PRETTY CAPITAN HOMES AND THEIR INFLUENCE ON VISITORS.

Our earliest memories are of trees, flowers and gardens, and our purest and sublimest thoughts are associated with them. One of the great mistakes for which the earlier settlers in Capitan must be held accountable, is for not planting shade trees around their places. If only four or five years ago a step in this direction had been taken, Capitan today would be the most picturesque town in the county. Just imagine for a moment our streets lined with shade trees! What a feeling of comfort, prosperity and stability it would give to visitors to Capitan. Even residences surrounded with a few shade trees or ornamental shrubs would be a pleasure to look at, and increase their value two fold. However, it is better late than never. To Mrs. S. T. Gray is due the merit of being one of the first to take a step in the right direction, and set an example that others would do well to follow. A year ago she had a number of young trees and creeping vines planted around her home, and in her garden sowed flowers, etc., with a nice blue-grass lawn, and today it is one of the most attractive homes in Capitan. Of course it is yet in its infancy, but in a year or two it will delight the eyes of visitors to Capitan. Mr. Gray, while conceding that his better half is entitled to full credit as a landscape gardener and horticulturist, thinks he should get a little credit himself, as he does the irrigating and occasionally pushes the lawn mower.

B. W. Rentfro is another good citizen that deserves mention. His neatly-painted cosy cottage is another illustration of the wisdom of beautifying the home by surrounding it with shrubs and vines. A well-tilled kitchen garden, studded with young fruit trees, fronts the house on the east, in which he raises choice vegetables for the home, including melons and cantaloupes. A squash raised in his garden about a year ago tipped the scales at 97 pounds. The cottage itself is lined on the outside with trailing vines, and he devotes his spare hours from business in adding to its appearance and worth. The exterior of a home is invariably a good index to the interior, and Mrs. Rentfro sees to it that it is as clean as a new pin and neatly arranged.

If others would take a similar interest in their homes, Capitan, in a few years, would be the prettiest little town in the county. Immigration is headed this way, land is being rapidly settled on, and we venture the prediction that in a few years there will be very little vacant land left in the county. Plant trees, beautify your homes, and encourage home-seekers to settle here. Help your town and you help yourself.

OPENING OF BONITO CITY.

An excursion train from El Paso, carrying about thirty-five people, came in Sunday, the occasion being the opening of a new town on the Bonito, eighteen miles south of this place. The excursionists were met at Walnut station, and conveyed to Bonito via Parsons. On Monday a picnic was given by the town company, to which the people for many miles around were invited. Quite a large number of vehicles left Capitan Monday morning carrying people who wished to be present at the opening, and take part in the picnic and other "doings." Among those who journeyed from here we noticed Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Gray, Colonel Jewett, Mrs. Pons, Dr. Cowert, Mr. and Mrs. Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Hall, and many others whose names we failed to learn.

The excursion party returned by way of Capitan Monday afternoon, and boarded the train for El Paso. A photographer accompanied the party, and made many negatives of places of interest along the Bonito.

J. F. Mitchim, editor of the El Paso News, last week shot and killed a man named Harrell, a former employe of the News. The trouble originated over the publishing of a flash-light picture of a dance hall in which Harrell appeared. Mitchim was released on $5,000 bonds, the evidence pointing to self defence.

COFFIN KNOCKED OVER IN A PANIC

All in One Trunk.

A New York woman recently won a suit against a transfer company for the value of articles contained in a trunk which was lost in transit from her summer home to her city residence. The trunk was a large one of the "bureau" variety and the claimant affirmed that it contained personal property to the amount of $750. The advertisement list of articles filed three inches of small type. Many items were minutely described, including an "extra underwear" being examples. It was explicitly stated that the trunk held among other things "gowns and blouses, two pairs of boots five sweaters, ten lace curtains five handkerchiefs, four dresses, two sets of a night suit, one of cotton, one of a liberal wardrobe for two persons and practically all the belongings of their suitcase including the contents of the bathroom and the medicine. The average man has a place for every thing and keeps everything in it. He says the trunk contained his car, motor, put a car and his handkerchiefs into a car case without leaving anything in it, over the edge and it is his misfortune to be a teacher to will view the catalogue with objection. He has a lot of a family will put aside his doubts and may even decide that his wife could have found room for ever more in the trunk. She has taught him the feminine version of a familiar law of physics which is that two objects can occupy the same space at the same time because one can go inside the other.

White Mice on the Flag.

Lieut. H. C. Hervey of the British navy, has designed a flag for the use of submarines. The flag measures 12 by 12 feet and its background is divided into four parts two of which are occupied by a submarine and three torpedoes. In each of the remaining quarters is a white mouse rampant. This is the first time white or any other colored mice have appeared on a flag. The explanation of their presence on the submarine flag is that white mice are always carried on a submarine boat as a safeguard to the crew says the Montreal Gazette. Rodents are considerably more sensitive than men to noxious gases, such as those which have a tendency to accumulate in a submarine, and immediately the mice show signs of collapse it is known that there is danger, and accordingly the boat is brought to the surface.

Nevertheless, let's hope that Miss Vanderbilt will be happy with her $12,000,000 fortune. It is a good deal of a burden, but there are ways of lightening it. Among the best available of these may be mentioned marrying a foreign gentleman with a title to support.

