ON THE TRAIL.

Remembrances of Capt. Jack Crawford, the "Poet Scout."

A BEAR ON THE PATH.

I was stationed at Fort Craig, on the Rio Grande River, and on the 12th day of August, 1880, received telegraphic instructions from Gen. Edward Hatch, commanding the district, to proceed at once to the Sacramento mountains, scout them thoroughly and report the presence there of any hostiles to Gen. George P. Buel, at Fort Cummings. The dispatch was received late in the evening, and at 3 o'clock the following morning I was in the saddle. Fording the Rio Grande I set my face eastward across that dreary desert the "Jornado del Muerto" or Journey to Death.

Shortly after noon I reached the Dripping Springs, from which I now write, and halted for a rest and to graze my horse. Wearied with my fifty-mile ride across the desert, I laid down in the shade of a hackberry tree and slept for an hour, and upon awaking drew my hunting knife from my belt and cut into the bark of the tree the inscription referred to in the opening sentences of the article.

After leaving this point I rode up a sloping mountain side, and while scanning the hills down the range with my field glasses was somewhat startled to see a band of about twenty Indians moving towards the springs, and less than a mile away. Hastily entering an adjacent gulch, I descended the mountain to the trail leading toward the Sacramento, and rode rapidly onward.

A few miles from Dripping Springs I entered a narrow pass which leads out of the San Andreas range to the level plain beyond, the precipitous walls of the canon rising for hundreds of feet on either side of the trail. I was still pushing rapidly ahead, fearing the Indians might have seen me and were in pursuit, when a monster silver-tip bear appeared on the trail but a short distance ahead of me. Taking a position in the trail, the savage brute stood there looking at me evidently determined to dispute my passage through his haunts. I could easily have dispatched him with a shot from my rifle, but the report of my gun would have revealed my location to the Indians, and I dared not fire. My thoroughly affrighted horse was rearing and prancing in terror, and utterly refused to move forward and attempt to pass the savage beast. Dismounting I threw stones at the unobliging animal which so persistently impeded my course, but all my efforts to induce him to vacate his position resulted in but eliciting from him a series of savage growls and a display of gleaming white teeth. Realizing that further delay might bring about unpleasant results, I determined to force my horse by the monster if it was in the power of steel to do so. At every prod of the spurs the animal would rear and plunge until, goaded to desperation by the cruel rowels, he gave a snort of terror and pain and sprang forward with terrific leaps, swerving aside to pass the shaggy obstacle. Evidently divining his intention, the bear sprang angrily in front of the horse, and ere I could realize what was taking place "Chief" had risen on his hind legs, sprung clear over the astonished brute and sped like the wind down the echoing canon.

After riding some distance out on the level plain I slackened my speed, knowing if the Indians were in pursuit I could see them when they emerged from the canon, and when at a distance of several miles, my glass yet failed to reveal their presence, I felt satisfied they had not seen me, and had gone into camp at Dripping Springs.

IT WAS "BILLY THE KID."

In riding down a gulch that evening I came upon a young man sitting upon a rock, his horse quietly feeding near him. Dismounting I sat down on an adjoining rock, and in the course of conversation suggested that he was liable to run against these Indians in the direction in which he was traveling. He replied that he had no fear of Indians; that it was certain white men he most desired to avoid. The remark struck me as being a somewhat queer one, but I paid little attention to it until something in the young fellow's looks and actions set me to thinking. He was heavily armed, carrying two large Colt's revolvers in scabbards in his belt, while a Winchester rifle lay across his knees, from which I observed he never removed his hands. The recollection of certain printed handbills came to me like a flash, and I said:

"I believe your name is Leroy?"

"Well, and what if it is?" he asked.

"It is no matter to me," I replied. "I am hunting Indians, and have no business to transact with 'Billy the Kid.'"

"What makes you think I am that cuss?" he asked.

"The country is flooded with printed descriptions which fit you."

He reflected a moment, eyeing me closely, and then said:

"You are Jack Crawford, the scout, and I know you are not hunting white game. I am Billy the Kid, and this is the carcass the officers wish to pay such a big price for. Do I look worth it?"

I told him that while his eyes possessed a nowise gentle gleam, he didn't look like a very bad man. After some conversation regarding his life and the causes which had induced him to become an outlaw, I said:

"Billy, I believe I see before me the most notorious victim of dime novel reading the country ever produced. Is not that the prime cause of your present condition—a fugitive from justice, with a terrible record behind you and the keen-scented hounds of the law forever on your trail?"

