Pickett's Charge Is Repeated by the Marines

Concrete Finds Many New Uses

Range Varies From Art Windows to Swimming Pool for Hippopotamus.

DASH OF ROMANCE IN STORY

Portland Cement Has Been In Use Nearly Hundred Years—Development of Uses in Recent Years Remarkable.

Washington.—There is a dash of romance and a fairy story theme in the commonplace chug and rattle of the concrete mixer. Every one is conversant with the ordinary uses of Portland cement.

Perhaps some first impressions of this material date back to the delights of coasting on a bicycle over the even surface of a cement sidewalk—back in the days when cement sidewalks were considered more or less of a luxury. Perhaps it was a cellar floor, or a foundation, or the night of workmen mixing cement mortar. Years ago cement was an established member of the construction family, but the development of its uses during the last few years has been so varied and remarkable that it is doubtful if the average citizen has even the remotest idea of it.

The historical incident which brought about the need for Portland cement was the construction of the Eddystone lighthouse in the English channel in 1759 by an engineer named John Smeaton, who while looking for a mortar for this purpose discovered that an impure limestone containing a certain amount of clayey matter contained hydraulic properties when calcined or roasted.

Natural Cement Restricted.

The cement used by Smeaton marked the beginning of modern cement-making practice, but the early cements were different from the Portland cement of today, for natural cements depend on nature to prepare their material and are consequently restricted to the rocks having the proper proportions of materials in their makeup and any variation in the composition cannot be regulated.

Smeaton's discovery apparently stimulated interest in the industry. About 1793 James Parker of Northfleet, England, patented a process for manufacturing cement by turning impure limestone almost to vitrification in ordinary lime kilns, and grinding the resulting clinker to powder. He gave this material the name of Roman cement. In France there had been experimentation along similar lines.

The first recorded manufacture of this product in the United States was in 1818 in Madison county, New York, for the Erie canal project. Its use was developed by Benjamin Wright and Canvass White. All of the above cements may be classed as natural cement because they were prepared by burning a natural rock without previous preparation, and by grinding the burned product to a fine powder.

Almost a Century Old.

Almost 100 years ago, in 1824, a brick-layer of England, Joseph Aspdin, took out a patent for what he called Portland cement. He gave it this name because when hardened it resembled the famous stone found on the Isle of Portland off the coast of England. Aspdin's patent specified that definite amounts of clay and limestone be used, and described the process of amalgamating and clarifying these two materials in the manufacture of the product. This constitutes the distinction between natural and Portland cements.

Few attempts were made to produce Portland cement in the United States until about 1870. During the '70's, however, plants were operated at several points, including Wampum and Coplay, Pa.; Kalamazoo, Mich., South Bend, Ind., and Rockport, Me.

Industry Grows Rapidly.

The remarkable growth of the industry, and the consequent development of new uses for the material is best shown by the annual output figures. In 1889 production of Portland cement in the United States was only 42,000 barrels; in 1890 it was 335,000 barrels; in 1900, 8,482,020 barrels; in 1910, 76,549,951 barrels and in 1920, 100,802,000 barrels.

One hundred million barrels of cement—the 1920 output—would be sufficient to build nine transcontinental highways, eight inches thick and eighteen feet wide from New York to San Francisco. Or it would build 1,000,000 six-room concrete houses with a p[illegible] and sidewalk thrown in. Or it wo[illegible] build twenty-three and one-half great pyramids like those of Egypt. Or it would build a sidewalk five feet wide and four inches thick that would reach from Washington to the moon—a distance of 240,000 miles.

The quantity of the output is shown by the fact that in 1921 the industry required nearly 8,000,000 tons of coal. The amount of coal burned in manufacturing a barrel of cement, varies from 150 to 200 pounds, so that when purchasing a sack of cement the consumer is paying for nearly fifty pounds of coal.