A number of Japanese officials have been sent to Switzerland for the purpose of studying the methods of Swiss hotel keepers. Japan is bound to learn. Delegations may yet come from that country for the purpose of finding out about the American boarding house.

Now is the time for Uncle Sam to hustle and increase his circulation.

CORPSES OF TWO BOYS ROLL OUT ON FLOOR AND ARE TRAMPLED ON CHURCH BUILDING SETTLES.

Report That Structure is About to Collapse Causes Mad Rush for Doors—Parents Urge to Protect Bodies.

York Pa.—While several hundred persons were assembled in an open lot in front of the new church near York, Pa., the other day, in honor of the general service over the bodies of William and Cora Hoover, the girls who were murdered in Pennsylvania, the settling of the building caused a panic.

Men, women and children were trampled upon and about 40 persons were injured, several seriously.

The panic started during the service. A report was circulated that the building was giving way under the weight of the crowd within. Shortly afterward the panic began to break and two waves collapsed. Instantly women began to shriek and there was a mad rush for the doors.

Rev. Adam Smith, and Rev. George Langer of the city remained their post in the pulpit and tried to quiet the crowd. Their efforts were futile. At least a score of persons were hurt by jumping from windows.

The two caskets were overturned, the bodies rolling out on the floor and being trampled on.

The doors of the little church were small and the windows were soon clogged by screaming men and women. The men outside tried to shove back the throngs by shouting that the church was safe and that everybody could get out unhurt.

As soon as those outside realized what had happened the work of rescue began. Women who had sustained injuries and others who had fainted were carried to the lawn outside. Many women in their frenzy threw their children through the windows. Others who had got separated from the little ones tried to fight their way back into the church.

The Two Caskets Were Overturned.

At the rear door a band of men succeeded in checking the stampede. Physicians were called from near by to attend to the injured.

During the panic the grief of the parents of the murdered boys was overwhelming. As soon as the rush started they threw themselves in front of the caskets and tried to frighten the frenzied crowd off. They were unsuccessful in their efforts to prevent the stampede.

As soon as peace was restored Rev. Mr. Dement preached a sermon from the pulpit of the old church to those who remained. The bodies of the boys were then carried to the city cemetery.

DEATH IN MANY FORMS JUMPS OVER TEXAS PONY

VARIOUS DISASTERS KILL OTHERS IN HIS NEIGHBORHOOD BUT THIS ONE IS UNSCATHED

St. Louis, Mo.—J. J. Dement, a horse owner from near northwest of St. Louis, declares he has a pony that is a charmed life. The first escape of the Texas pony, Jim, from death was when he was loaded in a car with other horses and started for St. Louis. Just this side of Union City, the engine jumped the track and the car load of horses was thrown down a 25-foot embankment.

Out of the entire lot of horses, Jim was the sole survivor. He came out of the wreck without a scratch, being caved at the bottom of the pile by some timber.

Dement bought the pony and he says since then that there has been continued evidence of horses having charmed lives as well as men. He says he was driving Jim with another horse into Humboldt one day, and that his team stalled immediately over the railroad track and could go no further. Just at this juncture a passenger train came along at full speed, knocking the wagon into smithereens and killing the other pony instantly, but that Jim did not receive a mark. Dement says that one summer night during an electrical storm his stock barn, in which were five head of horses, was set on fire and that the next morning he saw the bones of his four horses in the ruins, but that Jim was standing in one corner of the lot unhurt.

At one time Mr. Dement was driving a team, one of which was Jim, hitched to a wagon, across the valley of the Forked Deer river into Humboldt after heavy rains, when the levee was completely submerged, as it often is in the winter. His team stepped off at a place where a bridge had been washed away, and the other horse was drowned, in spite of all the efforts of himself and driver, but Jim managed to keep his head above the water until Mr. Dement unhitched the traces, when he swam ashore.

MADE OF CORNMEAL

DAINTY CONFECTIONS EASY OF PREPARATION.

Baked Indian and Other Puddings Will Give Variety to the Daily Menu—For New England Brown Bread.

Steamed Cornmeal Pudding—Put a pint of sweet milk into a double boiler when it is hot add a cup of sweet chopped and shredded very fine. Allow the sweet to dissolve in the hot milk and add half a teaspoon of soda dissolved in boiling water. Now stir in, very slowly, your cornmeal, allowing the mixture to thicken until it is quite stiff. Take the upper part of the double boiler from the fire, beat into the mixture it contains two eggs, three-quarters cup of New Orleans molasses and a cup of raisins and citron well soaked. Add a teaspoonful of cinnamon, one of nutmeg, a little allspice a dash of cloves and a dash of salt. Cover tightly, fill the lower part of the receptacle with boiling water and steam for two hours. Serve with hard or foamy sauce.

Baked Indian Pudding—Cut up a piece of butter the size of a table-spoon, in a pint of molasses and warm them together till the butter is melted. Boil a quart of milk, and while scalding hot pour it slowly over a pint of sifted corn meal, cover for an hour and allow the mixture to cool. Add six well beaten eggs stirred gradually into it with a tablespoonful of cinnamon and nutmeg and the grated rind of a lemon. Stir the whole very hard, put into a buttered dish and bake for two hours. Serve hot with a sauce.

