for the eyes.

When a lamp fails to give a good light do not waste time reviling the manufacturer, but look to your own duties.

Perhaps the wick is crooked, or too short or not in squarely. Rub off the top of the wick each day with soft paper, and if it fails to draw, pull it up on the catches or get a new one. Unless sure you can put in the wick correctly send the lamp to a store and have it done properly.

Perhaps a new wick is less necessary than removing the oil with which it is clogged. Boil in vinegar and water and dry thoroughly.

Fill your lamp daily. Never light a lamp that is nearly empty, as it increases danger of explosion. Fill a lamp by daylight; if it must be done after dark keep away from a flame, and wipe all oil off the outside.

Even with the best oil a poor light results if the burner is not clean. They should be washed once a month in a quart of cold water, to which has been added a tablespoonful of washing soda and a little soap. Boil several hours and pour off the blackened water, cover with fresh boiling water, soap and soda, boil five minutes, rinse in clean hot water and rub dry with a clean soft cloth that is not linty.

Lamp chimneys may be rubbed off with soft paper daily, and when smoked should be washed in cold water and polished with a tea towel and soft paper.

EASY TO REPAIR FURNITURE

How Weak Parts May Be Strengthened and Article Saved for Future Use.

Dry rot is common in old furniture, and sometimes a piece is too good to throw away; the weak part can be strengthened in this way: Scrape the rotten wood from the piece of furniture, then spray the part with coal oil. Make a mixture of beeswax, melted rosin and sawdust and fill the holes. This will harden and make a perfect wood cement. If the wood is a dark mahogany color, add some melted sealing wax to the mixture; keep it hot when applying it to the wood. When varnished it does not show the patch.

When a round breaks in a chair do not remove the back or leg of the chair, wherever the damage is done; pull the round from the chair, repair it if it is possible, then with an auger make one of the holes a half inch deeper. This will allow the round to slip down into the deepened hole, after which the opposite end can be lifted in place and glued.

The piece should lie flat while drying, or the round will slip out of place. This saves the trouble of removing other parts to remedy small break.

Creamed Chipped Beef.

Melt a lump of butter the size of an egg. Add one cupful of chipped beef, put in the melted butter, let simmer a few minutes, then add one cupful of sweet milk and one teaspoonful of flour. Keep on the fire and stir until the cream is smooth and thick. Season with pepper. Have on a platter slices of hot buttered toast, pour the creamed beef over them and serve with stuffed mango peppers.

Corn Pudding.

One can of corn, yolks of three eggs, three tablespoons of sugar, one teaspoon of salt, one-half cup of milk, lump of butter size of walnut, little pepper; mix well; beat whites of egg stiff; add whites of eggs last after mixing ingredients well. Bake one-half hour in medium oven.

Home Hints.

The finger marks on a door can be removed by a clean flannel cloth dipped in kerosene oil; afterward wipe with a cloth wrung out of hot water in order to take the smell away.

A roast of veal will be greatly improved if larded; this prevents it being dry and tasteless when cooked.

Try mixing pancakes in a pitcher of the bellboy shape, one that an egg-beater fits in nicely. It is much easier to pour directly from the pitcher on to the griddle instead of ladling the batter out of a bowl.

Vegetable Salad.

Take any left over vegetables, such as peas, beans, carrots, beets, potatoes, turnips, etc., and cover with a good salad dressing and arrange on lettuce or cress, and decorate with either beets cut in fancy shapes or radishes. This will make a very appetizing salad.

Developing Great Industry.

The steel entering into the manufacture of automobile wheels during last year amounted to 15,000 tons in this country alone.

ECZEMA ALL OVER BODY

175 East St., San Francisco, Cal.—"I used the Cuticura Remedies while in business in San Francisco before the earthquake and fire. I was a terrible sufferer from eczema for several years. I had it all over my body except my hands, neck and face, my legs and arms being the worst. I had to put stockings on my hands at night to keep from scratching, and whenever I did scratch the parts burnt like fire. My limbs got so bad that from my ankles to my knees there wasn't a particle of skin on them, and the flesh itself turned perfectly blue and raw, continually throwing off a moisture, and I had to keep them wrapped in oiled silk cloth to keep my underclothes from sticking fast to my limbs.

"I tried all kinds of ointments, ——, ——, and a thousand others, and took all kinds of internal medicine, but with no relief. Then I bathed my body with Cuticura Soap and kept it anointed with Cuticura Ointment and my skin is now as smooth as a baby's. They cured me completely." (Signed) Harry A. Jones, Feb. 10, 1912.

Up and Doing.

Not all city folks are as ignorant of the farmer's surroundings as the farmers sometimes suppose. This was evidenced by an incident in the stay of a young New Yorker on a New England farm.

"Well, young man," said the farmer to his boarder who was up early and looking around, "been out to hear the haycock crow, I suppose?" And the sly old chap winked at his hired man.

The city man smiled. "No," said he suavely, "I've merely been out tying a knot in a cord of wood."—Judge's Library.

Where Autos Are Barred.

Prince Edward Island bars automobiles, not because the islanders cannot afford the machines, but because of accidents caused by the recklessness of drivers who brought in the first cars. They caused many runaways, and a few had tragic endings. The legislature at once passed a law barring autos from the island. Some of the leading cities have since endeavored to have the enactment repealed, but the country influence has always been strong enough to overcome all such efforts.

Misty Past.

"I am afraid," said Senator Sorghum, "that the altercation in which I have become involved must be more or less obscure to the casual listener."

"About all you have both said lately is 'You're another.'"

SOME ANIMALS CAN REASON

Raccoon Reaches Plate of Food With Hind Legs When Unable to Connect With Forepaws.

A contributor to the Youth's Companion tells the following story, which certainly supports the theory by some people that animals can reason:

"We were on a stage journey from Lewiston, Idaho, to Grangeville, Idaho, a distance of 70 miles. The stage stopped for noon at the Fountain house, half-way between the two towns. A large raccoon was chained by the collar to a post in the front yard. After luncheon the driver of the stage gathered up a plate of food from the table and carried it out to where the animal was chained. He set the plate just out of reach of the raccoon's front paws. The animal strained and reached, but could not cover the distance.

