REPUBLICANS' OPENING GUN IN CAMPAIGN FIRED BY ROOT

New York State Convention Held by G. O. P.; Veteran Politician Urges Decentralization of Executive Powers Which Make the President an Autocrat Over Nation.

New York, Feb. 19.—Elihu Root outlined at the Republican state convention here tonight the platform upon which he believes the party should go to the polls in November. Most striking of his proposals were:

Decentralization of the executive powers which have made the president "more autocractic than any sovereign in the civilized world."

Ratification of the peace treaty with senate amendments "long before the presidential elections."

Reform of the League of Nations covenant by a congress of nations at the call of "a republican president immediately after March, 1921," to establish "the rule of public right rather than the rule of mere expediency."

Rigid governmental economy and the adoption of an executive budget.

Limitation of the right to strike at a point where it conflicts with self-preservation of the community; establishment of a labor tribunal with power to enforce its mandates.

Revision of the system of taxation "which involves the tariff."

Americanization and the elimination of "a lot of Bolsheviki or Bolsheviki sympathizers" from public office.

Universal training.

Hoover Off Ticket; Residence Not Given

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 18.—A petition to place the name of Herbert Hoover on the democratic ballot in the presidential primary April 5 was rejected by the secretary of state today because it did not designate the candidate's residence as required by law.

Supporters of Mr. Hoover have until noon March 1 to file new petitions.

New Pavillion

Cloudcroft, N. M., Feb. 16.—Word was received at Cloudcroft last week that the pavillion which was burned last season is to be re-built as soon as the material for the structure can be secured.

This will be good news to all of the patrons of this resort, as it is here that at least two big dances are held each week during the season, and where all other gatherings are held.

Wages Same Until Sept. 1

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—Wages established by the railroad administration during the war, would continue until September 1, under the railroad reorganization bill; the conference report on which was presented today in the house and senate.

Denver Runs out of License Blanks; 15 Pairs Can't Wed

Denver, Feb. 18.—No less than 15 Denver couples were compelled to forego the experience of being married here today because of the lack of marriage license blanks in the office of the clerk of licenses. It seems that the blanks had been ordered from the printers since December 1, but because of the influenza and the scarcity of white paper and a few other unfortunate circumstances, the printer was unable to print up the required number.

Consternation reigned among the would-be brides and grooms when they appeared at the court house and learned of the license famine. Some of them regarded the matter as an evil omen and dashed out to hunt taxicabs to transport them to Littleton, Golden, and other adjacent Gretna Greens where the permits might be secured on the designated day.

The license clerk promised to have a supply Tuesday.

Of Interest to Wool Growers

Roswell, N. M., Feb. 19.—F. J. Hagenbarth, president of the National Wool Growers' Association, has definitely announced that he will be present for the annual convention of the New Mexico Wool Growers' Association which will be held here March 8 and 9. The subject of his address on the opening day of the convention will be "What the Wool Growers Need." This is only one of the many good things of interest to wool growers on the two days program.

The U. S. Bureau of Animal Industry will be represented by Dr. F. L. Schnieder, who will speak on "Some Common Conditions and Diseases Affecting Sheep in New Mexico." "A Program of Forestry for the Nation" will be the subject of a talk by Frank C. Pooler, U. S. District Forester.

Between sessions there will be plenty of entertainment for the visitors. It is believed this will be one of the largest conventions the Wool Growers have ever held.

"Bat's" Big Estate

Chicago, Feb. 20.—Bat Nelson, former lightweight champion, was named chief beneficiary of the $250,000 estate of his father, whose will Thursday was filed for probate.

The will leaves $225,000 of the estate to Bat and distributes the residue equally among his five brothers, Albert, Henry, Charley, H. Arthur, and Harry Nelson, and his sister, Mrs. Ida Naple, of Iowa.

Spillers-Hibbard

On Monday last, train No. 8 brought to Carrizozo Mr. and Mrs. Howard D. Spillers, who were united in marriage at West Bloomfield, N. Y., February 13. Mr. Spillers while in the service of his country during the late war, met Miss Ida L. Hibbard, who was at that time also in the service, serving in the capacity of nurse in a hospital at Vichey, France. Their acquaintance was formed in 1918, which ripened into love and after the war was over, both returned to this country, Miss Hibbard to her home in New York and Mr. Spillers to his home at Lincoln, N. M.

Since that time, the couple had kept up their correspondence and with all arrangements completed, Mr. Spillers journeyed to the state of New York where they were married on the date mentioned above. The wedding ceremony was performed by Dr. Earl Shepard of Genesee Wesleyan Seminary, the wedding march was rendered by Miss Margaret Powell of Rochester, Miss Carolyn Jones of Dundee, N. Y. acted as bride's maid, and Glen Searle of Honeoge Falls, N. Y., was best man. All connected with the well arranged affair wore military uniforms, all having been in the service at the same time.

The happy couple left the day after the wedding for their new home in New Mexico and were met at Carrizozo by relatives and friends from Lincoln, after which the party left for the Spillers' ranch between Lincoln and Capitan. The Outlook joins in the general expression of best wishes for the health, wealth and happiness of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Spillers.

Base Ball? Sure

Are we to have a ball team this year? "We'll say we are" At a meeting held last Saturday afternoon the following officers and directors were elected for the coming season: Fred (Shorty) Dawson, Manager; Brent Paden, Secretary-Treasurer; A. J. Rolland, Jno. A. Haley, C. A. Perkins, Directors. The organization as a whole is made up of sport lovers and to say that we will have games here this summer that will give the ball fans a good run for their money, would be putting the matter lightly. All players, who are desirous of being included in the line-up, should get in touch with the officers and be enrolled for business. We have good material here at home and we may look for challenges galore in the near future. Practice games will be played from now on, to get the boys in trim for the coming season.

House Caucus Votes For the Suffrage Bill

Santa Fe, Feb. 19.—Suffrage was ratified by the house of the New Mexico legislature this afternoon by the vote of 36 to 19.

The house caucus previously had voted for the resolution.

OIL BILL UP TO PRESIDENT; WILL SOON BECOME LAW

Knights Make Night Pleasant For Guests

Thursday night, the K. of P. lodge gave an oyster supper and dance at their hall in the Lutz building which was one of the best and most enjoyable of the season. Crowds gathered at an early hour which increased after the closing of the Crystal Theatre. Dancing was the order of the evening until 10:30 when the long tables were filled a portion of the guest while some continued to dance to await the clearing of the first table. County Commissioner Wm. Sevier superintended over the oyster frying and the work was certainly fine—the oysters were too.

