POLAND IN THE TOILS.

The Situation in Russia Getting Worse. Revolution Impending.

THORNY PATH TO FREEDOM.

St. Peterburg, Nov. 12.—Poland is not permitted to become a second Finland. The Russian government, in a strongly worded communication published this morning serves notice on the Polish Nationalists that for good or ill, the ancient kingdom of Poland has now become an integral part of the empire, and that while the government intends fully to observe the national rights of Poland, any attempt to wrest the Polish autonomy from the emperor would be considered an act of revolt and would lead the Poles into the sorrowful paths trodden by them in 1831 and 1863.

The Russian authorities recognize the gravity of the movement in which two antagonistic parties, the Nationalists and the Socialists, under the leadership of such Poles as Henrik Sienkiewicz, the novelist, have joined forces, and they declare that none of the benefits of the emancipation manifesto can be conferred on a "country in revolt."

Warsaw, Nov. 12.—The proclamation of martial law in all of the ten governments of Russian Poland has caused surprise and exasperations here, and there are apprehensions that it will provoke disturbances worse than those that have already taken place.

The city is panic-stricken. There are persistent rumors of the organization of anti-Jewish riots and the houses of Jews are barricaded and watched day and night. The Jews are arming themselves with knives, revolvers and rifles.

Owing to the general strike the distress is hourly increasing. There is a scarcity of coal and food.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 12.—With each day's developments it becomes more apparent that Russian reformers have learned little of the lessons of history, and that Russia is destined, like other countries before her, to travel a thorny path to freedom.

She seems determined to pay the heaviest price for her political education.

This perhaps is not strange,

Socialistic Ideas Growing.

New York World

When Judge Dunne was elected Mayor of Chicago last April on the issue of municipal socialism, who would have believed that seven months later William R. Hearst could come within 3,500 votes of being elected mayor of New York on the same issue?

But it is not merely in New York and Chicago that the spirit of radicalism is rampant.

Tom L. Johnson is re-elected mayor of Cleveland by an increased majority. Johnson's platform called for three-cent fares and a state law permitting Cleveland to own and operate street railways.

Schmitz, the labor mayor of San Francisco, was re-elected in spite of the fusion of the democratic and republican organizations against him.

John B. Moran, a Boston lawyer-agitator, was elected district attorney of Suffolk county, although both organizations and all the newspapers were against him.

The overthrow of Boss Cox in Cincinnati was the result largely of public indignation over the relations between the public-service corporations and the Cox machine.

Weaver's victory in Philadelphia would not have been possible without support from the same radical elements that voted for Hearst in New York and elected Dunne in Chicago.

Two of the most active opponents in the senate of President Roosevelt's scheme of government rate-making are badly discredited by the election. Foraker was whipped in Ohio and Gorman was beaten in Maryland.

Gov. Hoch of Kansas, at a dinner to Senator Warner of Missouri Wednesday night, lifted his voice in solemn warning to the whole country:

"I want to say to you, not as an alarmist, but as a slight contributor to the American awakening, that unless we find some effectual remedy for the control of the great trusts and corporations in the interests of all the people, a tidal wave of socialism will sweep over the country one of these days that will do incalculable harm."

The real leaders in this movement are not the Bryans and the Hearsts and the Dunes and the Johnsons and the Schmitzes, but the Rockefellers, the Armours, the Morgans, the Swifts, the Ryans, the Yerkeses, the McCurdys, the McCalls, the Hydes, the Perkinses and the Harrimans, with their Murphys, McCarrens, Coxes, Durhams and Penroses.

Ten years ago Pingree was denounced as an Anarchist. Today Pingree's programme would be regarded as mild and conservative. Where is the thing going to end?

More Railroad Talk.

The Santa Fe New Mexican has the following to say about the Dawson line:

"The El Paso & Southwestern is making the permanent location of a standard gauge line from Torrance to Dawson via Las Vegas, which will be a counterpart to the Santa Fe Central Railway; capitalists who have acquired extensive timber and mineral lands adjoining the Pecos Forest Reserve, are surveying a 60 mile narrow gauge railroad from the Meadow City to their properties, which will be similar to the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad. The New Mexican has reiterated again and again, that eventually Santa Fe and Las Vegas, on account of the varied and almost illimitable resources and magnificent beauty of their surroundings, will be large and prosperous cities, not given to the fluctuations that come to cities dependent almost entirely upon railroad or manufacturing favors, without regard to the resources and adaptability of the surrounding country."

