First Trip Around World Is Commemorated

Four hundred years ago Juan Sebastiano Elcano, one of Magellan's captains, completed the first voyage around the world, and the event has just been celebrated in his native town, Guetaria, Spain, with elaborate ceremony. The king and queen of Spain were present, and so were representatives of many other countries. Part of the big procession is here shown.

Who Is World's Richest Man?

Rockefeller, Ford and Mellon Each Picked by as Many Authoritative Spokesmen.

FORD HAS GREATEST INCOME

Financial Experts Say There Is Basis for Claim That Each of These Men Has Largest Fortune—John D.'s Easiest to Cash.

New York—Within the last few weeks each of three Americans has been proclaimed "the richest man in the world" by as many authoritative spokesmen.

The Wall Street Journal gave Henry Ford that distinction; James A. Davis, accounted a reliable financial expert in the Middle West, retorted with John D. Rockefeller; Roger W. Babson, a famous statistician, came forward with Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury in President Harding's cabinet, and went so far as to say that Mellon could probably match, dollar for dollar, the joint income of Ford and Rockefeller.

Financial experts say there are bases for all three claims, that these tremendous fortunes have so many aspects and traits that they cannot be compared in toto, no more than one may compare five inches to five apples.

Ford Has Greatest Income.

Ford, for instance, has the biggest of all incomes, the most profitable business, but it is of such a character that its actual value, the value for which it actually could be sold, is no more than half its accurate paper value.

The Ford business may return Ford the profits of a $2,000,000,000 business, and in such event it would be, by all financial rules, worth $2,000,000,000; yet it is not probable that if he attempted to liquidate it he could get much more than half of that amount for it.

In that case, Ford's business wealth, though greater than Rockefeller's, would not be worth as much to one who wanted to cash in and get out of it as Rockefeller's, which is much more negotiable.

Mellon's fortune is of a third stripe; his is a potential wealth, power over money, opportunity, if not inclination, to hold possession of more money than any other living man. He is said to wield the greatest power over money, more even than the elder Morgan wielded in his heyday.

These experts also say that it is anybody's guess which of these fortunes is the greatest on paper. Anybody's guess is as good as anybody else's.

Other Handicaps Mellon.

Those who are in the lower strata of financial standing, particularly those who are accounted no more than well-to-do at the outside, would probably prefer Rockefeller's wealth first, Ford's second, and Mellon's third. The only probable change might be that Ford's should supersede Rockefeller's. Regardless of the truth of Babson's statement that Secretary Mellon wields more power and would be able to get more money more quickly than either Ford or Rockefeller, his position is third in attractiveness.

"I do not refer to Mr. Mellon in his official capacity," Babson says, "but as a private banker and capitalist. His public office is actually a handicap to him. It prevents his doing many things he could do as a private citizen. He is the greatest financial power in the world today in spite of the fact that he is secretary of the treasury. He controls more wealth in his private capacity—banks, mines, oil companies, and a multitude of interests—than both Mr. Ford and Mr. Rockefeller together.

"Who is the richest man in actual cash and easily negotiable, gilt edged securities; that is, whose fortune has the greatest quick, force-sale value? The answer is John D. Rockefeller.

Income $25,000,000 a Year.

"He is an inventor today and he has practically retired from active business. Of course, his advice is available for the many companies in which he is interested, but he is not actively engaged in business as he was twenty years ago. His income is about $25,000,000 a year, or perhaps a little more. Some of this he gives away and much of it he reinvests. It is the income of his investments.

"His wealth varies from day to day, perhaps $1,000,000 or even $5,000,000, but his securities are sound investments that would be worth just as much if he were dead as when he is living, which is very different from the case with Mr. Ford. Mr. Rockefeller's fortune today is certainly $500,000,000 probably nearer $750,000,000, and when the present bull market reaches its peak he will be worth approximately $1,000,000,000, which justifies the popular appellation of 'billionaire.'

