Warriors say, 'We're ready'

by GARY BROWN
News Sports Writer

It will be a battle of undefeated teams and long-time rivals Friday night when the Ruidoso High School varsity football team hosts the Tularosa Wildcats in a 7:30 game.

Both teams have 2-0 records.

Ruidoso edged Lovington 21-16 in the season opener and toppled Clint, Texas, 21-12 last week. The Warriors are ranked eighth in the Associated Press state AAA division poll and 10th in the coaches' poll.

Tularosa has defeated Cobre and Hot Springs, two teams in Ruidoso's District 3-AAA.

Tularosa used to belong to that district but dropped down to the AA division last season. However, that did not stop the Wildcats from beating Ruidoso 9-6 and extending their advantage in the long series.

The Wildcats have won 21 games while the Warriors have won six. Ruidoso has won just once since 1968, that being a 14-0 blanking of the Wildcats in 1980.

Tularosa, coached by veteran mentor Bob Cerney, even won in 1981, with a 13-0 decision over a Ruidoso team that was 8-2 and just missed the state playoffs.

But the Warrior players are determined that Tularosa will not beat them again this season.

"The team could have won last year," said senior fullback-tackle Manuel Montano, who did not play in last year's game because he was sick.

"It just seemed like our team made some mental mistakes. But we're ready this time. We had a meeting and talked about how important it is to be mentally prepared."

The Warrior coaches are not worried about whether the team will be prepared, either.

"Our team will be prepared to play," said head coach Cooper Henderson. "This looks like a game between two good teams that could be decided by turnovers or lack of turnovers."

Several Warrior players have had the flu this week but are better. No player is injured badly enough to miss the contest.

Warrior quarterback Russell Easter has been a standout so far, having scored three touchdowns and passed for two scores.

He has completed 10 of 24 passes for 175 yards without an interception.

Joining the talented junior in the backfield are Montano, tailback Michael Williamson and wingback Justin Smith.

Smith and split end Mike Smith each have caught one touchdown pass this season.

Mike Smith has caught four passes for 106 yards, making him one of the leading receivers in the state.

Williamson has scored a touchdown on a kickoff return, and Montano has rushed for over 100 yards in the two games.

The Warrior offensive line is anchored by center James Herrera and guard Kevin Jameson. Both are returning starters from last year's team.

Sophomore Billy Harrison has been a standout at guard, winning the coaches' Golden Helmet award after the Clint game.

Middle linebacker Bobby Dickinson and safety Jeff Willingham have done well.

Willingham, only a sophomore, has already intercepted three passes this season. Dickinson is strong against both the run and the pass.

But Tularosa is not without its own weapons.

Quarterback David Shepard is a poised, talented quarterback, and doubles as a cornerback on defense.

The 165-pound athlete will probably work with Juan Romero at fullback, and Tommy Sanchez and Bonnie Reyes at running backs.

Richard Grace (215 pounds) is an impressive two-way player for the Wildcats. Warren Sidewell, another 215-pounder, adds size to the Tularosa line.

"They run out of a similar offense to ours," Henderson said of Tularosa. "They like to go out of a wing-T or a T.

"They have good balance between running and passing. They're a very well-coached team with Cerney. He's been there a long time."

Following are the tenative starting offensive and defensive lineups for the Warriors.

Ends, Herrera and Jameson, tackles, Shayne Frederick, sophomore, and Patric Pearson, senior.

Parks and Rec Department to rent building

by DARRELL J. PEHR
News Staff Writer

Activities for youths from tots to teens are planned by the Ruidoso Parks and Recreation Department this fall.

A wide variety of programs will be available, due largely to the planned acquisition of a youth center by the department. A building on Wingfield Street just west of the circle at Sudderth Drive and Main Road is the expected location of the center.

According to Robyn Johnson of the department, a space 100 by 25 feet with a 16-foot high ceiling at the Wingfield Street building will be rented for the many activities planned at the center.

Johnson reported that 90 youths have so far signed up for the fall activities. She said activities at the center will be closely evaluated to determine if there is actually a need for such a center in the village.

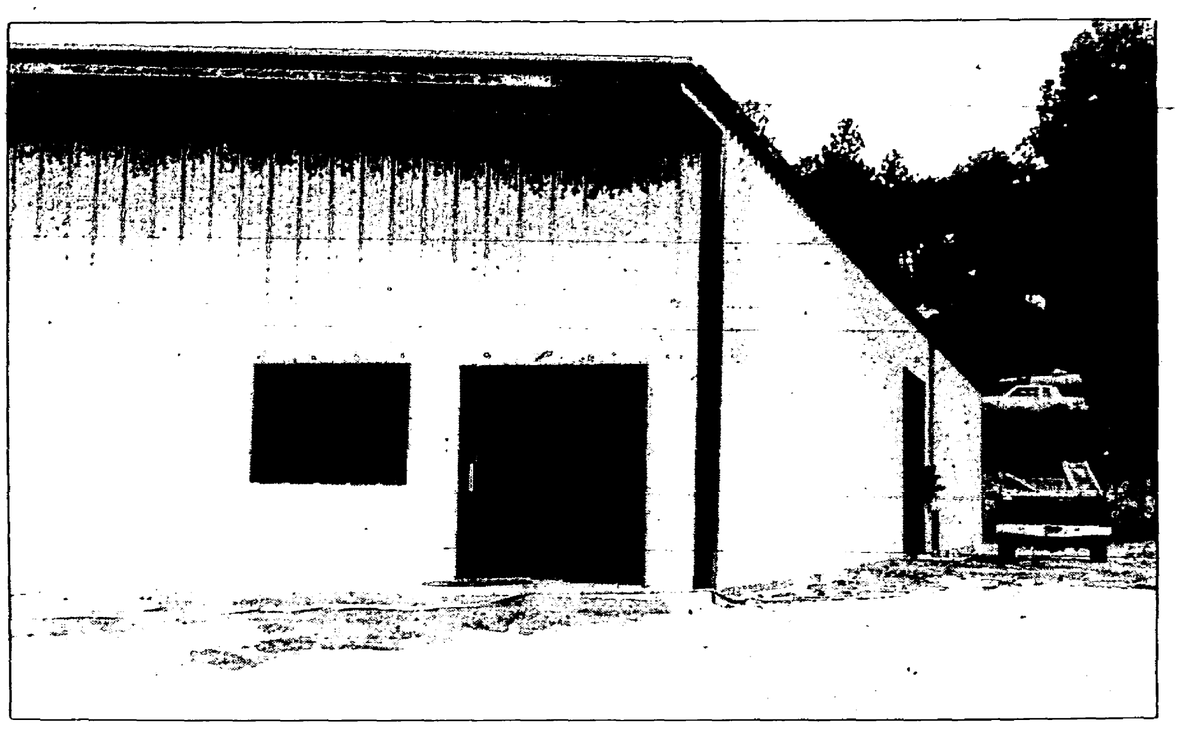
The possible success of this center might lead to the acquisition of a permanent center owned by the department, she predicted.

An extensive gymnastics program will make use of the Wingfield Street center this fall. Johnson said the program will be operated in conjunction with the Ruidoso School of Gymnastics and Creative Fitness, and will utilize the school's gymnastics equipment.

Other programs planned at the center will include ballet and jazz lessons; folk guitar, harmonica and piano lessons; a "Tiny Tots" program for pre-schoolers; a table games-homework area program for youths after school; "Saturday Night at the Movies," "Friday Nights After the Game Get-Together," and a "Mid School Get-Together."

The Friday and Saturday night activities will be organized by a six-member teen board set up by the department. According to Johnson, the board will determine the program of events each Friday night and pick out the movies for Saturday nights. She said the board will be made up of local high-school age students.

The final arrangements to officially acquire the building will come after the Tuesday, September 25, meeting of the Ruidoso village council. The council will review bids for the project and the Wingfield Street building is expected to be accepted.



This building is scheduled to house the fall programs of the Ruidoso Parks and Recreation Department. The department plans to occupy the west half of the Wingfield Street structure with activities for tots through teens.

Rey Cordova wins special Demo primary

by MATT BOSISIO
News Staff Writer

In a surprise upset in Tuesday's special primary election, Reynaldo Cordova of Tularosa scored big in Otero County, and walked away as the Democratic candidate for state representative in District 52.

Cordova received 787 votes, against 545 for Neil Baird and 466 for Noel Mauldin. He will oppose Republican incumbent Maurice Hobson in November's general election.

The special primary was called after a federal court redrew district lines last month in an effort to give minority voters in eastern and northwestern New Mexico greater representation in the state House.

The redistricting threw out results of the June primary, which saw Mauldin defeat Baird by a comfortable margin. Cordova was not a candidate in the June primary, and was not considered a favorite in Tuesday's election.

He attributed his victory to "hard work, good friends, good supporters." He said growing up in the area was a definite boost, particularly in Otero County, where he overwhelmed his nearest competitor by more than a 7 to 1 margin.

Overall in the district—which covers all of Sierra County and parts of Lincoln and Otero counties—Cordova won handily with 43 percent of the total vote. Baird, of Truth or Consequences, received 31 percent, and Mauldin, of Williamsburg, took 26 percent.

"It's going to be tough, very tough," Cordova said of his next challenge, unseating the incumbent in two months. "Mr. Hobson has been the representative for this district in the neighborhood of 14 to 16 years."

He predicted he would do a better job for the district than his opponent. Hobson, he said, has become somewhat ineffective in recent years.

"I just don't see that he has produced much," Cordova said. "I'm not

P&Z wrestles with question of when sign not a sign

Request to discount menu board aired

by DARRELL J. PEHR
News Staff Writer

What is and what isn't a sign? The question was the center of a discussion at the Monday meeting of the Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission (P&Z).

The discussion concerned the appeal of a sign denial for Robert Mott of Kentucky Fried Chicken. His earlier application to the Architectural Plans Review Committee for an additional 36 square feet of signage and 18 square feet for the drive-up window "menu-board" at the restaurant had been denied by that committee.

Mott's application came as a result of remodeling of the restaurant in August, which added more signage and the free-standing menu-board to the restaurant. He argued that the menu-board did not qualify as a sign and so should be exempt from the P&Z sign ordinance total size limitations.

P&Z members disagreed. Don Shaw said he believed that if the menu-board is in front of the building and is lighted it is a sign. He opined that menu-boards placed in the back of restaurants and used in conjunction with drive-up facilities were not to be considered as signs.

Mott countered that because the size of the type on the menu-board cannot be read from the street, it should not be considered a sign.

P&Z Chairman Greg Masters said he believed that the status of each menu-board should be determined on the merits of where the board is located.

Member Milt Alcorn said P&Z had considered menu-boards to be signs in the past. He suggested that the ordinance be changed to clearly state the commission's stand on the issue.

P&Z voted to deny the appeal for both signs, and informed Mott that he may appeal the decision to the Ruidoso village council.

Members also instructed Planning and Zoning enforcement officer Paul Davis to consider all menu boards as signs when he determines the total signage each business is entitled to, and to refer appeals to P&Z for a variance.

In other action, commission members decided not to conduct a scheduled public hearing on a conditional use permit for the village Parks and Recreation Department.

The department plans to use a building in the Wingfield Addition subdivision as a facility for gymnastic classes, teen activities and preschool children activities.

Members heard Masters report that it was the opinion of village attorney Lee Huckstep that a conditional use permit was not necessary because the land is zoned C (commercial), for which there are no guidelines in the P&Z blue book.

"Our position has been that anything is allowed in C," Masters said.

The land had earlier been included in a P&Z administrative review of the area, which sought to rezone the land from C to C-1 (light commercial and office). That action was approved at the P&Z level, but was sent back to P&Z by the village council for further work.

