Gomez Will Use Uncle Sam's Money.

The Cuban Military Assembly Ignored, and the $3,000,000 to be Distributed Among Cuban Soldiers.

Havana, March,—General Gomez has decided to proceed with the plans agreed upon for distributing the $3,000,000 to the Cuban troops, on disbanding, as though the military assembly did not exist. He conferred two hours today with General Brooke regarding the detail.

General Brooke asked Washington several days ago whether, in case he dissolved the assembly, his action would be approved. The cable reply authorized him to dissolve the body, if, in his judgment, such an act was necessary. He hopes the assembly will soon cease of its own accord to hold further sessions, but should sessions, disquieting to the public mind continue, he will intervene.

Havana is much more quiet today and much less excitement is noticeable. This is partly due to the fact that the assembly held no meeting. At a meeting this morning the Cuban Generals Diaz, Roleau, Monteagudo, Nodarez, Perez and others decided to join with General Pedro Betancourt, the commander of the Cuban troops in Matanzas, in public declaration of their position. La Discussion understands they will side with General Gomez. The papers continue to print letters and telegrams from all points declaring adherence to the veteran Gomez's cause. There were numerous fresh calls today for the resignation of Civil Governor Mora and Chief of Police Menocal because of their attitudes, the result of a misunderstanding or otherwise, toward Sunday's parade in honor of General Gomez.

The United States military authorities have published the following statement: "We are officially authorized to say that the president of the United States will not recognize any obligation incurred by the body known as the Cuban assembly, and all reports and assertions to the contrary are absolutely untrue."

This perhaps is due to the story published in El Reconcentrado to the effect that a representative American syndicate, including Senator Hanna, was now here with a view of making a loan to the assembly.

There have been six resignations from the assembly since Sunday, being Generals and Senors Cespedes, Monteagudo, Nunez, Leires, Mola and Tamayo.

We have saved many doctor bills since we began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in our home. We keep a bottle open all the time and whenever any of my family or myself begin to catch cold we begin to use the Cough Remedy, and as a result we never have to send away for a doctor and incur a large doctor bill, for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy never fails to cure. It is certainly a medicine of great merit and worth.—D. S. MARKLE, General Merchant and Farmer, Mattie, Bedford county, Pa. For sale by M. G. Paden

The Science of Prospecting.

Mining and Scientific Press.

The question is frequently asked, "why are not scientifically educated mining engineers the discoverers of more rich mines?" Briefly, the answer is: because they do not prospect. Undoubtedly men who have the advantage of a technical and scientific training in mineralogy, metallurgy, geology and engineering are better qualified to prospect intelligently than those who have not had these advantages, but usually such men are otherwise employed and have little time to prospect, even if so disposed.

A technical education without practical experience does not fit a man for even such an humble occupation as prospecting. While a prospector, whose chief reliance is in his muscle and not in his technical education, may accidentally stumble upon a valuable ore deposit, he is out looking for mines, and as all rocks look much the same to him it does not concern him whether he picks up quartz, limestone or a fragment of some eruptive rock, for either may contain precious metals, and his very ignorance of the character of the rock is his safeguard. All miners, whether technically educated or not, are prone to seach for mineral deposits, veins, float, &c., similar to those they are familiar with. To the Comstock miner the ideal mine is found in the bonanzas of the Comstock; the Homestake miner looks for the broad zones of quartz and schist colored red by oxidation; the Leadville miner is in search of a contact of lime and porphyry: the Californian wants black slate and greenstone; the Butte, Montana, miner thinks granite a fine formation for mineral; the Arizona prospector will camp with a rotten iron-stained porphyry dyke; the develpment of the Cripple Creek mines has created a demand for phonolite, and in the Black Hills, South Dakota the discovery of gold near Ragged Top has made "arrowhead flint" the proper material in which to seek gold: the miner from Calico, California, is always on the lookout for large masses of peagreen breccia, in hope of finding chloride again; the digger of South Africa is satisfied with a conglomerate reef and recognizes one at sight; the miners familiar with Silver Reef, Utah, know that some white sandstones and drab clay shales contain high-grade silver ores. And so in endless variety of form and occurrence the miner from each region looks for the characteristics with which he is familiar. While the prospector may locate anything to which his notion inclines him, he locates much that is worthless and doubtless passes much that is valuable, where the technically educated mining engineer would probably recognize the worthlessness or the value of any particular occurrence were his attention directed to it; but, as previously stated, he is not prospecting. It is rarely that the technically educated, experienced mining engineer makes a mistake by condemning a valuable mine though he may admit some possibilities for some undeveloped mines which never materialize. In all undeveloped mines there is an uncertainty and the element of chance cannot be disguised. Often a too great willingness to take the risk results disastrously. When the Commonwealth mine, in Cochise county, Arizona, was in the prospective stage it was visited by a technically educated mining engineer, who, after examination, purchased the property for a large sum. Those familiar with the history of the mine know no mistake was made. The existence of tulluride rich in gold at Cripple Creek was made known through the discovery of float by a technically educated mining engineer, who recognized the telluride.