"One of the passengers said, 'Why do you not place it within his reach?'

"'He can reach it,' the driver replied.

"'He can't, unless you move the plate nearer.'

"'Wait and see,' said the driver.

"The raccoon had by this time given up trying to reach the food, and sat whining. He seemed to ponder over the problem for a few moments, then stretched his chain to its fullest extent, turned round, reached out with his hind foot, dragged the plate toward him, reversed the process, grasped it in his front paws, and proceeded to enjoy his dinner, much to the amusement of the onlookers and the discomfiture of the man who was sure he could not accomplish the task."

OPTICAL ILLUSION IS NOVEL

Good Demonstration of Fact That Eye Cannot Be Depended on Always to Tell the Truth.

As we have seen in many cases, you can't depend on your eyes to tell the truth altogether. The eye is simply a camera made by nature and like the cameras made by man it has its optical defects. This is owing to the fact that it is intended as an all-round instrument, for every possible purpose, says the Pathfinder. The eye lens is "corrected for rectilinear perspective," "chromatism," etc., as the lens-makers would say, but not for "spherical aberration" and some other defects. So when it is used for certain purposes these defects show up, just as they do in an ordinary camera lens.

Remarkable Optical Illusion.

For example, if you look at the figure here presented you would be willing to swear that the heavy horizontal lines are not parallel. But they are, as you can satisfy yourself by measuring. It is the oblique cross-lines that produce this deception.

VORACIOUS MISS MOTH

"I never will invite Miss Moth
To dine with us again,"
Said Mr. Bugg, "for she will eat
As much as any ten."

"She ate up everything she found
Upon the bill of fare,
And then she wasn't satisfied—
She ate the clothes I wear."

"She ate my underclothes all up,
And ate holes in my coat,
And also ate my hat and vest,
And other things, I note."

"I hear that she is now engaged
To marry my friend Jack.
And if she does, I'm sure she'll eat
The clothes right off his back."

CHARACTER FOUND IN EYES

Color Shows Make-Up of Average Person, According to Close Observer of Human Nature.

According to a close observer of human nature:

Black (dark brown) eyes are a sign of passionate ardor in love.

Dark blue, or violet, denote great affection and purity, but not much intellectuality.

Clear, light blue, with calm, steadfast glance, denote cheerfulness, good temper, constancy.

Pale blue, or steel colored, with shifting motion of eyelids and pupils, denote deceitfulness and selfishness.

Russet brown without yellow denotes an affectionate disposition, sweet and gentle. The darker the brown the more ardent the passion.

Blue, with greenish tints, are not so strongly indicative of these traits, but a slight propensity to greenish tints in eyes of any color is a sign of wisdom and courage.

Gray, or greenish gray, with orange and blue shades and ever varying tints, are the most intellectual, and are indicative of the impulsive, impressionable temperament—the mixture of the sanguine and bilious, which produces poetic and artistic natures.

Light brown or yellow denote inconstancy; green, deceit or coquetry. Eyes of no particular color (only some feeble shades of blue or gray, dull, expressionless, dead looking) belong to the lymphatic temperament, and denote a listless, feeble disposition and a cold, selfish nature.

Getting Even.

William, aged 5, had been reprimanded by his father for interrupting while his father was telling his mother about the new telephone for their house. He sulked awhile, then went over to his mother, and, patting her on the cheeks, said, "Mother, dear, I love you."

"Don't you love me, too?" asked his father.

Without glancing at him, William said disdainfully, "The wire's busy."—Lippincott's.

The girls of the fifth form were asked to write a 250-word essay on a motorcar. The bright hope of the form duly weighed in with this:

"My uncle bought a motorcar. He was riding in the country, and it broke down in going up a hill. My uncle tried to make it go, but couldn't. I reckon that is about forty words. The other 210 words are what uncle said as he was walking back to town; but they are not fit to write down."

PRIEST SAVES LIFE

Father Jose Algue Well Known in Philippine Islands.

Director of Weather Bureau at Manila Who Has Made Extraordinary Instrument—Clergyman Is Devoted to Humanity.

London.—Quietly and unostentatiously, without being in any way heralded by the press, a certain priest paid a visit to London recently who deserves to be ranked among the world's greatest benefactors. His name, Father Jose Algue, is scarcely known, perhaps in this country, but every man and woman in the far east knows Father Algue, director of the Philippine weather bureau at Manila, for did he not, after many years' labor, invent an instrument which is called the barocyclonometer, by which it is possible to guard against the most dreaded of far eastern calamities—the typhoon?

This instrument is now in use on upwards of 1,000 ships that sail the waters of the far east, while the American government proposes to fit its ships with a modified form of the instrument in order that captains may be warned of the approach of hurricanes or storms, and thus make it possible for them to slip out of harm's way. And it was in order to have this modified barocyclonometer made under his personal supervision that Father Algue recently came to London.

The instrument is really a combination of the ordinary barometer and a cyclone detecting apparatus, the latter being Father Algue's own invention. The barometer used alone will tell of the approach of the storm, but will give no hint as to the direction in which the center or vortex of the storm is moving. It is this additional information which the cyclonometer supplies, and its use has undoubtedly led to the saving of millions of lives in eastern waters.

Not only, however, has Father Algue invented the barocyclonometer, but in connection with the Philippine weather bureau, he has also organized a system of cyclone danger signals, which it is no exaggeration to say save thousands of lives every year. Father Algue has a corps of 80 native assistants who are scattered through the Philippine archipelago. Some are observers, others telegraph operators, others messengers, while at Manila Father Algue is in direct communication with a score of other weather stations in the islands, and also with points far away from the Philippines—Hong Kong for instance.

The approach of a typhoon is at once telegraphed to Father Algue at Manila, and he then sends the news to all quarters by means of his associates and messengers. At times he has been able to give notice of the approach of a typhoon three days before it appears, and almost always manages to give news of it one day before.

We, in this country, have little idea of the enormous loss of life and damage caused by an eastern typhoon. When it is mentioned, however, that the average number of typhoons in the Philippines is 21 a year, and it is not unusual for the fall of rain in two days to equal the total rainfall of other countries for a year, while the wind has been known to uproot churches, some idea of the value of the work which is being done by this priest, who has practically devoted his life to typhoon fighting, may be gathered.