P&Z then decided to refer the matter to BRW, the firm developing the Ruidoso master plan, for in-depth study.

The conditional use hearing item was removed from the agenda at the decision of the commission members.

In other business, P&Z:

—Approved the vacation of six feet of the right of way in front of lots 1, 2, 3, and 4, block 13, Pinecliff subdivision, as requested by Roger Winter.

—Approved the replat into two lots of lot 5A, block 1, Airport West, 2nd addition, as requested by William Blaney. Approved on the condition that a driveway easement plotted to serve both lots widen from 24 feet to 30 feet at the junction with Highway 37; and that the lots not be further subdivided.

—Approved the abandonment of a utility easement between lots 12 and 13, block 3, North Heights Park subdivision, as requested by Jack King. According to King, a house had been built over both lots due to "misconstrued" lot lines.

The commission denied his request to replat the lots in such a way that the house would only occupy one lot.

—Tabled for 60 days the request for a replat variance of Thunderbird Heights subdivision, as requested by H. Boggiano, until permission from all property owners in the replat area is obtained and lot sizes are limited to a minimum of one-third acre on a redone replat.

—Approved the vacation of one foot of the right of way along Vine Road beside lot 728 of Skyland Addition subdivision, as requested by Kenneth May, with the stipulation that May first obtain a survey of the entire east side of Vine Road to determine if there are other encroachments into the right of way along the street.

—Approved the replat into one lot of lots 1, 2, and 3, block 4, Young Heights subdivision, as requested by R. A. Bennett.

—Heard Masters call a special meeting of the group and BRW at 3 p.m. Tuesday, October 16.

—Heard Davis report that the committee to determine the maximum allowable signage for any business had decided 200 square feet will be the limit. Those wanting more signage will have to present a request for a variance to the commission.

P&Z Chairman Greg Masters listens intently during discussion at Monday's meeting.

Don Shaw and other members of P&Z faced several tough decisions during the Monday meeting.

In Festival parade, 'Anything Goes'

Floats, bands and kids on bikes will provide just a sprinkling of the full flavor when this year's Aspen Festival Parade takes to the street Saturday, October 6

The theme of the parade is "Anything Goes," and organizers have invited just about any kind of entry in keeping with that theme.

Already on line are the Ruidoso High School Band; antique and classical cars; the Rocket Riders with their go-carts; a rifle team; decorated pickup trucks; politicians; and the winner of the New Mexico Cinderella Pageant

And appearing for the first time as grand marshal of the parade will be cowboy artist and Western art pioneer Gordon Snidow

Snidow is the creator of the Coors Cowboy series of collectors' prints; he has been reproduced in a variety of books on Western art; and he is the recipient of 21 Cowboy Artist of America Awards

"It's going to be a different kind of parade this year," said Tommy Morel, acting executive director of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce

He said motorcycles from the annual Ruidoso Motorcycle Festival will not be present for the parade. But in their place, he said, will be more mounted groups and individuals, much as it was years earlier.

GORDON SNIDOW

The parade begins at 11 a.m., with participants asked to gather at 9:45 a.m. The route will start at the intersection of Sudderth and Mechem drives and will terminate on Bishop Street, near Century 21 Aspen Real Estate

Awards will be presented at the end of the parade route.

Trophies will be presented to first and second place winners in Class A and Class B in the high school and middle school bands and marching units category.

Three trophies will be awarded to the best all-around entries. A single trophy will be presented to the entry considered to be the most original.

Parade categories are as follows:

—Bands; floats; kids on bikes; three-wheelers and motorcycles; wagons and buggies; antique and classical cars; marching units (non-musical) and miscellaneous; decorated pickup trucks and cars; political figures; and mounted groups and individuals.

Businesses around town have been asked to make a special effort to produce floats and help make the parade a success.

The bar-restaurant with the best float also will be awarded a trophy, funded privately through local contributors.

In all, the 1984 Aspen Festival Parade is expected to highlight in style another fall season of celebration where "Anything Goes."

Home is where the sign is

Toby Wilson says a few words, and makes them count. When Shelly Segler returned recently from San Angelo, Texas, he wanted people in Ruidoso to know. As a surprise to his fiancee, he put three little words on the sign in front of T. L. Wilson Sporting Goods on Sudderth Drive. The words have been replaced, for now. The couple plans a wedding December 15.

Hepatitis cases raise some concern locally

by C.E. REUTTER
News Staff Writer

As a precaution, medical workers are watching for hepatitis cases in the Ruidoso area. Nine have been reported in the area in about a month.

The medical personnel see no cause for alarm, but do say residents should exercise care. Children and adults have caught the virus since August.

Cases of Hepatitis-A, the milder of two strains of the virus, have been reported at a Ruidoso Downs trailer park and in Paradise Canyon near Sudderth Drive.

Hepatitis-B is the familiar strain of the virus, which is transmitted via syringe needles.

Medical personnel were investigating the possibility that the hepatitis-A was transmitted by a babysitter. However, Jim Edwards said he doubted that. Edwards heads the Ruidoso branch of the state Environmental Improvement Division (EID).

In addition, experts are checking to see if the hepatitis could have been transmitted for a time in Ruidoso Downs water.

It also can be transmitted from infected children to adults who change their diapers. Medical experts are asking day care staff members and others who work with youngsters to wash their hands even more often than usual.

Hepatitis-A symptoms in children and adults include a rapid onset of fever, nausea and abdominal discomfort, with jaundice following in a few days, said Hari Mukhoty of the local EID office.

Mukhoty said hepatitis cases can last a few weeks or longer.

"Type A is usually higher in autumn and winter," he said. He declined to label the hepatitis cases an outbreak, but did say, "Everybody should be a little careful about hygiene with kids."

Edwards echoed that philosophy. "I wouldn't go sounding a great alarm," he said. He added, "This is a little bit unusual to have this number." He also cautioned people to practice especially good hygiene.

Mukhoty said hepatitis-A cases are often transmitted from person to person. Area day care centers have been contacted about the cases, he said.

"We told them to be very careful about washing hands and hygiene."

In addition, Ruidoso Downs increased the chlorine content in its water after the hepatitis was reported. The chlorine helps fight the spread of hepatitis.

The village drained water out of lines to get chlorine moving into them, said Wilma Webb, Ruidoso Downs village clerk.

Last week she said the village measured 0.08 parts per million of chlorine in the water at the village well. It measured 0.07 parts per million at Hollywood Trailer Park.

"That's pretty high," she said. Webb admitted the chlorine levels had been lower earlier. She suspected a new piece of equipment may be the culprit.

"We had just gotten a new chlorinator installed last Wednesday," she said last week.

Testing of other suspected causes is still being conducted, Edwards said.

No single cause may link all the cases, he noted. Some were reported in August, and one was reported as recently as Monday, September 10.

Doctors, nurses and other health experts report the cases to Edwards. The health care people urge anyone who suspects they know about a case of hepatitis to get medical help.

trying to knock the man, just present the facts."

In the last legislative session, he said, Hobson sponsored only one bill, and co-sponsored a few others.

Cordova said he would be different. He said he would work in Santa Fe to help the economies of smaller communities in the district, specifically Carrizozo and Tularosa.

"I'm going to try to seek the cooperation of the people up there, the representatives and senators, and see if they can give us a hand to accomplish things in our district down here."

While he won by a large margin in Otero County, Cordova received the fewest votes of the candidates in both Lincoln and Sierra counties.

In Lincoln County, Democratic voters from precincts in Corona, Carrizozo, Nogal and Alto gave Cordova 21 percent of the vote. Mauldin received 41 percent and Baird took 38 percent.

According to the county clerk's office, voter turnout for the special primary was 14.3 percent. Of the 757 registered Democrats in District 52 within Lincoln County, only 108 voted.

The Sierra County Clerk reported a 29.8 percent voter turnout, while Otero County saw 30 percent of the voters go to the polls.

Plaintiff seeks judgment against the defendant in the sum of $2,201.20, together with interest as allowed by law, reasonable attorney fees, costs and such other and further relief as the court may deem just and appropriate.

• Dennis M. Tracy and Virginia R. Frost filed a complaint on August 18 against Jim Lacy and Judy L. Lacy, his wife, and John L. Shriver and Ruth E. Shriver, his wife, asking for recision and for damages, and requesting application for preliminary injunction.

The plaintiff seeks judgment as follows: that the court issue a preliminary injunction halting the construction on lot 17 by defendants; or, that defendants Lacy be ordered to tear down part of their house, constructed so as to allow the plaintiffs the view which allegedly was promised; or, that the defendants Lacy be required to purchase plaintiffs' house at current value and pay plaintiffs the sum of $25,000 for relocation expenses; or, that lot 17 be appraised and that plaintiffs be allowed to purchase it at appraised value; or, that the defendants Lacy pay punitive damages of $100,000; and, that the defendants Lacy be ordered to pay plaintiffs reasonable attorney fees and other related costs, and for such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

• A judgment was found for plaintiff All American Plumbing and Heating Inc. against defendant John Payne in the amount of $2,020 on August 24.

ANATOMY OF A LAWSUIT
by Sandra A. Grisham

Most civil lawsuits are started by filing a "complaint" or a "petition", asking the court to grant relief or award damages. The person who files is a "plaintiff" or "petitioner", respectively. The complaint or petition is then "served" on the other party, who is called a "defendant" or "respondent".

Service of the papers can be made by anyone over the age of eighteen years, but usually either a professional process server or a deputy sheriff does it. Service is made by physically delivering the papers to the defendant, someone over the age of fifteen years at the defendant's home, or posting it on the door. If the defendant can't be found, service is made by publishing a notice in a newspaper.

After service, a defendant ordinarily has thirty days to file an answer (or a response to a petition), and serve it on the other party by mailing. Either party can request a jury trial by a six or twelve-member jury within ten days after the answer has been served.

A case can be set for trial any time after the answer is served, but it usually takes a few months to be set on the court docket. In the meantime, the parties can engage in "discovery" — each trying to find out as much as possible about the other's case.

A common discovery technique is to serve the other side with "interrogatories", which are nothing more than written questions to be answered in writing under oath by the other party. They must be answered within thirty days.

A party can also take the oral "deposition" of the other party or any of the expected witnesses. At a deposition the witness is sworn under oath, lawyers ask questions, and a court reporter takes down everything that is said. Some of the answers may be used in the trial later, either because the witness is no longer available or to contradict a party or witness on the stand.

Another discovery method is called "requests for admission". A party is asked to admit facts in writing, and if they are not admitted or denied within thirty days they are deemed to be admitted.

Also, parties can request each other to produce documents or other items for inspection and copying, and can also "subpoena" similar items from third parties. Bank account records, tax returns, business books and such are frequent targets of these requests. If parties refuse to produce relevant items, the judge can order them to do so.

Once discovery is completed the case can be tried, either before a judge or a jury. If a judge tries the case, the judge acts as both fact-finder and an interpreter of the applicable law. If there is a jury, the jury is responsible for finding the facts.

If there is a six-person jury, five of them must agree on a verdict. If there are twelve on the jury, ten must agree.

Even in jury trials the judge can rule on the case, either before the jury starts deliberating by granting a "directed verdict", or after the jury has decided by granting a "judgment notwithstanding the verdict". This is not usually done, and only in cases where the judge feels that reasonable people could not decide differently on the evidence that was presented unless they were unduly prejudiced.

A judge can also order an "additur" or add money to the verdict, or order a "remittitur", by deducting money. In either case, the affected party can choose to go through another trial rather than accept the judge's decision.