Since, then, gold is found in paying quantities in such a variety of rocks, of so many different geological ages, and is associated with such a variety of minerals, it may be considered unwise to pass any rock by without attention as unworthy of notice. Within the personal knowledge of the writer gold and silver occur in the United States in almost every kind of rock known to science, with the exception of feldspar-basalt and rocks of that extremely basic type and obsidians or vitropheres and rocks of the extremely acid type. Undoubtedly quartz is the mineral most commonly associated with gold, but gold also occurs with calcium carbonate, feldspar-garnet, in aggregates of mica scales, in hornblende, in coal, and in slates, in granite, sandstone, limestone, diorite, andesite, rhyolite, and, in fact, in every variety of rock. Some dykes are gold-bearing without showing any considerable alternation or silicification. It would seem, then, that the prospector should test every rock formation whether familiar or not. The men who made the first quartz discoveries at Randsburg, California, were dry washing for placer gold, and, it is said, knew so little of mines and mineral veins that as they approached the croppings of one of the most famous veins in that camp, in the course of their placer work, used to sit upon the outcrop and eat their lunch, little dreaming that the blackened honeycombed rocks were rich in the very metal they were striving under such difficulties to obtain. Of the great army of prospectors who are found throughout the mining region are, perhaps, comparitavely few who would not recognize a vein when they saw one, but such cases are of record. W. H. S.

A. R. De Finent, editor of the Journal, Doylestown, Ohio, suffered for a number of years from rheumatism in his right shoulder and side. He says: "My right arm at times was entirely useless. I tried Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and was surprised to receive relief almost immediately. The Pain Balm has been a constant companion of mine ever since and it never fails." For sale by M. G. Paden.

Official Paper of Lincoln County

Words vs. Actions.

Some weeks since the EAGLE published a portion of a speech made by Governor Pingree, of Michigan, in which the versatile governor brought into requisition his best rhetoric, condemning the Republican party for bringing into life and fostering trusts and its destructive practices. The governor is also a silver man, and, in fact, about the only thing in which he agrees with his party is protection—the very principle that supports what the governor condemns.

The Michigander says the people must rule, that the Republican party, being responsible for the formation and perpetuation of the corporations and their attendant evils, will be hurled from power unless they make the rich take a back seat and return to the Republicanism of Lincoln.

After acknowledging that the Republican party had brought trusts into existence and that laws were continually being enacted for their protection, the speaker stated that a reformation must come and that only through the Republican party could it come.

The governor knows full well that his party is an enemy of silver, is and always will be a party of corporations; for by and with their advice and consent (money) it thrives; therefore, it necessarily is a nurturer of just such combinations as he condemns; yet he regularly accepts a nomination at the hands of a party whose platform is written in the interest of institutions that he most emphatically condemns: but after his election he makes the welkin ring with howls of derision against the g. o. p., which plainly indicates that the governor's actions are at variance with his words: or, more correctly speaking, he is not unlike a majority of Republicans, who desire the success of their party even though its policy is opposed to every interest except that of corporate greed.

In today's EAGLE we reproduce a statement made by Senator Chandler, of New Hampshire, and this statement is in line with Potato Pingree's remarks; the Republican party is soundly rated for its attitude toward the trusts; yet the senator says the Republican party, and the Republican party only, is capable of bringing these monster corporations to time.

The senator is also a silver man, so he has often said, and predicts in his trust (hope) article that the Republican party will meet with defeat if it does not change its tactics; but feels confident that he will be able to show his party the error of its ways and that it will array itself against itself, smash the combines, redeem itself in the eyes of the people and triumphantly re-elect William McKinley.

Now, we wish to say, Messrs. Pingree and Chandler have no more regard for their word than the Republican party when its platform is in process of erection. Why? Because they abuse that party that elects them, and when it comes to a show-down they are ready to do anything to keep that party alive and kicking, regardless of its putridity. These gentlemen are well aware of the fact that the Republican party will no more fight corporations than that the sun will cease to shine.