Almost any one who builds nowadays uses concrete in some form or other. Concrete piles are the foundations of thousands of our large office buildings and the same material goes into the skeleton and framework. In bungalow or skyscraper, concrete is as common to the contractor as flour is to the baker.

During the last ten years Portland cement has revolutionized the paving industry. Thousands of miles of concrete roads have been built and every year sees an increasing number contracted for. Last year almost 6,000 miles of 18-foot concrete highway were constructed in this country. City streets are paved with concrete, alleys are paved with the same material, curbs and gutters, sidewalks, fence posts, ornamental lighting standards, park benches, statuary, swimming pools—into every sort of civic improvement cement enters in some way or other.

Portland cement has accomplished wonders for the farmer. The same kind of cement that paves his roads, and gives him access to his markets is used in constructing his house and barns. It is used for silos and water troughs, replacing the old wood structures. Hogs are given concrete feeding floors so that no feed is lost in the mud. Concrete smoke houses care for the meat and concrete ice houses hold the winter crop of ice. Concrete corn cribs save corn from rats and mice and concrete well platforms and hitching posts are thrown in for good measure.

The railroads turn to Portland cement for a myriad of uses. Bridges, abutments, trestles, retaining walls, grade crossings, platforms, station houses, culverts—wherever there is construction there is a use for cement.

Uses Widely Varied.

Coal dealers store coal in concrete pockets or bury it in concrete pits. Huge stadiums for football or baseball games are constructed of concrete. In Boston a concrete swimming pool for a baby hippopotamus is being constructed in Franklin park, while in St. Louis concrete is being used in making rock dens for the bears in the zoo.

In Sagamoseki, Japan, an American engineering firm has erected the tallest concrete chimney in the world. Big ships of concrete have long since ceased to be a novelty. Stone boats that float and carry heavy cargoes from port to port—it is enough to make the dreamer of Arabian Nights turn over in his sarcophagus—and incidentally they are making first class sarcophagi out of concrete these days.

The same sack of cement that is used for making an art window or a transom could equally well be used for the construction of a manhole or a manger, an incinerator or a piece of concrete drainage pipe, a flume or a front porch, a trolley pole or a cistern, a mine shaft or a safety island at a street crossing, a shingle or a standpipe, a statue or a subway, a tank or a tennis court, for tree surgery or water trough, laundry tub or dipping vat, bank vault or lawn roller.

HEADING OFF RABIES

Recently at David A. Work's Hazelhead kennels, Closter, N. J., the Englewood council club, under sanction of the board of health of that town, opened the first dog clinic of its kind ever projected. An ordinance just passed by the Englewood city council provides that dogs may run the streets unmuzzled if they are inoculated with canine rabies vaccine. Dogs so treated are immune from the rabies for one year. The illustration shows a great dane receiving the injection.

The State Department confirmed reports from Mexico City that A. Bruce Bielaski is to be permitted to return to the United States. He is expected either in Washington or New York soon.

Formal announcement that recent oil land decisions of the Mexican Supreme Court do not, in the opinion of officials at Washington, effectively protect the rights of American land owners, was made recently in a statement issued by the State Department. The five court opinions upon which some Mexican officials have based a hope of recognition for the Obregon regime, were said in a statement to apparently establish a precedent protecting improved oil lands from confiscation, without furnishing the same guarantee for land in which mining operations had not been actually begun.

The trials and tribulations of senators are not so much concerned with the tariff, the soldiers' bonus and the ship subsidy as they are with the industrial crisis that completely overshadowed the legislative program. Senators are being bombarded with telegraphic appeals from their constituents for relief from actual or impending fuel shortages due to the coal strike, or from transportation or freight tieups resulting from the railroad walkout.

The Intermediate Rate Association, composed of representatives of chambers of commerce and trade bodies in eight western states, decided to at once inaugurate a vigorous campaign to have the present Congress enact an absolute short and long haul law. Members of the association meeting at Salt Lake City declined to take any part in the discussion of the proposed legislation, which would place the international steamship carriers under the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission for rate fixing purposes.

