PERSHING HALTS TROOP'S RETURN

4th and 5th Division Taken From Early Sailing List, Wilson's Orders.

Washington, D. C., June 17.—The Fourth and Fifth divisions of regulars have been removed from the list of units scheduled for early return to the United States, the war department was advised today by Gen. Pershing.

These two divisions were scheduled to sail from France this month and officials believed cancellation of the sailing orders would have been made only under the plans of the inter-allied high command and with the approval of President Wilson.

Minor Concessions In Peace Pact Are Given In Summary; Enemy Must Sign By June 23.

Paris, France, June 17.—Although the principles of the original condition are upheld as establishing a peace of justice, certain modifications in detail and many explanations of the effect of execution are made in the allied reply to the Germans' counter peace proposals. The reply is in two parts—a general covering letter and seriatim discussions of the general counter proposals. The changes conceded by the allies include:

A plebiscite for Upper Silesia, with guarantee of coal from that territory.

Frontier rectifications in western Prussia.

Omission of the third zone in the Silesia plebiscite.

Temporary increase of the German army from 100,000 to 200,000 men.

Declaration of the intention to submit within a month of signature a list of those accused of violations and customs of war.

Offer to co-operate with a German commission on reparation, and to receive suggestions for discharging the obligations.

Certain detailed modifications in the finance, economic, ports and waterways clauses, including the abolition of the Kiel canal commission.

Assurance of membership in the league of nations in the near future if Germany fulfils her obligations.

The Germans were allowed five days to accept or refuse the treaty as it stands, but two days additional have been granted because of the insistence of the German delegation that insufficient time had been allowed for proper consideration of the revised terms. This will extend the time limitation to Monday, June 23. If Germany's reply is yes, the treaty will be immediately signed. If Germany rejects the demands, the armistice will be automatically terminated and the allied armies [illegible] will take whatever action they deem necessary to the situation.

Live Stock Company Pulls Big Deal Through Benj. L. Stimmel

The Carrizozo Live Stock Commission Company closed a deal the first part of this week that was a "humdinger." The deal was consummated through B. L. Stimmel, involving the sale of young steers on the Bar W and Block ranches.

The sale was made to Edgar Wilson of Amorillo, Tex., the consideration being $47,000.00. The steers will be received June 21st, at White Flat, N. M., and loaded at Riverside, N. M. June 23rd. This noted brand of cattle is known as the best bred in this or adjoining counties. They are yearlings and two year olds, well matched and will be winners for Mr. Wilson to dispose of at the eastern markets. The Live Stock Co. have 1280 head of fine young steers still on hand and the buyer of this lot will be lucky.

Teaches A Million To Sing National Anthem

Boston, Mass., June 19.—Henry Rankin, of the naval training station, claims to have taught more persons to sing "The Star Spangled Banner" than any other individual in the entire country in the past two decades.

Up to few months ago he was the musical director at the station. Ill health caused him to take up other work.

Mr. Rankin states that he does not feel that it is an overestimation in saying that he has taught or directed the national anthem to more than a million persons.

His largest chorus was in August 1917, when he led nearly 14,000 voices in singing the national anthem accompanied by a band of 125 pieces.

This business is entirely arbitrary, and we shall be compelled to collect this penalty beginning upon the date of the first publication.

The next examination for Teachers Certificates and the Reading Circle work will be held in the office of the County Superintendent of Schools, Carrizozo, New Mexico, June 26th and 27th, 1919.

STRONG REPRESENTATION MADE FOR PROTECTION OF AMERICANS

U. S. Officials in Mexico Ask Safeguarding Of Interests In Danger Zone;

Washington, D. C., June 18.—Announcement was made today by the state department that American officials in Mexico had made strong representations to the Mexican government for the protection of Americans in the disturbed districts of that country. A dispatch received by the department today from Juarez said that city was quiet and there was no evidence of ill feeling toward Americans.

Particulars of the action of the United States troops crossing the border were published yesterday in the Mexican newspapers without editorial comment. A resolution to interrogate President Carranza on the action of the American forces was said to have received practically no support in the chamber of deputies.

A dispatch from Laredo said Gen. Renaldo Garza, commanding officer at Nuevo Laredo, and his staff, accompanied by Gen. Gregorio Gzuno, made an official call yesterday on Col. Beaumont B. Buck, the new American commanding officer at Laredo. Col. Buck and his staff will return the call, which was understood to have been made by direction of president Carranza.

Freight Traffic Increases

The cantalope season is now on and the E. P. & S. W. is busy handling the enormous business which this important industry affords. From General Foreman on down the line to the sweepers and engine wipers at the round house all are busy as bees.

It is a hard matter now to engage a railroad man in conversation which gives the promise of taking up much of his time, for as soon as he receives his proper amount of rest the call boy reminds him that he is marked up, as first out and must pursue the "Streaks" with another cantalope train. Yes, business is good on the road now, and the boys can hardly find time to spend their money.

A. L. Seiple Returns

A. L. Seiple has just returned from Detroit, Mich., where he has undergone a course in the Ford School. The benefit his recent experience in overseeing the work at the Western Garage of which firm Mr. Seiple is a member, will serve as a valuable asset to that important enterprise.

Commissioners Will Meet

The Honorable Board of County Commissioners will meet Saturday, June 21, to canvas the vote in Precincts 1 and 9 in the election contest of Corn vs. Hyde, year of 1916.

"SHE CAN DO NO WRONG"

Synopsis.—Thomas K. Barnes, a wealthy young New Yorker, on a walking trip in New England near the Canadian border, is given a lift in an automobile by a mysterious and attractive girl bound for a house called Green Fancy. At Hart's tavern Barnes finds a stranded troupe of "barn-storming" actors, of which Lyndon Rushcroft is the star and "Miss Thackeray" the leading lady. He learns Green Fancy is a house of mystery. That night Andrew Roon and his servant, guests at the tavern, are shot near Green Fancy. Barnes comes under suspicion and stays to help clear up the double murder. He gets into the Green Fancy grounds; meets the mysterious girl, who gives him the cut direct, and is politely ejected by O'Dowd, an interesting adventurer. Enter at the tavern another man of mystery, Sprouse, "book agent." Barnes visits Green Fancy with the sheriff and stays to dinner. Enter still another mysterious personage, "Loeb," secretary to Curtis, owner of Green Fancy, who does not appear because of illness. Barnes again meets "Miss Cameron," the mysterious girl, who is a ravishing beauty in evening dress. She is a prisoner and secretly appeals to him for help. Sprouse reveals himself as a secret service man.

