Utilizing the Steam of California Geysers

A few miles back in the hills from the city of Healdsburg, in Sonoma county, California, lies one of the most remarkable examples of nature's handiwork. Known far and wide as the geysers, it was opened as a resort in 1839. It is now the property of John D. Grant of Healdsburg, who is developing it, drilling many wells from which are emitted powerful and seemingly inexhaustible streams of steam. This is delivered to turbines which operate electric generators. The photograph shows an engine driven by steam from one well for the purpose of drilling others.

Town in Italy Has Had Many Landslips

Amalfi, Scene of Recent Disaster, Popular Resort.

Washington, D. C.—"Amalfi has had slides before," says a bulletin from the Washington (D. C.) headquarters of the National Geographical society concerning the picturesque little Italian town about which there have recently been disastrous landslips. "The sea has been remorseless in eating under the red rock cliff on which the town and its neighboring villages perch," continues the bulletin; "but more important has been Amalfi's figurative slip from its position as the world's first naval power to comparative obscurity and unimportance.

"The Amalfi district just south of Naples is one of the most beautiful, scenically, of Italy's beauty spots. A collection of views showing quaint Old World villages clinging to cliff sides could hardly escape including Amalfi. It seems the archetype of them all. The rough red cliffs spring steeply from the sea along this coast, and it must have been a daring builder who first conceived the idea of planting his structure there. But there they have clung for more than a thousand years, and when the sea, at times, has swallowed some of the buildings, the people of the region have stubbornly built others farther up the precipitous slopes.

City "Piled Upon Itself."

"Hans Christian Andersen, who between fairy tales wrote charmingly of Italy's lovely scenery, described Amalfi in a phrase which he called it 'a city singularly piled upon itself.' Its little streets run not among, but through, the houses, and some of its dark, tortuous passages must be lighted in midday. Its main street with its curious archways gives a touch of the Orient. Behind the town in a deep ravine is the picturesque 'glen of the mills' where a rolling stream leaps toward the sea in cascade after cascade, driving the machinery of scores of clanking paper mills. Paper making is one of the main industries of Amalfi, and in addition there are the inevitable macaroni factories, and soap-making plants.

"It is difficult to realize that little Amalfi, precariously stuck upon its cliffs, with a population of only about 5,000, was once a wealthy independent city-state whose might was recognized throughout the Near East. In the Middle Ages before Venice and Genoa and Pisa rose to power, Amalfi was the great mercantile and naval power of the Mediterranean. Its traders started the order of St. John, later the Knights of Malta. Its fleet was the scourge of the Saracens in the trying days when their boats preyed on Mediterranean commerce. Under the city's doges a maritime court was maintained whose code was the acknowledged maritime law of Europe for centuries. And as a further contribution to the nautical world an Amalfian citizen is believed to have invented the mariners' compass, whose north-seeking needle, though known to the Chinese, was not previously used for navigation.

Long Fight Against Sea.

"Ribbons of highway skirt the cliffs in the Amalfi district, rising over ridges, and falling into hollows, turning sharp corners and dodging into and out of little tunnels. Always below lies the blue Mediterranean and tied together by the balustraded highway are charming little villages. It was among these villages and towns clustered about Amalfi—Atrani, Molini, Furore, Praiano—that greatest damage was suffered in the recent landslide.

"Amalfi's decline from its high medieval state is partly traceable to the inroads the sea has made upon it. The sea began to undermine the lower parts of the town in the Twelfth century, and about the same time came subjection from the Norman rulers of Sicily and Naples. In 1343 came a terrible inundation which destroyed most of the town and its harbor. From then the decline was rapid, and before long the city of 50,000 inhabitants had shrunk to one-tenth its former size. But picturesqueness and beauty have clung to Amalfi as tenaciously as Amalfi has clung to its cliffs. Nothing can shake these assets. Boat loads of tourists sail from Naples between the Sorrentine peninsula and Capri to enter what is left of Amalfi's harbor and admire its beauties from the sea; while other sightseers drive down along the shelving highways to enjoy the covered of the picture. High over the climbing town hotels are perched in hollows of the cliffs to command incomparable views. Guests, forewarned, barely escaped from some of these erstwhile hostelries."

Lot Purchased for $510 Brings $140,000

Chicago.—A lot in the business district, purchased in 1830 for $510 by Dr. J. H. Foster, and given to his daughter, now Mrs. Clara F. Hess of Peterboro, N. H., has been repurchased by her for $140,000 from her grandson, Samuel B. Warner, to whom it was given some years ago by Mrs. Hess' daughter. The lot has been held by four generations of the family and now belongs to the second. A sentimental wish to keep it in the family prompted Mrs. Hess' purchase.