New England Brown Bread—Take three cups of cornmeal and two cups of rye flour, one cup of molasses, one cup raisins, one teaspoon of soda, one quart sweet milk, a little salt. Mix well together and pour into a tin pail with tight-fitting cover and boil in a kettle of water for three hours. Be careful not to let the water get into the pail or stop boiling.

Southern Corn Bread—Sift one pint of cornmeal (white preferred), add a level teaspoon of salt and soda, a well-beaten egg and one and a half cups of sour milk. Melt butter or lard the size of a walnut in a pan, pour in the batter and bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven. This same recipe makes delicious muffins. Also by making the same batter thinner, it can be used for batter cakes.

Cornmeal Muffins—One cup of cornmeal, one cup of flour, one tablespoonful of sugar, one and a half teaspoonfuls baking powder, teaspoonful of salt, one cup of sweet milk, one egg, one large spoonful melted butter. Bake in muffin rings in a slow oven.

Clothes Tree.

An article of furniture too seldom used is the clothes "tree," resembling the posts of our grandmother's four-post bedstead. It stands on three feet and has half a dozen prongs or hooks. As it takes up so little floor space and holds so many garments, it is an invaluable article. In a small hall or vestibule it takes the place of the hatrack, and in a larger hall it complements the table on which men's hats are laid. For the necessary airing of one's clothes over night it is preferable to chairs, as it can so easily be set out of the sleeping room. In the bathroom it is especially convenient.

The Way to Use Dried Fruit.

Instead of stewing on the stove, as is the custom, put the fruit in clear, cold water and allow it to soak for 24 to 36 hours in a cool place, then gently simmer for a few minutes in the water in which it has been soaked. Try this with California prunes, and you will be surprised at their sweetness, requiring no sugar for the ordinary taste. The golden rule is never to throw away any water in which the fruit has been soaked, for in it lies half the virtue of your sauce. Simply rinse the fruit thoroughly before putting it to soak.

His Remedy.

A pompous city official upon reaching his home one evening found the street blockaded and a heap of earth piled against his doorstep. Observing a workman wielding his shovel in a nearby ditch, he accosted a passing policeman and complained that the laborer was trespassing upon private property.

"What do yez mean by t'rowin' dirt on th' gentleman's steps?" demanded the officer, pompously.

"Sure, an' there's noo other place t' t'row it, d' ye mind!" replied the workman, indifferently.

"Well, then, in thot case yez had better dig another hole and t'row it in there."

A feeling heart enriches the world much more than a full hand without it.

RECIPE FOR CHILI SAUCE.

Better Than Any Variety to Be Found in the Stores.

A chili sauce is made by a western housekeeper, which will be found much better than any ready-made variety to be had in the shops.

Chop fine six large green peppers, from which the seeds and white pulp have been removed, and four large onions. Cut into small pieces 24 large ripe tomatoes. Put them together in a kettle, mix thoroughly, and add three tablespoonfuls of salt, eight tablespoonfuls of brown sugar, six cups of vinegar, two teaspoons of cinnamon and one of cloves. Boil it gently one hour, then seal in pint cans.

Following is a cucumber pickle recipe: Pare and slice two dozen cucumbers and one dozen small onions. Sprinkle them with salt, and allow them to drain well in a colander. Then place them in a bowl, adding one quart of vinegar, one cup of olive oil, one-quarter of a cup each of black and white mustard seed, one teaspoonful of celery seed and one-quarter teaspoonful of powdered alum. Mix thoroughly and seal in pint cans.

GOOD PICKLE OF TOMATOES.

Can Be Made of the Green or Ripe Variety, as Desired.

While tomatoes are procurable, a very good pickle may be made from the recipe of an old New England housekeeper.

Chop one peck of green tomatoes and arrange them in layers in a stone crock, sprinkling each layer with salt, using in all not more than a cup of salt; let them stand over night, and in the morning strain away the liquor and add to them about two quarts of vinegar, to which has been added a tablespoonful each of cloves, cinnamon, ginger, and allspice, and six chopped green peppers, the seeds and white pulp having been removed. Bring the whole pulp to a boil, then simmer slowly for four or five hours, adding, a few minutes before it is done, two and a half pounds of brown sugar.

Quite a different result may be obtained by substituting ripe tomatoes for the green. In consistency, it will be a little thicker and a little rougher than the ordinary tomato catsup.

To Clean Furs.

Ermine, white fox and all other light furs that have been packed away during the summer months should be cleaned before putting them on to wear. Sawdust and plaster of paris should be mixed half and half, heated until blood warm, and then rubbed into the skins several times. Then put the fur out of doors to air. With darker furs use bran. Divide a pound of bran into two portions and place one in the oven to heat. Spread the fur on a paper on the table and rub it well over with the cold bran. Shake out the bran and brush the fur with a soft hat brush. Then rub the hot bran in the fur evenly. Then shake it and brush it until the fur is free from both dust and bran.

Stuffed Chops.

