New Highway Bridge for the Hudson River

Engineer's sketch of the Bear Mountain bridge, arrangements for the financing of which have just been completed by W. A. Harriman & Co. The $6,000,000 structure, which will be the first highway bridge south of Albany, will span the Hudson between Anthony's Nose and Fort Clinton, connecting on the east with the Albany post road a mile north of Peekskill, and on the west with the state highway near Bear Mountain inn. The bridge, of the suspension type, will have a central span of 1,632 feet. The roadway, 150 feet above the river, will accommodate four lines of vehicles.

Uncle Sam Wars on Oil Fakers

Federal Trade Commission Is Trying to Guard Nation's Savings From Sharpers.

Have you ever been nicked by some oil faker? What do you think of the government's efforts to protect the savings of yourself and your neighbor?

Washington.—The federal trade commission is engaged in a war upon the Wallingfords of the world. More than 2,000 investigations of oil schemes have been made and each day adds its quota. The schemers comprise all types and the victims are found all over the country.

Yet, although publicity is the only weapon at the command of the commission, the campaign has been successful in large measure. The commission cannot send any man to jail. It cannot even assess a fine. Its authority rests on the construction of a slender clause in the law giving it the nominal power to prevent unfair competition. It proceeds on the theory that the man selling fraudulent stock is competing unfairly, and when it finds that an oil stock promoter is making fraudulent representations it issues an order against him to "cease and desist" from the practice.

The promoter does not have to obey the order. No penalty attaches if he violates it. But in about ninety-nine cases of every hundred he stops his operations. In a majority of cases the proceeding never gets to the stage of issuing an order. Mere publication of notice that an investigation will be made usually is sufficient to drive a fraudulent operator out of business. He may get in again later under another name or move to greater fields, but the particular fraud that he has been perpetrating comes to an end. The final order, denouncing an individual or company as a fraud, disposes of a class inclined to resist, with the exception of a few old and hardened offenders.

A Fragile Sword.

It is a fragile sword with which the federal government has gone into battle. Nobody knows better than the commission that it ought to have a stronger weapon, but it uses what it has. "And," said one of the members, "it is an illustration of the queer fact that the weakest things in the world are sometimes the strongest. Who knows that we could do better, or even as well, with a more rigid law?"

Of the 2,000 investigations those which went to the final stage of orders to "cease and desist" make only a comfortable handful of manuscript. Every proceeding begins with a complaint from some one who thinks he has been defrauded. The commission makes an investigation. An inspector may be sent to the scene of operations. Four of them give full time to this work, and others are switched to it upon occasion. If the commission has reason to believe that an unfair method of competition has been used, it issues a complaint which is immediately made public.

Most of the proceedings end there. It is not always possible, however, to confront the swindler with even the suspicion of his guilt. The deal has been done and the doer very likely has passed on to fresher pastures. He usually is the sort of man who can change his name upon occasion without doing violence to his conscience. He may bob up again in a distant field, to be routed once more by another complaint.

For those who have the courage to face the matter out, there is a public hearing. The man cited has 40 days in which to answer the complaint. If he does answer, the case goes to trial. Witnesses are examined under oath and the proceeding generally resembles a trial in court. If, at the end of it, the commission is still of its original belief, the order to "cease and desist" is issued.

The defendant may take an appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals of the United States. If that court confirms the decision it becomes final. Most of them never appeal.

Try Numerous Schemes.

The kinds of fraud practiced are as numerous as the individuals engaged, and these are scattered from the newest oil field at Smackover, Ark., back through all the fields of Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma and wherever else the oil craze has gone. Most of them are promoters from New York, Chicago and other large cities. They have some competition from the natives of the small towns in which they operate. Now and then one of these novices develops a more alluring line than the veteran fakers. Then there is war. A stockholders' protective league or something of the kind is organized, not for the protection of the stockholders at all, but to cut the throat of the rival promoter.

Every human emotion is played upon by the promoters, all the way from superstition to reverence. One of the recently investigated concerns was putting out its advertising over the signature of a man who bears one of the most honored names in America. He was represented as being in complete charge of its affairs. When the inspector of the commission interviewed him he found an old man, far gone in dotage and poverty. "These are mighty gold men," he told the inspector. "They know that an old man's misfortunes are not always of his own making, and so they pay me $30 a month just for coming down every day and signing my name to a few papers."