The Chinese Boycott.

Hong Kong, Nov. 11.—Advices from Canton say that the anti-American feeling there is growing more intense. A lady has been spat upon in a street and the American consul, Julius G. Lay, has received an anonymous letter threatening his life if the imprisoned boycotters of American goods are not released. The consul has written to the viceroy asking him to prohibit an anti-American mass meeting which it is proposed to hold in Canton, but the viceroy apparently is indifferent.

The American consul today proceeded to Lien Chow, in order to make an official investigation of the recent massacre of American missionaries there. The Chinese authorities will be represented by the Taoist.

Herbert & Williamson have dissolved partnership, Mr. Herbert taking the Bonito store, while Mr. Williamson assumes control of the Capitan business. Mr. Herbert has leased Mr. Williamson's ranch property at Roswell, and will move his cattle down there.

Soldiers Used Comrade as a Shield

British Trooper Who Served Against the Boers Lives to Tell of Terrible Experience on South African Fields.

Probably not another man alive has had the terrible experience of Private Dunning, formerly of the Northumberland fusiliers, whose body was used as a firing shield by his comrades during an affair of outposts in the South African war.

The Soldiers and Sailors' Help Society, which has done so much good work among disabled soldiers, has been employing Dunning at light carpentry work, but he has now become so weak that it has been necessary to transfer him to the lighter task of basket making.

The story of his experience was modestly told by Dunning to a London Express representative recently.

He was one of a detachment of 500 guarding a convoy from Wolmaranstad to Klerksdorp, which was attacked by 3,000 Boers near the latter place.

"I could see nothing but one big man on a big gray horse, moving about among the trees fifty yards away," he said. "I thought of nothing but him and kept saying to myself: 'I must bring him down.'"

"I knelt down and fired carefully. The big man came down like a shot, and the gray horse bolted. At the same instant about a dozen men broke cover twenty yards away and fired at me. I was hit in several places and went down. I was still conscious, but our men thought I was dead and used me and the bodies of other men as a rampart to fire over, until, one by one, they were all silenced.

"I remember some men dragging my clothes off me later on. They left me stark naked, but one of them put my water bottle to my mouth and said: 'Good-by, chap; you're going.'"

Dunning had eight bullets in his body and a broken arm. Some of the bullets were not extracted until he reached Krugersdorp, eight days later. Practically all the ribs on the right side have been shot away, and he now wears a thick felt jacket with steel supports to keep him from collapsing.

He has a pension of 1 shilling 6 pence a day, which he supplements a little by basket making. Even this light work, however, is obviously a severe task upon him and he is frequently unable to carry it on. He is 30 years old and has one child and a young and pretty wife, who, it is plain, idolizes the broken soldier.

Real Son of the American Revolution

James M. Edwards of Toledo, Ohio, Has Unqualified Right to Bear That Proud Title—Son of a Minute Man.

To be one of about fifteen of the surviving Sons of the American Revolution and to be the only surviving son of a participator in the historic battle of Lexington is the proud distinction borne by Jas. M. Edwards of Toledo, Ohio. Mr. Edwards is in his ninety-second year, and lives with his son. The fact that he is the only surviving son is not to be wondered at when we consider that peace has been declared for more than 120 years. According to the roster of the Sons of the American Revolution prepared early in 1904 there were then twenty-one surviving sons. But since that time it is known that six at least have died.

J. M. Edwards is the son of Ebenezer Edwards, who was a minute man from Acton, Mass., and who fired one of the first guns in defense of Concord road and stood by Capt. Davis when he was struck down by the first English gun fired in the revolutionary struggle. Ebenezer Edwards was born in 1757 in Acton, and was a carpenter by trade. At the age of 18 he ran away and enlisted. He was finally transferred to Fort Dorchester, where he spent some time. After three years of service he received an honorable discharge and went to the Green Hills of New Hampshire. There he married Lydia Wheeler, and by her had eleven children, all of whom are dead. He married Mary Flint in 1801, and by her he had four children, the youngest being James M., who is the sole survivor. Ebenezer died in 1826.