Remove the bone and tough part from six chops. Make a dressing of stale bread crumbs, highly seasoned with salt and red pepper, and a little powdered sweet marjoram, or thyme and mustard. Mix with melted butter or a well beaten egg and a little hot water. Lay the chops in a dripping pan, with a little fat under them. Spread the dressing smoothly all over the top of each chop, place it in a hot oven, and bake 20 minutes; divide the chops nearly through to the bone and put the stuffing between the layers of meat.

Steak and Bacon.

Take round steak about four inches square, a piece of bread, and a slice of bacon, tie with a string, put in a stew pot with a lump of butter, one onion, salt and pepper, stew until meat is tender, and serve with gravy thickened with a little flour.

HE HAD THE QUALIFICATIONS.

No Need for Maiden to Seek Further for Her Affinity.

Prince Dabro, the young Egyptian who has come to America to study the cotton industry, said in New York the other day:

"While we produce superb cotton in Egypt, the industry is not regulated there with such wisdom as you employ. Clever, indeed, is the conduct of your American cotton industry—as clever as the conduct of a young Pennsylvania ungraduate whom I heard about the other day.

"This young man sat in a Louis Quinze drawing-room in conversation with a beautiful girl. The girl, looking pensively into the fire, said:

"The man I marry must be both brave and clever."

"Well," said the young man, "when we were skating on the Wissahickon, and came to the dangerous spot and broke through, I saved your life, didn't I?"

"She smiled at him roguishly. "That was brave," she said, "but it was not clever, was it?"

"Yes," said he, "it was. I led you to the dangerous spot on purpose."

"She threw her arms about him, murmuring:

"You dear."

Served Accordingly.

At a men's cafe one night a young American—a barber—fell in with an Englishman. The latter was berating the Yankees for doing all manner of business in their shops and not following the better English plan of sticking to one branch.

The next day he swaggered into the barber shop to be shaved. The barber gave his face an extra good soaping and left him, at the same time seating himself to read.

The Englishman kept quiet for a few minutes, when, seeing his attendant reading, he blurted out: "Why don't you shave me, sir?"

"You will have to go up the street for your shave," quietly replied the barber. "We only lather here."

Couldn't Divide the Cook.

Sergeant—How are your master and mistress getting on now? Have they finally separated?

Cook—No; each one wanted me to go with them, and as that couldn't be managed, they agreed to live together again.

BOTH GAINED

Man and Wife Fatten on Grape-Nuts.

The notion that meat is necessary for real strength and the foundation of solid flesh is no longer as prevalent as formerly.

Excessive meat eaters are usually sluggish a part of the time because they are not able to fully digest their food, and the undigested portion is changed into what is practically a kind of poison that acts upon the blood and nerves, thus getting all through the system.

"I was a heavy meat eater," writes an ill man, "and up to two years ago, was in very poor health. I suffered with indigestion so that I only weighed 95 pounds.

"Then I heard about Grape-Nuts and decided to try it. My wife laughed at me at first but when I gained to 125 pounds and felt so fine, she thought she would eat Grape-Nuts too.

"Now she is fat and well and has gained 40 pounds. We never have indigestion, any more and seldom feel the desire for meat. A neighbor of ours, 68 years old, was troubled with indigestion for years; was a heavy meat eater, and now since he has been eating Grape-Nuts regularly, he says he is well and never has indigestion. I could name a lot of persons who have really been cured of indigestion by changing from a heavy meat diet to Grape-Nuts." "There's a Reason." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Laundry work at home would be much more satisfactory if the right Starch were used. In order to get the desired stiffness, it is usually necessary to use so much starch that the beauty and fineness of the fabric is hidden behind a paste of varying thickness, which not only destroys the appearance, but also affects the wearing quality of the goods. This trouble can be entirely overcome by using Defiance Starch, as it can be applied much more thinly because of its greater strength than other makes.

Riley and the Weather.

While going to the office of his publishers on a bright morning in September, James Whitcomb Riley met, what seemed to him, an unusually large number of his acquaintances who made the conventional remark about the weather. This unremitting applause pleased and amused him. When greeted at the office with "Nice day, Mr. Riley," he stopped at the door and answered drolly: "Yes—yes—I've heard it very highly spoken of."

That an article may be good as well as cheap, and give entire satisfaction, is proven by the extraordinary sale of Defiance Starch, each package containing one-third more Starch than can be had of any other brand for the same money.

Announcements.

FOR COUNTY SURVEYOR

The News is authorized to announce that W. H. Beady is a candidate for re-election to the office of County Surveyor, subject to the action of the democratic party.

PUBLISHER'S ANNOUNCEMENT.

It has been the purpose of the CAPITAN NEWS for some time, to move the plant, good will and all, to Carrizozo, but we have delayed so long that many of our friends have regarded the move lightly, and the opinion has been often expressed that we were a fixture here, and would not go if we could. However, the move, wise or unwise, is to be made, and this will be the last issue of the CAPITAN NEWS.

After this week we expect to be located in our new office building at Carrizozo, where the publication will be continued as the CARRIZOZO NEWS, successor to the CAPITAN NEWS, and at which place we shall be glad to meet all our old friends and patrons in the same spirit that we have endeavored to accord them at the old stand.