"Well you are not far from right. Of course there were other things that drove me into this life, but I believe if reading them books had n't first roused the devil in me I should now be a straight man. How did you get onto that?"

"I inferred it from the fact that nine-tenths of our so-called 'bad men' were first induced to go wrong through reading the vile blood and thunder novels which are daily firing the brains of boys and young men with crazy ideas of heroism, and causing them to leave pleasant homes in the east and come west to fight Indians or become famous as highwaymen. The writers and publishers of such trash are a curse to the country."

"That's right!" he replied. "I know just as well as I know I am sitting here talking to you that the officers will run dead into me some day and will do me up. It's only a question of time, but I'll stand 'em off as long as I can. One more on the list can't make my character any worse than it is, and I tell you, honestly, it would be a pleasure to me if I could make the last act of my life an interview with ——, naming a well-known publisher of flash literature. After I'd read one of that fellow's books I could not rest till I'd got another and his works planted a devil in me that's there yet. I've got the name he set me to achin' for and what's in it? Hunted like a dog day and night, and knowing death 'll get his clutches on me mighty soon. Oh! it's glorious, this 'terror' business!"

I could not but feel sympathy for the poor wretch, red-handed murderer though I knew him to be, and I never preached such a sermon as I then did to him in that lonely gulch far from human habitation. I talked to him of his mother, his home, what he might have been had he resisted the vile influences which led him astray, and the softened expression which came over his sin-hardened countenance convinced me that my words deeply affected him. At our parting he said,

"Jack, you are the first man that ever talked that way to me, and I thank you for it. Such talk a long time ago might have made me different, but it's too late now. No matter how earnest I might be in wanting to settle down and lead an honest life, the officers wouldn't let me, and all I can do is to go ahead till my time comes. Good bye. I hope I may meet you again some time."

He mounted his horse and rode away, and so great was the confidence he felt in me after my lecture to him that he never once glanced backward. A shot from my rifle would have rid the country of its most dreaded desperado, whose hands were reeking with human blood, and would have placed in my pockets the large reward offered for him "dead or alive," but he trusted me with his life, and not for worlds would I have betrayed that trust, villain though he was.

My scout through the Sacramentoes was marked by a number of both thrilling and ludicrous incidents, which will detailed in a future article.

CAPT. JACK CRAWFORD,
"The Poet Scout."

Parents, school directors and teachers should note the following facts: Hon. Amado Chavez, Superintendent of Public Schools in New Mexico, says, according to the new school law of New Mexico, the territorial school board have selected a new list of school books for the territory of New Mexico, and those only can be used in the public schools of this territory. They have fixed the cash price at which these books shall be sold by all book sellers, and have contracted a fixed price for the exchange of old school books in actual use at the time, the difference to be paid in cash. This exchange privilege is to last until March 1, 1892.—Ex.

There is now no room to doubt that the territorial fair, which begins at Albuquerque on the 14th proximo, two weeks hence, will be by far the most successful ever held A widespead and active interest is manifest everywhere—practically every county will have good county exhibits—many of the business industries, especially mining, agriculture, trade, and arts, will be represented in force, while the railroads have offered rates that put it in the power of almost every man, woman and child to visit the exposition for at least one day, so far as expense is concerned. Those who fail to visit the fair this year will miss of witnessing a grand show.—Deming Headlight.

Cattle stealing is on the increase in every part of New Mexico, and is assuming such proportions as to call for prompt and decisive action on the part of stock growers in every section. The means of the territorial association should be increased, that the executive committee can inaugurate plans for systematically running down the thieves in every section, and to insure the co-operation of all interested parties. The fees for membership are small, the regulations few, and the possible benefits can be measured by the splendid work which was accomplished at the last session of the legislature with a limited membership and little money. Either the honest stockman or the mavericker must go. And so numerous has the latter class become that only a strong organized fight will drive them off the range—Stock Grower.

FOR STATEHOOD.