James M. Edwards was born Dec. 27, 1814, and was married to Elizabeth Moffitt of Cambridge March 6, 1854; they recently celebrated their fifty-first anniversary together. Four children blessed this union, all of whom are living. They are Frank M., an attorney in Boston; Herbert, a professional man of Toledo, Ohio; Elizabeth of St. Paul and Mrs. Augusta Seers of Chico, Cal. Mr. Edwards was first a banker in Boston a number of years, and later was in the wholesale lumber business in Grand Rapids, Mich.

When Cleopatra Lived and Reigned

"Along the Yellow Nile, with Heavy Eyelids, Purple-Veined and Love-Compelling Smile."

When Cleopatra lived and reigned
Along the yellow Nile,
With heavy eyelids, purple-veined,
And love-compelling smile,
The lotus buds that graced her hair
Than she were not more fair.

Her barge, that went with silken sails
Upon that tawny flood,
Was kissed by perfume-laden gales
And roses, red as blood,
Dropped crimson petals in the stream
From every gilded beam.

The palms flung down their cooling shade,
All stately and serene,
The tawny ripples lightly played,
Enamored of the queen.

What's in a Name?

At Montreal the advertising manager of the Canadian Pacific is a man named Ham, and the city ticket office is in charge of a man named Egg, says an exchange. The two are fast friends, and if both happen to be out of town at once inquiries for Ham and Eggs are frequent. By a coincidence both report to an official whose name is Bacon, whose chief clerk is named Brown. Recently Ham and Egg were both in Bacon's office. The telephone rang and Brown answered. He caught

And all the world was noon.

BABY ONE SOLID SORE.

Could Not Shut Eyes to Sleep—Spent $100 on Doctors—Baby Grew Worse—Cured by Cuticura for $5.

"A scab formed on my baby's face, spreading until it completely covered her from head to foot, followed by boils, having forty on her head at one time, and more on her body. Then her skin started to dry up and it became so bad she could not shut her eyes to sleep. One month's treatment with Cuticura Soap and Ointment made a complete cure. Doctors and medicines had cost over $100, with baby growing worse. Then we spent less than $5 for Cuticura and cured her. (Signed) Mrs. G. F. Tucker, Jr., 335 Greenfield Ave., Milwaukee, Wis."

Total Eclipse Described.

Dr. C. B. Tinker, English instructor at Yale and a graduate of the East Denver High School, witnessed the total eclipse of the sun at Sigüenza in Spain on the 20th of last August. In a letter to his mother in Denver, Dr. Tinker says:

"About half an hour before the period of totality, the sky and the landscape began to grow wan, and it became perceptibly colder. There was something uncanny about a twilight glow with no long shadows.

"When we arrived in Sigüenza, there was nothing left of the sun but a sickle shaped crescent, like a new moon, though inestimably more luminous. Fortunately, the clouds had retired to a safe distance from the sun. Suddenly the black disc of the moon entirely covered the sun, and in the same instant the glowing halo of silver-white light burst out around it. All round the horizon glowed with light; while there was brilliancy as of sunrise in the north, and as of sunset in the south, with clouds of bright orange color. The basin or valley, in which I found myself, seemed to be incredibly expanded. Against the dark sky, the battlemented towers of the near-by cathedral seemed placed on distant heights. All nature held its breath. The planet Venus pierced a mass of vaporous clouds and shone below the black sun in the center of the heavens.

"Slowly one side of the corona grew lighter, and then in a moment a great bullseye of sunshine shot forth and shattered the corona. The cathedral bell heralded returning day."

"Coffee gave me terrible spells of indigestion which, coming on every week or so, made my life wretched until some one told me that the coffee I drank was to blame. That seemed nonsense, but I noticed these attacks used to come on shortly after eating and were accompanied by such excruciating pains in the pit of the stomach that I could only find relief by loosening my clothing and tying down.

"If circumstances made it impossible for me to lie down I spent hours in great misery.

"I refused to really believe it was the coffee until finally I thought a trial would at least do no harm, so I quit coffee in 1901 and began on Postum. My troubles left entirely and convinced me of the cause.

"Postum brought no discomfort, nor did indigestion follow its use. I have had no return of the trouble since I began to drink Postum. It has built me up, restored my health and given me a new interest in life. It certainly is a joy to be well again." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Ways of Stags in Scottish Highlands

"Soiling Pools" Well Known to the Monarchs of the Glens—Fight to the Death Among Themselves.