Phelps, Borchardt gain wins in seniors golf championship

by GARY BROWN
News Sports Writer

Jerry Phelps of Clovis won the low gross title of the first flight in the fourth annual Eastern New Mexico Seniors' Golf Tournament at Cree Meadows Country Club Tuesday afternoon.

Phelps shot a 154 for the 36-hole, two-day tournament. He fired a sizzling one-over-par 72 Monday and an 82 Tuesday.

He finished four strokes ahead of T. K. Sheppard and Bob Davenport, each with a 158.

Charlie Borchardt of Ruidoso won the first flight low net championship with a 140. He shot a 70 both days in net competition.

Phelps felt he played better in the first round than in the second round.

"I played pretty good," Phelps said. "I played good the first day and not so good today (Tuesday). I just wasn't hitting the ball well today."

"I was bothered by the flu both days," Borchardt remarked. "But I played pretty well."

Lloyd Moman won the second flight gross crown with a 161. He had an 81 Monday and an 80 Tuesday. Paul Creek took the second flight net title with a 140.

Jimmy Allison fired a 163 to win the third flight gross championship. Joe LaCrone took the third flight net crown with a 138.

J. L. Barnes won the fourth flight gross championship with a 178, and R. L. Faulk took the net crown with a 134.

A total of 48 golfers competed in the tournament.

Squires, Baggett win crown in Alto Lakes Member-Member tourney

Bill Squires and Jack Baggett won the men's first flight championship, and two different teams took top honors in the women's flight to highlight action in the Alto Lakes Member-Member Golf Tournament, which ended Wednesday.

Squires and Baggett shot a 174.5 to win the first flight championship by a half stroke over two other teams, Howard Hassell and Hal Cliff and Hayes Mitchell and Dwight Andrews, both of which had a 175.

The first round of the 54-hole tournament was a scramble, while the second and third rounds were best ball competition. In the scramble round, the handicaps of each team's golfers were added and divided by two. The resulting number was subtracted from their gross scores.

Squires and Baggett shot a 51.5 for the scramble round, carded a 59 in the second round and a 64 in the final round.

Hassell and Cliff shot a 55 for the first round, and had a 60 in both the second and third rounds. Mitchell and Andrews carded a 56 in the first round, a 59 in the second round and a 60 in the final round.

Taking fourth place in the first flight were Ronnie Flowers and Rip Ripley, who fired a 176. Mickey Rathbone and Howard Derrick finished with a 177 for fifth place.

George Cliff and Rick Cliff teamed to win the men's second flight with a 171.5 total. They had a 54.5 for the first round, a 52 for the second round and a 65 for the final round.

Jim Bayless and Ken Cunningham were second at 177.5; Bob Berry and Leroy Connell finished third at 179; and Delmer Berry and Don Shouse took fifth with a 180.

Maxine Mitchell and Joyce Vanlandingham took the women's low gross title with a 241. Cindy Carroll and Billie Gene Baggett won the low net title with a 161.

Carol Bayless and Anne Cunningham took second in the net competition with a 169. Ardith Patterson and Kathy Squires were third at 173, and the team of Jo Rash and Maria Sager tied with Pat Walter and Betty Wright for fourth, each team carding a 187.

Melba Draper and Karon Petty took second in the gross competition with a 251. Muriel Kile and Dorothy Burgess finished third with a 265, and Fran Russell and Lillian Silver took fourth at 270.

A total of 54 players competed in the tournament. There are no more tournaments scheduled for Alto Lakes this year.

Anyone who saw the Los Angeles Raiders dump the Washington Redskins 38-9 in last season's Super Bowl knows the Raiders are a potent club.

And Los Angeles is picking up this season where it left off last season. The Raiders are 3-0 and ranked first in my first 1984 National Football League (NFL) poll.

The Raiders have struggled on offense but their defense is better than ever. And Los Angeles still has the ability to come from behind and win. A good example is Sunday's 22-20 win over Kansas City.

The Miami Dolphins are ranked second. Miami is also 3-0, but struggled a bit against winless Buffalo Monday night.

However, the Dolphins still have one of the league's best quarterbacks in Dan Marino, and a consistent, mistake-free defense.

The San Francisco 49ers and Chicago Bears are tied for third. They're the only two undefeated National Conference teams.

The 49ers have one of the top offenses in the league with a balanced passing and running attack. However, the defense has been playing with injuries, and quarterback Joe Montana may not play next weekend because of an injury.

Chicago has been perhaps the biggest surprise of the young season. The Bears' defense is better than ever, and their offense is coming along, led by the great Walter Payton at running back.

It's tough to decide the fifth-place team, so I'll pick three teams in a tie: Dallas, New England and Seattle.

Dallas is in an unusual situation this season, in that very few people are predicting the Cowboys to go to the Super Bowl.

But the Cowboys could surprise a few people this season. It all depends on how quarterback Gary Hogeboom does, and whether Dallas can overcome some weaknesses on defense.

New England showed what kind of talent the Patriots have in coming from behind to beat Seattle Sunday.

The Seahawks have one solid season under their belts (they made the American Conference finals last season), and they're a young team that can only improve.

A number of teams deserve honorable mention listings.

They include Pittsburgh, San Diego, St. Louis, and the two New York (or should I say New Jersey?) teams, the Jets and the Giants.

The most disppointing team so far? Probably the Los Angeles Rams.

Los Angeles, currently 1-2 on the season, made the playoffs last season as a wild-card team, and figured to be even better this year. However, quarterback Vince Ferragamo had a poor start and is now out for at least a month with a broken hand.

The defending National Conference champion Washington Redskins are also 1-2, but they're showing signs of breaking their slump. Also the Redskins are healthier than the Rams, and should be tough the rest of the season.

Ruidoso runners to open season in Roswell meet

Looking for improvement over last season, the Ruidoso High School boys cross-country team will open the season Saturday when the Warriors compete in the Pecos Valley Invitational in Roswell.

The competition will begin at 10 a.m. The Ruidoso girls team will not compete at Roswell, as a couple of runners are injured.

Boys coach Ronny Maskew will have defending state AAA division 1,500-meter and 3,000-meter track champion Cisco Bob returning to lead the team.

Along with Bob, Curt McClellan, David Ordorica and Gabe Tam are other returnees from last year's team. Maskew will have a run-off today to decide which other runners will compete on the varsity team Saturday. The Warriors will also have some runners in the junior varsity division.

"We might have five or six runners competing in the varsity division if they're close," Maskew said. "Cisco is working hard, in fact, harder than I've ever seen him.

"He should do very well at state this season.

"Curt has looked good in practice, as have Ordorica and Tam."

Bob finished 11th in the state AAA division cross-country meet last November, recording a 16:18. He had a best of 16:11 in 1983.

Ordorica took 35th in the state meet. McClellan was 45th and Tam finished 51st.

Ruidoso lost to Silver City in the two-team District 3-AAA meet last fall, but Maskew is optimistic about the team's chances this season.

"Cisco should do very well as an individual and the team should do better than last year," Maskew said.

Warrior girls coach Sergio Castanon started with 15 girls out, but only has six left and two are hurt. So the Ruidoso girls probably will not run until the next invitational.

Members of the girls team are Rachel Kaydahzinne, Donna Peso, Sonja Urdiales, Berdine Smith, Valerie Ghahate and Lisa Dankirk.

Serve it

Sheila Espinosa of the Ruidoso High School volleyball team serves the ball during a recent match with Tularosa. Espinosa and her teammates are off this week, but will start District 3-AAA play next Tuesday when they travel to Hot Springs High School.

Carrizozo gridders to play tough Estancia Friday night

The undefeated Carrizozo High School varsity football team will have a tough test Friday night when the Grizzlies travel to Estancia for a 7:30 contest.

Carrizozo, 2-0 on the season, will meet an Estancia team that has one of the fastest backs in the AA division. Estancia is usually one of the better teams in that division.

But the Grizzlies are not without some weapons of their own, particularly standout running back Steve Stearns.

Stearns has gained 377 yards in Carrizozo's two games. He is the leading rusher in the state in that category.

He also has three touchdowns and one two-point conversion. Stearns scored three touchdowns in the season-opening 43-6 win over Hatch, and had the two-point conversion in last week's 20-0 win over Fort Sumner. He tallied 21 touchdowns last season.

Quarterback Dominic Vega and running back Kenneth Crenshaw are other excellent offensive threats for the Grizzlies.

Against Fort Sumner, Crenshaw gained 76 yards in 12 carries and Vega picked up 37 yards in three carries. James Guevara added 37 yards in two carries.

Vega has completed five of 17 passes for 117 yards in the two games.

Joe Candelaria is the Grizzlies' top receiver, having caught three passes for 56 yards.

Charles Zamora anchors the Grizzly defense. He had 22 tackles against Fort Sumner.

The Grizzlies are ranked high in both offensive and defensive scoring in the A division.

Carrizozo is tied with Reserve for second in offensive scoring, each team having scored 62 points for a 31-point-per-game average.

Defensively, the Grizzlies are ranked third, having allowed just six points in two contests.

County's top softball teams will play for championship Saturday and Sunday

The Lincoln County Men's Softball Championships will be Saturday and Sunday at Fort Stanton.

Four teams each from the Ruidoso Men's Slow-Pitch Softball League and the Fort Stanton Men's Slow-Pitch Softball League will compete in the tournament.

Representing the Ruidoso Men's Slow-Pitch Softball League will be Perteet Parks and Associates, Gateway Assembly of God Church, Ruidoso-Hondo Valley Hospital and the Pumas.

Teams from the Fort Stanton league will be the Fort Stanton Bombers, the Carrizozo Belcos, The Innredible and the Knights.

Gateway Assembly of God Church won the Ruidoso regular season crown and was fourth in the season-ending tournament. Perteet Parks won the league tournament and was second in regular-season action.

Ruidoso-Hondo Valley Hospital was third in the tournament and fourth in the regular-season race. The Pumas finished fifth in the league's regular season.

Carrizozo Belco won the Fort Stanton regular season crown, and the Bombers captured the league tournament championship.

The championship game will be played Sunday afternoon. A semi-final game will be played at 2 p.m. Sunday, with one or two championship games after that.

Braves play Grizzlies today

The Ruidoso Middle School B football team will play Carrizozo at 4 this afternoon on the Grizzlies' field.

Ruidoso's A team lost the season opener to Dexter by a 20-6 score last week. Against Carrizozo today, Brave head coach Terry Wharton plans to use mostly players who did not play much in last week's contest.

"We've got 27 players out now," he said. "Some of the kids weren't eligible to play last week because they came out too late.

"We're trying to give everyone playing experience. That will help in the long run. Sometimes players who were not stars in middle school play become stars in high school."

In the A game last week, the Braves played well on defense but had problems against the bigger and older Dexter team offensively. Dexter's team was made up mostly of ninth graders.

The A team will resume action Thursday, August 27, against visiting Hagerman.

Bowling league needs players

The Monday Night Ladies League at Drumm's Holiday Bowl needs more members.

The league bowls every Monday night at 7.

Anyone interested in joining the league can call the bowling lanes at 257-7647 or Linda Mallett at 257-4617.

Local drag racers qualify for Dallas division racing

A total of seven drivers from Ruidoso have qualified for the Southcentral Division drag racing championships at Green Valley Race City in Dallas, Texas, Friday through Sunday, October 5, 6 and 7.

The drivers are Roy Seay, Sheila Seay, Roy Capps, Bob Smith, Don Jones, Steve Mallett and Efren Noriga.

Drivers from several states will compete in the Green Valley championships. The total purse for the competition will be $60,000.

There are still six spots open on the list for the division championships. This Sunday's racing at Roswell Dragway will be the last chance for drivers to qualify.

There also will be competition in the high school division at Roswell.