"Third, who has the biggest individual income? I agree that this man is Henry Ford, but not in the sense of actually handling the money. Mr. Ford only draws out enough for his personal and family requirements, but the bulk of the $125,000,000 a year or so which the Ford Motor company and its subsidiaries earn for him he leaves in the business. In actual wealth he is worth far less than Mr. Rockefeller.

"If Edsel Ford and Mr. Ford were killed in an automobile accident tonight, and Mrs. Ford desired to liquidate the business, she would find it a very difficult thing to do. It would be a task requiring great care and judgment, and if the business could be sold out for half the amount of Mr. Rockefeller's fortune it would be very fortunate."

The name of "John D." has stood so long for the richest man in the world that it is still strange to hear of Ford, comparatively a newcomer, and Mellon, until recently an obscure name to most of the country, contesting his position. Yet there seems little choice between wishing for his money and wishing for Ford's right profitable business.

Greatest Fortunes in U. S.

It is also odd sounding that the three richest men should all be in America. But Hugo Stinnes' fortune, the greatest in Europe, is generally rated below all three of the American fortunes. The Rothschild money is so split and divided that no one of the family can make a claim on the little kingpin moneyed man.

Henry Ford has an income of $125,000,000, roughly speaking (if one may speak roughly of such a sum) which is the largest pay envelope any man draws down yearly. It would not be improper in any way for him to attempt a capitalization of his business for $2,000,000,000. But Babson thinks he could not sell the securities, no matter how solid and profitable the investment. There is that much money in the country, but there isn't that much desiring to buy Ford stock.

Ford's wealth differs in this respect from Rockefeller's; Ford is reinvesting his profits regularly in his own business. John D. reinvests, when he does reinvest, in other businesses than the Standard Oil.

Ford gave some interesting insight into his wealth when he disclosed some of his income tax figures. He said he had $145,986,000.81 in cash in the bank. His assets—taxable assets—in Michigan were given at $215,215,862.92, and outside of Michigan, $114,404,470.05. The total he gave, including good will, was $409,830,133.97.

But taxable property is not all that Ford owns, or any other rich man. The tax fee is an inaccurate way of gauging a fortune. The high rates of taxation drive rich men into loading up on exempt securities, and no doubt Ford has protected himself in the same way. Mayor Couzens of Detroit, a man worth in the neighborhood of $35,000,000, makes no bones of the fact that the greater part of his wealth is exempt from taxation.

Mellon's Status.

Mellon's wealth was brought startlingly into focus when political chronicles gave it as a reason why he should not be appointed to President Harding's cabinet. Until that time Mellon was an inconspicuous figure in Pennsylvania industrial and banking life, known and respected by industrialists and bankers throughout the country, but the name did not mean money as Rockefeller's did. When partisan newspapers attacked him with the ownership of the largest fortune in America, in the world, general opinion was that political enmity was spreading itself to an incredible extent. It did not seem possible that so rich a man could be so unknown.

As Mellon has become better known and with only the customary modest denial that he is only a well-to-do man, the size of his fortune has become better known and generally believed. He is now recognized as being wealthier than ever Andrew Carnegie or Henry Frick were.

Referring again to the tax rate, Mellon has paid an income tax on an annual income of between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000. Ford has paid on $5,000,000. Rockefeller has paid on the same amount as Ford.

His Business Is His Pleasure.

Babson, who knows him well, says: "His income can be practically what he makes it. He has the financial power if he cares to exercise it. But he is a banker and capitalist rather than an investor; he enjoys the exercise of his remarkable talents for organizing and building up great financial and industrial enterprises, and he devotes more attention to these activities than to increasing his already great personal fortune and earning the tremendous income he could undoubtedly have if he chose."

As for Rockefeller, various estimates have been made of his fortune. The American Economic league a few years ago said it was worth $2,000,000,000.

There is no way of telling, for with investments fluctuating, gifts altering it, various forms of investment changing regularly from good to bad and from bad to good, it is a difficult, practically impossible job to set it at a figure.

The only conclusion is the inevitable general feeling among financiers. Without doubt Mellon, Ford and Rockefeller are the richest men in the world. Which is the richest is a problem. The only definite feeling in the money marts is this: that Rockefeller is worth approximately $750,000,000, after all gifts have been deducted; that Ford could realize $500,000,000; and that Mellon could realize the same amount.

