THE CAPITAN MOUNTAINEER

Seventh Year—No. 30 | Capitan, New Mexico, November 5th, 1921. | Subscription Price $1.50 A Year.

From Camp Kearney.

Fort Kearney, California, October 22—To the Mountaineer—I am sending you a couple of clippings from the "Optimist" a paper printed by the patients here at camp.

Mr. Furguson and Mr. Paine are both well known in Lincoln county, as they formerly lived at Fort Stanton.

With best wishes to the Mountaineer, I am

Yours Truly,
(Mrs.) Helen Pingatch Kallsen

Ferguson—Masterson.

Pvt. R. O. Ferguson, custodian of government property at Camp Cody, located at Deming, N. M., stole into Camp Kearney last week and finally succeeded, after many months effort, in persuading the very charming, talented and efficient chief aide, Miss Sarah L. Masterson, to join him in a life contract. They were married Wednesday at 11 a. m. by Chaplain Albert, of the U. S. Transport Force, at the quarters of Col. F. H. McKie, surgeon in charge, in the presence of officers and their wives, heads of departments and aides. A delicious wedding luncheon was served by Mrs. McKie, immediately after which the bride and groom left on their honeymoon.

All are united in the opinion that Mr. Ferguson is a very fortunate man, indeed, and those who know the groom say the bride has made no mistake in our momentous choice.

Tribute To Red Jack O'Brien.

Thursday morning, Oct. 13, another one of our boys, Red Jack O'Brien, passed away to eternal rest. He had suffered long, and to the friends who had watched by his bedside it was felt to be a blessed release. Paine fought a hard battle with unflinching courage and proved himself in every way to be a man.

For days of us who become acquainted with Paine soon after he came to Kearney, it will be a privilege to place a wreath upon his grave as a token of our kind and thoughtful boy, making friends with every one. And so accordingly will he be missed.

He appreciated the finer things of life and it is sad to realize that he was not able to enjoy them longer. It was hard for one so young to have to give up the struggle so early in life. I cannot but feel, however, that the future, whatever it may hold for him, will compensate in good measure, for which he has lost in life.

Fully, Clark.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The Lincoln County High School Basket Ball team brought back from Corona all the honors.

Both teams were taken to Corona on the Athletic Association Truck Friday afternoon. Saturday at 2 o'clock they played in the beautiful Gymnasium before a large and enthusiastic crowd. The girls game was called first and ended with an easy victory 30 to 10 in favor of the L. C. H. S. girls. The boys game was called and at the end of the game the Referee announced the second victory for Capitan to the tune of 43 to 6. Then the Corona town girls team challenged the L. C. H. girls and this game was fast and interesting and ended with the third victory for Capitan 22 to 17. The town team staged a lively contest ending the first half with a score of 24 to 4. The second half the game was on speed and Corona won by 20 to 14. The final score was 68 to 24 in favor the Capitan team. Mr. Peters refereed the last two games and no time was lost in playing for the ball was kept in constant motion.

The return games are scheduled for November 12th.

I take this opportunity to express my appreciation and that of Corona's boosters. They are true friends and showed the finest type of sportsmanship. Let us welcome them in Capitan.

Married.

Recently at Juarez, Mexico, Norton officiating, [illegible] Hamlin and Miss Lucia Fenley. These young people are well liked and highly respected by all who know them in Lincoln county, and the best wishes are that they may continue to be as happy all the days of their life as they are now.

F. G. James and Clayton Rockwell cleaned a land last this week. Mr. James traded his farm near Capitan to Mr. Rockwell for his farm in North Arkansas. Mr. James is arranging to move next week to his Arkansas property. This week will cause our community a loss of one of its best citizens, and the best wishes of the Mountaineer will follow Mr. and Mrs. James. [illegible] the change will prove profitable and beneficial to them. Mr. [illegible] will move to the James place. [illegible] received.

Incident That Shows That Missionary Work Is Only for Those Who Are Especially Efficient.

Hango was sent to Bang-bang up in the Malay peninsula. This is not the name, nor is it the place, but that does not matter. The story is true. His instructions were to start a school for the Chinese and to open up mission work. The government had promised to provide the land for the school building and Hango expected to find waiting for him a very extensive subscription list signed by wealthy Chinese to meet the expenses of building. He was instructed to present himself to the police inspector, who was supposed to be heartily backing the project. Shortly after Hango's arrival the official was suddenly transferred for excellent reasons. Then Hango discovered that the names of all the leading Chinese in the region were on his subscription list. They had no objections to subscribing when the inspector of police argued the cause, but they felt very differently about paying out their cash when a young missionary came to collect the money. Meanwhile Hango found that the contract for the school building had been let to a dishonest builder. He sent out 200 notices to leading Chinese inviting them to meet and confer on the proper action to be taken. No one came. He called a meeting of his executive committee, with a similar response. Then he jumped on his bicycle, scoured the highways and byways of the jungle in the scorching sun, which registers 140 degrees and no shade, every day, to round up his committee. The last member he roused from bed and late at night called them to order. The project was revived and a new subscription list started which soon totaled $8,000. The school began temporarily in an old church with 43 pupils. At the same time preaching services in Chinese, Tamil and Malay were opened in the jail, and a Young Men's association for the Chinese, offering opportunities which appealed greatly to the wealthy men, was organized. One effective means of raising money for the young men was to make a rule that whenever a $500 gift was registered the donor might have his picture hung in the dormitory. He finished the schoolhouse, found the money to pay the contractor, tutored some boys for the Cambridge examinations and loaned the money to pay for a Chinese preacher; but in enough time on the polyglot population of the district to make himself understood, and, when I visited him, was on good terms with everybody in town. The missionary who cannot stand such tests as these need not apply for the job.—Tyler Dennett, in Asia Magazine.