During the festivities, Mr. Jno. A. Haley gave a very interesting rendition of the "Lesson in Friendship," which is a prelude to the ritualistic ceremonies of the order. This feature in connection with the affair, accompanied by a picturesque description of the narrative was well received. The event was doubly successful and the Knights have every reason to feel a tinge of pride at the manner in which the affair was conducted and the courtesy shown the guests. Many people from neighboring towns were present.

Suggests Tea As Aid To Salvation

New York, Feb. 17.—Tea as an aid to salvation is advocated by Bishop E. S. Lines, of the Espicopal church. The bishop made the suggestion at a conference of the clergy of the Newark diocese that they try serving tea after evening devotions as a means of getting in closer touch with their parishoners.

"The tea idea may shock some old-fashioned people," said the bishop, "but I suggest you think it over."

Noted Explorer Dies

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—Rear admiral Robert Edwin Peary, retired Arctic explorer and discoverer of the North Pole, died at his home here today from pernicious anemia from which he had suffered for several years. Arrangements for the funeral have not been completed, but he will be buried with full naval honors.

Admiral Peary submitted to a blood tranfusion at a hospital here ten days ago. He later was removed to his home and his condition then was reported as somewhat improved. He gradually grew weaker, however, and the end came early this morning.

Rev. G. F. Mickey of the Church of Christ preached at the Baptist Church on Friday night and will also preach on Saturday and Sunday evenings.

Senate's Action The Result of A Ten Year's Fight Affecting 75,000,000 Acres of Public Domain in The West.—Will Add Millions to Land Values.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—Enactment of the oil land leasing bill was completed today with the adoption of the conference report by the senate. The bill now goes to the president for his signature and it is regarded as certain that the bill will then become law.

The senate's action terminated a ten years' fight. The bill provides for the leasing and development of government owned oil, coal, gas, phosphate, sodium and oil shale lands by private enterprise, and affects approximately 75,000,000 acres of public domain, principally in western states.

Ask Bonds For Reclamation

Washington, D. C., Feb. 20.—Reclamation of unused lands in the west and south through bond issues, operating similar to the federal farm loan system, would be authorized by a bill introduced by senator Fletcher, Democrat, Florida. A similar measure will be offered in the house by representative Smith, Republican, Idaho.

Under the plan $20,000,000 worth of bonds would be sold the first year, $30,000,000 the second, $40,000,000 the third and $50,000,000 the fourth year, with a total not exceeding $350,000,000.

The measure represents the concert of action of the south and the west for a great national rather than a sectional plan.

Mr. Bamberger Returns

O. W. Bamberger of the Carrizozo Trading Company returned the early part of this week from his eastern business trip, during which time he made purchases of goods for spring and summer trade. Things are looking much better in the east now, but prices remain firm with no indication of a downward trend, Mr. Bamberger says. However, he was fortunate in making his purchases in the early part of the buying game and his prices on new goods will be a surprise to those, who think they will be compelled to pay much more than before. It will pay to investigate the new stock and the reasonable prices.

Bill Provides For Beer Sale

Washington, Feb. 20.—Amendment of the Volstead prohibition enforcement act so as to permit the states, by referendums, to authorize sale of 2.75 percent beer and 10 percent wine, was proposed in a bill introduced today by representative Minahan, Democrat, New Jersey.

PEOPLE YOU KNOW OR SHOULD KNOW

Carl Arnold, employed on the Spence & Sons ranch north of town, suffered a painful accident Sunday. A horse he was riding stepped into a prairie dog hole and lurching violently to one side, threw Mr. Arnold to the ground. The horse becoming frightened, made frantic efforts to regain his feet and accidently struck Mr. Arnold in the face with one of his hoofs, badly lacerating it. He was 25 miles from the ranch house at the time of the accident and traveled that distance Sunday night, suffering intensely. He was brought to town Monday and given medical attention. His face, although badly cut and bruised, will soon heal leaving no scars, the doctors say.

F. E. Richard received a telegram Monday afternoon which conveyed to the family the sad news of the death of his sister, Mrs. C. A. McMullen, who passed away at Wellington, Kansas, Sunday night. Mrs. McMullen left Tucumcari a short time ago in company with Mrs. Richard and journeyed to Kansas where she hoped a lower altitude would benefit her health, but not long after arriving at Wellington her condition became serious and all efforts to restore her to health proved futile. Mrs. Richard left Tuesday on No. 2 to attend the funeral which will be held in Wellington.

Miss Brainshaf, of Santa Fe, who represents the American Red Cross Anti-Tuberculosis Association, spent Wednesday and Thursday here conferring with the local committee. During the time of her stay arrangements were made whereby the local chapter will employ a county school nurse, whose duty will be to interest herself in the health of the pupils, reporting the conditions to the county and city physicians. Aside from this she will assist the doctors in their duties, in such manner as they may hereafter agree upon.

Jack Anderson, the well known barber has bought out the shop formerly operated by Jimmy Dunn next door to the Lincoln County Light & Power Company's office, or between this office and George Olney's Billiard Parlor. Jack is too well known to patrons of the barber shop to offer recommendations for him here; his good work in this line is a standing recommendation for him, and his genial disposition makes his list of friends constantly increase. You will be pleased with the service if you give Jack a call.

Reily, Stratton and Harris have sold the entire herd of the Owen Walters cattle to J. B. French of Carrizozo. This herd is well known and Mr. French is to be congratulated on his purchase. The cattle were brought over from Picacho Monday and branded at the famous Block Ranch coral after which they were taken to the French ranch north of Carrizozo.

"He'll soon be well, don't you think, mister? He said he would be well when the holidays—"

But Dave's expression stopped the boy, whose own face went suddenly wild with fear. "He is well now, Charlie," he said, as steadily as he could. "It is all holidays now for him."

The match had burned out and the room was in utter darkness. Dave heard the child drawing his feet across the floor, then suddenly whimpering like a thing that had been mortally hurt. He groped toward him, and at length his fingers found his shock of hair. He drew the boy slowly into his arms; then very, very tight. . . . After all, they were orphans together.

"You will come with me," he said at length. "I will see that you are provided for. The doctor will soon be here, or we will meet him on the way, and he will make the arrangements for—the arrangements that have to be made, you know."

They retraced their steps toward the town, meeting the doctor at the broken bridge. Dave exchanged a few words with him in low tones, and they passed on. Soon they were swinging again through the city streets. Even with the developments of the evening pressing heavily upon his mind Dave could not resist the temptation to stop and listen for a moment to bulletins being read through a megaphone.

