Go back in time with the cowboys

It wasn't so long ago that Lincoln County was nothing but wide open spaces where cattle and cowboys roamed.

And those cowboys who spent long stretches of time living under the big skies with thousands of cattle and only a handful of people turned their hearts and minds to poetry and song. Their verses and tunes, started as a way to calm the cows and while away the time, have evolved into a kind of cowboy art that is hard to find these days.

You see, we find our [illegible] MTV and our poems [illegible] commercials these days.

But cowboys from [illegible] the United States will gather around a chuckwagon October 12-14 [illegible] those cowboys [illegible] Lincoln County Cowboy Symposium [illegible] Sam's Barn in Tularosa.

The Lincoln County Cowboy Symposium committee is trying to put a trail for a ride that will take riders from the Center for the Western Horse near Fort Stanton through old Lincoln and into Glencoe.

Camping will be available at the Super Select site so families can spend the entire weekend at the Cowboy Symposium.

Tickets and a complete schedule will be available soon.

Pedestrian dies

by FRANKIE JARRELL
Ruidoso News Editor

A Mescalero man died Sunday after he was hit by a tractor-trailer rig on U.S. Highway 70 near the Mescalero Community Center.

Chief Mark Chino of the Mescalero Police said Alvin Kayitah, 20, was pronounced dead at the scene after being struck by a rig driven by James Easley, 47, of Clovis. Chino said the commercial rig was out of Portales.

The truck was westbound on the four lane highway and Chino said it appears that the victim stepped into that lane.

Deputy medical examiner Dave Pfeffer and officers from the State Police responded to the accident. Mescalero Police Sergeant Ivan Bowekaty and officer Kevin Cope are conducting the investigation which Chino said is continuing.

Chino said his officers may stop traffic on Highway 70 for a short time to run a test skid on that stretch of road.

Ruidoso Police and officers of the State Police were called at 2:16 a.m. Sunday to a one vehicle accident on Highway 48 between Alto and Ski Run Road.

According to State Police reports a pickup driven by 18 year-old Ronnie Gunkel of Las Lunas ran off the road and into a ditch.

One passenger, [illegible] year-old Susan Hou[illegible] of Alto, was hospitalized with back injuries. Two other passengers in the vehicle were uninjured.

Ruidoso Police dispatch records also indicated a pedestrian was hit near Mescalero last Thursday.

Chief Chino said that incident turned out to be something other than a traffic accident.

Initial reports said a pedestrian was hit on Highway 70 near Salt Well and White Mountain. The victim, reportedly bleeding from the mouth, nose and eyes, was transported to the Public Health Service Hospital in Mescalero and then transferred to Lincoln County Medical Center (LCMC).

Within a half hour a patient at LCMC was transferred to Roswell.

The victim's name was not available.

Heavy rains and hail over the weekend kept streets wet, with some roadways flooding at times, but just a few minor accidents were recorded in the village.

King calls for a Democratic "clean sweep"

[illegible] Democrat gubernatorial candidate Bruce King [illegible] "clean sweep" [illegible] New Mexico [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] Democrat [illegible] New Mexico [illegible] King said [illegible] "clean sweep" for the Democratic ticket next November.

King served two terms as governor from 1971-1974 and again from 1979 to 1982.

[illegible] New Mexico, King said his deep [illegible] the state's history and his previous experience in state government gives him the [illegible] and direction New Mexico [illegible] the next century.

"My experience [illegible] to be utilized [illegible] for the future generations of the people of New Mexico," King said.

He said [illegible] besides his experience and his leadership abilities, he brings an [illegible] view of the direction New Mexico should go in the 1990s. King added that his 10 years of legislative experience and three terms as speaker of the house have given him the knowledge and skills to work with the New Mexico legislature.

King said a lack of planning at [illegible] from the governors office caused the [illegible] King said he would present a plan for the legislature. He said the legislature would be a designated place for dealing with state important issues such as education and economic development. He said when he was governor he had his wife [illegible] asked to have breakfast once a week with legislative leaders from both houses to set an agenda for the legislature to follow.

Ready the legislature [illegible] as the board of directors for the governor and the governor as the CEO, King said. "I'm the one who has to [illegible] the facilities with his cabinet secretaries and rings of government to know what the needs should be and he should at least present that to the legislature."

The education system in New Mexico still needs revamping and some more work done on it, King said. He suggested that maybe one of the things to do was go back to zero based budgeting to see that the money spent on education is spent to its ultimate advantage. He said raising the public's confidence in school personnel, from the superintendent down to the teacher, is equally as important as salary.

In regard to economic development King said New Mexico has done quite well in attracting high tech industries, and he said he would like to see the state get more involved. He added with the shrinking federal dollars [illegible] distribution [illegible] and he said he would like to see the state [illegible] take advantage of that resource.

King said every community in New Mexico [illegible] he said he would like to work with the [illegible] which will be voted on [illegible] said.

"I'm for maintaining a strong tourism [illegible] and a variety of life and [illegible] economic development [illegible] said.

He said New Mexico [illegible] the verge of experiencing [illegible] He added he was delighted to see [illegible] things happening at the Ruidoso [illegible] oil and gas prices [illegible] better. He said Ruidoso should take advantage of the [illegible] by promoting tourism.

One of the things King said he would do as governor is split the Department of Economic Development and Tourism into two separate departments. He said that way more emphasis could be placed on tourism in New Mexico. King feels tourism in New Mexico could be doubled in the 1990s. I believe he is right.

According to Ruidoso meteorologist Bill Hostetter, today's forecast is for partly cloudy skies and a little warmer with a slight chance for a few afternoon showers. For tonight, it will be partly cloudy and mild. For Tuesday, partly cloudy with a chance for afternoon thundershowers.

Precipitation probabilities are 20 percent today, 10 percent tonight and 30 percent Tuesday. Precipitation totals: year-to-date, 10.29 inches, 3.47 inches above normal; July total, 7.65 inches, 4.60 inches above normal.

The extended forecast for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday: fair mornings with partly cloudy afternoons with widely scattered afternoon and evening thundershowers. Temperatures will be near the season low of 49 degrees and high of 80 degrees.

From the Almanac: Ruidoso's 7.65 inches total rainfall for July, 1990, makes the month the second wettest July on record, exceeded only by July, 1950, when 10.60 inches were recorded.

Bond speaks to ranch group at the Inn

Frank Bond speaks to members of the New Mexico chapter of the Center for Holistic Resource Management, a group for which Bond is a director. The Republican candidate for governor believes the gross receipts tax inhibits business expansion in the state.

by RICHARD A. HARROLD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Gubernatorial candidate Frank Bond hopes he doesn't have to contend with the workers compensation issue if he's elected in November.

The Republican nominee for governor hopes the special legislative session called by Governor Garrey Carruthers will solve the problem for him.

If not, it will be his number one business item if he is elected, said Bond Saturday in Mescalero during the annual meeting of the New Mexico Chapter of the Center for Holistic Resource Management (HRM).

Bond also said he did not favor elevating the Environmental Improvement Division (EID) to cabinet level because of the cost.

It is estimated that $250,000 to $750,000 will be needed to raise EID to cabinet level and this money would be better off used in environmental programs, said Bond.

Just because EID may not be a cabinet level agency does not exclude it from having strong leadership, said Bond.

[illegible] taxes, particularly the gross [illegible]

[illegible] most defense [illegible] industries in New Mexico will [illegible] switching to civilian needs, especially in environmental research.

These industries do not produce specific goods but, rather, produce information and their expansion is inhibited by the gross receipts tax because the transmission of the information becomes taxed, said Bond.

He also indicated he would like to research what other taxes can be removed from businesses to promote expansion, while finding those taxes that are more resilient.

Most present at the HRM meeting were ranchers and to questions regarding pressure to remove cattle from public lands Bond said it won't work and he does not support the environmentalist position.

I don't see any real momentum there, he said.

I wouldn't really favor the gambling type philosophy in any way, but I would come more nearly favoring it on a local option than any other way, as far as resort areas," King said.

He went on to say he felt such a thing was a while down the road, and he would like to see the constitutional provisions of such legislation and its impact on Indian reservations explored first.

"I'm not an avid fan of gambling legislation, and I don't want to mislead anyone on that," he said.

King said he hopes Governor Carruthers and the legislature can solve the problems of workers compensation soon, before it becomes even more devastating to the expansion of industries and jobs in New Mexico. He said if they can't, fixing workers compensation will be one of the first things to do under a King administration.

"We are going to have to take care of it and meet the competitiveness of workers compensation in surrounding states," he said. "We can no longer contend with having a much higher rate than they do."

King said while polls show people who have been in New Mexico for 20 years and are over the age of 50 overwhelmingly support Bruce King, he wants everyone to feel they can have confidence in him.

"To those who don't know me, I'm vitally interested in their vote and their confidence," King said.

He added he wants to represent every individual in New Mexico, and he wants every area of the state to feel they have input into the state government.

"I do want all of them to feel that they are equally wanted, needed, and can make a great contribution to New Mexico," King said.

King's running-mate, Casey Luna, was also in the area to campaign last week. Luna and his wife, along with the Kings, attended a meeting of the Lincoln County Democrats on Thursday at La Junta.

mentalist and has been involved with peregrine falcons and other birds of prey.

A rancher as well, Bond is a director for HRM and said holistic resource management methods will guide his everyday decisions and style, although he will not mention it specifically during the campaign.

The candidate believes holistic methods have a role in resource and environmental policy.

Members of the audience were interested in how Bond would establish holistic resource management methods in the state government.

"I get to hire a lot of the people, don't I?" he said.

Although Bond indicated he may send some appointed personnel to the Center for Holistic Resource Management in Albuquerque for training, he believed the best way to establish the philosophy is by setting an example with his own style of problem solving and management.

The idea of holistic resource management was developed more than 30 years by Rhodesian researcher Alan Savory because the scientist believed that current methods of ranching and other environmental policies were making things worse.

The use of resources is guided by the goals established for a particular quality of life, rather than lifestyle. Either an individual or business establish the goals and then attempts to produce more than consumed.

Activity that threatens future productivity by depleting necessary resources is discouraged by holistic resource management.

Holistic approaches to ranching and agriculture have been successful in restoring rangeland and watersheds.

Members of HRM hope individuals from walks of life other than agriculture will learn holism.

Some users of the technique believe it holds the potential the bridge the historically antagonistic gap between environmentalists and the agricultural community.

Bigbee explains office he seeks

Natural resources in New Mexico do not have representation.

JOHN BIGBEE

John Bigbee, Republican candidate for State Land Commissioner, told members of a private resource management group that in spite of the fact that New Mexico is one of the top states for availability of many resources, it is near the bottom in per capita income.

New Mexico is number one in the nation for uranium, number two for natural gas reserves, number three in copper and number four in both oil reserves and coal.

"But why are we so close to the bottom in everything else?" asked Bigbee.

The candidate spoke Saturday at the annual meeting of the New Mexico chapter of the Center for Holistic Resource Management (HRM).