Numerous as the fraudulent schemes are, the commission believes that most of them depend for their success on the operation of the Texas common law trust. In many advertisements the officer appears as "John Smith, Trustee," rarely "William Brown, President." Under this system the trustee is monarch of his company. He makes the by-laws. And stockholders do not vote.

Three persons—in the case of the fraudulent concerns, usually a man and his wife and one other person—go to the office of the county clerk and file a "declaration of trust." That constitutes the "underlying document" for all subsequent transactions. The shareholder may think he has all the stipulations printed on his certificate, but when the test comes he finds that he must go to "the underlying document" and this probably is in Corsicana county, Texas, while the shareholder is in Maine or Oregon.

Trustee Is Whole Works.

After the declaration of trust is filed almost anything appears to be possible. "The trustee," said a member of the commission, "may issue $1,000,000 of stock, put $1 in the treasury and the rest in his pocket. He may sell to his new company the assets, including the 'sucker list,' of any defunct company he may have been connected with. He may transfer funds from one company to another. He may pay for practically all of the stock with an acre of land 100 miles from an oil field. It is his stock and, when he sells it, the money is his. He never expects to strike oil but if, by some luck chance, he does strike it, he usually can keep the oil.

"In this fraudulent kind of company the trustee makes sure that he is taken care of out of the sale of the stock, and is not dependent at all upon the finding of oil. He usually holds some leases somewhere. He values them high and turns them into the company for stock. He sells the stock and gets the money. He may donate a little to the company for the sake of appearances as long as the 'suckers' are at the nibbling stage. When they swallow the hook, the company for which he is trustee is taken off his list of charities.

About the first thing that a fraud-fostering trustee seeks to acquire is a list of prospects. Practically every man and every woman in the United States who has shown a disposition to follow the lure of seductive advertisements is on one or more "sucker lists." A particular company or a particular promoter frequently buys names from other companies and other promoters. It also happens, when a company goes out of business, that its only salable asset is this list.

In the oil fields there are a number of newspapers devoted to the oil interests. A lot of honest oil men advertise in them, but so do a lot of the other kind. They are filled with streamers such as these, only the names are different:

"April 12th Dividend Day—Lucky Lankford Pays Off Again."

"Two More Shark Gushers Crush—Four Giant Wells in Ten Days."

"The Viking Flood of Gusher Gold Has Turned to a Tidal Wave and Those Who Share It Must Act Now."

"Again I Pay—My Next Pay Off May Be 1,000 Per Cent."

"Midway Between the Two Mightiest Gushers on Earth." (But it does not say how far "between.")

"Another Screaming, Howling, Roaring, Liquid Mass of Golden Fortunes for All Who Join Now."

"Walker Won't Wait—Two Set a Time Limit for Gushers."

"One Hundred Per Cent Cash In My First Dividend Announcement and You Can Get It If You Act at Once."

How the Plan Works.

There, in that last line, is the hypnotic. Most oil men, even the honest ones, act on a hurry-up schedule. The honest ones, however, usually are in no great hurry about dividends and the fraudulent ones are. The schemes for making an appearance of paying dividends are as numerous as those for getting names on the list. Frequently dividends are paid to a few stockholders only, those who live in the neighborhood where a stock salesman is operating. Sometimes, when a dividend appears absolutely necessary, part of the money received from stock sales is diverted to the dividend fund and paid out where it will do the most good.

The man who sees the jubilant advertisements and hears that his neighbor has received a fat dividend also is helped in various other ways to make up his mind. Probably he receives a letter from some apparently disinterested person—who, however, has been seen by the promoter—advising him to buy stock. He even may be led to believe that the government has underwritten the stock.

Probably he receives the report of a "famous geologist," containing assurance that oil will be struck in great quantities. One of these geologists, the commission found, has spent all of his active life behind a barber's chair.

On the other hand, everything that is said for a property may be absolutely true, and yet the company representing itself as the owner may own no more than a 1 per cent interest. If oil is struck in paying quantities somebody else gets 99 per cent of the proceeds and the numerous stockholders have a 1 per cent dividend among them. Usually it is not worth dividing.—New York Times.

Killed While Eating Apple to Beat Doctor

Cincinnati.—A small piece of an apple skin lodged in the throat of William Koehler, fifty-seven years old, and caused his death.

Koehler believed in the adage that "an apple a day keeps the doctor away," and was eating his daily apple when he choked to death.

Earth's Magnetism Is Dwindling, Says Savant

Philadelphia.—The earth's magnetism is diminishing each year by one-thousandth part of itself, Dr. Louis A. Bauer, a director of Carnegie Institute, Washington, told the American Philosophical society here. Dr. Bauer said he was satisfied with the accuracy of this conclusion which he had reached after several months' analysis of the earth's magnetic field.

