MEXICAN INDEPENDENCE.

Mexicans from our sister republic and descendants of Mexicans celebrated the ninety-eighth anniversary of Mexican Independence in Carrizozo Wednesday. In the early hours of the morning the people of the town were awakened by the discharge of guns, the firing of anvils, the playing of the band, the march to the rub-a-dub-dub of the drum and the shouts of the populace. The cause for the commotion was at first an enigma to Americans, but finally Memory got busy and the 16th of September was recalled as the anniversary of Mexican Independence, and then no one wondered at the din and noise; for it reminded Americans of their own natal day, which is celebrated in all climes and under every flag.

CAPITAN, N. M.

The event, just commemorated, had its beginning at the little village of Dolores, where, September 16, 1810, Miguel Hidalgo, a curate, proclaimed a revolt, raised an army, marched towards Mexico, and with his raw troops, defeated Truxillo October 30, 1810; was later defeated by the Spaniards under Calleja, fell back to Guadalajara and recruited his army to 100,000. He was routed by Calleja at the bridge of Calderon January 17, 1811. Hidalgo fled towards the United States, but was captured and shot. The seed sown by this obscure curate, however, bore fruit; the war for freedom continued, and the last Spanish viceroy was driven from Mexico in 1821. September 16th is to the Mexicans what the 4th of July is to Americans; hence the celebration Wednesday.

KILLED A BEAR AND A LION.

Roy Jacobs met with his usual success in the Capitan mountains one day last week. He took his dogs out for a run, and succeeded in running a big bear up a tree, and finally despatched him in the latest approved style. Later, Roy made another raid, in company James Goodall, and, of course, his ever-faithful dogs, and rounded up a mountain lion that, our informant tells us, was a most vicious fighter, and it was quite an entertaining affair until the combatants reached Jim's neighborhood, and Jim, while attempting to make his get-away, slipped and rooled down a rock-slide. If skin is valuable, Jim feels that he is considerable loser as a result of the hunt; for he was skinned from hat to boot heel. The lion was a monster, measuring nine feet from tip to tip.

ALTITUDE AND CLIMATE.

A stranger put in an appearance at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Baird Tuesday morning, via the stork route. P. C. says that, notwithstanding, he has become suspicious of strangers and that he has not entertained one at his home for many years, the helpless condition of this little girl causes him to revise his preconceived ideas, and will see that the little one wants for nothing while under his roof. This altitude and climate have a wonderful effect on the human family, and Ponce de Leon's fabled fountain is doubtless somewhere near this place.

BRANCH LINE CHANGES TIME.

The trains on the Capitan line that have in the past left here at 8:30 a. m., Mondays and Thursdays of each week, will in future leave here, on the same days, at 7:00 a. m. This will give passengers returning on the branch line, or coming from the other side, an opportunity to catch No. 3 on the main line, which passes here going west at 1 p. m. This change will make travel over the branch line much more convenient and comfortable.

SCHOOL NOTICE.

The Carrizozo public schools will begin south of the railroad track October 5th, but, owing to the delay on the new building, schools on the north side will not commence till Monday, Oct. 12.

City Planning in America.

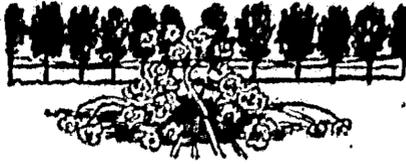

We are prone to speak of city planning as if it were something new, and in a way something particularly American. It is true it has reached a wider vogue in a shorter time in this country than in any other, but as far back as 1666 Sir Christopher Wren prepared a plan for the city of London after the great fire. It was never carried out, although some of his recommendations are now being executed under the progressive policy of the modern county council. In our own country, L'Enfant, over a century ago, prepared a plan not only for our capital city, but also for Buffalo, both of which have been adhered to in the main points. Detroit followed L'Enfant's ideas, although he did not prepare the plans. These cities represent deliberate, comprehensive planning from the beginning. Like Dainy in far-away Siberia, they were developed along previously determined lines; but such instances are possible only in new countries, and are exceptional even there. The Chicago, Cleveland, New York and San Francisco plans represent an entirely different phase of deliberate and comprehensive planning. They are more like the king-made cities of St. Petersburg and Madrid, or the more recent emperor-made Paris. They grew up along lines of least resistance, writes Clinton R. Woodruff in the Atlantic, and in obedience to immediate needs with practically little thought of the future and none of the aesthetic side. Then came a period of awakening to civic consciousness and pride, leading to a dissatisfaction with existing conditions, and then an earnest desire for improvement.

The Child's Right.