Apart from the barocyclonometer, Father Algue has invented several other weather instruments of great value to mariners, but he cares little for publicity or fame, and it is interesting to note that one of his treatises on typhoon fighting was translated into German and circulated in Europe, yet his name did not appear on the cover. Instead, the readers were given to understand that the translator was the author of the book. Fame or wealth he cares little about, his main concern being the saving of lives which would otherwise be sacrificed to the storm fiend.

BRAGANZA DAGGER IS FOUND

Portuguese Officials Recover $50,000 Weapon, Missing Two Years—Sought by American.

Lisbon, Portugal.—The famous dagger of the dukes of Braganza, long coveted by wealthy American collectors, has been returned to the state as mysteriously as it disappeared from the royal palace of Necessidades on the night of October 4, 1910, when King Manuel fled from his castle to find refuge on British shores.

The weapon, studded with precious stones and bearing chiselmanship attributed to Benvenuto Cellini, is estimated to be worth $50,000. Many foreigners have sought to purchase it, romantic tales associated with the blade having added a historic worth to its intrinsic value.

At the time of the revolution the Republican leaders visited the deserted palace and took possession of all the jewels and works of art that the royal family had left behind. The dagger and some other valuables, however, failed to find their way into the hands of the new authorities.

Some time ago the government decided that all the furniture, jewels and other property seized at the palaces, but which belonged to the fallen monarch and his mother, Queen Amelie, should be returned to them in London, and the old inventory books of the Braganza family are being examined to separate what belongs rightfully to the royal family from what is considered as the property of the republic. Recently the dagger was secretly placed in the letter box of the official who is conducting the inventory. There was nothing to indicate by whom it had been restored.

WHY HOTEL RATES ARE HIGH

Some Expenses Not Put Down in the Books Are Disclosed by Wife of Hotel Manager.

New York.—Every now and then one learns something new of the New York hotels. Mrs. Max Thompson, wife of the assistant manager of a Gotham hotel, is entitled to the gratitude of the public for letting in a little light upon the duties and emoluments of the hotel managers—even if she did do the letting in because, according to her husband, some dispute concerning a fuzzy poodle had risen between them. In her petition for alimony Mrs. Thompson alleges that her husband's income is $8,400 annually. "He is paid $1,800 for his services; $400 as agent for a champagne; $720 for certain unnamed services performed for hotels in Paris, Berlin and London and $1,280 by steamship lines for procuring certain business for them."

That happens to figure up to $10,600 a year, but the difference may be set down to the difficulty which ladies notoriously experienced in dealing with arithmetical facts. It also happens that she does not state all the facts, if the facts in Mr. Thompson's case coincide with the facts in the other hotel officials. For example, the assistant manager of the hotel is allowed his rooms and a certain specified sum daily in the dining-rooms. The discreet pushing of a brand of cigars is always worth something. One bartender in one of the great hotels admittedly received $10 a day for pushing a certain whisky. No doubt his immediate superiors may have profited slightly by the same brand. The carriage callers, head porters, stewards, chefs, detectives, laundry chiefs, head waiters—every other employe in a position of even modified authority about a hotel—always are able to add to their income by certain other side incomes. No doubt they are sometimes moved by sheer gratitude to share such gratuities with the men who have the power of discharge over them. "I will take any position of responsibility whatever in any one of the great hotels," said a competent hotel man, "and I will serve without salary and with absolute honesty. And at the end of the year I will have made more money than the manager's salary amounts to. It isn't any wonder that the public complains of the hotel charges. Look what those charges cover."

ONE PHASE OF PARCEL POST

We print below an article printed recently in the Merchants Journal which has some bearing on the Parcels Post. There are some truths in the article which can't be gotten around although we do not think the country merchant is to be injured so seriously by the Parcels Post as has been indicated at times.

"When sickness invades the household, or the provider of the family is out of work, or the crop has been a failure, who will cash the hard luck?

Suppose the sorrowful wife writes a letter to a Chicago mail order house and says:

"Dear sir: We are old patrons of yours. My husband is sick; he has been flat on his back for three months, and may never get well Won't you please send me some shoes and stockings for the children and a winter coat or two, and a ton of coal, and possibly a few groceries and just charge them until we can earn a little money."

Will the Chicago mail order house send the goods? Oh, no, indeed. Cash is what talks Sobs are not negotiable.

Suppose the farmer has had bad luck; his horses died of the dreadful plague, his corn was a failure, fire got into his alfalfa stacks and swept away his barns. Will he send to New York for his new implements and to Chicago for his lumber and to St Louis for the clothing for his family to wear during the winter?

Hardly. They demand cash Hard luck stories are not legal tender.

What's the poor man who is out of money and luck to do? What's the poor woman to do whose natural protector and provider is down and out?

There is apparently only one place where sobs are just about as good as cash, and where hard luck stories can be exchanged for groceries. That's the home store; the little corner grocery where you know the grocer and the grocer knows you.

Of course, when you have the cash, by all means send it to Chicago, or Kansas City, but when sobs are your sole consolation take them to the home store.

RIGHT MUST WIN

The real issue in our politics today is whether the dollar or the man shall rule this country. The battle is raging in the Democratic and the Republican party—yes, right in our midst, the long arm and talon fingers of the plutocracy are seen and felt. Its sublime cunning surrounds us its tools, with the word of God in its mouth and the devil in its heart, and breating platitudinous devotion to the cause of humanity while it seeks to tear down our leaders and divide our councils

Right must win or the public dies. There should be harmony with all true, earnest men, but not that kind of harmony which involves the sacrifice of principles. We want peace, but not the peace of the corpse, quiet decay, silence, absence of motion, and a bad smell. Honesty is a great force if you give it a fair chance, but villainy has throttled it so long that the distinction between truth and falsehood, between heaven and hell, have almost disappeared.