"There are certain spots known to and recognized by the deer in most forests called 'soiling pools,'" says an English writer. "They are usually peaty pools to which the stags resort, often at night, to wallow and have a good time generally. Here I have occasionally seen them rolling on their backs, though more often black bubbles bursting sluggishly on the surface of the water have told me that I have come just in time to miss their late occupants. I was spying a distant hillside one day last September when some bright object flashing in the sun caught my eye, and looking through the glass I saw it was a stag. He was standing shaking himself by the edge of one of these pools, the water flying off him in all directions. It was the sun flashing on this which had attracted my attention. The pools are much used in the fall of the year, beginning approximately on Sept. 20, known in Gaelic as 'the day of the roaring,' though, of course, the exact date varies very much according to the season. I have heard stags roar as early as Sept. 10, though this is rather unusual. It is more of a bel-low than a roar, and is quite awe-inspiring at close quarters, more especially if the roarer is himself hidden.

"The end of the season is always the most exciting time for stalkers. Stags then are all on the move, and great fights take place. I have never had the luck to witness a real big pitched battle between two champions. I doubt whether they often fight to the death, but the number of stags with broken and damaged horns which are met with after the autumn season is over show that pretty severe contests do occur. Stags always maneuver, when fighting, to get their opponent down hill. They have tremendous power in their hind quarters, and in this position can use it to the best advantage. Deer do not fight only with their horns, as both sexes will rise erect on their hind legs and strike savagely with the fore feet, the sharp edges of the latter making a very nasty wound.

"A rather curious fact with regard to the fights between red deer, illustrating the toughness and elasticity of their skins, was told to me by a Dorsetshire agent. There was a big park full of red deer on the estate, and a large number of stags had been killed owing to fights. On skinning the dead ones he found that, though in many cases the lungs and flesh were pierced through and though, the skins themselves were comparatively uninjured."

Foolish Worry Over the Little Things

Small Stings, Not the Great Troubles of Life, Are the Events Over Which We Make Ourselves Miserable.

"She was always nagging, always nagging about little things." This is the only excuse that Fred Boyer of Berea, Ohio, can give for murdering his wife.

It's a poor excuse. A man hasn't the right to kill his wife because she nags or for any other reason.

But there is a life of misery painted in that one sentence, "Always nagging about little things."

We meet the big things in life with smiling faces and brave hearts.

We let the little things fret and worry us until we make ourselves miserable, make every one at home miserable, and too often make our neighbors uneasy and unhappy.

A big misfortune never feazes us. A pitcher of milk upset on a clean tablecloth and—poof! we are off like a flash of powder.

Willie falls down stairs, breaks his wrist. Mother sends for the doctor, helps to patch the little fellow up, and nurses him tenderly until he is well. The same Willie fires a stone through a six by eight window glass and he is "jawed" until he wishes he had never been born.

Mistake Made by Many Business Men

Imagine Themselves of Much More Importance Than They Really Are—Time Wasted in Constant Rush.

Annie Payson Call, writing in the American Illustrated Magazine, under the caption "Every Day Living," points out very clearly how a great many people, business men especially, work themselves into the idea that they are fearfully busy and rushed, when, as a matter of fact they would accomplish a lot more if they took things leisurely. She says:

The average business man in this country seems always to have an atmosphere of "rush" about him; even when he is sitting down you feel that he wants to take out his watch, if he does not actually do so; many men have apparently lost the art of taking a real vacation. I remember an anecdote of a prominent man whose family begged him to go off for a rest because of his extreme fatigue, who asserted over and over the impossibility of leaving his business, especially at

* We down the big things. The little things down us.

If the mortgage must be given husband and wife discuss the subject with grace and forbearance until an agreement is reached.

That same husband and wife quarrel until the dust rises over the proper place to hang a certain picture.

Each thinks the thing is too little for the other to hold out about.

Neither happens to think that the thing is too little to quarrel about.

All through life it is the little things that make the trouble.

All through life we climb the big rough places and fret and sweat because we stub our toes upon the little lumps of clay.

All through life we fuss over little things that don't make a whit's worth of difference one way or the other, that can't be helped by fretting, that can not be remedied by nagging.

"She was always nagging about little things."

Many another husband could bring the same charge against his wife.

It's a pity. It spoils a woman's happiness and wrecks her husband's life. It eats the peace out of a home as a nasty worm eats the heart out of a rose.—Cynthia Grey in Chicago Journal.