Play is the child's right. Without it he will not get his physical growth or even his due share of mental sprightliness. Play develops every muscle, teaches many lessons not otherwise taught. How can a city prosper without planning for play? The child was almost forgotten when New York was built. He is ruled out of many apartment houses. For him the street is full of dangers. Ice wagons, trolley cars, savage dogs at large, more insidious dangers that lurk in the shadows, all are against him. He plays because it is the law of his being, but at what a risk! No use of money can bring a larger civic return than the fitting up of vacant lots as playgrounds and providing them with competent supervision, declares the New York World. Owners of lots will generally be glad to co-operate with the association. Money is needed, not usually for rent, but for maintenance, apparatus and supervision. Let anyone who doubts that such playgrounds will be useful take a look any fair afternoon at the dusty paradise of children in Seward park. Chicago is far ahead of New York in providing playgrounds for children. London has lessons for us. The sleepiest old village in the land is infinitely better supplied with the most important, next to food and clothing and shelter, of children's needs. It is time for New York to do justice to the child.

The Flemish population of Belgium is very careful to preserve its language and racial identity. Its representatives in the bilingual parliament of that country seem indeed to be almost exorbitant in their claims for their native tongue.

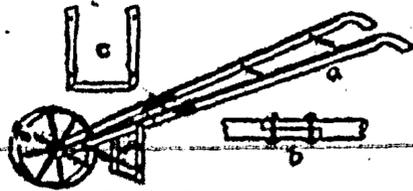

HORTICULTURE

HOME-MADE HAND CULTIVATOR.

How One Farmer Made the Garden Work an Easy Task.

I made a hand cultivator which does good work in the garden, writes a correspondent of the Farm and Home. Old plow handles, a, may be used, but they will need splicing, as shown at b, to five feet long. The hoe, or scraper, is shown at c. This should be made of a piece of tempered steel and brought to a sharp edge. I used a plow wheel, but one can be made of two-inch boards fastened together, then cut on a circle, and a piece of band iron put on for a tire.

PLANT THE RIGHT TREE.

Write and Get Information from the Agricultural Department.

In every region of the United States there is at least one forest tree, and generally there are several forest trees which can be planted with a complete assurance of commercial success if the plantation is properly established and given proper care. The government has made a very careful study of most of the forest plantations in the United States. Its publications on tree planting may be had free of charge upon application to the forest service, United States department of agriculture, Washington. The studies on which they were based were made especially for the benefit of farmers and other land owners, and to prevent the waste of thousands of dollars annually lost by planting the wrong trees or by improper care of plantations.

From the manner in which our natural timber has been cut it is clear that each region will have to be made as nearly self-supporting in timber growth as possible. The lesson of the past is that the right forest trees grown in the right way will bring a big profit.

TRAINING TOMATOES.

Method by Which the Fruit Can Be Kept from Rotting.

The best method I ever tried is to train them to a stake. This is a safeguard against rot, as it keeps the fruit off the ground. I cut stakes from saplings 2 1/2 inches in diameter and five to six feet long, choosing those with small branches all the way up. The branches are left about four inches long.

Stake the plants as you have time after they are set out. When they are one foot tall tie them to the stakes with good, strong twine, and with some assistance later on they will find support and cling to the branches. Occasionally, continues the writer in Farm and Home, some will not take hold, and you will have to tie them higher on the stake.

This plan could not be followed in field cultivation, but in a small family garden it works like a charm. They should be given continuous cultivation all through the season if you want plenty of fruit.

The summer time is one of the difficult periods for the dairy farmer, because of the rapidity with which germs develop at high temperatures.

PLUM GOUGER.

Why the Fruit Falls to the Ground When Half Grown.

Every season in this western country large numbers of plums are lost by the fruit falling to the ground in the half-grown state. An examination of this fruit will show that it is infested with white grubs, which eat into the kernel and cause it to drop. The work is very similar to the plum curculio, which is such a serious pest in the eastern states.

This insect, however, is a native western form and finds its way into our plum orchards from the patches of wild plums which grow along almost every creek.

It is a very difficult insect to combat, because the work is done inside the fruit, and poisons cannot be applied for the larval forms of the insect. The adult insect can sometimes be killed by spraying the plum trees with arsenate of lead or other poisons of a similar nature in the same way that apple trees are sprayed. The adult beetles eat the young leaves or cut off the stems of the young fruit, and poisons placed in these localities are likely to prove helpful remedies. The adult beetles may be caught by jarring the trees. The insect "plays possum" when a limb is jarred and drops to the ground. If the ground is covered with sheets, the insects may be gathered in them and destroyed. This is best done early in the day and should be continued from the time the plum trees are in blossom until the first of June.

The insects are reddish brown snout beetles about a quarter of an inch in length. They are quite easily recognized, and if present, some will be found usually each morning. A few jarrings of the tree will indicate whether or not the insects are numerous and whether this remedy should be continued. Probably this remedy is the most useful one in the home orchard or garden.

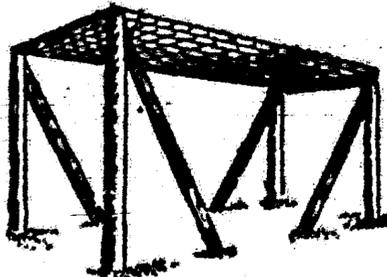

It is a good plan to permit chickens to run around about the trees, since they often pick up the weevils or the larvae that have come to the ground.