Learn to laugh. A good laugh is better than medicine. Learn how to tell a story. A well-told story is as welcome as a sunbeam in the sickroom. Learn to keep your troubles to yourself. The world is too busy to care for your ills and sorrows. Learn to meet your friends with a smile. The good-humored man or woman is always welcome. Those who are not good humored are always considered a nuisance, and are not wanted anywhere.

Don't torment yourself about what people are going to think about this and that action. No matter what you do or leave undone some one will criticise you severely, and the best rule for getting through life with comparative comfort is, after you have made up your mind as to the propriety and advisability of a certain course, pursued it calmly, without paying the slightest attention to the criticisms of the lookers on from the outside You see just because they are on the outside they can only see the surface. It does not matter in the least what they think.

New Mexico offers the best opportunities for homeseekers and those who want land as an investment of any place in the Union. We certainly have the country, and there are many good farmers who will want the land when they get started coming this way. An investigation is all the proof that will be necessary to satisfy them that we have the best there is to be had.

CORONA CLIPPINGS

The storm of last week caused the school attendance to be rather light.

J. W. Owens came from the ranch Monday to see that the election went to suit him.

M. C. Porter has recently returned from a business visit to Las Vegas.

Dr. J. Odd Hamilton our congenial dentist is here filling his regular appointments and also many teeth.

In Monday's election the present incumbent, J. L. Jones, was reelected Justice of the Peace and our jolly Deputy Sheriff was elected Constable.

The funeral services of R. V Bull were conducted on the 10th by the Masonic fraternity from Duran. Rev. Oliver, pastor of the Baptist Church at Duran assisted in the last sad rites.

Mrs. Bull desires to express her gratitude for the kindness shown her during the recent sadness, and especially does she wish to thank Mr. R. L. Owens and wife who kindly cared for the body of the late Mr. Bull.

Owing to the inclemency of the weather and the depth of snow, it was thought best to put off the preaching services until the 3rd Sunday, so Rev. H. Haywood preaches here Saturday night at 7:30 and Sunday at 11 a m. Jan 18 and 19. Everybody come.

SYNOPSIS.

Lieut. Harry Mallory is ordered to the Philippines. He and Marjorie Newton decide to elope, but wreck of taxicab prevents their seeing minister on the way to the train. Transcontinental train is taking on passengers. Porter has a lively time with an Englishman and Ira Lathrop, a Yankee business man. The elopers have an exciting time getting to the train. "Little Jimmie" Wellington, bound for Reno to get a divorce, boards train in maudlin condition. Later Mrs. Jimmie appears. She is also bound for Reno with same object. Likewise Mrs. Sammy Whitcomb. Latter blames Mrs. Jimmie for her marital troubles. Classmates of Mallory decorate bridal berth. Roy and Mrs. Temple start on a vacation. They decide to cut loose and Temple removes evidence of his calling. Marjorie decides to let Mallory proceed alone, but train starts while they are lost in farewell. Passengers join Mallory's classmates in giving couple wedding hazing. Marjorie is distracted. Ira Lathrop, woman-hating bachelor, discovers an old sweetheart, Annie Gattle, a fellow passenger. Mallory vainly hunts for a preacher among the passengers. Mrs. Wellington hears Little Jimmie's voice. Later she meets Mrs. Whitcomb. Mallory reports to Marjorie his failure to find a preacher. They decide to pretend a quarrel and Mallory finds a vacant berth. Mrs. Jimmie discovers Wellington on the train. Mallory again makes an unsuccessful hunt for a preacher. Dr. Temple poses as a physician. Mrs. Temple is induced by Mrs. Wellington to smoke a cigar. Sight of preacher on a station platform raises Mallory's hopes, but he takes another train. Missing hand baggage compels the couple to borrow from passengers. Jimmie gets a cinder in his eye and Mrs. Jimmie gives first aid. Coolness is then resumed. Still no clergyman. More borrowing. Dr. Temple puzzled by behavior of different couples. Marjorie's jealousy aroused by Mallory's baseball jargon. Marjorie suggests wrecking the train in hopes that accident will produce a preacher. Also tries to induce the conductor to hold the train so she can shop. Marjorie's dog is missing. She pulls the cord, stopping the train. Conductor restores dog and lovers quarrel. Lathrop wires for a preacher to marry him and Miss Gattle. Mallory tells Lathrop of his predicament and arranges to borrow the preacher. Kitty Lewellyn, former sweetheart of Mallory's, appears and arouses Marjorie's jealousy. Preacher boards train. After marrying Lathrop and Miss Gattle the preacher escapes Mallory by leaping from moving train. Mallory's dejection moves Marjorie to reconciliation. The last day on the train brings to Mallory the fear of missing his transport.

CHAPTER XXXIII.—Continued.

Mallory put out his hand: "Would you be kind enough to lend me your razor again this morning?"

"Sure thing," said Ashton. "You'll find your blade in the box there."

Mallory then negotiated the loan of one more fresh shirt from the Englishman, and a clean collar from Ashton. He rejoiced that the end of the day would bring him in touch with his own baggage. Four days of foraging on the country was enough for this soldier.

Also he felt, now that he and Marjorie had lived thus long, they could survive somehow till evening brought them to San Francisco, where there were hundreds of ministers. And then the conductor must ruin his early morning optimism, though he made his appearance in the washroom with genial good mornings for all.

Mallory acknowledged the greeting, and asked offhandedly: "By the way, how's she running?"

The conductor answered even more offhandedly: "About two hours late—and losin'."

Mallory was transfixed with a new fear: "Good Lord, my transport sails at sunrise."

"Oh, we ought to make 'Frisco by midnight, anyway."

"Midnight, and sail at daylight!"

"Unless we lose a little more time."

Mallory realized that every new day managed to create its own anxieties. With the regularity of a milkman, each morning left a fresh crisis on his doorstep.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

The Complete Diversion.

The other passengers were growing nervous with their own troubles. The next stop was Reno, and in spite of all the wit that is heaped upon the town, it is a solemn place to those who must go there in purgatorial penance for matrimonial error.

Some honest souls regard such divorce-emporiums as dens of evil, where the wicked make a mockery of the sacrament and assail the foundations of society, by undermining the home. Other equally honest souls, believing that marriage is a human institution whose mishaps and mistakes should be rectified as far as possible, regard the divorce courts as asylums of refuge for ill-treated or ill-mated women and men whose lives may be saved from utter ruination by the intervention of high-minded judges.