McKinley or some other soft individual, who can be handled, will probably be elected president in 1900, and will necessarily be under obligations to the money power, just as is the present administration; but for God's sake! let such twaddlers as Pingree and Chandler stop such nonsensical trust talk when they lend themselves to a party, giving birth to such hydra-headed monsters; and let their words be in unison with actions. Republicanism and oppression of the masses go hand in hand, and as long as money can be used successfully the chances are that the Republican party will continue in power. There is a time coming, however, which may not be as far distant as some believe, when money will have lost its influence, and the people will rise in their majesty and preclaim and maintain their rights at the point of the bayonet.

These sentiments may be called inopportune, but history bears us out in the statement that all governments are overturned when the masses are ignored and the classes only are provided for.

Joseph Medill, editor of the Chicago Tribune, died in San Antonio, Texas, last week. Henry Watterson is about the only one of the old time editors left.

THE 33RD. LEGISLATURE.

The New Mexico legislature has adjourned, and its actions have become history. We have been unable to secure a full list of bills enacted by that body, but are acquainted to some extent with a few of the measures that have become law—some good, a large number indifferent and many bad.

The Duncan revenue law is probably the best measure put through this session, and a few minor laws were fairly good. The coal oil inspection law is, no doubt, the worst, for it virtually takes $10,000 out of the pockets of the people and gives it to a politician. The inspection is a fraud from start to finish; for it is a well known fact that oil has increased in price while its quality is deplorably bad. The inspection does not better the oil, but the people pay the corporation's price, with the inspection fee added.

And this legislature has been rather extravagant, too. It has appropriated about $100,000 to the various territorial educational instations, that, without exception, are no more than local institutions whose beneficiaries are those in the towns where such institutions are located. The people are taxed to death to support these educational institutions and if they were all concentrated into one they would not have enough pupils to employ a faculty of half a dozen teachers. True, it may be said that the University at Albuquerque, the Agricultural College at Las Cruces, the Military Institute at Roswell and the Normal School at Las Vegas, besides minor institutions, each employ more teachers than that. What if they do? Take away their local support and there is not an institution in the territory that could not be handled by one teacher, and he need not be a graduate of Yale or Harvard, either. The university at Albuquerque has probably the largest enrollment, and outside the county of Bernalillo it has 35 matriculates. Yet these institutions, every one local and of really no benefit to the taxpayer at large, are given from $5,000 to $20,000 apiece, and the taxpayer must foot the bills.

Our soldiers in the Philippines are killing a number of Filipinos every day, but at the same time a few Americans are biting the dust.

A riot in Havana the other night was the sequel to a mulatto ball. Two or three police were killed and a number of the rioters were killed or wounded. O! we'll have, and are having, a lovely time with our yellow bellies, with apologies to Reed, in Occident and Orient.

ST. PETER AT THE GATE.

St. Peter stood guard at the Golden Gate
With a solemn mien and an air sedate,
When up to the top of the golden stair
A man and a woman ascending there
Applied for admission. They came and stood
Before St. Peter, so great and good,
In hopes the City of Peace to win,
And asked St Peter to let them in.
The woman was tall and lank and thin,
With a scraggy beardlet upon her chin,
The man was short and thick and stout,
His stomach was built so it rounded out;
His face was pleasant, and all the while
He wore a kindly and genial smile;
The choirs in the distance the echoes woke,
And the man kept still while the woman spoke.

"O, thou! who guardest the Gate," said she,
"We two come hither beseeching thee
To let us enter the heavenly land,
And play our harps with the angel band.
Of me, St. Peter, there is no doubt,
There's nothing from heaven to bar me out;
I've been to meeting three times a week,
And almost always I'd rise and speak.

"I've told the sinners about the day,
When they'd repent of their evil way;
I've told my neighbors—I've told them all—
'Bout Adam and Eve and the primal fall.
I've shown them what they'd have to do
If they'd pass in with the chosen few;
I've marked their path of duty clear—
Laid out the plan for their whole career.

"I've talked and talked to 'em loud and long;
For my lungs are good and my voice is strong;
So, good St. Peter, you will clearly see,
The gate of Heaven is open for me.
But my old man, I regret to say,
Hasn't walked in exactly the narrow way;
He smokes and he swears, and grave faults he's got,
And I don't know whether he'll pass or not.