* that time of year, because there was one customer in the habit of buying very largely whom he felt that no one else in the office could possibly satisfy. Finally this man became so ill that he was obliged to be absent from his office. Shortly after his recovery he met his old customer in the street and went up to him with diffuse apologies for not having been ready to attend to his purchase. The customer, having finished his business some days before to his entire satisfaction, looked a little surprised and said:

"Oh! Weren't you there, Mr. Smith? I did not know it. I am sorry you have been ill."

The strain of self-importance is greater than we know. Indeed it is often self-importance, and only that, which is the true cause of nervous prostration. The great strain of unnecessary and selfish responsibility is an octopus which, if it gets hold of a man and begins to drain him, cannot often be cast off without great suffering.

WORKING WOMEN

Their Hard Struggle Made Easier—Interesting Statements by a Young Lady in Boston and One in Nashville, Tenn.

All women work; some in their homes, some in church, and some in the whirl of society. And in stores, mills and shops tens of thousands are on the never-ceasing treadmill, earning their daily bread.

All are subject to the same physical laws; all suffer alike from the same physical disturbance, and the nature of their duties, in many cases, quickly drifts them into the horrors of all kinds of female complaints, ovarian troubles, ulceration, falling and displacements of the womb, leucorrhoea, or perhaps irregularity or suppression of "monthly periods," causing backache, nervousness, irritability and lassitude.

Women who stand on their feet all day are more susceptible to these troubles than others.

They especially require an invigorating, sustaining medicine which will strengthen the female organism and enable them to bear easily the fatigues of the day, to sleep well at night, and to rise refreshed and cheerful.

How distressing to see a woman struggling to earn a livelihood or perform her household duties when her back and head are aching, she is so tired she can hardly drag about or stand up, and every movement causes pain, the origin of which is due to some derangement of the female organism.

Miss F. Orser of 14 Warrenton Street, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Succeeds Where Others Fail.

Boston, tells women how to avoid such suffering; she writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I suffered misery for several years with irregular menstruation. My back ached; I had bearing down pains, and frequent headaches; I could not sleep and could hardly drag around. I consulted two physicians without relief, and as a last resort, I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and to my surprise, every ache and pain left me. I gained ten pounds and am in perfect health."

Miss Pearl Ackers of 327 North Summer Street, Nashville, Tenn., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I suffered with painful periods, severe backache, bearing-down pains, pains across the abdomen; was very nervous and irritable, and my trouble grew worse every month. My physician failed to help me and I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I soon found it was doing me good. All my pains and aches disappeared, and I no longer fear my monthly periods."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the unfailing cure for all these troubles. It strengthens the proper muscles, and displacement with all its horrors will no more crush you.

Backache, dizziness, fainting, bearing down pains, disordered stomach, moodiness, dislike of friends and society—all symptoms of the one cause—will be quickly dispelled, and it will make you strong and well.

You can tell the story of your sufferings to a woman, and receive helpful advice free of cost. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

RUSSIA'S PLIGHT.

The friends of constitutional government hailed with delight the announcement some weeks ago that the czar had agreed to give the Russian people a voice in the government. Since that announcement, however, the world has been repeatedly shocked and horrified over the number and extent of the massacres that have occurred in the czar's dominions.

The difficulty seems to be that the czar is not willing to grant enough and the radicals want too much. The iron hand of a ruthless soldiery has fallen heavily on the people in all parts of the empire, and the substance of things hoped for, and the evidence of things not seen, have vanished, leaving the nation bleeding with no relief in sight.

Constitutional government in Russia is a long way off, even if the demands of the people are granted. In Russia there are no parties, there are groups, each hostile to the other, and it will require many years to eradicate this feeling and to restore confidence.

Race and religion cut more figure in the government of Russia than mere party. For instance, the Poles will form no alignment with any other group, the Ducal, or Aristocratic group, peasants of the empire, which constitute the main population, and yet will receive the least. Again, religion is a rock upon which the government would split if nothing else intervened. Russia is the third Mohammedan power in the world, and all know that a Musselman will mix his religion with no other. The Greek church is the state church, but is opposed by other virulent ecclesiastical bodies, the membership of each ready to go to war with all other sects.

So it is readily seen how next to impossible it is for the ministry to get along; for it will have no party to support it, and will have to depend on a coalition or combination of some of these discordant elements, a hope that is indeed pitiable, and yet there seems little chance for an improvement in the near future. It may be necessary for the Russian nation to go through the throes of French revolution and purge itself of these conflicting groups. Blood will of course flow, but has not thousands already been butchered in cold blood, and that too when no prospect presented itself for a better form of government. The people had just as well take up the fight, and if they are slain they will have the satisfaction of knowing they have a cause to fight for.

