Inasmuch as it was predicted that 1921 would be a "million-car year," this output is highly gratifying to the industry, for it demonstrates conclusively that the sale of motor vehicles is established on a solid foundations regardless of general industrial conditions.

MARKET REPORTS AID TRADE

Government Helps Farmer by Giving Out Information Regarding Supplies and Prices.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In a strict sense there can be no such thing as a "fair trade" when either party has the advantage of vastly superior information. Up to the time the bureau of markets and crop estimates of the United States Department of Agriculture was established most transactions in the marketing of farm products were, in this sense, unfair. This was due to the fact that the buying side almost invariably had vastly better information regarding supplies, both available and prospective, future production, prices current throughout the country, and probable movements of the products.

Placing the farmer on the same footing with the buyer, so far as information is concerned, so that the element of chance applies equally to both, is the aim of the Department of Agriculture. For this, it gathers every available scrap of information relating to supplies, current quotations, and other fundamental conditions influencing markets, arranges the information in readable form, and makes it readily available to everyone having use of it.

Before the department took up this work, the farmer was not wholly without market reports. Newspapers, trade journals, telegraph companies, and many other organizations, as well as individuals, distributed in the rural districts reports that purported to be market information. Unfortunately for the farmer, however, many of these reports originated with buyers of farm produce, or from sources controlled or dominated by such interests. Under these circumstances it was but natural that they redounded to the advantage of the buyer and almost invariably worked to the financial handicap of the farmer and producer.

The department's reports are now being made use of by practically all classes of people—farmers, commission merchants, boards of trade, brokers, chambers of commerce, retail dealers, and consumers. Most persons who have come in touch with the work of the department realize that it neither buys nor sells any commodity and has no interest to serve except that of accuracy. The whole purpose of its work is to hold a mirror before the markets of the country and to hold it at such an angle that all the people may see what is taking place at the moment.

KEEP HORSES IN CONDITION

Farmer Makes a Mistake in Not Using Animals Off and On During the Winter.

It is a shame to take a good horse from pasture and put him into the collar before a plow, mower, reaper, or other heavy draft implements without his having been hardened to it first. In the main this is the reason for so many sore necks, added of course to the poor-fitting collars. Horses that are to do the heavy work should be used off and on all winter so as to keep their shoulders in shape and the skin toughened. At any rate they should be used before a wagon, manure spreader, or at some light work for some time before hard work starts, to sure the collar fits. No collar pad is needed if the collar fits. Especially is this true with colts.

Lessons of War in New Defense

Plan Provides for an Efficient Staff Trained in Peace Time.

BARS CENTRALIZED CAMPS

Foundation Work on Great National Scheme for Mobilization Already Done—Regular Army to Train Men for War.

Washington.—Two lessons of the World war, learned at heavy cost, are sharply emphasized in a War department bulletin, giving the first official picture of the new national defense structure projected in the reorganized army of the United States.

One lesson comes direct from the battlefields of France. It is that efficient staff work is vital to modern military operations, and with it goes the corollary that staff functions cannot be learned over night.

The other comes from the wartime din and confusion of the centralized training camps at home. It is that efficient mobilization of the nation's fighting strength can be carried out only on a decentralized process through agencies set up in times of peace.

Realization that these lessons must be worked into the new military policy if perilous delay and costly confusion which preceded past mobilizations were to be avoided has marked the effort of the War department. The bulletin shows that it has attempted to write regulations under the revised national defense act that would furnish a clean-cut scheme for war mobilization without violating national traditions against militarism or creating machinery that would impose heavy burdens in peace times upon the taxpayers.

To Profit by Experience.

The project undertaken probably is the most far-reaching military effort the nation has ever attempted in peace times.

The foundation work has been done. All over the country decentralized machinery is being set up capable, its designers believe, of getting the nation on a war footing with little delay and confusion. Yet it is felt that the nation at large and even the most important links in the new defence chain, the regular army, the National Guard and the Officers' Reserve corps do not appreciate fully what is being done.

Col. John McA. Palmer, the officer assigned to aid congress in framing the legislation making it all possible, and who has devoted himself to a study of the subject, was called upon to furnish the document, and his work is to go to all parts of the new army as a means of preventing misunderstanding.

