Europe Redeems Printed Money

Hoarded Stocks of Gold and Currency Make Appearance as Exchange Falls.

MOST VEXED WAR PROBLEM

European Countries Flooded With Cheap Money When Emergency of War Compelled Abandonment of Gold Standard.

Washington.—Students of international finance and economics are aware of a new development in connection with the depreciated currencies of Europe. These currencies have constituted one of the most vexed problems brought on by the war.

The need for greatly increased sums of money, brought about by the war cost, was met by most of the nations by the issue of paper currency without relation to gold reserve. In normal times the paper currency of a nation has a definite gold reserve, generally about 40 per cent. The emergency of war caused the abandonment of this reserve by all belligerent nations excepting the United States, because the national treasuries of these nations lacked adequate gold to maintain the reserve ratio. In the United States the treasury and the federal reserve banks discouraged use of gold and gold certificates for general circulation and accumulated the greatest stock of gold ever assembled in the history of the world. It was withdrawn gradually from circulation and piled up in the treasury and the vaults of the federal reserve banks.

An inevitable result of this policy was that during the war and following the armistice the European printing presses, being definitely cut loose from the retarding element of a gold reserve, kept on running at high speed, turning out reams of paper money which went into circulation. It is a natural rule that the increase of the supply of anything makes it cheaper. This is as true of money as of coal or potatoes. The result was that this plentiful supply of paper money made money cheap. In other words, people who had consumable goods to sell would not exchange them for as small a quantity of the cheap money as of the old-fashioned money, backed by gold. This meant that prices rose. The United States experienced inflation of currency but of a milder character. The gold standard was not abandoned here. Prices rose in this country 100 or 200 per cent in some cases, but in Europe they rose thousands of per cent.

Exchange Hurts Europe.

A further result was that European money, being cheaper and more plentiful than American money, foreign exchange became unfavorable to Europe. That is, European money would not buy as much here as American money would buy in Europe.

There is a law of economics known as Gresham's law, which lays down the rule that where two kinds of money are in circulation and one is much inferior in value to the other, the more valuable type will retire. People who have it, believing it to be of greater value and therefore more worth keeping, will hoard it away. This was done to a great extent all over Europe. As the inflation progressed, people who had gold pieces or silver money or paper money of nations in better financial shape than their own hid this wealth away and used the more plentiful cheap paper currency.

The extent to which European inflation has gone is notorious. The European news cables every day say something of the difficulties being experienced as a result of the inflation. The Russian ruble and the German mark are favorite comic picture and vaudeville theater jokes because they have become so cheap. It now costs more than 100,000 rubles to buy a meal in Russia.

The German mark, which in normal times was worth at what is called the par of exchange, nearly a quarter in American money now is so cheapened that you can buy three marks for an American penny. The Austrian crown has been as cheap as 3,000 for $1. A $10 bill of American money in Russia would exchange for enough rubles to make what would have been a Russian fortune before the war.

Trade, especially international trade, has become very difficult under these conditions. The problem of restoring these currencies to something like normal value has perplexed European financiers and economists ever since the inflation started. It is one of the big questions before the Genoa conference which has been called to solve European economic and political problems. The United States declined an invitation to this conference, partly because of the danger of becoming involved in so unstable a condition of affairs as that created by the cheap currencies.

Development Surprises Experts.

Now, the new development which has surprised economists in connection with this situation is the discovery that there is a tendency on the part of Europeans to bring about a hitherto undreamed of method of correcting the inflation. Many plans have been suggested but none has been found practical. The new development is one which, if it continues, will tend to correct the situation without the aid of conferences or politicians.

The development is hailed as a reversal of Gresham's law. The fact seems to be that the people of Russia, Germany and Poland and some of the other nations having badly depreciated currencies have become so disgusted with the nuisance of dealing with cheap money that they are bringing out of hiding their hoards of gold and other valuable money. A case illustrating this new development recently was reported by a British trading firm. This firm sold a bill of goods to a Russian dealer at Rostov. Payment was received in a miscellaneous assortment of cash. It consisted of American gold, checks drawn on American banks, American bills of exchange, English currency and checks, Turkish gold and checks and notes, French currency and checks and Russian gold rubles. Obviously, with the exception of the checks, this payment was made from good money which doubtless had been hoarded since the war.

Agents of the American relief administration in Russia have reported similar instances of people bringing out gold and other metal money. The same is true in Poland, Germany and Austria.

Currency Revolution Seen.

What economists see in this development is the possibility of a gradual revolution in European currencies. For instance, the Russians have discovered that their own rubles are nearly useless but that they can get big value for British or American or other good money. Consequently they will try to get hold of as much of this foreign money as possible.

