Helping the Drive to Purchase Monticello

One of the attractive features of the opening of the $1,000,000 drive to purchase Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson at Charlottesville, Va., was the folk dancing by the community dancers of Albemarle county, Va. They gave an exhibition of the polka as danced in Jefferson's time. It is planned to make Monticello a shrine on the order of Mount Vernon.

Bad Checks Cost Millions a Year

Average Man Handles Written Demand for Cash as Though It Was Not Money.

New York.—The daring effort of check manipulators to rig the stock market, flooding it with false buying orders paid in worthless checks, added a new phase to the endless struggle against check raisers and forgers, which costs the public about $60,000,000 annually. In this last effort the manipulators printed their own checks and forged signatures of bank officials in an effort to profit indirectly as a result of the acceptance of these checks by stock brokers.

This phase is a new one, but the business of printing and issuing apparently bona fide checks is old. In fact, it is an industry flourishing in many parts of the country, directed by clever bands of criminals skilled in the devious and intricate business of check raising and forging.

Secret service men, police departments and bankers often warn the public to be more careful with checks, both in the writing and handling of them. In New York alone during 1922 it has been estimated that check raising and forging cost the public $27,000,000, more than in any other city. This estimate was reached on the basis that out of each $5,000 in bank clearings $1 is lost through bad checks. Total bank clearings of the country in 1922 were $375,084,000,014.

To all but bankers, credit men and officials throughout the country the statement of these losses may seem incredible. But the losses are not a recent development; they have been mounting at an estimated rate of increase of $1,000,000 a year. The three main factors responsible are the highly organized activities of forgery gangs, the extent of check transactions, and failure to observe proper precautions.

Although the term forgery is applied to all forms of check fraud, the actual imitation of signatures on negotiable paper is not so generally practiced as the alteration of checks. A genuine signature on a check is valuable, and the crook prefers wherever possible to retain it. Raising checks calls for more skill, as the many protective devices now used are obstacles to be overcome. In the beginning of check raising it was not difficult to add "hundred" to the written word "three," making a check read "three hundred," or to add "y" to the word "eight," making it "eighty." And it was no more difficult to change the figures.

The development of protective devices called for a high order of mechanical, scientific and artistic accomplishments. The men engaged in this department of check frauds are known as "scratchers." To them falls the work of altering a genuine check. Realizing on their handiwork is no part of their allotted duties. This function falls to the "presenters" or "putters down," one of the three other departments into which the bands are divided. The "captains" and "middlemen" complete the organization.

How They Get Checks.

It is the duty of the captains to obtain the raw material for the "scratchers." A method much in use is to make a small purchase for cash at a large retail establishment and to return it on some pretext a day or so later with the request that the purchase money be returned. This refund usually is made by check, which is then turned over to the "scratcher" to be raised. Another method of obtaining checks is to rifle letters stolen from mail boxes in the corridors of loft and apartment buildings.

The "middleman" is liaison man between the various members, keeping them from getting acquainted with each other, and distributing the spoils among them. Largely upon the efficient performance of his work depends the safety of members. He keeps them from personal acquaintance and the chances of a conviction through confusion are reduced should any member be arrested.

The actual passing of a forged or raised check at the bank is work for the "presenters." They must be men or women of presence, of resourcefulness and some degree of acting skill. The importance of this latter accomplishment is illustrated by the case of a "presenter" in an interior town who one summer day rushed into a bank, hatless and coatless, and presented a check made out to "bearer" for several hundred dollars, explaining that the drawer, his employer and a substantial merchant of the town, had but a few minutes before received a wire summoning him to the bedside of his dying mother in a town several hundred miles distant. The merchant, he explained, had hurried home to pack a bag and would go direct to the station, where the clerk would meet him with the money for his traveling expenses.

The clerk begged the teller to make haste, as his employer would barely have time to catch the train. The teller knew that the merchant never drew checks to bearer, but the signature was undoubtedly genuine, the haste and distress of the clerk seemed quite as genuine, and he hesitated to make inquiries which probably would result in the merchant missing his train. He decided to pay the money to the messenger, who immediately set out post haste in the direction of the railroad station. That was the last seen of him. The merchant had received no summons to his mother's deathbed, was not making an impromptu journey and had no such employee as the "clerk" who got the money on a stolen and raised check.