In making this move, we have been governed by the same reason that animates every move—an opportunity to improve our condition—and we believe the enlarged field at Carrizozo warrants the change. We are not leaving Capitan because we do not like the place nor the people; on the contrary, our relations with the people of this town and community have been most pleasant, and our stay among them will ever be cherished as a pleasant memory. While appreciating the many staunch friends and the countless favors that have been bestowed on us here, we yet believe our first duty is to the propagation of our business, for in so doing we perform a higher duty in behalf of those dependant on us.

We desire express our thanks to the patrons of the CAPITAN NEWS, both advertisers and subscribers, and hope that we may be able to serve them at Carrizozo in the same capacity as heretofore. Our subscription lists will remain the same, except that we hope to materially increase it, and the management will be the same in the future as it has been in the past. The only difference in the matter presented will be that we will devote more space to Carrizozo and its surroundings than we have been able to do while here; and we intend to arrange to have regular correspondence from Capitan, Lincoln, Angus, Nogal, etc., and make the CARRIZOZO NEWS the representative newspaper of Lincoln county.

Any movement of interest that may be of any service to Capitan or Lincoln county will receive our careful attention, and our columns will be open to the discussion of any project that may benefit the people of Capitan. To do this it will be only necessary for you to get the news to us and it will be published. Our interest in Lincoln county as a whole will be the same as it has ever been.

To our exchanges we desire to say: We most heartily thank you, one and all, for the kindly courtesies you have extended the CAPITAN NEWS, and trust that such considerations may be extended its successor, the CARRIZOZO NEWS. We would, therefore, respectfully request that the address be changed from Capitan to Carrizozo.

Again thanking our patrons and friends for their kind wishes and liberal support, and hoping to merit a continuance of the same, we say au revoir; the NEWS will greet you weekly as usual, but from Carrizozo.

IS IT ROSARIO EMILLIO?

Sheriff John W. Owen left Saturday evening for the state of Georgia, pursuant to instructions issued by the District Court, to pass on the identity of a prisoner in that state, supposed to be Rosario Emillio, who escaped from the Lincoln county jail about a year ago while under sentence of death. There is considerable doubt as to whether the man held in Georgia is Rosario Emillio. About six weeks ago a letter was received by the sheriff's office at Lincoln from the Georgia authorities to the effect that a man, answering the description of Rosario Emillio, had been arrested there. Many telegrams were exchanged between the sheriff's office and the Georgia authorities relative to the identity of the man under arrest, but the information received here was very vague, and would not justify the sheriff going on a wild goose chase. He telegraphed for a photograph of the man two weeks ago but received no answer. It may be that the suspect does not want his picture taken and is fighting the camera. Judge Mann, the trial judge, was consulted, and he instructed the sheriff to make the trip to Georgia and see for himself. Further than this the sheriff has no information that the man under arrest in Georgia is Rosario Emillio; but if he should prove to be, he will be extradited, and as the supreme court has already acted on the case, the probability is that he will be re-sentenced and a date set for his execution, and nothing but executive clemency will interfere with the carrying out of the death sentence; and if he should prove to be the wrong man, then Sheriff Owen will be out of pocket several pesos on the trip.

Ben M. Boggs and Clyde Leitner, new comers to Lincoln county, were in Capitan Friday. Mr. Boggs is from Alabama and Mr. Leitner is from Oklahoma. Both have located at Bonito; the former has invested in some mining property, which he is engaged in developing, and the latter has purchased an interest in the hotel there. These young men are pleasant and affable to meet, and inspire one with confidence in their ability to do something.

A number of our friends from the Mesa spent several days last week trout fishing on North Eagle Creek. They report having had a delightful trip over the mountains south of Bonito, passing over pine-clad hills and flowery dells which for wild and majestic beauty would be hard to equal, and certainly is entitled to be named the "Switzerland of America." The fishing, while fairly good, did not come up to expectations. However, the party returned with something over 200 nice ones, which represented one-third of the catch.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gray and a party of friends spent four or five days last week on the lower Ruidoso angling for the speckled trout and enjoying the benefits of camping out. They report good sport, fish biting ravenously, and large catches each day. The fish caught were larger than usual, a few were under half a pound, but several of those caught were two pound and over, while one weighed close to three and a half pounds. This seems to us a phenomenally large fish to be caught in the Ruidoso, but we have Walter's word for it, and he is not given to fish-storying, and if you doubt it see him for verification.

A number of people from this vicinity are camped on the different trout streams in this county. When they return we expect to hear some exciting fish yarns and thrilling adventures.

Mean Revenge.
A man had been very badly treated by the proprietors of a boarding house, and when in temporary financial difficulties had been forced to leave. Some time later, smiled upon by fickle fortune, he achieved success and prosperity as a popular dentist, and soon found means to revenge his former landlady's slight. The method he adopted was simple but extremely effective, quite ruining the business of his enemy. Directly opposite the boarding house he opened his new dental establishment, and upon the largest window in bold letters appeared the following notice: "Steel-pointed boarding house tooth specialty!"

Minister's Amendment to Usual Grace Fitted Circumstances.