Bigbee is a past president for HRM, a group which promotes alternative ways for using resources that ensure the long term sustainability of the resource.

Most state lands are in good shape, said Bigbee.

He mentioned in the '50s, dust blowing conditions were so bad that a person couldn't drive from Encino to Estancia.

In response to a question whether or not Bigbee would hire an environmental quality assistant, he said he wouldn't need any help because he will be the one interested in environmental quality.

Bigbee did not mention any specific plans or policies he would suggest or implement if he were elected, but spent most of his time talking about how many people do not know what the state land office does.

The state land commissioner oversees state land that is held in trust for various state institutions, such as the state universities, the New Mexico Military Institute, and many health care agencies.

Domenici staff to visit Ruidoso

Staff members of U.S. Senator Pete V. Domenici will be in Ruidoso from 10 a.m. to noon Thursday, July 26, at the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce.

Anyone who is experiencing difficulty with a federal agency who would like Senator Domenici's assistance is welcome to visit with the Senator's staff.

Additionally, anyone who would like to convey an opinion to the Senator is invited to do so.

The staffers will be in the board room at the Chamber.

Tourism commissioners meet here to learn about the Ironhorse Railroad

Commissioners from the Economic Development and Tourism Commission were in Ruidoso on Thursday night and Friday for a quarterly meeting.

The commission regularly has quarterly meetings at various locations throughout the state. Friday's meeting took place at the board room of the Texas New Mexico Power Company building on Mechem Drive.

According to the public information officer for the group, La Nelda Roller, Commissioner B.J. Porter of Las Cruces wanted to host a meeting in his region. She said Ruidoso was chosen as the site because of a presentation the commissioners heard on Friday by local lodger Dick Weber.

Weber presented the commission with a presentation on the Iron Horse Railroad project, and, according to Weber, the presentation went quite well.

While in Ruidoso, commission members and department secretary John Dendahl were the guests at a reception in the home of Mayor Victor Alonso and his wife, Virginia. Also attending the reception were representatives of the village council, the Economic Development Corporation of Lincoln County, the Iron Horse Railroad, The Ruidoso News, and other invited private citizens.

The seven-member Economic Development and Tourism Commission is appointed by the governor with the consent of the Senate. Each of the state's congressional districts are represented and the rest of the members are selected at large.

Present at Friday's meeting were Secretary Dendahl, Deputy Secretary Jim Maes, commissioners Edward Lujan, Edmund L. Gonzales, Joe Mangum, Eddie Smithson, B.J. Porter and Mary Kay Cline. Commissioner Irwin Welber was unable to attend the meeting.

Art Festival kicks off on Friday

The three-day 19th Annual Ruidoso Arts Festival will kick off Friday, July 27, at the Ruidoso Downs Sports Theater Complex on the east side of Ruidoso Downs Race Track, Ruidoso.

"We've narrowed the field of nationally-noted artists from 475 to 135 with entrants coming from Minnesota, California, Colorado, Oklahoma, Texas, Arizona and New Mexico," said Festival Chairman Ron Wall.

"Visitors to the Festival will have the opportunity to browse and buy works of art as well as observe some artists creating pieces including mediums such as oil, pastel, watercolor, leather, pottery, fabric, copper and jewelry," he added.

"Concessions provided by area service clubs will really add to the festivities with such colorful cuisine as sausage, fajitas, burgers and dessert crepes," said Wall. "There will be something for everyone's taste!"

Sponsored by the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce (RVCC) and Coca Cola, the annual event is expected to attract an even larger crowd than last year's 13,000 visitors.

"This weekend will be an ideal time to escape the summer heat to experience some of the Southwest's finest variety of art," said Chamber executive director Jerry Watts.

Admission to the Ruidoso Art Festival is $2 for adults and $1 for children.

Other events scheduled for the weekend of July 27-29 include Music Festival '90 at Carrizo Lodge featuring the second annual Southwestern Pickers Festival; the Ruidoso Little Theatre's female production of "The Odd Couple," and the World Championship Quarter Horse Classic at Ruidoso Downs Race Track.

For further information on any of these events, contact the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce at 257-7395.

Chamber board gears up for 19th Ruidoso Art Festival

by AL STUBBS
Ruidoso News Business Editor

Technical aspects of producing the 1990 Art Festival occupied the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce board of directors at a meeting, Wednesday.

The board also approved a financial statement covering the fiscal year ending June 30 and accepted the proposed budget for the fiscal year 1990-91.

Revenues are expected to be $107,600 including $55,400 in members' dues and $25,000 from the Art Festival. The Octoberfest is expected to bring in $12,000.

Food concessions this year at the Art Festival at the Sports Complex at Ruidoso Downs Race Track will be arranged in a U-shape.

Currently workers are being recruited to cover all bases such as parking, gate people, concession stand staff and such. The new Chamber president, Ron Wall, also is festival chairman. He and others will meet at the site at 4 p.m. today (Monday), July 23, to check fencing, gates and other physical facilities to see if everything is going according to plan.

Executive director Jerry Watts announced that Kathleen Michelina of Phoenix, Arizona, has been hired as director of the Convention and Visitors Bureau. He told board members she would start work on or before August 1. As it turned out, she was available to start work today.

New Ruidoso village manager, Charles Norwood, reported to the board on traffic figures for Mesa Airlines up until July 9.

Mesa and the village have an agreement for Mesa to provide flights from Albuquerque to Ruidoso and from El Paso, Texas, to Ruidoso and return flights for 90 days on a trial basis.

The Village Council authorized a subsidy amount of $75,000 if bookings fall below a certain level. He said that the village would have owed only $17,828 from the inauguration date of June 3 to July 9.

"We'll settle up at the end of 90 days," Norwood said.

Board member Craig Rawlings said his company, Warp Speed, would have had boardings on eight occasions but that convenient connecting flights were not available in either El Paso or Albuquerque.

Wall reported that Danny Sisson is chairman of the President's Club. Rawlings has taken over parking arrangements for the Art Festival after Dan LeCrone moved away. Bill Hirschfeld will staff a booth with other volunteers at the Albuquerque Balloon Festival October 6-14.

Watts reported to the board that June telephone inquiries to the Chamber were quadruple those of June 1989.

Board member Mark Doth, who also is a member of the Lodgers Tax Advisory Board, said that the LTAB "won't undermine the ad committee's role."

A new LTAB board last week had an initial meeting and spelled out that agencies receiving lodgers tax money will have to be more accountable on how allocated money is spent.

The Chamber of Commerce is a primary recipient of lodgers tax monies for advertising and promotion of Ruidoso and Ruidoso events.

Wall said he was disappointed in the turnout for the annual Chamber awards banquet at Flying J Ranch on July 15. He said it may be necessary to change the time of year and location for the banquet. This was the second year in a row that the event has been staged at the Flying J.

During that banquet, chamber members and their families watched a musical show by the Flying J Wranglers before the outgoing president, Ronnie Paulger, passed on the gavel to the incoming president, Ron Wall.

Also during the program, outgoing chamber board members were honored. The H'nu Zhe beautification award winner, Fenton's Gallery, was announced. Members made that selection through secret ballot.

Watts was introducing the new CVB director to Chamber members and village officials throughout the village on Thursday.

Jerrico Miss heads over the finish line to take the $93,696 Kachina Stakes Championship Sunday at Ruidoso Downs Race Track. Joe Martinez rode the H. Don Farris trainee around the course in 1:13.2. The owners are R.D. Hubbard and Ed Allred. Guilty Feelings placed second with Flying Monte at third.

Jerrico Miss makes a hit

RUIDOSO DOWNS-When the expected overwhelming favorite for Sunday's fifth-running of the Kachina Stakes — Dawn Street — scratched out of the $93,696 race because of an abcess on her foot, that left the door open for the rest of the field.

Dawn Street's stablemate Jerrico Miss, however, picked up the slack admirably for the Don Farris shedrow.

Guided masterfully by leading thoroughbred jockey Joe Martinez, Jerrico Miss slipped through along the fence turning for home and posted a 1 1/2-length decision in only the second start of her career.

Martinez, however, had his hands full, despite the impressive victory. Once assuming command in the stretch, Jerrico Miss bolted to the outside — twice.

"She got a little wild turning for home," said Farris. "Joe did a good job with the filly."

"I dropped over to the rail on the turn," said Martinez, who won the Kachina Stakes last year aboard Fast Gin Fizz. "Once we got through and to the lead, she ran green. She bolted on me twice."

The daughter of Jerimi Johnson, who was purchased by R.D. Hubbard and Ed Allred at last year's Ruidoso Horse Sales for $5,000, is undefeated in two starts. She won her trial heat on July 12 by almost a length.

Martinez had his choice between riding Jerrico Miss and Guilty Feelings in the 6-furlong race reserved for juvenile fillies. Guilty Feelings ran second in the race, proving Martinez prophetic.

"I figured she'd have to improve off of her first start," Martinez said. "It was her first start, and she ran in the slop that day. Plus, I had a lot of horse left at the wire in the trials."

Jerrico Miss covered the six panels in 1:13.2 over a fast track. The final time was the third fastest in the history of the stakes.

Jerrico Miss earned $46,906 for her victory, increasing her lifetime total to $47,926.

Dance Trainer shows the field how it's done

RUIDOSO DOWNS-Jockey Jim Powell made absolutely certain Saturday that his charge Dance Trainer had clear sailing during the running of the inaugural Land Of Enchantment Speed Handicap.

Trouble was the one thing the veteran reignsman seeked to avoid.

As the 6-furlong test for New Mexico breds turned out, the only trouble Dance Trainer and Powell had was for the rest of the field.

Guided skillfully to the outside by Powell, Dance Trainer collared the leaders on the turn and pulled away to a 1 1/4-legnth victory in the $18,750 stakes race.

"In his last start at Santa Fe (the Santa Fe Special) trouble cost him the race," Powell said. "He nearly got stood on his head and only got beat in a photo."

Dance Trainer and Powell seldom taste defeat. Powell has guided the classy Choreographer son to victory in 13 different stakes races. In all, Dance Trainer has won an amazing 22 of 46 starts. The victory in the Land Of Enchantment Stake boosted Dance Trianer's lifetime bankroll to $217,884.

Breaking from the rail, Powell moved Dance Trainer to the outside along the backstretch. The tandem hooked the leaders at the top of the turn and pulled away down the lane.

Somebody asked Powell if he thought he was in good shape when his horse moved effortlessly to the leaders on the outside.

"Anytime you ride this horse, you're in good shape," quipped Powell.

The stakes victory was the first this season at Ruidoso Downs by Powell. Dance Trainer's last stakes victory came in the Breeders' Cup Handicap at Sante Fe last year. Dance Trainer covered the distance in a rapid 1:10.1.

In the co-featured Big Profit Allowance Stake, Pulladash pulled out an dramatic victory in a three-horse photo finish and established a new stakes record in the process.