The Territorial Republican committee met in Santa Fe Friday and did a lot of resolving, but left the most important subject quietly alone—"What to do with Andrews." They also failed to endorse the governor and others for reappointment, and this looks as though they had heard something; for your average politician or the kind that met in Santa Fe usually stops short of nothing that will keep administration to the front. They probably heard something drop up about Washington, and didn't want to get in the way of the band wagon.

The New York election was a surprise to many, perhaps most of all to Tammany. It was freely predicted before the election that Hearst would not receive over 100,000 votes, yet when the returns were in they showed that more than twice that many votes were cast for the head of the municipal ownership ticket; in fact, Hearst came so near defeating the head of the Tammany ticket that a contest is to be instituted, and bets were made after the election that Hearst would yet be mayor of the great city.

DOES COL. FOUNTAIN LIVE?

Possible—Hardly Probable.

Old residents of this section of New Mexico recall the disappearance of Col. A. J. Fountain and son, in the early part of 1896. Great efforts have been made to discover the bodies—the fixed belief being that they had been murdered—but no trace, during the nine years past, has been discovered; and, while certain parties were indicted and tried, nothing came of it, and the world is still ignorant of the location of the bodies and the perpetrators of the crime, if indeed, a crime was committed, as it was the date of the disappearance.

From time to time suggestions have been made and reports circulated that Col. Fountain and son still live; and are in Old Mexico. Not much credence, naturally, is given to these reports, but there is, of course, a possibility of the report being true, and for the bare possibility that such may be true, we present the following, which was dispatched to the Denver News from Kingston, New Mexico:

"Col. Fountain was waylaid, killed or captured nine years ago while returning home from a term of the district court in Lincoln county, where as district attorney he had been active in securing many indictments against cattle thieves of eastern New Mexico. Whether the colonel and his son were positively killed or taken and held in captivity no one ever knew. One thing is certain, he vanished and no trace of the man or boy alive or dead has ever been found up

CLOTHES FOR ALL OCCASIONS.

Woman Who Has Them a Rarity and a Relief, Says an Exchange.

She's such a relief to meet with—the woman who always has her clothes ready for any occasion she may be invited to, and she's almost as great a rarity.

When the seasons change she puts her mind upon the subject of clothes with a will, and quietly decides just what she will get to carry her through the whole season. Then as quietly, and as surely, she gets each thing, so that by the time half her world is rushing around trying to get something made in time for this affair or for that she is ready with everything—ready to accept those invitations to delightful affairs planned on the spur of the moment—thing that there isn't time to get something made for.

The result is she's never hurried, nor its almost invariable accompaniment, flurried.

Probably she doesn't get many clothes, and the friends who have closets and wardrobes filled to overflowing, yet who complain so bitterly that they've nothing ready to wear, or not exactly the right thing, find her almost provoking in her serene readiness.

But it was hard work in the first place, for choosing a few things that will suit all occasions, and yet give you a few changes, isn't easy by any means, and requires a mighty clever manager.

But, she's such a relief to invite anywhere!—San Francisco, Cal.

Women and Economy.

Women, as a class, have most uncertain ideas on the subject of economy, avers M. A. P. They define the word simply as the not spending of money, and associate it chiefly with straitened circumstances. But economy means administration, the cleverest way of spending one's money, whether one's allowance is $250 or $25,000. In either case, the following rules hold good: 1. Pay ready money for everything. 2. Never spend anything without well considering if the article in question is a necessity. Will it be valued twenty-four hours after purchase? 3. Always leave a margin—that is to say, always live within your income. 4. Keep accounts; even the record of a penny account book acts as a check on one's expenditure. The secret of true economy is trouble-taking; laziness and extravagance are apt to go hand in hand.

Children Taught to Swim.

At this period of the year, when so many drowning accidents occur, the annual report of the London (Eng.) Schools Swimming Association possesses special interest. The organization, which is supported by voluntary subscriptions, is the largest swimming association in the world, having affiliated to it nearly 1,000 schools. The branches are spread all over London, and every year about 5,000 certificates are issued to boys who can swim 100 yards, and to girls who can swim fifty yards. No fewer than 60,000 children are taken to the baths every week and instructed in swimming. Life-saving is also taught. The Roll of Honor contains the names of forty-five boys and girls who have attempted to save life from drowning. All these young people have been rewarded by the Royal Humane Society.