World's Largest Bible Being Written by Hand

Portland, Me.—The largest Bible in the world is being compiled by the Bible Society of Maine, under the direction of Edmund T. Garland, superintendent Y. M. C. A. building, this city.

It will consist of 1,500 pages of the dimensions of the ordinary newspaper and the total weight will be 60 pounds. The pages are being written in long hand by upward of 1,500 penmen, the oldest being more than ninety years of age and the youngest six and a half years. The youngest contributor, by the way, is the grandson of Superintendent Garland, who is sponsoring the project.

The first page is written by the son of the founder of the Bible Society of Maine. Every college and preparatory school of the Protestant denomination in the state is represented by a page written by the president of the institution. Many Sunday schools of the state are represented, and also many other organizations and individuals.

The unique volume, which will be completed soon, will be used for exhibition purposes.

WILL WAR ON CROWS TO SAVE GAME BIRDS

Sportsmen Plan Campaign to Wipe Out Pests.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Investigations of the crow which have taken place recently on a scale wider than ever before have proven that he is one of the most destructive creatures to useful and game birds, and to poultry and crops. In fact, his depredations are so widespread and fraught with such evil results that sportsmen all over the country are banding together to shoot him so that the game which remains can have a better chance of coming to maturity.

A census taken among the game wardens in Pennsylvania recently showed that an overwhelming number of the men in the field were positive, from actual observation, of the destructive habits of the crow and they advised that campaigns be undertaken against him.

Some naturalists have claimed that not only directly does the crow damage the farmer, by attacking young poultry and destroying crops, but that indirectly he is vastly more destructive. His indirect work is done when he destroys millions of the eggs of useful birds and therefore prevents the coming of maturity of these auxiliaries of the farmer who would, had they been allowed to exist, have accounted for myriads of insects. In fact, naturalists have said that the farmer's bill for insecticides would be greatly lowered were the crow prevented from killing useful birds who are the natural enemies of the insect pests.

In the West hunters are employed to kill off the predatory animals which prey on the cattle and great sums have been saved by their activities.

It appears that organized effort against the crow will also save great sums in other parts of the country if this particular menace to bird life is reduced in numbers.

The various campaigns against the crow have followed on the heels of the great conservation movement to protect game which is now finding such a response among sportsmen in all parts of the country.

With the efforts made to provide proper refuges for useful birds comes the question of protecting their young against the predatory creatures which prey on them.

"Toby M. P." Bequeaths Cigars in Own Memory

London.—In the will of late Sir Henry Lucy, for many years the famous "Toby M. P." of Punch, a provision is made that at the annual dinners of the Punch staff a box of cigars is to be passed to the guests to be smoked in memory of the donor. The will sets aside $500 to be invested and used for this purpose.

Sir Henry left many bequests to hospitals and charities in memory of various relatives. The estate is valued at more than $1,000,000.

A decision which may cost the federal government $70,000,000 in claims arising from the commandeering of ships during the war was handed down by the United States Supreme Court a few days ago. The court reversed the decision of lower courts and sent back to the Court of Claims for settlement the case of the Brooks-Scanlon Corporation which sued the government for damages and compensation for the commandeering of a contract for construction of the M. J. Scanlon and the ship itself, at the yards of the New York Shipbuilding Corporation at Camden, N. J. Counsel for the government in arguing the case, said if the court decided the contract had a value it would open the way to approximately $70,000,000 worth of similar suits.

Announcement of the location of vast tracts of land in the Philippines with soil well adapted for rubber plantations was made recently by Secretary Wallace. Experts of the Department of Agriculture, with those of the Department of Commerce, working under a $500,000 appropriation by Congress, have been searching for the last year in the Philippines and in South and Central America for means of developing new sources of crude rubber to make the United States independent of British colonial and other foreign producers, who now provide about 90 per cent of the world's supply.

AN ADVERTISER'S ANNOUNCEMENT

This advertising space in the Capitan Mountaineer has been taken by the El Paso & Southwestern Railroad Company for a few issues, in order to reach the people for the purpose of encouraging a mutual and renewed effort on their part and of the Railroad, so that in recovering from the financial effect of the unusual lean years we have been passing through, we will all have in view the development of all the resources which our country affords to bring each community up to any practical degree of prosperity which it is possible to maintain. Especially such communities as are situated in counties through which the Railroad runs. The Company believes that to aid in doing this it would be advantageous if both the public and the Railroad Officials could each have more information and a better understanding of each other's exact situations and necessities.

