Magic Tricks Made Easy by Whittler

Clever Entertainer With Punch and Judy.

Philadelphia.—Have you ever wondered who makes the Punch and Judy figures you see on the stage? Did you ever stop to think of the man who makes the magician's trick box, his false bottom trunk, or the plug hat out of which he pulls a plant in full bloom? If you took the trouble to investigate these things you would find that the trail of many a magician's success leads to the home of Eli Hackman on West Queen lane, Philadelphia. If you should pursue the matter still further, you would get the story of this man who has developed his hobby into a profitable business.

Mr. Hackman's vocation is prosaic enough. He is the building superintendent of the Spring Garden station and office building of the Reading system. When he is not railroading, however, he is pursuing his avocation of making Punch and Judy figures and other magician's devices. Though his avocation is paying him handsome dividends, he refuses to consider it a business, and always refers to it as his hobby.

Spent Hours Whittling.

Like most other boys, Mr. Hackman spent many hours whittling in his childhood home in Carlisle, Pa. Especially favorable opportunities were presented for the development of this hand, as his father was a wagonmaker and his son had access to his woodworking plant. Before he ventured to work with a jackknife and a piece of wood, Mr. Hackman entered the field of manufacturing Punch and Judy figures by experimenting on his mother's sewing machine and stuffing his rag creations with sawdust. Then he tried carving the figures out of wood. He worked at it only sporadically, however, and up to the time when he moved his family to Philadelphia in 1900 he had only a few figures on hand.

About this time the attention of several ventriloquists was attracted to his work. Having had great difficulty in obtaining satisfactory figures from any other source, they asked the erstwhile boy whittler to make several sets for them. He undertook the work, delivering the figures, and ever since has been turning them out for ventriloquists in all parts of the country. One thing led to another and soon he had added a long list of magicians' devices to his output.

Just about everything used in the way of stage deception is included in Mr. Hackman's manufacturing repertoire. Punch and Judy figures play a prominent part. He cuts them out of wood—eyes, ears, nose and mouth and all. Then he walks across his second-story backroom to a cabinet filled with every color and shade of paint. Here they get their resplendent colors and are then turned over to Mr. Hackman's silent partner—Mrs. Hackman—who fits them out with clothing.

Entertains Kids.

While Mr. Hackman has always made a specialty of Punch and Judy figures, you will find in his collection a devil with moving jaw and flashing and smoke-emitting eyes, an anarchist with flaming red hair, a hangman, an assortment of colored babies, singing birds, a man-eating whale and a panting, wheezing alligator. In a cabinet on the other side of this second-story backroom is a collection of plug hats, dice, false-bottom boxes, magical flowers and trick watches.

He presents no mean figure on the stage with his floating voice and his box of tricks. He can make a cuckoo grow in a man's vestpocket, pull live rabbits out of his ear and make his watch sing like an oriole. He can pick money out of the air, play a banjo where there is none and pull the American flag from under his thumbpull.

Most of Mr. Hackman's exhibitions—and he has given several hundred of them—have been for the benefit of children living in his neighborhood. Every week he nonplusses the day and time of a party and the children from all the nearby streets flock to see the show.

Doubting Banks, Keep $400,000,000 in Socks

Washington.—In the collective ginger jars and stockings of the United States there is a total of more than $400,000,000 jealously hoarded away, according to estimates by Joseph S. McCoy, United States treasury actuary, for the current issue of the American Bankers' Association Journal.

Eight thousand Americans may safely be put in the miser class, McCoy believes. They just like to see their money and gloat over it and call it pet names, and among them they are keeping $44,000,000 out of circulation.

Then there are the children's banks. Probably 2,500,000 kids have such banks, and there is perhaps an average of 60 cents in each, making a total of $1,500,000 thus hoarded away. McCoy doesn't go so far as to charge the kids with wanting to let their money stay in the pinproof receptacles.

About half of the entire hoarded wealth of the United States is in the cupboards and under the mattresses of foreign-born residents, who aren't yet used to banks. And farmers are hoarding a total of $125,000,000, McCoy says.

Efficiency in Use of Fuel Shows Increase

Washington.—Efficiency in use of fuel by public utility power plants has increased 33 1-3 per cent in the last four years, according to a statement issued by the Department of Interior, which shows that a ton of coal in 1919 produced 625 kilowatt hours of electricity, compared with 833 hours in 1923. The total amount of electricity generated increased in this period from 39,000,000,000 kilowatt hours to 55.7 billion kilowatt hours.

Find Unknown River in Northern Alaska

Interesting Letter Tells Life in Far North.

Washington, D. C.—The story of an explorer's life in the northern Alaskan wilderness and the discovery of uncharted streams is contained in a letter brought back to civilization by an Eskimo from the geological survey party headed by Dr. Philip S. Smith and made public by the Interior department. The expedition is exploring naval petroleum reserve No. 4.

In exploring the Colville river, the letter, written March 30, states that Doctor Smith found a river about 200 yards wide, which flows westward and then turns northward. The party plans to continue the river explorations, but they must reach the coast in time to catch the last ship out of the Arctic ocean before the September freeze.

Find Grave of Willows.

The party has established a base camp at the head of the Unakserak river about ten miles from the divide between the Unakserak and Colville rivers, at latitude 67:45:30, at an altitude of 2,300 feet. On this divide the party has discovered groves of willow trees as large as a man's wrist, which they are using for fuel.

The letter explained that the supporting party of seven men and 120 dogs turned back on March 10, and the main expedition was proceeding with three sleds and thirty-three dogs. The sleds soon will be abandoned, and the journey continued in canoes on the Colville river.