"The kaiser has stripped off his British regalia," said the announcer. "He says he ir'll never again wear a British uniform."

A chuckle of derisive laughter ran through the mob; then someone struck up a well-known refrain—"What the h—— do we care?" Up and down the street voices caught up the chorus. . . . Within a year the bones of many in that thoughtless crowd, bleaching on the fields of Flanders, showed how much they cared.

Dave drove direct to the Hardy home. After some delay Irene met him at the door, and Dave explained the situation in a few words. "We must take care of him, Reenie," he said. "I feel a personal responsibility."

"Of course we will take him," she answered. "He will live here until we have a—some place of our own." Her face was bright with something which must be tenderness. "Bring him upstairs. We will allot him a room and introduce him first to—the bathroom. And tomorrow we shall have an excursion downtown, and get some new clothes for Charlie—Elden."

As they moved up the stairs Conward, who had been in another room in conversation with Mrs. Hardy, followed them unseen. The evening had been interminable for Conward. For three hours he had awaited word that his victim had been trapped, and for three hours no word had come. If his plans had miscarried, if Dave had discovered the plot, well— And here at length was Dave, engrossed in a very different matter. Conward followed them up the stairs.

Irene and Dave chatted with the boy for a few moments, then Irene turned to some arrangements for his comfort and Dave started downstairs. In the passage he was met by Conward.

"What are you doing here?" Dave demanded, as he felt his head beginning to swim in anger.

Conward leered only the more offensively, and walked down the stairs beside him. At the foot he coolly lit another cigarette. He held the match before him and calmly watched it burn out. Then he extended it toward Dave.

"You remember our wager, Elden. I present you with—a burned-out match."

"You liar!" cried Dave. "You infamous liar!"

"Ask her," Conward replied. "She will deny it, of course. All women do."

Dave felt his muscles tighten, and knew that in a moment he would tear his victim to pieces. As his clenched fist came to the side of his body it struck something hard. His revolver! He had forgotten; he was not in the habit of carrying it. In an instant he had Conward covered.

Dave did not press the trigger at once. He took a fierce delight in torturing the man who had wrecked his life—even while he told himself he could not believe his boast. Now he watched the color fade from Conward's cheek; the eyes stand out in his face; the livid blotches more livid still; the cigarette drop from his nerveless lips.

"You are a brave man, Conward," he said, and there was the rasp of hate and contempt in his voice. "You are a very brave man."

Mrs. Hardy, sensing something wrong, came out from her sitting room. With a little cry she swooned away.

Conward tried to speak, but words stuck in his throat. With a dry tongue he licked his drier lips.

"Do you believe in hell, Conward?" Dave continued. "I've always had some doubt myself, but in thirty seconds—you'll know."

Irene appeared on the stairway. For a moment her eyes refused to grasp the scene before them: Conward cowering terror-stricken; Dave fierce, steely, implacable, with his revolver lined on Conward's brain. Through some strange whim of her mind her thought in that instant flew back to the bottles on the posts of the Elden ranch, and Dave breaking five out of six on the gallop. Then suddenly she became aware of one thing only. A tragedy was being enacted before her eyes.

"Oh, don't, Dave! Don't, don't shoot him!" she cried, flying down the remaining steps. Before Dave could grasp her purpose she was upon him, had clutched his revolver, had wrapped her arms about his. "Don't, don't, Dave!" she pleaded. "For my sake don't do—that!"

Her words were tragically unfortunate. For a moment Dave stood as one paralyzed; then his heart dried up within him.

"So that's the way of it!" he said, as he broke her grip, and the horror in his own eyes would not let him read the sudden horror in hers. "All right; take it," and he placed the revolver in her hand. "You should know what to do with it." And before she could stop him he had walked out of the house.

She rushed to the gate, but already the rear of his motor was lost in the hum of the city's traffic.

CHAPTER XIII.

When Dave sprang into his car he gave the motor a full head and drove through the city streets in a fury of recklessness. His mind was numbed; it was incapable of assorting thoughts and placing them in proper relationship to one another. He was soon out of the city, roaring through the still autumn night with undiminished speed.

Over tortuous country roads, across sudden bridges, along slippery hillsides, through black bluffs of scrub land—in some strange way he tried to drown the uproar in his soul in the frenzy of the steel that quivered beneath him. On and on into the night. Bright stars gleamed overhead; a soft breeze pressed against his face; it was such a night as he had driven, a year ago, with Bert Morrison. Was that only a year ago? And what had happened? Where had he been? Oh, is being the boy—Charlie, the boy. Where was that? Under the calm heaven his mind was already attempting to establish a sequence, to set its outraged house again in order.

Suddenly the car skidded on a slippery hillside, turned from the road, plowed through a clump of scrub, ricocheted against a dark obstruction, poised a moment on two wheels, turned around, and stopped. The shock brought Dave to his senses. He sat on the running board and stared for a long while into the darkness.

"No use being a d——d fool, anyway, Dave," he said to himself at length. "I got it—where I didn't expect it—but I guess that's the way with everyone." He tried to philosophize; to get a fresh grip on himself. "Where are we, anyway?" he continued. "This country looks familiar." He got up again and walked about, finding his way back to the road. He went along it a little way. Vague impressions suggested that he should know the spot, and yet he could not identify it. Then, with a sudden shock, it came to him. It was the hillside on which Doctor Hardy had come to grief; the hillside on which he had first seen her bright face, her wonderful eyes. . . . A poignancy of grief engulfed him, sweeping away his cheap philosophies. Here she stood, young and clean and entrancing, thrust before him in an instant out of the wonderful days of the past. And would she always follow him thus? With an unutterable sinking he knew that was so—that the world was not big enough to hide him from Irene Hardy. There was no way out.

He started his motor, and even in his despair felt a thrill of pride as the faithful gears engaged and the car climbed back to its place on the trail. Was all faithfulness, then, in things of steel and iron, and none in flesh and blood? He followed the trail. Why stop now? The long-forgotten ranch buildings lay across the stream and behind the tongue of spruce trees, unless some wandering foothill fire had destroyed them. He forded the stream without difficulty. That was where he had carried her out. . . . He felt his way slowly along the old fence. That was where she had set up bottles for his marksmanship. . . . He stopped where the straggling gate should be and walked carefully into the yard. That was where she had first called him Dave. . . . Then he found the doorstep and sat down to wait.

When the sun was well up he arose and walked about. His lips were parched; he found himself nibbling them with his teeth, so he went to the stream. He was thirsty, but he drank only a mouthful; the water was flat and insipid. . . . The old cabin was in better repair than he would have thought. He sprung the door open. It was musty and strung with cobwebs. He did not go in but sat down and tried to think.

