Sad Ending.

As we went to press last week Ernest Timoney and Geo. Drake were in the South Homestake drift the shaft leading thereto being on fire and foul air permeating every inch of the cavernous depths, while hope and fear had hold upon the hearts of our people. Never was greater heroism displayed than during the two days of the young men's imprisonment. Several ventured down the shaft only to be hauled back more dead than alive, nor was it until about 4 o'clock on Friday morning that the lifeless bodies were found, evidence being conclusive that they had succumbed to the inevitable before our people were apprised of their danger, that before daylight had filled our streets on Wednesday morning the gates of death had opened and the spirits of two as gallant, noble men as ever labored above or beneath the ground had entered the portals and joined the innumerable throng aptly designated "the majority."

As indicated, the friends of the young men were intensely interested and the lives of many were held cheaply by the possessors in the effort to rescue the entombed men from their thraldom. But who can weigh or measure the grief which freighted the hearts of young Timoney's parents, as between hope and fear they stood trembling those many hours.—When the worst was manifest it was a relief, sad, but somewhat comforting.

The boys went into the pit on Tuesday evening, happy as larks. After the alarm of fire in the shaft had been sounded and all of our people had been aroused valiant efforts were made to rescue the prisoners, but the foul air forbade success until nearly 4 o'clock on Friday morning when George Fitzpatrick and Will Warner descended the shaft and entered the drift where the young men were employed. There they were found Timoney lying on his stomach and Drake on his side, all surrounding indicating that they had been suddenly overcome by drowsiness and passed into the sleep of death without consciousness of pain or suffering.

We are all in procession, walking to the tomb. Some make better time than others and lay down their burdens early in the march, but whether late or early, death overtakes us, the strong and the weak, the aged and the youth.—What is beyond is hidden [illegible] the eye of faith or hope [illegible] tells us, but that man who [illegible] death and hope from the tri[illegible] to this life [illegible] more serene state of existence [illegible] evident from the fact that the [illegible] learned and unlearned all feel the afflatus. The passport from bloom to decay is swift but while all that is earthly is born but to die death is but transition from one condition to another of life. Blossoms, leaflets, flowers, grass, dasies, lilies, ivey and roses decay, but they reappear. So we trustfully believe that when our mortality is laid away immortality will clothe us and eternal bliss will compensate for our probationary trials here.

Ernest McBaron Timoney was born Dec 22, 1868, in Marietta, Ga., since when he has lived with his parents in Washington, D. C., Idaho, Utah and White Oaks.

Geo Drake was a native of Indiana, and was aged a little over 30 years. At an early age he drifted to Texas but the last few years of his life have been spent in New Mexico, vibrating between Jicarillas, San Pedro and White Oaks.

Our God, to whose sovereign will we humbly bow, has seen fit to call unto Himself our beloved son Ernest ("Gen.") He was our hope and pride, and we looked forward to the day when his good and generous heart and hands would lovingly close our eyes in that sleep that knows no awakening until the Lord our Saviour claims His own.

Nevertheless, whilst a throw swells up in our hearts over our loss, our gratitude towards the miners and citizens of White Oaks will never cease.

"Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." Inspired by the spirit of true manhood the miners of White Oaks, to a man, God bless them, did all that heroic men could do to save our son, and his partner, Geo. Drake, from their terrible fate; to them our thanks are ever due.

To all our friends and neighbors who have helped and sympathized with us in our affliction, we thank you, and may God in His infinite love keep and spare you from such sorrow as is ours.

E. McB. Timoney.
Ella G. Timoney.

Words are utterly inadequate to express thanks or gratitude, but they are the only medium whereby any expression can be given of the many heroic deeds and services rendered by the people of White Oaks during the awful hours from Wednesday until Friday mornings of last week. Since time began, greater effort, more iron endurance and fearless daring of individual safety and life were never exhibited and the amount of labor and results accomplished staggers the mind to comprehend. It is almost beyond comprehension and only Providence can tell why such miracles were wrought and not a single one of all the noble heroes were injured by the heat, smoke, falling timbers and tons of crumbling, caving rock while engaged in their effort to save our lost [illegible] ness, to feel that our lot is cast in a little mountain town so largely peopled by heroic souls.

May the richest of heaven's blessings rest upon you, the people of White Oaks, and may a reward await you that only He can bestow, is the prayer of your sincere friend,

E. W. Parker,
Supt. White Oaks Mining Co

Why Does Solid Iron Float on Molten Iron?