"The deuce you say!" cried Barnes. "We will get right down to tacks," said Sprouse. "My government—which isn't yours, by the way—sent me up here five weeks ago on a certain undertaking. I am supposed to find out what is hatching up at Green Fancy. Having satisfied myself that you are not connected with the gang up there I cheerfully place myself in your hands, Mr. Barnes. You were at Green Fancy last night. So was I. You had an advantage over me, however, for you were on the inside and I was not."

"Confound your impudence! I—"

"One of my purposes in revealing myself to you, Mr. Barnes, is to warn you to steer clear of that crowd. You may find yourself in exceedingly hot water later on if you don't. Another purpose, and the real one, is to secure, if possible, your co-operation in beating the game up there. You can help me, and in helping me you may be instrumental in righting one of the gravest wrongs the world has ever known."

"Will you be good enough, Mr. Sprouse, to tell me just what you are trying to get at? I know nothing whatever against Mr. Curtis and his friends. You assume a great deal—"

"Excuse me, Mr. Barnes. I'll admit that you don't know anything against them, but you suspect a whole lot. To begin with, you suspect that two men were shot to death because they were in wrong with someone at Green Fancy. Now I could tell you who those two men really were and why they were shot. But I sha'n't do anything of the sort—at least not at present."

Barnes was impressed. "Perhaps you will condescend to tell me who you are, Mr. Sprouse. I am very much in the dark."

"I am a special agent—but not a spy, sir—of a government that is friendly to yours. I am known in Washington. My credentials are not to be questioned. At present it would be unwise for me to reveal the name of my government. I dare say if I am allowed to trust you, Mr. Barnes, you can allow to trust me. There is too much at stake for me to take the slightest chance with any man. I am ready to answer you, sir, if you will do the same by me."

"Well," began Barnes deliberately, "I guess you will have to take a chance with me, Mr. Sprouse, for I propose to submit myself until I know exactly what you are up to."

"In the first place, Mr. Barnes," said Sprouse, setting his cups, "you have been thinking that I was sent down from Green Fancy to spy on you. Isn't that so?"

"I am answering no questions, Mr. Sprouse."

"You were wrong," said Sprouse, as if Barnes had answered in the affirmative. "I am working on my own. You may have observed that I did not accompany the sheriff's posse today. I was up in Hornville getting the final word from New York that you were on the level. I telephoned to New York. Eleven dollars and sixty cents. You were under suspicion until I hung up the receiver, I may say."

"Jones has been talking to you," said Barnes. "But you said a moment ago that you were up at Green Fancy last night. Not by invitation, I take it."

"I invited myself," said Sprouse succinctly. "Are you inclined to favor my proposition?"

"You haven't made one."

"By suggestion, Mr. Barnes. It is quite impossible for me to get inside that house. You appear to have the entree. You are working in the dark, guessing at everything. I am guessing at nothing. By combining forces we should bring this thing to a head, and—"

"Just a moment. You expect me to abuse the hospitality of—"

"I shall have to speak plainly, I see." He leaned forward, fixing Barnes with a pair of steady, earnest eyes. "Six months ago a certain royal house in Europe was despoiled of its jewels, its privy seal, its most precious state documents and its charter. They have been traced to the United States. I am here to recover them. That is the foundation of my story, Mr. Barnes.

"Without divulging the name of the house I will say that its sympathies have been from the outset friendly to the entente allies—especially with France. There are two branches of the ruling family, one in power, the other practically in exile. The state is a small one, but its integrity is of the highest. Its sons and daughters have married into the royal families of nearly all of the great nations of the continent. The present—or I should say, the late ruler, for he died on a field of battle not many months ago, had no direct heir. He was young and unmarried. I am not permitted to state with what army he was fighting, nor on which front he was killed. It is only necessary to say that his little state was gobbled up by the Teutonic allies. The branch of the family mentioned as being in exile lent its support to the cause of Germany, not for moral reasons but in the hope and with the understanding, I am to believe, that the crown lands would be the reward. The direct heir to the crown is a cousin of the late prince. He is now a prisoner of war in Austria. Other members of the family are held by the Bulgarians as prisoners of war. It is not stretching the imagination very far to picture them as already dead and out of the way. At the close of the war, if Germany is victorious, the crown will be placed upon the head of the pretender branch. Are you following me?"

"Yes," said Barnes, his nerves tingling. He was beginning to see a great light.

"Almost under the noses of the forces left by the Teutonic allies to hold the invaded territory the crown jewels, charter and so forth, heretofore mentioned, as they say in legal parlance, were surreptitiously removed from the palace and spirited away by persons loyal to the ruling branch of the family. As I have stated, I am engaged in the effort to recover them.

"Now we come to the present situation. Some months ago a member of the aforesaid royal house arrived in this country by way of Japan. He is a distant cousin of the crown, and in a way remotely heired upon as the heir apparent. Being on his mamma's side himself in Dublin, but equally in Europe himself but recently that while he pretends to be loyal to the ruling house he is secretly scheming against it. I have been advised to see him to earth, for there is every reason to believe that he has the stolen property in his possession. Now, Mr. Barnes, without telling you how I have arrived at the conclusion, I am prepared to state that I believe this man to be at Green Fancy, and that in time the last—to use a harsh word—will be delivered to him there. I am here to get it, one way or another, when that comes to pass."

"What led you to suspect that he is at Green Fancy, Mr. Sprouse?"

"History. It is known that this Mr. Curtis has spent a great deal of time in the country alluded to. As a matter of fact, his son, who lived in London, had rather extensive business interests there. This son was killed in the Balkan war several years ago. It is said that the man I am looking for was a friend of young Curtis, who married a Miss O'Dowd in London—the Honorable Miss O'Dowd, daughter of an Irish peer and sister of the chap you have met at Green Fancy. About six weeks ago a former squerry in the royal household arrived in New York. Through him I learned that the daughter of the gentleman in whose house the senior Mr. Curtis was a frequent guest had been in the United States since some time prior to the beginning of the war. She was visiting friends in the States and has been unable to return to her own land, for reasons that must be obvious. I may as well confess that her father was, by marriage, an uncle of the late ruler.