"He never would pray with an earnest vim,
Or go to revival, or join in a hymn;
So I had to leave him in sorrow there,
While I with the chosen united in prayer.
He ate what the pantry chanced to afford
While I, in my purity, sang to the Lord;
And if cucumbers were all he got,
It's a chance if he merited them or not.

"But, O, St. Peter, I love him so,
To the pleasures of Heaven please let him go;
I've done enough—a saint I've been—
Won't that atone? Can't you let him in?
By my grim Gospel, I know 'tis so,
That the unrepentant must fry below;
But isn't there some way you can see
That he may enter who's dear to me?

"It's a narrow Gospel by which I pray,
But the chosen expect to find some way
Of coaxing or fooling, or bribing you,
So that their relations can amble through.
And say, St. Peter, it seems to me
This gate isn't kept as it ought to be;
You ought to stand right by the opening there,
And never sit down in that easy chair.

"And say, St. Peter my sight is dimmed,
But I don't like the way your whiskers are trimmed;
They're cut too wide and outward toss,
They'd look better narrow cut straight across.
Well, we must be going, our crown to win.
So open, St. Peter and we'll pass in."

St. Peter sat quiet, and stroked his staff,
But spite of his office, he had to laugh;
Then said, with a fiery gleam in his eye,
"Who's tending this gateway, you or I?"
And then he rose to his stature tall,
And pressed a button upon the wall,
And said to the imp who answered the bell,
"Escort this lady around to hell."

The man stood still as a piece of stone—
Stood sadly, gloomily there alone;
A lifelong, settled idea he had,
That his wife was good and he was bad.
He thought if the woman went down below,
That he certainly would have to go;
That if she went to the regions dim,
There wasn't a ghost of a show for him.

Slowly he turned by habit bent,
To follow wherever the woman went;
St. Peter, standing on duty there,
Observed that the top of his head was bare.
He called the gentleman back and said:
"Friend, how long have you been wed?"
"Thirty years" with a weary sigh,
And then he thoughtfully added, "why?"

St. Peter was silent. With head bent down,
He raised his hand and scratched his crown;
Then seeming a different thought to take,
Slowly, half to himself, he spake:
"Thirty years with that woman there?
No wonder the man hasn't any hair!
Swearing is wicked, smoke's not good;
He smoked and swore—I should think he would!
Thirty years with that tongue so sharp!
Ho! Angel Gabriel! Give him a harp!
A jeweled harp, with a golden string;
Good sir, pass in, where the angels sing.

Gabriel, give him a seat alone—
One with a cushion—up near the throne!
Call up some angels to play their best,
Let him enjoy the music and rest!
See that no flaunt umbrella he feeds,
He's had about all the hell he needs;
It hasn't just hardly the thing to do,
To roast him on earth, and the future, too.

They gave him a harp with golden string,
A glittering robe and a pair of wings,
And he said as he entered the Realm of Day,
"Well, this beats cucumbers, anyway!"
And so Scripture has come to pass,
That "the last shall be first and the first shall be last."

Joseph Bert Smiley.

The Windsor Hotel in New York was destroyed by fire on the 17th. inst. Forty people lost their lives in the burning building.

Many commendatory words are heard among the legal gentlemen of the city regarding a law enacted by the recent legislature admitting to jury trial any civil case when the litigants on either side are willing to assume the expense. This will result, the attorneys say, in speedily clearing the civil docket, which is so often left crowded after all the money has been consumed in the trial of criminal cases. The bill which resulted in this useful statute was introduced in the council by Hon. T. A. Finical of Albuquerque and championed in the house by J. E. Wharton of White Oaks.—Journal Dem.

"Misfortunes Never Come Singly."

It is said that ninety-five out of every hundred business men meet misfortune at some stage in their lives; some recover and some do not. If the remedy in business life were as easily found as in the ills that beset humanity, there would not be as much misfortune.

In the latter case, multitudes when attacked by rheumatism, scrofula and other diseases, flee for protection to Hood's Sarsaparilla, and they find there a sovereign and specific remedy for troubles of the kidneys, liver and bowels. It never disappoints.

Liver and Kidneys—"My mother was very sick with congestion of the liver and kidney trouble. Nothing helped her until we got Hood's Sarsaparilla, which showed its effects with first dose. She is well and hearty." Mrs. D. A. Stone, Winthrop, Me.