But, whichever view is right, the ordeal by divorce is terrifying enough to the poor sinners or martyrs who must undergo it.

Little Jimmie Wellington turned pale, and stammered, as he tried to ask the conductor casually:

"What kind of a place is that Reno?"

The conductor, somewhat cynical from close association with the divorce-mill and its grist, grinned: "That depends on what you're leaving behind. Most folks seem to get enough of it in about six months."

Then he went his way, leaving Wellington red, agape and perplexed. The trouble with Wellington was that he had brought along what he was leaving behind. Or, as Ashton impudently observed: "You ought to enjoy your residence there, Wellington, with your wife on hand."

The only repartee that Wellington could think of was a rather uninspired: "You go to —"

"So long as it isn't Reno," Ashton laughed, and walked away.

Wedgewood laid a sympathetic hand on Little Jimmie's shoulder, and said: "That Ashton is no end of a bounder, what?"

Wellington wrote his epitaph in these words:

"Well, the worst I can say of him is, he's the kind of man that doesn't lift the plug out when he's through with the basin."

He liked this so well that he wished he had thought of it in time to crack it over Ashton's head. He decided to hand it to him anway. He forgot that the cardinal rule for repartee, is "Better never than late."

As he swung out of the men's room he was buttonholed by an individual new to the little Trans-American colony. One of the camp-followers and sutlers who prosper round the edges of all great enterprises had waylaid him on the way to the battleground of marital freedom.

The stranger had got on at an earlier stop and worked his way through the train to the car named "Snowdrop." Wellington was his first victim here. His pushing manner, the almost vulture-like rapacity of his gleaming eyes, and the very vulturine contour of his profile, his palmy gestures, his thick lisp, and everything about him gave Wellington his immediate pedigree.

It ill behoover Christendom to need reminding that the Jewish race has adorned and still adorns humanity with some of its noblest specimens; but this interloper was of the type that must have irritated Voltaire into answering the platitude that the Jews are God's chosen people with that other platitude, "Tastes differ."

Little Jimmie Wellington, not in pursuit of Ashton, found himself checked in spite of himself; in spite of himself deposited somehow into a seat, and in spite of himself confronted with a curvilinear person, who said:

"Excoose, please! but are you getting off at R-r-reno?"

"I am," Wellington answered, curtly, essaying to rise, only to be delicately restored to his place with a gesture and a phrase:

"Then you meet me."

"Oh, I need you, do I? And who are you?"

"Who ain't I? I am Baumann and Blumen. Our cart, please."

Wellington found a pasteboard in his hand and read the legend:

Last Minute Agents	Baggage Transfer

Baumann & Blumen

Divorce Outfitters

[illegible] Street, Reno, Nevada

Notary Public Notice of the Peace	Divorces Secured Publication Guaranteed

Wellington looked from the crowded card to the zealous face. "Divorce Outfitters, eh? I don't quite get you."

"Well, in the foist place—"

"The foist place, eh? You're from New York."

"Yes, orritchinally. How did you know it? By my fashionable clothink?"

"Yes," laughed Wellington. "But you say I need you. How?"

"Well, you've got maybe some baggotch, some trunks—yes?"

"Yes."

"Well, in the foist place, I am an expressman. I deliver 'em to your address—yes? Vere iss it?"

"I haven't got any yet."

"Also I am addressman. Do you vant it a nice hotel?—or a fine house?—or an apartment?—or maybe a boarding-house?—yes? How long do you make a residence?"

"Six months."

"No longer?"

"Not a minute."

"Take a fine house, den. I got some beauties just waccated."

"For a year?—no thanks."

"All the leases in Reno run for six months only."

"Well, I'd like to look around a little first."

"Good. Don't forget us. You come out here for six months. You vant maybe a good quick divorce—yes?"

"The quickest I can get."

"Do you vant it confidential? or very nice and noisy?"

"What's that?"

"Ve are press agents and also suppress agents. Some likes 'em one way, some likes 'em anudder. Vich do you vant it?"

"Quick and quiet."

"Painless divorce is our specialty. If you pay me an advance deposit now, I file your claim de minute de train stops and your own vife don't know you're divorced."

"I'll think it over," said Wellington, rising, with resolution.

"Don't forget us. Baumann and Blumen. Satisfaction guaranteed or your wife refunded. Avoid substitoots." And then, seeing that he could not extract any cash from Little Jimmie, Mr. Baumann descended upon Mallory, who was just finishing his shave. Laying his hand on Mallory's arm, he began:

"Excoose, please. Can I fit you out vit a nice divorce?"

"Divorce? — me! — that's good," laughed Mallory at the vision of it. Then a sudden idea struck him. It took no great genius to see that Mr. Baumann was not a clergyman, but there were other marriers to be had. "You don't perform marriages, do you?" he asked.

Mr. Baumann drew himself up: "Who says I don't? Ain't I a justice of the peaces?"

Mallory put out his hand in welcome: then a new anxiety chilled him. He had a license for Chicago, but Chicago was far away: "Do I need a license in Nevada?"

"Why shouldn't you?" said Mr. Baumann. "Don't all sorts of things got to have a license in Nevada, saloons, husbands, dogs—"

"How could I get one?" Mallory asked as he went on dressing.

"Ain't I got a law vit me? Do you vant to get a nice re-marriage license?"

"Re-marriage?—huh!" he looked round, and, seeing that no one else was near: "I haven't taken the first step yet."

Mr. Baumann laved his hands in one another: "A betchelos? Ah, I see you vant to marry a nice divorcee lady in R-r-reno?"

"She isn't in Reno and she has never been married, either."

This simple statement seemed to astound Mr. Baumann:

"A betcheller marry a maiden!—in Reno!—oi, oi, oi! It hasn't been done yet, but it might be."

Mallory looked him over and a twinge of distaste disturbed him: "You furnish the license, but—er—ah—is there any chance of a clergyman—a Christian clergyman—being at the station?"

"Vy do you vant it a cloigyman? Can't I do it just as good? Or a nice fat alderman I can get you?"