Pulladash, who had finished third in the same race last year, covered the 550 yards in a zippy 26.75. The stakes record of 26.94 was set by Go Street Music in 1989. The 17-year-old track record of 26.65 was established by Big Profit in 1972.

Pulladash, stakes-placed in his two most recent outings, barely outfinished Contessa Cash — one of two 3-year-olds in the race — and Zevistator. Three noses separted the trio at the wire.

Pulladash, who had competed in 870 yard races in his last three outings, improved his career record to seven wins from 32 starts.

Track Talk

Don't quit watching See Me Do It

by Tim Menicutch of Ruidoso Downs Race Track

One of the biggest mysteries of the meeting was solved last week.

After back-to-back dismal outings by the reigning World Champion quarter horse, See Me Do It, it seemed everybody was asking the same question: What's wrong with her?

Larry Layton, who knows the chestnut mare about as well as anybody, considering he's been in the saddle for every start of her career, answers the critics with a resounding, "absolutely nothing."

Sure, Larry. But what about her sixth-place finish in the Rainbow Silver Cup Trials?

"She was left way behind the field coming out of the gate," Layton said. "She never had a chance."

OK, we'll forgive her that one outing. After all, she did break horribly and it was her first start since last November.

But what about the apparent victory turned second-place finish in a non-desrcipt allowance race here June 23? Surely, there was no excuse for that one.

"That was my fault," Layton said. "We were just giving her a race. Once she got to the lead, she pricked her ears a little bit and that horse got by her."

Maybe we were spoiled by the perfection of See Me Do It's flawless 1989 campaign. Maybe we expected too much. After all, the daughter of On A High won six consecutive races en route to her world championship title. She logged speed indexes in excess of 100 in four of those six victories.

"She just had some bad luck in her first two starts this year," Layton said. "Last year was unbelievavle. She went a whole year without any bad luck."

OK, so she's not a machine. But, you can't blame us for beginning to believe she was.

"We were never worried about her this year," Layton said. "She had some bad luck, that's all."

OK, she was impressive last week in the World's Championship Classic Trials. She fired away from the gate like a bullet and finished strong to the wire.

But what about her time, Larry? She was only the fifth-fastest qualifier for the Grade I race on July 28.

"She wasn't all out," Layton said. "She can run more than that."

But don't forget, Larry, racing fans are some of the most severe critics in the world. They won't be satisfied until she beats the World's Championship Classic field in a cakewalk.

Layton was tired of talking. He just smiled. In retrospect, however, the smile seemed to be worth a thousand words.

Rio Grande Futurity trials run Thursday

RUIDOSO DOWNS-Richard Parrish's Talent Connection, fresh from a smart triumph in the Norgor Futurity, heads the third of three heats Thursday in the Rio Grande Futurity Trials.

The first four finishers from the three trials — to be in the sixth, eighth and 10th races — will advance to the $50,000-estimated finals on August 5.

The 10th race appears to be the toughest heat of the trials. The race also drew Mount Capitan, who finished in a deadheat for second place in the Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity here May 28.

Talent Connection, who hails from the shedrow of Roy Barrington, has captured four of five lifetime starts. His only loss came in the Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity when he broke slowly and finished sixth beaten less than 2 lengths.

Mount Capitan, who has not run since his second-place effort in the Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity, has won three of five career starts, including a 2-length victory in the Riley Allison Futurity Consolation at Sunland Park.

The gelded son of Dawn Of Creation is trained by leading thoroughbred conditioner Doyal Roberts. He will be ridden by Mike Lidberg.

The second trial heat is headed by Wanda Davidson's Old Kawliga, who has not started since running a disappointing 10th in the Rio Grande Kindergaten Futurity.

Prior to that, however, the gelded son of Indian Courage won two of three starts, including an impressive victory over the talented Insertofspecial in the Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity trials.

Economic Development group adopts budget

by AL STUBBS
Ruidoso News Business Editor

A budget of $168,484.69 was approved by the board of directors of the Economic Development Corporation of Lincoln County for operation of the EDC through June 30.

At a postponed meeting Wednesday evening, Don Shaw, president of EDC, reported that the village trustees at Capitan have approved $1,000 in support of the county-wide program. Carrizozo trustees have OK'd a $500 contribution.

A $10,000 figure in the budget allows purchase of office machines which the director reported as virtually essential to the operation of the office in the Stroud building. Especially needed is a reliable copy machine. Another computer, printer and fax machine also are needed but won't be purchased immediately. The board will decide on purchases "as they come along," Shaw said.

The director, George Puckett, and office person Anita Sanders recently were granted raises. Another budget item which may or may not be used is for a part-time secretary at $450 per month.

The director's salary is currently pegged at $3,750 per month or $45,000 per annum. Sanders draws $1,375 per month.

Board members approved a contract with Dean Noltensmeyer & Barraclough for an audit as required by the county commission. The $2,650 figure includes $300 for doing federal income tax forms for EDC.

The budget also includes a "seed capital fund" of $10,000 which Puckett said would be useful in helping attract companies to Ruidoso which need some funds for legal expenses and such connected with moving.

The board approved the sum after being assured the directors would approve each such expenditures and only after it would be almost certain a company would move to and be an asset to Lincoln County.

The board voted to fully support an effort in Capitan which is angling for a National Firefighters Museum which would be in conjunction with the Smokey Bear Museum. This year is the 50th anniversary of the Forest Service's fire prevention program.

The Capitan project "is in its early stages," Shaw told board members.

Puckett told of a prospect, Micrographic, Inc., which would design circuit board here and have them fabricated in Phoenix.

3 artists are The Originals located in Village Plaza

Three artists have teamed up to open The Originals in Village Plaza, 2306 Sudderth Drive.

The three create art and objects d'art with which they stock their shop, located next door to The Hummingbird Tearoom.

Partner Sara Duttweiler is a teacher in Fort Worth, Texas, for most of the year. But, she has a summer home in Ruidoso and has been a summer resident for a long time.

Her artistry shows up on T-shirts, pots and in paintings.

Another partner is Billie Long who teaches oil painting at Carrizo Lodge in the summer.

Becky Methvin works in copper, leather and fabrics.

Duttweiler says she is very pleased with the volume of business the shop is doing since there are so many shops in the village.

With three partners, they can spell each other on occasion. The shop is open 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. seven days a week.

Electric company considers routes for proposed line

Eight possible routings for a new 115 KV transmission line planned by Texas-New Mexico Power Co. will be outlined at open houses Friday and Saturday, July 27 and 28.

The same considerations will be dealt with Friday night as are planned for Saturday as a convenience to the public, James L. Bassett, district manager, told The News.

The public meetings will be from 5 to 9 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday. Location will be the Texas-New Mexico Power Co. district office at 1100 Mechem Drive, Ruidoso.

The purpose of the informational sessions is to allow individuals and entities whose property might be affected to have input into the planning.

Local public office holders might be interested, Bassett said.

The line construction will be to a Grindstone Substation from Hollywood Station. Hollywood Station is up a canyon off U.S. Highway 70 just before reaching the Inn of the Mountain Gods turnoff on 70 as you approach Ruidoso from Mescalero.

The proposed line could go direct from the Hollywood Station to the Grindstone area, or it could circle around Ruidoso to the south and east to Gavilan Canyon Substation and back to the Grindstone Substation.

Those are two of the eight routes being considered. Completion of the project is several years in the future, Bassett indicated. The purpose will be to "ease the loading situation," Bassett said. Some of the proposed routes follow existing utility easements, others don't.

Four feeder lines come into the area.

"Certain times of the year they are pretty well loaded," Bassett says. Land in the Grindstone area has been purchased and cleared for some time he said in anticipation of building a new substation.

Visitors at the open house next weekend will be given an opportunity to ask questions, express concerns and make suggestions about the routing of the line.

Five major considerations will be covered at the sessions. They are the need for the project, environmental concerns, engineering (terrain) concerns, route projections and public comment.

Bassett says he hopes to have a map in hand this week before the session which would pinpoint possible locations for the line.

Environmental specialists from Espy, Houston & Associates, Inc., who are conducting the environmental studies of the project will be on hand. So will Texas-New Mexico Power Co. people.

Questions should be directed to the power company's district office in Ruidoso, 258-5511.

Two giant communications firms merge

Contel and GTE Corporation announced Tuesday that the boards of directors of both companies have agreed in principle to merge the two telecommunications giants.

The transaction, valued at about $6.2 billion, is effective July 11.

Under the proposed merger agreement, which is subject to approval by the directors and stockholders of both companies as well as various regulatory agencies, GTE will issue 1.27 shares of its common stock in a tax-free exchange for each Contel common share, or about 200 million GTE shares.

James L. "Rocky" Johnson, chairman and chief executive officer of GTE, characterized the merger as "a perfect combination of two great companies. GTE's telecommunications businesses and organizational structure complement those of Contel, and this alliance will both position the company strategically and enable us to exploit more fully the many opportunities for growth that exist in the worldwide telecommunications marketplace." He noted that the merger will result in an organization that ranks as the country's largest local-exchange telephone company and the second-largest cellular-telephone operator.

The combined company's local-exchange operations would have a total of 17.7 million access lines and its cellular-telephone business would serve approximately 50 million "POPs."

"This merger will provide the critical mass and financial strength Contel has sought in order to accelerate the many initiatives we have recently taken across a wide spectrum of ventures in the field of telecommunications," said Charles Wohlstetter, Contel's chairman. "These plans fit so well with those of GTE that it is hard to imagine any other two companies in such an ideal position to move forward together. All of this leads me to the firm conviction that the agreement to merge is in the best interests of Contel's shareholders and employees."

Wohlstetter also noted that Contel stockholders will benefit from an increased dividend resulting from the exchange of shares. GTE currently pays a dividend of $1.46 per share, whereas Contel pays a dividend of $1.10.

"Given the common stock exchange ratio, this would equate to a dividend of approximately $1.85 per Contel share."

GTE subsidiaries operate in 46 states and 41 countries, with combined revenues and sales of $17.4 billion and new income of $1.4 billion in 1989. GTE is a leader in its three core businesses — telecommunications, lighting and precision materials — providing products and services worldwide. It has 158,000 employees.

"Aside from the obvious synergy of our telephone and cellular operations," Johnson said, "both companies have other areas of interest that are remarkable parallel. We both have large and successful units that provide telecommunication service and systems to government entities. We're both in satellite communications and we have each undertaken significant initiatives in providing a combined cable television and telephone service to residential communities. In addition, both companies have significant research activities which will make the combined entity an industry leader in applied technology.

"Both companies have recently undertaken major restructuring programs to make our businesses more competitive and have placed the highest priority on quality and productivity programs to better serve our customers. It is clear that all of these activities are uniquely positioned to benefit from the merger not merely through economics of scale; but also through the vastly enhanced reach of our combined resources as well as the coming together of the talented people of our two organizations," Johnson said.