"Since the invasion and overthrow of her country by the Teutonic allies she has been endeavoring to raise money here for the purpose of equipping and supporting the remnants of the small army that fought so valiantly in defense of the crown. These men, a few thousand only, are at present interned in a neutral country. I leave you to guess what will happen if she succeeds in supplying them with arms and ammunition. Her work is being carried on with the greatest secrecy. To bring the story to a close, I was instructed to keep close watch on the man O'Dowd. I traced him to this place. I was on the point of reporting to my superiors that he was in no way associated with the much-sought-after crown-cousin, and that Green Fancy was as free from taint as the village chapel, when out of a clear sky and almost under my very nose two men were mysteriously done away, with at the very gates of the place. The killing of those two men changed the aspect completely. You will certainly agree with me after I have explained to you that the one known as Andrew Roon was no other than the squerry who had undertaken to find the—young woman."

Barnes drew a long breath. His mind was made up. He had decided to pool issues with the secret agent, but not until he was convinced that the result of their co-operation would in no way inflict a hardship upon the young woman who had appealed to him for help. He was certain that she was the fair propagandist described by Sprouse.

"And the young woman, what of her? She would, in any case, be held for examination and—"

"My dear sir, I may as well tell you now that she is a loyal subject, and, far from being in bad grace at court, is an object of extreme solicitude to the ambassador. From what I can gather she has disappeared completely. Roon was sent over here for the sole purpose of finding her and inducing her to return with him to Paris."

"And to take the treasure with her, I suppose," said Barnes dryly.

"Naturally."

"Well" began Barnes, introducing a harsh note into his voice, "I should say that if she is guilty of receiving this stolen property she ought to be punished. Jail is the place for her, Mr. Sprouse."

Sprouse put down his coffee cup rather suddenly. A queer pallor came into his face.

"You do not understand the situation. Haven't I made it plain to you that she is innocent of any intent to do wrong?"

"You have said so, Mr. Sprouse, but your idea of wrong and mine may not jibe."

"There cannot be two ways of looking at it, sir," said Sprouse, after a moment. "She could do no wrong."

Whereupon Barnes reached his hand across the table and laid it on Sprouse's. His eyes were dancing.

"That's just what I want to be sure about," he said. "It was my way of finding out your intentions concerning her."

"What do you mean?"

"Come with me to my room," said Barnes, suppressing his excitement. "I think I can tell you where she is—and a great deal more that you ought to know."

In the little room upstairs he told the whole story. The little man listened without so much as a single word of interruption or interrogation. Somewhat breathlessly Barnes came to the end.

"And now, Mr. Sprouse, what do you make of it all?" he inquired.

Sprouse leaned back in his chair, pulsively relaxing. "I am completely at sea," he said, and Barnes laughed at him in surprise.

"By Jove, I thought it would all be as clear as day to you. Here is your man and also your woman, and the traveling bag and all—"

"Right you are," interrupted Sprouse. "That is all simple enough. But, my dear Barnes, can you tell me what Mr. Secretary Loeb's real name is? Why has he established himself so close to the Canadian line, and why the mobilization? I refer to his army of huskies."

"Heirs apparent usually have some sort of a bodyguard, don't they?"

Sprouse was staring thoughtfully at the ceiling. When he finally lowered his eyes it was to favor Barnes with a deep, inscrutable smile.

"I dare say the first thing for me to do is to advise the Canadian authorities to keep a sharp lookout along the border."

CHAPTER XII.

The First Wayfarer Accepts an Invitation.

Barnes insisted that the first thing to be considered was the release of Miss Cameron.

"If we can't think of any other way to get her out of this devilish predicament, Sprouse, I shall apply to Washington for help."

"And be laughed at, my friend," said the secret agent. "It is not a matter for the government to meddle in at all."

"Well, something has to be done at once," said Barnes doggedly. "She is depending on me. If you could have seen the light that leaped into her glorious eyes when I—"

"Yes, I know. I've heard she is quite a pretty girl. You needn't—"

"Quite a pretty girl!" exclaimed Barnes. "Why, she is the loveliest thing that God ever created. She has the face of—"

"I am beginning to understand O'Dowd's interest in her, Mr. Barnes. He has probably fallen in love with her with as little difficulty as you have experienced, and almost as expeditiously. He has seen a little more of her than you, but—"

"Don't talk nonsense. I'm not in love with her."

"Can you speak with equal authority for Mr. O'Dowd? He is a very susceptible Irishman, I am told."

"I don't believe he will get much encouragement from her, Mr. Sprouse," said Barnes stiffly.

"If she is as clever as I think she is she will encourage him tremendously. I would if I were in her place. Mr. O'Dowd is only human. He isn't immune."

"I catch the point, Mr. Sprouse," said Barnes, rather gloomily. He did not like to think of the methods that might have to be employed in the subjugation of Mr. O'Dowd. "There is a rather important question I'd like to ask. Is she even remotely eligible to her country's throne?"

"Remotely, yes," said Sprouse.

"So remotely that she could marry a chap like O'Dowd without giving much thought to future complications?" he ventured.

"She'd be just as safe in marrying O'Dowd as she would in marrying you," was Sprouse's unsatisfactory response. The man's brow was wrinkled in thought. "See here, Mr. Barnes, I am planning a visit to Green Fancy tonight. How would you like to accompany me?"

"I'd like nothing better," said Barnes, with enthusiasm.

"Will you agree to obey instructions? I can't have you muddling things up, you know."

"The grounds are carefully guarded," said Barnes, after they had discussed the project for some time. "Miss Cameron is constantly under the watchful eye of one or more of the crowd."

"I know. I passed a couple of them last night," said Sprouse calmly. "By the way, don't you think it would be very polite of you to invite the Green Fancy party over here to have an old-fashioned country dinner with you tonight?"

"It would be useless, Mr. Sprouse. They will not come."

"I am perfectly aware of that, but it won't do any harm to ask them, will it?"

Barnes chuckled. "I see. Establishing myself as an innocent bystander, eh?"

"Get O'Dowd on the telephone and ask him if they can come," said Sprouse.

"But there is Jones to consider. The telephone is in his office. What will he think—"

"Jones is all right," said Sprouse briskly. "Come along. You can call up from my room." He grinned slyly. "Such a thing as tapping the wire, you know."

Sprouse had installed a telephone in his room, carrying a wire upstairs from an attachment made in the cellar of the tavern. He closed the door to his little room on the top floor.

Barnes and Sprouse make an exciting midnight visit to Green Fancy.

Hearing the truck peddler in the back alley crying, "Eating apples!" the woman poked her head out of the window and shouted surreptitiously, "Say, have you got any drinking apples?"

"No, ma'am; no cider," came the reply, quick as a shot.—Boston Transcript.

Had to Be Somewhere.

Byron was being remonstrated with for his rough conduct at his playmate's house.