This question, which has puzzled a good many observers, was satisfactorily explained by Dr. Anderson in a recent paper on steel read on the Iron Institute, London. When a piece of solid metal at first sinks, which shows that its volume is less than the melted metal. But soon the solid piece becomes heated, which causes it to expand its volume is increased, and it rises and floats on the surface of the molten mass. The action is the same both with iron and steel. Mr. Wrighson said:

The experiment was frequently made by throwing a piece of iron into melted steel. They could see it go down, and might think that it was on account of the impetus with the iron had attained in falling that height, but as a matter of fact if the iron were put upon a fork and lowered, it would go down; but in the course of a few seconds it came up again, and kept on expanding until the piece of iron was a considerable distance above the surface of the metal. Then it decreased in volume, and [illegible] of the same volume as the molten metal which it joined. Any one could see by the distance that the piece of iron went above the surface that it was of considerably less density than the molten metal."—Scientific American.

Little Isaac Moses, whose grand father began life as an errand-boy and finished as a millionaire, was paid by his mother a penny a dozen for pins picked up from the carpet, to keep the baby from getting them. "Nurse," said little Isaac, as his stock of pennies increased, "do you know what I am going to do when I have sixpence?" "No," answered nurse. "I am going to buy a paper of pins and scatter them all over the floor, and then pick them up," replied the young financier, who was barely six years old.

An Irishman was charged before an English judge with the commission of a crime. During the trial the prisoner was much affected, and the judge asked the reason of his grief. The prisoner said he was troubled to think that he was far from his country and his friends. The judge assured him that he [illegible] upon it that full justice [illegible] "Yes, my lord, [illegible] very."

County Commissioners Meeting.

The County Commissioners met at Lincoln this week in regular session. But little outside of routine business was done.

Capt. Clark appeared in behalf of the Lea Cattle Co., and prayed for a rebate on the assessment of land, not watered, from $2.50, which was granted and the value fixed at $.25.

The Three Rivers Land & Cattle Co. petitioned for a reduction on a number of cattle from 4,000 head to 2,300. Petition rejected.

Petition of Gaylord for reduction of assessment on American Mine, refused.

Petition of North Homestake Mining Co. for a reduction of $25,000, no patent yet having been granted by the U. S. Land Office, was referred to the Assessor, with understanding that if no final receipt had been issued reduction should follow.

Chas. Winfield was elected Assessor to fill the place of George Curry, resigned. He qualified and filed his bond.

Commissioners ordered the several roads arbitrarily closed sho'd be opened and the merits of the several cases to be heard at the October term save in the case of the Armilla road, in the Picacho, wherein County Surveyor was ordered to survey, damages to be determined in October.

Consequent upon the required number of petitioners not having signed the petition for the "Stormes road," near Ft. Stanton, the application was rejected.

In the matter of the road leading from and to the Park over the divide between the Patos and Carizo it was determined to place the same in passable condition under supervision of J. P. C. Langston.

A new precinct was established embracing territory lying in the Tablos country, which will be known as Precinct No. 14.

All accounts were laid over until the October meeting except those of school character for want of funds.

Bond of T. B. McCourt, County School Supt., filed and approved.

The tax levy for the ensuing year was fixed at the same rate as last year. This includes a highway tax which was not levied last year.

The boundary line between Lincoln and Valencia Counties was fixed contingent upon Valencia Co paying her proportion of the expenses of survey.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using, sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. Noyes, 149 Powers Block, Rochester, N. Y.

On July Fourth next, and until New Mexico is admitted into the sisterhood of States, the American Flag will carry forty-four stars. Wyoming was not admitted until after July of last year, and the law prescribes that the star for a new State shall be added to the flag the next Fourth of July following its admission.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, for children teething, is the prescription of one of the best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and has been used for forty years with the [illegible] success by millions of mothers for their children. During the process of teething its value is incalculable. It relieves the child from pain, cures dysentery and diarrhœa, griping in the bowels, and wind colic, by giving health to the child it rests the mother. Price 25c a bottle.

A young lady was recently married in the South and the local newspaper made this notice of the event: "Miss Marielon Armstrong is one of those rich, rare, ripe beauties in face, form, mind and soul that by their virtues, power and worth gave to the South a race of heroes that has never been approached in manliness by any land or any clime."