This guess is as good as any.

Cow Bells on Dahlias to Foil Garden Thieves

Pittsburgh.—Miss Ethel Christy and her sister, Miss Abbey Christy, of Frederick avenue, Sewickley, have a fine garden of flowers in the rear of their home, including luxuriant specimens of dahlias which they have been fostering for the Sewickley dahlia show. Some one entered the gardens and clipped off half a dozen of large deep red dahlias of the General Pershing variety.

The Misses Christy reported their loss to Chief of Police S. Y. McFarland of Sewickley, who is investigating. As a precaution the women purchased about a dozen cowbells, which they strung with heavy cord on the dahlia stalks, so that the bells will tinkle if any miscreant hereafter attempts to tamper with the flowers.

The first plank in the platform of the new Tory ministry in Britain is obviously an endorsement of the Anglo-French entente. Pretty Home-Made Gifts

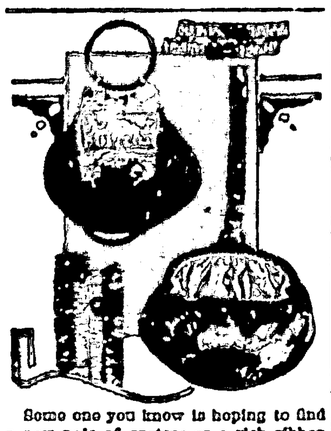
Among Home-Made Toys

Among the things that delight little folks are dolls and small animals made of eiderdown flannel or Turkish toweling, and painted with water color paints. The doll and dressed-up kittie pictured here, are among them. The doll's face may be made of a piece of ribbed stocking and the kittie's face and clothes are painted on.

To Frame Fair Faces

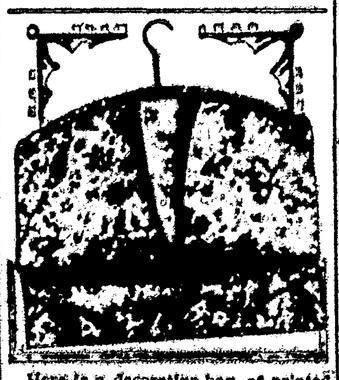
Every Christmas brings new breakfast caps. Here are three of them made of net, lace and ribbon in different shapes and decked with tiny ribbon flowers. Each has a short, elastic tape set in a casing across the back, to fit it to the head, and they are among the welcome gifts that can be made by their donors.

Lovely Ribbon Gifts



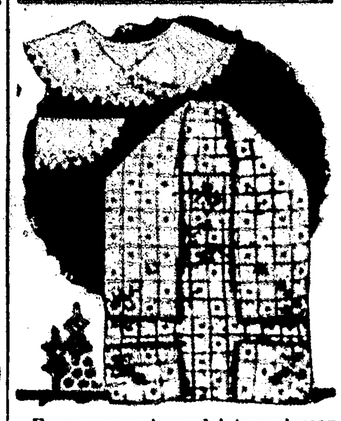
Some one you know is hoping to find a new pair of garters or a rich ribbon bag in her Christmas stocking and here are garters and bags that are guaranteed to please. One pair of the garters is made of narrow silver ribbon finished with tiny ribbon roses. Satin ribbon and narrow black lace make the other pair. Black moire ribbon with silver filigree mounting and ring handles serve for the handsome bag lined with rose colored satin. The other bag uses black and silver brocade with a tortoise shell mounting.

Things That Men Like



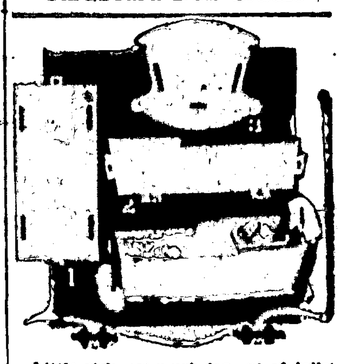
Here is a decorative bag, of printed cotton challie 25 inches long and 17 inches wide. A scalloped edge turns up over a straight edge at the bottom and each scallop has a buttonhole, fastening over a glass button. The bag is supported by a coat hanger, faced at the top and bottom with plain challie and French knots made of heavy zephyr decorate it. Hung in the closet it makes a handy receptacle for soiled collars and handkerchiefs, which are thrust in at the top and fall out at the bottom when the bag is unbuttoned. Men like such conveniences.