Virtually every important coal mine in Nova Scotia is closed by a strike of upward of 12,000 miners. Five thousand Cape Breton miners at a mass meeting at Glace Bay, and other large meetings, repudiated the agreement which their officers made with the British Empire Steel Corporation and declared for the strike. Terms of the latest company offer raised minimum day rates from $2.85 to $3.25 and contract rates 10 per cent. This would give a rate of pay about 22 per cent below the wages of 1921, which the miners are asking.

Colorado Crops Increase in 1922.

All farm, garden and orchard crops in Colorado this year will have a farm value of slightly more than $100,000,000, according to present indications, at present prices and what apparently will be prevailing prices at market time. Production of most of the major crops grown in the state apparently will be somewhat larger than last year and production of potatoes, fruits and market garden crops will be considerably higher than for 1921. Price of staple field crops are much the same as those of 1921, but prices of potatoes and late orchard crops are not yet established.

Wheat again holds first place among Colorado crops in acreage, with nearly 2,000,000 acres planted. Reports of county assessors to the State Immigration Department show more than 1,500,000 acres of winter wheat and about 450,000 acres of spring wheat, and the reports are not complete. It is not possible to estimate accurately at this time what part of this has been or will be harvested. Hay ranks next to wheat in total acreage, when all varieties of hay are taken together. Corn holds third place.

U. S. Purchases Embassy Building.

Mexico City.—The United States government has purchased the embassy building which it has been occupying for some time and adjacent land for the erection of embassy offices and the extension of gardens. This is taken as a sign that recognition is not far off. It is stated semi-officially that Minister of the Interior Calles, the strongest man in the Obregon cabinet, will resign shortly because of the dissatisfaction over the concessions which must be made to obtain American recognition.

Seven Points of Supremacy

1. The sole leather used in "FOOT-FITTERS" is of the best quality obtainable. Even the insoles are cut from standard outsole leather.

2. "FOOT-FITTERS" are the only shoes in the world having full length vamps and sole leather box toes. This feature prevents ripping at the tip and makes a smooth outer and inner surface.

3. The insoles are shoulder channelled so that they fit tightly against the outsole. There is no need or room for a cork filler. A small piece of duck is used to prevent squeaking.

4. The Calfskin inside counter pocket is of great value, for it saves the wear on the socks. There is no rough surface to rub against.

5. "FOOT-FITTERS" heels are ¼-inch longer than generally used. They give additional support to the arch and increase the comfort and wear of the shoe.

6. The vamp is reinforced with 8-oz. duck. This absorbs the moisture from the feet, this keeps the vamp from cracking and holds the shoe in shape.

7. Dissimilar "FOOT-FITTERS" shoes are called "FOOT-FITTERS" because they fit the feet snugly. Built on combination lasts they support the feet like a doctor's bandage—"FOOT-FITTERS" give Comfort, Service and Appearance.

Hon. J. V. Tully a Strong Supporter of Col. Prichard.

Hon J. V. Tully was here yesterday making a shipment of cattle. He is a strong supporter of Col. Geo. W. Prichard for United States Senator. He believes that Col. Prichard is the man for the occasion. He estimates the Colonel's ability to represent New Mexico in the senate as second to no other man in the state, and says he would rank with Lodge of Massachusetts, Bora, of Idaho, or any others now members of that body. He thinks Col. Prichard's long residence in New Mexico and his eminent services as a public official, with his fine ability make him the logical and most deserving candidate in the field.

Letter From Probate Judge Elerdo Chavez Endorsing Col. Prichard for U. S. Senator.