Arizona will join New Mexico in demanding admission into the Union at the hands of the next Congress. Both of these Territories are entitled to admission since Idaho and Wyoming were advanced to the dignity of states. The exclusion of New Mexico is more outrageous than that of Arizona because it has more population than Idaho and Wyoming put together, and had more when they were admitted. The population of the smaller of the recently admitted states and the territories that now seek admission are as follows:

New Mexico (Territory)	153,593
Montana (State)	132,150
Idaho "	84,385
Wyoming "	90,705
Arizona (Territory)	50,620

The last of these is much greater in population than the pocket borough of Nevada, which has been a commonwealth of the Union for twenty-five years. The admission of Idaho and Wyoming and the exclusion of New Mexico were partisan outrages. Their admission not only makes the statehood of New Mexico imperative, but affords every argument for the admission of Arizona.—Detroit Free Press.

Foster the weather wizard says: After 10th of September house-plants should be carefully covered every night, in the northern states, as killing frosts may be expected. In estimating the corn and cotton product that which will mature late should not be included for frosts will surely injure the late maturing crops. Large crops of both of these cereals, however, now appear to be assured. Indications are that with but few exceptions the ground all over the United States will be in excellent condition for fall plowing and seeding.

A dispatch from Los Angeles speaks of the noticeable change in the climate of that section. Horticulturists there are complaining of being unable to dry their fruits on account of too frequent rains. The rains that have occured in San Bernardino county during the past ten days are phenomenal and unprecedented.

Ordinarily the bed of the Santa Ana river at this time of the year is a dry waste of sand. Now quite a stream of water is flowing back in the mountains. Rainfall is almost of daily occurrence. Prior to this year they were unknown during August. Little doubt is now entertained that this change is directly due to the new lake on the desert. Even those who at first scoffed at the idea now begin to admit that there may be something in it.

According to the latest reports there is a surface of 1,600 square miles from which rapid evaporation is constantly going on. From this city great clouds, charged with warm, humid vapor are frequently seen to rise above the summits of the San Bernardino mountains in great fleecy and white like the steam from a cauldron. They gradually break up and drift to the west When these clouds do not rise to a great height, but are driven directly westward by the prevailing winds they encounter above the San Bernardino mountains a stratum of cold air, which condenses the moisture and precipitates the rain, which comes down in torrents. Hence the recent cloud bursts back of San Bernardino.

The following letter represents a grievance against which there has arisen a terrible howl in New York and the northeast. The ruling which caused all the cry took effect on July 23.

To the Editor of the New York Times:

You should call the attention of your readers to the fact that this contemptible government has just issued orders to the postoffice (customs department) to confiscate all photographs coming per mail, and that in future they must be sent by express company and regular customs entry and duty paid on import going through the United States stores. Fancy a man having to pay in fees and other extortionate charges about $5 to obtain a picture of wife or child who may happen to reside in Great Britain.

Great Britain has got into one of her characteristic scrapes in connection with the Chilian civil war. Balmaceda having seised from the Chilian treasury a million dollars in silver, deposited as security for paper circulation, sought to send this "boodle" to Europe in payment for munitions of war. His first offer, a generous one, made to an American man-of-war, was properly refused, but he induced the commander of the British man-of-war Espiegle to convey the treasure to Montevideo, whence it was shipped to Europe. England will probably be called to account to the new Chilian government for this serious breach of neutrality.—Portland Transcript.

The administration of our territorial finances is exceedingly rotten, and about the only consolation the people have is, that if the lower house of the legislature had not opposed the schemes of the republican senate, the condition would be worse.—Alb. Dem.

New Mexico has a law which provides that school teachers must know how to read and write English and Spanish. The principal reason why this law was passed is because republican school boards use to employ teachers who could neither write English or Spanish.—Alb. Dem.

The receipts of the French treasury are larger than those of any other civilized nation.

Territorial.

Frank Woods, who is in the Springer jail, charged with the murder of James Lonnon, is playing the insanity dodge for all it is worth.

On Friday last W. E. Lawrence & Co., of Las Cruces, shipped the first car load, 23,000 pounds, of grapes ever sent out the Mesilla valley. They expect to ship six car loads this season. This is indicative of New Mexico's horticultural growth.

Max Chapman, or rather his new German gardener, is starting a new industry here. He is preparing a winter garden out on Max's ranch, where he proposes to raise winter celery, and a number of root crops for market.—Deming Headlight.

Recent rains in southern New Mexico have greatly improved the condition of range and cattle, tho' at no time has the situation been such as to justify the sensational reports which have been sent out indicating heavy losses and the extermination of herds.—Stock Grower.