Colonel Palmer points out that at the conclusion of previous wars, the United States scrapped all it had learned in battle and demobilized without any attempt to carry those costly lessons on to younger generations for their protection and aid in time of war. Veterans of the Civil war, schooled in soldier craft, skilled in staff work and the handling of mighty hosts with minimum confusion in movement and minimum losses in battle, went back to civil life, he says, and lost all touch with military matters. When the war with Spain came their knowledge was lost to the men of 1898. It was necessary to build again from the ground up, and 1917 saw this waste repeated, the bulletin

Guard and the organized reserves into the army of the United States in peace times is defined by Colonel Palmer as follows:

"It is primarily the object of our new law to perpetuate the framework of the organization developed in the World war, so that its tremendous cost can be funded as a permanent investment for all time."

Had such a system as is now well advanced toward establishment been erected after the Civil war, the officer adds, "all 1,000 blue divisions that were needed for the war with Spain could have begun their expansion within 24 hours after the declaration of hostilities."

Centralized Process Demoralizing.

"Mobilization in 1917," Colonel Palmer continues, "would have proceeded as a decentralization process and not as a great centralized process, upsetting the economic life of the nation. It would not have been necessary to spend millions for great concentrated training camps or to overburden the railroads with unclassified personell and material in order to organize and train and equip and provide officers all at the same time. Such a national organization must have saved months in time and millions in money."

Colonel Palmer points out that Stonewall Jackson alone of leaders on either side of the Civil war entered the contest with knowledge of what staff work meant. He had studied Napoleon's troop orders, and in the first battle of the war, Colonel Palmer says, "showed that even raw troops can stand like a stone wall if the prevalent rawness does not extend to the craftsmanship of the commander."

To meet such a situation, the new military policy imposes on the regular army the duty of training in peace times the men on whom must of necessity fall the burden of command and direction of great forces in war. From this arises the present distribution of the regulars into divisional areas which underlay the corps and army area structure. It is not expected, officers say, that more than a division over will be brought together in peace times, but through practice in handling a divisional unit of 20,000 or so men, training can be imparted. It is felt, to fit future leaders to handle corps of armies in battle.

From its role as staff college, also comes the demand of the army for a larger proportion of officers than the actual enlisted strength of any probable regular force would require. These extra officers would play their part in the actual peace time employment of the army as such or even in small emergency that required only the regulars to meet the nation's needs. They would be under training in staff functions, and in turn by passing on their knowledge to the National Guardsmen and reserve officers and the whole scheme of keeping the country up to date in a military sense without keeping any substantial forces under arms at any time rests on this provision, it is asserted.

Supposed Suicide Gets Up and Runs

Baltimore.—Several hundred persons gathered on President street to await the arrival of the police to move the body of a reported suicide lying under a railroad car. They were startled when the man got up and ran. William N. Houck, conductor of a Baltimore & Ohio railroad train, grabbed the man and held him for the police.

The "suicide" gave his name as Angelo Scapano, thirty-two, and an address on President street. He was found lying between two freight cars, with his head across one of the rails, a pistol with two [illegible] chambers was nearby.

Accidently Shot.

Ottman Lindemaker, living in the Encinoso neighborhood, accidently shot himself with a 32 six shooter Thursday evening. It seems he fell down with the pistol in his scabbard when it fired and the bullet passed through his leg above the knee-joint. He was brought to town and the Lincoln doctor is attending him, and considers the wound not a dangerous one.

W. G. Breitman, the Fort Stanton plumber, and perhaps the oldest employe at the Fort passed through Capitan Tuesday enroute to Carrizozo driving a brand new Ford. He was also wearing a very handsome new suit of clothes, all of which gave him a very fine and attractive appearance. As there have been several widowers and bachelors in this vicinity married recently, somehow Bright's looks and actions left the suspicion that he might matrimonial notions in his head.

Roy A. Black, who moved here from Seagrove, Texas, last spring, is arranging to establish an office in Capitan for the purpose handling real estate and has already a quite a number of good ranches and farms listed for sale. Mr. Black is an experienced real estate man and had a paying business where he came from. He has an extensive acquaintance throughout central and western Texas, as well as in Oklahoma, and will be able to bring home settlers into this country. If you have land for sale and will list it with Mr. Black he will do his best to find you a buyer.

Big Liquor Robbery Near Roy.