"You should not fight Eddie when you are over at his house," his mother said to him.

Byron responded quickly, "Where must I fight him—at our house?"

Your Eyes

Then one day he was down town for several hours and acted unusually quiet and happy as he joined Eleanor and Howard.

"Children," he said, "I have just been to my lawyer putting my affairs in shape. I have placed all my liquid funds in bank subject to your disposal. My real estate goes to you jointly by my will."

"Will—liquid funds—estate—" repeated Eleanor vaguely.

"Exactly. The banknotes I turned up were some counterfeits I paid dearly for in a deal with some schemers, supposing them to be real money. My pauper act I staged to try out those loving relatives of mine. You two stood the test and I am going to see that we all enjoy life together, with plenty to help us do it."

AN UNDEFILED HERITAGE

Father in heaven, who lovest all,
Oh, help thy children when they call;
That they may build from age to age
An undefiled heritage.

Teach us to rule ourselves always,
Controlled and cleanly night and day;
That we may bring, if need arise,
No maimed or worthless sacrifice.

Teach us to look, in all our ends,
On thee for Judge, and not our friends;
That we with thee may walk uncowed
By fear or favor of the crowd.

Teach us the strength that cannot seek
By deed or thought to hurt the weak;
That, under thee, we may possess
Man's strength to comfort man's distress.

Teach us delight in simple things,
And mirth that has no bitter springs;
Forgiveness free of evil done,
And love to all men 'neath the sun.

American Housewives Profit From the Lessons in Thrift As Taught by French Chefs

The French chef, the acknowledged world leader of the art of the cuisine, is the product of a country that surpasses all others in the practice of thrift.

But the necessity of keeping her food budget within strict limits in spite of war prices has led many an American housewife to discover for herself some of the secrets of the French chef in making inexpensive and formerly neglected food into delicacies fit for a king.

Especially has this been so in the preparation of meat for our American tables. The following are some of the secrets of the French chef that the American housewife has discovered for herself.

Flank steak, which costs much less than top sirloin or round steak, makes an excellent roast. It can also be pot roasted or used as chop steak.

Chuck or round steak costs much less than porterhouse or sirloin. These cuts should be cooked by "moist" heat or made tender by mechanical means, as in "hamburger."

Beef neck is juicy and well flavored. It makes a good pot roast and the very best stews and soups.

The cross rib makes an excellent pot roast and there is no waste.

Skin of beef makes a good "heat a la mode." Cut it up as for stew; brown pieces in hot fat; then add water; cook in a pot the same as pot roast, and serve with gravy.

Skin of beef makes a most nourishing soup and the meat can be taken from the pot afterward and served with horseradish sauce.

If you buy a rib roast of beef, have your butcher cut the rib end off so that you can use it for making soup. If it is left on and roasted with the rest of the meat it is largely wasted.

For corned beef, the flank piece, the navel piece and the brisket piece cost the least. These cuts are palatable and the left-over portions can be made into a delicious hash.

"I consider it a duty to protect Uncle Jack Dalton from further squandering his fortune," pronounced pharisaical Harold Blair, his lawyer and nephew.

"You mean, have a conservator appointed?" insinuated self-seeking John Dwyer likewise a relative of the person designated.

"What do you propose to do, Blair?"

"Arrange to visit the old spendthrift en masse, a special committee to remonstrate against his dissipating his substance recklessly. Perhaps the dread of law I can inspire professionally will scare him and save our—ahem—respective inheritances."

"Just so. Fine idea. Let's try it." And that evening Lawyer Blair visited his uncle, and stating that he represented the quartette, delicately insinuated the merits of the occasion.

"Think I've lost my mind, I suppose?" observed Dalton grimly.

"Well, that's the construction most folks put on the case," replied Blair.

"So?" muttered Mr. Dalton, and he was in a dangerous mood, if his visitors had only known it. "Time-serving crew that you are, I will give consideration to your intruding upon my own personal affairs. The entire crowd of expectant heirs and heiresses seems to lack a quorum. Where is my half brother's daughter, Eleanor, and her husband, Joseph Howard?"

"Oh, we don't consider them near of kin," remarked Blair. "We did ask them to join us, but they refused to comply."

"You don't say so!" Dalton mimicked the speaker's squeaky ones. "Well, you all four of you come here next Saturday night at eight o'clock, and I'll tell you what I have decided to do. Now then, beat it, and leave an improvident old man alone with his misery."

Saturday night the quartette appeared at the lonely home of the erratic old bachelor. A great fire blazed in the grate, chairs were ranged against the wall. Between them and the fireplace was a table with two parcels upon it.

"My dear solicitous friends and relatives," began Dalton with a certain sardonic expression of face, "I have decided to make a full and complete confession of my misdeeds. This," and he opened one package, "contains over one hundred thousand dollars in mining stocks, oil stocks, automobile stock not worth the paper they are printed on. We'll get that out of the way," and he flung the heap upon the blazing fire where it was quickly consumed.

"One hundred thousand dollars!" groaned Blair.

"This package," resumed Dalton, and he took up the other parcel and opened it, "contains but—see for yourselves. Money—heads of it! bodies of it! Look—view, gloat!"

"Inasmuch as life is growing burdensome to me because an avaricious brood is after what I have left and threaten to take away my freedom, I become a pauper! Whoop—whisk—there she goes—ashes!"

"Twenty thousand dollars!" gloated Dalton. "See it sizzle in the grate! Now, that I have disposed of my fortune I am a pauper. I've given and loaned to the last one of you considerable amounts in the past. Of course you will be glad to have me live out my few remaining days, more about among you—" But, a maddened, disgusted, discomfited crowd, the precious relatives made their presence scarce.

Jack Dalton moved into a wretched room in a poor tenement house next day. His erratic conduct was the current sensation of the hour, but nobody thought of a conservator now. It was common gossip that he had visited each member of the quartette in turn, asking shelter and help. Four decidedly cold shoulders was all the satisfaction he got.

He was pottering over the cooking of a square meal one evening when he had visitors. Howard and his wife. Howard held the old man's hand sympathetically and Eleanor kissed him and began to cry.

"You poor old man!" she sobbed. "You, who started us in housekeeping to come to this! But that will soon end. Uncle Jack, you are to come to our house at once."

"And live there a welcome guest for the rest of your life," supplemented Howard.

IDEAL FARM LANDS

Minnesota Man at Last Found What He Sought.

After Long Search, the Wondrous Productiveness of Western Canada Was Pointed Out, and He is Going There.