The Company has had many assurances of appreciation from those along the route of its railroad in New Mexico who are acquainted with its efforts in giving them good railroad service, and is confident that it will increase those friendships wherever such information becomes more general. Its agents would undoubtedly be benefited and be enabled to serve the public by knowing more completely and thoroughly how it can the better serve them. There are many, however, who do not know the difficulties and disadvantages which a railroad has, both on account of natural difficulties and the very strict regulation and control of carriers under present day laws, and expect more from it than it can reasonably do and still furnish the public with efficient service.

The Company does not intend to make any complaints, nor to inveigh against the laws; which it is carefully and cheerfully obeying and which it believes in the main are wise and proper. This space is to be used only for giving you information as to what this Company is doing, and will furnish you if it can, information which it is in position to gather of facts, and perhaps, occasionally, suggestions, in the hope that they will be of aid to you in working out your own prosperity and that of each community. It recognizes that you, too, have been giving good service in courageous effort practically as pioneers in what, though mostly a desert, is not on that account devoid of resources, and that all communities have as a rule given a fair deal and that both individuals and communities are entitled to credit for what you have accomplished.

No part of this space used by the Company shall contain reference to politics or political measures or propaganda of any kind. The articles will contain only information given in the hope that it may be of value to you and to your communities, concerning such affairs of the Company as you are directly interested in; and possibly local information as to your own county and the possibilities of development therein. The Company asks that you read what it has to offer from time to time, in accordance with the above, and give it credit for good faith and accuracy in presenting the same.

The first article along the lines above suggested will appear in an early issue.

The entire state received a shock when the sudden death of Lieut. Gov. Jose A. Baca was announced. The deceased was a victim of pneumonia. He was a member of one of the oldest Spanish families in the state.

Gov. Baca was 18 years of age and was a resident of Las Vegas, where his remains were interred last Tuesday.

It is fit and proper that we rejoice in the reports of the successful crossing of the Pacific ocean by our army airmen. By making this leg on their around the world journey they bridged the longest gap, a distance of better than eight hundred miles. Intrepid fliers! Dauntless young American manhood! Our hearts and our prayers go with you as you make history by your aerial circumnavigation of the globe.

The E. P. & S. W. has emerged from its shell and is taking the public into its confidence. In a series of interesting and educational advertisements they intend to help us to help ourselves. It is a most commendable movement and one that will enlist the hearty support of the public. Let's lay our cards on the table face up and acknowledge the fact that we are partners, and that our interests are identical. We are an asset of the Railroad company, and they, on the other hand, are our economic salvation. It is to be regretted that the past has been so prolific of misunderstanding and distrust on the part of both the public and the Railroad company. When the fog of suspicion is dissipated we will awaken to find each ready and willing to do its part for the mutual prosperity.

Rattlesnake Robert Tells of Convention

The 10th Annual Meet will Take Place at Las Vegas on July 3, 4 and 5.

(By Rattlesnake Robert)

Las Vegas, May 24.—The Kow Ketching Kontests, otherwise the 10th Animal Cowboys' Reunion, saddles up July 3rd and keeps on buckin' through the 4th and 5th this year instead of the 2 3 4 dates formerly announced. Timaway Gov. Hinkle and the other cowboys have got all day a Sunday to reciprocate and brush the horsehair off their pants legs before gittin' back to work. Also so's the boys from Chaparral Valley can stay here and go to church next day for onest in their ornery lives. Then there's the summer school marms which will have two whole days without no studyin' except who he way Jim Whitmore is gonna fall off a steer.

They ain't many changes in the program of contests, except a new way of splittin' the money in a couple of 'em that will give the boys a better chance to make wages every day. Like in the bronc bustin' outa $700 four fellers the Sam Woody will get $1, 60, 40, or 20 pesos every day for two days and the three that can stand the lively sittin' for the third day gets $150, $100 and $50. And this year there's half a thousand for the steer wrastlin' otherwise the bull dogging brotherhood, split $75, $50 and $25 for two days or $100, $60 and $40 for the 3 days.