The announcement noted the new company would operate as GTE Corporation. Johnson will remain chairman and chief executive officer, and Charles R. Lee will continue to be president and chief operating officer. Wohlstetter and John L. Segall, who is currently vice chairman of Contel, will both serve as vice chairman of the merged companies. When a new board is constituted, five of its directors will be nominated from Contel's current board. Don Weber, president and chief executive officer of Contel and a veteran of more than 25 years in the telephone industry, will occupy a key position in the merger entity.

Wohlstetter, who is slated to chair the Strategic Issues, Planning and Technology Committee of the new board, said, "Our two companies have a very consistent outlook on the opportunities that are at hand in the world marketplace for telecommunications, and we have a common understanding of the value of size and reach in the highly competitive environment in which these opportunities must be grasped. We share a strong conviction that the combination of our respective resources will create a market force that neither of our companies could have achieved alone. And the timing could not be better."

Registration opens for Little Red Schoolhouse

Fall registration is now open for enrollment to the "Montessori's Little Red School House" grades kindergarten through three.

The new school will offer full-day kindergarten approved by the American Montessori and New Mexico Department of Education.

Contact Kortney Hall or LeeAnn Norton, Tuesday, or after 7 p.m. weekdays, at 257-7079 for full information.

Local artist's work hangs in Santa Fe

New Mexico artist Linda Smith has been recruited by Nedra Matteucci's Fenn Galleries in Santa Fe to show at the galleries' new location on the plaza at Simply Santa Fe. The opening exhibition for the new Fenn location featuring the work of landscape artist William Berra will begin July 21.

Harry McKee, gallery director, discovered Smith's work at the Albuquerque Arts & Crafts Fair last month.

"We are always looking for new work to present to our clients and those who visit our galleries. Linda is a welcome addition to our line-up of artists," said McKee.

Smith's oils include landscapes, portraits, and still-lifes — all painted with a unique, exciting immediacy. Her use of clear bright colors is reminiscent of the Taos School and their European influence.

"I came to New Mexico to paint — I have loved art, studied art, viewed art the world over, collected art, marketed art and taught art most of my life — I'm here to paint," says Smith.

Nedra Matteucci's new Fenn Galleries location is housed on the gallery level of Simply Santa Fe. The entire 4,000 square-feet is designated for display of representational original paintings and sculpture. The gallery level, accesible by both the grand staircase and glass elevator is accented by an 1874 semi-grand John Broadwood piano perfectly situated between two overlooks which reveal the main floor directly below.

The high ceilings provide a spectacular setting for works by noted American artists including O.E. Berninghause, Emil Bistram, Leon Gaspard, Joseph Sharp, Russell Cowles, William Berra, Eric Sloane, Glenna Goodacre, Andrew Dasburg, Wilson Hurley and now Linda Smith.

Smith's work can also be seen at Lincoln Fine Art in Ruidoso.

The Breys open an insurance company

Brey and Associates has taken over a suite in the Stroud Building (former Financial Center) where the company is set up for business. Orville and Susie Brey occupy a ground floor suite in the building at 1096 Mechem Drive.

Brey and Associates offers health and life insurance and will be offering mortgage loans.

Orville Brey says the health and life insurance offerings are primarily for self-employed people. The company will be setting up a full-service real estate operation soon.

The company is independent and represents several health and life companies.

The Breys have lived in Ruidoso about a year, with Orville Brey commuting to Albuquerque where he was a real estate appraiser. The fact that Susie Brey's mother was in the Ruidoso Care Center brought the couple to Ruidoso. They decided to stay.

"We plan to have six insurance representatives when fully staffed," Brey says.

Downs postmaster marks 30 years

by DANIEL AGNEW STORM

Shirlene Fitzner Completes 30 Happy Years

Last Monday, July 16, Shirlene Fitzner celebrated 30 years working at the Ruidoso Downs Post Office. She began working in 1960 for Dorothy Parnell, and became postmaster when Dorothy retired in 1976, making her the second postmaster in Ruidoso Downs.

On this anniversary, Shirlene was wearing a beautiful pen presented to her by William Bordone, MSC Manager of postmasters, in Albuquerque for her 30 years of faithful service.

The original name of the village was Palo Verde.

In 1952, when the village applied for a post office, it was found that there was another Palo Verde in New Mexico; so the name was translated to English: Green Tree.

Then, in 1955, the racetrack wanted a postmark, so the name of the town was changed to Ruidoso Downs.

Shirlene has been active in the New Mexico Postmaster organization; for eight years she has been editor of the state news letter, and for five years she has been editor of the national newsletter: The National Postmaster Gazette for the Western Region — including 13 western states.

This year's national postmasters convention will be September 8-14 in Niagara Falls, and Shirlene will be editor of the newsletter for the convention.

The national postmasters convention for 1994 will be in Albuquerque, and Shirlene is co-chairman of the event.

Shirlene says she has enjoyed every minute of her 30 years and is ready for 30 more. She says: "What has made all these years so wonderful is that I have lived among the finest people in the world, and have met good people from all over the world. And my work has been a daily pleasure because of the faithful and dedicated people who have worked for me."

These include Wayne Bradley, Joe Clancy and Catherine "Scotty" Grantham.

Reception For Scotty Grantham

Shirlene has announced that a reception will be from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. Monday, July 23, at the Ruidoso Downs Post Office for Catherine "Scotty" Grantham who is retiring after 15. The beloved Scotty has been in the hospital in Albuquerque for three months, and is coming down especially to meet with her hosts of friends, before she goes back to Albuquerque. Our prayers go up to the Lord for Scotty's recovery.

Congratulations To Debbie Sanchez

Last Sunday at Saint Anne's Chapel, lay reader Nellie Ruth Jones conducted morning prayer, and gave thanks for the birthdays of Mary Cooper, Cora Sweeny and Elena Shows.

After the service, little Ben Coe Sanchez, son of our organist, Debbie Sanchez, asked: "Do you want to see the trophy my mother won?"

So here he came with a miniature statue of a young lady about to swing a baseball bat. It was the individual trophy of members of the Flamingo Softball Club, winners in recent softball tournament.

Debbie is pitcher for the team, and also Physical Education Teacher for the primary grades in Ruidoso — carrying out the ancient ideal we need to remember more than ever these days — "A sound mind in a sound body."

Debbie has about 800 pupils in all. This is a handful all right; and it is good to know that these children are in good hands.

Let us thank God for our teachers, and all our other many blessings.

A New Billy the Kid

This year's Billy the Kid for the Annual Lincoln Days Pageant will be Thomas Shrecengost, son of Billy Shrecengost Jr. and Diane Shrecengost, director of the pageant.

Thomas will be Kid number eight, the others being: Peter Hurd, John Davis, John Thomas, Tom Taylor, Early Taylor, Billy Shrecengost Jr. and Ronnie Barron.

This will be the fiftieth birthday of the pageant which was begun in 1940 as part of A Day In Old Lincoln, which in turn was one of many celebrations throughout New Mexico celebrating our State's 400th birthday or Quarto Centennial.

The pageant will be the first weekend in August — this year the third, fourth and fifth.

The pageant has become more popular year by year and is now world famous. The show is in a class by itself as the only western pageant that is presented on the exact place where the real historic action took place.

Let us thank God for the good rains and all our other many blessings.

MainStreet Board wants to be in the "driver's seat"

by AL STUBBS
Ruidoso News Business Editor

MainStreet Ruidoso, which has as its major objective the revitalization of "downtown," will seek to be more "in control of its destiny," according to the president, Bill Hirschfeld.

Don Dutton, an attorney member of the organization, and members of the executive committee are drawing up a contract to present to the Ruidoso Village Council on July 31 which would, if approved, loosen the apron strings existing between the village and MainStreet.

The move would make the MainStreet board of directors more in charge of expenditures, personnel and otherwise would put them more in control, according to Hirschfeld.

Funding of the organization, other than through memberships, would still come from the village. MainStreet here is part of a state MainStreet program created by the State Legislature.

If the village approves the contract it "puts the board of directors positively in the driver's seat," Alden Deyo, treasurer, told the board at a regular meeting, Thursday morning.

The MainStreet project director Mary Maul currently is a village of Ruidoso employee and falls under the benefit package village employees have.

If the "separation" is accomplished the MainStreet board would be responsible for establishing policies on sick leave, vacations and other benefits. The project director would have to provide her own medical insurance.

Board members discussed the necessity of a membership drive as MainStreet coffers are very low.

Some $40,000 has been approved from the state for developing a plan for downtown development. Planning consultants who have expressed an interest will be interviewed by August 6, Maul said. Then, she said, a recommendation will be made to the Village Council.

Member "Mac" McDougal said it is important that the new village manager be apprised of how important the downtown area is to the village of Ruidoso economically.

Maul said that one Midtown landmark, Cabins and Castles, will be razed by the owner, Pioneer Savings and Trust.

Trash receptacles built from proceeds from a "Battle of the Bands" last year are finished but aren't painted as yet, Maul said. They will be placed at strategic locations in the Midtown area.

Tularosa board moves Mescalero elementary

by JUDY HYMAN
Special to The News

Mescalero elementary school students will have to go to school in Tularosa this fall.

About 280 students and their teachers will be moved from temporary classrooms in Mescalero to Tularosa Elementary School August 21.

All Mescalero school staff and students will be integrated into the Tularosa school system. Classes in the Mescalero heritage and language, which were unique to the Mescalero school, will be integrated also.

Since an arson fire destroyed the Mescalero Elementary School on February 18, students have been attending classes in the community center and in nearby portables at Mescalero.

Major concerns about health and safety risks in the Mescalero community center resulted in an emergency public meeting of the Tularosa Board of Education July 10. State officials, including the director of Indian education, toured the community center and found it does not meet state public school codes.

In a press release dated July 11, the Board cited problems with state asbestos regulations, safety of heating systems, lack of ventilation, congested classrooms, fire safety code concerns, inadequate restroom facilities and internal ceiling damage, among others.

An estimated $100,000 would be needed to bring the building up to code, according to the release. To add to the Board's headaches, tribal officials have proposed a fee be paid for use of the community center as a school.

The Board intended to maintain school services in Mescalero after the fire, but was unable to adequately address all the concerns prior to the beginning of fall classes. Thus, the decision was made to relocate for the 1990-91 school year.

Inn course requires different shots from golfer

by BRIAN BLALOCK
Ruidoso News Sports Editor

According to golf professional Larry Huffman, Mescalero Tribal President Wendall Chino once stood on the site of the Inn of the Mountain Gods and envisioned an enterprise for his people.

That vision began taking shape in 1975. Today, the Inn of the Mountain Gods resort is not only one of the top resorts in New Mexico, but in the Southwest.

Besides the first class accomodations and convention facilities, the Inn boasts of having one of the best golf courses in New Mexico.

The 6,819-yard Inn of the Mountain Gods Golf Course was designed in the mid '70s by Ted Robinson of California. Robinson not only produced a course which did not change the integity of the land, but according to Huffman, he also produced a course that has required little in the way of changes.