In early days in Europe this same phenomenon occurred. Money issued at the great banking centers of Venice, Antwerp and a few other cities came into general use all over Europe, displacing cheaper native currencies because everybody knew it was good money.

Recently, the United States treasury removed the ban from the free issue of gold and gold certificates. It is thought possible by economists and students of international finance that a good deal of this gold money, known all over the world as being obtainable, will reach the countries abroad having depreciated currency and become popular as a valuable medium of exchange. This has not been possible until the last few days because the treasury and the federal reserve banks would not let gold go into general circulation, but now it is possible for foreign-born Americans to get this money and send it to their relatives abroad.

It is recognized that this process of substitution of foreign money for the depreciated native currencies would be slow, but some economists believe that it is a possible but necessarily slow solution to the European emergency problem.

Hen Lays Daily on Kitchen Table

York, Pa.—A pet Plymouth Rock hen, owned by Charles F. Laucks of Red Lion, delivers an egg each day on the kitchen table with more grace and intelligence than the ordinary huckster.

The fowl found the kitchen door ajar one morning, slipped in, flew upon the table and scratching together several pieces of paper, deposited a clean white egg, ready for use. Since her first effort the door has been left open, but when Mrs. Laucks forgets to do so, the pet cackles for admission. The hen has been so regular that a small cushion has been placed on the table, and each day she comes in and deposits an egg.

COPS FIND GUN CHECKROOM

Discover Station Where the Gunmen of New York Park Their Artillery.

New York.—The checking business, which has made rapid strides with the opening of checkrooms for babies and parking stations for flappers' corsets, has been broadened again.

The police announced here that they had discovered a checking station for pistols, where members of the underworld may park their artillery when they have a few hours of leisure.

Most of the city's gun wielders apparently were on the crime path, however, as the parking station had only two pistols on its shelves.

Recommendations by the Taxpayers' Association.

Santa Fe—The Taxpayers' Association of New Mexico in its recent bulletin makes some suggestions for retrenchment in public expenditures with a view to lightening the tax burden without loss of efficiency.

1. Make "Economy with Efficiency" the slogan in handling both public and private business. Let state and local officials that waste and extravagance are unpopular, and that careful mangement of public affairs is appreciated.

2 Get every dollar's worth of taxable property on the tax-rolls at full and uniform values.

3. Collect the taxes already levied. If all taxes due, but uncollected for the years 1912-1922, are collected it is predicted that the budget will be balanced to apply on next year's budget with a resulting reduction in rates.

4. Postpone all capital outlays for a year or two. Let us discourage "going into debt" until we have caught up. Remember that every little bond issue has a debt charge of its own.

Repairs that can be postponed for a year or two should be postponed for year or two should be postponed. Our revenues for 1923 will be based upon the condition of 1921. Present conditions will determine the revenues for 1924 when, it is hoped our treasuries will permit larger expenditures.

6. Let every public official, whether elected or appoited, give a day's work, that is what he is paid for. A full day should mean eight hours. Dispense with all unnecessary employees and assistants. There is no law which requires the expenditure of the people's money uselessly.

7. In buying supplies or contracting for special servic, the law should be followed in asking for bids. It is seldom that money will not be saved the taxpayers by so doing. Officials are supposed to handle public business in a business like manner. They should not hesitate to "bargain" to get the most for the money.

8. The budget law and the Bateman Act should be fully understood, but within limitations, there should be further efforts to retrench. The designation of an official as a purchasing agent who has the right mental attitude as to administering public affairs, has been found conductive to economy.

9. Eliminate all publicly owned automobiles. Let each official provide for his own transportation under a contractual arrangement for traveling expenses. Thousands of dollars can be saved to taxpayers by officials if they will "cut out" unnecessary traveling; especially outside the state.

10. Restrict all expenditures for highway and bridges to maintenance only, except for Federal Aid projects. On such projects let construction be spread over period as long as the federal grant will permit.

11. In school expenditures, outlays for permanent improvements should be postponed until "better times" are fully realized. Repairs and the purchase of equipment should be provided for on the most economical basis. In many instances, it is possible to eliminate the item for janitor service. Transportation of pupils involves an expenditure of a quarter of a million of dollars, a large part of which should be eliminated. As to teachers' salaries, there should be a readjustment of schedules on the basis of education experience and training as well as of certification. In many counties of the state higher salaries are paid to teachers who have less than a high school education than in other counties where teachers have followed a academic courses above the high schools. Teachers without experience often receive more pay than experienced teachers. Poor teachers are employed at fair salaries; while others with high qualifications are unable to secure positions, it is said on good authority that a sufficient number of good teachers are available to supply all the schools of the state.