Jesse Reynolds of Ruidoso is the leading point-scorer. There are several other high school drivers following him closely in the point scoring.

In high school team competition, Clovis leads with 61 points, Roswell has 58, Artesia has 39, Ruidoso has 31 and Goddard has 20.

Frosh, junior varsity to host foes

The Ruidoso High School junior varsity and freshman football teams will both host games this week.

The Warrior freshmen will open the season at 6 tonight with a game against visiting Roswell.

Ruidoso's junior varsity, which opened the season last Saturday with a 6-6 tie at Portales, will host tough Artesia at 6 Saturday night.

A tough defense was the key in the Warrior tie. Toby Rue scored the only Warrior touchdown on a 60-yard fumble return in the first half.

The Warrior defense kept Portales' offense in check the rest of the contest, except for one long second-half drive for a touchdown.

Ruidoso has 27 players out for the freshman team. The Warriors had their first freshman team last season, and the squad finished with a 1-4 record.

Some of the top players include quarterbacks Lance Willard and Bobby Lane, fullback-linebacker Jef Sherwood, tackle Todd Morris and tight end Sean Moore.

The freshman team will play seven games and the junior varsity squad will have nine games this season.

Children, parents and teachers in Capitan line up for potluck fare at the dinner Saturday. The Capitan Education Association sponsored the meal, which was postponed once and moved into the fair building because of the weather.

Officials praise Capitan schools

by SHARON MAKOKIAN
News Staff Writer

New Mexico Department of Education officials made many favorable comments about Capitan schools last week. Three officials from Santa Fe came to Capitan last Thursday to conduct a one-day management review for accreditation purposes.

Department of Education representatives review accreditation on a yearly basis and visit schools every third year. The team makes recommendations to school personnel about how they better can meet state standards and provide for continued licensing by the state.

Team members spent the morning observing the schools, meeting administrators and checking documents such as curriculum handbooks and teacher files. In the afternoon, they reported their findings.

Michael May reported he had seen many positive things things throughout the school. In Capitan High School, he said, "the kids seemed to be very serious about their education."

He noted their attentiveness in class and their attitude of wanting to learn. May also commented that for a school of its size, Capitan has an amazing number of activities, including sports, speech, a yearbook and a student council.

Ed Tangman reported all of the school's collected data seemed to be in order. He said accumulating statistics on the school is important because the state education department uses a data-based management approach.

Tangman cited some significant figures about dropout and testing rates. In the past two years, the percentage of student dropouts was cut in half. The dropout rate was 4.1 percent during the 1981-82 school year. Last year, the rate was 2.1 percent.

He also pointed out what he called fairly impressive bits and pieces of information concerning the number of seniors who passed the high school proficiency exam.

In 1983, 97.4 percent of the seniors passed the test. The average rate of passing in New Mexico was 89.2 percent. Last year, 100 percent of the seniors passed the exam.

Capitan's basic typing program for ninth and 10th graders, as a prerequisite for computer literacy classes, was commended also.

"You're one or two jumps ahead of most schools I've viewed in the last six to eight months," Tangman said.

Another official, Garfield Gutierrez, said Capitan's library had the first computerized check-out system he had seen.

"You're in the 20th century," he told the Capitan administrators.

Gutierrez said looked at total curriculum development and noted it was basically in good shape. He did suggest that the school make future and long-range plans in vocational education.

Other suggestions for improvement included enlarging the cafeteria. Students now eat in four shifts.

The team also said a more formal process for faculty and staff evaluation was needed. The district must submit a master plan by July 1, 1985, to conform with the state teacher performance evaluation guide. The plan must include basic criteria for evaluation.

The Santa Fe officials also noted Capitan schools need a publication for emergency health care procedures.

Volleyball team wins

The Capitan Tigerette varsity volleyball team won its match against Carrizozo on Tuesday in three straight games. The scores were 15-8, 15-10 and 15-2.

Coach Bill McVeigh felt that setters Bobbie Rogers and Tracey Herd did a tremendous job. Becky Huey did an excellent job hitting, spiking and serving, he said. Tiffany Huey played a good defensive game and Sheila House performed some good spiking. McVeigh cited Stephanie Stowe as a good all-around player.

Audrey Joiner, one of the team's top players, was injured in the game. Joiner pulled a muscle in her back and will be unable to play for about a week. McVeigh said she should be ready to play in a September 29 tournament.

"We did the best job we've done all year in passing the ball up for the offense ... we ran our plays well," said McVeigh. "This was the best job of serving we've done this year."

The junior high school team also played against Carrizozo's junior high. Capitan lost in two games, with scores of 15-4 and 15-5.

This Saturday, the varsity team will travel to Magdalena while the junior varsity team goes to Cloudcroft for a round-robin match.

Tigers to play at Hagerman

The Capitan Tigers football team will play an away game against Hagerman this week. The game is scheduled for Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Capitan head coach Gary Thompson noted that Hagerman played a tight game against Dexter last week, losing only in the last minute of the game by a score of 7-6. Thompson said Hagerman is a fast team with a good defensive line, good hitters and a good I-back.

Thompson admitted it will be a tough game, but felt that his team could do well. "Our offense improved last week," said Thompson. "We're hoping we can get the offense going sooner in the game."

Thompson said the Tigers are working on correcting mistakes, such as the plays that caused them penalties last week. The defense is also working on better team pursuit.

This week's team captains are seniors Rod Dean and Mark Romero. The captains were chosen on the basis of their good performance in last week's game.

Schools seek scoreboard

Capitan schools have embarked on a two-week project to raise money to replace the scoreboard in the school gymnasium.

All of the students (grades kindergarten through 12) will have gift catalogs to show friends, family and interested community members. Items purchased from the catalogs will help replace the broken scoreboard, which will cost $4,000.

"We want as much community support as possible," said high school principal Jay Dark. Dark said to contact any Capitan student to browse through the catalog and order from it.

Orders need to be turned in by October 1 and will be delivered three weeks later. Payment will be collected upon delivery.

4-H members earn honors

Many Lincoln County 4-H members brought home various prizes and ribbons from the State Fair in Albuquerque last week.

The Lincoln County 4-H won the beef herdsman award, a prize given to the 4-H chapter that has shown extensive cooperation with fair officials, kept the stalls and aisles clean, and shown devotion in grooming and caring for the animals.

The youngsters involved with winning this award, according to county 4-H agent Rick Richardson, were Sandra Copeland, Ann Russell, Warren Russell and Lynette McKibben, all from Corona.

Sandra Copeland also won many awards in various cattle categories. She won first, second and fourth place for her calves in the lightweight hereford class, and third place in the large hereford class. Her winning calf was sold for two dollars a pound to Aubrey Dunn, who donated it to the Portales Christian Children's Home.

Copeland also took first place in the heifer pair class and sixth and seventh places in the spring heifer class. Aaron Russell took fifth place in the lightweight hereford class.

In the lambs divisions, Alice Booky of Hondo won second place with her lightweight finewool cross. Warren Russell took sixth place in the heavy, medium weight Suffolks class.

Lincoln County equestrians also won their share of ribbons in the 4-H horse show at the fair. In the novice division, Kelly Witter of Capitan won first place in halter showmanship, English pleasure and English equestrian. Witter also took fourth place in Western pleasure and sixth in Western riding. Her overall performance won her the runner-up to the first place spot, which included a $75 prize.

In the junior division, Tonya Payton of Capitan won second place in barrels racing. Mike Curtis of Carrizozo won fourth place in Western pleasure futurity and sixth place in reining.

4-H horse leader Preston Stone felt that "our kids did a tremendous job" at the horse show. Stone added that after another year of training and practice, "when we go to Albuquerque next year, they'll really know that Lincoln County was there."

Community enjoys potluck

More than 60 people attended the community potluck supper on Saturday evening at the fair building in Capitan.

Rain had caused the Capitan Education Association (CEA) to postpone the supper from the original date in August.

Idy Eldridge, the president of CEA, was pleased with the turnout, although the first annual potluck last year attracted more people. Eldridge blamed the smaller crowd on the change in date and poor weather.

Parents, school district employees and children had a good time socializing over a myriad of homemade dishes. Eldridge hopes the potluck supper will continue as an annual event.

Hondo welcomes new administrators

by SHARON MAKOKIAN
News Staff Writer

"I've always wanted to live in the Hondo Valley since I first saw it 10 years ago," said George Perreault, new superintendent of Hondo Valley Schools. Perreault moved here in June from Quemado, in western New Mexico, where he was school principal.

Perreault spent much of the summer working on plans for the new school year. "Summer is not off-time for us," he quipped.

The superintendent noted that a lot of work had been done on the school grounds, including expanding tha parking lots, remodeling some buildings, installing a new roof on the storage building and putting finishing touches on the new gymnasium.

In his goal to make Hondo "the best small school in the state by 1986," Perreault has been engaged in extensive curriculum revision and program development.

"We have a pretty solid basic program," he said. One goal is to increase computer programs so that all the students know how to use computers by the time they are out of junior high.

Perreault said he stressed excellence and achievement throughout academics and activities. He said he wanted to create a more tightly structured curriculum.

"We can't offer the kids everything they want, but we can give them everything they need," he said.

To achieve this goal, Perreault believes in careful planning. To him, every moment that a child spends in school is valuable.

"In Japan, the children spend 240 days a year in school for eight hours a day," he said. "So every minute we spend in school is important."

GEORGE PERREAULT

JAMES CRINAN

Perreault also plans to structure more specific objectives and more formal means of evaluating how much students are actually learning.

"Without goals and objectives, it's hard to measure success," he said.

Perreault likes the advantage that a small school provides for individual attention. His goal is to set up an individual program for each student.

"No one slips through the cracks," he said. "They get the most that we can offer."

A native of Massachusetts, Perreault went to Boston College and the University of Lowell. He received his doctorate from the University of New Mexico. Before coming to New Mexico, Perreault was a school principal in Apalachicola, Florida.

Perreault and his wife, Jeanne, have two children. They are David, a sophomore, and Kirsten, a freshman.

At Hondo Valley Schools, there is usually a smiling face to greet the students in the principal's office. The face is that of the new principal, James Crinan.

Crinan came to Hondo this summer after having taught social studies and English in Clifton, Arizona. This is Crinan's first assignment as a principal. He also teaches high school history and government at Hondo.

Besides his career in teaching school, Crinan served more than 18 years in the U.S. Army. He was stationed in places all over the country, including Hawaii, Virginia, Alabama and Utah. He also had two tours of duty in Viet Nam.

"I have met men and women from every part of the country, with many different backgrounds," he said. He noted that his experiences had broadened his views considerably.

In the Army, Crinan spent most of the time as a criminal investigation officer with the military police and as an advisor to college ROTC units. He also taught history as part of the Army's adult education program. He enjoys teaching and being in an instructional position.

"I do not share the pessimism expressed about the quality of students in our schools today," said Crinan. "The students are not poorer than they were a generation ago, but we are facing bigger challenges than we did 25 years ago."

Crinan feels that it is the responsibility of the parents to provide for the education of their children, and that the schools and the parents should work together.

"We should make that partnership as strong as possible," he said.

Crinan has many goals for Hondo schools. "I share (superintendent) Dr. Perreault's views that Hondo has the potential of being one of the best schools in the state," he said.

Crinan hopes to strengthen the academic programs, improve and increase course offerings, and encourage students to achieve the highest standards of academic excellence.

Although Hondo does not have an attendance policy, Crinan said he was taking a hard look at attendance. "It is about time for the 'get tough' policies ... you cannot teach a child who's not in school."

Crinan enjoys being a teaching principal. "It's a superb idea for a small school," he said. "It keeps you in touch with classroom activities."