The big waterworks well is now down some sixty-five feet. The iron shod red wood shoe for the bottom was put in Wednesday, on reaching water. The diggers are scraping underneath and settling it down by the weight of the wall building on top of it to its proper level. Ten feet more will probably develop the requsite supply of water. —Deming Headlight.

The weather prophets all seem to agree that the coming winter will be an unusually severe one, and the "oldest inhabitants" also incline to that belief. The Stock Grower has heard of several native sheep owners who have sold off their flocks, fearing that the severity of the winter will cause great losses among the flocks of the territory.—Stock Grower.

The president of the Rio Grande road has resigned, and the edict has gone forth that the road will positively not make any extension for some time. Therefore it can readily be seen that the Albuquerque convention is premature. The Rio Grande should have been extended to Albuquerque some years ago, but nothing will be done at present.—El Paso Herald.

J. T. Ellis, of the rain-makers, arrived here on to-day's Texas & Pacific train. He was immediately taken in tow by Mayor Caples, Alderman Kelly and Prof. Longuemare, and driven out to the mesa where most probably the experiment will take place. Mr. Ellis' visit here was to perfect certain arrangments. He will return to Midland to-morrow to look after the transportation of the balance of the party and the paraphernalia, and expects to have everything here by about Sunday.—El Paso Herald.

Yesterday morning, as Mr. J. Zeigler, of the firm of Goodman, Zeigler & Co., was descending Henley's hill, just the other side of the Bonito, a man with a gunny sack thrown over his head rode out of the bushes and, presenting a revolver, told Mr. Zeigler to "hold up." As his arms were out of reach in the wagon, there was but one thing to do, and he was relieved of his gold watch and all the money he had with him. The robber is supposed to be a fellow who has been hiding in that vicinity for some time past, and a posse from Nogal are out in pursuit of him.

A woman who calls herself Mrs. Parker, from Roswell, has been in town this week selling watermelons. She represents herself as being a destitute soldier's widow, has called upon the W. R. C. of this place for assistance, and wants help to make the government do her justice, or, failing in this, to overturn the government and "murder them all." Either the woman is crazy or has become demoralized by reading Alliance newspapers.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Y. Hewitt will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Fergusson during the week of the Territorial Fair. From Albuquerque they will go to El Paso there to remain until after the railroad convention on the 21st.

Mrs. Treat and Mrs. Frank Lloyd will start to-morrow for Kansas, stopping by the way to attend the Territorial Fair. Mrs. Will Lane will accompany them to Albuquerque, where she will remain during the week of the Fair.

Mrs. Whiteman who with her daughters, has passed the summer in White Oaks, returned to her home in Roswell Monday. Her sons Joe and Charley accompanied her.

Mrs. S. E. Barber came in town last Tuesday to meet her niece, Mrs. J. L. Zimmerman, of Roswell, who will return with her to the Three Rivers Ranch.

A meeting will be held in Athletic Hall, Saturday evening, for the purpose of organizing a military company. There will be no expense except for lights and fuel.

We desire to call special attention of every Democrat in the territory, who feels an interest in the party's cause, to the meeting of the Territorial Central committee to be held in this city on the 15th inst. The call is notrestricted to members of the committee, but all Democrats are invited to be present. Many questions of importance will come up for consideration. Among others it is desired to have as full an expression as possible upon the advisability of making a concentrated effort for an enabling act for the admission of New Mexico as a state. Such a movement should, if made, be concurred in by the majority of both parties. Otherwise, it should be non-partisan. This is an opportune time for arriving at the sense of the Democratic party on the question. The Democratic party in its fight against the so-called constitution was not fighting statehood per se, and so announced at that time. The attitude of the party is, that the admission of New Mexico should be secured under proper conditions at the earliest opportunity. What steps should be taken looking to this end is one of the important questions to come up on the 15th instant. It is to be hoped that the Democratic press will call general attention to the meeting, and impress upon Democrats not members of the committee that their presence is earnestly desired.—Alb. Democrat.

Some of the branches on the cottonwood trees, set out last spring, in front of the residence of Mr, Charles Mayer, have made a growth of five feet, this season.

The White Oaks Congregational Sunday School has raised $64.50, during the past summer, and with this sum has been able to purchase 76 volumes and also a neat, suitable bookcase. They are all numbered, and all are welcome to them to read, under the rules which have been made to keep track of and preserve them. All parents and friends are requested to send by the children any old books they may have, as some of the best books of the library are still missing.