Several counties report four or five applicants with adequate qualifications for each position paying $100 a month and less for the school term of seven, eight or nine month. And yet inadequately trained teachers are employed at much higher salaries.

12. In orer to make an even dozen of this series of suggestions, let it repeated that economy and efficiency depends upon the mental attitude of officials towards the handling of public business. The taxpayer, whose money is being spent, is certainly entitled to consideration by those whom he placed in office. What the New Mexico taxpaper wants is the maximum of service at the minimum cost with due consideration given to his limited taxpaying ability.

Glencoe School Notes.

On the evening of May 6th, Mrs. Wilber Coe presented her pupils in a beautiful May program.

The moon and several gasoline lanterns brilliantly lit up the surroundings. The grounds were attractively decorated with fruit blossoms and green leaves, in the center of which stood the May pole wrapped in green and white. From the pole hung twenty gay colored ribbons. The small children began the program with the "Doll Dance" and "Patty-a-Cake." The larger girls then gave several Swedish and Dutch Folk Dances.

After this ten couples of the small boys and girls did the May pole drill, which was carried out in a manner that showed unusual ability on the part of the children, and careful training. The striking features of the May pole dance were numerous circles, basket weaving, double weaving, and winding the pole at the close of the drill with simple weaving.

This unusual and pretty outdoor program was witnessed by a large number of patrons and friends.

The eighth grade commencement program of the Glencoe School will be given on the evening of May 19th. There will be a short play given by the girls of the higher grades, and two drills by the lower grades, after which Mrs. M. L. Blaney will deliver the address and present the diplomas.

Everybody is cordially invited to attend this commencement program which will mark the close of the school term.

HOW TWO WOMEN ESCAPED OPERATIONS

Doctor Advised Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Happy Results in Both Cases

St. Joseph, Missouri.—"Both of my sides swelled and hurt me so that I could not move or do any of my work. There was heavy pressure and pains through my lower organs and the doctor told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for these troubles. He said I had this one chance, and if the Vegetable Compound did not help me nothing but an operation would. After taking several bottles I felt it was helping me and now I am able to do my own work. If my testimonial will help others I shall be glad for them to read it and hope your Vegetable Compound will do them as much good as it did me."—Mrs. Wm. Lochman, 513 N. 4th St., St. Joseph, Mo.

White Plains, N. Y.—"I had such a pain that I could hardly walk and the doctor said that I needed an operation. I was sick for a year before I started taking your medicine and I could not work. I saw your advertisement in a little book and that is how I came to take Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine. I have been taking the Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine, also Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and the capsules and prescription recommended. I am doing all my work and have gained twenty pounds. I am taking the medicines still, but I feel fine. You have my permission to use this letter for the good of others."—Mrs. Mary Mark, 37 Hamilton Ave., White Plains, N. Y.

Some female troubles may through neglect reach a stage when an operation is necessary. But most of the commoner ailments are not the surgical ones; they are not caused by serious displacements, tumors, or growths, although the symptoms may appear the same.

When disturbing ailments first appear, take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve the present distress and prevent more serious troubles. Many letters have been received from women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after operations have been advised by attending physicians.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent you free upon request. Write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.

Gent of the Old School.

Gipsies apparently do not take much stock in the newer feministic theories. A swarthy nomad and his gaily-dressed wife came into a cigar store on Cadillac square. He bought some good cigars for himself and a package of pipe tobacco for her. She demonstrated with him in gipsy language about something, turned her back to him and started for the door. His face clouded with anger, he raised his large foot and administered a lusty kick that was forceful enough to send her through the swinging doors. She made no protest and they walked away together.—Detroit News.

GOOD EVERYDAY DISHES

Cheese muffins make a good breakfast or luncheon dish. Prepare them as follows: To one quarter of a cupful of sugar add two tablespoonfuls of butter, a teaspoonful of salt to one cupful each of milk and water scalded together. Cool until lukewarm and add one-half of a yeast cake dissolved in one-quarter of a cupful of lukewarm water, one beaten egg and four cupfuls of flour. Beat thoroughly, cover and let rise until light; beat again; fill buttered muffin tins two-thirds full and sprinkle generously with grated cheese; let rise until the pans are full, then bake twenty-five minutes.

Cheese Biscuit.—Take two cupfuls of flour, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt, then gradually work into this with a fork a quarter of a pound of soft cheese and one cupful of water. Mix well, roll out and cut with a biscuit cutter. Bake fifteen to twenty minutes.