Report came in a few days ago that the cellar of Henry Garzino, a ranchman near Mills, had been robbed of $20,000 worth of wines and liquors which Mr. Garzino had reported to the state enforcement officers at Albuquerque. This is no doubt the biggest hold-up and robbery ever committed in NewMexico, outside of the French express robbery in this county a number of year ago.

Details of the affair are lacking. Garzino reported to the sheriff of Harding county that he was held up at his home and his cellar cleaned out. The stock included three barrels of whiskey, several barrels brandy, a barrel of gin, a barrel of cognac brandy, 37 cases of whiskey, 35 gallons of claret and smaller quantities of various brands.

Garzino had been granted a permit by the late Antonio Lucero, when he was state prohibition enforcement officer, to ship the supply from Blossburg, Colfax county, and store it at his home on the ranch. Garzino has always been a law-abiding citizen and has handled this stock (which was his before prohibition days), in a lawful way both as to removal and keep.—Colfax County Stockman.

Will Not Lose Their Jobs by Marrying.

Washington, Nov. 27.—Women postal employes will not suffer a change of status or lose any rights in the service by marriage, Post General Hays announced today.

"Heretofore," he said, "when an unmarried woman, holding the position of postmaster, married she was obliged to secure a new appointment, execute a new bond, or pass the civil service examination in competition with other candidates, if she had not previously taken such an examination. Under the new ruling a woman postmaster will continue to hold office without a appointment or other examination."

Fear and Hard Times.

Thomas A. Edison, the noted inventor, says the recent business depression was caused by fear. "The people have been frightened out of good times, unnecessarily," he says.

Fear of the wolf makes people stop buying. Then business stagnates and hard times follow.

The pessimist is ruled by fear.

"Optimism has been defined as nothing but the absence of fear. Get rid of fear, be optimistic, and business will be good, according to Edison.

He is right.

The same reasoning is true of every activity of men and women. Fear the great paralyzer, is back of most failures. Conquer the devil of fear, develop confidence in your abilities, and you will succeed.

Barring remote instances of what may be called good luck, there can be no success without confidence and fearlessness.—State Record.

Admitted to Bail.

Dr. Davis, charged with the killing of Dr. J. T. Stone, at Corona recently, had a preliminary examination before Justice Fra Wetmore, at Carrizozo, last Saturday, and was admitted to bail in the sum of $5,000. Dr. Davis was represented A. B. Renehan, of Santa Fe, and the state was represented by Assistant District Attorney W. C. Whatley.

Candidates for Governor.

Santa Fe, Nov. 28.—Friends of Judge Reed Holloman of the First judicial district today stated he was in the race for the gubernatorial nomination on the republican ticket, but the Judge was in Gallup and no statement could be obtained from him.

They said Governor Mechem had decided not to seek the governor's office a second time, but this was not confirmed, as the governor left Saturday for Salt Lake City, Utah, to attend the meeting of the Western States Reclamation association. The governor was said to intend to follow in former Chief Justice of the Supreme Court Olarence J. Roberts' footsteps and enter the practice of law after the expiration of his present term.

W. G. Sargent, of Santa Fe, former state auditor, also was said to be a receptive candidate for the gubernatorial nomination on the republican ticket. It is further reported that Wm. D. Burns, Rio Arriba county, and B. F. Pankey are likely to be candidates for the nomination.

Enactment of Bonus Forecasted.

Washington, Nov. 28.—Senator Watson, republican, Indiana, discussed with President Harding tonight matters which may be included in the message to congress next week, upon which the president is working.

As his personal opinion, Senator Watson expressed the belief that "nothing in the world" could prevent enactment during the regular session of a bonus bill. One new source of revenue had become available, he said, through the announced intention the British government to begin annual payments of approximately $200,000,000 on the war debt to the United States.

SMITHERS AND THE LIVERS

Synonymous Symposium That Resulted in a Change in the Custom of Many Years.

Smithers sat slyly slipping slivers of liver into his mouth. Smithers always had livers for dinner. And he demands his livers in small slivers.

Suddenly a frown came over his face. "Garcon!" he demanded.

Smithers was proud of his French accent.

The waiter slipped softly to his side. "These livers are not cut into small enough slivers."

The waiter became confused. He was all apologies. In fact, he was one large apology.