Steers roping this year is gonna be of roping and not only you gotta rope 'em and spoil the intrest of the beggers, but also you have got to tie 'em down by three legs so's the only way they can walk is like a egg walks uphill in the moon. The boys of the committee is pecin' flivver size yearlin's, light haired and built for speed and action and not so much like the ancestors of the Levi Notsun or some other steamship, as they was last year. On the account the animals heat the chaps a'most like a hot dog in a Mexican Carolina last year, they ain't but one contest in the roplin' this year, and the big money is split four ways like a cherry pie for three days besides the finalities.

On account of a blight on the potato crop this spring the spud race will be eliminated and they won't have none this time. Instead whenever the 8,000 fellers in the grandstand gits to yellin' "otro toro" Con is goin' to turn loose a big steer, let him high tail 2'00 feet and then six forty cowboys on him and the first one what ropes him gits ten dollars that is, if he lives. This here is the Laudron Race, which though sounds jest as sweet by one name as the other, is sometimes called the Thief's Race, the Maverick, the Dogpile, the Bulldogging, the Rooferyemoney or the Tea Pot Dome Race, the idea being to get all you can while the gettin's good, and then git out. Ambulances and doctors provided. Flowers free.

The Calle Race will be eliminated this here time on the account of not wishing to have so much feathers and chicken blood in the brand, but for every thing that is cut out the sequences will mug a wild cow, bulldog a flivver, flirt with the summer school girls, stan' on their heads, recite a pome or something equally as difficult and a lot harder and thrillinger. I mention right here that $5.00 worth of certain ordinator will be given out for the correct answer to the question "what makes the wild cows wild" following the wild cow cow milking competition July 3, 4, and 5.

The personality of the Association is pretty much the same as last year. A bunch of ol' leathernecked, saddle calloused, cool headed, cattlemen with cago brush in their hair and hearts as big an' warm as the Pecos Valley—like president Shoemaker—is the directors. Con Jackson, which is the name of the man with the red shirt that run it last year, is Manager and Arena Director, to who everybody should address their letters.

School Election

In an election last Saturday, in the school districts interested the proposition as to whether or not Districts 16, Providence, and 23, Mesa, should be joined to District 28, Capitan, was carried, in favor of consolidation, by an overwhelming majority. In fact, there were only two dissenting votes.

The Capitan school was consolidated with other districts a few years since, the result being that it was already considered one of the best schools in the state. The districts, joined to this by Saturday's election, will make the local school a large one and there are rumors concerning the erection of an additonal building.

Twelve to fifteen teachers will be employed by the local board for the next scolastic year.

Soldier Bonus

Washington— Veterans bureau actuaries informed members of congress today for the first time that the list of "factors" prepared by them and recently made public for computing the amounts of insurance due under the bonus law took into account the extra 25 per cent of adjusted service compensation allowed by the bill on insurance certificates.

This means that a veteran, in computing the value of the insurance policy he will relieve, simply will multiply his credits at $1.25 a day for foreign service and $1. a day for home service by his factor, which previously had been made public. The extra 25 per cent is not to be added as heretofore announced. As an example, the veteran having the maximum amount of home service credit, $500, the insurance policy would amount to about two and one half times that amount or $1250, according to age of the veteran.

H. P. Brown veterans bureau actuary, explained the table of factors recently made public had been based on values of $1.25 instead $1, and thus took into account the extra 25 per cent allowed by the bill and saved a double computation.

This will result in lower values for insurance policies all a long the line than figured by congress, Brown said, but would make no difference in the actual benefit of the bill, since all these facts have been taken into consideration by the actuaries of both the veterans bureau and the treasury department who figured on the expense.

SAN PATRICIO LOCALS

Miss Rosa Chavez left for her home in Hurley, N. M., and Mrs. Henderson for Roswell, early this week.

School is out! The children, after nine months of routine, hardly know what to do. The change from regular order to disorder, as is the case generally, is disconcerting.

Henry Fritz, of Capitan, came down from that place Saturday and was accompanied home by his daughter, Frances, who taught in the primary department of our school during the term just closed.

Mrs. Henderson, principal, and Miss Frances Fritz, primary teacher, will teach here next term. Miss Rosa Chavez, who taught the intermediate grades, is undecided. Miss Chavez' work has been excellent and the entire community hopes she may decide to return.

The school at San Patricio during the past year has been one of the most successful terms ever held in the district and much praise is due the teachers who have labored under very trying conditions. The patrons, generally, are well satisfied with the progress made by their children.

The festival of San Isidro, labrador, (the ploughman) which falls on the 15th of May, was this year practically overlooked in this section.