The body of a cat which on Sept. 1880, jumped from the top of Washington monument, at the capital, and lived for some time afterward, is preserved, properly labeled, in the Smithsonian Institution.

THE MAN WHO SPOUTS.

Here Is a Little Tender Guidance for Amateur Elocutionists.

The mine from which the reciter draws his material is in itself dangerously broad and deep—nothing less than the wide field of English literature. In it he finds things he is tempted to recite because he loves them. But that is one of the worst of reasons for choosing them. They may or may not gain by recitation. His personal love for them must not cloud his judgment. He finds pieces magnificent in drama and scope for declamation, but the drama may be purely taken from the literary point of view, and its very excellence judged thence may be faults from the actor's and reciter's points of view.

Or the drama may be impossible for a public audience. One poem may touch too intimately or penetratingly some domestic or life sorrow, and another may jar on some feeling, possibly even some prejudice, which the reciter may not sympathize with, but which he is none the less bound to respect in his listeners. And, lastly, some tiresome incongruity of appearance or manner may be the touchstone that decides his sentence against a poem, which, if it be a poem he particularly likes and desires to recite, is more than sufficiently annoying.

A man, for instance, with a cherry face should not recite "The Dream of Eugene Aram," "The Raven" or "Il Penseroso" nor should a pale, spare man recite a line of Falstaff's or expect any great success in a scene from "Pickwick." As a rule (a rule with exceptions, of course,) men should avoid all pieces written in the first person singular—which the speaker is a woman. Shelley's "Cloud" is difficult for a man because of its ideal personality. It is impossible to resist the suspicion of ridiculousness when a man gravely says:

"I am the daughter of earth and of water,
And the nursling of the sky."

Matthew Arnold's "Forsaken Merman" generally fails of its full effect for the same reason. I once heard a man, remarkable for a gift of plainness, recite (very well but very vainly) Tennyson's "Dream of Fair Women." So an elderly gentleman declaiming Lewis Morris' "Psyche," a lady, Tennyson's "Revenge," and a young man Christian Rossetti's "A Royal Princess" were all equally undermined in their efforts by direct physical inappropriateness.

I remember the occasion when I first gave in public an admirable piece for recitation which Mrs. Harriet Child-Pemberton sent me, called "Prince." In the last verse comes the line—

"I was the little chap, curly and brown,"

I gave it with conviction, and the answer was an audible smile. All such pathos and drama as had been wrought by the story were defeated by this candid assertion to which my appearance gave the lie direct. The ridiculous inference that time and remorse had singularly changed me turned the whole thing into fun. In subsequent recitals I altered the line, and the recital took hold its own uncontradicted.—Murray's Magazine.

THE POLARIS CLOCK.

A Time-Piece That Was Buried in Arctic Ice for Four Years.

On the desk of Edson H. Brace, chief clerk of the Bureau of Equipment and Recruiting in the Navy Department, is a little rosewood case, bound and inlaid with brass and bronze. It is in the form of a cube, about eighteen inches high, and contains a chronometer such as is used on all naval vessels. This little instrument has quite a tragic history, and is held of considerable value. It was the ship's chronometer of the unfortunate Polaris, that was sent out on an arctic expedition by the Navy Department in 1871. When the Polaris was nipped in the ice Captain Hall saved this instrument and some other things from the vessel. As long as Captain Hall survived he kept the chronometer with him. When he perished it was buried in the arctic snows and abandoned. This was some time in 1872. For four winters it lay buried in the snow and ice.

In 1876 Captain Nares, of the British navy, now Sir George Nares, then in command of the royal expedition to the arctic region, discovered this chronometer at Newman's bay. He dug it out of the snow and took it to England with him on his return. It had then been buried in the snow for four years in a region where the mercury sinks to 184 degrees below freezing point. It was found to be in perfect order, and way wound and ran all right as soon as taken from its cold bed. On returning to England Captain Nares turned the instrument over to the British admiralty office, from whence it was sent as a present to this Government. With all this experience it loses only a single second in twenty-four hours.—Washington Star.

Newspaper Laws.

Dr. Tuckerman, editor of the Workman Cleveland, has taken some pains to collect and compile the decisions of the U. S. Courts on the subject and gives to the Washington Post, as the result of his investigations, the following, which may be relied upon as correct:

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary are considered wishing to renew their subscriptions.

2. If they discontinue at the time of the expiration of his period the publisher may continue to send it until all arrearages are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodicals from the office to which they are directed, they are responsible until they have settled their bills and ordered them discontinued.

4. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publisher and the papers are sent to the former address they are held responsible.

5. The courts have decided that refusing to take periodicals from the office or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intent to defraud.

6. If subscribers pay in advance they are bound to give notice at the end of the time if they do not wish to continue taking it, otherwise the publisher is authorized to send it, and the subscriber will be responsible until a notice to stop is sent and payment of all arrearages is made to the publisher.

The latest postal laws are such that now power publishers can arrest any one for fraud who takes a paper and refuses to pay for it. Under this law the man who closes his subscription to run along for some time unpaid and then orders it discontinued and refuses the postmaster to mark it "refused," or have a postal card sent notifying the publisher, leaves himself liable to arrest and fine the same as for theft.

"Oh! she's so-so, same as usual,—always wanting something I can't afford."

"Well, we all want something more than we've got. Don't you?"

"Yes; but I guess 'want will be my master.' I started to keep down expenses; and now Lil says I'm 'mean,' and she's tired of saving and never having anything to show for it. I saw your wife down street, and she looked as happy as a queen!"

"I think she is; and we are economical, too,—have to be. My wife can make a little go further than anyone I ever knew, yet she's always surprising me with some dainty contrivance that adds to the comfort and beauty of our little home, and she's always 'merry as a lark.' When I ask how she manages it, she always laughs and says 'Oh! that's my secret!' But I think I've discovered her secret. When we married, we both knew we should have to be very careful, but she made one condition: she would have her Magazine. And she was right! I wouldn't do without it myself for double the subscription price. We read it together, from the title-page to the last word; the stories keep our hearts young; the synopsis of important events and scientific matters keeps me posted so that I can talk understandingly of what is going on; my wife is always trying some new idea from the household department; she makes all her dresses and those for the children, and she gets all her patterns for nothing, with the Magazine; and we saved Jennie's life when she was so sick with the croup, by doing just as directed in the Sanitarian Department. But I won't tell you half!"

"What wonderful Magazine is it?"

"Demorest's Family Magazine, and—"

"What! Why that's what Lil wanted so badly, and I told her it was an extravagance."

"Well, my friend, that's where you made a grand mistake, and one you'd better rectify as soon as you can. I'll take your 'sub.' right here, on my life in respect, she's bound to have a claim for it from her, on the wedding next month. My good wife was the premium I got for getting up a club. Here's a copy, with the new Premium list, including the great Pattern. If you don't see in it what you want, write to the publisher and tell him what you want, whether it is a lamp or an organ, or a new carriage, and he will make specific terms for you, either for a club, or for part cash. Enter subscribing right off and surprise Mrs. Tom. Only $2.00 a year—will save fifty times that in new ideas."—Or send 10 cents direct to the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th Street, New York, and receive a specimen copy containing the Premium list.

GRAND PREMIUM OFFER!

A SET OF THE

WORKS OF CHARLES DICKENS,

In Twelve Large Volumes,

Which we Offer with a Year's Subscription to this Paper for a Trifle More than Our Regular Subscription Price.

CHARLES DICKENS.

Wishing to largely increase the circulation of this paper during the next six months, we have made arrangements with a New York publishing house whereby we are enabled to offer as a premium to our subscribers a set of the Works of Charles Dickens, in Twelve Large and Handsome Volumes, with a year's subscription to this paper, for a little more than our regular subscription price. Our greatest offer to subscribers equals any ever before made. Charles Dickens was the greatest novelist who ever lived. No author before or since his time has written books so beloved, and his works are more popular to-day than during his lifetime. They abound in wit, humor, pathos, masterly delineation of character, vivid descriptions of places and incidents, thrilling and skillfully wrought plots. Each book is intensely interesting. No home should be without a set of these great and remarkable works. Not to have read them is to be far behind the age in which we live. The set of Dickens' works which we offer as a premium to our subscribers is handsomely printed from entirely new plates, on a new type. The twelve volumes contain the following world-famed works, each one of which is published at a low price by itself, and sold separately:

DAVID COPPERFIELD,	BARNABY RUDGE AND CHRISTMAS STORIES,
MARTIN CHUZZLEWIT,	OLIVER TWIST AND GREAT EXPECTATIONS,
DOMBEY AND SON,	A TALE OF TWO CITIES, HARD TIMES AND THE MYSTERY OF EDWIN DROOD.
BLEAK HOUSE,
LITTLE DORRIT,
OUR MUTUAL FRIEND,
PICKWICK PAPERS,

These have are without question the most famous novels that were ever written. For a number of a century they have been celebrated in every nook and corner of the civilized world. Yet there are thousands of homes in America not yet supplied with a set of Dickens, simply with each of the books costing perhaps people in moderate circumstances from sixpence this form. But now, owing to the use of uniform improved printing, folding and stitching machinery, the enormous increase of white paper, and the great competition in the book trade, we are enabled to offer to our subscribers and readers a set of Dickens' works at a price which all can afford to pay. Every home in the land may now be supplied with a set of these great works.