Changes Planes in Mid-Air.

The daring maneuver of jumping from one airplane to another while in full flight was recently accomplished by a lieutenant of aviation, and is pictured in Popular Mechanics Magazine. Climbing down to the lower cross-tie of the machine in which he had left the ground as a passenger, he reached the horizontal bar of the landing chassis. Hanging to this, and executing acrobatic evolutions, he awaited the approach of a second ship flying at a lower level. As it came beneath him he released his hold and dropped onto its top plane, landing at a point near the middle of the right wing. While he had estimated the relative speed of the two machines correctly and judged his distance with nicety, it will be expected for him to clutch a line held, or possibly suffer the inconvenience of falling 5,000 feet.

Ai Ali Digadda.

The teacher was explaining the idea in a mental arithmetic lesson. After "stables" had been repeated he commenced giving a series of mental sums, and finally asked an intelligent little Scotch lad:

"If I have 20 to be divided between you and Johnny McGregor?"

"Aff a' ye mean by dividin' the gounter answered."

"I gunna tell, sir."

"How's that?" questioned the teacher.

"Well, sir," said he, "yo see, it's a' ye'll get, if ye ca' ten each; but if ye ca' 'em too Johnny wha' I wanna know, I'd only get ainair five; while if ye ca' 'em the ee too share, when Johnny works hard I'd gain ten whether he'd like my at, sir."—Columbus (O.) State.

Women in British Industries.

The last extent to which British women replaced men in industry and commerce during the war is disclosed in a white paper just issued. It is estimated that the net increase in female workers employed outside their own homes was 1,200,000.

The number of females employed in industrial establishments under government control in April, 1919, were 704,000; office government work, in industry, 77,000. The number of females employed as permanent work people in agriculture in July, 1918, was 80,000; in 1918 the number was 117,000.

[illegible] Juniper Lodge

["A Childe Among Ye Taking Notes."]

Notes from Juniper Lodge were commenced nearly two years ago, but owing to circumstances were discontinued for the time being. They will be resumed now, but the regularity of their appearance will depend upon the time found to write them and as the Mountaineer can give them space.

On this beautiful October Sabbath, the last in the month, I can say with Whitcomb Riley:

"O, I love old October so,
When the fodder's in the shock,
And the pumpkin's on the vine."

This day is typical of autumn. We see and feel the approach of winter in the forests, in pastures and in the air and soberer moods come over us. The following lines from "Thompson's Seasons," referring to autumn time are recalled and seem not inappropropriate in this connection:

"The pale descending year, yet pleasing still,
A gentler mood inspire; for now the leaf
Incessant rattles from the mournful grove,
Oft starting such as studious walk below,
And slowly circles the waving air,
But should a quicker breeze amid the bough
Sob o'er the sky the leafy deluge streams;
Till choked and matted with a dreurer shower,
The forest walks at every rising gale,
Roll wide the withered waste and whistle bleak.
Fled is the blasted verdure of the fields;
And, shrunk into their beds, the flowery race
Their sunny robes resign. Even what remained
Of stronger fruits falls from the naked trees;
And woods, fields, gardens, orchards, all around
The desolated prospect thrill the soul."

But all seasons are full of beauty and beneficence; but autumn is maturing time and is indispensable in nature's economy. In autumn the schools open and during the three months their best work is accomplished.

From close observation I am taking much interest in the school at Capitan this season. There is no doubt of its being the very best school in the county and one of the best in the state. It is evident that better teachers could not have been selected than compose the faculty of this school.

Prof. Klopp, the Superintendent, is a model school man. He is possessed of more energy and push than any man I have ever known. Why, he has the school interest so much at heart that he is perpetually "on the go." I don't believe he takes time to put on his hat; at least, I always see hurrying from place to place, to and from the school, with bared head, regardless of sun, wind or rain. He is getting results, too. Through his energy and foresight a building suitable for a gymnasium hall has been purchased by the Athletic Association. This hall is used for other purposes—basket ball practice, entertainments, shows, etc., and I understand the money received from these out side things is more than sufficient to meet the payments on the building.

Superintendent Klopp shows fine qualities as a school manager in other respects. He knows how to control students. His methods of government are through kindness rather than through stern or severe treatment; yet, his authority is recognized and he governs with ease, because the students like him and regard him as their friend and associate.