A Pennsylvania divine formed one of a house-party in Philadelphia where the younger son, in accordance with what the clergyman observed to be his constant habit, as soon as he had seated himself at breakfast immediately possessed himself of a large slice of bread, the quality of which he proceeded to test by a liberal mouthful.

The minister, a stickler in such matters of propriety, gazed blandly at him for a moment or so; then he folded his hands and closed his eyes in preparation for grace.

"For what we are about to receive," he intoned with painful emphasis, "and for what our young friend has already received, Lord, make us truly thankful."—Harper's Weekly.

ECZEMA COVERED BABY.

Worst Case Doctors Ever Saw—Suffered Untold Misery—Perfect Cure by Cuticura Remedies.

"My son, who is now twenty-two years of age, when four months old began to have eczema on his face, spreading quite rapidly until he was nearly covered. The eczema was something terrible, and the doctors said it was the worst case they ever saw. At times his whole body and face were covered, all but his feet. I used many kinds of patent medicines, to no avail. A friend teased me to try Cuticura. At last I decided to try Cuticura when my boy was three years and four months old, having had eczema all that time and suffering untold misery. I began to use all three of the Cuticura Remedies. He was better in two months; in six months he was well. Mrs. R. L. Risley, Piermont, N. H., Oct. 24, 1905."

How He Did It.

Early in the morning session, when the pupils were feeling bright and happy, the teacher thought it a good plan to give them sentences to correct, both as to grammar and sense. She accordingly wrote on the blackboard:

Thoughtful little Ignatius, at the foot of the class, pondered deeply, and at the end of 15 minutes' time, allowed for correction, he wrote:

"He didn't done it; God done it."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. This comes out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Some weeks ago the wife of Judge Blank, of Pacific avenue, lost her cook, and since she had no other resource she rolled up her sleeves and for a week provided such meals as the judge had not enjoyed since those happy days when the Blanks did not keep a cook. The judge's delight was so great that by way of appreciative acknowledgment he presented Mrs. Blank with a beautiful ermine cloak. Quite naturally, the incident was a good deal noised about among the social acquaintances of the Blanks and a spirit of envious emulation was developed in certain quarters. It was in this mood that Mrs. Jerome recited the story to her husband. "What do I get, Jerry?" she asked, "if I will do the cooking for a week?" The Hushed Voice

What mother said—it didn't matter then,
A loving word, perchance, and then again
When childish wrath came in our simple play
And little woes beset youth's rosy way,
Her sweetly gentle words dispelled the wrath,
And coaxed the buds to bloom that lined our path—
Her voice was sweet to greet the morning sun,
And, sweeter still, when golden days were done
Her soft good-night that sent us to our bed—
It didn't matter then—what mother said.

It didn't matter then, but now she's gone
The world lacks all its sweetness, and at dawn
The sunbeams, coming down from heaven's dome,
But emphasize the loss from out the home;
No kindly smiles to cheer the passing day—
No mother words to guide us on the way—
No loving arms that wait but to enfold
When world and all grow merciless and cold;
The kingdom there, I think, is made of such—
What mother said! O, now 'twould mean so much!

The Redemption of De Labour

By Edward F. Roberts

(Copyright, by Dally Story Pub. Co.)

The man stumbled hastily forward down the dark, narrow street, every now and then casting a frightened look behind him. The streets of Paris were not a pleasant or a safe place for gentlemen of the court just then, and Comte de Labour shuddered and quickened his steps as a hoarse, sullen roar rose in the distance, a roar which he knew too well meant that the sans-culottes had found another victim.

At the end of the street he stopped before a little door set in a high wall, and opened it with a key he held in his hand. Springing inside, he quickly relocked the door, and for a moment leaned panting against the wall of the passage he had entered. In that moment this, the last survivor of a noble and historic house, realized what he was—a coward.

With a bitter curse at himself, he followed the passage to its end, where he unlocked another door and stepped into a brilliantly-lighted room.

Two persons were in the room, a woman and a man. The woman was about 25 and strikingly beautiful. The long cloak which she wore scarcely concealed the lines of her graceful figure, but the beauty of her face was marred by a certain hardness. Her companion was an elderly man, dressed in court costume, of a stern, handsome countenance and a commanding figure.

He turned on the comte as the latter entered, a frowning look of interrogatory, but remained silent. The woman was the first to break the silence.

"What is the matter with my Pip?" she said in a mocking tone. "He looks frightened."

Her companion laughed disdainfully and a flush burned the cheek of de Labour.

"Lucile," he cried, imploringly, "they have burned my house and are looking for me to kill me. You can save me if you will. I know that you got passports. I know that you have deceived me always, but—"

"Bah!" broke in the elderly man with an angry contempt. "Come, mademoiselle, let us not waste time on this cur. My carriage waits."

The woman took the proffered arm and with a disdainful smile over her shoulder at de Labour swept out of the room.

The comte remained standing for a moment overwhelmed with a futile rage. Then, with a wild cry of despair, he rushed back into the passage and out into the street. He had known that he was a coward, but never before had he known how utterly craven he was.

As he wandered on a sudden clamor broke on his ears. He heard a man calling loudly for help while the fierce cries which answered him and the clash of weapons told him that the night's foul work was not yet complete.