During the summer all plums which fall from the trees and even those which show the marks while they are still on the trees should be taken and destroyed. By destroying we mean burning or some other method which will make sure that the insect inside the plum is killed.—S. Arthur Johnson, Associate Professor of Entomology, Colorado Agricultural College.

To make a neat grape arbor set four posts and brace them as shown, then stretch woven wire over the top. This top works better than wood, declares the Prairie Farmer.

GARDEN AND ORCHARD.

The grape vine that is permitted to develop too much vine and leaf will bear little fruit.

The weeds by the roadside should be kept mowed, both for the appearance of the farm and to keep the seeds of the weeds from blowing onto the plowed land.

Cabbage worms are easily controlled if taken in hand promptly. Mix one ounce fresh Peruvian insect powder with four gallons water and spray or sprinkle the plants.

ALL RUN DOWN.

Miss Della Stroebe, who had Completely Lost Her Health, Found Relief from Peruna at Once.

Read What She Says!

MISS DELLA STROEBE, 710 Richmond St., Appleton, Wis., writes: "For several years I was in a run-down condition, and I could find no relief from doctors and medicines. I could not enjoy my meals, and could not sleep at night. I had heavy, dark circles about the eyes.

"My friends were much alarmed. I was advised to give Peruna a trial, and to my joy I began to improve with the first bottle. After taking six bottles I felt completely cured. I cannot say too much for Peruna as a medicine for women in a run-down condition."

Peruna Did Wonders.

Mrs. Judge J. E. Boyer, 1221 Sherman Ave., Evanston, Ill., says that she became run down, could neither eat nor sleep well, and lost flesh and spirit. Peruna did wonders for her, and she thanks Peruna for new life and strength.

Sam's Idea.

During one of the big political conventions a train load of delegates were stalled at a water tank. As the day was sultry the windows were raised and the delegates leaned out. Every head that appeared was bald.

"Boss," said an old colored man who was selling sandwiches, "what train do you call dat dar?"

"Why, Sam, that is the 'cannon-ball express,'" responded the conductor.

The old man watched the bald heads protruding from the windows for a long while and then said, seriously:

"Cannon-ball express? Lands, boss, looks to me more like de billiard-ball express."

IT SEEMED INCURABLE

Body Raw with Eczema—Discharged from Hospitals as Hopeless—Cuticura Remedies Cured Him.

"From the age of three months until fifteen years old, my son Owen's life was made intolerable by eczema in its worst form. In spite of treatments the disease gradually spread until nearly every part of his body was quite raw. He used to tear himself dreadfully in his sleep and the agony he went through is quite beyond words. The regimental doctor pronounced the case hopeless. We had him in hospitals four times and he was pronounced one of the worst cases ever admitted. From each he was discharged as incurable. We kept trying remedy after remedy, but had gotten almost past hoping for a cure. Six months ago we purchased a set of Cuticura Remedies. The result was truly marvelous and to-day he is perfectly cured. Mrs. Lily Hedge, Camblewell Green, England, Jan. 12, 1907."

PROMINENT PEOPLE

PROHIBITION CANDIDATE

Eugene W. Chafin, who has just been nominated by the Prohibitionists for president of the United States, is an attorney of Chicago. He was not a candidate for the nomination at the Columbus convention, for he had already been named by the Prohibitionists of Illinois as their candidate for governor. Under the circumstances, he will have to resign the latter nomination and let another be named in his place.

Before going to Chicago seven years ago he was a resident of Wisconsin, and was counted one of the leaders of the "dry" party in that state. In two different campaigns he was the candidate for attorney general in the Beaver state, and in 1898 he headed the state ticket there.

The candidate is not tied to the Prohibition party in his zeal for the elimination of the liquor evil. He has been aligned with practically every movement that has for its object the wiping out of the saloon. He was the state president of the Wisconsin Epworth League for two years, and for four terms was grand chief templar of the Order of Good Templars, an organization which was quite strong throughout the country a score of years ago and still wields considerable influence in some quarters.

He is 56 years old and worked on a farm to pay his way through college while studying law. For 25 years he practiced his profession, when he was not working for temperance, in Waukesha, Wis. He is a ready speaker, and an orator of some ability. In fact, it was a speech that he made in the Columbus convention which carried that impressionable body off its feet and resulted in his nomination over men who had been avowed candidates for months and who had made a campaign to land the place.

WILL GATHER THE COIN

George R. Sheldon, newly named treasurer of the Republican national committee, is very little known to the public generally, although in New York his is a name to conjure with, particularly in business and financial affairs. There was a time when he was a candidate for the Republican nomination for lieutenant-governor of the Empire state, on the ticket with former Governor and former Boss B. B. Odell. When it came time for the convention at Saratoga, however, and it looked as though Sheldon had delegates enough on his list to make him a factor in the convention, Odell balked.