San Isidro is the patron saint of farmers in all Spanish-speaking countries and the patron saint of Madrid, Spain. 'Tis said that he was so devoutly pious that he neglected to till his land in order to devote more time to his religious duties and that angels came down and did his plowing.

In these modern, skeptical imes the farmer still revers the saint and trusts in the Lord, but fails not to do his plowing.

A vacation without supplies to insure complete comfort for emergencies loses half its thrill. Let us suggest a few articles vital for your needs. The Sunshine Pharmacy.

A Plea for Poppy Day

By James D. Campbell, in New York Times.

OH, CHERISH the flag with the stars of blue
And its wonderful stars of gold.
They stand for the men who stood for you;
When a gold star fell a star of blue
Filled up the breach till their work was through.
The story should never grow old.

Oh, cherish the flag with the stars of blue
And the pitiful stars of gold.
The gold once gave and they gave and gave,
And all that a man could give they gave,
These stars shine down on a martyr's grave.
And your grief must never grow cold.

Oh, cherish the flag with the stars of gold
And the myriad stars of blue.
Those stars of blue who were there to give;
Their very lives they offered to give
So all that you hold dear might live.
Yes, if need be, to die for you.

And our hearts can add yet another star,
One that's stained with a blood-like red.
It stands for the blind and the crippled lads
Who were fighting there in your stead.
They took the wounds and the bullets
And the suffering all for you.
Oh, cherish the flag with its stars of gold
And its stars of red and blue.

Taking of Envoys Promised Trouble

Civil War Occurrence That Threatened to Bring on New War.

NO SINGLE incident in the history of the Civil war threatened more serious consequences and none more excited the country than the seizure of the Confederate envoys to Europe, James M. Mason of Virginia and John Slidell of Louisiana, on board the British mail steamer Trent, by officers of the U. S. navy.

Mason and Slidell were delegated to solicit the recognition of the Confederacy by England and France. They had run the blockade at Charleston and boarded the Trent at Havana to go to St. Thomas, where they were to board a steamer for England.

Captain Wilkes of the United States war steamer San Jacinto heard of their movements and made inquiries at Havana which led him to form a plan for stopping the Trent and taking the envoys from her.

To this end he took up a station in the Old Bahama channel, on the north shore of Cuba, where the steamer must pass.

The San Jacinto sent a solid shot across the bow of the Trent, as she came near, about noon on Nov. 8, 1861. The captain of the English steamer affected not to understand and a shell was sent across his bow.

The Trent stopped. Captain Wilkes ordered an armed party to board her and take off the Confederate envoys. This party was headed by Lieut. Donald McNeill Fairfax.

By a curious fate the important duty of apprehending these representatives of the Confederacy fell to an officer of southern birth. Fairfax was a member of the famous Fairfax family of Virginia, a great-great-grandson of Bryan, eighth Baron Fairfax, and he had entered the navy from North Carolina.

Mounting to the steamer's deck alone, Lieutenant Fairfax requested the captain to show him her passenger list. The captain refused.

Hearing their names, Mason and Slidell came from the cabin. Lieutenant Fairfax told them it was his duty to take them with him to the San Jacinto. They replied that force only could make them go. They then retired to their cabins. Their families were with them, and here a scene of a trying nature took place.

The armed men in the naval boat alongside, hearing an alteration on deck—many of the passengers were roundly abusing Lieutenant Fairfax—had by this time come up the side. Lieutenant Fairfax sent to the San Jacinto for more men and twenty-four came. These were stationed in the cabin and on the deck of the Trent.

Lieutenant Fairfax took Senator Mason by the shoulder and escorted him to the gangway, where he was taken in charge by another officer. Senator Slidell declared more force would be needed to take him, but he was led by the arm to the side. The two secretaries of the envoys went with them.

When the boats of the San Jacinto shoved off the Trent resumed her voyage.

The Confederate envoys were taken to Boston and put into Fort Warren. The British government demanded their release on penalty of war, they having been taken when under the British flag; and as there was a technical flaw in Captain Wilkes' act, in his not having seized the vessel for adjudication before a prize court, the United States government, under the pacific influence of President Lincoln, surrendered the envoys.

The incident served, however, greatly to lessen their influence when finally they arrived in Europe, as the governments of both England and France recognized them only as "private gentlemen."

Arlington Typical of Great America

Service to Country Is One Necessary Requisite for Burial There.