"Monsieur Smithers wants his slivers in smaller livers."

"No! No! I want my livers in smaller smithers."

"You mean your slippers in slivered livers?"

"No! Smithers livered in slithered slippers."

"Oh! Slivers of slithers smithered in slippered livers?"

"No! I say slippered slivers in smaller smithers.

"Oh, yes, smithered slippers of slippered slithered 'livers.'"

Smithers changed a custom of years. "Bring me a kidney," he croaked.—Harvard Lampoon.

The Duck's Revenge

The telephone in the Division Q M. office rang and the brand new and highly important shavetail reached for it.

"Hello!" said the voice. "This is the operator at headquarters. May I speak to Colonel Lummox?"

"He isn't in," said the shavetail cheerily.

"Major Dingus, then?"

"Isn't in."

"How about Captain Dandoh?"

"No—isn't in."

"Oh—who is this, please?"

"This, young man, is Lieutenant Humpshire."

"Oh, yes, thank you lieutenant," said the voice sweetly. "And if an officer should come in, would you please ask him to call?"—American Legion Weekly.

Business Methods.

When the agent brought Mrs. Torrey her fire insurance policy he remarked that it would be well for her to make her first payment at once.

"How much will it be?" she asked.

"About $100. Wait a minute and I'll find the exact amount."

"Oh, how tiresome!" she exclaimed. "Tell the company to let it stand and deduct it from what they will owe me when the house burns down."—The American Legion Weekly.

Too Grown in Pennsylvania.

It is not generally known that Pennsylvania has a crop indigenous to the Blue mountain region, and which largely supplants the use of the Oriental tea in several counties of that section. The crop is now being gathered and tons of the leaf are being pickled and dried for winter use.

WERE NOT REALLY "VAMPISH"

College Girls Hastily Become Prim When Their Favorite Professor Hove in Sight.

The girl might have been born in Greenwich village. She wore her hair bobbed, tortoise shell-rimmed glasses, a loose jersey dress, green earrings which dangled from her ears, and she smoked a cigarette in an imitation jade cigarette holder. Not to overlook long green beads made of wood.

Her companion was a little less true to type. They were conspicuously at luncheon in a chop suey restaurant.

Suddenly a tall, rather distinguished looking man entered the tea room. The girls, who faced the door, gasped: "Good Lord, Dolly, there's Professor ——! Lay off quick!"

Instantly the earrings were jerked out of the girl's ears, her cigarette was thrown to the floor and hastily stepped on, the cigarette holder was tucked into her bag and she rubbed her napkin briskly over her lips.

The professor sat down at the opposite table and never once glanced at the two girls.—Milwaukee Journal.

Spoiled the Scenery.

A certain clergyman is a great believer in the widening influence of travel. When he and his wife set off last month for a holiday in Switzerland they took their maid with them.

She was much envied by the other girls of the village and when she got back one of her friends asked: "Well, Gladys, what did you think of Switzerland?"

"Not much," was the answer. "I couldn't really see what the country was like. The mountains get in the way!"

Profiteering.

"I suppose you marry a lot of eloping couples, squire. Quite a source of income, eh?"

"Yes, I git $5 for marryin' each couple an' they come in such darned haste I allus line 'em $10 more for speedin'."—Boston Transcript.

Lumber Cut Increasing.

Denver.—The lumber cut of the United States in 1920 was 33,703,000,000 feet, which is 2.2 per cent less than in 1919, and 27 per cent less than the peak in 1907.

The average price of lumber at the mill increased to $38.42 per thousand, which is a raise of 150 per cent since 1910. The aggregate value of the cut is $1,290,000,000. These are the highest annual valuations ever recorded, but do not indicate present conditions. They merely reflect the extremely high peak in the post-war lumber prices which was passed in the first quarter of 1920.

These are the principal statistics obtained by the Forest Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, in its 1920 canvass of American sawmills. They are based upon reports from 15,978 active mills out of 23,243 estimated to have been in operation. Several thousand mills cutting less than 50,000 feet were not tabulated, though allowance was made for their cut. Comparisons with 1919 are published by permission of the Bureau of the Census, U. S. Department of Commerce.

The tables show that the states which increased their cut are all in the Pacific Coast group and the Rocky Mountains.