Found Rare Art Treasures.

Another valuable addition to Italy's treasures in medieval works of art has just been brought to light. In the old church of Cifeggio, near Omega, some internal repairs and structural cleaning are being carried out. Among the rest a thick coating of whitewash has been removed. Fortunately, with a view to possible discoveries underneath, this was done with care, with the result that there have been found six beautiful frescoes of the best period of Italian art. They are all by the eminent painter Grandenico Ferrari. The color is said to be splendid.—London Globe.

Dropsy set in and bloating of the chest choked me and threatened the heart. I had little hope, but to my untold surprise, Doan's Kidney Pills brought me relief, and saved my life. I shall never forget it."

LOSS OF APPETITE

Cold Sweats, Twitching Nerves and Weakness Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Nature punishes every infraction of her laws, and careless habits easily lead to the condition described by Mr. William Browne, of No. 1019 Lincoln street, St. Joseph, Mo. Mr. Browne is an expert tinner in the employ of the National Biscuit Co. He gives the following account of a trying experience:

"In the spring of 1902," he says, "while I was regularly working at my trade, I grew somewhat careless in my habits of eating and drinking, and finally found that my appetite was fickle, a bad taste lingered in my mouth, my nerves twitched and were beyond my control, my kidneys were out of order and cold sweats would break out over my body at odd times. Perhaps, while I stood talking with some one, this trembling of the limbs, and profuse sweating, and a severe chill would seize me. I became alarmed at my condition and, having read an endorsement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, I got a box and began to use them. They helped me at once. After I had used one box the twitching of the nerves, the trouble with the stomach and the cold sweats stopped and have not reappeared, and my appetite is good. I have told all my friends that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cured me and I recommend them to everybody."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cured Mr. Browne because nothing can strengthen the nerves except good rich red blood—and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood. They don't act on the bowels. They don't bother with mere symptoms. They drive from the blood the cause of anæmia, indigestion, nervous disorders, general weakness and the troubles of growing girls and women. The pills are guaranteed to be free from opiates or harmful drugs. Sold by all druggists, or by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

WILLIAM HAWLEY SMITH

At this time of the year many young people are debating how best to spend the winter months. Do they realize the importance of a thorough business training? Success in life to-day is won by the specialist. The greatest prizes are found in business.

GIVEN AWAY BY THEIR SHOES.

Footwear Has Frequently Led to Capture of Criminals.

"Shoes have played an important part in the capture of criminals," said Detective William Barrett of Buffalo. "Had it not been for the footwear of certain thieves they would never have been caught. It is not so long ago that I and two others were detailed on a case, and before we caught our man, another shop had been burglarized."

"We looked at the marks about the windows and noticed they were scraped by nails. We went back to the other place and found the same conditions. Later we went into a well-known resort and found a man sitting in a chair. He had his feet encased in a neat fitting pair of shoes, but for some reason he had nails put in the heels. We 'jumped' him at once, and searching his rooms we discovered enough loot to start a store. He later explained that the nails were put in his shoes to aid in roof climbing."

"Squeaky shoes have caused the arrest of several thieves right in precinct. The other night a thief thief bought a pair of cheap shoes and they were very musical. The man got into a place and before he got anything his noisy shoes gave him away and he was caught. All clever criminals have a penchant for buying good, soft shoes. They pay a good price for them and they are repaid sometimes by getting off with the swag to pay up for what they spent."—Shoe Retailer.

The Late Mr. Fessenden.

Out in one of the north shore suburbs there is a negro church which besides doing good work furnishes no end of amusement for a large number of the "white folks" because of some of the eccentricities of a few of its members. One of the latest of these is in the form of a church notice which the colored brethren inserted in a local paper not long ago.

A certain Rev. Mr. Fessenden had been dropped by his flock when they thought they had found a better man. One Sunday the better man was unable to preach, so Rev. Mr. Fessenden, who still resided in the town, was called upon to fill the pulpit for the time.

One of the deacons, wishing to make the change known to the congregation, inserted an advertisement in the local paper, announcing that "owing to Brother Jones' poor health, the pulpit will be filled to-morrow by the late Mr. Fessenden."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Had Use for Both Rolls.