Run Down—"I was weak, had no appetite, nervous and completely run down. Tried many remedies but nothing helped me until I used Hood's Sarsaparilla which cured me." Mrs. Wm. Marks, 27 Henry St., Binghamton, N. Y.

Castritis—"Nervousness caused by a fright made my wife suffer intensely from gastritis. Morphine was necessary to relieve the suffering. Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Pills were tried after all else failed and in four days she improved and in 14 days she was cured." C. W. T. Schmidt, Cedar Falls, Iowa.

Dyspepsia—"I suffered for 20 years with dyspepsia. Dared not eat meat, new bread or vegetables. Went hungry for fear of distress. Felt despondent and distressed. Took Hood's Sarsaparilla and got relief immediately. Can eat most anything without discomfort." Mrs. Emily F. Bump, Middleboro, Mass.

Dizzy Spells—"After the measles my daughter had dizzy spells, which we thought would pass off but they did not until we gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla. In five days they disappeared and in one month she regained her usual health." B. H. Kampersbeck, 53 Graves Place, Holland, Mich.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Never Disappoints

Hood's Pills cure liver ills, the non-irritating and only cathartic to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company, of New York, has a statement in this issue of the Eagle, and may be found by reference to 2nd. page. This is one of the oldest and most substantial companies in the United States and does a good business in this section.

S. H. Newman, executive special agent, Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, and Guy H. Herbert, of Tularosa, special agent for New Mexico, came up from Lincoln Saturday, and will spend two or three weeks in this community in the interest of their company. They are located at Mrs. Gallacher's.

A friend furnished the Eagle with a copy of the Fredericksburg (Va.) Star, from which is taken an interesting poem, entitled "St. Peter at the Gate." This unique production will be found in this issue on 2nd. page, and is well worth reading; though we'll readily agree with our lady readers that the subject is slightly overdrawn, but it is a sparkling gem, nevertheless.

Jose Vega is putting in a large pump at the Vera Cruz Well Mr. Vega says this well is 130 ft. deep, and that the water has recently risen to within 5 or 6 feet of the top. He is confident that by sinking a few feet deeper that a flow of artesian water could be obtained. He has only leased the well for the purpose of irrigating a garden place and of course does not feel disposed to put himself to any unnecessary expense to develop another's property. There is no question that artesian water may be had both here and in the Carrizozo flat at a very reasonable cost.

Beats the Klondike.

Mr. A. C. Thomas, of Marysville, Tex., has found a more valuable discovery than has yet been made in the Klondike. For years he suffered untold agony from consumption, accompanied by hemorrhages; and was absolutely cured by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. He declares that gold is of little value in comparison with this marvelous cure; would have it, even if it cost a hundred dollars a bottle. Asthma, Bronchitis and all throat and lung affections are positively cured by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Trial bottles free at M. G. Paden's Drug Store. Regular size 50 cts. and $1.00. Guaranteed to cure or price refunded.

GRAY GLEANINGS.

Old friends of Mr. A. H. Hudspeth, were pleased to see him in Gray a short time ago.

On the 9th. inst., Mr. Wells the superintendent of the coal mines arrived in Gray. He made an inspection of the premises with a view to having work begin in a very short time, it is hoped. Mr. wells will have charge of the mines at Malagras as well as those on the Salado.

Miss Josie Allison is having a well 'dug' on her homestead.

Mr. S. M. Parker and wife of White Oaks, stayed in Gray the night of the 9th.

Mr. Herbert and Mr. Newman who represent the Mutual Life Insurance Co. were in this place last Thursday.

Mr. Romero from Ruidoso visited Gray recently and gave a very interesting account of the work he is doing at his place in the vicinity of the Big Rock. Mr. Romero's plan is to establish a resort for invalids where they can enjoy the pleasures of camping-out without the usual discomforts. If he succeeds in carrying out everything that he has in contemplation "Mon Bono Cottage" will be a unique and delightful resort.

Mr. Wm. Yates and family moved to the Tucson mountains last week.

Mr. Phil Blanchard and his sister Miss Clara of Ft. Stanton, were visitors in Gray on Saturday.

R. D. Armstrong returned on Monday morning's stage from Lawrence, Kansas, where he has been visiting homefolks for the past six weeks. R. D. says that New Mexico sand storms are a terror, but that Kansas muds are worse. The ground in eastern Kansas was during the winter frozen to a depth of 18 inches, and now it is beginning to thaw; hence the great quantity of mud.