Dr. Bauer said his recent analysis tended to confirm the theory that the magnetic axis of the earth was slowly swinging west and toward the equator.

The planting of new potatoes and the seeding of spring grains is also reported as progressing favorably, with moisture conditions good.

The State Department received official word that a bomb had exploded in the building at Mexico City, occupied by the American consulate general. The message, which came from Consul General Dawson, said there had been no "noticeable" damage to his own quarters, although a room on the lower floor of the building, occupied by a Mexican lawyer, had been wrecked.

Partial reorganization of the mixed claims commission, constituted to adjudicate war claims totaling $1,470,000,000 of the United States government and American citizens against Germany, was caused by the retirement of former Justice Day of the Supreme Court as umpire of the commission. Hilburn-Hurt.

Mr. Charles Hilburn, Jr., and Miss Katie Hurt were married at 7 o'clock last Tuesday evening in Carrizozo, 'Squire E. W. Hulbert officiating.

The bride is the eldest daughter of the late Robert A. Hurt and Mrs. Hurt and is an accomplished and splendid young woman.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Hilburn and is a well liked young man.

The Mountaineer wishes them all the happiness possible.

The Mountaineer publisher has recently had a well put down on his place north of Capitan. Water was reached at a depth of twenty-one feet in a sufficient quanty to supply all that will be needed.

Geo. C. Clements, of Corona, was here a day or two this week. He came down to move his son-in-law, Reuben Boone, up to the Mountainair country. Reuben has been made a forest ranger and assigned to a district near Mountainair. Robert Boone has also been appointed a forest ranger and sent to the Cloudcroft country.

Messrs. R. B. Ewing and W. C. White, the two forest rangers located near Capitan called at the Mountaineer office Wednesday. It would be hard to find two nicer gentlemen than Messrs. Ewing and White and those having business with the forest service can congratulate themselves for having two such officials to deal with.

Frank Phillips, who has been in Arizona for the past five months, returned a few days ago. He spent most of the time while there working in the mines. He and his brother Gilbert are thinking of going to Kansas harvest fields.

S. E. Hardcastle, living in Baca Canyon, was a visitor to Capitan Wednesday and paid this office a call.

High School Report.

It was never officially announced that Miss Marie Serna received the high school diploma from this school after completing 17 units of standard work. Miss had several conditions to remove at the close of school and was unable to enter the graduating class of 1922. She removed the conditions by examination and received the diploma. She was the first Spanish American girl to graduate from the Lincoln County High School and she graduated with credit to herself and her community because she was a faithful scholar and her rank in school was of the highest type. As an athlete she had no equal in the State, and she was ever loyal to her friends and classmates and an ideal athletic sport.

Again the Lincoln County School is retained on the accredited list of the North Central Association without morning or even suggestion. Her standards are higher than they have ever from in the history of the county and she is leading the rest to a plane where other schools may do well to follow. This is is no boast but a fact. No one individual can claim the credit but the entire community with its untiring cooperative spirit; its earnest and honest supporters; its high ideals; all these were aids to the administratration in bringing the school to the high standard which she now holds with pride. No opposition to these high ideals can ever prevail against her. It is very encouraging that there is a growing spirit in the community for better schools, a cleaner community, and a greater cooperation. The selfish deamon must go for the real agent of humanity is taking possession of the younger generation.

Lincoln County High School never had a stronger faculty; one more loyal to the interests of the school; never have they stood for cleaner sports, higher ideals and exemplified nobler aspirations. The frequent whirlwinds of protests emanating from the souls of those unaccountable for their aspirations because of ignorance of the true conditions of the schools, and because of their failure to see the vision through their distorted minds, were quickly subdued to shame and extinction by the multitude of earnest men and women who know the facts and were standing ready to defend a righteous cause. Every human conquest must meet its obstacles and it takes men of courage and true convictions to lead the mighty army of true progressive citizens through the gates of a glorious victory.

Every department functioned with great credit to the institution. All teachers were well qualified to carry out the work prescribed for each department. The Vocational Agriculture, though somewhat hampered by a change in the teaching force during the course, made an excellent report to the State Department of the years work. The shop work was of a general repair nature with the exception of the cabinet equipment and various other pieces of furniture made for the Home Economics Department.