Pretty Neckwear Sets



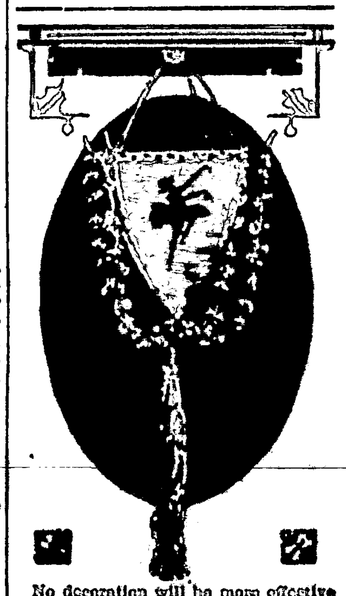
Every woman loves dainty neckwear and it is twice welcome when the donor herself has made it. There are many pretty sets this year made of white or colored organdie and other sheer fabrics. A collar, vestee and cuff set is shown here of white organdie cross-barred with black. Little flowers in red, green and purple floss are embroidered on the pieces in lazy-daisy stitch. For girls Peter Pan collars and cuffs to match are made of checked tissue gingham, edged with ready-made, scalloped trimming of plaited organdie, or other edging.

Cardboard Doll Cradle



Little girls get much joy out of dolls' furniture. A Dutch cradle and the pieces that make it are shown here, in heavy cardboard. The tabs on the side pieces (Fig. 2) are perforated and slip through slots in the bottom piece (Fig. 1) and through the head and footboards (Fig. 3). Little wood pegs, thrust through the perforations, hold the pieces together. Fig. 1 is 8⅝ inches long and 4 inches wide. Fig. 2 is 6⅝ inches wide at top, 8⅝ inches at bottom, 2⅞ inches wide at head, 2⅝ inches at foot. Fig. 3 is 5⅝ inches high and 5⅞ inches wide. The rocker measures 6⅝ inches across. The cradle may be finished with painted decorations.

A Graceful Lantern



No decoration will be more effective in dressing up the house at Christmas time than lanterns and candle shades of crepe paper and tinsel. A graceful lantern is illustrated here, made on a wire frame over which the paper covering is pasted and cut-out figures are pasted to the sides. The long tassel may be of tinsel or crepe paper. Festoons of flower petals, strung on cords, finish this pretty decoration.

Rich Table Scarfs

Very handsome scarfs for the library table are made of black velvet with an appliqué of wide brocaded ribbon down the center. They are a little shorter than the table and have fish-tail ends with a silk tassel pendant from each point.

The Primary Law.

Now that the Democratic party has come into power with such an emphatic majority on the 7th of this month it is to be Hoped it will cary out its platform pledge to give the people a primary election law. It is the only fair way for the people of both parties to chose their nominees, as a result the best men and women will be chosen. The convention system is a mockery and a fraud on the rights of the people. Often times a certain man is placed on a ticket just because he can "deliver the goods" in his particular precinct, and it often the case he is wholly unfitted to serve the people. The people realize this and slaughter him at the polls and thereby weaken the whole ticket on which he is a candidate. As far back as seven years ago this paper advocated that such a measure be enacted into a law—our newspaper files will verify this statement.

Senator Jones' majority for re-election, it is claimed, exceeds 10,000, with Hinkle not far in his rear. The whole democratic state ticket was elected by majorities ranging from 5000 to 6000. The democratic party in New Mexico will be in control of the state government for the next two years under platform pledges to give the people many reforms calculated to bring about better times. It is to be seen whether it will be able to fulfill its promises. It is merely placed on trial under pledge to bring about reforms for the betterment of the people. A failure to do this would certainly cause it to lose the ascendency it has gained.