"Not with his trust connections," declared the boss. "He'll swamp the ticket."

So the nomination went elsewhere. Sheldon never kicked, but went back to his world of business.

What Sheldon does not know about trusts and great corporations it would be little use for a tyro to study. He is actively connected with 22 different important corporations, located in nine states, with large interests in another score of states.

Sheldon was born in Brooklyn 51 years ago and was educated at Harvard.

GOVERNOR OF HAWAII

Gov. Walter F. Frear of Hawaii stepped into the limelight in connection with the visit to Honolulu by the battleship fleet. The people of Honolulu and other cities of the islands broke all records in the welcome extended to the fleet, and no money nor time was spared to make the occasion a notable as well as a pleasant one. As the governor of the territory and chief representative of Uncle Sam in his jurisdiction, Gov. Frear was naturally put in charge of all arrangements for the event.

If it were not for such little things as this, the average newspaper reader would be likely to forget that there was such a place as Hawaii on earth, or that it is a regular territory of the United States with its own territorial government and organization. The Hawaiian islands are so far away from homeland, and the revolution which carried the government all the way from monarchy to republic and then to annexation are of such comparatively recent date that only in the year of presidential conventions do we recollect more than the name of the islands.

Gov. Frear, although of American birth, has spent nearly his entire life in Hawaii. Born in California 45 years ago, he graduated from Oahu college, Honolulu, and Yale. After graduating in law, he was made a circuit judge for Hawaii in 1893, and a few months later he was advanced to the supreme court of the islands, then under the provisional government. He was made a supreme court justice of the republic when it was organized under President Sanford B. Dole, and was offered the position of minister of foreign affairs and public instruction in 1899, but declined the change to the cabinet, preferring to retain his place upon the supreme bench. He was made chief justice, and held that place until the annexation of Hawaii was carried out. Since 1907 he has been territorial governor.

A GUESS AT NATIONAL RESULTS.

Everybody is figuring on the probable results of the national election, and few agree as to the actual outcome, further than to claim a victory for one candidate or the other, and in most instances the prediction is governed by the sentiment of the speaker or writer. On one point, however, many are agreed, and that is that in this year's fight there is a larger list of apparently doubtful states than ever before. It is not difficult to name the states that are reasonably for Bryan or Taft, but it is another matter when the doubtful list is mentioned, and it would require the services of a divinely inspired prophet to straighten the tangled web.

Therefore, as we are not a prophet nor the son of one no attempt will be made to change the doubtful states to Bryan or Taft.

In the following table will be shown three columns, viz: Bryan, Taft and doubtful; and while, as we have said, we do not expect all to agree on the doubtful list, we felt that there will be little difference of opinion on the sure states. Here's our guess:

SCHOOL NOTES FROM CORONA.

School opened at Corona September 7, 1908, under the care of Prof. J. H. Crawford and Miss Donnie Franks, with an enrollment of eighty pupils. Many of the patrons of the district were present at the opening. The interest which has been manifested by the pupils in the last week is pleasant to the teachers and parents. The prospect is that Corona will have one of the best schools in the history of the place.

The interest that the teachers, parents and pupils are taking in the school assures its success. I believe there is no town or community in New Mexico that is more liberal and willing in the upbuilding of the school than this district. The people of Corona are now preparing to build a ten thousand dollar school building, which will add much to the upbuilding of the town.

The list of pupils has been increasing daily, and by the end of the month it is thought that the enrollment will reach a hundred and twenty-five or thirty. The prospects are that Corona will have to secure the third teacher. This is why the good people of the place are looking forward to a ten thousand dollar building. Within a short time Corona will have one among the best schools in the territory.

There is already a plan under way to secure a library for the school, and part of the books has been ordered. And within a short time we will have one of the best libraries of any town of this size in the territory.

If anyone is contemplating attending school this winter, we think there is no town in the west that will afford cheaper board, rates and better training than at this place.

We have Sunday school and church every Sunday. Three denominations are represented, viz: Primitive Baptist, Missionary Baptist and Christian church. The W. O. W. have quite an interesting lodge here, and the prospect is that there will be an I. O. O. F. lodge organized soon.

Under such influences, anyone will be safe in trusting their children in the hands of this school.

Anyone desiring information concerning the school, write the Principal, J. H. Crawford.

During my absence in California, my real estate and insurance business will be in charge of W. F. A. Gierke, who is authorized to receive all collections and receipt for the same.

DOES THIS INTEREST YOU?

DEAR FRIENDS:—

God, in His wisdom, has laid on the hearts of myself and wife the establishing of an Orphans' Home.

This work was started in San Marcial, New Mexico, by the death of a member of our church, who left in my charge her two girls. For about four years we refused to accept others, though often solicited. Last year we felt free in accepting three other children.