Crinan moved to this area in July. He currently lives in Capitan. A native Easterner, Crinan was born in New York and received his bachelor's degree from Siena College in Albany, New York. He earned his master's degree from Western New Mexico University.

Artists, executive and bank win Governor's Awards

The 11th Annual Governor's Awards, New Mexico's highest artistic honors, will be presented by Governor Toney Anaya on October 19 to three leading artists, to a man who has made a major contribution to the arts of the state and, for the first time, to a business organization in recognition of its outstanding and ongoing support of the arts.

This year the Governor's Awards for excellence and achievement in the arts will go to Paul Caponigro of Santa Fe for photography; to Peggy Pond Church of Santa Fe for literature; and to Angelina Delgado Martinez of Santa Fe for tincraft.

The Governor's Award for an outstanding contribution to the arts of New Mexico will be presented by Governor Anaya to William L. Weinrod of Albuquerque, executive administrator of the New Mexico Symphony Orchestra and a founder and president of New Mexico's first classical music radio station, KHFM.

The first Governor's Award for corporate support of the arts will go to The Bank of Santa Fe, in recognition of its outstanding and long-term support of the arts and artists of New Mexico.

The Governor's Awards ceremony will take place at 6 p.m. Friday, October 19, in the Rotunda of the Capitol. Mrs. Rena Rosequist, chairman of the New Mexico Arts Commission, will be mistress of ceremonies. Following presentation of the awards, a reception in the Governor's Gallery will honor the awardees and open a month-long exhibition of their works.

PAUL CAPONIGRO

Paul Caponigro is internationally recognized as one of the foremost landscape photographers of this century. Last fall a 30-year retrospective exhibition of his work, "The Wise Silence," opened at the International Museum of Photography at George Eastman House, Rochester, New York, and is traveling to leading museums in the U.S. and Canada. In addition, the U.S. Information Service has this same exhibition, and will present it throughout Europe and Asia, starting later this year.

During these three decades, Caponigro's camera has focused on dark New England woodlands; on Stonehenge and other dolmens, megaliths, and Celtic crosses of Britain and Ireland; on the desert and mountain landscapes of New Mexico; and on the sacred places of Japan.

His photographs have a mystical quality; he seeks to go beyond the obvious, looking at his subjects in a new way, revealing their underlying and essential identity. For Caponigro, as for the 20th century masters Steiglitz and Weston, photographs have always sprung from interaction with the object photographed. The artistic and philosophical relationship of man and the natural or inanimate world is of key importance to his work; his photographs convey many layers of meaning, and a sense of timelessness.

Born and educated in Boston, Paul Caponigro began early to devote himself to his two related major interests—photography and music. He studied piano for years, privately and as a student at the College of Fine Arts, Boston University. While still in high school he worked as an apprentice to a commercial photographer for a time; later, stationed at the Presidio in San Francisco during his Army stint, he requested duty in the post photographic lab.

There he met Benjamin Chin, a former student of Ansel Adams and Minor White, who gave him his first contact with the thinking of these masters and taught him Adams' famed Zone System. A few years later, Caponigro himself studied with Minor White, refining his photographic talents and responding to White's challenge to pursue his own unique vision. He was White's teaching assistant in workshops in the West, and has taught photography at numerous colleges and workshops around the country over the years. He also has been a valued mentor to many young photographers, including those of the Southwest and in Santa Fe.

This year the Friends of Photography at Carmel, California, selected him for its peer award, choosing him by ballot as the outstanding photographer of the year.

His works are in the permanent collections of the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Museum of Modern Art, New York; the International Museum of Photography at George Eastman House; the Art Institute of Chicago; the Victoria and Albert Museum, London; Bibliotheque Nationale, Paris; and the Museum of New Mexico.

PEGGY POND CHURCH

Last December, shortly after her 80th birthday, Peggy Pond Church gave a reading of her old and newest poems at St. John's College; this year she will publish her eighth volume of poetry, "Birds of Daybreak." In her eighties, Peggy Pond Church is still a working poet whose work sustains its strength.

Born in 1903 in the Territory of New Mexico at a location now known as Valmora, she grew up exploring the mesas and canyons on horseback. She attributes much of her poetic inspiration to her lifelong love for the landscape of New Mexico. Her writings spring from an effort to put into words her strong feeling about the natural world around her.

When she was 10 her father, Ashley Pond, with four partners bought the 32,000-acre Ramon Vigil Grant on the Pajarito Plateau, planning to establish a recreation club. The club never materialized, but in 1916, on Los Alamos Mesa, he founded the Los Alamos Ranch School for boys. After seeing the school off to a successful start, he left in 1918 to take part in World War I with the American Red Cross, later returning to live in Santa Fe until his death in 1933.

Young Peggy Pond was exposed early to poetry by her parents, who used to recite Kipling and poems from "A Child's Garden of Verses." She wrote her first poem when she was 11, and her first published poem was in the old St. Nicholas magazine. When she was in high school, she entered an Atlantic Monthly students' competition and her short story won the $50 second prize, which she used to buy a concho belt that she wore for years. It is now in the collection of the School of American Research.

In her teens she attended private schools on the East and West coasts and then spent two years at Smith College, returning in 1924 to marry Fermor Spencer Church, who was on the faculty of the Ranch School and acted as its headmaster in its closing year.

As a young housewife, living at the Ranch School, she still found time to write poetry. Her first book of poems, "Foretaste," was published in 1933 by the Santa Fe Writers' Editions, a cooperative publishing venture initiated by Alice Corbin and Haniel Long to print the works of lesser-known Western poets. In 1936 her second book, "Familiar Journey," was also published by Writers' Editions.

In 1942 the Churches had to leave the Pajarito Plateau when the government commandeered the area for the top-secret project that ushered in the atomic age. They lived at Ranchos de Taos and in Berkeley, California, before settling permanently in Santa Fe in 1960.

Although she has worked primarily as a poet, her best-known book is a prose biographical memoir, "The House at Otowi Bridge," the story of Edith Warner, who ran a small tearoom by the Rio Grande three miles from San Ildefonso Pueblo. From 1928 until 1941 Miss Warner was employed to look after mail and freight unloaded at the boxcar station known as Otowi on the Denver & Rio Grande narrow-gauge railroad.

After the Manhattan Project took over Los Alamos, she added an adobe diningroom and served dinners to the scientists working on the secret project. After her death Mrs. Church was asked by the family to write a book based on her journals and letters.

Describing this, she says, "It was Edith who wanted to write. Her spirit pushed the book into being. And it was my love of the Plateau that persuaded me to try to write it." "The House at Otowi Bridge" was edited by Roland Dickey of the University of New Mexico Press, which published it in 1960. It has been hailed as a Southwestern classic, and it is on the optional reading lists in New Mexico high schools and colleges.

ANGELINA DELGADO MARTINEZ

Hanging in the lobby of the E. E. Fogelson Visitors Center at Pecos National Monument are five large six-light tin chandeliers, created especially for the Center by New Mexico's leading tinsmith, Angelina Delgado Martinez, who carries on a family tradition of three generations.

When she was just 12, a student at Loretto Academy, Angelina began studying tinsmithing with her grandfather, Francisco Delgado, who had been State Land Commissioner in the Woodrow Wilson years, and with her father, Idelberto (Eddie) Delgado. Her grandfather, a perfectionist in his craft, admonished her to "go slowly, learn well," and Angelina, fascinated by tinwork, practiced long and hard in his studio at the corner of Canyon Road and Delgado Street.

She learned to cut patterns in tin, to bend, engrave, crimp and make fine, smooth, soldered metal seams. By the time she graduated from Loretto Academy she was already working on customers' orders. For a brief interval in the 1940s she went to Washington, D.C., and studied at the Corcoran Art School, but returned to Santa Fe when her father needed her help.

Over the years of her first marriage, she continued working in tin as a hobby, as well as becoming expert in colcha embroidery. In 1960, a widow with four small children to support, she taught first grade for two years, and was for six years school secretary at the old Guadalupe School. Later she was the first employee at the Senior Center, and became its assistant director. It was only in the 1970, when she remarried, that she was able to go into tinsmithing full time.

Her husband, Efren, himself a santero, encouraged her to develop her art, and she began producing pieces that won awards at fairs and were shown in museums. Her work, which had attracted just local attention, began to receive regional and even national notice.

She has worked in the Artists-in-Residence program of the New Mexico Arts Division, giving lecture-demonstrations at Menaul School, Albuquerque; in the Gadsden School at Anthony; and in Santa Fe at the School for the Deaf and the Nava, Gonzales, and Agua Fria elementary schools. In many of these sessions she created a candleholder while describing her craft to the students, since doing this requires using every basic tool and tinsmithing motion.

In her own studio today, she still uses her grandfather's tools—the scorer, crimper, and bending brake—and follows in the old tinsmithing traditions, doing all her work without machinery. Many people are amazed that all her works are created with just a few hand tools, in a small workshop.

Santa Fe and Albuquerque residents win awards

Angelina Martinez has conserved the fine patterns of her ancestors, but she has also developed designs of her own, creating pieces that bring the feeling of traditional tincraft into today's homes by combining this medium with the furniture and fixtures of modern living.

Traditional tinsmithing actually goes back to the Moors' conquest of Spain, when their artists embellished the captured castles and churches with intricately wrought silver. Later, the Spaniards conquering Mexico decorated their churches with silver, but the friars coming to colonial New Mexico had to settle for a less expensive, more available metal—tin, "the poor man's silver."

The popular art of tinsmithing did not develop in New Mexico until after 1846 when the United States Army brought in lard, lamp oil, and other supplies in tin containers. Today's tinsmiths no longer use discarded cans in their craft; Angelina Martinez usually works with an eight-pound lead-coated roofing terne, treated to prevent rust, from Wheeling, West Virginia. For Christmas ornaments she uses a light, shiny, uncoated tin from old Mexico.

In 1979, she was chosen to take part in the "Tribute to the Southwest" show at L. S. Ayres Company, Indianapolis, and demonstrated her craft for a week there; in 1980 she was invited to give demonstrations at Lord & Taylor's Fifth Avenue store in their "Focus America: Santa Fe" promotion. She made 17 large mirrors for this event.

This September she demonstrated her craft at Pecos National Monument for the fifth consecutive year. Her works are also in the collections of the Albuquerque Museum and the Museum of International Folk Art, Santa Fe.

WILLIAM L. WEINROD

ANGELINA MARTINEZ

WILLIAM L. WEINROD

In the 34 years he has been a New Mexican, William L. Weinrod has worked to provide a greater public access to classical music in New Mexico. He has been involved in introducing thousands of children and adults to live classical concerts, and in supervising the broadcasting of fine arts programming. Under his guidance, several major musical organizations have reached their current high levels of operation and financial stability. As an arts advocate, he has worked to obtain greater recognition and funding for New Mexico artists in all disciplines.

William Weinrod is executive administrator of the New Mexico Symphony Orchestra (NMSO), directing a musical organization whose statewide program has grown nearly tenfold in the decade of his management, and he is the president and general manager of KHFM Classical Music Radio Station.

In past years he has been president of the Opera Association of New Mexico (Santa Fe Opera), treasurer and manager of the June Music Festival, executive director of the Friends of UNM Libraries, and has served on the boards of the Albuquerque Opera Guild and the Friends of Music, and on the advisory committees for the Albuquerque Opera Theatre, the Maxwell Museum Association, the Albuquerque Bi-Centennial Commission and the Albuquerque Goals Committee. In addition, he gives his time generously to assist dance and theater companies, especially new, less established groups, in an unofficial advisory capacity.