Witt Sears last week sent C. L. Russell from Capitan, New Mexico, a box of the finest apples we have ever seen, and some of them were shown at the Fair, after which Mr. Russell divided them out among Mr. Sears' old friends and the editor believes he received the finest specimen, which weighed one and a fourth pounds.—Granbury (Texas) News.

Mr. E. J. Alderson and his son J. J. Alderson, of the Little Creek neighborhood, are visitors in Capitan today.

Cautions Hunters.

Albuquerque, N. M., November 10, 1922.—With the approach of the opening of the deer season on November 20 in New Mexico, District Forester E. C. W. Pooler has instructed all forest officers throughout the Southwest to caution hunters against carelessness with campfires and smoking.

Although the total area and cost of forest fires in the Southwest has been reduced in recent years, and the total number held down to less than 600 fires per year, the proportion of man-caused fires has been trending upward since 1910, Mr. Pooler says. From 250 to 350 fires per year are due to human carelessness, and for these hunters are responsible for a considerable portion. "One of the ambitions of the Forest Service," says the District Forester, "is to so spread the doctrine of care with fire that the number of man-caused fires will decrease, while the use of the National Forests increases."

Forest fires cause large losses in resources, as well as timber, ranges and watersheds. In the big fires in the Mogollon Mountains last June, large numbers of turned turkey nests were found by the fire fighters, several deer were burned, and many deer disturbed and evicted from their accustomed ranges. Deer were confused and distracted by the smoke and flames, and several actually were seen to stampede into the flames, including a doe with faun. Fire usually consumes the browse most valuable as game food, and leaves the worthless species.

"I have instructed all forest officers to prosecute as usual all offenders against the fire laws," the District Forester states, "but by being careful with campfires, matches, and smoking hunters can not only avoid any necessity of prosecution but can help conserve the game, and the forest on which the game depends for existence."

They Are Invinciable.

Harry Norman again demonstrated his popularity on Tuesday November the 7th and led the Democratic ticket by over 550 majority—notwithstanding he lost quite a number of Democratic votes in places in the county. Harry's "long suit" is with the "Native People" 95 per cent of them Republicans and a large element of them always vote for him and very likely always will, or vote for any candidate he asks them to vote for as he is related to some of them and they all have their friends—then "blood is thicker than water" and as a result Harry's gigantic majorities. Harry and his father Mr. W. O. Norman are the cornerstones of the Democratic Party of Lincoln county and without their assistance that Party could not elect so many of its candidates. Any fair minded person will acknowledge that Harry is very competent and a likeable chap—notwithstanding the writer did not support him.

Defeated After Being Power For Twenty Years.

In the strong Republican county of Dona Ana (which went Democratic this time) and which usually delivers one thousand or more Republican majority, there are two brothers named Lucero—Jose and Felipe who have held the Sheriff's office for twenty years—Jose four years, then he would be compelled to go out of office by law—then Felipe would hold it four years, then Jose again for years, in other words one of the other would always be elected for twenty years. The people decided they wanted a change, notwithstanding they were said to be excellent officials, and as a result the county went Democratic. Mr. Hill only receiving as the Republican nominee 47 votes majority for Governor, and in his home county.

Went Wet.

The states of New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Illinois, Wisconsin and California, six states, went wet by tremendous majorities in favor of a modification of the Volstead act—in other words for light wines and beer.

District Court.

District court convened at Carrizozo Monday morning with Judge Edwin Mechem presiding. There is quite a number of cases to be tried, both criminal and civil.

Rev. B. M. Bridges Gives Facts in His Case

It is doubtful if there has ever been a medicine endorsed by so many ministers of the Gospel as has Tanlac. Indeed, there is scarcely a faith, creed or denomination in all the land in which one, or more, of the clergymen has not publicly expressed their indebtedness to the Premier Preparation for the benefits they have derived from its use.