THE MAN WHO SPOUTS.

The mine from which the reciter draws his material is in itself dangerously broad and deep—nothing less than the wide field of English literature. In it he finds things he is tempted to recite because he loves them. But that is one of the worst of reasons for choosing them. They may or may not gain by recitation. His personal love for them must not cloud his judgment. He finds pieces magnificent in drama and scope for declamation, but the drama may be purely taken from the literary point of view, and its very excellence judged thence may be faults from the actor's and reciter's points of view.

Or the drama may be impossible for a public audience. One poem may touch too intimately or penetratingly some domestic or life sorrow, and another may jar on some feeling, possibly even some prejudice, which the reciter may not sympathize with, but which he is none the less bound to respect in his listeners. And, lastly, some tiresome incongruity of appearance or manner may be the touchstone that decides his sentence against a poem, which, if it be a poem he particularly likes and desires to recite, is more than sufficiently annoying.

A man, for instance, with a cherry face should not recite "The Dream of Eugene Aram," "The Raven" or "Il Penseroso;" nor should a pale, sparo man recite a line of Falstaff's or expect any great success in a scene from "Pickwick." As a rule (a rule with exceptions, of course,) men should avoid all pieces written in the first person singular in which the speaker is a woman. Shelley's "Cloud" is difficult for a man because of its ideal personality. It is impossible to resist the suspicion of ridiculousness when a man gravely says:

"I am the daughter of earth and of water,
And the nursling of the sky."

Matthew Arnold's "Forsaken Merman" generally fails of its full effect for the same reason. I once heard a man, remarkable for a gift of plainness, recite (very well but very vainly) Tennyson's "Dream of Fair Women." So an elderly gentleman declaiming Lewis Morris' "Psyche," a lady, Tennyson's "Revenge," and a young man Christian Rossetti's "A Royal Princess" were all equally undermined in their efforts by direct physical inappropriateness.

I remember the occasion when I first gave in public an admirable piece for recitation which Mrs. Harriet Child-Pemberton sent me, called "Prince." In the last verse comes the line—

"I was the little chap, curly and brown."

I gave it with conviction, and the answer was an audible smile. All such pathos and drama as had been wrought by the story were defeated by this candid assertion to which my appearance gave the lie direct. The ridiculous inference that time and remorse had singularly changed me turned the whole thing into fun. In subsequent recitals I altered the line, and the recitation held its own uncontradicted. —Murray's Magazine.

THE POLARIS CLOCK.

A Time-Piece That Was Buried in Arctic Ice for Four Years.

On the desk of Edson B. Brace, chief clerk of the Bureau of Equipment and Recruiting in the Navy Department, is a little rosewood case, bound and inlaid with brass and bronze. It is in the form of a cube, about eighteen inches high, and contains a chronometer such as is used on all naval vessels. This little instrument has quite a tragic history, and is held of considerable value. It was the ship's chronometer of the unfortunate Polaris, that was sent out on an arctic expedition by the Navy Department in 1871. When the Polaris was nipped in the ice Captain Hall saved this instrument and some other things from the vessel. As long as Captain Hall survived he kept the chronometer with him. When he perished it was buried in the arctic snows and abandoned. This was some time in 1872. For four winters it lay buried in the snow and ice.

In 1876 Captain Nares, of the British navy, now Sir George Nares, then in command of the royal expedition to the arctic region, discovered this chronometer at Newman's bay. He dug it out of the snow and took it to England with him on his return. It had then been buried in the snow for four years in a region where the mercury sinks to 184 degrees below freezing point. It was found to be in perfect order, and was wound and ran all right as soon as taken from its cold bed. On returning to England Captain Nares turned the instrument over to the British admiralty office, from whence it was sent as a present to this Government. With all this experience it loses only a single second in twenty-four hours.—Washington Star.