Either as a dinner salad or when the main course at luncheon has been light, cheese salad will be found an addition to the meal. To two cupfuls of whipped cream add one cupful of grated cheese, salt and pepper to season, and two tablespoonfuls of gelatin dissolved in one and one-half cupfuls of water. Pour into individual molds, and when almost set sprinkle well with grated cheese. Serve with mayonnaise and with a green salad plant.

Potato Salad.—Slice thin six boiled potatoes, add two small onions also thinly sliced, two small cucumbers, or two sweet cucumber pickles finely chopped, one teaspoonful of salt, a handful of shredded almonds previously blanched, paprika, six tablespoonfuls of olive oil and two tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Mix well and serve on lettuce.

Endive Soup.—Wash, trim and shred three heads of endive, put them into a saucepan with four tablespoonfuls of butter and one small shredded onion, stir and toss until well covered with butter, add a quart of water and cook until the endive can be rubbed through a sieve; add cream or milk and a tablespoonful of butter cooked with one of flour. Season to taste with salt and cayenne, and serve hot.

Corn and Potato Salad.—Cut up two or three boiled potatoes, add a tablespoonful of cooked corn left over from the fresh corn cooked on the cob, add a bit of minced onion and any desired salad dressing.

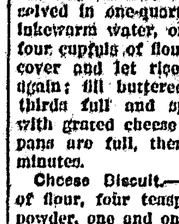
HOT BREADS

There are any number of hot breads which may be made from the same foundation. Take one cupful of liquid, milk or half milk and water, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt and three tablespoonfuls of butter. The amount of yeast will depend upon the time needed for raising before the rolls are needed. If six hours, one-half of a cake of yeast will be sufficient. If but two hours in which to prepare the rolls use two or three cakes of yeast and keep the mixture in a warm place well covered.



Beat the mixture, adding enough flour to make a batter easily beaten with a spoon; put to rise and as soon as it is double its bulk, shape it into rolls and let rise again until double its bulk. When there is time, if the dough is cut down once or twice before shaping into rolls, the rolls will be much tenderer. One may increase the shortening and sugar; add eggs to increase the food value of the rolls.

Kromaska.—Prepare the above dough and when risen to double its bulk make into small rolls and set to rise. Place these on a buttered pan far enough apart to bake with a complete crust about each. When the biscuits have become light punch a hole in the center and fill it level full with melted butter and half a teaspoonful of cinnamon and sugar mixture. Use one part cinnamon to three parts sugar. Let these rise until very light and bake in a hot oven.

Coffee Cake.—Roll out a sheet of the dough until it fills a dripping pan. Spread well with softened butter and sprinkle generously with brown sugar mixed with cinnamon. Raisins may be stirred into the dough before rolling out or they may be chopped and added with the sugar. When well risen bake in a moderate oven.

Grated lemon peel, orange peel, apples, prunes or other fruit may be used as flavoring and decoration for hot breads.

Clover Leaf Rolls.—Grease gem pans and place three small biscuits in each, greasing each well with butter. Cover and let rise until very light. Bake in a hot oven.

Rules for Home Making.

Three rules for making a home attractive were recently given to a young married couple by an interior decorator. They were: Provide the necessary utilities, arrange an agreeable color scheme and, the final one, make the place livable.

Nothing New.

Narratives in prehistoric manuscripts recently unearthed in Greece are of little interest. Most of us have heard them all in after-dinner speeches.—James J. Montague.

Why Castoria?

YEARS ago Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups were the remedies in common use for Infants and Children; Castor Oil so nauseating as to be almost impossible and the others all containing Opium in one form or another, but so disguised as to make them pleasant to the taste, yet really to stupify the child and give the appearance of relief from pain.

It required years of research to find a purely vegetable combination that would take the place of these disagreeable, unpleasant and vicious remedies that from habit had become almost universal. This was the inception of, and the reason for, the introduction of Fletcher's Castoria, and for over 30 years it has proven its worth, received the praise of Physicians everywhere and become a household word among mothers.

A remedy ESPECIALLY prepared for Infants and Children and no mother would think of giving to her baby a remedy that she would use for herself, without consulting a physician.

Young Woman Simply Felt Herself the Victim of Circumstances, and Went Her Way.

"I was walking along Fourteenth street," said a young woman artist, "and I saw a woman ahead of me pushing a baby carriage. There was a baby in the carriage, and the baby was holding the string of a rubber balloon. I noticed that the balloon was unusually large, probably due to its being inflated beyond its rated capacity.

"Just as I passed the baby carriage the balloon exploded. Went 'Pop!' and disappeared. Apparently the mother was looking some other direction at the time and when she turned her head, saw the balloon was gone and I was going and she connected me with the catastrophe.

