This Is The Hour Of The Progressive Man

It is also the hour of the man who saves a part of his earnings--with the realization that his earning power is gradually diminishing with every year of his life. But he is amply rewarded in the evening of life with the consulation of knowing that he has wisely accumulated a competence for this period.

America's Object.

"The object of this war is to deliver the free peoples of the world from the menace and the actual power of a vast military establishment controlled by an irresponsible government which, having secretly planned to dominate the world, proceeded to carry the plan out without regard either to the sacred obligationf of treaty or long-established practicesand long cherished principles of international action and honor; which chose its own time for war; delivered it blow fiercely and suddenly; stopped at no barrier either of law or of mercy; swept a whole continent within the tide of blood—not the blood soldiers only, but the blood of innocent women and children also and, of the helpless poor; and now stands balked but not defeated, the enemy of four-fifths of the world."—From President Wilson's Reply to the Pope.

An Old Appeal.

One of the bravest and most gallant struggles for national liberty in all history of the world was the war for independence of the Netherlands against Phillip II of Spain. William of Orange—William the Silent—led his people through years of war to ultimate victory, though he did not live to see that great result. In unselfish devotion to his people and his country, in courage and ability, he stands in the annals of his country as Washington stands in ours. Of him it was said by Motley, the historian, "When he died the little children cried in the streets."

The great and powerful United States arrayed against Germany is in no such condition as was the Netherlands Confederacy arrayed against the power of Spain, yet the Prince of Orange's appeal to the Dutch people to give financial support to the cause of liberty possesses a timely interest when the United States Government is asking the American people to give their financial support to their Government in this war for liberty in the world.

The Prince of Orange in his address to the inhabitants of the Netherlands used these words:

"Let not a sum of gold be so dear to you, that for its sake you will sacrifice your lives, your wives, your children, and all your descendants, to the latest generations; that you will bring sin and shame upon yourselves, and destruction upon us who have so heartily striven to assist you. Think what scorn you will incur from foreign nations, what a crime you will commit against the Lord God, what a bloody yoke ye will impose forever upon yourselves and your children, if you now seek for subterfuge; if you now prevent us from taking the field with the troops which we have enlisted. On the other hand, what inexpressible benefits you will confer on your country, if you now help us to rescue that fatherland from the power of our enemies."

Gen. B. F. Adams Dies.

The Mountaineer has received news from Corona that Gen. B. F. Adams, postmaster at that place, died Wednesday in El Paso, where he had been taken for treatment. He was a well known citizen of the county and had a host of friends. He was a staunch Republican and was always active in his party's interest by attending all the county conventions and nearly always honored by being made chairman. He was 70 years old; was a veteran of the civil war, serving in the Eighth Massachusetts infantry. He won the title of General by being made a brigadier in the Florida state militia. He was a good man and we sincerely regret to learn that he has gone

"This man must win

HE'S the man who, from the beginning of time, has proved to the world that it can be done. You can check him but he'll come back and come back until you wreck him. His will is made of whalebone. It has snap but won't snap. Bend it as much as you please but watch out for the rebound! He'll thrive as long as he's alive. The length of his fight is the limit of his faith. It takes more than one hit to make him quit" —Herbert Kaufman

Light on the Path to Health.

"Do not ask for health and at the same time try to name the terms and the conditions on which you are willing to receive it. The terms are already established.

Pay no money. No one has yet been authorized to make the transfer.

We may pay in many ways for sickness and disobedience but health and obedience are free.

We are responsible or should be and no proxies are recognized. The doctor has had a valuable experience, we need his advise and so far as it points out to us the duty, care and course of life as well as the shortcomings and their results. His knowledge experience and advice is indispensible but the idea of a specific, a panacea or a Specialist should be thrown out with the other mental rubbish, and the child and the incompetent should be taught as fast possible to depend on themselves Knowledge is indispensible, we must have it, and we may. Thousands have given their lives that this may be so. Each from his particular view point is giving us the best that is in him; many have carefully arranged and recorded the experiences of a life time, and it would be hard to imagine a book on this subject that was not worth the price and the time to read it.

The four corner stones of achievement in any line are Personal Responsibility, Knowledge, Desire, and Will, and this is especially true in health matters.