The growth of the New Mexico Symphony Orchestra in the 10 years since he became its executive administrator has been phenomenal. Between 1974 and 1984, the budget has increased nearly tenfold, going from about $170,000 to over $1,500,000. Two years after he assumed leadership, the then Albuquerque Symphony Orchestra became, by an Executive Order signed by Governor Jerry Apodaca, the New Mexico Symphony Orchestra, reflecting the statewide impact of its programs, particularly through the greatly expanded outreach/touring which he implemented.

Weinrod is an effective arts advocate at both city and state levels. Through his efforts, Albuquerque has become a leader in city support of the performing arts, and he has played an important role also in securing additional state funding of arts programs. Following an active camaign to convince the city of its role in the arts, the City of Albuquerque in 1975 began its custom of making appropriations to the NMSO for free public concerts.

Weinrod has been the catalyst in creating a statewide arts activity without parallel. Under his leadership, the symphony organization has become professionalized; its activity and artistic quality have grown markedly, and its musicians have benefitted economically as well as artistically. Few orchestras anywhere equal the diversity of services to youth and to varied audiences offered by the NMSO, especially in the area of touring. The NMSO has performed in nearly 40 communities in New Mexico since Weinrod's tenure began.

Station KHFM went on the air in 1954 as a fine arts radio station broadcasting primarily classical music. It was started by a group of teachers, engineers and others, led by John Hopperton, who were concerned by the lack of classical music readily available. In those days a few people like Dr. Kurt Frederick were struggling to develop the live concert scene and adequate music education programs in the schools. The people at KHFM believed that it would be valuable to the community to have a classical music radio station, and FM had the best sound quality.

Weinrod recalls that "we hoped to provide a service to the public and to the arts community, and hoped that we would break even financially in the process. That is essentially what happened; we've never made a profit."

Now, after 30 years, KHFM is one of the oldest independent, commercial FM concert music stations in the United States that has broadcast classical music continuously since its inception. KHFM, with its antenna on Sandia Peak, is also the highest classical FM station in the world; its primary broadcast range is about 80 miles in all directions, but its programs reach Farmington, Ruidoso, Las Vegas, Gallup and other areas via cable television FM service.

THE BANK OF SANTA FE

The Bank of Santa Fe is an outstanding example of corporate support of the arts. Its varied, imaginative programs have promoted and increased local interest and involvement in the arts, and have materially assisted artists in the Santa Fe area.

When Dale and Sylvia Ball purchased The Bank of Santa Fe in 1981, they initiated a program of support for the arts which in three years has funded major arts programs and nonprofit arts organizations for a total of more than $100,000.

These programs and donations reflect the Balls' belief that "the arts have an important role to play in society. In addition, the arts are an important part of the economic health of Santa Fe. As a bank committed to the community it serves, The Bank of Santa Fe has an obligation to give creative support to those organizations that enhance the lives and well-being of us all."

One of the bank's most popular summer programs is storyteller Joe Hayes presenting tales from the three cultures for "children of all ages" in front of a tipi on the grounds of Wheelwright Museum of the American Indian. Audiences this July averaged more than 200 per session, and the annual event has received national publicity.

The June Charity Bazaar and Concha Belt Ball is another annual event.

The bank gallery provides free exhibition space to individual artists, writers, and photographers in an ongoing program emphasizing Northern New Mexico artists. An anonymous jury reviews artists' applications for gallery space. The bank provides, at its expense, receptions, gallery brochures, announcements in local periodicals, insurance and security. All proceeds from any sales made during an exhibition period go directly to the artist.

The Bank of Santa Fe has presented or sponsored such events as: the "Concert in the Cathedral," presented by the Orchestra of Santa Fe Solisti in St. Francis Cathedral; the Indian Market Award, a special scholardhip for the outstanding Native American artist under 18 years of age; the Chamber Music Festival Children's Art Contest, offering prizes for children's artwork with the theme of the Chamber Music Festival, and "Plaza Live," free summer entertainment on the Santa Fe Plaza each Tuesday evening.

Non-profit arts organizations, such as the Armory for the Arts, Santa Fe Children's Project, the Chorus of Santa Fe, santuario Guadalupe, the Museum of New Mexico, and Santa Fe Community Theatre have received donations ranging from $50 to $2,500 from the bank.

The bank's program was recognized by the Santa Fe Chamber of Commerce with its 1983 Business of the Year Award specifically designated for Business in the Arts. The Bank of Santa Fe's significant interest in and generosity to the arts already has stimulated a competitive spirit of giving among other area businesses, to the benefit of numerous arts organizations.

The Silver Lining

by Daniel Agnew Storm

B.J. Watkins

The services for B.J. Watkins last Monday at the First Christian Church and Forest Lawn Cemetery were a tribute to a very beloved man. You could feel his presence among the friends and loved ones, and the occasion was less of sorrow than of joy.

Services were under the direction of the Reverend Ken Cole with the help of the Reverend Max Jones, who came from Fort Worth to deliver the eulogy.

Two favorite hymns, "How Great Thou Art" and "Amazing Grace," were sung by Texie Cole accompanied at the piano by Ruth Maguire, with the congregation joining in the singing.

At the graveside, prayers were offered by the Reverend Mr. Cole and the Reverend Mr. Jones. And a very fitting touch was added by Charlie Ovedo on the violin and Craig Whipple with the guitar. The strains of "Over the Waves" and "Faded Love" echoed through the pine-shadowed cemetery, bright with the wildflowers blooming in full color on a perfect late summer day.

The Reverend Mr. Jones began with words from the one hundred and sixteenth Psalm:

"Precious in the sight of the Lord
Is the death of his saints.
I will pay my vows now in the sight
Of all his people."

Naming B.J. the "Big Man from Little Creek," the Reverend Mr. Jones said he had a great love of life and for his fellow man, and all of God's creatures—and that his great kindness of heart brought a blessing forever into the lives of all who knew him; that in his quest for a good life he gave life to others.

At the graveside, the Reverend Mr. Cole gave thanks to the Lord for the blessing of the life of B.J.

The Reverend Mr. Jones based his graveside prayer on the fifty-second chapter of the Book of Isaiah: "How beautiful upon the mountain are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings.

A visit with B.J.'s son,. Bobbie, whom I have known since he was a small boy, revealed the abiding admiration and love for his father of a devoted and worthy son.

Bobbie said, "My father loved life and his fellow man more than any man I have known; and he was always close to God."

One thing that brought pleasure and comfort to B.J. the last several years was his pride in his two grandsons.

One, Bram J. Watkins, is attending the University of the Americas at Puebla, Mexico, where he is learning the history, culture and language of our next-door-neighbor country to the South.

The other, Ron Merritt, is manager of two large ranches, the Vesco Ranch and his own ranch, the Merritt Ranch, both up between Corona and Vaughn.

One story told of B.J. by his son Bobbie is of the time when, at the age of 14, he drove a herd of 40 unbroken horses from near the Texas border in the Panhandle to here in Capitan. By the time the herd arrived in Capitan, they were all broken to ride.

B.J. would take the "back roads", passing through ranches, cow camps and sheep camps. Here he would spend a few days with the ranchers, learning new ways of camp cooking from the Hispanic herders, listening to their stories, working at gentling his horses, and receiving help in finding his way along.

This episode, like something out of Zane Grey or from a cowboy ballad like "Little Joe the Wrangler," except with a happy ending, draws a picture of B.J.—an adventurous lad to whom nothing is impossible; a man of faith, one at home with "all sorts and conditions of men."

It was great to see the Reverend Max Jones and his father, Harold. The apple tree planting days with the late and beloved Elzy Perry were brought back to mind. Max and Harold helped plant the little orchard that used to be on the slope down from the house, with trees given me by Elzy.

We wish to thank all those who showed such a fine spirit in comforting the loved ones of B.J. and in being witnesses to the fond legacy left by our beloved friend.

We rejoice that the "Big Man from Little Creek" has gone on to his reward with Our Lord in Heaven.

Rick Garrett making progress

A local bricklayer who was partially paralyzed in a fall May 10 is expected to be able to walk again within a year to two years, his wife said Monday.

Rick Garrett of Ruidoso Downs was paralyzed below mid-chest when he broke his sixth vertebra after a scaffold he was working on at the new Ruidoso High School collapsed.

At the time, doctors had given Garrett only a five percent chance of walking again, which they later updated to a 30 percent chance.

His wife, Sarah, said he was admitted to the New Mexico Rehabilitation Center in Roswell May 28, where he began physical therapy.

Since then, he has been trained to walk on parallel bars with his upper body, and he has experienced some movement in the toes of his left foot.

The "halo brace" that has been with Garrett from the start was removed September 4, said Sarah. The brace resembles football padding with bars that extend above the head and form a ring to which the head is connected.

Sarah also said that doctors now expect her husband to return to work within the next three years.

"Of course, we're shooting for a lot sooner than that," she said. With wrist crutches and leg braces, he should be able to move about in the near future.

"The first night," Sarah said, "we didn't know if he was going to live. The first week the doctors said he would be paralyzed from the neck down. But with a lot of help and prayers and Rick's fighting spirit, we've come a long way."

She said the family now has great hopes of Garrett's return to what had been a normal home life.

"The good Lord's taking care of us," she said.

El Paso man injured in crash

An early-morning accident Monday along U.S. Highway 70 near Apache Summit on the Mescalero Apache Reservation resulted in an El Paso, Texas, man being taken to the Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital, according to a Bureau of Indian Affairs Law Enforcement report.

John Thomas Reynolds was treated at Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital for severe facial lacerations he received in the crash. He was transported to Thomason General Hospital in El Paso in stable condition, according to hospital sources.

The accident occurred at 6:55 a.m. when the Reynolds vehicle was traveling eastbound, passed another vehicle, then returned to the eastbound lane, the report said. Reynold's vehicle then left the south side of the roadway, narrowly missed a concrete structure and crashed into an earth embankment.

According to witnesses, the vehicle was bent into a U-shape and extensively damaged. Law Enforcement officials said the cause of the accident was unknown.

Opinion

Editorial

Something else is in the air these autumn days, besides turning leaves and cooler nights. That something is emanating from the football practice field at the new Ruidoso High School, and it is called pride.

We hope that pride manifests itself in a large, vocal turnout for Friday's game against Tularosa.

The talk of the town, of course, is the 2-0 record the Warriors take into the game. Notching two come-from-behind victories on the road certainly was no small accomplishment.

But there is more to the resurgent Warrior pride than the fact the team has won a couple of football games. It is reflected in the shining newness of the high school buildings.

It is reflected in the bearing and grooming of the football players. The Warriors are winning admirers for their sharp appearance—gray dress slacks and team shirts on game days, for example—as well as for their play.

"They're a fine group of young men," said head coach Cooper Henderson, "and I think the community can be real proud of them."

Crowd support is especially important in a rivalry game, and the visitors are sure to bring many rooters. Henderson noted two things that can enhance the home team's psychological edge: fans arriving early so the team is aware they are there during warmups, and as many people as possible dressed in the blue and gold of the Warriors.

See you there Friday night.—TP

Reporter's Round

by C.E. Reutter

Dick LeMense will never read this column, because I'm writing it as a memorial to him.

He was a route driver here, and worked on the press with Rod. Dick did that until last Thursday. Then he had two heart attacks.

I just came back from his funeral. I wore my blue suit, the one made of winter-weight wool that has hung in my closet since I moved to warm Ruidoso.

When I still lived back East, I wore it to family funerals. Dick never saw me in it, because I hate formal clothes, but I figured he deserved something special.

Some people thought he was special, too. His family surely did, and so did the staff of The Ruidoso News.