James Leslie, who was thrown from his horse and fatally injured two weeks ago, died at his home in Texas Park Friday morning. At first young Leslie did not think himself seriously hurt and one day last week thought he had sufficiently recovered to resume work, but after riding out a few miles on the ranges he was attacked by an excruciating internal pain and on reaching home had to be assisted into the house. Robt. Leslie, the father, who has been in Texas on a business mission for several weeks returned home just in time to see his son die. The boy was laid to rest in the White Oaks cemetery last Saturday.

It is very hard to stand idly by and see our dear ones suffer while awaiting the arrival of the doctor. An Albany [N. Y.] dairyman called at a drug store there for a doctor to come and see his child, then very sick with croup. Not finding the doctor in, he left word for him to come at once on his return. He also bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which he hoped would give some relief until the doctor should arrive. In a few hours he returned, saying the doctor need not come, as the child was much better. The druggist, Mr. Otto Echols, says the family has since recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to their neighbors and friends until he has a constant demand for it from that part of the country. Trusts Arraigned.

Senator Chandler, a Republican, Throws Hot shot into the G. O. P.

New York World.

My recent statements concerning trusts were incidentally made and were not expressed with complete accuracy. My ideas are these:

That the growth of trusts in this country is destroying all incentives to individual enterprise and putting all power, industrially in the hands of the multi-millionaires.

Ingenious and industrious men of moderate means, whether manufacturers or traders, are being crushed out by the enormous monopolies. The brightest and best business men in the country are rapidly being forced to become mere salaried employees of corporations with immense capital. The effect of such an industrial system is deterioration in society as a whole.

The influences of such aggregations are not only powerful in industrially but omnipotent politically. These enormous combinations of capital control the politics of the country, nominate the candidates, then furnish the means to carry the elections, and later direct all legislation, state and national, and dominate the use of all executive power.

The principal notion I have is that this condition of affairs should not be allowed to destroy the Republican party. To preserve that party and give it a national victory in 1900, doubtless under the the lead of President McKinley, is my great desire.

Yet I fear that we shall not get such a victory if the party does not promptly take ground in state and national conventions against the enormous trusts and monopolies that are now being formed in every direction and in connection with every great industry.

The Financial Chronicle, as well as The World,, recently published an estimate of the size of the new trusts the capital of which amounts to more than one thousand millions of dollars.

Although the men who control these trusts are principally Republicans, the great mass of Republican voters are not in favor of the new system under which aggregated wealth handled by a few men undertakes to destroy individual enterprise.

Therefore proper appeals made to the great body of Republicans of the country will prevent the Republican party from being placed in the attitude in which the Democrats are endeavoring to place it - of subjugation to the trusts—while the Democratic party is loudly promising to liberate society from the domination of monopolies.

Making such appeals, it now seems to me, should be the immediate work of the Republicans who wish for success in 1900 The Republican party should oppose trusts by all feasible measures of State and national legislation. By promising and endeavoring to do this President McKinley and his party will secure an easy victory in 1900.

Our only danger will arise from failure to take the popular ground on this overpowering question.

The desire which I have to give to the Republican party a great victory in the coming Presidential election will doubtless not be shared by The World, which I assume desires the defeat of the Republican party and the success of the opposition.

Nevertheless The World should realize that the Republican party is not to be given over without a struggle to the control of trusts and monopolies, nor to the domination of the money power.

The many are to govern in this country rather than the few, and they are more likely to govern through the agency of the Republican party than through a political organization made up of the disorganized Democracy and the demoralized Populists.

William E. Chandler.
U. S. Senator from New Hampshire.

The

TOLEDO WEEKLY BLADE

Every intelligent family needs in addition to their local paper, a good national weekly. The greatest and most widely known general family newspaper is the Toledo Weekly Blade. For thirty years it has been a regular visitor in every part of the Union and is well known in almost every one of the 70,000 post offices in the country. It is edited with reference to a national circulation. It is a Republican paper, but people of all politics take it, because of its honesty and fairness in the discussion of all public questions. It is the favorite family paper, with something for every member of the household. Serial stories, poetry, wit and humor; the Household department, [best in the world]. Young Folks, Sunday School Lessons, Talmage's Sermons, the Farmstead, the Question Bureau [which answers questions for subscribers], the News of the Week in complete form, and other special features. Specimen copies gladly sent on application, and if you will send us a list of addresses, we will mail a copy to each. Only $1 a year. If you wish to raise a club, write for terms.

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $2.10

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.