The letter, which was written by Dr. J. B. Mertie, Jr., gives the following description:

"During the summer, I have been engaged chiefly in making astronomical observations with the transit. I have seven good observations on latitude and azimuth, which check one another very well.

Able to Find the Time.

"Having my azimuth, I also have local time from transits of the sun. And what with watches, and their known rates, we are in a position to make a fair computation of longitude. I am also able to rate our watches from successive transits of the sun, day after day at this camp.

"Such diversion keeps me very busy, and the days pass very quickly. Once in a while, say once a day, when it gets too cold sitting in the tent, I warm up by cutting wood for a half hour or an hour. All of us are well. None of us have been seriously frostbitten yet, and I think the most severe weather of the winter is past now. So, all in all, everything is going fine, and the success of the expedition seems assured. Just tell that to the doubters."

Children's Dog Is Located by Radio

New York.—Lillian Leary, eight, and her brother, John, nine, are happy again because Buster, the curly-haired French poodle, is home with them again. A few days ago they tramped four miles looking for him, then induced the Jamaica police to send an alarm by radio. Thomas Dahlel, too, telephoned the children's mother he had the dog.

Lillian, with her penny bank containing $3.20, and John, with two bars of chocolate, accompanied their mother to the Dahlel home. Lillian thrust her book into the finder's hand, and John handed him the chocolate.

To Live on Ship

London.—Because of lack of accommodations during what is known as the social season here, a party of 500 Gothenburg students have chartered a ship in which they will live while visiting England. The vessel is to anchor in the Thames.

Mrs. Vera Goyle of Oakland, Calif., burned to death in an airplane which crashed to the ground in the foothills east of the city and Dewey Ward, pilot, was badly injured. The crash of the plane from a height of 200 feet was witnessed by about 500 persons, including Ward's wife and small child. Spectators had removed Ward from the plane, when the gasoline tank exploded and flames prevented the rescue of Mrs. Goyle.

Decision against the Washington Water, Light and Power Company in the $1,000,000 suit in equity brought against it by the Equitable Trust Company of New York and the Guarantee Bank and Trust Company of New York and others, was announced by Judge J. Stanley Webster in Superior Court at Spokane. Under the decree the several properties of the power company will be sold as separate units under the mortgages held against them.

The indictment charged Dorris with murder on June 30 of his wife, Thoresa Dorris, and Henry D. Meyer, wealthy Pasadena resident. The man and the woman were found slain in Dorris' Long Beach apartment. Dorris, arrested in connection with the deaths, claimed that Meyer first killed Mrs. Dorris and then committed suicide.

Three hundred and twenty-two thousand four hundred and eight dollars, reported to be the largest judgment ever awarded in the Bozeman District Court, was taxed against Richard T. Ringling, prominent rancheman and showman, by a jury in Bozeman, Mont., at the conclusion of the suit of Hans Biering and M. B. Cunningham against Ringling. The plaintiffs had sued for $540,000 on damages for an alleged conspiracy on the part of the defendant to force the plaintiffs out of the Southern Montana Livestock Company.

Prime Minister MacDonald told the House of Commons that he understood from conversations with Premier Herriot of France and others that if an American were appointed to the reparations commission to safeguard the creditors of the $40,000,000 loan to Germany, "France would undoubtedly insist that the extra appointee to the commission should have his purpose confined to safeguarding creditors of the loan, although he would be allowed to speak and to vote."

Houston, Texas, will be the scene of the 1925 international advertising convention. This place was the unanimous choice of the board of club presidents at the meeting in London and it was given approval by the general meeting of the delegates as it was the only city placed before the convention. ALLIED MEETING SPEEDS WORK

AMERICAN OBSERVER SATISFIED WITH PROGRESS MADE DURING PERIOD OF ADJUSTMENT

FINISH THIRD OF WORK

MOST IMPORTANT PART OF THE DAWES PLAN YET TO BE CONSIDERED

London.—The Dawes plan for a reparations deal intended to be devoid of sentiment and political and nationalistic feeling is going through the most critical period of its existence under the scrutiny of experts at work in the committee rooms in Downing street. It was authoritatively stated that America's official observer, Ambassador Kellogg, and his advisor, Col. James A. Logan, Jr., and the prime ministers of Great Britain, France and Belgium, were highly satisfied with the progress made.

The British are said to be particularly pleased because the deliberations are keeping close to the vital purpose for which the conference assembled—that of adopting broad, sweeping measures for making the Dawes scheme workable.

One important phase of the conference work, that of perfecting the organization to be set up in each country for handling the payments to be made by Germany under the new scheme was completed, and a draft of the proposals embodying the agreement is ready for the approval of a plenary session of the conference.

Thus a third of the work laid out for the conference has been accomplished within a few hours of Premier MacDonald's formal welcome to the delegates. But the most optimistic of the envoys who have gathered in London to attempt to put an end to the reparations wrangles of the last six years do not suggest that it is the most important or the most difficult third of what is to be done before the Dawes plan is effected.

It is pointed out that making plans for receiving and distributing reparations was easy sailing, but the the rocks around which the allied plenipotentiaries must steer a careful course lies behind the two subdivisions of the conference known as committees one and two. The first is dealing with the problem of creating confidence for an international loan for Germany and the question of an American member of the reparations commission as arbiter on the subject of defaults.

Another problem before the committee is what penalties to inflict if Germany wilfully defaults under the Dawes schedule.

Committee two, which is attempting to devise means to restore the fiscal and economic unity of Germany has encountered difficulties, owing to the French request for assurance that an international loan, upon which the whole working of the Dawes plan depends, shall be underwritten before question of German unity is brought up.