Arabela, N. M., Aug. 22, 1922,
Mr. Sam Bigger, Capitan, N. M.,
Dear Sir:—I am in receipt of your welcome letter dated 15th inst. in which you inform me that Col. George W. Prichard is a candidate for the important office of Senator in the United State Congress. I take pleasure to inform you that I am for him, and if my little efforts are of help to Col. Prichard I am certainly willing to do my very best to help him.

Lincoln county is indebted to Col. Prichard for a great part of its present property security, because in those days when he was appointed District Attorney, he not only discharged the duties of that important office with great honor to himself, but he has placed the inhabitants of our county in a position that they are now well protected under the powerful influence of the law. During those dark hours when there was very little respect for the private or individual property he more than once appeared before the courts of justice to protect the rights of the citizens of our county and the great respect which is now had for the law is in a great degree due to the valuable contribution and efficient service of Col. George W. Prichard as District Attorney. Therefore, I am of the opinion that the people of our county will send an instructed delegation for Col. George W. Prichard, who as a lawyer has brought happiness to countless homes.

Very truly yours,
Elerdo Chavez.

Miguel Montoya Assassinated.

On Wednesday night of this week, Miguel Montoya, one of the merchants at Rabenton, was assassinated at his store. Some time after dark he was standing on the outside in front of the store and a man walked up within few feet of him and shot him with a revolver, the ball entering his left side just below his arm pit and passed through his body and lodged in his right arm near the elbow, killing him instantly. The party firing the shot ran off, and next morning was tracked a short distance to where his horse had been tied. Next morning Santa Fe was wired for blood hounds, and it is learned that they secured, but we have learned no further particulars. It said that there are some suspicions as to who the assassin is, but no direct evidence. The murdered man was an honorable citizen and had many friends in that community. He leaves a wife but no children.

One day last week the young husband had occasion to go over to the West side. On the street he saw a young woman and behind her a crying child of about three years. It has the fine appearance that carries prestige, which is another point in its favor as a business car. And then it is the cheapest in price of any car in America, quality and equipment considered.

And because it is the car of lowest operating cost, it becomes the cheapest in cost per year of service of any car in the world.

Stomach Trouble Had Him Nearly Past Going, Declares Mowrer.

"Tanlac has helped me to gain ten pounds," said J. E. Mowrer, 157 Park St., Akron, O., well-known railroad man.

"My stomach was in such bad fix that for several days at a time I could hardly retain any food. I had no appetite and often the very sight of food made me sick. I was intensely nervous, too, could not rest at night, felt tired and worn out all the time, and lost weight and strength until I was almost a wreck.

"Tanlac has made me feel like a different man. My appetite is enormous and I haven't a sign of indigestion left. I never felt stronger. Tanlac certainly does the work."

His Employment.

While there is no intention of poking at golf too much, some of the anecdotes along this line are too good to be lost. Take the case of the woman who had her young and observant son out for a walk. They met a friend of the family, a man who likes to be pleasing to children. He proceeded to question the boy, a bright little fellow about five years old.

"Does your papa work?" from the man.

"Sure, he does, all the time," without hesitation.

"What does he do?" and the chances are the youngster knew that the questioner knew the answer. Anyhow, the boy spoke right up:

"Plays golf."

FLOCK TO CANADA

Immigrants of High Order Settling on Western Plains.

Removal of Restrictions Necessary During the War Has Shown World's Faith in Dominion's Future.

For a period during the late war, and for a while after its close, there was put into operation by the Canadian government legislation restricting certain classes and people of the countries which were not lined up with the allied nations from being admitted to Canada. This was quite necessary, and the reasons for it will be so apparent that they need not be given. However, the time came, in the early summer of this year, when it was deemed possible to remove some of these restrictions. It was found that there were many who came under their ruling that were of a class that Canada needed and who needed Canada. The restrictions, doubtless, were drastic, but were needful. The news of their removal, sent broadcast, has met with such a response as to give ample evidence that they had not killed interest in Canada, and that faith in the Dominion as a country where a new existence, happy and fruitful, was as complete as ever. As has been stated by one writer dealing with this subject, "the opening of the doors a little wider has but disclosed the dammed-up state of the stream, which, given freer release, is pouring in fuller force over the Dominion."