Later he walked up the canyon. He must have walked swiftly, for the sun was not yet at the meridian when he found himself at the little nook in the rock where he and Irene had sat that afternoon when they had first laid their hearts open to each other. Suddenly one remark stood up in his memory. "The day is coming," she had said, "when our country will want men who can shoot and ride." And he had said, "Well, when it does it can call on me." And today the country did want men who could shoot and ride, and he had flown into the foothills to nurse a broken heart. . . . Broken hearts can fight as well as whole ones. He could be of some use yet. At any rate there was a way out.

Some whim led him through the grove of spruce trees on his way back to the ranch. Here, in an open space, he looked about, kicking in the dry grass. At length his toe disturbed a few bleached bones, and he stood and looked with unseeing eyes far across the shimmering valley.

"Brownie," he said at length. "Brownie." The whole scene came back upon him—the moonlight, and Irene's distress, and the little bleeding body. And he had said he didn't know anything about the justice of God; all he knew was the critter that couldn't run was the one that got caught. . . . And he had said that was life. . . . He had said it was only nature.

And then they had stood among the trees and beneath the white moon and pledged their faith. . . .

Again his head went up and the old light flashed in his eyes. "The first thing is to kill the wolf," he said aloud. "No other innocent shall fall to his fangs. Then—my country."

Darkness had again fallen before Dave found his car threading the streets of the city, still feverish with its newborn excitement of war. He returned his car to the garage; an attendant looked up curiously—it was evident from his glance that Dave had already been missed—but no words were exchanged. He stood for a moment in the street, collecting his thoughts and rehearsing his resolves.

He was amazed to find that, even in his bitterness, the city reached a thousand hands to him—hands of habit and convention and customs of mind—all urging him back into the old groove; all saying: "The routine is the thing. Be a spoke in the wheel; go round with the rest of us."

"No," he reminded himself. "No, I can't do that. I have business on hand. First—to kill the wolf."

He remembered that he had given his revolver to Irene. And suddenly she sat with him again at the tea table. . . . Where was he? Yes, he had given his revolver to Irene. Well, there was another in his rooms.

In the hallway of the block in which he had his bachelor apartments Dave almost collided with a woman. He drew back, and the light fell on his face, but hers was in the shadow. And then he heard her voice.

"Oh, Dave, I'm so glad— Why, what has happened?" The last words ran into a little treble of pain as she noted his haggard face.

"You—Edith?" he managed to say. "Whatever—"

She came toward him and placed her hands on his. "I've been here a hundred times—ever since morning—ever since Bert Morrison called up to say you had disappeared—that there was some mystery. There isn't, is there, Dave? You're all right, Dave, aren't you, Dave?"

LOW IN CIVILIZATION'S SCALE

Negritos Generally Regarded as the True Aborigines of the Philippines, Have Not Advanced Far.

The Negritos are generally considered the true aborigines of the Philippines, and are racially sharply distinct from other numerous tribes of the islands, says a National Geographic society bulletin, based on a communication by Dean C. Worcester. They are of low stature, sometimes even dwarfish with very dark brown or black skins. Their heads are covered with closely curling hair and many of them have abundant woolly beards. Their noses are broad and flat, their lips thick, their arms disproportionately long. They do not tattoo their bodies, but ornament them with scars produced by cutting through the skin with a sharp piece of bamboo and rubbing dirt into the wounds to infect them and make big scars.

Many of the Negritos point their front teeth, but not by filing them. A chip of wood is held behind the tooth; the point of a bolo is placed in such a position as to slant across the corner of the tooth, and a sharp blow on the bolo chips a piece from the tooth. The opposite corner is similarly operated on and an artistic point is produced.

The music and dancing of the Negritos are specially interesting. Many know how to make and play the bamboo nose flute, and a jewsharp made from bamboo. The bronze tom-tom, or "gauza," is in universal use, some playing it with a drumstick and others with their hands.

Gastronomic Animals.

One occasionally hears the question: "Is it Welsh rarebit or Welsh rabbit?"

It is Welsh rabbit. "Rarebit" is only an altered form of the "rabbit," an afterthought intended to simulate an absurd derivation from "rare" and "bit," as the Century dictionary characterizes it. "Welsh rabbit" itself is "genuine slang" and belongs to the class of names of jocular origin. There are many others; an Essex lion is a calf; a Fieldiane duck is a baked sheep's head; Glasgow magistrates or Norfolk capons are red herrings; Irish apricots or Munster plums are potatoes; and Gravesend sweetmeats are shrimps, to name over a few examples taken from English usage. At the moment the only American samples that can be offered are the Albany beef (sturgeon) and Cape Cod turkey (codfish).

Electric Lamp Best for Miner.

Nowadays the up-to-date miner carries a package of electricity about with him while underground. It is a small storage battery attached to the back of his belt, and is connected by a cord with a lamp fastened to the front of his cap. The lamp, provided with a reflector, throws a flood of light in front of the miner. But its chief advantage is absolute safety. In olden days miners (who must, of course, have light) carried about with them open-flame lamps. These caused innumerable disastrous accidents through ignition of coal dust or gases. Sir Humphry Davy's invention of a safety lamp whose flame was protected by a wire gauze saved an immense number of lives. It is in common use today, but the electric mine lamp is better and more convenient.

Dusted With Shells.

Whole forests may be seen coated with shelly substances on the Australian continent. These encrustations are supposed to arise from the decomposition of shell fish, which, transported by the winds, are deposited in the form of dust on trees and plants.

HER LIFE WAS SAVED!

Kansas City, Kans.—"About twenty-three years ago Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and Golden Medical Discovery saved my life. I became ill; had a severe cough and bronchitis. At times I would get so badly choked up that I would have to sit up in bed to get my breath and in a short time I began to suffer with dropsy. I doctored but did not improve, in fact, I got so bad I was bedfast and had to have a nurse. The doctor told me the only thing that would help me was a change of climate. He advised me to go to a southern climate. I knew of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and decided to try it. I had my nurse get me two bottles. The first night I had her give me just a few drops every few minutes and by twelve o'clock I was asleep, a thing I had not done for about three weeks. The next day they gave me this medicine every half hour and after that as directed. I kept up its use until I was a well woman. It not only cured me but I was in better health than I had ever been and since that time I have always taken 'Favorite Prescription' whenever I was badly run-down or in need of a tonic and it has never failed to help me. I am glad to recommend Dr. Pierce's medicines."—MRS. SARAH COLEMAN, 1420 Wood Ave.