The Home Economics Department carried out the prescribed program of the new syllabus and held two exhibits which were pronounced as the finest exhibits ever given here. It is to be regretted that Miss Wyatt could not be induced to remain but she was called to a larger field. Miss Myers of the Commercial Department has been receiving attractive offers from business institutions and it is feared she might leave the teaching field. Two teachers of the old staff will remain and the others have all been called to larger fields all of which adds to the credit of the school. It is also gratifying to report that at the meeting of the auditors of the budget, the Lincoln County High School for the second year had a balance in every item of the last year's budget.

The reimbursement for Agriculture and Home Economics, together with the savings in the purchase of fuel and other supplies showed a total saving for the year of nearly $1200 from the amount allowed for the current year. The records show that the Lincoln County High School has operated at a very low per capita enrollment and it is the desire of the new administration to keep within the budget so far as is possible and yet not sacrifice too greatly so as to lower the efficiency of the staff in the several departments.

The initial enrollment of the high at the beginning of the year was 72 and the average daily attendance for the year was 65. Many of the boys were compelled to drop out during the second semester on account of their inability to finance the course, but are determined to return next year to complete the course. The new faculty is about selected and the selections have been made from a large number of applicants from first class colleges and univerities. The new staff promises to be the finest type of manhood and womanhood in the state and every family is urged to send their children to register on the first day of school and encourage regular attendance throughout the year for the new code bases the the number of teachers allowed for the school upon the average attendance and not upon the initial enrollment. This school must maintain an average attendance of at least fifty one to maintain five academic teachers.

I want take to this opportunity to thank the faculty for their loyalty to me in my feeble attempt to make the school what I feel it deserved, for I realized fully the great sacrifice made by them in coming to a small village school to assist me in this work. Their untiring efforts in behalf of the boys and girls and the community have given expression in a higher standard of scholarship, a desire on the part of the pupils to continue along educational lines, an incentive on the part of many of the citizens of the community to support this school, and an apparent higher standard of morals and community pride. I want to express my high appreciation of the support given me by the local board and the county board of education. It is indeed a pleasure to work in an atmosphere of harmony with the authorities for then the destructive critics can never create unsurmountable obstactacle. Last, but not least, I desire to thank the entire community for their kindly interest in behalf of the school, for their tolerance of my infirmities and their faithful cooperation in the affairs of the school. This is the only institution worth while in the community which contributes to the welfare of all the classes and stimulates the members thereof to become more worthy citizens. An education is all you can hope to give to your children. You owe that to every child; every one owes that to posterity. Therefore, it behooves every individual to participate in the educational program of their respective community. You can not evade that obligation; if you do you are not a respectable citizen.

In closing permit me to express a sincere wish that the Lincoln County High School will continue to prosper so that its influence will radiate into every community and cause the light of intelligence to shine in every school home. May every force of indifference and selfishness be blotted from the face of the earth until every human soul shall vibrate in perfect unison and all discords lost in a universal strain of perfect harmony.

Forest Notes.

Capitan people should become interested in the recreational possibilities of the Bonito country. There are several desirable locations for campers in that country.

New fire guard cabins are to be built at Tucson and White Mountain this year. The old on White Mountain will be left open for the use of campers who desire to visit that country.

Residents of Encinoso cooperated with the Forest Service in putting the Capitan Encinoso telephone line in working order.

Telephone lines on the White Mountain district have been repaired and fire guards are now on White Mountain Peak and Tucson.

Seymour S. Thurmond and Alejandro Trujillo were each fined $25 and costs by Justice Peacock, of Nogal, for violation of the State Fire Law. Rangers White and Ewing represented the Forest service in the cases.

The trail from Seven Cabins to Capitan Pass is nearing completion. Besides being of importance for administration purposes, this trail will probably be used extensively by local residents.

In Memory.

Mrs. Ophelia Yates was born in East county, Texas, being the eldest child of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Trimble. The parents moved to Fisher county, Texas, soon afterwards. There Mrs. Yates spent her childhood. She was converted at the age of 14 years. She was kind, good and made many friends. She was afterwards united in marriage to Mr. J. W. Yates. To this union was born nine children, eight of whom are living. They moved to Lincoln, New Mexico, later to Capitan. There Mrs. Yates consecrated herself to the Lord, and received a pure heart, perfect love and a sanctified life. She passed away May 15, 1923, at the age of 38 years.