The first twenty of the new books are of the Pansy Series, and are intended for the infant class only. Seventeen volumes have been donated by friends of the school.

Many of the books are written by well-known authors, such as Mrs. Whitney and Miss Alcott, and are among the best of their kind.

HUMAN INSTINCT.

So powerful is human instinct, that some of its suggestions become embodied in social and household customs. The people know and feel that at the beginning of the spring season the system needs an an alterative and a purifying tonic and stimulant. In all parts of the country it is the custom for the housewife to dose her brood with sassafras tea.

Among the simple remedies that our ancestors employed, this decoction has continued to hold its own. The demand for a spring alterative and tonic, however, is filled more efficaciously by S. S. S., which is itself as simple as nature's remedial medicine should be. It purifies the blood, cleanses and strengthens the system, and prepares the human machine to stand the wear and tear of the summer months.

Sweet Pickles, Condensed mince meat. Stewart of White Oaks.

The following we clip from the Eddy Argus:

Several good rains visited this region during the week, and the weather in the mornings has been cool enough for small stoves and light overcoats.

Duck, plover and curlew are becoming quite plentiful, as for quail, they are always with us, while the antelope are coming down from the hills on the plains.

If an eastern farmer, who depends upon the rainfall for irrigation makes from eight to ten dollars an acre off of his land he considers he is doing very well.

In the Pecos Valley, where the farmer irrigates his land, the average amount made off of each acre is about fifty dollars.

Eddy and the Pecos Valley are becoming famous throughout the length and breadth of the land, if one judge from the fifty letters of inquiry received daily at the office of the Pecos Irrigation & Improvement company. This is a large average, not counting those received at the Argus office. But then you must understand that in the United States there is but one Pecos Valley containing the largest continuous body of fertile land, and the finest system of irigation in the Union.

The following we take from the Roswell Register:

The town cow and burro will have to go next Friday.

Two brick business blocks on Main Street are seriously contemplated.

Public school opened Monday, with Prof. Hill and Miss. Mabel Howell in charge.

An election for school purposes has been called in the Urton school district for Sept 7th.

We have had glorious rains during the past week, and the range is consequently green again.

A pesky badger that spits, bites and scratches, and a great big black eagle that wont eat, are the first contributions to the Goss Military Institute Zoo.

Twenty-five and thirty people have already been added to the population of Roswell by the opening of the Goss Military Institute. And this is only the beginning.

The Goss Military Institute is now an accomplished fact.

The opening Thursday morning surpassed the expectations of even the most sanguine friends of the Institute, and was in every sense of the word without a parallel in the educational annals of the west.

Thirty-eight pupils presented themselves for enrollment, and by Monday enough more will have arrived from abroad to bring the number up to fifty.

MR. LEE. "Why, Addie, you needn't cry about it! I only said Mrs. Allen was a very well-informed woman, and I wished you would follow her example."

MRS. LEE. "Yes, and last week you said you wished I could manage to look as stylish as Mrs. Allen,—and she makes all her own clothes. But she has what I haven't."

MR. LEE. "What is that?"

MRS. LEE. "Well, she gets all of her information from the Magazine they take. I admit that she knows all that is going on, and is bright and entertaining in conversation; but I could do as well as she does if I had the same source of information. She lent me the last number of her Magazine lately, and I learned more in one hour's reading, about various social matters and the topics of the day, than I would pick up in a month by my occasional chats with friends. It certainly covers every topic of interest, from the news of the day down to the details of housekeeping; and everything is so beautifully illustrated, too. Every time Mamie goes over to the Allens' she comes back and teases me to get you to take Demorest's Family Magazine, as the stories are so good. Even the boys watch for it every month, as a place is found for them also in its pages; and Mr. Allen swears by it. It is really wonderful how it suits every member of the family!"

MR. LEE. "Well perhaps I had better send for a Specimen Copy; for, if it is anything like what you say it is, it will amuse and instruct the whole of us."

MRS. LEE. "I see that W. Jennings Demorest, the publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York, is offering to send a Specimen Copy for 10 cents, so we can't lose anything, as each number contains a 'Pattern Order', entitling the holder to any Pattern she may choose, and in any size—which alone makes each copy worth 30 cents; and I just want a jacket pattern like Mrs. Allen's. The subscription price is only $2.00 a year; and I must say I can't see how they can publish so elegant a Magazine for so little money."