He farmed for a number of years near Windom, Minnesota, and as Mr. O. S. Marcy told it, he had done well. He had made sufficient money to see him and his wife through their remaining days.

"But there were the boys," said Mrs. Marcy, "and six of them, too—some of the six not yet back from 'overseas.' Yes, we are proud of them," the fond mother said, "but, oh! my, we had no girl," and she bemoaned that. These boys had to be looked after. "Why not settle them about you in your own neighborhood? You have good land there; splendid neighbors, and everything that might be desired."

"Yes, that is all true," replied this estimable lady, "but the land is so high-priced we couldn't afford to buy there, although worth every cent asked for it. You see we have six boys, and they are good one, too."

So, one day, three years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Marcy rigged up the automobile for a touring trip. They wanted to investigate for the boys' benefit. The journey lasted for a year. It took them through Arizona with its varied scenery, its climatic and agricultural attractions; into the canyons of Colorado they went, and the agricultural possibilities there aroused a large amount of interest. Still undecided, down into the valleys of California the automobile went. Fruit orchards were plentiful, grain fields were attractive, but the psychological time had not arrived. Reversing their way, they passed through Washington, Oregon and Montana and home. A year's journey and no results. "Oh, yes," Mr. Marcy said, "we had a delightful time, enjoyed it all but the day and night up in Colorado, when we were held up by a wonderful snowstorm; we and six others. Planking the snow embankment, we came through safely, if a trifle inconvenienced."

It was interesting to hear these people talk. Their practical minds showed that they had not lacked opportunities for observation. They could not find what they wanted for the boys. When he was between twenty and twenty-five years of age, Mr. Marcy pictured to himself the kind of a home he wanted. He reared a family of boys and had yet to find such a place. His year's journey had been fruitless in that respect.

One day he decided he would try what Western Canada could do. He had read of it, and he had friends there who had done well. He toured the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. He saw the vast prairies, yielding their twenty and twenty-five, and as high as ferty bushels of wheat, with enormous yields of other grains. The north central country, which afforded the grass and the shelter that made stock-raising a valuable adjunct to the growing of grain, was visited, interviews were had with the settlers, many from his own home district, and all were satisfied.

Only the other day he arranged for a car in which he will load his effects to be taken to the Alberta farm he had purchased when on his visit. Mrs. Marcy goes with him, and the six boys will follow. He found the place he had pictured in his mind when he was twenty or twenty-five years old. "I was unable to find it until I made my Western Canada visit. I bought the farm, and I am satisfied. When I saw a carload of four-year-old steers brought into the Edmonton market, weighing 1,700 pounds, that had never been inside a building nor fed a bit of grain, I was glad I had made up my mind."—Advertisement.

A Lemon.

Two couples were strolling slowly around Monument Circle. A boy approached the with a bouquet of roses pleading that the man buy. The woman stopped, looked down at the boy, and said:

"You needn't mind, boy. He won't buy. He's my husband."

There was no more "sales talk" then.—Indianapolis News.

Bacchus Also Ran.

"I am afraid that your son is a follower of Bacchus," said the preacher who was calling on old Gotrox.

"A follower!" exclaimed old Gotrox. "Why, he caught up with that guy Bacchus and passed him years ago."

THIN PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Bitro-Phosphate to Put on Flesh, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are often due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric acid elements, bitro-phosphate should produce a welcome transformation in the appearance, the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

Increase in weight also carries with it a general betterment in the health, nervousness, disappears and both energy and ambition develop. Sallow complexions clear, scrawny limbs become round and shapely, and pale cheeks glow with the green of perfect health.

CAUTION:—Although bitro-phosphate is unsurpassed for relief of nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, it should not cause a fat tendency in persons who do not desire to put on flesh.

The Mission of Swift & Company

Swift & Company has become one of the large businesses of the world through continuing to meet the growing needs of a nation and a world.

Society has a right to ask how the increasing responsibilities and opportunities for usefulness which go with such growth are being used by the men who direct its affairs—and the men have the right to answer:

To promote the production of live stock and perishables and increase the food supply;

To reach more people with more and better meat;

To make a fair competitive profit, in order to reimburse the 25,000 shareholders for the use of their capital, and to provide for the future development of the business;

To reduce to a minimum the costs of preparing and distributing meat and to divide the benefits of efficiency with producer and consumer;

To live and let live, winning greater business only through greater usefulness, with injury to nothing but incompetency, inefficiency and waste; to deal justly, fairly, and frankly with all mankind.

These are the purposes and motives of the men who direct the policies and practices of Swift & Company.

Secretary of Agriculture Issues Statement

Washington, D. C. June 18.—Opposing the creation of a Federal Highway Commission and the transfer of the functions of the present Bureau of Public Roads of the Department of Agriculture to the proposed commission, Secretary of Agriculture Houston has issued a statement in reply to resolutions of various Chambers of Commerce throughout the United States advocating radical changes in the federal road organization.

The Secretary points out that under the Bankhead bill, a very large number of cooperative road agreements have been entered into between the federal government and states and counties, and that a total reorganization of the federal road building agencies would interrupt and complicate the whole road building program. Every state has accepted the federal aid program, and the Bureau of Public Roads is working in close cooperation with the State highway departments, on which rests the chief responsibility for formulating the road program for each State. Secretary Houston opposes the centralization of these functions in Washington, stating that the state departments and district federal engineers are in a much better position to determine what roads are to be built than a comission sitting at Washington would be.

"Why at this stage introduce complications and embarrassments?," the Secretary asks. "Why should not the friends of the movement for roads to serve the people cooperate? it is difficult for me to see why all who are animated by high public spirit in their thinking concerning highways should not cooperate in the developement of present programs and in the perfection of the existing processes and machinery, instead of attempting to overthrow them. I believe that many of those who are backing the proposed change do not know the facts and are not aware of the existing conditions and possibilities. I believe also that their proposal stands very little chance of being enacted into law."

YOUR FLAG AND MY FLAG

The New Legion

The organization of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Legion last Monday night at the Crystal Theatre is important in more ways than one would imagine at first thought. First, its members, through their associations in the service will maintain through the organization, the unsevered relationship which they experienced in the service. Again: there is, at the present time, and will continue to be, certain grievances wherin petitions must be made to the Congress of the United States in behalf of the boys which must not only be listened to, but adjusted to the satisfaction of these boys of ours who bore the burdens in the heat of the day, while we remained at home under the protection of their guns.