As to the moral effect of the legislation that enabled these restrictions to be carried out, it showed that while Canada was seeking settlers, its lands and its homes were not intended as a shelter for those unable to meet the standard set as Canada's laws of civilization, the concessions which have removed these restrictions still have in view the maintenance of this standard, and those who are still allowed in are subject to the same requirements that have prevailed for years. As pointed out by the writer previously quoted, "Canada has successfully impressed on those countries from which she draws her people that her prime and crying need is for those who will go on land, and of those entering the country the bulk is composed of agriculturists. Every country which has formerly contributed to Canada's population has resumed its mission to its shores.

"The lowering of the barriers has had a farther-reaching effect than the entry into the country of many formerly debarred by reasons of financial stringency. It has had a moral effect. The restriction was rightly regarded as an indication of Canada's internal economic condition, and many persons and families of comfortable means contemplating Canadian settlement were discouraged from doing so. In the removal is seen the first blush of the dawn of better days, and consequently many of those arriving are in a condition to establish rapidly and securely.

"Though Canadian immigration falls broadly into the two classes, British and American, many European peoples have contributed in a large measure to the agricultural development of the Western provinces, and it is gratifying to note the same healthy interest in Canada evinced by the most desirable of these.

"Amongst those from the European countries are Serbians, Poles, Swiss, Roumanians, Dutch, Jugo-Slavs, French, Danish, Norwegians, Swedes, Finns and Lithuanians. All have constituted fine, desirable citizen-building material, as the few detentions and lesser deportations bear testimony. Furthermore, the disturbed industrial conditions of the New England states have resulted in the commencement of an exodus of French-Canadian families back to their old homes, which may reach an appreciable size.

"On all sides this awakening of interest is evident. It is a new faith borne on the crest of the wave of brighter prospects, the dawn of a fuller realization, in the continued inability of many other countries to emerge from the economic slough into which the war plunged them, of the desirability of Canada as a country more rapidly throwing off its post-bellum depression, and its great place in the world's immediate future.

"British migration is of a healthy and desirable order, of sturdy composition, and frequently heavily capitalized. Many Scottish farmers have already arrived this year."

Every state in the Union is contributing its quota, and joining with those who have been in Canada for a number of years in the work of reclaiming the virgin prairie of the great plains of the West and converting them into immense fields of golden grain, or its grasses into fodder for the dairy cow or the fattening steer.—Advertisement.

Mating customs in vogue for countless generations among Indians on the Camp Verde reservation, fifty miles east of Prescott, are to be supplanted at once by the marital laws of the white man. Supt. J. O. Bond of the reservation was busy recently issuing marriage licenses, and five ceremonies were performed as the first of a series of weddings in wholesale lots. "We are attempting to make these people feel they are mating as human beings and not as animals," remarked Superintendent Bond. That the War Department has no knowledge of a contemplated abandonment of Camp Harry J. Jones, as was rumored in Douglas recently, and that repairs to the buildings and an increase in the personnel is being contemplated is the information contained in two letters from Secretary Weeks to Representative Carl Hayden, copies of which were received by George E. Buxton, president of the Douglas Chamber of Commerce and Mines. The letters were replies to Representative Hayden's inquiries made at the behest of the Chamber of Commerce.

No law of limitations' blocks justice in this case

All the way from Walla Walla comes a communication that we believe holds some interest for the general smoking public. At least, it gave us a thrill which we want to pass on if possible.

Walla Walla County
County Attorney's Office
Walla Walla, Washington

Larus & Brother Co., Richmond, Va.

Dear Sirs:

If a gentleman owes a debt he pays it, or, lacking the ability to do so, he at least admits that he owes it.