Run-down—Weak—Nervous

Omaha, Nebr.:—"I was at one time greatly benefited by taking Dr. Pierce's medicines. I became all run-down in health, was weak and nervous and was greatly in need of some good tonic to build me up and give me strength. I took the 'Favorite Prescription' and the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and they proved to be just what I needed for they built me up and restored me to good health. For this I am very thankful, indeed."—MRS. JENNIE RICHARDSON, 537 S. 25th Ave.

SCHOOL NOTES

(By Supt. E. E. Cole)

This is examination week of the sixth school month.

Commencement Address this year will be given by our worthy State Superintendent, Jonathan H. Wagner, May 18. The commencement diplomas have been ordered and the seniors are now selecting their commencement invitations.

The Capitan high school has accepted a challenge for a game of basket ball to be played at Capitan on Saturday, February 28. A return game will be played at Carrizozo a little later. We hope a large number of Carrizozo people will go to Capitan and encourage our team of girls by "rooting" in good style. Take your own auto, or that of a friend, so that the cost will be little or nothing, and you can go and come when you please.

The eighth grade is working hard getting ready for the examinations to be given by the Board of Education March 18-19 and April 22-23. The plan is to take the examination in five studies in March and the other studies in April. There are eighteen students in the eighth grade and if they all pass into the ninth grade it will make a good-sized freshman class. Here's good luck to them, but they must remember that luck does not carry them far; hard work carries them much farther.

Supt. Cole personally looked after the fumigation of all rooms of the Carrizozo schools last Saturday. The rooms were thoroughly "gassed" and kept closed for more than twenty four hours.

On Thursday of last week our schools observed Flag Day, Lincoln and Washington's birthday, together. The exercises comenced immediately after the recess of the afternoon. At the high school building two large flags, on eight foot poles, were held at "present," on opposite sides of the doorway and were saluted by the pupils as they marched into the building. We are informed by old citizens that more people visited the Carrizozo schools on Lincoln's birthday, last week, than on any other day in the history of the school.

Lincoln's birthday is celebrated more extensivelyevery year. The American people are finding in the memory of Lincoln inspiration to forget self in devotion for the United States. Secretary Lansing recently said: "The memory of Lincoln, of his humble origin, of his attainment to the highest honor in the gift of his fellow countrymen, of his unsurpassed service, and of his character as a man and as public servhat is one of the great spiritual assets of this nation. It is in turning our thoughts to the career of this great American that we learn the true meaning of patriotism and gain a true conception of the opportunities which America offers to those who, inspired by lofty ideals, press onward along the path of unselfish public service. In the memory of the birth of Abraham Lincoln we do honor to the American spirit of which he is the personification. He is the typical American for the future generations, the inspiration to us all to forget self in devotion to our country and to the eternal principles of liberty and justice which are the life blood of the nation."

The Lincoln American Alliance, of Cleveland, Ohio, has adopted the slogan, "Lincolnize America."

A large part of the programs of last Thursday was given in honor of George Washington yet special programs are being prepared in his honor for next Monday, the 22nd, with songs, recitations and drills.

"OURS IS THE TRADE THAT SERVICE MADE"

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

by MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE REDPOLL FAMILY.

"Ah," said Mrs. Redpoll, "how glad I am I have a mate who is distinguished looking."

"Distinguished Looking."

"Is it something fine to be distinguished looking?" asked Mr. Redpoll.

"Of course it is when I say I'm glad you look that way," said Mrs. Redpoll. "I wouldn't want you to look anything but fine, would I? And I wouldn't be glad if you were bad looking, would I? You are the member of the family who has given the family its name. It has been because of the Mr. Redpolls that we have such a beautiful, gay-sounding name. It is because the Mr. Redpolls always wear rosy waistcoats, and the Mrs. Redpolls wear the same greenish costumes which are of the same color, front and back."

"It is nice for you to dress so simply," said Mr. Redpoll, "and it is fine and fitting that we should have made the family name, for the Mr. Redpolls should do that and they should see that it is always kept up and that we always live up to it by wearing rose-colored waistcoats."

"I'm sure you always will," said Mrs. Redpoll. "And when I say you look so distinguished I mean that you look so very fine and handsome, and smart and stylish.

"There are our cousins, the Holboell Redpolls, and though they are somewhat larger, they aren't as distinguished looking. There are our cousins, the Greater Redpolls, larger and darker in color, but they aren't so beautiful, for we like to wear lighter, gayer things, and to look as happy and cheery as we feel.

"Then there are our cousins, the Greenland Redpolls, and they are larger and wear more white feathers. They live far, far north and I suppose they like to have a snowy-looking costume to match their suits. There are still more cousins of ours, the Hoary Redpolls, and they are smaller and darker than the other Greenland Redpolls, but lighter than us in the color of their costume.

"Now, we strike a happy, gay between. We don't come out all in white, or all in dark feathers. We're well feathered birds; there is no mistake about it. And a well-feathered bird means the same in our language as when they say, in the children's world, that a child is well-dressed, or attractively dressed.

"Ah," said Mr. Redpoll, "it is good to be so pleased with life and with your mate, and to think that I am handsome. I will sing you a song, and then we will gather seeds and have a little meal.

"Later on we will fly quickly far up North, where we live, but for the time being we are to be in a slightly warmer climate.

"Yes, I will sing for you one of my best and nicest songs, and will you accompany me?"

"I will do so gladly," said Mrs. Redpoll.

So she hummed and chirped softly and gently while Mr. Redpoll sang trills and glorious notes and beautiful words known by the birds. His song sounds something like a canary's, but Mrs. Redpoll thinks it is unlike anything in the world, and it is quite by itself in glory and in perfection.

"Rose-Colored Waistcoats."

"It's not every bird who has a mate who wears a rose-colored waistcoat," said Mrs. Redpoll, "and who has a beautiful voice, a voice sweeter than any other bird's."

"It's not every bird who feels like looking and doing his best," said Mr. Redpoll, "for every creature doesn't feel happy enough. And some creatures make such a mistake in thinking they can never give a word of praise. Why, a little praise makes one feel so fine, so fine," said Mr. Redpoll, "that he wants to make sure it is deserved, and so he lives up to it. Yes, I'm a great believer in a little praise, quite a little of it, too!"

WORLD'S GREAT DEBT TO OIL

As Illuminant, Fuel and Lubricant, It is Indispensable to the Progress of Mankind.