Newspaper Laws.

Dr. Tuckerman, editor of the Workman, Cleveland, has taken some pains to collect and compile the decisions of the U. S. Courts on this subject and gives in the Washington Post, as the result of his investigations, the following, which may be relied upon as correct:

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary are considered wishing to renew their subscriptions.

2. If the subscriber orders the discontinuance of his periodical, the publisher may continue to send it until all arrearages are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodicals from the office to which they are directed, they are responsible until they have settled their bills and ordered them discontinued.

4. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publishers of it, the papers are sent to the former address, they are held responsible.

5. The courts have decided that refusing to take periodicals from the office or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

6. If subscribers pay in advance they are bound to give notice at the end of the time if they do not wish to continue taking it, otherwise the publisher is authorized to send it, and the subscriber will be responsible until an express notice is sent and payment of all arrearages is sent to the publisher.

The latest postal laws are such that newspaper publishers can arrest any one for fraud who takes a paper and refuses to pay for it. Under this law the man who orders his subscription to run along for some time unpaid and then orders it discontinued or orders the postmaster to mark it "refused," or have a postal card sent notifying the publisher, leaves himself liable to arrest and fine the same as for theft.

"Hello! Tom. Glad to see you, old fellow! It's almost ten years since we were married. Sit down; let's have an experience meeting. How's the wife?"

"Oh! she's so-so, same as usual,—always wanting something I can't afford."

"Well, we all want something more than we've got. Don't we?"

"You bet! I guess 'want' will be my master." I started to keep down expenses; and now Lil says I'm 'mean,' and she's tired of saving and never having anything to show for it. I saw your wife down street, and she looked as happy as a queen!"

"I think she is; and we are economical too—have to be. My wife can make a little go further than anyone I ever knew, yet she's always surprising me with some dainty contrivance that adds to the comfort and beauty of our little home, and she's always 'merry as a lark.' When I ask how she manages it, she always laughs and says: 'Oh! that's my secret!' But I think I've discovered her 'secret.' When we married, we both knew we should have to be very careful, but she made one condition: she would have her Magazine. And she was right! I wouldn't do without it myself for double the subscription price. We read it together, from the title-page to the last word; the stories keep our hearts young; the synopsis of important events and scientific matters keeps me posted so that I can talk understandingly of what is going on; my wife is always trying some new idea from the household department; she makes all her dresses and those for the children, and she gets all her patterns for nothing, with the Magazine; and we saved a new one when he was so sick with the croup, by doing just as directed in the Sanitarian Department. But I can't tell you half!"

"What wonderful Magazine is it?"

"Demorest's Family Magazine, and—"

"What! Why that's what Lil wanted so badly, and I told her it was an extravagance."

"Well, my friend, that's where you made a grand mistake, and you'll better rectify as soon as you can. I'll take your sub. right here, on my wife's account; she's bound to have a thing you tell me she is 'wedding west month.' My wife receives the premium free for getting up a club. Here's a copy, with the new Premium Catalogue—the largest thing out! If you don't see in it what you want, you've only to write to Mme. Demorest and tell her what you want, whether it is a book, a pattern, a new carriage, and he will make special terms for you, either for a club, or for part cash. Better subscribe right off and surprise Mrs. Jones. Only $2.00 a year—will save fifty times that in one month. Or send 10 cents direct to the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th Street, New York, and a specimen copy containing the Premium List."

It washes through and through as no other soap. It is the world's best family soap, having been used and tried by millions.

READ THIS TWICE

THERE is a great saving of time, of labor, of soap, of fuel, and of the fabric, when Dobbins' Electric Soap is used according to directions.

ONE trial will demonstrate its great merit. It will pay you to make that trial.

LIKE all fine things, it is subject to imitation and counterfeit.

Beware of Imitations.

INSIST upon Dobbins' Electric. Don't take Magnetic, Electric Magic, Philadelphia Electric, or any other kind, simply because it is the go. They will ruin clothes, and are dear at any price. Ask for

GRAND PREMIUM OFFER!

A SET OF THE

WORKS OF CHARLES DICKENS,

In Twelve Large Volumes,

CHARLES DICKENS.