For many years I have been indebted to you, and up to the present time have made no acknowledgment; counting from the time that the obligation was first incurred it has long since been outlawed, but then it has been a continuing obligation, and the statute of limitations does not run against a gentleman's debt.

I was past fifty when I first knew the assuaging balm of the great God Nicotine and for a year or two I floundered around among all sorts of brands of tobacco before I found the right one and settled down. Now when my friends ask for a pipeful I hand over my pouch and they say "Edgeworth!" and I grin and say "uh-huh."

As I write, a pipeful of Edgeworth is going up in smoke, and for that reason I feel a little more kindly towards my fellow man.

With best wishes, I am,

Yours sincerely,
(Signed) A. J. Gills.

As you see, it isn't so much that another smoker has found that Edgeworth just suits his taste as it is that this veteran prosecuting attorney, way out in Walla Walla should postpone duties to his State, his family, and his private affairs to sit down and write us a note of appreciation.

We liked his letter and are proud of the tobacco that inspired him to write it. Almost every mail brings us grateful letters from Edgeworth smokers—uncalled for, unsolicited, and unexpected.

Perhaps it is too much for us to believe that Edgeworth smokers as a whole are generous, big-hearted fellows who never miss an opportunity to boost their fellow men. Perhaps it isn't.

At any rate, if you aren't an Edgeworth smoker, we want to put you in a position to qualify as one. We should like to send you free samples—generous helpings of both Edgeworth Plug Slice and Ready-Rubbed.

Just jot your name and address down on a postal and we will send the samples immediately. If you will also include the name and address of your tobacco dealer, we shall appreciate your courtesy.

Edgeworth is sold in various sizes to suit the needs and means of all purchasers. Both Edgeworth Plug Slice and Edgeworth Ready-Rubbed are packed in small, pocket-size packages, in handsome tin humidors, and also in various handy in-between sizes.

For the free samples address Larus & Brother Company, 44 South 21st Street, Richmond, Va.

To Retail Tobacco Merchants: If your jobber cannot supply you with Edgeworth, Larus & Brother Company will gladly send you prepaid by parcel post a one- or two-dozen carton of any size of Edgeworth Plug Slice or Ready-Rubbed for the same price you would pay the jobber.

HOT WEATHER DRINKS

If we have been forehanded and last summer and fall provided for the hot days, by putting up various fruit juices, we will always be prepared for the warm weather.

Of course there is the ever-present lemon, which is a good old standby, and one of which we never tire. Add a beaten egg to a pitcher of lemonade—two, if a good-sized pitcher; it adds to the value of the drink as a food and makes it a different drink. This will be a good tip to mothers who want the family to eat eggs; in this way they go down with little protest. With the addition of a sprig of mint or a section of lemon the delicacy and attractiveness of the draught is increased.

The juices of any of the berries make delicious fruit drinks. Raspberry shrub is especially well liked. This is prepared by adding vinegar to the berries, let stand for a day and drain, sweeten the juice, cook and bottle. Grape juice is one of the most popular of all; this may be bought in any town, but when prepared at home is of much better quality and less expensive. Cocoa or chocolate for those who are fond of these flavors may be prepared in a sirup and kept for weeks.

Iced coffee and tea are both refreshing and stimulating.

Iced Tea.—Take two teaspoonfuls each of green and black tea; pour over a pint of boiling water and cover tightly, let stand five minutes to draw. Take a large piece of ice, place in a granite pan and pour over it the boiling tea. When well chilled add water to taste and fill glasses. Garnish with sections of lemon and serve with loaf sugar.

Fruit Shrub.—Cover the berries, using half as much vinegar as berries, let them stand for three days in a cool, place, then strain and add four more quarts of fruit to the juice and vinegar; again stand three days, drain and put into a preserving kettle with a pound of sugar to each three cupfuls of juice. Boil and seal in bottles. Blackberries, loganberries, or any fruit may be thus treated.