His first impulse was flight, but rage at himself swept over him, and, drawing his sword, he ran in the direction of the sounds. A turn in the street brought him to the scene. An elderly man in court costume was standing before a broken-down carriage, defending himself against the attacks of six men, three of whom were armed with swords while the other three had pikes which they thrust savagely at the legs of the carriage defender.

De Labour felt himself suddenly aglow with courage. He ran forward, calling to the men to turn, but before he reached the place the end had come. One of the pike men sprang in upon the nobleman, who promptly ran him through, but before he could disengage his rapier one of the swordsmen had pinned him to the wall with a fierce thrust.

Paying no attention to de Labour, the five men wrenched open the carriage door and dragged forth a young girl who apparently was unconscious. The scene had passed so quickly that the girl was on the ground before de Labour reached the spot. With a shout he ran blindly at the man nearest him and thrust him through.

The man fell without a sound, but as he did so the weight of his body snapped the rapier off near the handle. De Labour hurled the useless weapon into the face of the pikeman who was rushing at him, and snatched up the sword which had fallen from the hand of the dead nobleman.

As he turned three of the ruffians rushed at him together. The remaining man had had one of his eyes knocked out by the broken rapier and was running down the street howling with agony.

De Labour thrust one of his assailants through the throat, but even as he did so he felt a sharp pain shoot through his left side and he stumbled forward with a pike thrust in his thigh.

A wild madness seized him. He threw away his sword and grasping the pike which was leveled at his breast, wrenched it from his assailant. As he did so he received two more wounds from the swordsman, but he barely knew it. Grasping the pike with both hands, he rushed forward, impaling the man opposite him. Then he turned with empty hands on his remaining opponent, and seizing him with superhuman strength, he hurled him against the wall.

But one idea possessed the blood-drunk man. He must wipe out his disgrace and at least die a gentleman. He turned about furiously, seeking another foe, but he was alone with the dead and the unconscious girl.

To place the girl in safety and go back and fight till he died was the next thought.

He was fearfully wounded and had lost much blood, but he was sustained by a wild spirit of elation.

He raised the girl in his arms and started forward, but a hundred steps and his strength failed him. He staggered and fell and could not rise. He knew he was dying, and a sudden impulse made him wish to see this girl for whom he had sacrificed himself. Painfully he raised himself on his elbow and for the first time looked at the face of the unconscious girl. Suddenly he sat completely up, gave a loud laugh, and fell back dead.

The face he had looked at was that of Lucile—the sickle light of love who had ruined him.

PITY THE BEAUTIFUL WOMAN.

Writer in New World Says Good Looks Amount to Little.

I think there is no individual so much to be pitied as the woman whose entire fortune is her beauty, says a writer in the New World. Good looks should rightly be the outward expression of character and soul. The woman who lives a truly sincere, unselfish life invariably shows her fine thinking mind and her well-adjusted conscience in the words she speaks, in her eyes, her voice, her manner and whole conduct.

The best loved and most respected women have not been those of extreme beauty, but rather those of large souls and broad minds. Beauty itself is all right. It is a delightful possession and one which we should all seek to a certain extent, but not to the exclusion of every other thought. Believe me, good looks without sweetness and the glorious light of tender womanhood, amount to little. External loveliness fades; spiritual beauty increases with advancing years, and the wider knowledge that comes with them.

Tribute to Irish Race.

There is no voice in the world which I think so soft—with so much of a coo and caress in it—as the Irish voice. I am not going to be guilty of the folly of trying to make out that my countrymen are angels; no, I know they have plenty of faults; but in the ordinary intercourse of life there is no people who have pleasanter, more courtly and more engaging manners.—T. P. O'Connor in P. T. O.

Heiskell's Ointment Cures Skin Diseases

For half a century Heiskell's Ointment has been used in all cases of skin disease with most gratifying results. Many have become entirely cured who had suffered untold pain and annoyance for years. One man in New Baltimore, Pa., writes that it cured him when he was raw all over. A lady in Philadelphia cured a case of tetter of six years' standing in fourteen days, while a man in Allentown, Pa., cured his case of eczema that had troubled him for eleven years with less than two boxes of the ointment. These and hundreds of others have found that Heiskell's Ointment is worth more than its weight in gold. Being a purely vegetable preparation, Heiskell's Ointment soothes and heals where others fail. It allays the itching and burning common to all skin disease, and all yield quickly to its magic influence.

There are many varieties of skin disease with confusing titles, but they are all susceptible to one and the same cure—Heiskell's Ointment. No one need suffer long if afflicted with any skin disease not of a constitutional character if they will apply this remedy. This includes such skin diseases as erysipelas, prurigo, eczema, milk crust, itching piles, scald-head, tetter, ringworm, blackheads, psoriasis, pimples, freckles. In some cases it is necessary to give some constitutional treatment, as in erysipelas, eczema, etc.; the liver should be toned to healthy action and the blood and all the secretions purified. In all cases of skin disease cures are hastened by the use of Heiskell's Medicinal Soap before applying the ointment, and in cleaning up the blood and liver with Heiskell's Blood and Liver Pills.

Heiskell's Medicinal and Toilet Soap contains in a modified form the medicinal properties of Heiskell's Ointment, and is particularly effective in all disorders of the skin, as rash, eruptions and abrasions. It cleans perfectly, and in the bath is a great luxury.