Wishing to largely increase the circulation of this paper during the next six months, we have made arrangements with a New York publishing house whereby we are enabled to offer as a premium to our subscribers a set of the Works of Charles Dickens, in Twelve Large and Handsome Volumes, with a year's subscription to this paper, for little more than our regular subscription price. Our present offer to subscribers is the best ever before made. Charles Dickens was the greatest novelist who ever lived. No author before or since his time has written books that have been so widely read, and his works are more popular to-day than during his lifetime. They abound in wit, humor, pathos, masterly delineation of character, vivid descriptions of places and incidents, thrilling and skillfully wrought plots. Each book is perfectly interesting. No home should be without some of these great and remarkable works. Not to have read them is to be far behind the age in which we live. The set of Dickens' works which we offer as a premium to our subscribers is handsomely printed from entirely new plates, with new type. The twelve volumes contain the following world-famous works, each one of which is published here for the first time in cheap form:

DAVID COPPERFIELD,	BARNABY RUDGE AND CHRISTMAS STORIES,
MARTIN CHUZZLEWIT,	OLIVER TWIST AND GREAT EXPECTATIONS,
DOMBEY AND SON,	A TALE OF TWO CITIES, HARD TIMES AND THE MYSTERY OF EDWIN DROOD.
BLEAK HOUSE,
LITTLE DORRIT,
OUR MUTUAL FRIEND,
PICKWICK PAPERS,

The above are without question the most famous novels that were ever written. For a number of a century they have been celebrated in every nook and corner of the civilized world. Yet there are thousands of homes in America not yet supplied with a set of Dickens, the most trifling cost of the books preventing people in moderate circumstances from enjoying this luxury. But now, owing to the use of uniform improved printing, folding and stitching machinery, the extremely low price of white paper, and the great competition in the book trade, we are enabled to offer to our subscribers and readers a set of Dickens' works at a cost much less than all can afford to pay. Every home in the land may now be supplied with a set of these celebrated works.

WANTED—White Oaks wants a shoemaker, a tailor and an assayer.

WHY should not White Oaks take advantage of the situation and incorporate? Who says no! to the proposition?

JAS. F. CARPENTER and wife, the latter being the daughter of B. H. Dye, Esq., are here on a visit from their Indiana home.

H. B. FERGUSSON, the eminent attorney from Albuquerque, and one of the lucky stockholders in the Old Abe, is spending the week in town.

JNO. W. HARRISON, of St. Louis, largely interested in some of our mining properties, is with us, and proposes remaining here a month or more.

WHERE was the James Canon correspondent of the Banner on election day? Not a single vote in the whole Pecosco country was cast for the bonds.

M. W. HOYLE, one of the Old Abe syndicate, left on a pleasure trip to Ohio this week. He says there is no truth in the report that he is going to import a woman.

ANY parties having dishes, buckets, or anything used at the fire, not yet returned, will please call at Weed's store and make same duly known, in order that they may be returned or replaced.
W. O. M. Co.
E. W. PARKER, Supt.

THE prevailing enquiry now is, what will the South Homestake Co. do? It is expected that the St. Louis directors will be here shortly and determine. It is confidently expected, however, that a new shaft will be sunk and work vigorously pushed. Meanwhile operations are temporarily suspended.

JOHN Y. HEWITT has let the contract to erect his two story brick store building adjoining his other lately acquired possessions occupied by Goodman, Ziegler & Co., to Best & Treverton, of Las Vegas. The stone for the foundation is now being quarried and the superstructure will soon loom. Next week we will have more to say about this enterprise and it's enterprising sponsor. Meanwhile we will say that the cost of the building will be $12,000. Bully for Hewitt and the Old Abe.

THE FUTURE OF THE WORLD.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to cleanse the system gently in the Spring time or, in fact, at any time and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.

MOST of our people remember Moon, at one time chief clerk and bottle-washer of the Carizo Hotel later a butcher, and still later a delinquent to many trustful friends leaving them in a full-moon condition. Last week he sent out very pretty cards here on which were emblazoned "Mr. Emile Heyer, Fay ette W. Moon, married Wednesday, June 10th, '91 Darien, Wisconsin. At home after June 15th, Slaton, Wisconsin." Tests.

$300 Reward for Ore Thieves.

The common experience of this camp shows that much labor be the mine operators by the stealing of rich ore, if not in smelting and bullion. We offer, the "Old Abe" Company offers a standing reward of Three Hundred Dollars for the arrest and conviction, or for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person guilty of stealing any of the property of the Old Abe Co., even the smallest specimen of ore. The rule of this company is to sell all specimens. Therefore none of the ore from this mine can be honestly held as specimens.