We are among those who advocate full pay for the boys who willingly sacrificed good positions and risked their lives in order to serve the cause and protect the flag. This is not only reasonable but it is in perfect justice to them that they should have it with a full measure and let us hope that the new legion will make this one of its initiatory steps to further the campaign of full pay for the boys while in service.

Last but not least, the Legion will, or should, be a mighty factor in future politics; the soldier boy of to day, should be the public man of to morrow. Those who have sat in the canoes of safety must stand aside for those who have breasted the waves. Whom, we ask, could we better trust with our public affairs than those who have been our protectors in the resent conflict.

Then Hurrah for the Legion! Under the flag they carried into foreign lands to conquer savagery and antiquary, we extend the hand of welcome to this important patriotic organization.

BOMB PLOTS DISCOVERED

JULY 4 SET AS DATE TO BLOW UP MANY PROMINENT PEOPLE.

SECRET SERVICE ACTS

EXISTENCE HAS BEEN KNOWN TO DEPARTMENT ABOUT TWO MONTHS.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.

Washington, June 13.—Following an appeal to Congress by Attorney General Palmer for an appropriation of $500,000 to run down the authors of the recent attempts to assassinate public officials, it became known that 200 secret agents of the Navy Intelligence Bureau are investigating a gigantic plot to explode bombs in Chicago and more than a score of other large cities July 4.

About fifty government detectives are working in Chicago, suspected of being headquarters of the plotters.

Others are pursuing leads in Detroit, Indianapolis, East Chicago, Hammond and other Middle West industrial centers. Suspects are under surveillance in Milwaukee, Minneapolis, St. Louis, Louisville, Cleveland, Akron, Toledo and Moline.

The plot called for July 4 bomb demonstrations in all of these cities except Milwaukee, and in Pittsburg, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, New York, Trenton, Newark, Jersey City, Bridgeport, Taunton, Fall River, Providence, Boston, Pittsburg, Memphis, Atlanta, Savannah, Charleston, Birmingham and New Orleans.

Navy intelligence operatives were assigned to the investigation at the request of the Department of Justice, whose own detectives have become too well known to the Reds.

Existence of the plot became known to Department of Justice operatives about two months ago, when an operative who had joined a terrorist group and gained the confidence of members of the inner circles at Chicago headquarters of the organization succeeded in purloining papers containing a program of bomb explosions for a large number of cities where Fourth of July celebrations on a large scale were to be held.

In many of the cities where the celebrations planned were to be municipal in character, the point at which the largest crowds might be expected to assemble were indicated.

Evidence of the widespread nature of the plot includes a large number of pieces of mail, telegrams and messages delivered personally found in places where raids had been made on radical centers.

The subject matter of these messages has been communicated to chiefs of police in the cities concerned and the local police officials are cooperating with the government in the investigation.

The $500,000 asked of Congress by the attorney general to fight the bomb plotters is in addition to $1,500,000 for the department's bureau of investigation.

"The comparatively recent violence and the attempted violence on the part of individuals associated with anarchistic organizations," said Mr. Palmer in his letter to Congress, "discloses existing conditions which renders the supplemental estimate necessary in order that there may be ample means for protecting the public and enforcing the laws of the United States."

Mr. Palmer also requested authority to appoint a director of the bureau of investigation at a salary of $7,500. This is the post to which William J. Flynn has been appointed.

Ships in Collision.

New York.—One ship was sunk and three others were damaged in collisions in a fog off New York harbor, according to messages received here. The steamer Yankee, a United States shipping board vessel, went down after crashing into the Italian steamer Argentina, off Fire Island. The Argentina was damaged. She saved all hands from the Yankee. The 13,000-ton transport Graf Waldersee, a former Hamburg-American liner, was rammed by the shipping board steamer Kedoubo off Sandy Hook while outward bound from New York to Brest. Her wireless distress calls brought the transport Leviathan and the Patricia to the rescue. Most of those aboard the Graf Waldersee were transferred to the Patricia.

Pass Deficit Measure.

Washington.—The Senate in two minutes passed the House bill appropriating $750,000,000 for deficiencies in the railroad administration.

COCA-COLA WILL BE USED TO CHRISTEN ENGINE

Program Will Feature Exercises at Fire Hall on Wednesday.

[From Nashville Tennessean.]

Ann Dallas Dudley, the new fire engine at the Waverly-Belmont fire hall, will be christened on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock with appropriate exercises. Mrs. Guilford Dudley, for whom the engine gets its name, is one of the state's pioneer suffrage workers and it is due to her untiring work that partial suffrage was given the women of Tennessee. Mrs. Miles Williams, a resident of the twenty-first ward, is chairman of arrangements, and also a pioneer suffragist, and little Judith Winston Folk, the 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rean Folk, also a pioneer suffragist and the youngest member of the Nashville organization, has been chosen sponsor. Miss Folk has selected as her maids the following young girls, daughters of prominent suffrage leaders: Travania Dudley, Lenore Kenny, Kate Barksdale, Harriet Ingram, Mary Sue Cantrell, Jane Davis and Elizabeth Smith.

At the christening not champagne but a bottle of coca-cola will be broken and the maids will shower the engine with yellow flowers. Speeches will be made by Mayor William Gupton, Commissioner Tomphins and Chief A. A. Rosetta. Mrs. Dudley, a member of the national suffrage organization, and Mrs. Rean Folk, chairman of the city organization, will be honor guests of the occasion.—Adv.

Coming down the street was a milkman, singing; horse jogging along easily, the milkman seated comfortably; and as he came along he was singing to himself softly some tune that pleased his fancy.

The milkman gets up at some unearthly hour in the morning to make his rounds delivering, and then after people are up he goes all over his route again collecting his bills. It is a long day the milkman puts in and he makes it in all sorts of weather; but for all that this milkman was singing; and it was pleasant to find him, as it would be to find any man whatever his calling or profession, taking not too blooming serious a view of things, but able to hum a tune as he worked.—Exchange.

Bitter or Better Baking

A letter makes a great difference in a word. A word makes a great difference in baking powders.

If the little word "alum" appears on the label it may mean bitter baking.

If the words "Dr. Price's" stand out bold and strong, they surely mean BETTER baking.

This is only one reason why it pays to use

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

by Mary Graham Bonner

SILVER MOON ROSES.

The silver moon roses were just out. They were lovely single white roses and they were in a garden down in a little southern town.

It was early evening and the sun was just going to bed and the moon had been up for a time, though of course he hadn't been very bright, for it was still daylight.

"Ah, the silver moon roses are out," said Mr. Moon.