One of the latest to speak out in this connection is Rev. B. M. Bridges, a widely known and beloved Baptist preacher, residing at Mooresboro, N. C., whose statement follows:

"Tanlac has given me a good appetite, toned up my system and renewed my strength in such a gratifying way that I am glad to recommend it to anyone who is in a run-down condition. For ten years past I have had such a severe case of indigestion that I could not find anything to eat that agreed with me. Finally I became very nervous and could get but very little sleep or rest.

"It seems that I took nearly everything trying to get myself right, but nothing helped me until I ran across Tanlac. My nerves are so much better now that my sleep is sound and refreshing. I enjoy my meals and have also gained weight. I can say from experience that Tanlac is a splendid medicine and tonic, for it has built me up wonderfully."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.—Advertisement.

BUSINESS TIDE ON RISE.

Monthly Review Shows People Are Now Buying.

Cleveland, Ohio.—The business tide is rising; the receding tide has carried out most of the wrecks of business and the incoming tide is raising the tide line of business, according to the monthly business review of the Fourth Federal Reserve bank, issued recently.

"Were it possible to sum up in four words the expressions of our many correspondents in the district they would be 'We are buying now,'" the review says.

An analysis of seventy-six basic materials shows that forty-eight are higher now than they were a year ago, according to the review.

There are many instances which justify the belief of a rising tide of business, the review says.

The head of one of the largest textile mills in the country, with general offices in the Cleveland district, says orders now on their books are sufficient to carry them at full capacity until February 1.

The purchase by the railroads of rails for 1923 delivery, immediately preceding the advance in prices on October 1, are estimated to have totaled 1,500,000 tons, the largest rail-buying movement in a given time in the history of the steel industry.

Harding "Porch Quilt" Sold.

Marion, Ohio.—The Harding "front porch" quilt, which was made by the Whatsoever Circle of King's Daughters at Marion, with the assistance of Mrs. Harding, was sold to a cabinet member, whose name was withheld, for $150.

The money will be used to establish a bed in the city hospital, it was announced.

The quilt contains the autographs of fifty-four prominent people who visited Marion during the 1920 presidential campaign and others whose autographs were sent in by ladies. Among the signatures are those of President and Mrs. Harding and former Presidents William Howard Taft and Woodrow Wilson.

No Change in Tourist Rates.

Chicago.—The executive committee of the Western Passenger Association, meeting in Chicago, adopted a resolution to continue the same railroad tourist rates next year as were in effect this year from Chicago to Colorado, the Rockies, Yellowstone and Glacier National parks, and all points through to Spokane, Seattle, Portland and the Northwest and Pacific coast regions generally.

Will Not Maintain Free Bureau.

Denver.—Due to the decrease of unemployment in Denver and with all indications pointing toward a normal and prosperous winter season, Mayor Bailey issued the statement that Denver will not maintain a free employment bureau this year as has been the custom for the last three years. Municipal jobs such as the $1,000,000 Park Hill storm sewer, and the Broadway and Sixteenth street viaducts, will afford employment to all men in Denver who are jobless.

Permits Show City's Growth.

Denver.—Denver is catching up with itself in a mercantile way while advancing creditably as a distribution and manufacturing center—at least that is the story told by an analysis of the building permits of a business nature issued during the first nine months of the year.

Jail Closed Three Years, Reopened.

Dover, N. H.—The Strafford county jail, closed three years for lack of prisoners, reopened with sixteen inmates. The superintendent said his institution had become necessary once more "because of the widespread manufacture of illicit booze."

Transportation Eats Up Profit.

Birchwood, Wis.—Joseph Schutrap of Washburn shipped a bushel of apples to Minneapolis with the intention of shipping his crop there if he considered that a reasonable profit could be made. He received a letter later that the apples were satisfactory and that he would be paid 75 cents a bushel. Transportation costs were 72 cents on the bushel and postage paid to make the deal was 2 cents, a total of 74 cents.

Makes Ocean Trip Minus Helmsman.

New York.—A mechanical steering device supplanted the hand of the quartermaster of the Munson liner Munargo on her last voyage from eastern Cuban ports to New York, Captain Andrew Asburn of the Munargo declared a few days ago. The vessel, which docked in New York recently, was the first American passenger ship to make an ocean voyage without a helmsman, company officials say.