MEMORIALS in wide variety have been erected to the valor and patriotism of the thousands of defenders of the nation, but by far the most magnificent of these tributes is the great Arlington cemetery, just across the Potomac river, on the heights overlooking the capital city of Washington. Here lie buried some 30,000 dead of the Civil war, the Spanish-American war, and the World war. Neither money nor effort has been spared to make this cemetery a fitting resting place for the soldiers and sailors who here repose in their last long sleep. Simple marble headstones of privates stand alongside the great mausoleums and monuments of distinguished army and naval officers.

Standing out beyond all the monuments in Arlington, without doubt, is the glistening white marble of the great amphitheater dedicated three years ago. Here on Memorial Day hundreds of government officials and private citizens gather in an impressive service. Three other memorials in Arlington command more than passing notice. The mast of the battleship Maine, sunk in Havana harbor a quarter of a century ago, precipitating the Spanish-American war, serves as a monument over the graves of many brave American sailors who lost their lives when that ship struck a mine. The monument to 2,111 of the unknown dead of the Civil war over reminds the visitor to the cemetery of the thousands lying in unmarked graves over the battlefields of the South. And of more recent renown is the grave of the unknown soldier whose body was brought from the fields of France to typify his comrades in this last great conflict.

Arlington cemetery is unique—there is nothing like it in the world. Other nations have erected monuments, arches and memorials to their successful military and naval leaders and statesmen. They have provided massive tombs and burial places, but always for men of high rank. England has her Westminster abbey, for men of high distinction in statesmanship, invention, science, letters, philanthropy, as well as war. France's Pere Lachaise and Rome's Pantheon are for the same purpose, and Egypt's pyramids were reserved for kings and queens only. But not so Arlington. Here equality and sacrifice dominate. Wealth, birth, social station, and political eminence, without military service, try for admission in vain. Arlington is typical of a nation "conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal."—Grit.

MEMORIAL TRIBUTE TO HIS FATHER

Musician Decorates Grave, Plays to His Memory.

HIS father had been a soldier and when he was only a little boy he had been taken every Memorial Day and had put a new flag over his father's grave. He knew his father so intimately—even though he had died when he was but a little boy. But his mother talked to him of his father. He heard of the days when he had fought for the freedom of others, he heard of his interests, the things he had loved. And he heard how he used to sing and play a little on an old organ which they had. It seemed to delight his brother because he inherited his father's musical talent. His father had loved music, but he had never been able to afford giving it much time.

He grew up splendidly. And more and more did he marvel. He, too, spent much time over his music and his talent was even greater than that of his father's.

"Mother," he said one day, "I have offered my services to the church. I am going to play the organ for them on Sundays and drill the choir every Saturday night. I can afford to do it for them and they can't really afford to pay any one else. I shall feel it will be a memorial to Dad."

So every Memorial Day he puts the new flag on his father's grave in memory of his father's bravery, but every Sunday, throughout the year, he gives a Memorial tribute to his soldier-father who heeded the call of a bugle, but who, too, loved the vibrant glory of a church organ.—Mary Graham Bonner.

Summer Pruning in June

Rub off all suckers or sprouts which appear on the trunk of the tree so as to concentrate the entire growth into the permanent branches. Summer pruning of newly set fruit trees should be done in June. This consists of removing surplus branches. After the young peach trees have made a growth of 15 inches, the tops of the branches that are to be permanent should be pinched out so as to force the limbs to branch.

PROFESSIONAL NURSE SAYS TANLAC HAS NO EQUAL

Mrs. J. Clark Says Tanlac Was More Than Match for Her Troubles.

By reason of the fact that she speaks from her long experience as a professional nurse, the statement of Mrs. J. Clark, of 415 Walsworth Ave., Oakland, Calif., will be of interest to all who are in need of an upbuilding tonic.

"In all my fifteen years' experience as a trained nurse," says Mrs. Clark's statement, "I never found the equal of Tanlac as a stomach medicine and tonic. Two years ago an attack of influenza left me without appetite and my stomach in such a bad fix that the little I did eat seemed to do me harm instead of good.

"Stomach pains would make me so weak I would feel right faint. The least exertion would completely exhaust me and six months before taking Tanlac I was so weak I had to hire my housework done. I was in bed most of the time for two months and was getting desperate.

"Tanlac was more than a match for my troubles and eight bottles left me feeling fine. I eat and sleep like a child and have energy and strength that makes life a pleasure. Tanlac is simply grand."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best—Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says, "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by parcel post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Advertisement.