Forged His Own Pardon.

In the halcyon days of forgery which have furnished the legends of this branch of crime, J. H. Stoddard was the "hero" of many picturesque exploits, one of which resulted in his sentence to a term in the Tennessee state prison at Nashville. He was a man of resources and plucked the same art that had got him into trouble to get him out. Stoddard forged the signature of the governor of Tennessee to a document pardoning him, had it presented to the warden by a confederate then at liberty, and walked out of the prison gates to freedom.

In these days forgers did not depend so much upon mass production as upon a single coup for their profits. One of the best examples of a "killing" was that of the Shery, or Sifter, in 1902. Sifter bought four drafts of $18 each at four banks in Lansing, Mich. He raised each draft to $1,800 and cashed them at banks in Detroit, making his $7,200 haul within a period of 24 hours.

An even greater profit, with less trouble and expense, was made at the stroke by Charles Becker, styled "Prince of Forgers," who in 1895 had a confederate buy a draft for $12 at a bank in a small California town. The cashier as an extra precaution, using the crude protective device of the time, punched the figures $12.00 on both upper corners of the draft. Becker filled up these perforations, erased the word "twelve" and the figure "12," restored the paper's tint, which had suffered by the erasures, wrote the words "Twenty-two thousand" and the figures "$22,000," punched the same figures on each corner of the draft, and had a document so genuine looking that he cashed it without trouble at a Reno bank.

The fraud was not discovered until long after, because neither bank had noticed anything amiss with the draft. The money had all been spent when Becker was convicted of the crime and the courts had finally decided the litigation between the two banks.

An itinerant vendor of patent inks, who recently made the rounds of small towns in the East, used modern methods. Calling for the proprietor of a store, he would ask for one of the merchant's blank checks and fill it out for $100, using ordinary ink. Then with acid he would wash the check clean and rewrite it for $1,000, this time using the patent non-eradicable ink from a bottle in his sample case. Again applying the acid bath, the ink would stand fast. This demonstration usually made the sale, the merchant tendering a dollar bill in payment.

At sight of the bill the peddler would register comic distress as he drew from his pocket a huge roll of dollar bills and explain that, as he had made so many sales, all paid for in bills, he would appreciate it if the merchant would give him a check instead. So simple a request was rarely refused. In a week or so the accommodating merchant would receive a canceled check for $100, unquestionably genuine as to all but the amount. Repeated acid washings by the dismayed merchant would fail to erase the ink, but a fast resource to plain soap and water would easily remove it.

Checks Expand Currency.

The volume of check transactions in the United States is greater than in any other country. It has been estimated that the annual business turnover in the United States is more than $300,000,000,000. The nation's actual money circulation is only about $4,700,000,000. So stupendous a total of annual business transactions could be possible only through the extensive use of checks, and it is estimated that 95 per cent of the business transactions in the country are made with checks. This furnishes the check crook his golden opportunity. The average check user is surprisingly careless in his handling of what he sets in place of money, which indeed performs the functions of money and which he should safeguard as zealously as his cash. It is with the unprotected check that the crook is enabled to do his will.

There is nothing very complex about either drawing or using checks and the matter of preventing some going astray is even simpler, yet so general is the carelessness that attends their issuance and handling that the following "Ten Commandments for Check Users" recently were formulated by the forgery prevention bureau:

Keep blank checks and canceled vouchers under lock.

Write checks with safety ink or with a check writing machine that shreds the paper and impregnates it with the amount in ineradicable ink.

In writing checks, leave as little space as possible between the figures of the amount and start the written amount as close to the left-hand margin as possible, drawing heavy parallel lines through the unfilled space.

Use only alteration proof check paper.

Destroy all checks marred in drawing and never permit a check to be issued with any erasures on it.

Do not issue checks to untouched for strangers, and never make them out to "cash" or "bearer."

Do not sign blank checks.

Scrutinize all certified checks, as the stamps are not difficult to duplicate.

Be careful where and how you sign your banking signature.