Youthful Bandits Loot Bank.

Roy, Wash.—Three masked bandits, one of them said to be a youth under 20, held up the Roy State bank here at closing time and five minutes later escaped with $4,200 in cash, leaving E. S. Emigh, the cashier, and Mrs. May Crowley, bookkeeper, locked in the bank vault. Ten minutes later Emigh liberated himself and gave the alarm, but no sign of the robbers had been reported by the deputy sheriffs who are scouring the country. The trio made their escape in an automobile.

Educational Week Coming.

Washington.—Interest throughout the country in American Education Week, to be held Dec. 4-10, 1921, is already being manifested to such an extent as to indicate that the week will be one memorable in educational circles. Sponsored by the National Education Association and the American Legion, and aided by other national organizations, it is first being taken up and indorsed by local bodies.

The Range of the Fly.

A most interesting experiment was conducted by the Bureau of Entomology, U. S. Department of Agriculture, to determine the range covered by flies.

Approximately 234,000 flies of different species were dusted with powdered red chalk and liberated. Fly traps, baited with food highly relished by flies, were placed at various distances. By this means the direction and flight of different species were determined.

Some of the flies traveled 1,000 feet in a few minutes. The screw-worm fly covered a distance of half a mile in three hours, while the black blowfly covered anywhere from half a mile to eleven miles in two days. The house fly covered over six miles in less than one day.

Clerk Gets $5,000 Award

Washington.—Herman F. Inderlied, the mail clerk who captured Ray Gardner, reputed to be the most notorious mail robber of recent years, at Phoenix, Ariz., will get $5,000 for his exploit. In announcing his award today, Postmaster General Hays sent the following telegram to the clerk: "Have just heard of your splendid conduct in connection with the capture of alleged mail robber Gardner. This is magnificent. You are a man's man and worthy of your trust. I congratulate you and the department."

Ten Men Were Buried Alive.

Berlin.—Ten persons were buried alive in the ruins and five others were injured in a terrific explosion in an oil refinery at Ostheim, near Wiesbaden, according to advices received here. Damage was estimated at 5,000,000 marks. Cause of the explosion was unknown. The explosion occurred in a tank containing 50,000 litres of benzine. Havoc was wrought among the dwellings in the vicinity.

SO WEAK SO NERVOUS

How Miserable This Woman Was Until She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"Toomsboro, Ga.—"I suffered terribly with backache and headache all the time, was so weak and nervous I didn't know what to do, and could not do my work. My trouble was deficient and irregular periods. I read in the papers what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for others and decided to give it a trial. I got good results from its use so that I am now able to do my work. I recommend your Vegetable Compound to my friends who have troubles similar to mine and you may use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. C. F. PHILLIPS, Toomsboro, Ga.

Weak, nervous women make unhappy homes, their condition irritates both husband and children. It has been said that nine-tenths of the nervous prostration, nervous despondency, "the blues," irritability and backache arise from some displacement or derangement of a woman's system. Mrs. Phillips' letter clearly shows that no other remedy is so successful in overcoming this condition as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Went a Little Farther.

Eight-year-old Jack was invited to a party, but his ten-year-old brother Joe was not. Yet Joe desired some of the refreshments, so he gave Jack some orders about procuring some. "If they have good cakes or anything you can carry, take some every time they offer you any and what you can't eat bring home to me."

And when Jack came home he was well laden with cakes. The bosom of his blouse fairly bulged with them. "Oh, you did take some every time they offered you any," said Joe.

"Yes," admitted Jack, "and some when they didn't offer me any either."

Fatal Turn of Affairs.

"Mrs. Wiggs," said Mr. Huggins, "I asked your daughter to marry me and she referred me to you."

Mrs. Wiggs—I'm sure that's very kind of Sadie, she always was a dutiful girl. Really, Mr Huggins, I had no thought of marrying again at my age, but if you insist, suppose we make the wedding day next Thursday.

Robert Was Wise.

Grandfather had taken little Robert, age six, to the movies where both "boys" laughed over the antics of the comic creatures in one of the "Aesop's Film Fables" series. After talking over the film fable, the grandparent thought he would test Robert's ability to draw a moral. Here's the conversation that followed:

Grandfather—What is the lesson for good which we learn from the busy bee, Robert?

Little Robert—Not to get stung!