He wasn't an especially talkative man, and didn't have a loud sense of humor. He had a quiet sense of humor that people enjoyed. He wasn't Hollywood handsome, but he was hardly ugly.

Dick was simply a nice guy who worked hard. You could always count on him for help or a quip when things got a little hairy.

He had been a career man in the Army. Dick retired from that about 10 years ago, but he was still a young man. He was not quite 54.

Of course, youth depends on how you look at it. He was a man who might have been old enough to be my father. Dick was a father, of four children.

Since we came from different generations, we weren't close friends. We never partied together. I never went to his house out on the mesa. He never came to my house by the golf course.

We were what you might call friendlies.

Most people have relationships like that. They complain and joke with the people they work with every day, but never see them after five o'clock. They may talk regularly on the telephone and not even recognize each other on the street.

When they move to a new town or a new job, they lose touch with their friendlies. I've lost touch with a lot of friendlies in a lot of places.

For instance, I had a friendly when I worked in Iowa. She was a secretary at the local television station.

We called each other often, because I was the TV editor. We would chat if I wasn't facing a deadline or she didn't have customers in the office.

One day she told me about a children's play she was helping to stage. She said it was good and I should be sure to bring my kids to see it.

I laughed, and told her my mother would probably not like it if I had kids. That surprised her. Most mothers love grandkids. She asked why Mom would object. I said I wasn't married. That surprised her, too. Then she laughed.

See what I mean? We were just friendlies, not friends. She didn't know me well enough to know I was single.

Dick and I were friendlies, or maybe a little more. We didn't work long in the same place, but we laughed and talked when we saw each other. We groused about our jobs or teased each other.

One of the things he needled me about was my Coke habit. I drink a lot of the stuff. I get my caffeine from tea and Coke, because I don't drink coffee.

The Ruidoso News has a pop machine in the south half of the building, in the same big room that contains our press. Whenever I get a pop, anyone working on the near side of the press can usually spot me.

Fairly often, when I would go to the pop machine, Dick would be working there. He kept a bottle count on me.

He did that because I once told him I limit myself to two Cokes a day. You've heard about one-pack-a-day smokers, right? I'm a two-bottles-a-day person.

I figure if I swill any more than that, the caffeine, refined sugar, acid and other wonderful ingredients will ruin my stomach.

What do you expect from gun-cleaning fluid? That's what a college guy I knew called it. If he had a gun part that needed cleaning, he left it in a Coke bath over night, and the pop ate away the dirt.

That's why I count my Cokes, and why Dick used to count them for me. Funny thing, though, he always seemed to count more than I did.

I suppose it was something like being at a party, and saying you'd only had three drinks, and having someone tell you six, but who's counting.

I'll miss having Dick counting for me, and smiling his amused smile as he laughed at me.

A few hours before he left work for the last time, he made a joking comment about an Aqua Velva man, so I'll think of him when that is mentioned.

We all miss him at The Ruidoso News, and have favorite stories about him, whether we were friends with him or friendly with him.

I'm going to finish this column, and then go have a drink in honor of Dick LeMense. It'll be a Coke, of course, my second Coke today.

Letters to the editor

DEAR EDITOR:

Welcome, Sharon Makokian to Capitan and many, many thanks to the Editor of the Ruidoso News for recognizing us as your "First Bureau" of the Ruidoso News. We shall endeavor to not disappoint you for your trust and confidence placed in us.

We moved from Ruidoso to Capitan some three years ago. After many warnings that Capitan citizens were very selfish, unfriendly and did not appreciate "Newcomers," I find it about like the little town I came from (population about 2500) with a few sore heads and a multitude of good, friendly, hospitable, Western type citizens. I figure about one-half of the folks where I come from liked me okay (that being some 1250), so I had no fears of not winning over that many (1250) to our friendly household in Capitan. Bet your computer couldn't come up with that answer!!

Capitan is progressing rapidly with an awakening Village Council, a newly appointed Planning and Zoning Committee and a school district second to none. We voted last week to accept an increased gross receipt tax: considering a bond issue to improve out water system, streets, etc ..., to show that we are willing to sacrifice when we ask for assistance for State and Federal grants. A young Chamber of Commerce who really put Capitan on the map with it's "Smokey Bear" Parade Day, and Birthday Commemorative Day for Smokey Bear.

Yes, Capitan will go forward as a place for our children, grandchildren and future generations to live, instead of seeking the better things offered elsewhere. Again, thanking you and Sharon for confidence you have expressed to our Village of Capitan's future.

Sincerely,
VERNON AND ANN GOODWIN

DEAR EDITOR:

A group of Ruidoso merchants and citizens met Monday, September 17 at the Cochera Restaurant to discuss long range suggestions to improve the business, cultural, and economics outlook for Ruidoso. The stated purpose of the meeting, according to Pat Breedlove and Tom Kent, the group's spokesmen, was to provide an opportunity for concerned citizens and merchants of Ruidoso Valley to air their views and ideas and to make positive suggestions for a long range cooperative effort by the business and residential community.

According to Breedlove, "Some 40 positive suggestions were made by our group." The next scheduled meeting was set for September 24, at 3:00 p.m. to be held at the Whispering Pines Restaurant. Interested persons are invited to attend.

Floodwaters

We have a long way to go to control floodwaters in our area. The best solution would be an underground drainage system. But few cities can afford this. Roswell, for instance, has had such a system on the drawing boards for years. But, federal dollars have to be involved and they are hard to come by. Some partial solutions will be better than none. The city is working on these, and rightly so. Saturday found new, heavy rains in our area. Hard decisions have to be made to deal with runoff when rains are excessive.

—Alamogordo Daily News

ALL WET

And in Dona Ana County, heavy rains blocked U.S. 70 between Alamogordo and Las Cruces late Thursday and early Friday, and heavy flooding was reported in the Organ area of eastern Dona Ana County.

Ramming said he was told by local officials that an Organ resident stepped out of his house into rushing water flowing off a county road and was swept about a block downstream by the force of the water. He was not hurt, but he was mad, Ramming said.

Inside the Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE—It's an age-old question in theology, now warmed up for Americans in an election year.

It asks, "How far can toleration go?"

You won't find that kind of tough query being faced in any words from President Reagan. His position has been correctly described by John O'Connor, new Roman Catholic archbishop of New York, as one of "religiosity," which is as far from religion as sentimentality is from sentiment. Our President, as Archbishop O'Connor goes on to say, is merely "using religion aggressively, as a tool."

The politician who has cut closest to the bone on this issue in the pervervid air of 1984 is a man who, unlike the President, is serious about his religion, Mario Cuomo. In a public exchange of words with his own Archbishop, he has in effect asked the two key questions: What is the proper role of the church in the political arena? And what are the obligations of a believer in a tolerant, religiously pluralist society?

They are valid questions, and tough ones—though the second is by far the tougher.

Most shock at the picture of the church meddling in politics is as phony as a three-dollar bill.

The right bleats when bishops issue a pastoral letter on nuclear weapons but has no trouble pushing platform planks which condemn homosexuality. The left sneers when ecclesiastics condemn abortion but cheers when Jesse Jackson and other black ministers use their pulpit to urge parishioners to defeat Ronald Reagan.

A lot would seem to depend on whose ox religion is goring.

An even-handed approach to the matter would find us saying that all citizens have a right to espouse political positions based on their personal principles. In some people and in some instances, those principles will be derived from religion; in other people and in other instances, not so. To the extent that the former of those positions applies, you will have religion, and the church, in politics.

That is totally acceptable under the First Amendment, and is a long way from and a lot better than having ministers of religion in their official capacity endorsing candidates.

But saying that only edges us much closer to the tougher question, which applies when one of those believers in principles derived from religion gets into office. Does such personal belief, in that instance, demand to override the equally sincere belief of others and be enacted into law?

To put the question in concrete and current terms, may a Catholic, for instance, say, "I accept the teaching of my church on abortion, but I refuse to use the law to impose my belief on others?"

The answer is brief—"yes"—but it isn't simple.

To say, as Geraldine Ferraro does, that she is "personally opposed" to abortion but won't tell other people what to do about one is probably not enough. Some ask: Would it be equally okay to say, "I refuse to own slaves, but I won't say others shouldn't"? Since belief is universal, those who truly believe that a practice is categorically wrong must logically, at the very minimum, try to persuade others voluntarily to renounce it.

But there is no obligation on them to coerce others, and that is where the freedom lies.

Laws, by their very nature, are coercive; and thus no one may be held to an obligation to use them in an attempt to bring private beliefs into public reality. No conscientious person is required to use the instruments of state to spread his or her beliefs or practices to others.

Some would go beyond that point. Jesuit theologian John Courtney Murray, a political conservative, argued that for an American Catholic it is not only a civic obligation but a religious duty to separate church and state and respect religious pluralism. He did that because he believed that "the 'good' here is the public peace."

We might wish, as those in both parties this year turn the air blue with the very "religiosity" to which Archbishop O'Connor objects, that Father Murray's respect for the public peace would prevail.

The only thing more dangerous than true religion is sham in religion's name.

Amen.

Pastor Wade Graber officiated at the double-ring ceremony in the afternoon.

The altar was banked with a fresh flower arrangement of gladiolas, daisy mums, button mums, baby's breath, fern fronds and palm branches. Two Boston ferns adorned the flower pedestals. Pews were deocrated with rose satin bows.

Graber sang "The Lord's Prayer," "Together" and "The Wedding Song," with Sharon Fletcher accompanying him as organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white tea-length gown of white chiffon and matching white lace hat with attached bridal veil.

She carried a colonial bouquet of silk rose-colored and wine-colored roses.

The bride's attendants, Kathryn Pyell and Karri Howard, wore floor-length, wine-colored gowns. Each carried a rose-colored rose.

The bridegroom was attired in a traditionally styled black tuxedo. Groomsmen were Alan Morel and James Howard. Each wore a silver-gray tuxedo.

High school volleyball gaining in popularity, skill

High school volleyball is increasing in popularity all over the United States, and it's no different in Lincoln County.

Interest in volleyball has increased since the United States won the men's gold medal and the women's silver medal at the recent Olympics.

Now bigger crowds are attending high school volleyball matches, and teams are playing best three-of-five set matches instead of the former best two-of-three set match competition.