We then began to pray for a "Home" for the precious ones given us. After carefully looking over the country, we have decided to locate the "Home" in Lincoln county, about ten miles east of White Oaks, New Mexico, where we will have a large place, some good farming land, plenty of wood. As soon as we can arrange for suitable buildings and other things necessary we expect to throw open our doors to receive as many children as can be accommodated.

Many a precious child brought from a sick room, a poor climate, a crowded rooming house or from the street to the pure, fresh air that Lincoln county represents will have a chance for making a strong, healthful man or woman in soul and body. We intend, by God's grace, to train and educate the children to be useful men and women. Our number shall be limited to our capacity to care for and educate. We take the children for life, by the adoption plan.

Does this interest you? It should.

My wife and I and the necessary help in school and "Home" are going to give our time, strength and ability to this work. Do you want a part in giving? If so, listen.

First—We want you who appreciate an effort to help care for this class of neglected ones, who would appreciate some loving hands administering to your children should they be left homeless, friendless, many times hopeless in this world, to make a free offering for this work. "Blessed is he that considereth the poor; the Lord shall deliver him in time of trouble."

It takes considerable expense to start a work of this kind as it should. This is no experiment with us: it comes after six years of conviction and tests.

Second—We will accept any donation of provisions or clothing for the children or any volunteer help in work of any kind. Anything you feel free to do in this matter let me hear from you.

Yours sincerely,

M. T. DYE,

H. Marx, who travels for the Casey-Swasey Co., Fort Worth, Texas, and who owns some valuable property in this town, was here one day this week.

G. B. Greer came in this morning from the Estancia valley, where he has been the past month selling fruit trees. He went over to his home, on the Bonito, today.

Mrs. Geo. S. Treat and daughter, Jessie, of White Oaks, went to Great Bend, Kansas, last week. Jessie will attend school there, and Mrs. Treat expects to remain through the winter.

E. E. (Boston) Wright passed through Carrizozo last Friday on his way to Corona. Boston, who was senior forest ranger, quit issuing permits and has gone to peddling sewing machines.

S. T. Gray was over from Capitan Friday and Saturday last. He is the same jolly fellow as of yore, and speaks hopefully of the future prospects of Capitan, and that country beyond the big hill.

Samuel Beard, whose home is near Richardson but who has been confined to a room at the home of Clement Hightower, Capitan, for the past month with typhoid, is much improved. The News rejoices with the friends of this old time citizen over his convalescence, and expresses the hope that he may soon recover his wonted vigor and activity.

The pay car came up from El Paso last night, and gladdened the hearts of the E. P. & S. W. boys all along the line.

Geo. A. Hunt and Charles Spence were down from White Oaks last Saturday. Mr. Hunt has recently moved his family from Analla to White Oaks to place his children in school, while he visits all portions of the county, attending to his duties as sheep inspector.

E. J. Gumm was up from Three Rivers Monday, and while here contracted to assist on the finishing work on the school building. Little did Pete (think fifteen or twenty years ago, when he chased antelope over this flat, that he would be called upon to help build a $10,000 school house here.

Rev. M. T. Dye, of San Marcial, was in town the early part of the week. Mr. Dye will move to this county at once, and begin preparations for the establishment of an Orphans' Home. An outline of the plans and purposes of the institution, from the pen of Mr. Dye, may be found on another page.

RAISING ALLIGATORS

ONLY TWO PLACES IN LAND WHERE INDUSTRY PREVAILS.

From 500 to 800 Reptiles Kept on Ranch at Hot Springs, Ark., and Culture is an Interesting Process.

Washington.—It is claimed that the alligator farm in Hot Springs, Ark., is larger than that in St. Augustine, Fla., and that these two are the only farms of the kind. The farm in Hot Springs is on a small mountain stream that feeds a series of little lakes or ponds. These are made use of to form the "breeding grounds," "stockyards" and "winter quarters" for this stock industry.

There are at all times on this farm between 500 and 800 alligators, ranging in size from little baby 'gators, less than six inches long, up to Big Joe, nearly 15 feet long. The little fellows have all been hatched on the farm, but the big ones were caught in the swamps and bayous of the south.

The alligator is a cannibal, and for that reason it is necessary to separate the ponds by means of heavy wire netting and to place reptiles of very nearly the same size in each inclosure. Big Joe, the monarch of the establishment, weighing nearly 600 pounds, is kept by himself. Otherwise, it is alleged, he would soon be the only alligator there.

The eggs are placed in incubators quite similar to those for hatching chickens. After being hatched the little ones are placed in a separate inclosure, to prevent their older brothers and sisters from eating them. They grow very slowly, so that an alligator two feet long is about two years of age, and one 12 feet long may be 15 years or more. Some reach a length of 16 or 18 feet.

If allowed to follow their hibernating habits in captivity, the alligators would bury themselves in the mud and lie dormant for nearly half of the year, and business would have to be suspended during that time on the alligator farm. Some way had to be devised for avoiding, in part, at least, this hibernating instinct. The winter quarters are in a long, low building divided into many compartments. Each compartment contains a pool of water through which run steam pipes, so that the water can be kept at a constant temperature. One small pond will contain 200 or 300 alligators.