The Desire; well, if we don't desire health and knowledge and will, what's the use, we are simply in the position of the plant where 100 has sprouted and one may grow, and nature is reconciled to the loss.

The will; This is like all other faculties. It will grow with with wise and persistent use Evasion, Indifference, and Procrastination are ever taking their fearful toll. When we have used the light we have more will be given us, and the thing to done, we must do ourselves, now, thoroughly, cheerfully.

Ten years devoted to acquiring refinement and strength should add forty years of usefulness and solid satisfaction to the expectation of the average person.

While Mattie Porter and Gilbert Phillips were coming into town last Sunday morning from the Phillips ranch in a car, they came in close quarters with a large brown bear, on the hill above the railroad station house. Rye.

Attention is called to the nation plan for an average increase of 22 per cent in rye acreage over the acreage planted in the fall of 1916. Use rye on fields where wheat is especially subject to winter killing and also on soils so poor that only small yield of wheat could be secured. Rye can be successfully planted later than wheat, so it may be used on fields where conditions have delayed wheat planting.

Capitan School.

Last Friday afternoon the students of the High School under the direction of Supt. Koogler undertook to organize two literary societies, whose prime objects it shall be to foster literary interests among the students. At the suggestion of the chairman, Mr. Koogler, two students were elected from the student body at large, to act as choosers. Those elected, Mary Fritz and Reggie Bell, took their places, one on each side of the Assembly Hall, and chose one at a time until the entire student body was divided into the two societies. Next Friday during the regular Chapel hour these clubs will elect their respective officers, draw up their constitutions and by-laws and choose the necessary committees.

It is hoped by thus having two organizations a considerable degree of rivalry will promote the desire on the part of each society to do its very best work.

The students manifested a considerable degree of enthusiasm, which it is hoped will continue throughout the year to make this work a success.

SCHOOL PLAY.

The students of Lincoln County High School will give a play in the near future. The name of the play is, "Somewhere in France," and will be interesting to old and young alike. Look for further notice.

FIRST COMPOSITION IN PRIZE CONTEST.

Buddie and Pie.

As the evening wore on and the different shows and performances were brought to an end, Alfred Caldwell or Buddie, as he was called, became very tired and restless. He begged to go home, but his mother took no heed of this.

Buddie was yet a small child of three years who was never known to keep still for one minute of the day. He spent many long hours with his best companion, a Scotch Terrier to which he was very much devoted. Pie, as the dog was called, was ever at his heels.

On this particular evening Pie had gone to the carnival with Buddie, for had he not gone, Buddie would have become impatient long before he did. When he did get restless, he cried out in a loud voice, "Me and Pie is goin' home, maw!" His parents quieted him but in a few minutes he again let his intention be known. At last the carnival came to an end, and with a rush he at once began to descend the steps. His parents had occupied top seats in order that Buddie might see each and every movement which took place. When he had climbed about half way down, he lost his balance and tumbled down head first, striking each seat with his head until he rolled out on the ground. He did not hesitate at this, but jumped up and looked to see if his faithful companion was with him. When he found that he was, he ran at full speed and pushed his way into the crowd; but he was not alone in this race, for his mother was right at his heels. She caught him by the arm and drew him back to her. But his father came up at this time and, seeing how his son was scrambling for freedom, he begged his wife to let him find his way alone to the door. Buddie chuckled at the thought of finding his own way out, and the instant he was freed he ran and screamed for joy. He began to push his way through the crowd and was soon lost to became alarmed and began to run here and there in search of her lost child. She inquired of several by-standers, but this was all in vain. She searched for him in each car, but could not find him.

By this time there were many people searching for the lost child, looking here and there, yet without results. At last his anxious mother ran across the street to he ice-cream parlor. As she entered the door she was amazed too see her child sitting on a high stool near the counter asking for a dish of ice-cream. Pie was seated near Buddie's feet, and seemed to be most interested as to whether Buddie was ordering one or two dishes of ice-cream.

To Protect Soldiers.

News comes from Washington that legislation to protect the civil and property rights of soldiers for the duration of the war, designed for those who are serving their country on the firing line, is likely to be placed on the administration's program for this session of Congress as a necessary element of the raising of a citizen army.