Mallory pondered: "I don't think she'd like anything but a clergyman."

"Well," Baumann confessed, "a lady is liable to be particular about her foist marriage. Anyvay I sell you de license."

"All right."

Mr. Baumann whipped out a portfolio full of documents, and as he searched them, philosophized: "A man ought alvays to carry a good marriage license. It might be he should need it in a hurry." He took a large iron seal from his side-pocket and stamped the paper and then, with fountain pen poised, pleaded: "Vat is the names, please?"

"Not so loud!" Mallory whispered.

Baumann put his finger to his nose, wisely: "I see, it is a confidential marriage. Sit down once."

When he had asked Mallory the necessary questions and taken his fee he passed over the document by which the sovereign state of Nevada graciously permitted two souls to be made more or less one in the eyes of the law.

"Here you are," said Mr. Baumann. "Vit dat you can get married anyvere in Nevada."

Mallory realized that Nevada would be a thing of the past in a few hours more and he asked:

"It's no good in California?"

"Himmel, no. In California you bot' gotta go and be examined."

"Examined!" Mallory gasped, in dire alarm.

"Vit questions, poissonally," Mr. Baumann hastened to explain.

"Oh!"

"In Nevada," Baumann insinuated, still hopeful, "I could mary you myself—now, right here."

"Could you marry us in this smoking room?"

"In a cattle car, if you vant it."

"It's not a bad idea," said Mallory "I'll let you know."

Seeing Marjorie coming down the aisle, he hastened to her, and hugged her good-morning with a new confidence.

Dr. and Mrs. Temple, who had returned to their berth, witnessed this greeting with amazement. After the quarrel of the night before surely some explanation should have been overheard, but the puzzling Mallorys flew to each other's arms without a moment's delay. The mystery was exciting the passengers to such a point that they were vowing to ask a few questions point blank. Nobody had quite dared to approach either of them, but frank curiosity was preferable to nervous prostration, and the secret could not be kept much longer. Fellow-passengers have some rights. Not even a stranger can be permitted to outrage their curiosity with impunity forever.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

NEVER ALLOWED TO "INFORM"

Point of Military Etiquette That Is Impressed on Youngsters in the Service.

"No matter how much a second lieutenant in the army may know, he must never presume to 'inform' his superior officers," remarked a captain in one of the organizations of the National Guard of the District of Columbia recently.

"I found that out long ago. Col. O B. Mitcham, in command of this artillery division, sent me a request for information along certain lines, and I dug out the material and wrote out a letter in reply which I thought was strictly military. I took it down to 'Sergt.' Drew at militia headquarters. Drew has been a post quartermaster sergeant in the islands, and has had more experience in the formality of military correspondence than any one I know of.

"Sergt. Mike looked at it one second and nearly fainted. 'Great Scott, he gasped, 'you'd be shot at sunrise if you sent that along.'

"I had written, 'Sir, I have the honor to inform you, and so forth.'

"It looked good and military to me, but Sergt. Mike Drew, when he had recovered from the shock, wept on my shoulder and said:

"'My boy, don't you know in the army nobody is ever allowed to inform a superior officer? You may have all the information in the world, but don't presume to inform anybody that's even one inch over you. It will get you in bad. Just change that letter so it will read, I have the honor to report.'"

Successful Woman Farmer.

Miss Grace M. Putnam is said to be one of the most successful farmers in New Jersey. She was born and brought up in the city, never even visiting the country until after she was 15 years old. Her farm consists of about five acres and is planted exclusively in cantaloupes. She reports that she rented her farm for the first year. The second year she bought it, the third year she paid up every debt she owed and put $3,000 in bank. She does all the work herself after the first plowing, for which she pays a farmer $12. Her seeds cost her $1 an acre, fertiliser $10 an acre and barrels for shipping one year's crop $60. She sells her melons direct to dealers at $6 a barrel. She thinks her success as a farmer is largely due to the fact that she loves the work better than anything else in the world.

Inexhaustible Supply of Iron.

One of the most wonderful sources of iron in the world is at Lac a la Tortue, Quebec, near to where iron has been smelted since 1733. Organic acids dissolve the iron rust in the sandy bottom of the rivers running into the lake, where the exposure of its surface to the air turns the composition into a persalt, forming in a film upon the surface. This sinks in the lake forming "cake ore," which is smelted at the Radnor forges into the finest charcoal iron. The supply is always being replenished, and the lake furnishes one of the few "iron mines" in the world which will probably never be exhausted.

By Natural Reasoning.

A keen student of human nature must have written the following: "When you see a young man sailing down a street shortly after midnight with his collar crumpled, you can make up your mind that there's a young girl crawling upstairs not far distant, with her shoes under her arm and an extinguished lamp in her hand."

The American husband is lucky in one respect, at least. He doesn't have to buy hair for a harem.

Bean Sprouting in Man's Head.

San Bernardino, Cal.—Two beans, one of which had sprouted into an embryo plant, were removed from the head of a Mexican laborer by Dr. H. V. Beeson.

Bride 67 Deserts Hubby 74 Years Old.

San Francisco.—Deserted in Hong Kong by the 67-year-old bride he had married last June in New York, Martin L. Cavanaugh, 74 years old, returned here on the liner Mongolia from what was to have been a round-the-world honeymoon.

To Open 136,000 Acres San Juan Land

Denver.—One hundred and thirty-six thousand acres of land on the Fort Lewis mesa, in the San Juan section, will be thrown open to settlement and homeseekers will have a splendid opportunity of obtaining lands in one of the best sections of the state. The land is what is known as the Blood-good segregated group, and was withdrawn from entry April 11, 1911. The government has now made unconditional relinquishment of it and it can be taken up either as homestead or desert claims.

Wins Fortune on Farm.

Grand Junction, Colo.—John Carr recently sold his ranch of 460 acres near DeBeque for $60,000. Eighteen years ago he was earning $10 a week in New York, quit the job and took up a homestead on Roan creek that formed the nucleus of the ranch he has just sold.

LESS AREA SOWN TO WHEAT

Condition of Wheat and Rye Crops Much Better Than Last Year.