She took measles, had leakage of the heart, and while sick a baby boy came to their home lived about 30 minutes, and was buried in the Capitan cemetary, where the mother's body was laid beside it to await the resurrection morn. Mrs. Yates lived a faithful consecrated life, always trying to do good, loved and helped her husband, children and all others she could. Ever keeping her eyes on Jesus who hath redeemed her by his own blood, realizing that the Book of books says by Him were all things created and for Him, so He wanted us to live for Him, to be like Him on this earth then take us to heaven to be with him forever. She said "She was willing to go," closed her, fell asleep with a beautiful reassuring smile on her face.

Loved ones and kind friends ministered to her during her illness and putting her away. Brought many useful things, and the floral offerings almost covered the casket lid.

She leaves a husband, eight children, mother, four sisters, a brother, of whom were present at the funeral, and a host of friends. Would say to them, weep not as those who have no hope. For if we give our hearts to the Lord, love and trust him, we can meet her in a world where there is sickness, sorrow nor death. Let us look for the coming of the Lord, who shall descend from heaven with a shout, the dead in Christ shall rise first; then we whose hearts are right with God, which are alive and shall be caught up together with them in the cloud to meet ent Lord in the air, so shall we ever be with the Lord.

Forest Exhaustion Brings High Prices

Denver, Colo.—Lumber production in the United States has been steadily decreasing for 13 years and this in the face of a need unparalleled in the history of the country. According to a bulletin just published by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, of 37 eastern and southern lumber producing states, 36 showed a decreased cut and only one a slight increase in 1920, while Pacific Slope States all report substantial increases, showing that the center of production is shifting to the Western States, the last of our softwood reserves. Thirty years ago after the depletion of New York and Pennsylvania white pine sections, the American lumber market was drawing its supply from the Great Lakes States. When the source in those sections became exhausted and the forests no longer able to supply the demand or furnish enough to keep the mills in operation, the industry moved to the Southern Yellow Pine region, and is rapidly duplicating the same procedure there. The inevitable result follows that within the near future we shall be wholly dependent upon this reserve of all-purpose softwoods, the Pacific Slope. Not only is this the only remaining domestic source of softwoods, but a recent survey of the world's supply of this commodity discloses the fact that there are no foreign forests of this character that we may draw upon when our own are exhausted.

Counterfeiting Gang Broken Up

San Francisco.—Through the arrest of Benjamin K. Rolph, federal authorities declared that the nation-wide counterfeiting conspiracy has been broken up. They charge that Rolph, the "master mind" of the organization, taught counterfeiting to dope addicts and depended upon them to dispose of the spurious product of his ring. He was seized after a battle by secret service operatives and police. Edward Roberts and Mrs. Jennie Hastings were arrested in his company.

Army Horse Test at Colorado Springs

Washington.—An army horse endurance test of recognized breeds will be conducted in Colorado, to last five days, starting July 20. The start will be made at Broadmoor, Colorado Springs, and for five consecutive days the competing horses will cover sixty miles a day. This test is conceded by army officials to be more severe than a similar one which will be conducted at Avon, N. Y., at the same time, due to the fact that on some days between 1,500 and 2,000 feet altitude will be gained and on other days 1,000 feet will be lost.

Children Die from Starvation

San Bernardino, Calif.—Two deaths from starvation in the same family, within forty-eight hours were revealed when Amelia Guzman, 10 months old, died at the home of her parents at Ontario, near here, from improper feeding, according to the death certificate signed by the coroner. Two days ago Herman Guzman, 7 months old, died. "Both children had actually died from improper feeding," declared the coroner.

Former Treasurer's Record Upheld

New York.—John Burke, former governor of North Dakota and former treasurer of the United States, was absolved from all responsibility for the failure of the stock brokerage firm of Hardee and Burke, of which he was a partner, in a statement issued by David W. Kahn, counsel for the trustee in bankruptcy of the company. The statement added that the trustee would not proceed further with Burke's connection with the financial affairs of the firm.

Coal Production in Colorado Increased

Denver.—Total production of coal for the first four months of 1923 in Colorado was 2,657,153 tons, an increase of 884,518 tons over a similar period last year, according to the April report of State Coal Mining Inspector James Dalrymple. An increased production is noted in fifteen of the twenty coal mining counties of the state and a decrease is shown in five, according to the report. The largest increase is that of Routt county in Las Animas county.

WALTERS IS READY TO BUCK THE LINE

Declares Tanlac Ended Indigestion and Put Him in Pink of Condition.

"I would stake my last throw on Tanlac, for it can't be beat," says Floyd E. Walters, 1008 E. 18th St., Kansas City, Mo.