On checks you deposit add to your signature "for deposit only," thus making it impossible for them to be cashed by a thief without alteration.

A sentence of nine years' imprisonment in Leavenworth penitentiary and a fine of $2,000 were imposed in federal Court at San Francisco upon J. A. Schaefer, former head of the bank of Gridley, Calif. Schaefer was arrested in Columbus, Ohio, and was convicted recently in Sacramento of embezzling approximately $50,000 of the funds of the bank of which he was president.

The principal grain crops of the country will be smaller this year than last, with the exception of oats and barley, both of which have been planted on a large acreage than a year ago, according to the Department of Agriculture's monthly report issued in Wshington. No reports have been made yet of corn.

The estimate of competent authority that it will cost the federal government at least $100,000,000 to enforce prohibition in New York came as a shock to dry leaders who have been confidently predicting that Congress would not hesitate to appropriate all the money necessary to make the Volstead act effective. They were not quite prepared for such big figures. Heretofore they have had considerable difficulty in getting $10,000,000 for the prohibition enforcement unit and in the next Congress they will have a greatly strengthened wet element to contend with.

An Explanation.

In an article recently published in the Mountaineer by Mrs. Jack Price, the statement was made that Capitan had lost the High School. The last Legislature repealed the law that authorized one high school in each county in the state, and as the matter now stands there can be more than one high school in any or all of the counties of the state, and Capitan again obtains a high school. There are now three located at Capitan, Carrizozo and Corona, all authorized to grant diplomas.

Vic Artiago was taken to Alamogordo today by Sheriff Harris to have a hearing before Judge Mechem to test his sanity. Vic's mental condition has been bad for several months, but until recently he showed no disposition to be troublesome. However, the past week some of his actions became violent and injury to some member of his family was feared. For his own good and for the safety of others the asylum appears to be the only place for the unfortunate man.—Carrizozo News.

After turning over the Cottage Hotel in Capitan to its owner some two weeks ago, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Lumpkins went to Roswell for the purpose of engaging in the hotel or restaurant business, but found nothing satisfactory in the way of a building or business there. They then investigated Alamogordo, but found nothing to their liking in that town. It is learned that they have either bought or leased the Star Restaurant in Carrizozo and taken charge of that well known eating house. Parties visiting Carrizozo would do well to take their meals at the Star Restaurant as the Lumpkinses not only serve good meals but extend to their guests the most courteous treatment.

Lincoln County High School News at Capitan, N. M.

[By W. J. Klepp.]

The faculty for the Lincoln County High School, at Capitan, New Mexico, has been selected and all have accepted, except the Primary teacher. The following are the names and qualifications of the new faculty for 1923-24: Mr. F. S. Copeland, Chappell, Neb., Graduate of University of Nebaska, where he rereceived the degree of Bachelor of Arts. He spent one year in the same University in graduate work in Science and Economics. He comes with ten years experience, and highly recommended, and will be the Superintendent of the entire system. Mr. Berthold Weber has accepted the position of Manuel Training and coach of athletics. He graduated from the University of Oklahoma where he received the degrees of B. S. and A. B. He played on the University Basket Ball team and has taken an active part in College Athletics. Mr. Weber is a young man, energetic and well qualified in the departments which will be in his care.

Miss Vera Parmer of Clinton, Oklahoma, graduate of the University of Oklahoma, with the degree of B. S., accepted the position of Domestic Science and Art and English. She qualifies under the Smith-Hughes Act and will keep this department in the high class of vocational work which it attained under Miss Wyatt. Parents should not fail to encourage their girls to encourage their girls to register in this department.

Miss Gladys Kilton of Trenton, N. J., graduate of Albany City College, the strongest Teachers College in the East, will have charge of Commercial and higher English subjects. She holds the degree of Bachelor of Arts and a life certificate in New York State. Miss Kilton is an experienced teacher, well qualified and highly recommended.

The genial Spanish teacher, Mrs. Mildred Peters-Sears, has been reelected for next year. She has served this institution for a number of years and has been a growing teacher, faithful and loyal. The community may well be proud of claiming so an efficient an instructor in Spanish.