Washington.—The December report of the crop reporting board, bureau of statistics, department of agriculture, compiled from reports of its correspondents and agents, announced the area sown to winter wheat and rye and their condition on December 1, as follows:

Winter Wheat.—A preliminary estimate of the area sown to winter wheat this fall is 32,387,000 acres, compared with 33,215,000 acres, the revised figures for the area sown in the fall of 1911. The condition of winter wheat on December 1 was 93.2 per cent. of a normal, compared with the 86.6 per cent. on December 1, last year.

Rye.—A preliminary estimate of the area sown to rye this fall is 2,443,000 acres, compared with 2,478,000 acres, the revised figures for the area sown in the fall of 1911. The condition of rye on December 1 was 93.5 per cent. of a normal, compared with 93.2 per cent. on December 1, last year.

BETTER MINE CONDITIONS.

Reports Show Loss of Life Is Less in Last Year Than Formerly.

Denver.—A human life was lost in Colorado's mines for every 112,000 tons of coal mined last year. A penalty of ninety-one lives was paid for the 10,157,383 tons of coal produced by the mines in 1911.

In the first eight months of 1912 practically the same ratio held good, for sixty-four men met death in the industry of coal mining in this state up to September 1, 1912.

Both years show a great reduction in the lives lost from 1910, however, for in that year terrible disasters in the Trinidad and Louisville fields brought the total of miners' deaths up to 323, or one for each 37,000 tons of coal produced. This was the highest average of deaths in comparison with tonnage in the nation in that year—1910.

It was partly on account of this disastrous showing that the federal bureau of mines was impelled to send two of its mine safety cars to Colorado. Every effort has been made by the government to improve conditions and discipline in Colorado's coal mines.

WHAT SURPRISED HIM.

"I suppose," said the interviewer, "you have found many surprising things in our country."

"Yes," replied the distinguished foreigner, "I shall freely confess that I have."

"Would you mind telling me for publication what particularr thing surprised you most?"

"Not at all, my boy, not at all. One thing that has surprised me is the fact that few of your people can spell, but that is not what has most surprised me."

"What, if I may ask, has caused you most surprise?"

"I have said that I have been surprised to find that few of your people know how to read. The thing that has most surprised me, is that inability to spell appears to be regarded as a mark of distinction. Most of your people boast about their ignorance in this particular."

Ideal Match.

"But," says the candid friend, "I cannot for the life of me understand why you intend to marry him. He has a wooden leg and the other one is bowed, and he only has one eye and is bald in patches, and positively has the ugliest whiskers I ever saw on a man. Why, no woman in her senses could love him!"

"We shall be ideally happy," explains the beauteous girl. "I shall never be jealous of him for the reasons you have cited." And he will always be so glad and proud that I married him that he won't care how much I flirt."—Judge's Library.

They Were Surprised.

"Jinks, who has just returned from a year's globe trotting, is very wroth at the local paper."

"Why?"

"Oh, the editor wrote a column article about him, which he claims ended: 'His many friends were surprised that he is unchanged,' but the compositor left the 'c' out of 'unchanged.'"

LUMP.

Bronson—What have you been burning in your furnace this winter?

Woodson—Hundred dollar bill, as usual.

A Chronic Complaint.

A man today
Is seldom met,
Who doesn't say,
"I'm deep in debt."

An Advantage.

"You think it is better to have foreign waiters?"

"Yes," replied the thick skinned man. "I realized it this evening. When I gave a waiter a lead half dollar he thanked me in English and later expressed his opinion in a language which, fortunately, I could not understand."

Oh, You Flat-Iron!

Yeast—I see a new electric flat-iron is made of reinforced glass so that it may be turned on end and used as a lamp if desired."

Crimsonbeak—Might make a man a bit nervous to have his wife meet him with that sort of a light when he manages to reach the front door in the cold gray hours of dawn.

Local Pride.

"Your baseball team failed to make much of a showing during the past season, I believe."

"Yes, but don't come here for the purpose of boasting about your one-horse town. Your baseball team finished higher than ours did, I admit; but a cabaret has just been opened here."

A Born Salesman.

"You are wasting your time writing poetry."

"But I sell my poetry," protested the other.

"And that convinces me that you can sell anything. Such being the case, why not take up high-class bonds or steel bridges or something big?"

The Tie That Binds.

"It does seem as if you and I ought to get along together without quarreling all the time," sighed Mrs. Jawback.

"It does," growled Mr. Jawback, "but it seems we can't. We're fighting like cats and dogs from morning to night."

"Cats and dogs? Look at that cat and that dog of ours—they never fight. They live under the same roof peaceably."

"Yes, they do. But tie 'em together so they can't get loose and see how they'll act!"

VERY MUCH OF A CALF.

The Easterner—Is that tenderfoot a cowboy?

The Westerner—No—only a calf-oby.

The Gentle Savage.

The stone age men were fierce and rude,
Or so the story runs.
Yet now they seem a peaceful brood,
They never carried guns.

Very Nice About It.

At a meeting of business men a discussion was started regarding a banker who has the reputation for hard bargaining.

"Oh, well," said one man, "he isn't so bad. I went to see him to get a loan of $5,000 and he treated me very courteously."

"Did he lend you the money?" was asked.

"No," was the reply, "he didn't. But he hesitated a minute before he refused."

Expensive.

"How often is your motor overhauled, Binks?" asked Dusenberry.

"Four times last month," said Binks.

"Four times in one month? Geerusalem! What for?" demanded Dusenberry.

"Speeding," said Binks. "Twice by the bicycle cops, once by a deputy sheriff, and once by a plain, common garden, village constable."—Judge.

Affinities.

The dapper little ribbon clerk gazed languishingly into the dark eyes of the handsome brunette waitress.

"Isn't it wonderful," he gurgled, "how opposites seem to be attracted to each other?"

"It sure is," agreed the beauty. "I noticed only today that the tallest man at the lunch counter ordered short-cake."—Lippincott's.

Hub (looking up from newspaper)—My dear, have you seen any of those invisible suits yet?

Wife—Invisible suits? What are you talking about?

Hub—Why, here's a New York ladies' tailor advertising: "Suits made to order with or without material."