And the roses lifted up their beautiful white heads and said:

"Good evening, Mr. Moon."

"Well," said Mr. Sun, "I must be going to bed. I am glad to have had a glimpse of you, Mr. Moon, and I am glad to have seen the moon roses. It's always a pleasure to see them."

And the silver moon roses bowed their heads and sent their sweetest messages up to Mr. Sun as their good-nights to him.

And the Breeze Brothers carried up the sweet scent of the roses until it reached the sky, and Mr. Sun smiled as he went behind the oceans, so it seemed, and said:

"I'll see you tomorrow, roses."

"Well," said Mr. Moon, after Mr. Sun had left, "this is a surprise. Aren't you out rather early this year?"

"Yes, Mr. Moon, we are, but it has been warm you know, and Mr. Sun has been helping us. We had a fine talk today and told him how glad we were to be here so soon.

"He's the dearest old soul and you are the dearest old soul, too," said the silver moon roses.

"How can we both be the dearest old souls?" asked Mr. Moon, grinning.

"Well, never mind how it can be done," said the silver moon roses, "but you are both just too nice for anything."

"Now," said the moon, "that can't be."

"What can't be?" asked the silver moon roses.

"I can't be too nice for anything, and Mr. Sun can't be too nice for anything, because we're both in the sky, and we look down on the world and beautiful roses and no creature can be too nice for all that."

The Breeze Brothers Carried Up the Scent.

"Ah, Mr. Moon, you flatter us," said the silver moon roses.

"And you flatter me," said Mr. Moon.

"It's because we love you, and we love to see you as you look down on the great ocean and give such lights to the waves," said the moon roses.

"Yes," they continued, "and you make us look so bright and big."

"I'm glad I suit you," said Mr. Moon. "Ah, roses, the waves are having such fun tonight. Do you hear them as they sing and laugh and toss and play?"

"We hear them," said the silver moon roses. "They are lovely. They are so beautiful, so jolly, so gay, and so happy."

"And they should be, too," said Mr. Moon, "for think of what a wonderful mother they have—dear old Mother Ocean!"

"And think of what a moon they have to look down upon them," said the silver moon roses.

"Ah, flatterers, flatterers," said Mr. Moon.

"We speak the truth," said the silver moon roses.

And then the waves played still harder. The lights danced and played, too.

The moon smiled and the moon grinned and old Mother Ocean sang a song, for she sang all the time, which went like this:

"The moon is shining from above,
The roses sing their songs of love,
They are so very, very sweet,
When they offer it's such a treat!
And my waves are having fun,
As young girls do, from they run,
And all the world is very bright,
Under Mr. Moon tonight.
Old Mother Ocean wants to say
That she loves the world more every day!"

PLANTED BY BIRDS

Simple Reason for Uncommon Position of Trees.

Tall Palmyra Palm Growing on Top of Bengal Fig Presents Curious Appearance—Naturalists Explain Apparent Phenomenon.

Every one has heard of small trees getting down on larger ones, and appearing like little babies on the branches of their hosts. But in India it is, in some parts, fairly common to see the tall Palmyra palm growing as if from the top of the tree called Bengal fig. The appearance this presents is most curious and it has engaged the attention of nearly all travelers in the Thana district of Bombay, where the palm is especially abundant.

If one fancies how incongruous a very tall telegraph pole fixed into the middle of an oak tree and surmounted by a small crown of fan-shaped leaves would look, it can be realized how astonishing the first encounter with the Palmyra palm must be, when similarly united with a fig tree. An explanation, of course, had to be found, and the first casual observers might be divided into those that thought it a case of a hybrid, and the remainder who considered it a graft. But botanists know that no hybrid or graft has ever been produced between two species that are so distantly related as those in question. As a matter of fact, the introduction of these two friends to each other is made by some of the pretty little birds that abound in the region, including a few of the humming birds. Their principal food, George Michael Ryan tells us, consists of the minute fruits of the wild fig trees.

After collecting a few of these, they usually fly off to the top of a tall palm to enjoy them in peace. Some of the seeds fall and become lodged in the joints where the leaves spring from the stem. Here, in process of time, they germinate, throwing out roots below and branches and leaves above. But the roots of these fig trees are not content to draw their moisture and food from the little pocket of sand and dust into which they happen to fall. They soon multiply and spread far beyond their original home, into a thick network that covers and envelops the whole of the lower part of the Palmyra stem. Branches at the same time multiply above, forming a large bush, which, with the roots, monopolizes the situation and makes the palm look like a mere adjunct. But the palm does not mind. All the air it wants is for the leaves above.

The encircling sheath of fig roots, moreover, cause it no inconvenience, because it would not, in any case, increase in girth after it had once risen from the ground. It is, in fact, a case of symbiosis or mutual accommodation between the two species. The palm gives the necessary assistance to the baby fig, and afterward support to its maturing branches, while the foliage which these bear provides welcome shade to the roots of its patron.—Journal of Natural History Society of Bombay.

No Chloroform Nausea.

Chloroform administered through a tube is said to dispense with the nausea which is almost invariably encountered otherwise. The new practice was inaugurated by a French practitioner, Doctor Guisez. The nausea is caused by a part of the chloroform vapors being absorbed by the oesophagus and the stomach. Doctor Guisez introduced the chloroform vapors directly into the windpipe. The tube method already has been employed in several hundred cases, and with great success. It is particularly useful for operations to be performed on the head and neck.

Bruges of Today.

Mrs. B. O. Tufnell, writing in reference to Bruges, says: "I think it may be of interest to you to know that Bruges is extraordinarily little changed since the war. We were most agreeably surprised to find our things left behind intact and only one case had been opened. The hotel was still well run and comfortable, and the food was good, only the pre-war prices had changed for the worse! The beautiful old city looked much the same as before. The curfew is still pealing in the belfry, and few of the public buildings have suffered. The port has been greatly altered, and there the signs of war are very evident, not only in the huge works started by the enemy, but in the effectual destruction of them by our airmen. The shops are open, and the life of Bruges goes on as it did. Only the welcome appearance of khaki-clad men or bushy-tailed W. A. A. C.'s strikes a strange note in the cobbled spaces of the Grande Place."

Western Newspaper Union News Service.

Contracts have been let for a new administration building and a cadet hospital to be erected at the New Mexico Military Institute at Roswell. The total cost will be $65,000. The buildings are to be completed by the time school opens next fall.