It is 60 years since the first oil well was drilled in Pennsylvania, thus inaugurating the era of oil. The discovery was at once recognized as possessing great value, but there could have been but a slight appreciation of the mammoth proportions to which the industry was destined to grow. Hailed as an illuminant supplanting candles and whale oil, the business has widened beyond any possible dreams of those who were active in the early days of oil. The center of the industry has long since departed from the place of its origin. The southwest and the Pacific coast, almost unknown lands in the infancy of the business, now produce thousands of barrels to the original oil region's one. Oil is still used as an illuminant on millions of farms and in isolated places all over the world, but that is no longer the chief product of crude. Gasoline, at first a troublesome by-product, is now the main result sought. The millions of motor-driven vehicles that have come into existence in the past score of years would not have been possible had we not had this desirable product to provide an explosive to drive them. Vast quantities of the crude product are used to drive locomotives and ships. The war might not have been won had not the allies had access to the fields of Mexico and the United States. And not only as fuel does the greasy product enter into the world's commerce, but as a lubricant it lessens the friction of bearings, from the sewing machines to steamships. The by-products even enter the realms of medicine, and while the limit would seem to be reached in utilizing the waste from the refineries, it is possible that further subdivisions may yet increase the number. The story of oil is a romance that equals the tale of steel, yet it is an infant in point of time compared with the metal that has brought such wealth to Pennsylvania.—Pittsburgh Gazette-Times.

Two Rivals of the "Spud."

Two new vegetables have been propagated at the Missouri botanical garden at St. Louis, it was announced by Dr. George T. Moore, director of the garden.

One has been named the "arracacha" and the other the "dasheen." Both resemble the potato and are said to be about equal in food value to it.

Doctor Moore explained the arracacha, when cooked, is a bit darker than the sweet potato and tastes like the parsnip. It is a rapid grower, he said.

Dasheens, cooked in cream, taste like cauliflower, and when baked have the flavor of a roasted chestnut. Doctor Moore amplified. They are related to the Egyptian taro, commonly referred to as the "elephant ear," Doctor Moore said.

The announcement was made to delegates who attended the convention of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, which ended recently.

Trees for Hall of Fame.

A popular tree at Spartanburg, S. C., the top of which was shot off during the Fourth of July celebration in 1832, has been entered in the hall of fame for trees which is being compiled by the American Forestry association. From Lisbon, O., comes the nomination of the tree under which the Indians and white settlers came to an agreement regarding iron ore to be used in making kettles, Ralph G. Smith of Circleville, O., enters the Logan Elm in that city. C. C. Royce nominates the Sir Joseph Hooker Oak at Chico, Cal. General Sherman estimated that 7,000 men could stand in the shade of this tree.

A. D. Dart nominates the "Largest Live Oak" in the South, at Brunswick, Ga., known to be a veteran in 1766. It has a circumference of 26 feet.

Buried Under the Floor.

An Abyssinian funeral is a very singular affair. When a new-born infant dies it is almost immediately buried under the floor. After the demise of an adult, the body is washed in water sweetened with honey, wrapped in a shroud, sewed up in a mat of braided straw, and laid upon a litter made of boughs cut from trees.

The lamentations of the relatives resound among the cliffs, and the news is rapidly communicated to all the people of the neighborhood, who at once set out to condole with the mourners.

As soon as they catch sight of the funeral procession they begin to weep and cry aloud. When they join it, the men range themselves on one side of the bier, the women on the other, and chant. When the religious ceremony is over, the corpse is buried in the churchyard.

As to Alimony.

"Is there any way a man can avoid paying alimony?" asked the friend who was seeking free advice.

"Sure," replied the lawyer. "He can stay single or stay married."

REDS MADE TO WORK WHILE AWAITING DEPORTATION

While there they are made to aid in the care and feeding of their anarchistic brethren. HARVARD'S MAN OF MYSTERY

Wesley Holland, Harvard's "man of mystery," has all Cambridge puzzled. Neither vault doors, steel boxes nor ice walls have yet been able to hold Holland as a prisoner. He is an electrician at the university and astounded the students when he made his way out of a steel box which they had specially constructed for the demonstration.

Effect of Sugars and Fats.

The fatuous soul who takes a long walk to reduce and comes home with a fine appetite, or perhaps eats half a pound of candy en route, is putting on weight instead of taking it off. Translated, this means that sugars and fats are quick and complete burning fuel for the human body.

Mission Study Class

As a branch of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church of this city, a mission study class has been organized. Mrs. George Barber, the president, has appointed Mrs. Stadtman to take charge of this work for the coming year. It starts off with twelve active members and the meetings will be held on the first and third Wednesdays of each month, in the evening, at the Methodist Church. The first meeting was held this week, on Wednesday evening with the study of the book entitled "Christian Americanization" by Charles A. Brookes, Secretary of the Foreign-speaking Missions of the Baptist Home Mission Society, New York City. Unification of effort for a common cause is perhaps the most significiant trend of the day. The theme of the book is especially important at this time, when America occupies so conspicious a place in work, influence and power.

"One language, one flag", is much, but it is not enough for the highest national unity and expression. There must be a spirit of the betterment of the social unity and order in the United States, and only through the contagion of Christian thinking and living, can this be accomplished. It is with these deep convictions concerning the relation of the church to Americanization that this book, a task for the churches, is sent forth. It might be interesting to know that everybody, both young and old are urged to join this class. The Gentlemen are extended an initavtion to join, and participate in the study. The following program is for Wednesday night this week:

Song, service, Scripture reading and prayer—Rev. Douglas.

—Organization—Mrs. Stadtman.

The Text and the Author—Mrs. McQuillen.

Introduction and Purpose—Mrs. Barber.

America's Geographical position and features in relation to character of its population—Miss Spence.

Racial composition of American population—Mrs. Cole.

Social and Economic conditions and developments that have changed the character of American life—Mrs. McCall.

Reading—"Abou BenAdhem."

Slogan—

"United we stand
In defense of our land
Come and hear of the tasks
Awaiting our hand."

DO YOU KNOW?

THAT within two hours drive from Carrizozo, N. M., at an altitude of 8,000 feet, is to be found one of Nature's Great beauty Spots, located on a little mountain stream of pure, ice cold water, where the speckled trout abound, where one is awakened from his slumbers by the echo of the call of the cunning old gobbler in the distance?

Where one may sit in the shade of the giant spruce, and watch the playful squirrel as he runs, and leaps from limb to limb?

DO YOU KNOW?

That the Southwestern Fish, Game and Forest Protective Association, has acquired a time lease from the U. S. National Forest on this Nature's beauty spot, and has spent over $3,000.00 and is going to spend much more time and money in the developing of a place of rest and a play ground for its members?