Through the years it has been open, the Inn of the Mountain Gods golf course has received praise from a number of sources. In 1980, during a pro-am, PGA golf professionals gave the course excellent reviews for its playability. In 1987, Golf Digest magazine named the course the number one course in New Mexico. And in 1988, that same magazine named the course one of the top 20 destination resort courses in the whole country.

Pretty high praise for a course which is only about 15 years old.

The front side of the Inn course is 3,406 yards long and plays to a par of 36. The back side play is 3,413 yards long and also plays to a par of 36.

As the new golf pro at the course, Huffman brings a wealth of knowledge about resort golf courses to the Inn. A former PGA golfer, Huffman has played golf all over the world and has been a golf professional at a number of courses in the United States, including several destination resorts. He came to the Inn from Del Webb's Sun City South, outside Phoenix.

Huffman took The News around the Inn of the Mountain Gods golf course, and offered his suggestions on how the long hitters should play the course from the blue championship tees.

—Number 1, 537 yard, Par 5.

The first hole is the number one handicap hole on the course, but not necessarily the hardest hole on the course.

There is a fairway trap on the right side of the fairway, but the landing area for your drive is quite generous.

A small creek cuts through the hole around 270 yards off of the tee and can be reached on the drive, Huffman said. The green is elevated with trees and sand traps which protect the front.

Huffman said a long drive will give a person a shot at going for the green in two, but the second shot is all uphill.

He said, unless you are extremely accurate with your fairway woods, the thing to do is lay up with a mid to a long iron in another generous landing area in front of the hole. He said since the area narrows down near the hole, you had better be on target if you hit a fairway wood.

"It makes it an interesting par five from the standpoint it gives you a few options on how to play the hole."

—Number 2, 440 yard, Par 4.

According to Huffman, this is the toughest hole on course. The dogleg left hole has trees on both sides of the fairway. Two tall pine trees are situated in the fairway near where the ideal driving position is located.

Huffman said it takes a drive of around 270 to clear the corner of the dogleg. He said the thing to do is hit a fade down the left side of the hole and try and leave yourself anywhere from a four to a seven iron into the green.

The green itself is a long narrow green with no sand traps. Huffman said if you miss this green, you better miss it right. A ball to the right will hit a hill and roll back down to the green. A ball to the left will roll down a hill and into some brush.

"The placement of your second shot is very important on the second hole. In my opinion it is probably the toughest hole on the golf course to consistantly make par or better on."

—Number 3, 338 yard, Par 4.

While not a very long hole, the third hole is an interesting hole.

The fairway has two levels and is dotted with trees spaced throughout.

Huffman said the second shot is usually a wedge or a sand wedge into a green bunkers both front left and front right. He added that there is a definate difference in the pace of a putt on the green from front to back than back to front.

"On almost every green on the golf course, you try to position yourself so you're below the hole."

—Number 4, 391 yard, Par 4.

Like the third, the fourth hole is not particularly long. Huffman said the drive on this hole is very important. He said the longer you hit your drive the more chance you run of hitting it into trees near the green.

He said after a good drive, the second shot is only an eight, nine iron or pitching wedge into a slightly elevated green with bunkers on both sides.

Huffman added that because the green is slightly elevated it is hard to tell whether the pin is on the front or back of the green.

"It's a judgment call whether the pin is in the front or the back, and you hope you make the right choice. It's a difficult green to get the ball close."

—Number 5, 197 yard, Par 3.

Huffman said the fifth hole is probably the easiest of the par threes on the golf course. The green is relatively flat and guarded by a small pond short left of the green and a sand trap to the right.

He said since the hole plays slightly downhill, the club to use is usually a five or a six iron.

"The idea here is just to get it on the green and you have a pretty reasonable putt at it from anywhere."

—Number 6, 352 yard, Par 4.

The sixth hole has two tall pine trees just off the tee and Huffman said those trees make the tee shot very important.

He said it requires a fade off of the tee. A shot down the sloping left side of the fairway will cause the ball to roll into the middle of the fairway.

The second shot will require a nine iron or a wedge into another relatively flat green which is bunkered in both the front and the back.

"Anywhere you have it on the green, you are not looking at that difficult of a putt."

—Number 7, 362 yard, Par 4.

The seventh hole plays uphill with a fairway which slopes from left to right. Two fairway bunkers are situated on the right about 220 yards from the tee.

"The drive is a strategic placement on the seventh hole."

Huffman said if a player can't drive over the bunkers on the hole, then the shot required is a fade and once again a ball down the left will kick right into the middle of the fairway. The second shot is an uphill shot usually with anything from an eight iron to a wedge.

The green has two tiers, so it is extremely important to place the ball on the correct tier.

—Number 8, 227 yard, Par 3.

The view from the eighth tee box is nice, but most amateur golfers get a lump in their throats when they look down the 60-foot drop in elevation from tee to green.

Huffman said normally on a par three this long you would hit a one iron or a three wood. But because of the elevation drop the hole plays four club lengths shorter. He said the tee shot actually calls for a five or six iron.

"The elevation drop carries the ball a lot further."

He added the thing to do on this hole is just get it on the green. The green is bunkered left, right and long, and trees come into play along the entire length.

—Number 9, 542 yard, Par 5.

The long ninth hole has a large pine tree which sits in the middle of the fairway and a pond on the left side of the fairway.

Huffman said the thing to do is hit to either the left or right of the pine tree, but don't try to go over it. He said the two tiered green can be reached in two if you hit a good drive. The fairway slopes from right to left, so shots down the right side roll into the middle.

"If you don't get to the green in two, its important you place your third shot on the same tier as the flag."

The green is bunkered on both the front left and front right.

—Number 10, 348 yard, Par 4.

The tenth hole is a unique hole with an island in the middle.

Huffman said the hole gives you two options. Strong hitters he said can try and hit the ball over the island and land it short of the green. He said to do that you have to hit the ball about 285 yards in the air.

The second option is to take a four iron and hit the ball to the wide area of the fairway on the island. The second shot will then require either a nine iron or a wedge.

"The green is built on a peninsula, which kind of puts a lot of premium on the accuracy of your second shot."

The green is also bunkered both left and right.

—Number 11, 501 yard, Par 5.

The eleventh hole requires an accurate tee shot if the player wants to try and reach the green in two. A bunker guards the left side of the fairway and a group of trees guards the right side.

If you miss both problems in the fairway, Huffman said the two tiered green can be reached in two with a long iron or a fairway wood.

"It's very important if you don't get to the green in two, you place your third shot on the same tier as the flag."

—Number 12, 212 yard, Par 3.

The twelfth hole, according to Huffman, is the best par three on the golf course.

"It sets up like a great golf hole."

The hole has a pond with railroad ties in front and running along the left side of the green. An extreme shot over the green will end up with the ball in the lake. There is also a bunker on the back left of the green. Huffman said the hole plays either a three or four iron.

"The only place if you're going to miss a shot there is to the right of the green, which gives you a chance to chip and putt. Anything short and left or long and left is in the water."

—Number 13, 412 yard, Par 4.

The thirteenth is a fairly straight away hole with a very wide landing area for the drive. It plays slightly uphill, so it plays a little longer than the yardage suggests.

"Basically what you do is stand up there and you can really swing away at this hole. It has the length and it gives you a little latitude to be errant with the drive and still have a second shot."

Huffman said the second shot is usually a six to an eight iron shot to a green bunkered on the front right.

He added that the thirteenth green is very deceiving in that it looks flat, but actually slopes away from the mountian. He said it is important to be on the low side of the flag.

—Number 14, 526 yard, Par 5.

The double dogleg fourteenth hole is the number two handicap hole on the course and the toughest hole on the back side.

Huffman said unless a person hits a perfect hooking tee shot down the left side, it is almost impossible to reach the green in two.

About 100 yards short of the green, there are two pine trees which come into play on an approach shot from the right. The two tiered green itself slopes from back to front and is bunkered both on the left and right.

"You always want to position yourself on these holes where you are putting back up toward the mountain."

—Number 15, 398 yard, Par 4.

The fifteenth hole plays downhill so it doesn't play as long as the yardage indicates. There is a fairway bunker on the left side about 225 yards from the tee. There is also a bunker on the right side of the fairway, just past the one on the left.

Huffman said the tee shot calls for a draw which should leave you a nine iron or a pitching wedge to a green banked into the approach shot. The green is bunkered on the front left and the front right, as well as long.

"It presents itself with a pretty level putting surface."

—Number 16, 378 yard, Par 4.

The sixteenth hole is an uphill hole with the green framed on both the left and right by pine trees.

Huffman said some people will hit a driver on this hole, but he usually hits a one iron.

"You have a clear opening into the green right in the middle of the fairway, but the closer you get to the green, the more you are blocked out on the right or the left by the trees near the green."

He said by hitting a one iron and laying back, he can hit an eight iron through the opening to the green. By laying back, Huffman said if you are left or right of the fairway you can still hit over the trees with a short iron instead of trying to punch a ball under them.

He said because the green is elevated, like the fourth hole, it is difficult to tell whether the pin is in the front or the back.

—Number 17, 409 yard, Par 4.

The seventeenth hole plays downhill from an elevated tee box into a valley and then slightly uphill to a green bunkered on both the front left and right.

A long drive will leave the player with a nine iron or a wedge into the elevated green.

Huffman said this green has a double factor in trying to determine the break. The break is controlled by both the lay of the land away from Sierra Blanca and by the water in Lake Mescalero.

"If you're in the wrong position on this green, the grain will sweep the ball hard left to right, make it extremely quick or make it extremely slow. So the shot selection for your second shot on seventeen is extremely important."

—Number 18, 229 yard, Par 3.

If you're the kind of amatuer golfer who doesn't like to hit a ball across water, do not step up to the blue tees on number 18. The sight will scare you to death.

Huffman said he normally doesn't like to see a par three as the finishing hole on a golf course, but this one is an exception.

"It's a tee shot from the blue tees of 229 yards and it plays all of it. It's slightly downhill, so in actual yardage it may not play as much, but the mental anguish of looking at having to hit it at least 210 yards over water more than makes up for it."

Huffman said he plays the hole with either a one or two iron depending on the wind.

The green is bunkered both right and left so the only places to bail out on the shot is to the right or short of the green. Anything to the left of the hole is in the water.