Hundreds of baby alligators are sold every year to patrons of the health resort at Hot Springs for pets, for home aquariums and for curious mementos to be sent to distant friends. For these purposes little creatures not more than six inches long are preferred. Reptiles of larger size, from two feet in length up to the largest that can be obtained, are sold for use as advertising novelties, and for exhibition in amusement parks, museums, shows and menageries. Large numbers of all sizes are killed, stuffed and mounted in striking or fantastic attitudes and used for ornamental and decorative purposes. The skins are tanned and manufactured into suit cases, satchels, handbags, belts, pocketbooks, and, in fact, almost anything that can be made of leather. The durability, beauty and costliness of the tanned hides cause them to be esteemed among the most desirable of leather materials. Even the teeth are not wasted, being manufactured into small ornaments and articles of jewelry and sold as curiosities.

Too Old at —?

In an age of hurry and "hustle" the value of experience is often overlooked, and the result is seen in the product, whether the work be manual or intellectual. If the older man has lost something of his "smartness" he has not the superficiality and carelessness of youth, and the employer who estimates ability above efficiency makes a bad bargain for himself in the long run.—Yorkshire Post.

In an early day in Stone county, Missouri, a farmer's boy rushed into the office of Dr. T. J. McCord of Geopla and urged the doctor to come quickly to see his father, who seemed to be dying. Said the doctor, "What ails him, and what has he eaten?"

The boy said: "Oh, nothing much but 14 roastin' ears for supper."

"Well," said the doctor, "just go back and throw him a couple of bundles of oats and tell him I will be up there in about 30 minutes."—From Judge's Library.

WONDERED WHY

Found the Answer Was "Coffee."

Many pale, sickly persons wonder for years why they have to suffer so, and eventually discover that the drug—caffeine—in coffee is the main cause of the trouble.

"I was always very fond of coffee and drank it every day. I never had much flesh and often wondered why I was always so pale, thin and weak.

"About five years ago my health completely broke down and I was confined to my bed. My stomach was in such condition that I could hardly take sufficient nourishment to sustain life.

"During this time I was drinking coffee, didn't think I could do without it.

"After awhile I came to the conclusion that coffee was hurting me, and decided to give it up and try Postum. I didn't like the taste of it at first, but when it was made right—boiled until dark and rich—I soon became very fond of it.

"In one week I began to feel better. I could eat more and sleep better. My sick headaches were less frequent, and within five months I looked and felt like a new being, headache spells entirely gone.

"My health continued to improve and today I am well and strong, weigh 145 lbs. I attribute my present health to the life-giving qualities of Postum."

"There's a Reason." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

THE INTERSTATE FAIR.

Rapid Progress Being Made in Preparation for the Opening.

Practically every building is completed, and by August 20th everything will be in readiness at Overland Park, Denver, for the first annual Colorado Interstate Fair and Exposition to be held September 7th-12th.

HORBE EXHIBIT BUILDING.

This is to be a pure bred live stock show, and G. C. Fuller, acting secretary, says that the entries, for the horse and cattle departments which close on August 15th, are coming rapidly, and that there is every indication that this will be by far the greatest pure bred stock show ever seen west of the Missouri river.

Some of the finest bred horses and cattle in the United States have already been entered, and word has been received by Mr. Fuller from other breeders that they will enter. Two buildings, each 78x285 feet in size and provided with every modern convenience, have been built for the cattle and horse exhibit, and of the $25,000 in cash premiums offered, more than $6,000 is put up for cattle, and nearly $4,000 for horses, with other department premiums correspondingly high.

Mr. Fuller says that requests for the premium list are coming in by every mail, and that entries are rapidly filling in the various departments.

Among the amusement features will be harness races and running races every afternoon, with purses of $500 in the harness and $250 in the running events; Knabenshue's famous passenger airship, a midway feature similar to the Pike at St. Louis, and at night Pain's marvelous production of the carnival of Naples, requiring 300 people, and the eruption of the volcano Vesuvius, followed by a $1,000 fireworks display, the whole forming one of the most spectacular pyrotechnical spectacles in the world.

Resents Good Advice.

That there is a startling difference between the temper of the rising generation and that of the youth whose young ideas shot up according to the teachings of Mrs. Hannah More and "Sanford and Merton," has recently been proven by a little seven-year-old girl, who was laboriously spelling her way through a reading lesson.

"Always speak the truth," she said, "and obey your parents."

"Be gentle and quiet. Never slam the door and shout and scream about the house."

"At the table eat slowly; not in a greedy manner like a pig." Suddenly the little girl shut the book with a portentous bang and announced with firmness and decision: "I'm not going to let any old third reader boss me like that!"—Rochester Herald.

Died in Infancy.

There is a section of North Carolina, said to be remarkable by reason of the longevity of its inhabitants, which has been the inspiration of many good stories.