Dry Law Rejected

Regina, Sask.—Opposition to the "bone dry" prohibition act and approval of government sale of spirituous and malt liquors in sealed packages was shown by the voters of Saskatchewan province in the recent plebiscite. Returns available from more than half the total vote of the province show a ratio of nearly five to three against continuation of the present "bone dry," which went into effect Feb. 1, 1921.

Leopold and Loeb Sued

Chicago.—Details of the alleged assault which Mrs. Louise Hobley, mother of four children declared was made upon her by Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, accused of kidnaping and killing Robert Franks, a neighbor boy, for excitement were revealed in a declaration filed in the Superior Court in her $100,000 damage suit against the two millionaires' sons. Mrs. Hobley charges that she was kidnaped from in front of a theatre and assaulted by two youths in an automobile.

Missouri Laws Prevent Invasion

Jefferson City.—Possibility of an invasion of southwest Missouri by Japanese on a colonization project is virtually impossible, it was said at the state legal department in Jefferson City. Officials declared that such a project would be prohibited by Missouri's anti-alien land laws and that the Ozark region seem to have been unduly "agitated" by reports that some 25,000 Japanese were to leave California and buy farming lands in Missouri.

Americans Arrested in Mexico

Mexico City.—Charles Sherwin and Harris Schwartz, United States citizens, have been arrested in Guadalajara, where they were allegedly trying to carry out a large swindle in organizing a fake company called "The Mutual Mining Pool."

New Mexico State Items

The store of the Gila Farm Company at Buckhorn was burned to the ground recently and both the building and contents are a total loss.

A 12-year-old boy by the name of Creel was shot and fatally wounded near the west fork of the Gila, when a shotgun in the hands of his friend was accidentally discharged.

The first of the 1924 honey crop of Eddy county will soon be gathered and there is now every indication that this product will bring many thousand dollars into the county this season.

F. P. Strickland, manager of the New Mexico Eagle Oil Company, reported that the first test well of the company was spudded on the acreage the company has secured near Farmington.

The planting of 800 acres of head lettuce in the vicinity of Springer was started recently. About 500 acres will be on the Springer tract and the balance on the Colmor tract and the Mitchell valley.

The big drill at the Eurotia oil well, south of Raton, is now about thirty-five feet in the cap rock and the bailer is bringing up half a bucket of heavy black oil each time. Drilling is progressing slowly and the men in charge believe that a producer will be brought in soon.

The new test well for oil on the Floersheim ranch in the vicinity of Springer is now down to the depth of ninety feet with the drill running in the Dakota sands. The company is pushing the work to the limit and the drill is kept running twenty-four hours per day with two crews.

County Treasurer Bayne, of Grant county, reports the collection of taxes in the county to date to be over 63 per cent. This is believed to be a record among the counties of the entire state for the year. Despite the bank failures in this district people have been prompt in paying their taxes.

Over 150 employees of the Santa Fe shops at Clovis were laid off the first of the month due to a slump in the business of the company. A layoff of this kind has been an annual affair with the company, however, since the war, and is usually done at the time of the closing of the fiscal year.

Plans are now under way among the musicians of Las Vegas to promote an like the famous cowboys' band, in order that the organization may fill various engagements throughout the country. According to Doc Patterson, director, there are now eighteen musicians in the band who rank among the best in the Southwest, and if the plans are carried out, at least ten more will have to be secured to fill the quota.

The new Angelus oil well, which was spudded in some time ago north of Deming, is now down over 200 feet with the casing being set as the big drill goes down. The drill is still running through rocks and boulders and so far the progress has been slow. Some trouble was had with the walking beam but this has been repaired and the work is being pushed as rapidly as possible with two crews working both night and day.

With an unqualified offer of a bonus of $100,000, together with all necessary land for terminal and possible shop facilities, the Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce has launched a project for the building of a short-line railroad from Alamogordo through Las Cruces to Deming, which would save the Southern Pacific a haul of nearly eighty miles on all through traffic, after it absorbs the El Paso & Southwestern railroad, as is now proposed.

Berkeley's Bludgeon, the new periodical at Las Vegas, ceased publication because of adverse business conditions. The Bludgeon contained in the two numbers published, numerous interesting stories, articles and poems by New Mexico writers.

State Highway Engineer James A. French, who made a swing through the southern part of the state, reported the highway from Cabin Fe to Roswell, by way of Lamy, Encino and Vaught, open all the way and in good shape with the exception of a few spots, which can be eliminated by dragging as soon as it rains. The trip over this road, a distance of 200 miles, now can be made in seven hours. The work has been done by what is known as "force account," without federal aid. On the route between Roswell and El Paso, Mr. French said federal aid project 62, from a point east of Picacho to Hondo has been completed, and work is going ahead rapidly on 103, between Huidoso and Bent, across the Mescalero Indian reservation. On this project sections of this road which heretofore have been the most difficult to get over, will be opened by the end of the month.

Cotton in the Mesilla valley is now standing about six feet high and is doing splendidly according to reports of the growers who have made a careful inspection of the crop. There is every indication that the yield will be better than that of last season.

Following the game of July 6, Fort Bayard dropped out of the Copper Baseball League for the rest of the season. It is said that financial trouble was the cause of the change. It is possible that the place will be given to Silver City for the second half of the playing season.