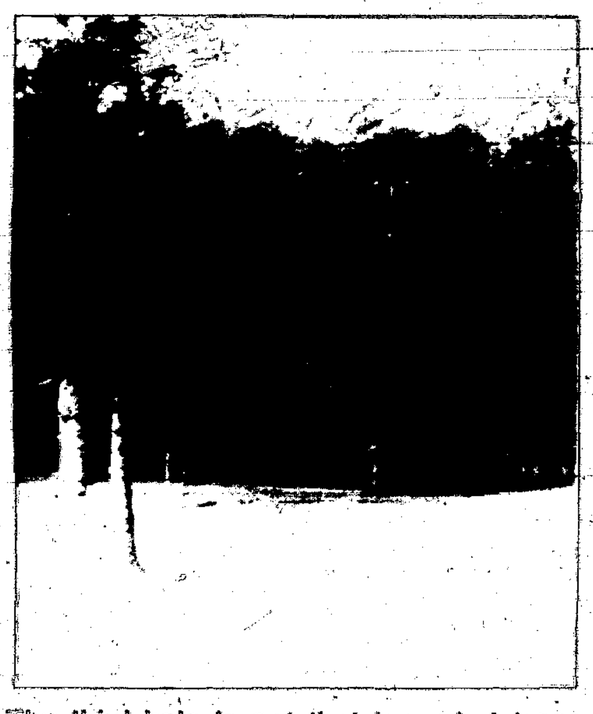
Huffman said as far as he is concerned both the front and the back nine play about the same. He said if you look at the two sides separately, the front side is designed for a fade shot, while the back side is designed for a draw shot.

He said if you can hit both kinds of shot, neither side should bother you. But, he said most amateur golfers can only hit one or the other, so if you slice the ball the front is easier, if you hook the ball the back is easier.

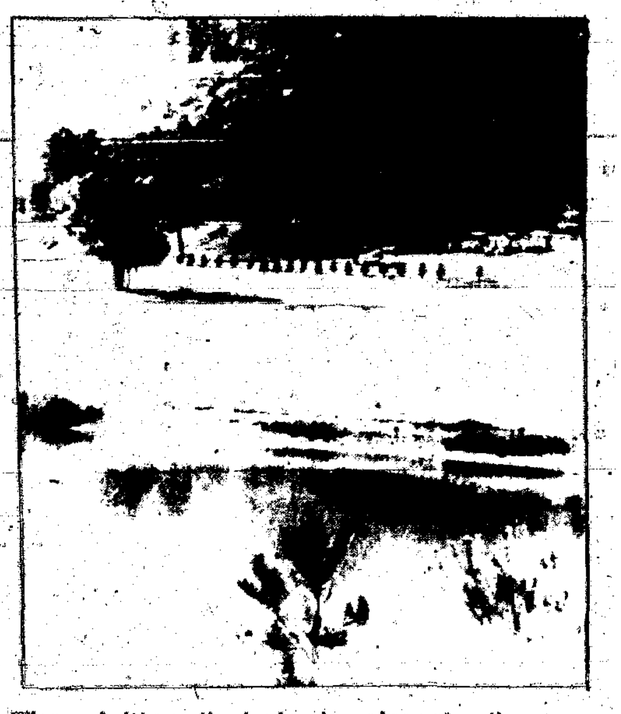
Huffman said, while the par fives and the par fours are pretty equal on both the front and the back, the two par threes on the back play about a stroke hard apiece than the two on the front.

The Inn of the Mountain Gods golf course is open to the public. The green fees vary depending on the time of year and whether you are a hotel guest or not. Golf carts are required on the course. For more information or to reserve a tee time call 257-5141.

The fourteenth hole at the Inn of the Mountain Gods golf course is a double dogleg with two large pine trees guarding the right side of the green. The fourteenth is the number two handicap hole on the course and toughest hole on the back.



The third hole is not that long, but trees spaced throughout the fairway make the correct placing of the tee shot important. The third green is bunkered both front left and front right.



The eighteenth hole is almost all carry over water to a green bunkered both left and right. While it is not the most difficult hole on the course, it is the most intimidating.

Thrift Shop serves customers while helping the hospital

by AL STUBBS
Ruidoso News Business Editor

If Connie Manire weren't strictly a volunteer, she would be drawing down big money as manager of a thriving, going enterprise.

A member of the Lincoln County Medical Center Auxiliary, Manire came on the Ruidoso scene 16 years ago from El Paso, Texas. She has managed the auxiliary Thrift Shop for two years and has been a member for five years.

Her hard-working volunteer assistant is Marcella Lotz. Lotz also is secretary of the auxiliary whose members work diligently at the Thrift Shop five days a week. Some 35 Pink Lady members are on call to work.

Scheduling volunteer workers is the responsibility of auxiliary member Ruth Moore. She also is auxiliary scholarship chairman.

The remarkable fact about the auxiliary and Thrift Shop is the amount of money cleared by the shop and what it is used for.

Manire says the shop, which exists on donations of clothing and all types of used and new merchandise from Lincoln County residents and businesses, clears about $1,000 a week.

"We couldn't stay open without donations," Manire says. She says the auxiliary is very grateful for the invaluable and constant support from donors.

Virtually every dime except for rent and utilities at the Thrift Shop location, 140 Nob Hill Drive in Palmer Gateway, goes to purchase needed medical equipment, machines, training films, manikins and such for the Lincoln County Medical Center. Some money is set aside for scholarships for high school graduates wishing to enter the medical or nursing fields.

Another enterprise of the auxiliary is the Pink Shop, coffee and gift shop, in the medical center proper. That facility is more or less a service for the hospital and is not a big money maker.

Auxiliary members also spend volunteer time at the front desk at the hospital, answering questions, directing traffic, delivering fruit juice and newspapers to patients and otherwise being helpful.

Auxiliary members are proud of the Thrift Shop and what its income does for the hospital.

Last year, for example, the auxiliary provided funds for an Air Shield Isolette, $500 training film, Addressograph (imprinter), wheel chairs, Addressograph proper, extractor and more.

This year, the auxiliary is committed to purchasing an oxygen regulator ($4,000), computers ($8,000), neonatal monitor ($8,000), IVAC machines ($10,535), lounge chairs for families, external pacing machine ($9,000), EMS training manikin $750) and funds for child birthing classes.

And that list was just for the first three months of 1990.

The auxiliary and Thrift Shop are the heroes of the Medical Center. A number of auxiliary members have thousands of hours of volunteer service. They were recognized recently at an annual recognition luncheon.

In the Thrift Shop, not all merchandise donated to the cause sells. Volunteer Ruben Sandoval is in charge of taking surplus goods to Ysleta and El Paso, Texas, and to Chihuahua, Mexico, where it all goes to charitable organizations including churches.

Couples, like Lorene Ross and Carl Ross, put in hours and hours at the Thrift Shop.

The Thrift Shop and Pink Shop both have been in operation since 1979.

The manager of the Thrift Shop is appointed by the LCMC Auxiliary president.

She is the official sorter and pricer. She organizes volunteers to assist in pricing, hanging and straightening merchandise to keep the Thrift Shop neat and clean.

These duties are just the beginning. She keeps a running tab of monies received plus many other duties.

In snowy weather, the manager decides whether to close the facility for the day.

The financial secretary sees to it that no monies are left at the shop overnight.

Customers come not only from Ruidoso and Lincoln County communities, but from Las Cruces, Alamogordo, Tularosa, Roswell and other area towns and villages.

In fact, the Thrift Shop has a faithful core of customers as well as volunteer workers.

It's a going concern, no doubt about it.

CONNIE MANIRE

The Pink Shop in the Lincoln County Medical Center is another auxiliary enterprise. The combination coffee and gift shop utilizes the talents of many auxiliary members. Here Cal Cowden (left) is on duty. Customers at the time were Marilyn McCoy, director of materials management at the hospital, John Caranta, and Randall McCoy, Marilyn McCoy's son. The Pink Shop was remodeled recently.

Lincoln County Medical Center Auxiliary volunteers, (above) Ruth Moore, scheduler at the Thrift Shop; Ruben Sandoval; Marcella Lotz, assistant manager, and Connie Manier, Thrift Shop manager, show merchandise to customers. Lorene Ross and Carl Ross (at right) wait on a customer during a busy, busy afternoon at the auxiliary's successful used merchandise shop located next to the Eastern Star building. Proceeds from the Thrift Shop go almost exclusively for Lincoln County Medical Center equipment.

Ruidoso Downs is seeking a mayor

by FRANKIE JARRELL
Ruidoso News Editor

The Village of Ruidoso Downs Board of Trustees could be selecting a mayor during a regular meeting at 7 p.m. today (Monday), July 23, at the Municipal Building in Ruidoso Downs.

When Mayor C.L. "Bones" Wright resigned during the last regular meeting, village attorney Gary Mitchell explained that the board can appoint any registered voter who lives in Ruidoso Downs.

Mayor Pro-tem Bonnie Addy asked for public input in the selection process, and placed a box in the front of the office for citizens to place the names of their choices.

People whose names have been put in the box include former mayor Jake Harris, convicted felon Greg Jefferson, Addy, Trustee Jackie Branum, Tracye Brewer and Robin Surguy.

Basketmaker passes down her knowledge

by JUDY HYMAN
Special to The News

On a cool, green hillside in Mescalero, a small, solemn woman sits in the shade making baskets. She is the sole remaining maker of traditional Mescalero and Chiracahua Apache baskets on the Mescalero Apache reservation.

Pauline Kaydahzinne learned the trade from her grandmother, Helen Chatto, who accompanied Geronimo to Florida when the Apache tribes were sent there by the United States government in the late 19th century.

Kaydahzinne, who recently received a $3,320 tutorial grant from the New Mexico Arts Division, will pass on her art to her daughter, Audrey Summa, this fall.

"Audrey already knows how to make the basic basket," Kaydahzinne said. "But she needs to learn to make jingles, more about collecting and preparing the sumac and yucca, and how to dye and make designs. She will also learn to make the platter and bowl shaped baskets."

PAULINE KAYDAZINNE

According to Kaydahzinne, she and her apprentice will meet twice a week for an eight-hour session of basket weaving over a period of eight months. Audrey will be expected to complete eight baskets of different sizes and shapes. An additional two days will be devoted to gathering sumac and yucca sticks for the baskets each week.

Kaydahzinne makes three traditional types of baskets; the burden basket, platter baskets and bowl baskets.

Baskets may be woven only during the months between October and March, Kaydahazinne said, because the materials have to be moist and pliant. If the sticks dry out, they can't be used. To be fresh enough to work with, they must be gathered twice a week.

When the leftover sticks dry out, Kaydahzinne bundles them and lays them under a tree to return to the environment. They are never burned nor used for any purpose other than weaving the baskets.

Because basketmaking is a tradition handed down from her Apache ancestors, Kaydahzinne takes it seriously.

"I ask God to help me every time I look for sticks," she said. "There are hardly any sticks around here anymore, so I pray and then I find good sticks to make baskets."

She does not solicit customers for her art.

"I don't make baskets every day and go at it all the time," she said, "I only do it once in a while when people ask me to."

Nevertheless, she is nationally known, among Indians and non-Indians, for the beauty of her baskets.

Kaydahzinne's daughter, Birdena, says her mother has been contacted by people all over the country to ask her to make one for them.

"My mom doesn't realize how special this art is," she said. "It's something she's been doing all her life."

Kaydahzinne approaches her art with deep respect.

"The burden basket ... holds the history of my people and I treat and make it with reverence. I learned from my grandmother, Helen Chatto, when I was 27 years old and I have been making baskets ever since. I have taught all my daughters to do this, but Audrey is the most interested," she added.