Perhaps the best of the lot is one told by a Representative in Congress from that state. It is to the effect that a native of the region mentioned, who had attained the age of ninety-two, was returning, with his wife, aged ninety, from the funeral of their eldest child—deceased at the age of sixty-nine.

As they mournfully discussed the subject of their grief, the wife said with a sigh:

"Ezekiel, I allers tote you we'd never raise that chile."

Wants vs. Needs.

Little Dot—Oh, Mamma, the organ-grinder's monkey is at the window, an' he has a little round box in his hand.

Mamma—Well, my pet, what do you think he wants?

Little Dot (after a glance at the organ-grinder)—I dese he wants to borrow some soap.—New York Weekly.

TRUE AMERICAN PRINCESSES

LAST OF THE TRIBE OF MASSASOIT FALLEN ON EVIL DAYS

MASSASOIT'S SON, KING PHILIP

If America can lay claim to any royalty it must go back to the original possessors and rulers of this country, and find in the descendants of the red man those who are entitled undisputedly to the distinction and honor. Two princesses of royal blood of the American brand are to be found in New England, and only two, and the fact that these two are not living in a regal state or are not accorded any of the honors and distinction consonant with their high birth, brings them into notice especially so as at the present time these princesses have fallen upon evil days and are likely to lose the little land they now possess out of all the vast country to which their regal ancestor, the great Indian king, Massasoit, laid claim. With all the glory of the past only a disturbing memory and with poverty pressing them upon every side, Teweleema and Wootonekanuske are living on the shores of Lake Assawampsett in Massachusetts where once their kingly forefathers ruled supreme.

With only a few acres remaining of a heritage which in the time of the Pilgrim Fathers comprised whole states the aged are facing possible dispossession. They are subjected to numberless persecutions of a petty sort; but then they have grown used to that. For as their mother once said during a recital of the wrongs of her race: "There seems to be no law for the Indian."

"They have left us little," says Princess Teweleema. "They have made us fight steadily for what we have kept, and now they want the little that we have."

An effort is being made to secure for these last of the royal blood of the Wampanoags a material recognition of their rights and of the services which their ancestor, the mighty sachem, Massasoit, performed for the pioneers of New England. For without Massasoit's friendship and protection the struggling colonists would have been swept from the land.

The royal Wampanoags lived continuously on the tract about Lake Assawampsett from the time Tispaquin, the Black Sachem, son-in-law of Massasoit, set aside about 500 acres for his heirs, until 40 years ago, when Mrs. Zerviah Gould Mitchell, the mother of the princesses, moved to Abington that her children might be educated in the white man's way. As the place was left without a caretaker, it was gradually encroached upon; and the neighboring whites finally went so far as to sell portions of the tract.

The eldest princess is suffering from consumption. She is practically helpless, and upon Princess Wootonekanuske falls the care of the household and of the invalid.

She accepts the hardships that have followed their later life as a matter of course; she regards them as part of the blight that has pursued her race and has doomed it and fears them all as part of the great tragedy. Not so the elder sister. There is in her a flash of the old haughty spirit of her ancestors, some of the unconquerable pride of race which made Massasoit the autocrat of warring tribes and spurred King Phillip to a hopeless struggle that swept the length and breadth of New England with death and flames. When Princess Teweleema speaks of her wrongs and the injustices of the white intruders, her aged eyes regain their youthful fire, her gestures take on the simple grandeur of her illustrious forbears.

The town of Warren, R. I., has done something toward the memory of the sisters' ancestor, Massasoit. On October 10, 1907, a tablet was unveiled over the spring which has always been known by the name of the mighty Indian sachem. It bubbled near his forest home and the Massasoit Monument association walled it up and improved the surroundings that the spring might run for all time as a reminder of the white man's indebtedness. On a huge stone was placed the tablet and on the tablet is this inscription: "This tablet placed beside the gushing water known for many generations as Massasoit's spring commemorates the great Indian sachem Massasoit, 'friend of the white man,' ruler of this region when the Pilgrims of the Mayflower landed at Plymouth in the year of our Lord, 1620."

When the Pilgrim Fathers landed in America Massasoit's empire extended from Cape Cod to the Narragansett. Thirty villages owed him allegiance; 30,000 Indians obeyed his word. But a furious plague broke out and when the white men met with the sachem his people had been almost exterminated; whole tribes had been decimated. The early historians say that the savages "died in heaps," and only a remnant of about 300 warriors was left to the ruler in his lodges about Massasoit spring.

It was on Thursday, March 22, 1621, only 101 days after the Pilgrims had landed on the new continent, that Massasoit met them formally for the first time. He had previously given an audience to two of their emissaries, one of whom was Edward Winslow, and had expressed friendliness for the white man. So to this meeting he came in all good faith, accompanied by his half-brother, Quadequina, and 60 of his warriors, all armed with bows and arrows, their faces painted. "Some had skins on them and some naked; all strong, tall men in appearance."