A certain type of cheap restaurant is the same all the world over. In a Berlin eating house of the cheap grade one man dropping in observed a friend being well bestowed.

"What, you are not going to eat two of those enormous rolls, are you?" he inquired, with evident interest in his friend's welfare.

"Oh, no," replied his friend, carelessly. "I eat one and clean my knife and fork on the other."

Seven Thousand Rescued Boys.

The plan followed by the state of Ohio in remaking naughty boys has had excellent results, according to Eugene Wood's article, "A School for Boys," in the October number of Everybody's Magazine.

"Statistics show," says Mr. Wood, "that out of the 11,000 boys who have been in this school since it was started, between sixty-five and seventy per cent. have made useful, honorable men out of themselves. How many of them would have done so anyhow it is impossible to tell; but the chances are that they would all have gone irrevocably to the bad, else they wouldn't have been committed. They aren't sent to Lancaster for making faces at the teacher."

"Of these 7,000 or so rescued boys some have done extremely well. One man I know of is now a millionaire of very great importance in the world. He is proud of the fact that he was a boy there. He takes his friends to the place to show it off to them and tell what it did for him. 'The turning-point in my life,' he says. There are others in very high positions in the state of Ohio and other states, men of affairs, trusted men, that say the same thing."

Cured Her Rheumatism.

Deep Valley, Pa., Oct. 2d.—(Special.)—There is deep interest in Green county over the cure of the little daughter of I. N. Whipkey of Rheumatism. She was a great sufferer for five or six years and nothing seemed to do her any good till she tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. She began to improve almost at once and now she is cured and can run and play as other children do. Mr. Whipkey says:

"I am indeed thankful for what Dodd's Kidney Pills have done for my daughter; they saved her from being a cripple perhaps for life."

Dodd's Kidney Pills have proved that Rheumatism is one of the results of diseased kidneys. Rheumatism is caused by Uric Acid in the blood. If the Kidneys are right there can be no Uric Acid in the blood and consequently no Rheumatism. Dodd's Kidney Pills make the Kidneys right.

They have been tried in the crucible of public opinion and they have been found satisfactory by the people, for otherwise the people would discontinue using them."

DOES COL. FOUNTAIN LIVE?

to the present time. The story of Charles Clump, recently from Mexico, however, indicates that Fountain is yet living.

"Clump," a prospector and guide in Mexico, claims to have met and talked with Col. Fountain and his son, Henry, in one of the most inaccessible portions of the Sonora mountains, Mexico. He claims that he and the two Fountains started for the American border and traveled for three days and nights in a desperate attempt to escape. They were eventually overtaken by outlaws and a fight ensued. One of the outlaws and two of the bloodhounds were shot by Clump in defending the fleeing party.

"During the fight a bullet struck Clump in the leg, which put him out of the fight. He staggered backward and fell into a ravine covered with bushes, where he remained unconscious for a long time. He finally revived and dragged himself to the bank of the gulch, only to find himself alone.

"Whether Col. Fountain and son perished or were recaptured and returned to their prison in the fastness of the mountains Clump says is a matter of conjecture."

R. H. Box was in Tuesday from the Angus neighborhood, and informed the News that a report was current in his community that the department had rescinded its action with reference to the grazing fees and that parties having only one hundred head of cattle would be permitted to graze free. So far as the News is concerned this is the first it has heard of such a report, and feels quite certain the report is unfounded.

Grow Apples.

Most satisfactory returns are realized from the growth of apples in the southwestern part of New Mexico, and as a proof of this we clip the following from the Artesia Advocate, which tells about results obtained by two former citizens and officials of Lincoln county, but now residents of Chaves county.

"Judge T. C. Tillotson has an orchard, ranging from four to twelve years old and it paid him in marketed apples this season, the sum of $44.00, net, per tree. This was the average of the entire orchard at two cents per pound for the fruit, delivered at Alamogordo, sixty miles away. This is counting only picked apples and no windfalls are counted. His four-year-old Ben Davis trees averaged 440 pounds of apples, while in other countries the trees bear little or nothing until six years old."

B. Cleve, the well known merchant at Elk, has 161 apple trees on one and a half acres. The proceeds of his sale of apples was $1,800 for the one and one half acres, or $1,200 per acre. Besides this, there is now ten thousand pounds of windfalls on the ground. These are as good apples as the ones sold, but were blown from the trees and are never put in on delivery."

This contains a hint for the Lincoln county farmer: "Grow more apples."