Kaydahzinne has six daughters and several granddaughters. To her, basketmaking is a family art to be passed on to each of them.

"Her art has so much meaning because it came from her grandmother," Birdena Kaydahzinne said. "She wants her students to know where it came from, and to use it with respect."

Helen Chatto was blind when she died in 1963, the year Birdena was born.

"But her hands knew how to make baskets anyway," said Birdena. "I have heard so much about her, I know she was a special person."

This is the attitude Pauline Kahdahzinne expects from her students. She fears it might not exist in someone outside her family, thus, she trains her daughters carefully.

"I want to give it to them first, and after that they can ..." her voice trails away softly, but her meaning is clear.

Pauline Kaydazinne is a master basketmaker in Mescalero who recently received a tutoring grant from the state.

She intends that her art will live on, beyond herself and Helen Chatto, in the hands and hearts of Audrey Summa, Birdena Kaydahzinne, and other descendents of the master basketmaker of Mescalero.

Group strives to protect land for the future

by RICHARD A. HARROLD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

We do not own the land, but borrow it from our grandchildren.

Protection of the land for future production is the primary goal of holistic resource management, and followers of this philosophy hope their idea will catch on to improve environmental conditions.

The New Mexico chapter for the Center for Holistic Resource Management (HRM), based in Albuquerque, conducted its annual meeting Saturday in Mescalero at the Inn of the Mountain Gods.

Besides conducting organization business, the meeting also included presentation of holistic methods and concepts.

But acceptance of holistic methods of resource management have not been widely accepted because it is so different from more widely accepted methods of resource development and business management.

Still, if you talk to those who use holistic methods, you will find they will never go back to their old ways.

"Holistic resource management is not a quick fix, but it saved our lives," said Bert Madera during his presentation on drought.

A director in HRM, Madera has been using holistic resource management techniques at his ranch in Jal for 10 years, although it took him the first five years just to understand and put into place the first line of the system, goal setting, he said.

Holistic resource management was developed by Rhodesian researcher Alan Savory, who founded the Center for HRM in Albuquerque.

Savory identified a process occurring in areas of seasonal rain that he calls desertification, something he believes is very severe in the southwestern U.S.

Holism seeks to sustain a resource over long-term periods by employing uses that do not threaten future production.

How the resource is used is determined by what goals are set by the individual or business using the resource, and these goals are determined by what quality of life is desired, rather than a lifestyle.

Holistic resource management has been most widely adapted to ranching because it is out of range management research the technique was developed.

But wide acceptance by the ranching community has not been achieved because new ideas are so hard to accept, according to Savory and others using holistic approaches.

A video presented during the day-long meeting described why new ideas are not accepted because of what is called paradigm paralysis.

In the video it was stated that good ideas get shot down by the belief the future is an extension of the past.

A paradigm is a set of rules which establishes boundaries and then these rules help someone to solve a problem within the boundaries established by the paradigm.

Paradigms are useful in that they screen out irrelevant data when approaching a problem, but this same screening process will prevent data from coming in or being recognized that may be helpful if that data does not fit the paradigm.

Also, a favored paradigm will allow a researcher to distort irrelevant data to make it fit with the scheme.

For example, most motorists approaching a red, eight-sided sign will stop even if the word "GO" appears on the sign, because of our stop sign paradigm. The word "GO" is ignored and not seen because we automatically assume the sign is a stop sign.

Because holistic resource management techniques claim current methods to approach environmental issues are only making things worse, the concept hasn't gained wide acceptance.

"We must join together with common goals to help the planet," said Madera during his presentation.

Holistic methods promote the idea an individual must produce more than is consumed. Many ranchers and others go broke because they attempt to sustain a lifestyle that is bigger than the individual's reserves.

By producing more than is consumed, reserves are built up to protect the individual or business, and these reserves must be part of the solar chain, said Madera.

At the bottom is the land, from which all resources to sustain life come. Holism, therefore, seeks activity that will increase the productiveness of the land, but will not deplete the resources used.

The Center for Holistic Resource Management has a school available for those interested in learning more about the techniques and their applicability to various endeavors.

The annual meeting in Mescalero was open to the public and drew about 50 persons. Only about 25 persons were present for last year's meeting in Santa Rosa, said organizers.

Just what is a toad's life? This critter here is enjoying the cool pond at Goodloe's ranch. The pond is filled with goldfish and catfish and is spring fed. Riparian areas are pretty sites, but if the watersheds feeding these zones is not protected, all effort to protect the riparian area will fail, said Goodloe.

Lincoln County rancher Sid Goodloe speaks to visitors at his Carrizo Valley Ranch during a tour of his ranch and of the Tucson Valley Ranch sponsored by the New Mexico section of the Society for Range Management. Goodloe uses an adaptation of holistic resource management at his ranch.

Exotic camel-kin is right at home in Lincoln County

It's a sheep ... it's a goat ... Nope! it's a real-live llama

by RICHARD A. HARROLD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Move over, Silver, because Ruidoso is no longer a one-horse town. Miss Daisy is here.

We're talking llamas, a cousin of the camel that hails from the South American mountains known as the Andes.

Ronnie and Terry Hemphill of Alto have started their own llama breeding farm of the exotic creatures, more commonly known for their comic role in the movie Doctor Doolittle.

Remember the pushme-pullyou? That was a llama's starring role.

Llama breeding is becoming big business in the U.S. In fact, some wilderness outfitters use the animal as a beast of burden rather than mules or pack horses.

In the past few years the price of a breeding llama has more than doubled. Females can fetch between $15,000 and $20,000, while the males start at $1,000.

Llamas are a two-toed member of the camel family and are suited well to mountainous terrain. Their two-toed hooves are also gentler on the land than horses or mules, and they eat less as well.

Rather than graze, llamas browse as do deer and elk. They eat grass and leafy plants, and because they can chew their own cud, can get by on just a little.

They are curious creatures too, and although known for spitting, they tend to reserve this noxious habit for each other to assert dominance, said Terry Hemphill.

As a pack animal, a llama can carry about one-quarter its own weight. Because they are a herd animal, they stick together, making it easier to keep track of them on a trip.

Their wool can also be woven into fine rugs and garments. Shearing is not necessary, as the wool can be removed simply by combing.

Media reports estimate there are about 150 llamas in New Mexico. Some are even being used by the Pecos Ranger District near Santa Fe.

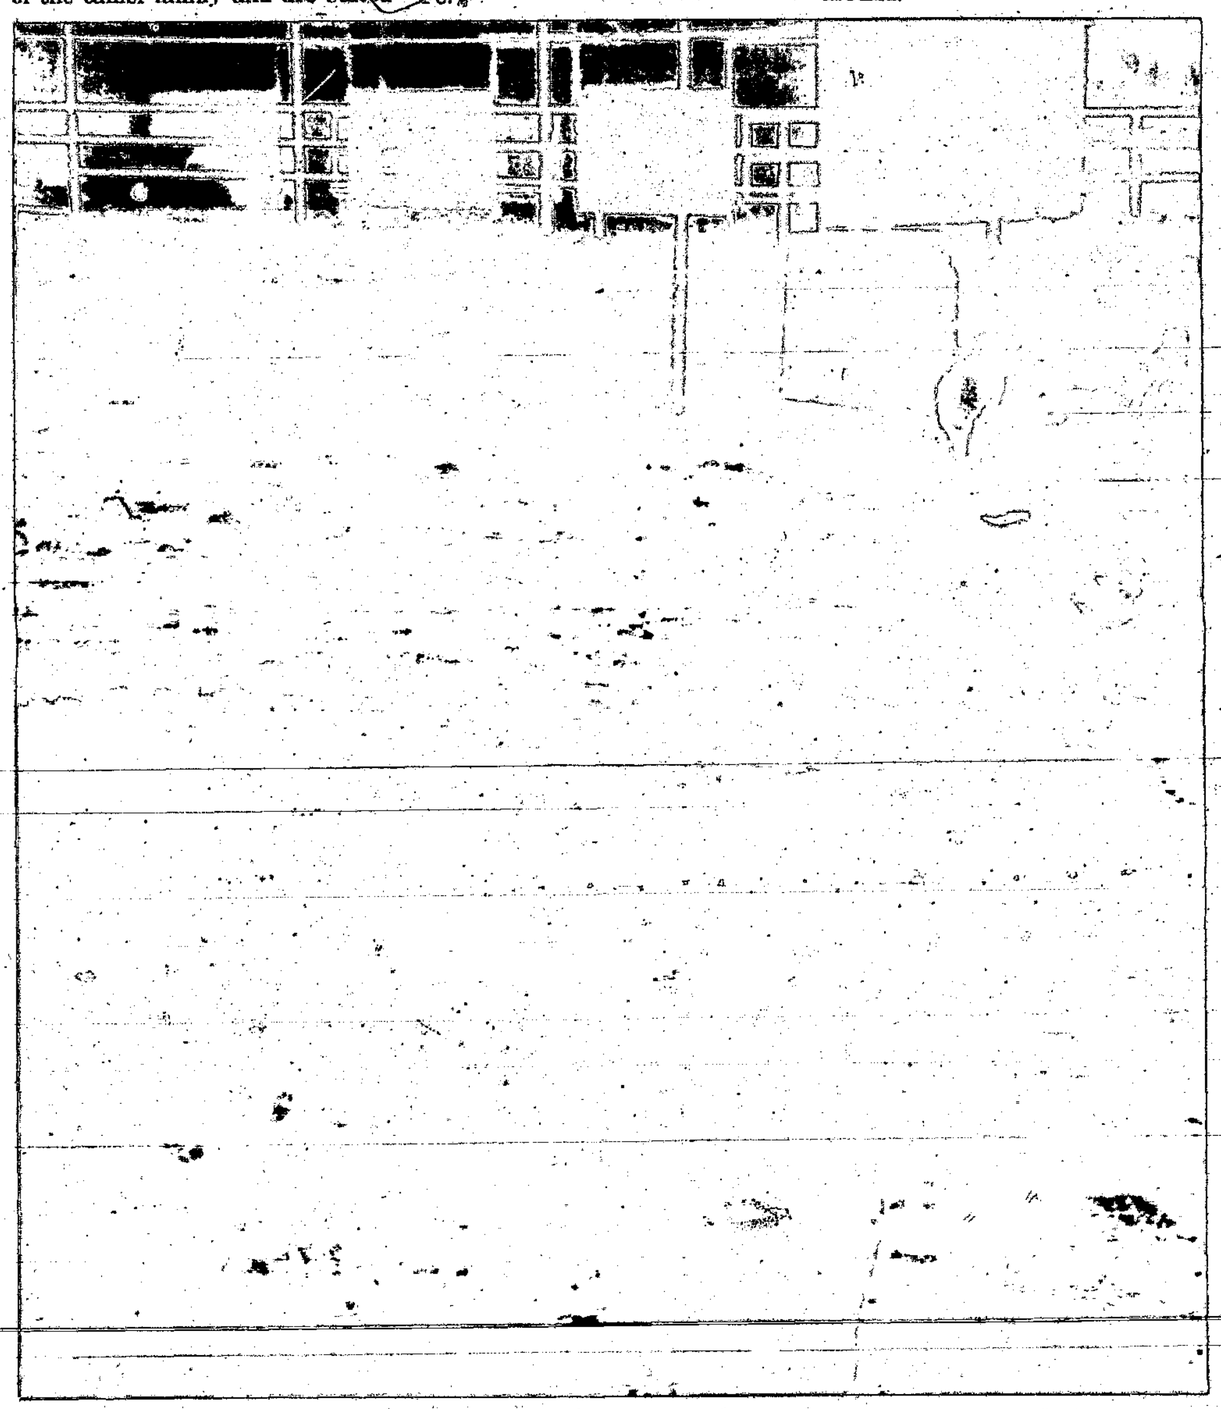
Having a rather distinctive history in this country, almost all the llamas in the U.S. can be traced back to a herd once owned by newspaper mogul William Randolph Hearst, said Doctor Steve Komadina in a Roswell Daily Record article.