"My appetite was such a slacker I could hardly eat enough to keep going, and all the disagreeableness of indigestion, bloating, heartburn and palpitation fell to my lot. I would tremble from nervousness, sleep was almost a stranger to me, and my head and back ached so bad I could hardly stand it. I was as pale as a sheet, and that 'all in' feeling was nearly throttling me.

"But today I am in the pink of condition, feeling as hale and hearty as when I used to play football back in Leavenworth, Kansas, and the Tanlac treatment is what turned the trick for me. Yes, sir, I feel as fine as a fiddle, and am greatly indebted to Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.—Advertisement.

Prospects of Yale's traditional bulldog appearing on the campus in bronze disappeared with the announcement by the Yale Daily News that 23 of 25 class secretaries canvassed were opposed to the prospect. Caustic comment on the esthetic effect of placing the bulldog's statue on the campus with that of Nathan Hale and other famous Yale men accompanied most of the letters. It had been proposed that alumni raise $8,000 for a statue of the bulldog.

I suffered in this way about three years; then a lady friend suggested that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have had better health since, keep house and am able to do my work. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends as it has certainly given me great relief."—Mrs. C. B. Robinson, 608 N. Lincoln St., Amarillo, Tex.

The Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine for women. It relieves the troubles which cause such symptoms as backache, painful times, irregularity, tired and worn-out feelings and nervousness. This is shown again and again by such letters as Mrs. Robinson writes as well as by one woman telling another. These women know what it did for them. It is surely worth your trial.

Housewives make a great mistake in allowing themselves to become so ill that it is well-nigh impossible for them to attend to their necessary household duties.

Simple Explanation.

The senator was somewhat peeved, yet the matter was one of no great consequence, as his friend pointed out. It seems that a constituent from the back districts had written the statesman a letter in which said writer alluded to said statesman as a "lawn-mower."

The senator averred that if a joke was intended it was a poor one. But his friend maintained that no joke was intended.

"Your constituent probably wants some free seed; that's all."

The Real Thing.

Customer—You say this hair tonic is good, do you?

Clerk—Yes, sir. A friend of mine took the cork out of a bottle of this stuff with his teeth and next morning he had a mustache.—Boston Transcript.

King George Has Difficult Task

London.—No move has yet been made in the direction of filling the vacant premiership and the name of Mr. Bonar Law's successor still is a matter of speculation. As parliament is not sitting, there is no immediate hurry to fill the vacancy and the king is in communication through intermediaries with those statesmen he desires to consult before he returns to London for personal consultations. There is no outstanding figure to whom all can point as the inevitable successor.

Poetry Must Be Marxian.

The persecution of opinion in Russia is more severe than in any capitalistic country. I met in Petrograd an eminent Russian poet, Alexander Block, who has since died as the result of privations. The Bolsheviki allowed him to teach aesthetics, but he complained that they insisted on his teaching the subject "from a Marxian point of view." He had been at a loss to discover how the theory of rhythmics was connected with Marxism, although, to avoid starvation, he had done his best to find out. Of course, it has been impossible in Russia ever since the Bolsheviki came into power to print anything critical of the dogmas upon which their regime is founded.—Bertrand Russell in "Free Thought and Official Propaganda."

A young soldier from the backwoods section had been invited to a military dance and was frankly horrified at the up-to-date ways of the young women. His partner, after spending half of the dance in agony over his awkwardness, suggested that they sit out the other half of the dance, and led him to the veranda. There she drew out a gold cigarette case and remarked: "Of course, you don't mind girls smoking?"

The young soldier was determined to be just as modern as she.

"BUNGALOW" IS EAST INDIAN

Word in Common Use Now Had Its Origin in That Country Many Centuries Ago.

The East Indian dialects, which are responsible for such words as "amuck," "assassin," "pajama," and a number of others, are also responsible for the introduction of the word "bungalow" into English, though like its half-brothers, this word has been slightly maltreated in its adaptation. In Elliot's "History of India as Told by Its Own Historians," appears the following quotation under the date of 1633:

"Under the rule of the Bengalis, a party of Frank merchants, inhabitants of Sundip, came trading into Satgaw. One kos above that, they occupied some ground on the banks of an estuary. Under the pretext that a building was necessary for their transactions in buying and selling, they erected several houses in the Bengali style."

Apparently, this quotation gives little clew to the origin of the word "bungalow," but, 40 years later, one finds in Streynsham's Master's Diary: "It was thought fit to set up bengales or small houses for all such English in the company's service as belong to their sloops and vessels."