Heiskell's Blood and Liver Pills contain the active medicinal principles of various roots and herbs approved in medical practice.

Remember that there is no case so obstinate that Heiskell's Ointment will not cure it. The ointment is sold at 50¢ a box, Soap at 25¢ a cake, Pills at 25¢ a bottle.

You can get them of any druggist, or we will send by mail on receipt of price. Address: Johnson, Holloway & Company, 611 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

THE POULTRY YARD.

RHODE ISLAND REDS.

A reply to "Ruidoso."—Rhode Island Reds are of American origin, resulting from crosses of several breeds of market fowl, and were first brought to the attention of the fanciers by the market men in and around Boston. In color they are a rich brilliant red or bay; have clean legs and yellow skin, and are bred in two varieties, the single and double combs. They are among the best layers, and as a market fowl come to broiler size at a very early age with as little attention as any fowl. Standard weights, Cocks 9 pounds, hens 6½ pounds, cockerels 7½ pounds, pullets 5 pounds.

VALUE OF A LAYING STRAIN.

Before me is a report which shows what pure-bred hens from a strain bred for laying will do. It is the official report of the Australian laying competition for the last year. One hundred pens of six birds each were selected and confined to yards for a year. Each pen was of some pure-bred variety. Just twenty varieties were represented, but not by an equal number of pens. For instance, there were twenty pens of Wyandottes and only one pen of Hamburgs. Other varieties had two, three, five and more pens, totaling 100 pens. This competition has been an annual one for five years, a new lot being selected each year. The competition begins April 1 and runs through the year. The winning pen last year was a pen of white Leghorns which made a record of 1,411 eggs, an average of 235 each. Wyandottes came next with a record of 1,303 for six hens. The 600 hens taken altogether averaged 166 eggs each. The care was regular, and the feed was corn, wheat, barley and such green feed as alfalfa, chopped in short lengths. Twice a week livers were boiled and the meat and liquor made into a mash with middlings. This is feed that is within reach of all. The record shows what can be done with pure-bred fowls when they are taken care of. It also shows that it pays to breed for laying strains. The average hen in this country lays 65 eggs a year. The Australian pure-breds, given good care, did a full hundred eggs better than this. The hens were all under one year old at the time they were entered in the competition. The results show the benefit of good care.

DISEASES OF POULTRY.

Cholera.—This disease is epidemic in character, highly contagious, due to a specific microbe or germ which communicates the disease to the other fowls. The disease is characterized by sudden thirst, excessive diarrhoeal discharges, first of a greenish color, afterwards becoming white and watery.

Cause.—The active, exciting cause is the virulent infectious cholera microbe or germ. The secondary or contributing causes are generally undue exposure to excessive heat of the sun without ample shade and warm drinking water. These, together with accumulation of filth and unhealthy surroundings, develop the cholera bacillus or microbe. The disease spreads among the other fowls by the offensive droppings contaminating the grass, drinking impure water, etc.

Symptoms.—Sudden and violent diarrhoea, great weakness and falling about.

Treatment.—This being a germ disease the successful way of combating it is to use a disinfectant which destroys the germs and renders the atmosphere pure and sweet. Sprinkle the houses, coops and runs with crude carbolic acid. Keep birds in cool, airy places with plenty of fresh air and abundance of shade and cool drinking water. Give plenty of fresh green food. The disease is very fatal, death occurring in from twelve to forty-eight hours. If discovered in time about 75 per cent of the birds may be saved by administering every three hours: Rhubarb 5 grains, cayenne 2 grs, and laudanum 10 drops. Five drops of carbolic acid should be added to each quart of the drinking water in order that the other birds may escape.

CONTEST NOTICE.

Department of the Interior,
United States Land Office,
Boswell, New Mexico; April 11, 1908.

A sufficient contest affidavit having been filed in this office by J. L. Crawford, contestant, against Homestead Entry, No. 2273, made March 11, 1902, for SE¼ SW¼ & SW¼ SE¼ Sec. 13 and E½ NW¼ Section 24, Township 10 S., Range 13 E., by Joseph H. Williams, contestee, in which it is alleged, under date of March 16, 1908, that said Joseph H. Williams has wholly abandoned said land, by in the month of July, 1908, leaving said land and going to the State of Texas, and not being upon said land at any time since said abandonment took place as aforesaid; that said Williams left no family upon said land and that at the time he departed for Texas as aforesaid, he sold all his improvements upon said land to one W. G. Wear, who removed said improvements off said land and that said alleged absence from the said land was not due to his employment in the Army, Navy or Marine Corps of the United States in time of war; said parties are hereby notified to appear, respond, and offer evidence touching said allegation at 10 o'clock a. m. on June 12, 1908, before W. B. Kimbrell, Probate Clerk, at Lincoln, N. M. (and that final hearing will be held at 10 o'clock a. m. on June 22, 1908, before the Register and Recorder at the United States Land Office in Boswell, N. M.).

The said contestant having, in a proper affidavit, filed, set forth facts which show that after due diligence personal service of this notice can not be made, it is hereby ordered and directed that such notice be given by due and proper publication.