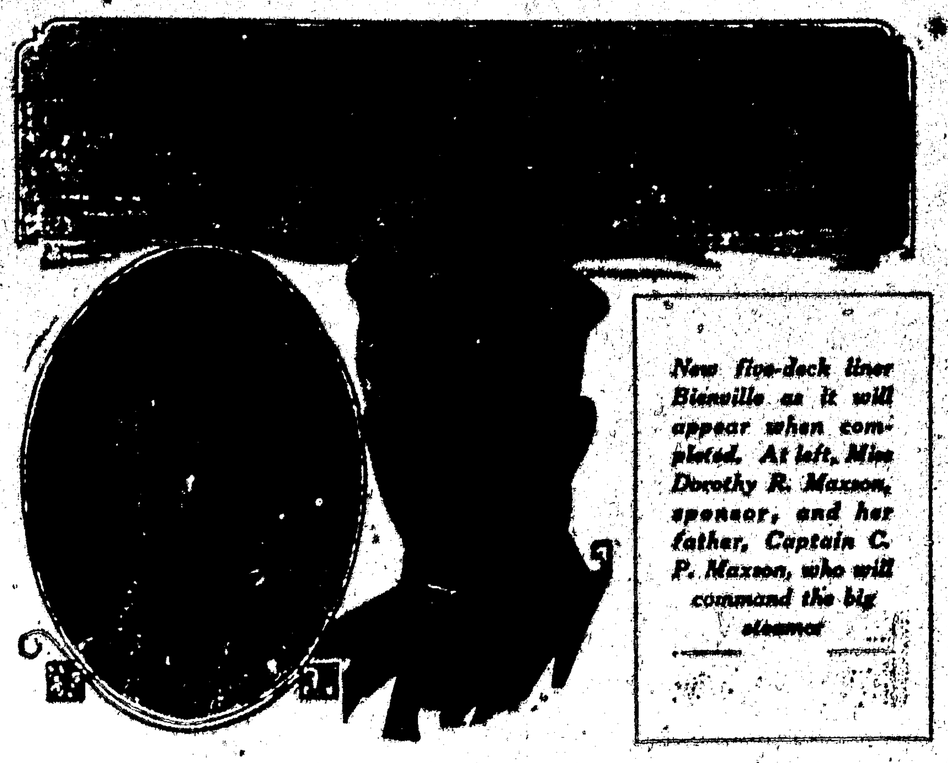
Finest Steamer Since War Launched for S. P. To Improve Water-Rail Service to the West



New five-deck liner Bienville as it will appear when completed. At left, Miss Dorothy R. Maxson, sponsor, and her father, Captain C. P. Maxson, who will command the big steamer

TACOMA, July 16.—Establishing what is declared to be a new speed record for construction of such a large and modern craft, the steamer Bienville, new queen for the Southern Pacific's Atlantic fleet, was launched today at the Todd Drydock and Construction company's plant. The keel was laid 4½ months ago.

The steamer, which will carry both passengers and cargo on the important New York-New Orleans run, connecting with the Sunset Limited to and from the Pacific coast, is 445 feet in length. It is to be the finest and best equipped of any vessel launched since the war.

Named for Jean de Bienville, noted French general who in 1718 founded the city of New Orleans, the new steamer was sponsored by Miss Dorothy R. Maxson of West Mystic, Conn., attractive daughter of Captain C. P. Maxson, senior captain of the Southern Pacific's ocean service, who will command the Bienville.

Captain and Mrs. Maxson and their daughter headed a delegation of railroad and steamship officials and Pacific coast business men who visited Tacoma today for the launching, as the guests of J. A. Ryan, president of the Todd company.

It is expected the Bienville will be in readiness in November for her trial trip to the Atlantic coast preparatory to delivery to the Southern Pacific at New York. A short time later she will take her position as flag ship of the fleet forming part of the commercially important route between the Pacific and Atlantic coasts.

The steamer cost in excess of $2,000,000. She is to be a five-deck ship, with turbine engines capable of developing 7,100 horsepower, driving the steamer at a sustained speed of 16 knots an hour. There will be accommodations for 137 first cabin and 111 steerage passengers.

Southern Pacific service, providing "100 golden hours at sea" between New York and New Orleans and by rail through the romantic south and southwest to and from the Pacific coast, is attracting large numbers of passengers. These include many tourists visiting California, Arizona, New Mexico and other states.

Freight steamers of the company also operate between New York and Galveston, where connection is made with the rail lines serving New Mexico, Arizona and California. New low rates recently were authorized by the interstate commerce commission for commodities over this route.

Boy Struck By Auto.

A telegram to Witt Scars, from Cisco, Texas, states that his six year old grandson, Johnnie Clark, has been run over by an automobile and seriously injured.

A later message stated that the boy could not survive the accident and Mrs. Scars and Mr. and Mrs. Covey left Friday morning for Cisco.

Another Soaking Rain.

Another general rain fell over a large section of this country Thursday afternoon and night.

The heaviest precipitation appears to have been on the north side of the Capitans but a good, slow rain fell as far west as Carrizozo.

This bountiful downfall followed a number of smaller showers that have been falling in different parts of the county for the past two weeks.

Ranchmen and farmers are assured of grass and crops, the former being assured of grass for range stock for the coming winter.

Fun and Foolishness.

Logical.—At a small country school the scholars were having a lesson on animals. The teacher had asked a number of questions which were easily answered. At length she said:

"Why does a dog hang out his tongue when running?"

A lad who had not answered before held up his hand.

"Yes, Tommy, what is it?" she inquired.

"To balance its tail," was the reply.—Dublin Evening Telegraph.

BILL BOOSTER SAYS

"MOREOVER if thy brother shall trespass against thee, go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone: if he shall hear thee, thou hast gained thy brother."—Matt. 18-15.

THE SPIRIT that prevails in this summer wonderland is best explained by a little verse we saw posted in a curio shop up Ruidoso way. This:

Don't feel afraid of anything,
Through life just freely roam,
This shop belongs to all of us
So make yourself at home.