And that they are going to give you, and every lover of fresh air and sunshine, a chance to become one of its members?

At a recent meeting of the board of Directors, it was agreed to accept applications for membership, for a short time only, at the old rate of $20.00 which will (if accepted during this short period,) include dues till June 1st. 1921.

DO YOU KNOW?

That hardly less essential than sleep is sunshine and the open air?

There are some men and women who do not manage in six months to be out in the open sunshine for as much as an hour.

These same individuals have been taught that the energy conveyed to man and to all animal and plant life by the sun is what makes for vitality, health and vigor, yet they ignore this fact, living on merely as they and their fathers have been accustomed to do, namely, indoors, in shadows and half-lights.

Sunshine helps to remove and burn up bacteria, corruption, decay and disease, and to restore lost force, energy and power to animal and plant tissue. Therefore, to remain young in spirit as well as smooth of brow, fare you forth as much as you can in the sunshine of the fresh out doors.

Don't miss this wonderful opportunity, write or see our secretary, Mr. S. L. Squier at once.

Announcement

Since devoting the past twenty-one months of my time and professional services to the United States Government, I have returned to Carrizozo to resume my former practice. I have opened offices in the building formerly occupied by Dr. R. T. Lucas and am ready to serve every one who may desire my services.

Very Respectfully,
DR. JOHNSON.

"Rivals at Roping"

In this week's issue of the Country Gentleman, appears a story with the above title, the author of which is Dr. Carl E. Freeman of Carrizozo. "Rivals at Roping" is a genuine western story gleaned from the author's experiences and observations of incidents connected with every day western life. The "Rivals" in the story, left this section with a shipment of cattle for Kansas City, Mo., where after disposing of the stock, they visited Buffalo Bill's show and observing the great feats of roping performed by a roper in the show, resolved on returning, to perfect themselves along that important line.

They bought a large supply of rope and journeyed home to the Bar L. ranch on the Zero Flat. Then comes the individual which caused the above title to be affixed to the story; the school had just started at Zero, and Miss Lully Thomas, the pretty teacher, attracted the attention of the two boys and "Red," who seemed to advance in the art of roping more rapidly than his partner, instructed the teacher and gained her confidence to the extent that she readily consented to accompany him to a dance at White Oaks on Thanksgiving night. She had promised Red the pleasure of escorting her to the dance but being much in love with Mr. Johnson's pinto pony, asked if she might ride him, to which Johnson readily consented. As an act of courtesy, he rode a short distance with Red the evening of the dance, to assist him in catching his horse and suggested that he try his roping which would be the easier method of saving time.

On the way down the Nogal Canyon entering the flats, the boys encountered several spotted polecats; the rivals at once became interested and Red being more than ever anxious to outdo his pal, challenged him to a contest in roping the cats, at the same time loosening his lasso and making a throw for the one nearest to him which he succeeded in roping but in the attempt to get the pest loose from the rope, his horse became frightened and giving a lurch which threw the cat in the air, alighting on the horse directly behind Red, whose horse started on a dead run and to those who know just what one of these little fellows will do under such circumstances, enough has been said. This rendered Red incapable of escorting the teacher to the dance and Johnson besides acting as her escort, decided to buy the little farm which Red had planned on buying, after he had married the teacher.

ONLY WAY ASPIRIN SHOULD BE TAKEN

Look for name "Bayer" on tablets and follow directions in package.

The Bayer Company, who introduced Aspirin, tell in their careful directions in each package of genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" that to get the best results one or two glasses of water should be drank after taking tablets.

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" to be genuine must be marked with the safety "Bayer Cross." Then you are getting the world-famous Aspirin, prescribed by physicians for over eighteen years.

Each unbroken "Bayer" package contains proper directions for Colds, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Neuritis, and for Pain generally.

Handy tin boxes of twelve tablets cost but a few cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer" packages. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.—Adv.

FARMERS SAY STRIKE CRIME

GRANGE DECLARES "NO SET OF MEN HAS RIGHT TO DESTROY PROPERTY."

MEMORIAL TO CONGRESS

FOUR FARMERS' ORGANIZATIONS JOIN IN PROTEST AGAINST STRIKE.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.

Washington, Feb. 12.—Denial that any group of organized labor possesses an inherent right to strike is contained in a memorial to Congress, formulated at the conference here of representatives of four large farmers' organizations — the National Grange, the American Farm Bureau Federation, the Cotton States' Board and the Association of State Farmers' Union Presidents.

In view of "recent events and happenings," representatives of the four organizations said, it was agreed that the attitude of the farmer membership of their associations on the right to strike should be made plain to Congress and to the country.

The memorial points out that the city population of the country is dependent on the farmer for food and that interruption of this supply can be brought about through strikes of railroad or other transportation unions.

"Those who believe that labor has an inherent right to organize a strike, believe that such organizations have a right to starve the people of the cities to death, on the one hand, and to destroy the property of the farmers on the other.

"No such right has ever existed and no such right exists now. It is economically unsound and the American people can and will work out some other method for the settlement of such controversy.

"No set of men has ever had the moral or legal right to destroy property or cause suffering by conspiring together, and the welfare of the people must ever remain superior to that of any class or group of people.

"What would be the verdict of the people if the farmers of the United States should suddenly decide to go on a strike and refuse to supply the wants and needs of those who are not in a position to produce food and clothing for themselves? They would be condemned from one end of the country to the other, and the fact would be pointed out that they, as the owners and tillers of the land, had no right, either moral or legal, to bring about such a calamity.

"If the farmers who own and occupy the land, have no such moral or legal right, then why should it be conceded by anyone that those who handle the farmers' products have a right to block the transportation or industrial facilities of the country and thus jeopardize the food and clothing supply of the nation? If the farmers have no such rights, those who handle their products have no such rights."

Polish Patriot Slain by Huns.

Warsaw.—Polish press advices from Scanowice, 198 miles southwest of Warsaw, report the killing of a miner named Nisdurny by German soldiers leaving the plebiscite area in Upper Silesia. Nisdurny was known as a Polish patriot. The miner's funeral was made the occasion of a Polish national manifestation. "It is clear that the reason for the murder of Nisdurny was political," the Polish press association says.

"Tabor Diamond" Is Stolen.

Another interesting chapter has been added to the history of the famous Isabella diamond, formerly the property of the late Senator H. A. W. Tabor and purchased by Mrs. Joseph Dunn of Seattle, Wash., last May, for $15,000. The diamond was among jewelry valued at $20,000 taken from Mrs. Dunn by armed robbers as she was about to enter the private garage of her home in Seattle.