The grade teachers who have accepted the positions offered them are Miss Mary Fritz, the faithful and efficient teacher of 5th and 6th grades, who has served this community for a number of years has made great progress in her work. She expects to do some reseach work in Berkley this summer along the line of grade work and Spanish.

Mr. Lewis Cummins, former graduate and successful teacher in the county has been elected to the 3rd and 4th grades for the coming year. He will introduce busy work for boys along the line of toy making and through the Domestic Science Department will give the girls busy work in sewing and art. Mr. Cummins will also assist in playground work and general athletics.

Several members of the faculty are qualified along musical lines and it is to be hoped that a musical club will be perfected in the early fall. Art and music will be taught in the grades and high school so far as it is possible to do so. With such a faculty there is no reason why L. C. H. S. should not become one of the leading schools of the State and every parent should make a special effort to enroll the children on the first day of school if it is necessary to sacrifice. The boys and girls will have an excellent opportunity to get credit in Physical training by coming out in Basket Ball. They will have two expert coaches and should develop a winning team for boys and girls.

School will open on September 3rd for enrollment in the courses. Let our slogan be: "Lincoln County High School ever leading." Be a booster for the school and you will boost Capitan. "Let's Go."

HAD FORGOTTEN ONE THING

Over-Ambitious Bride Remembered Too Late Where Her Pie-Making Effort Had Been Faulty.

I had invited my husband's people to dinner, and, like a foolish bride, decided to make pies and cakes. The cakes were flat when they came out of the oven, so I set my hopes on the pies. In my excitement I forgot all about shortening, mixed the flour and cold water, adding more flour and flour until the paste was almost hard, and then, believing the peaches inside would make up for the tough dough, I generously filled the pies. They baked nice, looking fine, and I was pleased, but—my guests were not. They nearly choked to death over the crust.

Hot with embarrassment I suddenly remembered I had omitted the shortening, tried to explain, made matters worse, finally fled from the room in tears.—Chicago Tribune.

Where He Was Ahead.

Jimmy is in the same grade at school as a playmate who is two years older. When asked by a friend of the family if he and Edward were in the same class, Jimmy replied: "Yes. You see, Edward is ahead of me in olds, but not in thinks."

The bonds for the new high school building, which were voted on at Mills at a special election recently, carried by a large majority, and bids will be asked for soon.

E. W. Nelson, grazing examiner for the U. S. Forest Service, stationed on the Jornada range reserve, northeast of Las Cruces, reports finding eleven weeds that are new to the flora of that district.

If the present plans of the Gallup city council are carried out, that city may have a giant reservoir on the top of the nearby hills to hold the water supply. It is planned to build a reservoir which will have a capacity of from six to eight million gallons.

An appeal for support of cities of the state in a fight against a proposed increase in rates on first class freight from points east of the Indiana-Illinois line for this territory has been sent out by E. W. Robinson, traffic expert of the business men's co-operative association of Albuquerque. The increase would affect Albuquerque, Las Vegas, Bernalillo, Belen and points intermediate to Dalies, N. M.

That he had prepared and tendered his resignation to W. G. Haydon, former president of the New Mexico Normal University board of regents, effective on August 1, 1923, was shown by a statement given the press at Las Vegas by Jonathan H. Wagner, president of the university. President Wagner declared that he would not resign under fire and was hopeful that an early hearing of the charges filed against him would be had.

Hereford cattle raised on the Vermejo Park ranches set a new price on the markets of Chicago, according to reports received at Raton. A number of cattle sold last fall to Illinois feeders were sold on the market for $10.05 per hundred which is said to be the highest price this year. During the time that the herd had been in the feeding pens each steer gained over 100 pounds which is more than the gain made by any other breed of cattle.

Lieut. Tommie Thompson, army reserve air officer, successfully completed the first trip of the Albuquerque-Aztec air stage line, the first passenger and freight air line to be established in the Southwest. Thompson left Albuquerque at 6:20 a. m., arriving in Aztec, with two passengers, three hours later, after making one landing at Farmington. The distance between Albuquerque and Aztec by air is 150 miles. The new stage line is said to be the first air line in the United States that provides a lower passenger fare than either automobile or railroad. It takes two days and three nights to reach Aztec from Albuquerque by railroad.