IT IS a most gratifying situation when the conventions of the different parties name men of such recognized ability and moral integrity to head their national tickets. No one can with truth say the country will not be in safe hands, whether Coolidge, Davis or LaFollette be elected this fall. Nor will this great country be jeopardized by any situation, such as the removal from office, for any cause, of the president so elected. In choosing men of the character of Wheeler, Dawes and Bryan as running mates for the presidential nominees, the conventions have dispelled any concern that may have been felt in the matter of the possible succession to the higher office by the vice-president, whichever party is designated to control the governmental affairs of the nation during the coming four year period. Mud-slinging vituperation at the hands of either party, in our humble opinion, will not draw so much as a single vote to the party standard of such mud-slinger, but there is a high probability of it having a decidedly opposite effect. The people demand their right to have the issues discussed and not the personal character of either candidate—they believe the latter beyond reproach. That anarchistic theory of campaigning which contemplates the dragging down the clean and moral that its hellish doctrine can survive, has no place in our enlightened commonwealth but should be confined to the cancerous abnormalons that gave it birth—ignorance, slovenly, envy and crime.

AFTER MUCH consideration of the meager evidence on which we are forced to rely in arriving at a conclusion, we must confess our inability to see any just reason why the proposed merging of the lines of the El Paso & Southwestern with the Southern Pacific system should not be permitted by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Railroad companies as well as other corporations are fictitious persons, created by the law, with the powers to contract, to sue and be sued, and to conduct its affairs in its own name; in every respect the same rights, powers and responsibilities are placed upon them as upon individuals. If the two roads in question are of the opinion that they can better serve the public at large and at the same time earn more lucrative dividends for its stockholders by placing themselves under a common management they have, in our opinion, a just and legal right so to do, regardless of any damage, fancied or real, that may accrue to any individual, municipality or other single integral portion of territory so traversed by the lines. Transportation is too closely identified with our very lives to be made the football of any one particular place or district, due to an unreasoning fear that that particular place or district will possibly lose a "turntable," or the "thrill" that comes with the sight of a trans-continental fast freight "highballing" its way to eager markets. An ideal transportation system is one that puts the California grapefruit and cantaloupes on our breakfast table, the complicated tools and machinery of the middle west on our farms and in our shops and the textiles and manufactured commodities of the effete east in our mercantile establishments—and at the lowest rate possible with fairness to the carriers. If by merging of carrier systems this result can be partly realized, then we are of the opinion that the proposition is a worthy one and will be of material benefit to the entire country as against the ambitions of any minor portion of those interested.

YOU, MR. TOURIST! In your frenzied endeavor to "see America first," your insatiable appetite for the things beautiful, your accumulation of the mud of countless states on the old bus, there is even another surprise for you if you will take a slant up the Ruidoso valley. Stop at Glencoe and give that beauty spot the "once over."—now ain't you glad you decided to take our advice and the trip? Drift on up to the "White Mountain Inn," (try to make it to this point by mealtime if you would not miss a treat.) You will be reluctant to leave these pleasant spots. We know you're in a hurry to get back to Squeedunk to see just how the hired help is conducting your affairs and see your banker in regard to making a note to cover that overdraft, but you already have the latter gentleman where he dare not protest your checks so mix a wee bit more mountain stone with the gas in the carburetor to climb up to Navajo Lodge—you will feel yourself slipping regarding those home misgivings and will drive on up to one Ike Wingfield's store and Henistines curio shop. But you are now on your way to the sawmill to see those forest giants converted into an important commodity of a commercial world. Now you're glad you came. You're not in near the hurry to get back to Squeedunk as you were. Alright, as you pass through Capitan on your way home don't fail to stop and thank us for our tip and tell us what a wonderful six weeks you have spent in our wonderland. Sure we'll send it to you each week for a year. No it's one-fifty—same price the world over. Just address your mail to our care when you start out here next summer, and tell that bunch you're going to put "hep" to what we've got out here to do the same. Aurevoir!

New Oil Fields Needed.

With prospective consumption this summer running 2,500,000 barrels of crude oil a day, the problem of the oil industry is becoming more apparently one of getting the oil.

Production is less than a year ago. In the last 12 months production in this country totaled 741,000,000 barrels and imports 82,000,000, a total supply of 823,00,0000,000 barrels. Of that huge amount, only 75,000,000 barrels were stored.

In the face of these conditions it is more apparent than ever before, that if the people of our country are to be supplied with gasoline and petroleum products at the expected low prices, past of legislation tending to discourage pioneering by large companies, and periodical investigations, must be curbed.

Glencoe

E. Perry and wife passed this way en route up the river.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Cox motored up the river Sunday.

The people have been coming in by the bunches to the summer camps since the good rains.

Mr. Hendricks and family and some friends of El Paso were camping last week on the Pepper's camp site.

Mr. Feely has returned to the "A" ranch, where he will begin work again since his wedding trip. Mrs. Feely is still camping at the summer resort.

Mrs. Frank Stetson and girls came down the river today and reported that they were selling about ten dollars worth of milk and butter a day to the summer folks.

Mr. Lee Avant is now camping above here on the river. He is an old timer in this country but has been away for several years, having lived part of the time in El Paso.

HIKING DOWN THE LONG BROWN PATH

Vacationists With Shelter Tents and Tin Cow Learning to Walk All Over Again.

Out it's not the pack that you carry on your back
Nor the rifle on your shoulder,
Nor the five inch crust of khaki-colored dust
That makes you feel your limbs are growing older;
And it's not the hike on the hard turnpike
That drives away your smile,
Nor the oaths of sisters that raise the blistering blisters—
It's the last long mile.
—Plattsburgh Marching Song.

Stringing out from the suburban transit terminals of New York every Sunday and holiday goes the army of khaki-clad hikers. There may be an automobile for every twenty of the country's population, but a host of city folks disprove the theory of a future leg-enfeebled citizenry and are learning to walk all over again.