NATURALLY.

Joskins—His record is the worst in town.

Hoskins—What is his business?

Joskins—Weather clerk.

No wonder they do—
It's a place they know!

TO TAKE OUT STAINS

NONE SO STUBBORN THAT THEY CAN'T BE REMOVED.

Grain Alcohol One of the Best Remedies to Employ, or in Some Cases Javelle Water Will Do the Work Better.

Alcohol will usually remove the stains made by grass and fruit juice, although it will not discourage in the least the stains of some kinds of fruit. Only grain alcohol should be used. It acts better if used warm, and can be heated by holding the bottle containing it in hot water. If patches of the stain remain pour boiling water on them. If they still persist, dilute muriatic acid, in a one per cent. solution, can be applied. Care should be taken to rinse the fabric thoroughly afterward in several waters, with a very little ammonia in the last one, to counteract the effect of the acid and prevent it from injuring the cloth. Javelle water, which can be made at home, is a trustworthy means for removing almost any fruit stain. It is especially good for peach and pear stains, which are usually the most obstinate of all spots. Soak the spots in it for three or four minutes, and then rinse in cold, clean water. Afterward launder the article as usual.

Alcohol is usually a perfect solvent for the stain of green vegetable matter, whether or not the material be washable. Some housewives find ordinary kitchen molasses sufficient remedy for such stains upon any sort of fabric. It is rubbed thoroughly into the stain, allowed to stand ten minutes, and then washed out with warm water and soap. If the article cannot be washed, the molasses is left on, with the stain thickly covered, for two or three days. Then it is wiped and sponged off with clear water. If traces remain they will probably yield to a sponging with alcohol, or a mixture of equal parts of ether and alcohol with a dash of ammonia.

Steak and Olives.

Take about two pounds of rump steak, brown well in frying pan with a little butter, then put in casserole with a little water and bake slowly three hours. Then put in enough water to make sufficient gravy, one pint of carrots cut in cubes. About half an hour before serving put in a small bottle of stuffed olives, cut in halves. Serve in the casserole. The meat will not need much salt, on account of the olives being salty.

Wire Griddles.

Buy a piece of ordinary wire screening and have it cut up into squares to serve as griddles on the gas stove when using saucepans too small to rest on the racks over the burners, says a contributor to the Woman's Home Companion. You do not have to wait for them to heat through and they are very light to handle. Brass wire netting is more durable than ordinary screen, if obtainable.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Use very little bluing in washing laces, for the lace absorbs a great deal of blue.

To smooth an iron, plunge it while hot into cold water with a little soap in it.

Never try to clean yokes, collars or cuffs while sewed on the gown. Such things should always be made detachable.

To remove the leather stains from light colored stockings, put a couple of tablespoonfuls of borax in the water in which they are washed.

To make baked potatoes dry and mealy, just when potatoes are tender, put a fork at least twice into each potato to let the steam escape.

To clean ribbons sponge with alcohol and over the spot with some clean, clean, white soap. During the process the ribbon must be kept straight. When clean rinse in alcohol and place between two towels. Press out with a hot iron.

In the directions for washing white silk sugar is recommended also. The silk should be washed in warm, not hot, water, with pure castile soap, then rinsed thoroughly in water to which has been added a teaspoonful of granulated sugar. The silk garment should be washed by itself.

Chocolate Sauce.

Melt two squares of unsweetened chocolate in a bowl placed over boiling water. Cream together one-quarter cup butter, one cup of sugar. Stir the mixture thoroughly into the melted chocolate, add one-half cup of hot milk and stir until well dissolved and smooth, then add one-half teaspoon of vanilla.

A single man is seldom as good as his sweetheart thinks he is, or a married man as bad as his wife suspects he is.

Somewhat Lazy.

A lawsuit was recently in full swing and during its progress a witness was cross-examined as to the habits and character of the defendant.

"Has Mr. M—— a reputation for being abnormally lazy?" asked counsel briskly.

"Well, sir, it's this way—"

"Will you kindly answer the question asked?" struck in the irascible lawyer.

"Well, sir, I was going to say it's this way. I don't want to do the gentleman in question any injustice. And I won't go so far as to say, sir, that he's lazy exactly; but, if it required any voluntary work on his part to digest his food—why, he'd die from lack of nourishment, sir."—London Answers.

Hopeless.

"Who wrote that story about Roosevelt's return to the Outlook office" asked the managing editor.

"Billy Pennington," replied the city editor. "I thought it was a pretty good story."

"It was more than that. It was a remarkable story. I think we ought to raise Pennington's salary. He didn't wind up by saying: 'The colonel then plunged into a mass of correspondence.'"

"I'm sorry to have to tell you that he did. I blue-pencilled that part of it."

"Oh, pshaw! We'll never be able to make anything of that fellow."

Marking Arrival of Age.

When I get to be old I ain't goin' to find it out by countin' up to see, nor by my whiskers, nor by my gums, nor none of them signs. They'll all fool you. No, sir! But one of these times I'll get throwed down, and I won't bounce back. Then I'll know it's all over. When a man gets that way, he's old. Old, see? It don't make any difference how much longer he lives after that, he don't ever get any older.—"Billy Fortune."

A Good Plan.

"Springhill is a man who never tells his troubles."

"How does he manage to get along?"

"He puts them to sleep with the anesthesia of optimism."

MADE A DEMAND FOR ROSES

Florist's Business Materially Increased Through Action of Enterprising Young Lady.

Many months had passed since first he met the sweet, sweet girl. He loved her dearly, but he was woefully shy, and his suit made but slow progress.

Finally, it was the girl who decided to improve the shining hour, and add a trifle to the pace of the proceedings. To make up her mind was to act, and the very next time the young man called she pointed to the rose that adorned his button hole.

"I'll give you a kiss for that rose," she blurted out.

A crimson, guilty flush overspread the young man's face, like the light of the setting sun. There was, however, no hesitation on his part, and he clinched the bargain. Then he grabbed his cap and proceeded to rush from the room in double quick time.

"And where are you going?" she asked in great surprise.

"Oh," he answered tremulously, "I'm just off to the florist's to buy up his stock of roses!"—London Answers.