Plans for an extension from Santa Fe to Gallina, N. M., have been laid before the Interstate Commerce Commission by the New Mexico Central Railway. The new line will be about 100 miles long. No estimates of the cost were made. Extension of the New Mexico Central to Gallina, Rio Arriba county, eighty-six miles from Santa Fe by the highway, means the tapping of a region rich in timber, coal and copper, if not the first actual step toward the building of the long-dreamed-of standard-gauge outlet for the San Juan basin of northwestern New Mexico. In the region to be penetrated by the extension are enormous stands of virgin timber and deposits of copper that have not even been scratched and the widely advertised coal fields of the San Juan basin are known to extend eastward beyond the proposed terminus.

When A. Friedberg was arrested in Albuquerque, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses in taking subscriptions for a religious book, he said he was having printed in Jerusalem, police found $3,250.60 in currency on his person. He made no defense and readily paid a fine of $100 and then contributed $150 to a Jewish charity fund.

Francisco Fuego, who has been employed at the number 7 mine at Dawson for the past year, was accidentally killed by falling timbers in the mine shaft. He was about 24 years of age and came to the United States from Spain about 18 months ago. He is survived by a number of relatives living in the northern part of the state and in southern Colorado.

More than 20,000 inches of newspaper space has been employed by the public utility companies of New Mexico the past year to make known their affairs to their customers and the people in general. These figures were made public in New York City by New Mexico utility men who are attending the annual convention of the National Electric Light Association.

A protest by the A. T. & S. F. with the I. C. C. against a line proposed to be built by the Colorado, Columbus & Mexican from Columbus, N. M., to the San Juan Basin with feeders to El Paso, Tex., and Springerville, Ariz., was interpreted at Santa Fe to add color to a report that the Santa Fe plans to build from Gallup to the basin. News of the Santa Fe's action was received at the State Corporation Commission's offices with a request that the corporation commission hold a hearing on the C. C. & M.'s application.

Grant county leads all the other counties of New Mexico in the collection of taxes for the year 1922, the records showing that the collections to date are over 93 per cent. The banner taxpayer of the county is the Chino Copper Company, the check for the last half of the year for this corporation being $131,000. Proof that the county is gradually getting back to normal is shown by the prompt payment of the taxes, both county and city.

John was getting nervous as the doctor prepared to administer the anaesthetic.

"How long will it be before I know anything?" he queried, as the mask was adjusted.

"You're asking a good deal of the ether," was the doctor's reply.

The steeplejack lights his pipe and goes on painting

Imagine, if you can, a steeplejack 487 feet above the street level. Hanging on by his teeth he is applying a more or less rough-and-ready coat of paint to a flagpole.

It may seem foolish that a flagpole 487 feet in the air should need a coat of paint; but anyway, that's the case.

Right in the midst of a busy morning's painting an adventurous bee buzzes into the picture. In fact, there are two bees, both buzzing viciously.

What should the steeplejack do?

There being in the profession no local rules for buzzing bees, your average steeplejack probably would get the all-clear signal from below and slide promptly down to safety.

But not Our Hero.

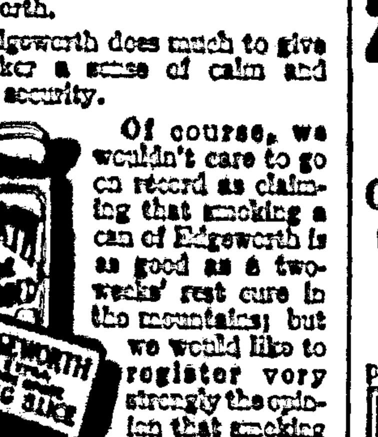
He takes out his pipe, lights it, and goes on painting.

"It soothes the nerves," he says frankly about pipe smoking.

And, by the way, although there are only twenty-five genuine, no-scaffold steeplejacks in the country, Our Hero is one of them.

We have no way of knowing what kind of tobacco the steeplejack pours into his pipe on these bee-buzzing occasions, but we have a feeling that it is Edgeworth.