Infallible Signs.

"How far have you studied English history, John?" inquired Miss Cross, the new governess, as she and John and sundry sisters settled down to their first lesson together.

"Just as far as my history book is dirty, Miss Cross," said John.

DEADLY WEAPON OF SAVAGES

African Tribes Use Poisoned Arrows Which Inflict Death That Is Instantaneous.

The most effective weapon of the Masai and Andorobo is the arrow which they poison with the Acanthera schimperi, a small tree, according to a National Geographic society bulletin. They boil the leaves and branches until the mixture becomes thick and pitch-like in appearance, and place it on sheets of bark which they hide high on the branches of trees away from children until it is needed. When an animal is shot with an arrow dipped in the poison it dies almost immediately. The natives cut out the flesh around the wound as soon as possible and throw it away. The remainder is eaten and the blood is drunk. This love of blood as an article of food is common among many African tribes, several of them going so far as to bleed their cattle and drink the blood hot or mix it with their porridge.

PUT TRUTH IN SECOND PLACE

Salesman, Like Some Oldtime Advertisers, Must Have Had a Strangle Hold on Conscience.

Frank Irwin Blotcher, the New York advertising expert, said in an address to advertisers:

"Another fault that is fast disappearing is exaggeration—lying, you know. Some of the advertisements of the past remind me of a dialogue between a salesman and a patron. It runs like this:

"'What's the price of the article?'

"'One dollar, sir.'

"'Bought direct from the manufacturer, I presume?'

"'No, sir, we got it at a sheriff's sale of the manufacturer's stock.'

"'Why did the manufacturer bust up?'

"'Through selling this article at a dead loss.'

"'I suppose he'd paid too much for his raw material, eh?'

"'Oh, no; he stole the raw material.'

"'Gee whiz! Wrap me up half a dozen.'"

No Need of Reason.

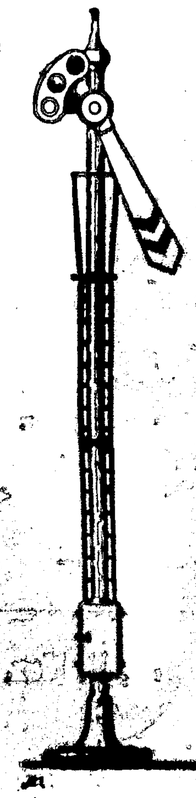
Jack—Papa, what is reason?

Fond Parent—Reason, my boy, is that which enables a man to determine what is right.

Jack—And what is instinct?

Fond Parent—Instinct is that which tells a woman she is right whether she is or not.—Stray Stories.

The Block Signals Are Working—



In some respects, human experience is like railroading.

Every moment of the business and social day the block signals are giving right of way to keenness and alertness—while the slow and the heavy must wait on the sidetrack for their chance to move forward.

The ability to "go through" and to "get there" depends much on the poise of body, brain and nerves that comes with correct diet and proper nourishment.

That's why so many choose Grape-Nuts for breakfast and lunch. Served with cream or milk it is completely nourishing, partly pre-digested, and it supplies the vital mineral salts so necessary to full nutrition.

Grape-Nuts has a rich, delightful flavor, is ready to serve on the instant—and is distinctly the food for mental and physical alertness and speed. At all grocers.

"There's a Reason" for Grape-Nuts

The Key to Success Is Work—There Is no Substitute for It!

In order to do your best work, you must be healthy. You must sleep soundly at night, your nerves must be strong, steady and under perfect control.

If you are accustomed to drinking tea or coffee with your meals or between meals, you may be loading yourself with a very great handicap. Your nervous system may be stimulated beyond what is natural for you.

For tea and coffee contain thein and caffeine. These are drugs as any doctor can tell you. They are known to irritate the nervous system by their action and to cause restlessness and insomnia, which prevent the proper recuperation of the vital forces.

If you want to be at your best, capable of doing the very best work that lies in you, why not stop drinking tea and coffee? Drink Postum, the rich, satisfying beverage made from scientifically roasted cereals.

Postum contains absolutely no drugs of any kind, but in flavor tastes much like rich coffee. It helps nerve and brain structure by letting you get sound restful sleep.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared), made by boiling for 20 minutes.

Ask your grocer for Postum. Sold everywhere.