The Indian chief appeared dramatically on what is now called Watson's hill, and lined up his men, making an imposing array. To them came Edward Winslow, carrying a pair of knives, a chain and a jewel for the chief sachem; also a pot of strong water, with some biscuit and butter for a treat. Winslow stayed with the Indians as a hostage and Massasoit followed by 20 of his warriors, descended the hill toward the Pilgrims. Capt. Standish met him with a file of six musketeers and gave him a salute, afterward escorting the chief to a hastily erected building, furnished with a green rug and three or four cushions.

Here a treaty was made and signed between Massasoit and the Pilgrims. Winslow offered himself as a hostage for the keeping of the agreement; Massasoit declined. A regulus as to honor himself, he scorned to accept a pledge. Honor was to him as the breath of life and for 50 years he kept the treaty to the letter and the spirit; until his death, in fact. It was the Pilgrims themselves who violated it. The great Indian's fidelity to this agreement made the American colony possible.

Several times during his rule, Massasoit prevented raids by warlike tribes upon the almost helpless colonists. For years he held the Narragansetts in check. He died in 1661; and his death spelled disaster to the colonists.

Not Graceful.

George Harvey, the editor, said of literary grace at a dinner in New York:

"Grace makes its absence very keenly felt. At a funeral that I once attended in New Hampshire a farmer said a thing that was singularly lacking in grace. A funeral hymn had just been concluded. The farmer leaned forward, tapped me on the shoulder and whispered:

"'Lovely hymn, hey? The corpse wrote it.'"

Mysteries of Civilization.

"You have persuaded the Indian to give up his picturesque headdress and blankets and wear hats and trousers," said the sardonic person.

"Yes; in the interest of civilization." "And I suppose it is also in the interest of civilization that we pay high prices for these cast-off garments of the Indian and use them for wall decorations."

Endurance Appreciated.

"So you think my writing that book was a remarkable achievement?" said the gratified author.

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne. "I don't see how you managed to stay awake through the first four chapters, let alone the whole book!"—Washington Star.

Divisions of Colorado Land.

Of the 55,322,500 acres area of Colorado, 25,345,772 acres are under government reservation control—forests, 15,748,772 acres; coal, 9,596,999 acres, and for Indians 300 acres. The state owns approximately 1,400,000 acres, and there are 2,851,225 acres of open government land subject to entry.

SAVED AT THE CRISIS.

Delay Meant Death from Kidney Troubles.

Mrs. Herman Smith, 901 Broad Street, Athens, Ga., says: "Kidney disease started with slight irregularity and weakness and developed into dangerous dropsy. I became weak and languid, and could do no housework. My back ached terribly.

I had bearing down pains and my limbs bloated to twice their normal size. Doctors did not help, and I was fast drifting into the hopeless stages. I used Doan's Kidney Pills at the critical moment and they really saved my life."

How It Was Done.

Three-year-old May had a penchant for cutting everything in eight, when she could get a pair of scissors. One day, being left alone with her curly headed baby brother, she promptly cut every curl from the back of his head.

When the nurse discovered the damage, she said:

"Oh! May, how dare you cut baby's curls off?"

"He cut them himself."

"How did he reach the back of his head?"

"He stood on the stool."

Biblical.

Speaking of cherry pies we are reminded of that Biblical saying, which goes something like this: "It is hard to bite against the stones."

THE OLD MAIDS MAKE GOOD.

The Old Maids' Association gave an entertainment at Wetmore hall Wednesday evening, as per announcement. The hall was crowded, the receipts beyond expectation and the appreciation shown pleasing.

Besides the transformation of thirteen old maids into gay, giggling, fascinating young girls of sixteen, made possible by the occult knowledge of Prof Gierke, and wonder-working machine, each of the rejuvenated ones did something which showed their joy at putting off the crow's feet and the tinge of gray. The characters were:

- Jerusha Eliza Bangs, President..... Mrs. Ed. Coe
- Rebecca Roberts, Sec.-Treas..... Miss Mollie Kahler
- Minny Glover, Miss Gertrude Kelley
- Marianna Melissa Plack..... Miss Lorena Baser
- Joseph A. Mann..... Mrs. O. L. Davis
- Rebecca Odella Olden..... Miss Grace Spence
- Aun Ellen Patterby..... Miss Lou Johnson
- May Haverman..... Mrs. J. Allen Ray
- Petunia Pickles..... Miss Abbie Meek
- Berena Washen..... Miss Nettie Lee
- Charity Hopegood..... Mrs. J. E. Humphrey
- Nachel Kocham..... Mrs. P. A. Lacey
- Helinda Miles..... Miss Mary Meek
- Prof. Makernoz..... Wm. F. A. Gierke

Two quartettes, at the beginning and closing, by Mr. and Mrs. Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Ray, were well received, as two comic recitations by Prof. Collins. It was an enjoyable affair and well merited the labor and time necessary produce it.