To the more casual minded, the hike is just exercise, but to those who catch its real significance the hike means a great deal more. It is the cheapest form of recreation and therefore appeals to those living in crowded districts and unable to avail themselves of the more expensive amusements. And these people, be it noted, are just those the country is so anxious to have spread out and settled in the farming districts. The hike, indeed, has possibilities as a real starter for the "back to the farm" movement.

Doughboy, and Boy Scout Lead Way

Just a brief survey of the rollicking groups which move off from the outlying terminals on holidays establishes a few general types. There is the ex-service man and his friends who will hear from him the story of more serious excursions on the muddy roads of France. He tightens a strap here and another there on the blanket roll adjustment or the "shelter half," in which the commissary is packed for the mid-day feast by the roadside. Expert directions come from him on the method of slinging the pack so it will not feel so heavy or interfere with the free body movement. He will pass along the information gained in his army days, of how that same pack was evolved after numerous experiments to find the easiest way of carrying the heaviest load. With results he now complaints, but which he characterized when a doughboy as a "blankety-blank total failure."

HUSBAND SAID WHY NOT TRY IT

Wife Said She Would. Result, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her Well and Strong

East Hardwick, Vt.—"Last winter I was not able to do any work at all. I had backache, headache, side ache, and was sick all the time for six months. We read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers, and my husband said to me, 'Why don't you try it?' So I said I would, and he went and got me a dozen bottles. It has done me more good than I can ever tell, and my friends say, 'What have you done to yourself? You look so well.' I tell them it is the Vegetable Compound that makes me so well and strong. There is no use to suffer with backache and pains. I will tell every one what it has done for me."—Mrs. FRED PRIMO, Route No. 2, East Hardwick, Vermont.

Housewives make a great mistake in allowing themselves to become so ill that it is well-nigh impossible for them to attend to their household duties.

In a recent country-wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, 98 out of every 100 report they were benefited by its use. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Artificial Moonlight

A scheme looking toward the flooding of the whole inner area of London with artificial moonlight after nightfall will be brought before the Institute of Public Lighting Engineers, which has just been organized there. The plan calls for flood lighting of the city from eight powerful constellations of electric lights, which would surmount steel towers, 500 feet high, distributed over a wide area.

Adoption of the new scheme, it is said, would result in better lighting and make London practically shadowless.

A Colorado Case

A. A. Hill, 609 Eighth St., Alamosa, Colo., says: "Kidney trouble came on and my back became lame. Twitching pains in my back tormented me for days at a time and I felt run down in every respect. I learned of Doan's Pills. They helped me quickly and I was soon perfectly well. Any time I have an attack of kidney trouble, Doan's always bring relief."

Admonishing Him

"Hi-lo, hi-lo," merrily yodled a tourist who had left his car and rambled out onto a bluff in the woods to give certain other tourists on the bluff across the creek a musical treat. "Hi-lo, hi-lo-o-o-o-o."

"Lesby yur, pedner," said old man Hackery, rising up from behind a big bush. "While I never was one to butt into nobody else's business, I'm yur to say that if you're trying to call bawgs you'll have to do better than that."—Kansas City Star.

Gentlemen:

I am more than glad to tell you of the experience we have had with Mrs. Winslow's Syrup. Our baby was teething and was very cross and fretful. We had tried everything we could think of but had never given an opiate to a baby. One day we got a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Syrup. She took a few doses and slept all night. We were amazed and startled. We found peace in our home by the use of Mrs. Winslow's Syrup. Most sincerely,

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

BETTER THAN GOLD

FOR ages it has been the custom of the larger proportion of earthlings to bow to the yellow god of gold and worship it, overlooking in their insane idolatry the wondrous, enduring riches that lie at their feet, disregarded and trodden down.

Children come into the world with shining eyes and laughter on their lips. They are as blithe as birds in the springtime until they are taught by their parents to look reverently upon the cold face of the god of mammon.

Then comes a change in their speech and deportment. The little rich child is instructed to look with disfavor upon the little poor child, so a sharp line of distinction is drawn between them and each goes his or her way, unfriendly towards each other.

A bitterness springs up in their hearts. As the years come and go, it grows to pride, disrespect and hate. Then follow the oft-repeated tales of history—strife, war, bloodshed, tears and sorrowings—tales that have been told over and over with rancor since the creation of man.

The happiness which the children knew is crushed to death beneath the ponderous weight of gold. The carefree laughter which they brought with them has flown away beyond their reach, and they have become hard-faced and cordid, like the rest of us, thinking and dreaming mostly of earthly wealth and power.

There are some noble spirits, however, who scornfully turn their backs upon the false god, refusing to bow down to it or admit its supremacy.

These are the salt of the earth, whose saving substance may redeem the idolaters.

You will find them among the faithful, the charitable, and big-hearted, working earnestly for the betterment of mankind, unmindful of riches, forgetful of, everything else except the life in which gold loses its value in the august presence of character and divine possibility.

Are we among these faithful ones, or are we cowards?

Do we tremble in terror at the monstrous god of wealth, its pomp and splendor and power, or do we, like the faithful, consider it merely a myth of time, doomed to banishment with the oncoming dawn of eternity?

Has Anyone Laughed At You Because—

By ETHEL R. FEYSER

You never buy trolley tickets ahead?

You probably live on a small allowance and buying in bulk, though best always, is unfeasible for you. Then, too, when you have the tickets you always feel that you must pay the other fellow's carfare. This becomes too costly even if it is a great joy to you. So you have wisely not accumulated tickets until you need them. Often, indeed, you have lost your tickets. "The dear little things" are vagrant and easily stray away. On the whole, buy as you ride, unless the saving is great—but do not live in heaven!