For Edgeworth does much to give the smoker a sense of calm and peaceful security.



Of course, we wouldn't care to go on record as claiming that smoking a can of Edgeworth is as good as a two-weeks' rest cure in the mountains; but we would like to register very strongly the opinion that smoking any pipe makes life seem more worth living and that smoking a pipe filled with Edgeworth helps a lot.

At least, smokers from all parts of the country write in to tell how much Edgeworth helps them in the general pursuit of health, happiness and several good pipefuls a day.

If you are interested in finding out more about Edgeworth, the most sensible plan is for you to let Larus & Brother Company send you some free samples so that you can try the tobacco for yourself.

Just write your name and address down on a postcard and you will receive immediately generous helpings both of Edgeworth Plug Slice and Ready-Rubbed. If you will also include the name and address of your tobacco dealer, we will make it easier for you to get Edgeworth regularly.

For the free samples address Larus & Brother Company, 73 South 21st Street, Richmond, Virginia.

To Retail Tobacco Merchants: If your jobber cannot supply you with Edgeworth, Larus & Brother Company will gladly send you prepaid by parcel post a one- or two-dozen carton of any size of Edgeworth Plug Slice or Ready-Rubbed for the same price you would pay the jobber.

SAVED HER LIFE, SAYS MRS. ROWE

No One Thought She Would Live Long, but Tanlac Restored Perfect Health—Gained 34 Lbs.

Another great achievement is added to the remarkable Tanlac record. Mrs. George Rowe, highly esteemed resident of 010 South High St., Albuquerque, N. M.

"My present good health, if not my life, is due to Tanlac, and so far as I'm concerned, I firmly believe the medicine did save my life. About eight years ago, after the birth of my baby, I was completely broken down in health. I was little more than skin and bones and was so weak I couldn't do any of my housework. I had no appetite at all, was so nervous I couldn't sleep, and felt blue and despondent all the time. Words simply cannot describe the condition I was in, and no one thought I would live very long.

"Well, I really don't believe I would be here today were it not for Tanlac. Shortly after I started taking it my appetite improved, I was feeling stronger, so I kept on taking it until all my strength and energy returned and my health was completely restored. I gained thirty-four pounds in weight and have felt like a new person ever since."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

Rebuking Fido.

Maudie, Bud and Fido were playing on the porch when a visitor for mother walked up. Fido didn't join in the children's welcome, but barked aggressively and wouldn't stop.

"Fido," indignantly reproved Maudie, "behave yourself; you doesn't hear me and Bud barking at mother's guests, does you? No reason why you shouldn't be a gentleman like us."

WHY TAKE LAXATIVES?

Discovery by Science Has Replaced Them.

Pills and salts give temporary relief from constipation only at the expense of permanent injury, says an eminent medical authority.

Science has found a newer, better way—a means as simple as Nature itself.

In perfect health a natural lubricant keeps the food waste soft and moving. But when constipation exists this natural lubricant is not sufficient. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

As Nujol is not a medicine or laxative, it cannot gripe and, like pure water, it is harmless and pleasant.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals. Get a bottle from your druggist today.—Advertisement.

Primed by Mamma.

The night cashier had his little six-year-old niece over to breakfast with him. They had grapefruit, smothered steak, which he had to cut—for her, French fried potatoes, etc., and got so full they couldn't eat another bite. Chef Goggins did his best for them, and said he never saw a little girl eat more. Then they visited a store where he bought her a pair of new shoes. As they were coming out of the store she said, "Uncle, I want to whisper to you." He bent down and heard: "Momma told me to get a haircut out of you if I could."—"Elx," in Lincoln Journal.

Important to All Women Readers of This Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition.

Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and maybe despondent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive sample size bottle by parcel post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

Arithmetical Complaints.

Two men were discussing the ups and downs of fortune in the Finance building recently. Said one: "My life can be likened to an arithmetic problem."

"How is that?"

"Well, when my father's estate was settled years ago there were seven of us. I suffered from long division."

"Yes?"

"And last week my fourth child was born. Now I'm suffering from multiplication."

"He's not much of a dancer."