LESS MEAT IF BACK AND KIDNEYS HURT

Take a Glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers You.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.—Adv.

How Many Women Are Like This?

Can anything be more wearing for women than the ceaseless round of household duties? Oh! the monotony of it all—work and drudge; no time to be sick; tired, ailing, yet cannot stop. There comes a time when something "snaps" and they find themselves "simply worn out," and to make matters worse, have contracted serious feminine disorder which almost always follows the constant overtaxing of a woman's strength.

Then they should remember that there is no remedy like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—the experience of these two women establishes that fact:

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—"After the birth of my last child I had such painful spells that would unfit me entirely for my housework. I suffered for months and the doctor said that my trouble was organic ulcers and I would have to have an operation. That was an awful thing to me, with a young baby and four other children, so one day I thought of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and how it had helped me years before and I decided to try it again. I took five bottles of Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and since then I have been a well woman, able to take care of my house and family without any trouble or a day's pain. I am ready and thankful to swear by your medicine any time. I am forty-four years old and have not had a day's illness of any kind for three years."—Mrs. H. Kounce, 617 Ellis Blvd, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Sandusky, Ohio.—"After the birth of my baby I had organic trouble. My doctor said it was caused by too heavy lifting and I would have to have an operation. I would not consent to an operation and let it go for over a year, having my sister do my work for me as I was not able to walk. One day my aunt came to see me and told me about your medicine—said it cured her of the same thing. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and they have cured me. Now I do my own housework, washing and ironing and sewing for my family and also do sewing for other people. I still take a bottle of Vegetable Compound every spring for a tonic. I recommend your medicine to others who have troubles similar to mine and you can use my letter if you wish."—Mrs. Paul Payne-ryan, 1325 Stone St., Sandusky, Ohio.

People You Know or Should Know

Mrs. Ed R. Kelley entertained at a birthday "Home Social" Wednesday evening in honor of her eldest son, Esca. The affair was a complete surprise to Mr. Kelley, who on returning home after a well spent day at the office of Kelley & Sons, found a circle of his nearest friends awaiting his coming. The evening was spent in an extremely pleasant manner during which a bounteous birthday dinner was served, not "like mother used to make," but "as mother did make." Those present were: F. E. Richard and family, T. E. Kelley and family, Ed R. Kelley and wife, Esca Kelley, Mrs. W. L. Gumm, Mrs. Nora Massie, Miss Sullivant and Rev. L. S. Smith of the Baptist Church.

A party composed of Stanley Squire and wife; R. E. Lemon, wife and son, T. E. Kelley, wife and children, George Dingwall and wife, Mesdames Wetmore and Crawford, motored up to the Mountain Lodge on the North Fork of Eagle Creek Sunday, to inspect the progress made on the new building. They found the roof entirely finished, windows all in and doors are being hung the first part of this week. The lodge will in a short time be ready for occupants and will furnish a haven of rest for the tired, weary business man and his family during the heat of the coming summer. The party found the weather ideal at a height of 8000 feet and took noonday lunch in the open mountain air in plain view of the lofty peaks still heavily clothed in the garb of winter.

Last Saturday night, a leap year dance was given at the K. of P. Hall that was much enjoyed by all who attended. Being as we have said, a leap year affair, the ladies selected the gentlemen of their choice and escorted them to and from the scene of gayety. The fortunate gentlemen, who had been warned of the treat in store for them, busied themselves for the greater part of Saturday afternoon in primping and arranging for the event and when the time arrived, they were led timidly to the ball room, and admitted, the ladies paying all the freight.

Dancing was indulged in to the music of Messrs. Ferguson, Pitts and Bamberger during which time, the ladies served refreshments of punch, cake and coffee to their gallant guests. The affair was completely in the hands of the ladies, who were determined not to be outdone by anything of the kind ever given by the men—and they succeeded.

Paul C. Wilson, one of the leading stockmen of Roswell, passed through here Monday on his way to Kansas, where he will transact some business of importance in connection with the stock game. Mr. Wilson has disposed of his interests at Roswell and has moved his household goods to his ranch on the north side of the Capitan mountains, where he, with his family, will reside for the future. We are glad to know of the change Mr. Wilson has made, as the family will hereafter belong to Lincoln county, to which we extend the Wilsons the hand of welcome.

A. G. Bennett came up from El Paso Monday in the interest of the Pure City Coal Co., the articles of incorporation of which were printed in the Outlook last week.

Dr. F. H. Johnson, who returned last week from the service, has had a vast amount of experience since his enlistment. He served as an officer with the Field Hospital after which he served as assistant attending surgeon at the service hospital at San Diego. He was on the Examining Board at Camp Kearney, afterwards being appointed as surgeon on the U. S. S. Unalgo, with which he sailed to Alaskan waters and while there, gave medical aid to the natives besides looking out for the health of the members of his own crew. With this varied experience in connection with the medical knowledge he already possessed, makes him better than ever fitted for private practice. His announcement on another page of this paper will speak for itself.

Harry Barnett, brother of Wm. Barnett, accompanied by his wife and son, came up from El Paso last week and spent several days with his brother and family previous to their departure for New York City, where they will visit Mr. Barnett's home folks and friends of his boyhood days. As Mike is now stationed at Portsmouth, N. H., in the Naval service, he will obtain a furlough in order to assist in making the visitors feel at home during their stay in Gotham.

O. Z. Finley has to his credit one of the largest Lobo wolves encountered in these parts for years. The wolf had for a long time been killing cattle and calves, but had always eluded his pursuers, until on Wednesday, when Mr. Finley, son Joe and Chas. Muns resolved to try again. They finally located the robber on Cub mountain and with a well aimed shot, Mr. Finley brought him down. The wolf's death will be of great benefit to Mr. Finley and his neighboring ranchmen.

Will T. Coe, Roy Coe and J. B. Burch of Glencoe, who compose a committee of land appraisers for the Federal Farm Loan, passed through here Tuesday on their way from Oscuro to Alto, where they will appraise land in that vicinity from where applications have been made for loans. As these gentlemen are well acquainted with land values of Lincoln county, their report will be of much value to this important branch of the Federal service.

The ladies' Aid Society of the Baptist Church held a delightful luncheon at the home of Mrs. A. V. Adams last Thursday afternoon, at which the neat sum of $45.50 was realized. The society met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Pearl Stearns. The major portion of the time was taken up with devotional work after which light refreshments were served. The society's report shows an increase in membership, and interest.