"She eyed me malevolently. 'Of all the mean tricks!' she exclaimed, and then attempted to console the balloonless infant. Did I deny causing the balloon to burst? I did not. I was merely another victim of circumstantial evidence."—Baltimore American.

HAD SPEECH WITH GOVERNOR

Certainly Short, but the Incident Gladdened the Heart of This Indiana Small Boy.

When Governor McCray and others boarded an interurban to visit the new reformatory site at Pendleton they found the car already well filled. The governor sat down by a small boy from Fortville and a moment later asked him to exchange seats with another member of the party so that they could continue a conversation. Shortly afterward the lad's seatmate disclosed to the boy that it was the governor he had accommodated.

The incident made an impression and when the boy reached home he boasted to his father that he had seen the governor and had spoken to him.

"Is that so?" said his dad, skeptically, "and what did the governor say to you?"

"Oh," he said, "would you just as soon sit in that seat over there, sonny."—Indianapolis News.

Pilfer.

"Daniel was a pilfer; he didn't have any nerve!"

The thin, pale person, who muttered thus, lifted his lip with a sneer.

"He was a pilfer," he added, scornfully. "He only went into a den of lions."

A moment passed, a moment of tense contempt.

"I," he continued, "I am a greater man than Daniel was! For I am on my way to interview the cashier at the bank where I am overdrawn!"

ALL THESE PROVOKE SMILES

Various Kinds of Ladies Who Excite the Risibilities of the Writer in Humorous Publication.

Ladies make me laugh—ladies who dress like Hewple dolls; ladies who are always arranging slumming parties; ladies who arrive at the theater during the middle of the first act and practically stop the performance; ladies who tell fortunes; ladies who spend 12 hours a day in restaurants; ladies who organize welfare leagues and are forever talking about them; ladies who know all about relativity; ladies who embroider their bridge playing with telephone calls, gossip and risque stories; ladies who are habitually one hour and twenty minutes late for all appointments; ladies who are shocked at anything they don't understand; ladies from Columbus, O., who, having spent nine months in Paris, completely forget their native tongue; ladies who have never been understood; ladies who don't know when a romance ends; ladies who are continually dwelling on the fact that they are ladies.—From Life.

The Thrifty Citizen Who Caught the Plugged Nickel

MR. BROWN had swallowed his lunch and had paid his bill. Cautiously he counted his change. "Here!" he said, sharply, "Take back this plugged nickel and give me a good one!"

Mr. Brown walked proudly out. They couldn't fool old Brown.

But old Brown had fooled himself.

Brown's day was heavy and dull. He lacked "pep." There was a mid-afternoon drowsy spell when he needed to be awake—the direct and natural result of heavy, starchy breakfasts and lunches, taken on faith and without question as to value—just because the food looked and tasted like food.

Thousands of shrewd business men who count their change, take their food for granted.

That's what builds up the sanitarium business, and puts the tired "all-done" feeling into the mid-afternoon of a business day.

Collects $26 on Trillion Dollar Debt.

San Jose, Calif.—Henry B. Stewart, who on March 1 was given judgment for $301,840,832,912,663.47 against George Jones by Judge J. R. Welch in the Superior Court, has started proceedings to collect. Sheriff George W. Lyle located $20.04 deposited to the credit of Jones in a local bank, which he attached. After judgment represents the amount due Stewart on a promissory note for $100, executed by Jones over twenty years ago, calling for interest at 10 per cent compounded monthly until the debt was paid.

Washington.—Disposition of oil received by the government under leases entered into with private concerns in the California and Wyoming reserves will be subject to action by Congress, Secretary Denby, recently told the Senate appropriation committee. "We do not feel at liberty to use this without the approval of Congress," said Mr. Denby. He had reiterated that the object of the leases was the development of a war emergency supply of oil.

Soviet Will Cease Use of Gold.

Moscow.—The soviet government has decided to refrain from using the gold ruble as a calculating unit. The difference in exchange between paper and gold has been increasing so rapidly that fears were expressed in financial circles that the whole existing wage and payment system might be shattered. One idea under consideration is that of a decree determining a goods index as the calculating unit. This index would determine the wages and the value of the goods.

Medical School Gets $100,000 Gift.

Boulder, Colo.—There was great rejoicing on University hill over the gift of the Carnegie Foundation of $100,000 to the University of Colorado for the establishment of a hospital and medical school in Denver. A campaign is to be launched at once to raise $15,000 which is one of the conditions of the gift. Fifty thousand dollars of the $100,000 gift is to go to the popular subscription fund of $200,000 being raised in Colorado, and the other $50,000 to the purchase of equipment.