"The soldiers' and sailors' civil rights bill," to carry out this purpose, already has been introduced in both houses, having been framed in the office of Judge Advocate General Crowder. Secretary Baker, it is learned, has under consideration recommendations that the entire weight of the administration influence be brought to bear to obtain an early enactment of the measure.

To save soldiers and sailors from all kinds of legal injustices during their absence from home the measure would enjoin the carrying out of certain civil court actions until after the close of the war and establish as a legal excuse for failure to carry out certain contracts the fact that a man is in the military service.

It is proposed that creditors' suits against officers or men may be held up and judgment by default denied, the framers of the bill recognizing that a man in the army or navy would have no opportunity to make his defense in person or to arrange for its proper hearing through counsel.

If such a judgment rested against a man at the time of his enlistment, the bill would prevent its execution through the sale of his property during his absence. It would set aside the statute of limitations so that a debt owed to a soldier might not be outlawed in his absence; it would prevent the eviction of his family while he was away if they failed to pay rent; it would protect his equity in any real estate or other purchase contract in which he might have been engaged at the time he went into the army; it would protect him against the ordinary results of defaulted payments on business mortgages and keep him from being sold out in his absence; it would insure any rights he might have to public lands, although his service at the front had prevented him from completing the legal acquisition of the property.

Another element of protection the bill would accord to the fighting man would be as to his insurance, which could not lapse through failure to make any payment. His property also would be saved from sale for taxes and in every other way which the legal experts of the War Department have been able to devise.

A good crowd was present and all were in favor of holding the contest if the young folks were able to spare the time from their studies to prepare their speeches. It is felt that their training and rivalry for the contest would be very beneficial to the speakers, as well as a great pleasure to themselves and hearers that they were in such a good plight. Further announcement will be made later.

A Successful Banker.

George L. Ulrick, Vice President of the Exchange Bank, of Carrizozo, had business in Capitan Monday, and paid the Mountaineer a call. We are always glad to meet this genial gentleman. He not only has something pleasant to talk about, but his conversation is entertaining and very instructive. Mr. Ulrick is known to be one of the most successful bankers and best business men in the county. He has been in the banking business in White Oaks and Carrizozo together for the past twenty-five years and has made a decided success of the business, and has retained the confidence of the people. It will be remembered by the old settlers in Lincoln county that Mr. Ulrick successfully pulled the Exchange through two of the worst panics the country has seen and no depositor lost a dollar.

Buys Bu y Bee Cafe.

A. J. Shropshire, formerly of Liberty Hill, near Midway, out on the plains, and well known over the big plains country, has bought out the interest of Mrs. Betty Baugh in the Busy Bee Cafe on East Second street, and will hereafter run this popular eating house. Mr. Shropshire will serve regular dinners, and short orders at all hours in the 24 hours of the day. He will employ all lady help.—Roswell Weekly Star.

The Mountaineer people were acquainted with Mr. Shropshire down in Texas a good many years ago; and have met him occasionally since he moved to New Mexico, and we take pleasure in saying to our friends and acquaintances that he is a good, deserving man; that when they go to Roswell if they will go to the Busy Bee Cafe for their meals, they will find all they want that is good to eat and receive the most courteous treatment.

There seems to be considerable excitement and a little bad feeling in regard to the proposed change in the road coming into Capitan from the east. The matter will come up for consideration in the Commissioners Court next week, and we have faith that the court will duly consider all the circumstances and conditions surrounding the situation and do the best thing for all the people and the general prosperity of Capitan. A fair and square deal to all directly concerned in this matter is all that should be expected by any reasonable man or set of men.

Mr. Edwin Pepperd, a painter and paper hanger of Tularosa, has been working in Capitan for the past two weeks. He is just finishing up a job of papering the rooms in Mr. Will Titsworth's residence, which is a piece of work that can not be excelled, and shows him to be an expert at his trade Mr. and Mrs. Pepperd are engaged in the hotel business in Tularosa and are said to conduct a first-class house.

Mr. Truman Spencer, of Carrizozo, the —W and Banch ranch, was in town today and made the Mountaineer a business call.

A Negro Story.

Once a negro had a headache and went to the doctor to see what ailed him.

The doctor told him his salivary glands were bursted and he had a torpid liver. He also told him to be very careful, as he might go off (die) at any minute.

He walked home very slowly. On the way he met another negro, who asked him what was the matter with him, he walked so slow and careful?