SO

Your get-away here is: Buying, if nothing else, is your own trouble.

Never attempt to bear more than one kind of trouble at once. Some people bear three kinds—all they have had, all they have now and all they expect to have.—Edward Everett Hale.

HELPFUL SUGGESTIONS

A LARGE chicken is much more economical to buy than a small one, as the proportion of meat to bone is greater. After all the meat is removed, the bits too small to serve on the table may be used in a salad or a cream canape on toast. The bones, with a stalk or two of celery, with an onion and a bit of carrot, covered with cold water and simmered for several hours, will make a most delicious soup. Cream, egg or rice may be added, or it may be served clear with croutons.

For the child who carries a lunch a sandwich or two, one for real nourishment and the other for a sweet, with a bit of seasonable fruit, will make a good meal and one easy to prepare on a busy morning.

Many a child has been taught to like tea or coffee by having the milk warmed by either of these beverages. This is a most pernicious habit to form. Milk may be warmed with hot water or heated milk may be given the child if a hot drink is desirable, but tea or coffee in any form should never be allowed. Weak tea or coffee is more harmful than a well-prepared concoction, some of our dietitians tell us, as the weak solution sets up a fermentation, causing sour stomach and other digestive disorders. The safe thing is to leave such beverages for older people who ought to be able to withstand such indulgence, if ill effects result from their use.

Everyday Cake.

Beat four tablespoonfuls of butter to a cream, add one-half cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of chopped raisins, two egg yolks beaten light, one-fourth of a cupful each of maple and corn sirup, one-half cupful of milk; add one and three-fourths cupfuls of flour, a teaspoonful of cream of tartar, half teaspoonful of soda, one-half teaspoonful each of salt and mace all sifted together. Add the stiffly-beaten whites of the eggs and turn into a shallow pan. Sprinkle with chopped nuts and dredge with sugar. Bake in a moderate oven about an hour. When a cake for a nice occasion is wanted, the following will be the one to prepare:

Onions With Cheese.

Cook even-sized onions until tender, place a layer in a baking dish, cover with a rich white sauce and a half-inch layer of finely-minced cheese; cover with another layer of onions and white sauce, sprinkle with buttered crumbs and place in a hot oven to thoroughly heat through and brown the crumbs.

Reflections of a Bachelor Girl

By HELEN ROWLAND

WHAT constitutes a "popular fellow"? The ability to tell a good story—to men, and a good lie to a woman.

Every girl pitches her wagon to a star, in these days; but that never seems to prevent her from wanting a husband, if only as a parachute in case of disaster.

Advising a husband how to rule his wife or a wife how to manage her husband is deliberately forgetting with 'E, N, T. But the world will always be full of intrepid "advisers" who keep the rest of us busy picking up the pieces.

Nothing helps a woman's morale, in times of trouble, like a brand-new manicure, a freshly powdered nose, and an admiring glance from a good-looking stranger.

Between climbing onto a pedestal in order to reach a man's level, and having to step off of it, every now and then, in order to get down to his level, the average wife feels almost as though she were committing polygamy.

If a man were as careful about selecting a wife as he is about selecting a bootlegger, and as cautious about signing his name to a marriage certificate as he is about signing it to a check, there would be fewer sentimental bankrupts in the ranks of the Reno newspapers.

No matter what noble principles a man may stand for, his wife feels justified in secretly guarding him from any little pink and yellow thing that a less noble man might fall for.

Unless you are yearning for a martyr's crown, never ask a man if he loves you, when he is testing the new syphon, or trying to discover what makes the knock in the engine.

BIG BROTHER

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

MY brother's bigger, late, than me,
I think it's nice, you will agree,
Although he's late, the way he plays
With me, at least on rainy days.
He's eight and I am only five,
And he can swim, and almost dive,
And do a lot of other things
That I can't do, with water-wings,
But he and I we romp and run
And have an awful lot of fun.
I'm little, but it's all the same,
As long as he can pick the game.

My brother's bigger, big and strong,
And yet we always get along,
As long as I will try to do
The things that brother wants me to.
When there is no one else around
To play with, then he digs the ground
And builds me castles big and grand,
As long as I will bring the sand.
And here is something else we play
A lot of times, most ev'ry day.
He likes to play with me; of course
He does if I will be the horse.

FARM STOCK

TUBERCULOUS HOGS BLAMED ON CATTLE

Tuberculous cattle are the main source of tuberculosis in hogs. The disease is most commonly conveyed by feeding hogs on unpasteurized skimmed milk, and by allowing them to follow tuberculous cattle in the feed lot and feed upon the undigested grain in the droppings. It is very significant that tuberculosis is most common among hogs in sections where the disease is also most prevalent among cattle and where the feeding practices above mentioned are commonly followed. Hogs also contract tuberculosis from feeding on tuberculous carcasses of various animals, including fowls, and on uncooked garbage and slaughter-house offal.

Prevention lies in the pasteurization of milk fed to hogs, especially that from creameries, and in allowing hogs to feed behind adult cattle only when the cattle have passed the tuberculin test; also in thoroughly cooking all offal or carcasses before they are fed to hogs.

Young steers or young beef animals as a rule do not spread tuberculosis among hogs. Therefore no change need be made in the very profitable practice of allowing hogs to follow feeders and stockers, unless these are not healthy.

When tuberculosis already exists in a drove of hogs all the affected animals, whether hogs or cattle, should be removed from the premises. The hogs should be sent to market for slaughter at an abattoir under federal inspection. The tuberculin test should be applied to all cattle on the place, and those reacting should be properly disposed of. The pens and stables should be thoroughly cleaned and disinfected before restocking.