Tourists traveling either way from Clayton on the Colorado-to-Gulf highway will know that Clayton is on the map when they read the big signs which have been placed both ways on this road. The signs have been placed by the Clayton Rotary Club and were paid for by the business men of the city.

The State Highway Commission has approved and sent to the federal government for its approval, the plan of the county commissioners of Taos county to have a federal aid road project from Santa Fé to Taos, or to be more exact, to build eight miles of good road from Rinconada to Otenguilla.

That the mining boom is still on in New Mexico is demonstrated by the report of a rich strike on Beunds ranch, near Lordsburg. The ore is free milling, soft and very easily mined and seems to extend considerable distance. Assays from specimens taken show up to 25 ounces per ton of ore valued at $500.

Gallup will soon have one of the finest amusement parks in the Southwest. The park will contain a large pavilion, a Ferris wheel, skating rink and in fact all the features of a large city park. The park contains over five acres of ground and will be surrounded by an eight-foot board fence. It is estimated that the buildings alone will cost over $50,000 when all are completed.

Reports have reached Silver City of a rich gold strike in the foothills of the Little Burro mountains, seventeen miles north of Spear, Grant county. Assays of the ore running all the way from $1,600 to $3,000 a ton are claimed. The original strike was made on a group of Fluorspar claims and there has been a rush of people to the scene of the new strike. The new strike is in the Gold Hill mining district which was famous as a mining camp many years ago.

The Chino Copper Company plant at Hurley is one of the sources of industrial pride of the state of New Mexico. The annual report is being favorably commented on by the large eastern papers. At the close of the year the company showed a net income of $7,327,000 or the equivalent to $8 per share of stock. During the last year the company spent $1,500,000 on enlarging the plant and stripping new ore. The capacity of the mill is now 12,500 tons daily and the ore supply is good for at least twenty years. With present equipment the ore recovery will amount to about one hundred million tons per year.

Curry county will have an enormous wheat crop this year according to all reports. This is an assured fact now as there is nothing to destroy the crop except hail storms and these rarely ever visit the entire country at once. It will require much extra labor to care for the big wheat crop this year and the one great question which is troubling the farmers at the present time is whether or not they will be able to secure the necessary help to save their wheat. Heretofore many laborers have gone to Kansas and Oklahoma to work in the wheat fields, being lured there by the report of high wages, but it is now an assured fact that there will be plenty of work for every man in the eastern part of the state this year.

Criminals sent to the New Mexico state penitentiary from now on are to be recorded not only on the register and in the photograph gallery but by their thumb prints. The addition to the other physical records is regarded of great importance, for thumb print records of persons are considered the most easily made and the most accurate conceivable.

The town of Clayton is having a building boom this spring equal to any other city in the state. Improvements in the residence section of the town are going on at a steady rate, several fine houses are now under construction and many more will be started in the near future. Nearly all the new homes, now going up range in cost from three to five thousand dollars which assures the prosperity of the town. Ground has been broken for the new school building near the court house. The building will be one story, will have four rooms and a basement, and will be modern in every way. A steam heating plant will be installed as soon as the building is finished and it is hoped to have it all ready for occupancy by the time the fall school term begins.

Deer Killed in New Jersey.

Three hundred and sixty-five deer were killed in New Jersey during the 1918 season. This is quite a number when you consider that the season is but four days, one day a week for four weeks. The weight of the kill amounted to 35 tons.

Moose Are Coming Back.

Moose are becoming quite plentiful again in Wyoming; so plentiful that the game commission figures that within a very few years an open season can be declared. Minnesota is now the only state with an open season for moose.

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying powers are a result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, and the druggist should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them wilfully with narcotics.

To Move an Army.

Some idea of the transportation requirements of a great nation at war may be drawn from the following: To move a field army of 50,000 men (two army corps), a total of 6,120 passenger, baggage, box, stock and flat cars are needed. These are made up into 306 trains, a locomotive for every train.

IT'S NOT YOUR HEART; IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

Kidney disease is no respecter of persons. A majority of the ills afflicting people today can be traced back to the kidney trouble.

The kidneys are the most important organs of the body. They are the filterers of your blood. If the poisons which are swept from the tissues by the blood are not eliminated through the kidneys, disease of one form or another will claim you as a victim.

Kidney disease is usually indicated by weariness, sleeplessness, nervousness, despondency, backache, stomach trouble, pain in loins and lower abdomen, gall stones, gravel, rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago.

All these derangements are nature's signals that the kidneys need help. You should use GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules immediately. The soothing, healing oil stimulates the kidneys, relieves inflammation and destroys the germs which have caused it. Go to your druggist today and get a box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. In twenty-four hours you should feel health and vigor returning.

After you feel somewhat improved continue to take one or two capsules each day, so as to keep the first-class condition and ward off the dangerous other attacks.

Ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand. Three sizes. Money refunded if they do not help you.

PERISHED WITH THEIR RIDERS

Heroes of Custer's Command Died as Bravely as Did the Soldiers They Carried.

Stories of equine courage and fortitude displayed in the late war recall that of a famous horse, Comanche, able survivor of the Custer massacre. Comanche was the mount of Captain Keogh, a relative of General Custer. He was found shortly after the massacre about a day's journey from the battlefield. Suffering from seven bad wounds and very weak from loss of blood, it was at first despaired of getting him back to camp. But the soldiers carried him on a litter constructed of strong poles and army blankets. Given the best of treatment, he fully recovered to receive an honorable discharge.

Custer's men used the bodies of their horses for barricade against the Indians. As they went into action on horseback every horse was saddled, but when Comanche was found he was without even a bridle, as it was supposed that the Indians, believing he was too badly wounded to recover, stripped him and left him to die. Every other horse was found in the heaps of the slain.

Thought alone is eternal.—Owen Meredith.

HOPE GRANDMA WASN'T THERE

Small Girl's Remark Could Not by Any Means Have Been Called Complimentary.

Stroll over in the main animal house on the hill, and inspect the trained chimpanzee in her new glass-guarded cage. Outside the regular bars there has been erected a glass covering, which prevents the inquisitive public from getting too friendly with the animal. This member of the monkey tribe is one of the most popular exhibits in the park, and always draws a crowd.

It is worth going miles to see, indeed, the way she drinks water from a milk bottle held in the hands of her faithful guard. Her lower jaw drops after the manner of a steam shovel, about an ounce of water is allowed to pour in, and the jaws close. After some time the operation is ready to be repeated. Even the last few drops are sedulously gathered in.

One pauses to contemplate the grand conceptions of nature, which adapt the thirst and the jaw so well to the modern milk bottle, when—