Superintendent Klopp has an able assistant in the person of Prof. Peters, who thoroughly understands the work in his departments, and like Superintendent Klopp, is a tireless worker, and is very popular with the students. His selection was a wise one.

The young ladies who have charge of the different departments in the school are doing splendid work and students under their charge are rapidly advancing in their studies. They all experienced in their lines of work, and are making their credentials good. I will have something say of them individually in another batch of notes.

This school is Capitan's greatest asset; an advertisement that will attract attention far and wide; it is not only an advertisement for Capitan but for Lincoln county. It well deserves the title of "The Lincoln County High School," and deserves the hearty support of every [illegible] in the community.

No write up of this school is complete without liberal mention of its present board of directors, composed of R. A. Hurt, T. C. Key and Francisco Duran. This board planned the necessary improvements to the building and grounds, then proceeded to have their plans accomplished; to this board of directors is due the credit for the selection of the excellent corps of teachers now in charge of the school, and for their hearty cooperation and support of every measure that has tended to bring the school up to a place where it ranks with the best schools in New Mexico.

JUST PART OF DAILY GRIND

Wounds and Death Mere Incidents to American Soldiers When Duty Sounds Its Call.

There were four of them, and their mission was to transport a machine gun to a wooded hilltop commanding the enemy lines. It was not very far to look at. But they had to crawl the entire distance under fire. All night long they crawled, except when they froze into stillness under the light of the star shells. Before they were halfway there, two of them were wounded and had to work their way back to the lines over the same perilous ground, the other two kept on. The danger increased as they approached the top of the hill. Both of them were bleeding from flesh wounds. Both were spent with the exertion of the long nightmare dragging their gun. But their only thought was to do what they had come to do. Just at dawn they rounded the top of the hill. The first thing they saw were two German officers standing with binoculars sweeping the American lines. Quick as thought, without waiting to place their gun, one Yank held it while the other fired. The officers went down, and the enemy guns woke up. The two boys made over with their gun and answered the fire. Before the day had fairly broken, they had "cleaned out" the nest of enemy guns and had their own gun advantageously placed.

SAVE A SOLDIER'S LIFE.

In his telegram to the Democratic convention Senator A. A. Jones said: "I send greetings and ask you to give me your profound sympathy because I can't be with you. Only impelling public duty could force me to be absent from a New Mexico Democratic convention at this time. Our nation is passing through a world cataclysm and civilization is in the throes of a rebirth. We must make no mistakes. The cohorts of the Kaiser would keenly relish any evidence of weakness by America, in support of our President, who is the recognized leader of world thought in this crisis. To console ourselves with the assurance that America is united in its war policies and that party success at this time should not be considered, would in my humble judgment be a colossal blunder. Should our country fail to return a Democratic majority in both the House and the Senate, our enemies would be encouraged to prolong the war and the potency of the President in advancing peace terms would be lessened. This thought surely will be recognized and I confidently expect this convention to name a ticket which will have the confidence and support of the electorate of New Mexico. If our state does its share, I am sure that the nation at the next election will send a message to the Kaiser in no uncertain language that the policies of our President and commander-in-chief shall and will be maintained

"A. A. JONES."

In 1898, when the Republicans were in power during the Spanish war, they demanded that the people elect a Republican Congress and insisted that to vote against the political party in power during a war would be construed by Europe as a repudiation of the President.

Colonel Roosevelt then said: "Remember that whether you will or not, your votes this year will be viewed by the nations of Europe, from one standpoint only. They will draw no fine distinctions. A refusal to sustain the President this year will in their eyes be read as a refusal to sustain the war and to sustain the efforts of our peace commission to secure the fruit of war. Such a refusal may not inconceivably bring about a rupture of the peace negotiations. It will give heart to our defeated antagonist; it will make possible the interference of those doubtful neutral nations who in the struggle have wished us ill."

Mr. President Harrison, during the same campaign, said: "If the word goes forth that the people of the United States are standing solidly behind the President, the task of the peace commissioners will be easy but if there is a break in the ranks—if the Democrats score a telling victory, if Democratic senators, congressmen and governors are elected—Spain will see in it a gleam of hope. She will take fresh hope and a renewal of hostilities, more war may be necessary to secure to us what we have already won."

The Least of These.

It is not the support of a nation buying billions of dollars' worth of Liberty bonds, breaking bottles over the sterns of new ships, knitting socks or cheering us in the movies that brings home to us the magnitude of our trust.

It is all fine, but it is all too big for any one man of us to grasp. But we appreciate how great our trust is when we hear that the folks here had two pounds of sugar in six weeks, that the lady next door let her bread burn in the excitement of reading our last letter, and that the lady next door to her is working in an office and keeping the children in school while her husband is over here.—The Stars and Stripes.

Mr. J. A. Easley, merchant and postmaster at Alto, sent the editor of the Mountaineer three unusally large turnips this week of his raising. The largest, with top cut off, weighed nearly five pounds; the three lacked but a fraction of 13 pounds. Mr. Easley's turnips are of an excellent variety, not only large but of very lovely flavored.
