THE CAPITAN MOUNTAINEER

SIXTH YEAR NUMBER 16. CAPITAN, NEW MEXICO, FEB. 5, 1921 SUBSCRIPTION PRICE $1.50 A YEAR.

WAS HE JOHN WILKES BOOTH

Mr. Frank Black, of Detroit, Mich., and another party were in Granbury, Monday and Tuesday, interviewing a number of our pioneer citizens with reference to a character who lived in Granburry in the winter of 1872, John or Richard St Helen. Mr. Black stated that their business here was to gather evidence that might clear up some disputed points about St. Helen's life and career, and to controvert and condemn a book written and published by Finis L. Bates, a lawyer who lived here at the time, and who drew up some documents which were signed by St. Helen. In one of these documents, it is said, he acknowledges that he was John Wilkes Booth, who assassinated President Lincoln in 1865. Bates built the residence now occupied by Harry Hamberlin, but returned to Mississippi in 1873 or 1874. Those of our of citizens interviewed by Mr. Black were Lee Nutt, A. P. Gordon, John Farmalt, J. H. Doyle, Mrs. Sallie Cooper and the Tablet editor.

John Richard St. Helen, as he called himself, ran a saloon in Granbury in the winter of 1872, in the rock building on the south west corner now occupied by the Corner Grocery store, which he called the Black Hawk Saloon. He soon left here and went to Barnard's Mill (now Glen Rose), where he remained for a short time and disappeared. A few years ago, this man St. Helen died in Oklahoma, and made a dying statement that he was formally John Wilkes Booth, the assassin of President Lincoln, and had been going under the assumed name of St Helen since that time. After his death, Finis L. Bates wrote the book above mentioned, using some of the evidence secured from St. Helen in 1872. A copy of this book is said to be in Granbury now.

St. Helen was a sociable, jolly and rather garrulous individual, but never claimed that he was Booth to anyone except Bates.

Mr. Black had with him a tintype picture of St. Helen, which resembles him, except the short hair worn in the picture. While here St. Helen wore long black hair reaching down to his shoulders, which made his appearance rather imposing.—From the Tablet, published at Granbury, Texas.

Mr. Witt Sears, now of Capitan, was raised in Granbury, Texas, and when a small boy knew St. Helen and remembers his rather impressive appearance. Mr. Sears has a friend, Mr. Charley Carter, now living at Neri, near Granbury, who told Mr. Sears more than once that St. Helen told him he was John Wilkes Booth. Mr. Sears, also, says that some time after St. Helen disappeared from Granbury, Mr. Carter and several other young men moved a herd of cattle from that part of Texas to Colorado for Mr. Bob Couch, and on their return home came by way of Albuquerque, New Mexico; that the first man they met there, Mr. Carter told Mr. Sears, was St. Helen, who was running a saloon there. Mr. Carter's testimony is a strong point in confirming St. Helen's story that he was actually John Wilkes Booth, and that he confided his identity to one other man, at least, besides Mr. Bates.

Mr. Clarence Miller's lecture Tuesday night was very entertaining and instructive and was well attened.

Ex-Gov. Curry Wounded.

Socoro, N. M., Feb 3.—Former Gov. George Curry of New Mexico, who was shot through this right foot in the Claborn hotel here Sunday night, is reported in serious condition and amputation of the foot may be necessary. The shooting occurred when a revolver had been knocked from the hand of C. H. Talmadge of Elmendorf by Al Wood a guest of the hotel of which the former is proprietor.

Curry, according the account of the affair made public after the shooting had been summoned to the room, where, it is reported, he found Talmadge pressing a gun into the ribs of Wood. As the governor entered Wood knocked the gun out of Talmadge's hand and it was discharged, the bullet passing through the instep of Curry's foot. A warrant has been sworn out for the arrest of Talmadge.

Compression Inner Tube.

The Compression Inner Tube for automobiles is perhaps the greatest invention connected with them. It marks a new era in tire life, as it obviates blowouts which has given so much trouble and vexation to car operators. It is so moulded that its deep corrugations enables it to be slipped easily into the casing when deflated. After the tube is in the casing and inflated the corrugations straighten out, conforming to the smooth surface of the tire. Instead of stretching the tube, the air pressure compresses the rubber, which closes holes made by nails or tacks. As an illustration, take a pencil and dip it into a glass of water, pull out the pencil and whole is gone. The same principle is applied when the tube is penetrated by nails, without the loss of air.

Among the advantages the Compression Tube has over the ordinary tube, is that it maintains a uniform air pressure as a result of the absence of seepage of air and punctures. The rebounding or recoiling obtained by the tube lessens the shock and wear to the casings from rocks and other obstructions. The shock is largely absorbed by the increased thickness of the tube. The tread of the tube being thick and soft subber forms a cushion on top of the air, which gives greater rebound to the tire. It is a well-known fact that the heating of tires is created by friction, but Compression Tubes are so constructed as to practically eliminate this trouble.

Everyone in this country who owns a car should have Compression Tubes put on it. It would save them money in many ways. These tubes are claimed to last as long as a new car; they protect the car to a great extent, and cause it to give easier riding. Mr. Burl Sears, of Capitan, handles the Compression Inner Tube, and has samples on hand; will be glad to show it to anyone who may wish to know all about it. Call at his place of business and let him show it to you.

The editor of the Mountaineer received a letter this week from Mrs. E. E. (Boston) Wright in which there was enclosed two years subscription to the paper. Mr. Wright and family are now living at Columbus, New Mexico and we are glad to learn are getting along all right.

A nine pound girl was born to Mr and Mrs. Hart Hale, of the Little Creek community, Tuesday night.