Swine Paralysis Due to Deficiency in Minerals

That swine paralysis is due either to a mineral or vitamin deficiency seems to be a matter of general agreement. As to minerals that may be given with the feed or water the following has been recommended by several of the experiment stations: Air-slaked lime or wood ashes and salt equal parts by weight; air-slaked lime, bone meal and salt, equal parts by weight; nine parts bone meal or ground rock phosphate and one part tankage; wood ashes ten parts, acid phosphate ten parts and salt one part by weight. These ingredients are all costly obtained. A few ounces of any of these mixtures with the feed once a day will be sufficient. The Illinois station does not recommend the use of air-slaked lime, but other stations do and the results appear to be quite satisfactory.—Geo. H. Glover, Veterinary Department, Colorado Agricultural College.

Disinfectants and Oil Destroy Vermin on Hogs

Lice must be eliminated from hogs and their quarters if the animals are to thrive. If not checked, lice will seriously handicap younger pigs. During the fall and winter season when the hogs spend more time within buildings, there is greater need for precautions against lice.

Coal oil emulsion, crude oil or coal tar dip may be used for spraying the hogs and their sleeping quarters. Sleeping quarters should be frequently cleaned and treated with one of these disinfectants. Oilers may be provided for the hogs. The animals will soon learn to rub against these and will keep themselves free from lice.

Coal oil emulsion can be made by dissolving one bar of laundry soap in one gallon of hot water. Then add one gallon of coal oil to the mixture and stir thoroughly. This may be diluted to make five gallons of the mixture.

Growing and Fattening Pigs for Early Market

The self-feeding of corn and tankage on pasture proved, at the Illinois experiment station, to be an economical and labor-saving method of growing and fattening pigs for the early fall market. A number of experiments have recently been conducted at that station to determine the amounts of concentrates most profitable to feed growing and fattening pigs on pasture.

Without concentrates, young pigs made very small gains on either rape or alfalfa pasture. Where pigs were fed a light ration of corn during the summer, they required more concentrates per hundred pounds in the fall, in order to reach 225 pounds. A medium corn ration during the summer allowed the use of a greater amount of new corn in the fall, but the hogs sold on a later and lower market.

Nipping "Wolf" Teeth

Nipping of the "wolf" teeth shortly after the pigs are farrowed is one of the little things that will help to reduce the loss of young pigs. Only the outer half of the teeth should be taken off. Breaking them off down to the gums breaks the membranes and gives infections a chance to get in and cause sore mouth. Cutting off these teeth prevents the pigs from cutting each other's mouths when they bite and strike at each other while sucking.

Flies Reduce Profits

Figures on the gains made by baby beef show that spraying to keep flies away increases the profits. The data was prepared by O. Rohwedel of this experiment station, and showed that 18 calves were not sprayed for three weeks up to August 14 and gained an average of .72 of a pound each day, but the next three weeks they were sprayed and gained 1.71 pounds each day. In other words, they more than doubled the gain when they were sprayed.

A Coincidence

Lord castlerose, who is studying American hotels in the hope of establishing a chain of them in the beautiful lake country of Killarney, was telling a reporter Irish stories.

"Once, at a Dublin dinner party," he said, "the manservant stationed at the drawing-room door announced an entering guest in a loud voice:

"'Mr. Cowle!'

"Then he murmured to the next guest:

"'What name, sir?'

"By an odd coincidence this next guest happened to be a Mr. Bullie. The manservant, when the fact was made known to him, shook his head in despair.

"'I durst'n, sair' he said."

Ghostly Whiskers

In the Black museum at Scotland Yard is a remarkable collection of gruesome exhibits, says London Answers.

There is a decorative frieze of murderers' heads—plaster casts taken from famous criminals after execution.

One of these pieces of sculpture upsets the stolid nerves of the police custodians of the museum. From the plaster cast of this particular murderer's face have sprouted long thin whiskers, resembling those of the original before he shaved them off.

When the cast was placed in its niche in the collection it was clean shaven. Now the sinister whiskers have put in an appearance.

Don't chuckle if you get over a substitute when an advertised product is called for. Maybe your customer will never come back.

Censorious

Representative Roach of Missouri was talking in Elm Creek about the oil scandals.

"If these scandals grow much bigger," he said, "public opinion will get to be as censorious as the general storekeeper.

"Judge Hinsley was describing to the general storekeeper his squabble with Dog Cutler.

"'It was a question of veracity between us,' the judge wound up. 'He said I was a liar, and I said he was one.'

"'Gosh,' said the general storekeeper, 'that's the first time I ever heard either of you tellin' the truth.'"

Camp Bed From Boughs

A little comfort in the camp bed, now and then, is relished by the best of sportsmen. Here is a way to put a little spring in the bed underpinning: Cut four saplings about eight feet long and set the butts in the soil on either side of a log so they cross in pairs. Lash short sticks to the outer ends, then lay poles across these from end to end. Pad the poles, if necessary, with leaves and moss, then build your bed on top of that. Really, it doesn't take much longer to make it than it does to tell how to do it.—Sportsman's Digest.

So They Say

Foretelling the Weather

The weather bureau says that the forecasting of weather for more than a few days in advance is attended with great uncertainty. For this reason the national weather bureaus in various countries do not attempt detailed forecasts of the weather for more than a week in advance. Beyond a week the condition of the weather cannot be foretold according to reliable and scientific principles.

Acoustic Experiment

A very pretty experiment in acoustics can be achieved by the use of a child's tin horn. Tie a sheet of thin paper firmly over the big end, hold the horn so that the paper is level, scatter over it a little fine sand or lycopodium powder, then sing a note into the horn. You will find that the powder has formed itself into an intricate geometrical figure. It was in this way that the first, polite pictures were obtained.