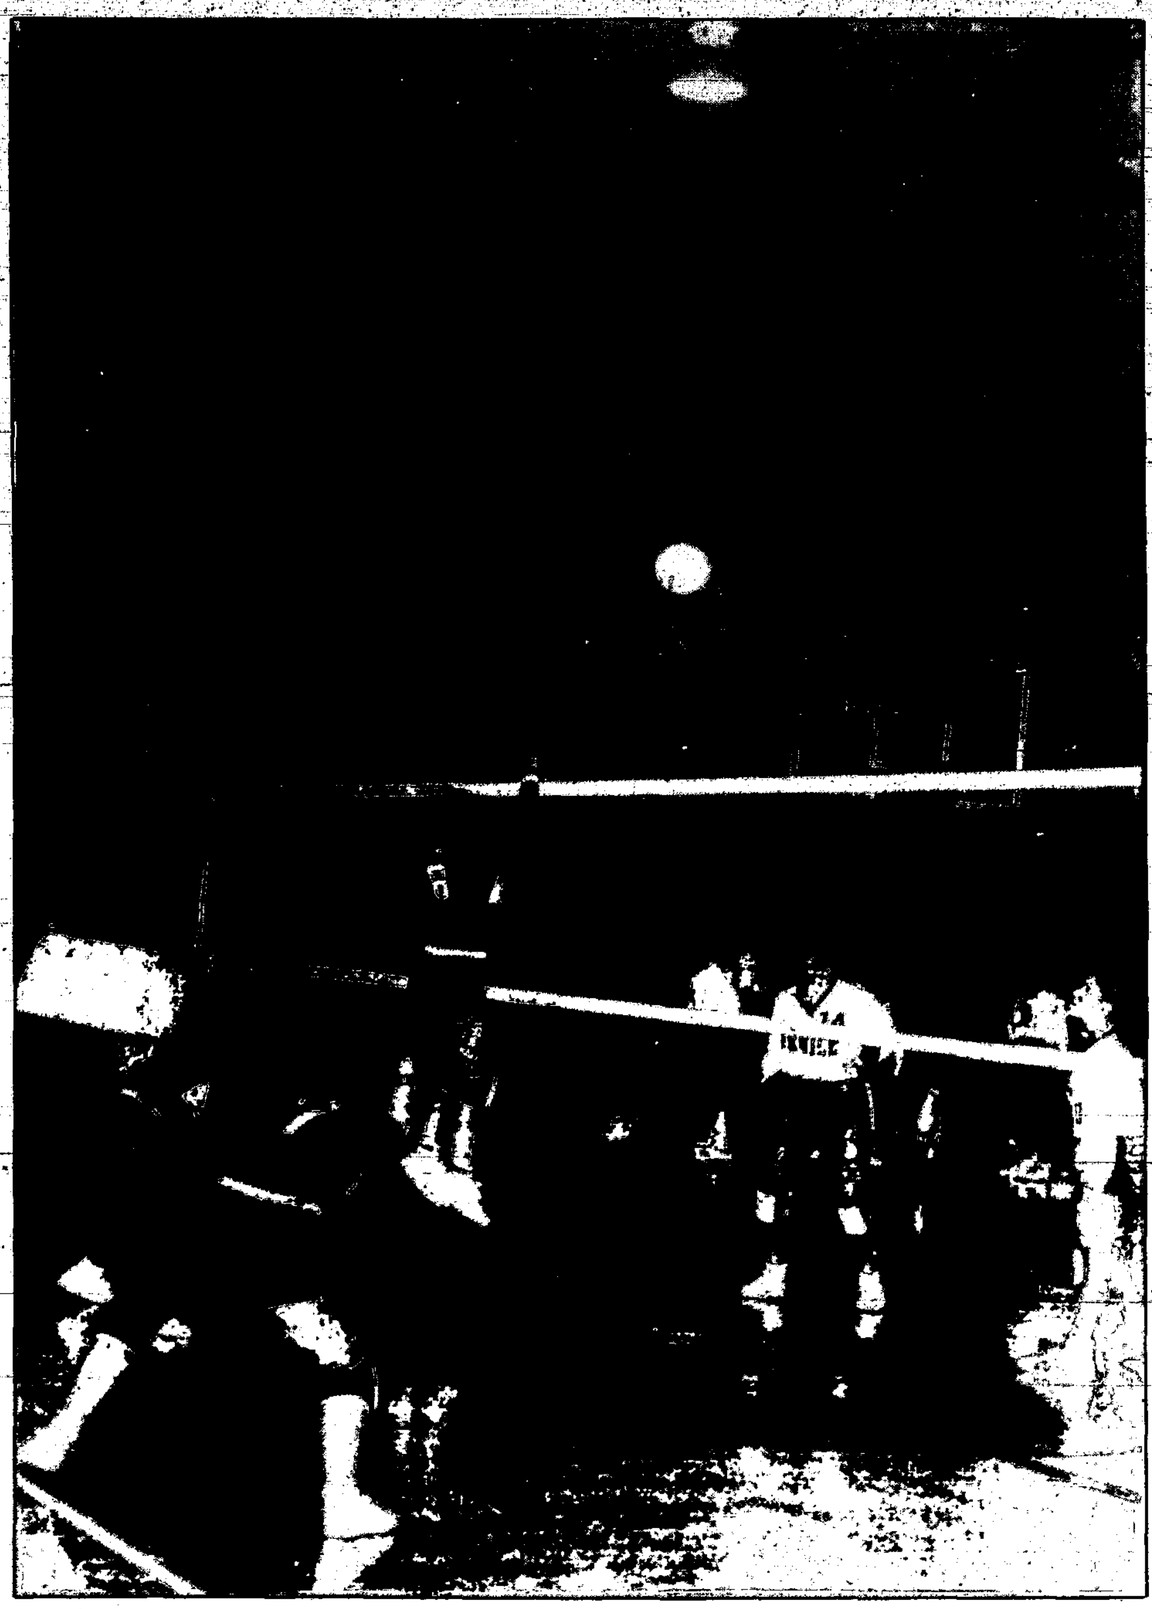
Ruidoso even added a freshman team this season as the Warriors had their biggest turnout in several years.

Last week's Ruidoso-Tularosa match in Tularosa drew about 100 Ruidoso students and fans. It was one of the largest turnouts for a Warrior volleyball match away from home in recent seasons.

The Ruidoso and Capitan high school volleyball teams have been playing non-district matches for about two weeks. They will begin district action soon.

At the end of the district season, there will be tournaments in each district.

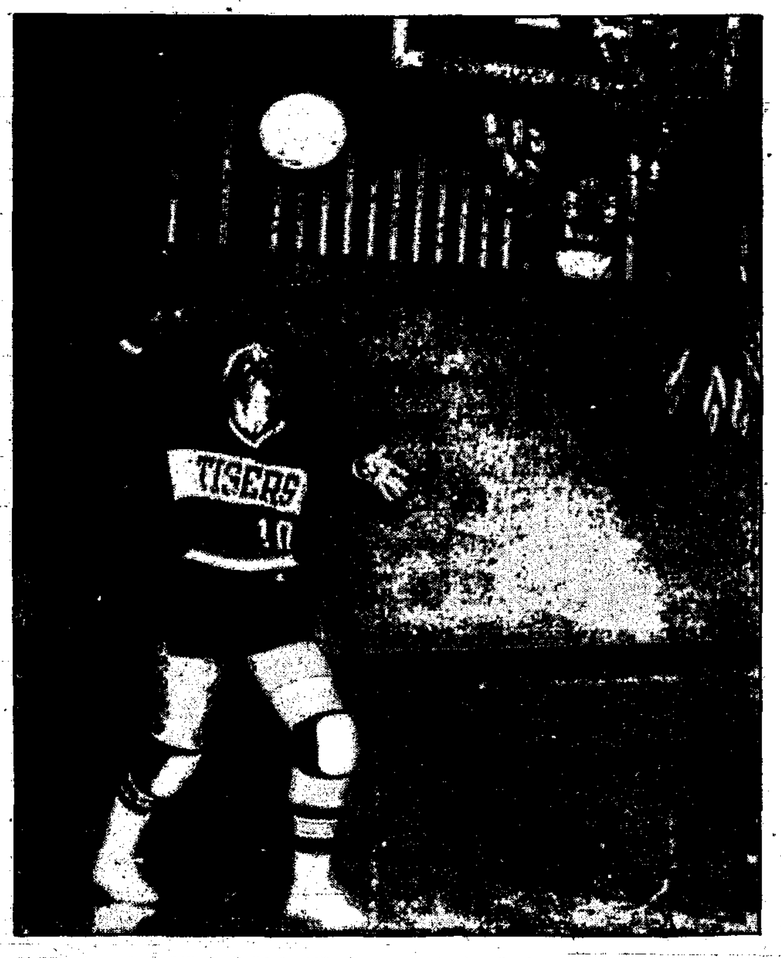
The top two teams from the tournament in each AAA district (Ruidoso's division) will go directly to the state tournament. The top two teams in each A district (Capitan's division) will go to the regional tournament. The best teams at the regional tournament will go on to the state competition.



Becky Huey (number eight) of the Capitan High School varsity team hits the ball over the net as her teammates watch in recent match action. Huey is one of the top girl athletes at Capitan, also competing in track and basketball.

Lana McClure (number three) of the Ruidoso varsity returns a shot during a match in Cloudcroft. Watching are teammates Sheila Espinosa (left) and Kerry Gladden. Ruidoso won the sportsmanship award.

Photos by Gary Brown and Sharon Makokian



Audrey Joiner of the Capitan High School varsity team serves the ball during a recent match. Capitan should be one of the strongest teams in its district this season.

Ruidoso High School head coach Pixie Arthur (center) talks with her varsity team during a time out at last Saturday's Cloudcroft Tournament. The Warriors won one of three matches in the tournament, defeating the Alamogordo junior varsity and losing to Dexter and Hatch. Arthur is in her second season as head coach.

Warrior play of the week

There were a number of big plays as the Ruidoso High School varsity football team defeated host Clint, Texas, 21-12 last Friday.

But probably the biggest play was a 46-yard run by senior fullback Manuel Montano early in the third quarter.

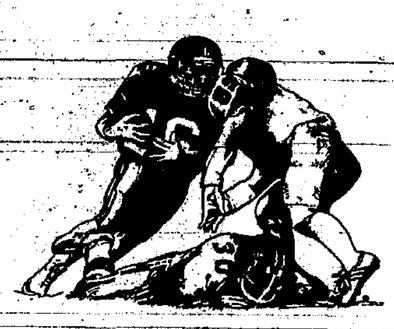
Montano ran the ball to the Clint seven yard line, and set up a go-ahead touchdown run by quarterback Russell Easter. Easter's score and subsequent two-point conversion gave Ruidoso a 14-10 lead that it never gave up.

The 46-yard run was the Warriors' longest run from scrimmage, and gave Ruidoso some momentum when Clint appeared to have the advantage.

Montano led the Warriors' running attack with 94 yards. He also played a good game on defense, getting a quarterback sack.

Ruidoso gained 320 yards total offense, 190 on the ground and 130 passing.

The Warriors will have their first home game Friday night when they host Tularosa at 7:30.



Ruidoso and Clint linemen collide near the goal line during action last Friday night. The Warriors are in the light jerseys. Ruidoso defeated Clint 21-12 and will host Tularosa this Friday night.

76 trombones

Well, not quite that many, but the Capitan band does have quite a few horns, as seen here. The band is directed by Dick Valenzuela.

Coning for repairs

The orange signs of road construction outline the craggy edge of Robin Road. Last month's swollen river ate away at much of the pavement.

On guard

The cannon was donated in 1959 in honor of the employees and patients for their service during World War II. Guarding the entrance to Fort Stanton Hospital and Training School is this massive military anti-aircraft cannon.

How to Make a Billion From the Oil Business

Just open the mail and deposit the checks.
At least it's almost that easy if you happen to be the State of New Mexico.

Oil and gas revenues poured into State coffers at the rate of $2.5 million a day in 1983. That's more than $105,000 every hour, and added up to $922 million for the year.

That only counts State income from direct revenues such as the several special oil and gas taxes, royalties from production on State and Federal lands, lease rentals, and extra bonuses paid just for the privilege of drilling a hole—which may be dry. (About two-thirds of the 287 "wildcat" wells drilled last year in New Mexico came up dry.) There also were earnings from the investments of two State permanent funds, which receive about 90 percent of their money from oil and gas royalties and severance taxes.

But there's more. The above monies don't include the millions of dollars of indirect revenues which New Mexico receives from oil and gas companies and their employees. Like corporate and personal income taxes, gross receipts and compensating taxes, franchise taxes, and various property taxes on 25,000 miles of pipelines, 46 gas processing plants, 4 oil refineries, and other facilities.

We think the more than $1 billion New Mexico makes each year from the oil and gas business shows the industry is willing to pay its fair share . . . and more. But in view of recent declines in drilling, production and sales, we also think it's time the State broadened its tax base. Continued over-reliance on oil and gas as the single greatest source of revenues will lead to a stark future for the industry and a rude awakening for New Mexico's citizens.