Frozen Beef Tea.—This is a novelty which will appeal to the invalid during the hot weather. Take a thick cut of round steak, broil it quickly until the juice begins to run, place in a vegetable press and extract all the juice. Add a pinch of salt and serve frozen like mush.

Don't think you have a corner on the trouble market. I could mention several varieties you've never even heard of. What you need is the philosophy of cheerful endurance. Then you will begin to accomplish.—Lloyd.

TASTY TID-BITS

A delicacy to serve with a cup of tea is round, crisp crackers spread with cottage cheese and a maraschino cherry placed in the middle. Gingerbread cut in small rounds may be treated the same way. A small square of apple jelly may be used in place of the cherry, if desired.

Another cheese cracker which is not very common is prepared as follows: Take the fresh crisp crackers a third longer than wide and lay them side by side in a dripping pan. Cut thin oblongs of cheese slightly smaller than the crackers, lay on, and over this place halves of pecans, four or five to each cracker. Place in the oven and melt the cheese. Serve with crisp stalks of white celery.

Rice a la Creme.—Wash one-half cupful of rice and cook in water until partly done, then add milk and simmer until the milk is absorbed; season with a little salt. Dissolve one tablespoonful of gelatin in a little water, add to the hot rice, sugar to sweeten and vanilla to flavor. When cold add a half cupful of heavy cream whipped, pour into a mold and serve with fruit as a garnish.

Head Lettuce With Roquefort Dressing.—Arrange the heart leaves of lettuce on the salad plates. Sprinkle each with a spoonful of finely minced roquefort cheese, then add a highly seasoned mayonnaise and serve. The cheese may be stirred into the dressing, if desired.

Huntington Salad.—Chop very fine enough white cabbage to make two-thirds of a cupful, add one softened cream cheese to the cabbage, mix well, season, roll into balls and sprinkle with paprika. Arrange on lettuce and serve with French dressing.

Pea Salad.—A cupful of fresh cooked peas will make a most appetizing salad. Add two tablespoonfuls of grated cheese, six sweet pickles, chopped, and one small onion, also chopped. Moisten with mayonnaise dressing and serve on lettuce.

Harvest Ginger-ade.—Take a tablespoonful of powdered ginger, mix with four tablespoonfuls of sugar and add three cupfuls of cold water. Stir well, add a piece of ice and let stand for a few minutes before serving.

Why Great Writers Stayed Single.

David Hume, the historian, made the and only one offer of marriage and resigned himself to a life of bachelordom when the offer was rejected. Gibbon, the author of the "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire," would have found happiness with Susanna Curchod, a lovely and gifted Swiss girl, if his autocratic father had not frowned on the match. And Buckle, author of "The History of Civilization," might have married had he thought it possible to face wedded life on less than $2,000 a year!

WORN OUT AFTER SHE COOKED A MEAL

Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Read the Result

Cincinnati, Ohio.—"I suffered for a year with nervous troubles and irregularities before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My back pained all the time and I was unfit for housework. I was worn out if I cooked a meal, and was unable to do my washing. My girl friends and my sister told me if I would take your Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills I would be relieved. After taking the first bottle I felt better, and neglected it awhile, but found I could not do my work until I was stronger. So I took the Vegetable Compound again and now I am the mother of a 19 months old boy. He is fat and healthy and I am sure I could never have carried him if it had not been for your Vegetable Compound. I recommend your medicine to all women although I am young to be advising some one older."—Mrs. Christ. Petroff, 318 W. Liberty St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound contains no harmful drugs and can be taken in safety by any woman.

Had Missed Something.

We had been living in the suburbs for five years, and had just moved back to the same house that we had lived in before. Our little girl, who is six years old, was saying "that she was borned in this house."

Her little brother said he was, too.

Sister said, "No, you were in heaven then."

"If I was," John retorted, "I don't remember of seeing Jesus."—Chicago Journal.