Hemphill said the llama is very easy to care for, requiring no special attention and a minimal amount of browsing territory. Their minimal impact on the terrain because of their two-toed feet is making the llama more and more attractive as a pack animal in wilderness areas.

They also make an interesting humming noise when either content, or even perturbed, said Hemphill.

So if you're looking for a new animal to breed, why not try a llama? It could be a very lucrative business venture, and if anything else, they are quite pleasant to be around.

Amy Hemphill attempts to kiss Corn Moquino, one of the llamas owned by the Hemphills. Kim Jones is standing behind Amy. Below, Nandi, eats from the hand. Nandi is the mother of the younger llamas and rules the roost.



Below, the two-toed hoof of a llama is not the prettiest of sights, but does not tear up the soil like larger, single-toed animals do.

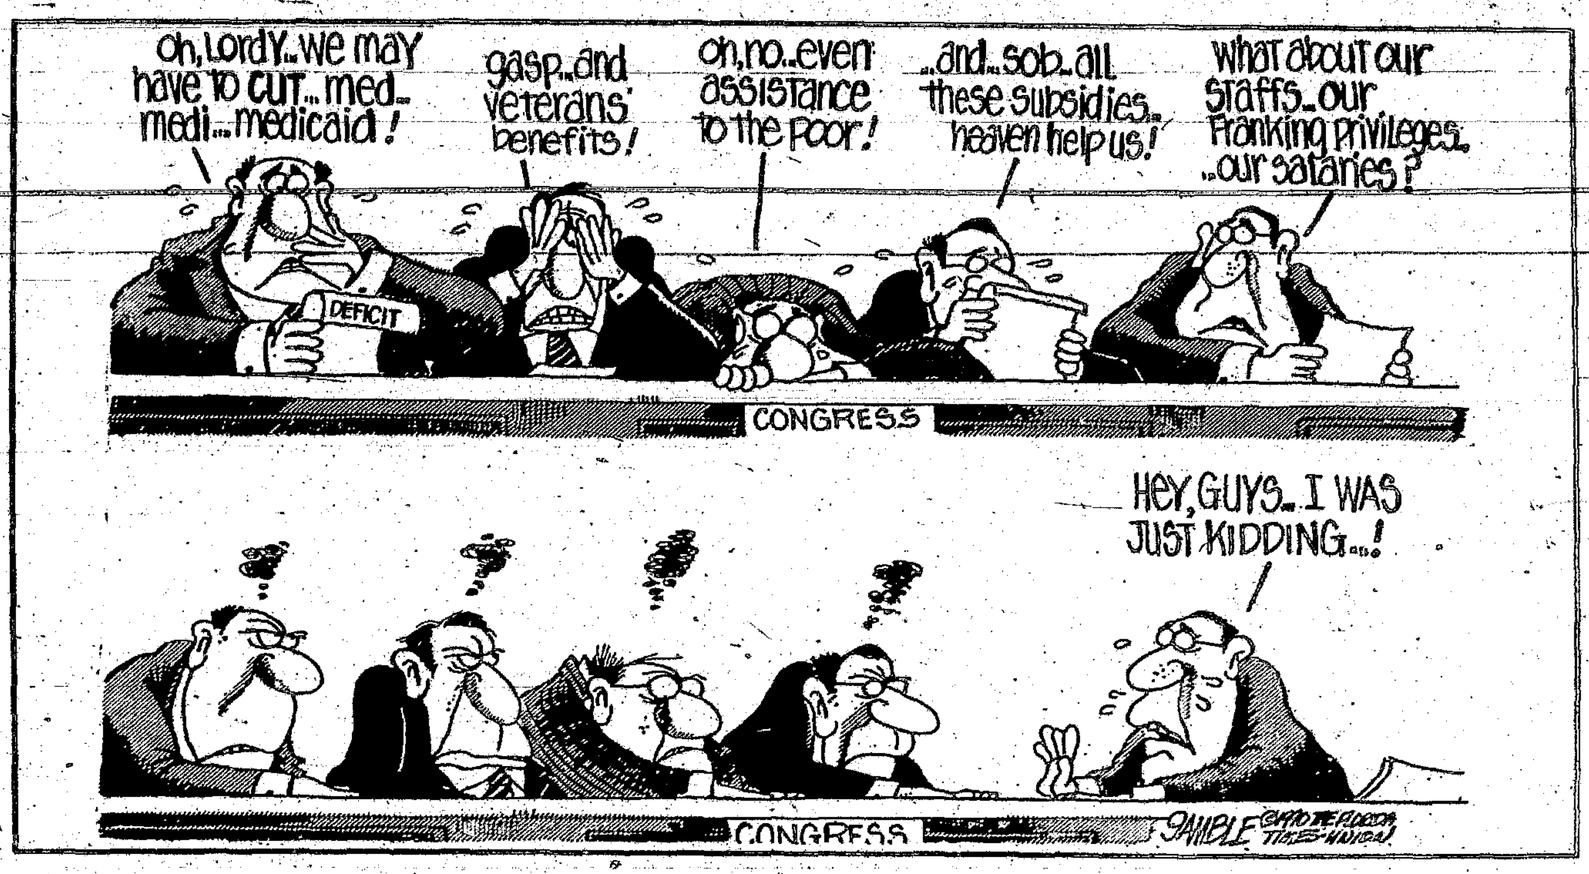
Opinion



Editorial

In a perfect world, we wouldn't need a code enforcement officer.

But, since we don't live in a perfect world, we believe a code enforcement officer is an important part of the village team, especially if we're going to put our best foot forward as a tourist town.

We need a code enforcement officer out and about to see that old signs are removed, permits are acquired for construction projects, business licenses are issued for temporary operations, construction trash is disposed of properly, weeds are kept in control and the like. It's a full-time job to keep the village looking good.

Besides keeping the town looking its best, a qualified code enforcement officer could also keep us out of trouble and even out of court. The current reactive-type enforcement has the appearance of selective enforcement, a practice that could land us in court.

We urge the mayor and council to dig deep for funds to hire a code enforcement officer. The money we spend to fund that position will be an investment in our future.

Family Reading Challenge 1990

What's So Funny?

Find a funny or unusual photo in today's newspaper and clip it. Cut off the caption and ask everyone in your family to write a funny caption. Have family members vote on the funniest.

You can do the same thing with comics. Black out the words with a felt tip pen, and have each family member write new words for the characters.

Family Reading Challenge 1990 Entry Form

Yes! I have met the Family Reading Challenge by reading at least

☐ 2 newspaper articles ☐ 2 books and ☐ 2 magazine stories and I have discussed them with my parent(s), guardian or other adult

Signature of Young Reader _____ Signature of Parent, Guardian or Other Adult _____

Please register me for the October drawing of awards. The grand prize this year will be an IBM Writing to Read Laboratory for the young reader's school and an IBM PC for his or her family. On The Record

Reading will make the difference in the future of the entire world

by Frankie Jarrell
Ruidoso News Editor

The title: "Age of Indifference," caught my eye; and the lead, "Why won't Johnny read?" drew me right into an article in this week's edition of "Editors and Publishers."

We hope you've noticed that this newspaper is taking part in a literacy campaign this summer. Each week we carry a segment of the "Family Reading Challenge 1990," designed to encourage families to read newspapers.

You see, we believe that our nation is in grave danger of losing its strength and focus as our young people lose their ability and inclination to read. Look for the Family Reading Challenge activity, "Rhyme Time," in today's edition. Taking the reading challenge can be lots of fun.

But, back to the "Age of Indifference."

Writer Debra Gersh, in that story, tells of a survey conducted by the Times Mirror Center for The People and The Press that indicates some alarming statistics.

According to Gersh, that survey says in part that the younger generation "knows less, cares less, and reads newspapers less. It is also a generation that votes less and is less critical of its leaders and institutions than young people in the past."

"Compared to a 50-year-old, the average 30-year-old is much more likely to use a computer, to have attended college and even to say that he or she is currently reading a book. But this new research reveals startling differences in what the generation knows and cares about," continues the story.

The survey results show that the current generation is more interested in sound-bites and symbolism than in facts and figures.

The decline in voting that is taking place among younger people may just be a blessing in disguise. For with this declining appetite for news, and this blind acceptance of promotional hype, maybe we're better off with fewer voters.

"The 30-second commercial spot is a particularly appropriate medium for the MTV generation," Gersh quotes the survey as saying. Pretty scary, hunh?

Which makes me understand why my mother, on her last visit in Ruidoso, asked: "Doesn't anyone around here ever watch the news?"

You see, my mother is nearly 91, and her appetite for news has outlasted her eyesight. She, as many of her generation, would be reading newspapers if her eyes were still up to par. But, since they aren't, she watches dozens of news programs.

The News editorial staff reads. We read two daily newspapers and stacks of weekly and twice-weekly newspapers. We all read magazines and books, and most of us can't understand why everybody doesn't like to read.

Al and Richard recently wrote columns about the joys of reading. That joy was instilled in both of them at a young age, and the same goes for me.

Before I could read, my mother read to me. She read me good books, and acted like she really enjoyed the stories as much as I did. And I've loved reading ever since.

We had books and magazines at our house, and we laughed and talked about what those publications had to say. We were anything but indifferent to what was going on in those days, and we're not indifferent now.

If we could share our love of reading with someone else, we'd all be better off. So, if you know any kids, take the reading challenge with them this summer.

Reading will ensure that the next generation won't grow up illiterate or indifferent. The more they know the more they'll care.

If you love to read, pass it on.

County scenes

Serene scenes from throughout Lincoln County include Carrizozo Lake (top), adjacent to the Carrizozo Golf Course. Above, a drive up the Ski Run Road offers many vistas of the Ruidoso and Bonito valleys, as well as panoramic views of the White Mountains and Capitans. Grave markers can be found in many of the old cemeteries, providing a glimpse into the area's past.
