Will Shute, is the name of an express messenger on one of the Texas railroads. No danger of train robbers holding that fellow up.

Benjamin F. Johnson, the newly elected school superintendent of Chaves county, died of tuberculosis at Roswell four days after his election.

There are at least two women in New York city claiming to be the wife of Louis Mormonstein. And yet there are people who say there is nothing in a name.

The democrats can at least console themselves that they will be permitted to live and worry along somehow for four years more under republican hard times, and high tariff, and the gold standard, not to mention all the other ills brought upon the country by republican extravagance and profligacy, as long as there is a comfortable surplus accumulating in the United States treasury unto the long looked for day when they shall come into power, and debts are not accumulating beyond the ability of the country to pay, they can probably stand it like the rest of us, even if they must do some tall kicking the while.

The cabinet makers are once more busy but strange to say we have not yet heard the names of either Thomas Taggart or William J. Bryan mentioned as a possibility.

Col. Brock, of Weatherford Texas, has gone into fancy bee culture. He claims some of his fancy stock cost him more than their weight in gold. If the weight is reckoned from the business end of the bee when it is mad, they must have cost him a mint of money.

The Chicago University several months ago offered a free scholarship to the boy who could carry off first honors in an oratorical contest, to be open to all the high schools in the west. This contest took place in Chicago last week, and the prize was won by Robin Gould, son of Col. George T. Gould, formerly of this territory, but now of El Paso. The boy was born in Las Vegas while his father was engaged in newspaper work at that place, and has always shown great talent in declaiming.

All parties indebted to us are requested to settle their accounts before January 1, 1905. After that date they will be placed in the hands of a collector. Taliaferro Mercantile and Trading Co.

Thirteenth District, Grant and Luna Counties, Colin Noblett.

Fourteenth District, Dona Ana, Grant, Luna and Otero Counties, James W. Hannigan.

Fifteenth District, Chaves, Eddy, Roosevelt and Lincoln Counties, George F. Ellis.

This gives nineteen seats to the republicans and five to the democrats.

As to the democratic minority in the Council, Charlie Ballard, of this district, and about three others will constitute the menagerie, the rest having gone down in the cyclone.

In the House they have fared but little better—just here and there a spared but solitary monument to mark the path of the tantalizing twister.

There will be enough of these however to keep the republicans on their good behavior and do the wind-work.

J. M Rice, of the Eagle mining company, and Mrs. Rice were in Monday from Parsons. He reports the new mill now completed and in fine running order, as a test run amply demonstrated. This mill is an Elspass of the roller type and was put up by Fairbanks, Morse and Co. of Denver, Colorado, with a capcity of fifty tons of ore per day. An American amalgamator will be used in connection with the rollers. The plant is intended to be run in connection with the Hopeful, or Parsons, mine. That this new enterprise will be a success there is no reason to doubt, as the ore runs a good averge, is practically inexhaustible and can be mined for one dollar per ton. Mr. Rice has industriously labored for years to put eastern capital into Lincoln county mines and to inspire others with his own sublime faith in their productiveness and certainly deserves success.

Educational Column

The majority of the school districts in the county are now supplied with teachers and the school's are moving along at a satisfactory pace. The fine weather we are having this autumn should certainly count favorably toward full and regular attendance of pupils.

The White Oaks school is progressing in a way that is gratifying to both teachers and patrons. Prof. Stevenson has an advanced class to which he devotes an hour before and another after the regular school hours, in this way not using the time which should be and is devoted to the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades, under his immediate supervision. Since Prof. Stevenson has been in charge, the school has, for the first time, been thoroughly graded and the work is conducted in the most systematic and comprehensive manner.

The lower grades from first to fourth are in charge of Miss Covington, with an enrollment of seventy-six. The large attendance makes very laborious work, but Miss Covington is proving herself a thorough teacher, giving her time and capabilities to the work in a most consciencious way. A lady familiar with the best methods and results in primary teaching in the east visited Miss Covington's school a short time since and her verdict was "excellent." Said she, "I wish all the parents could be made to realize what an excellent teacher they have in Miss Covington."

***

It has been truly said that "the success of the man depends largely upon the habits of childhood, both mental and physical." A very important fact which the majority of teachers do not take into account is that slip-shod, careless personal habits indicate slip-shod, careless thinking. When the home environment of the pupil is system and good dicipline this element of careless physical habit is not so much in evidence in the school. But the conditions in the majority of the homes in this frontier country could not be classed as well disciplined and systematic, therefore the teacher must not only supply the deficiency in the home teaching but overcome the habits of carelessness and indulence fostered in the home. One teacher in speaking of the difficulties found in a rural school which was put in her charge said: "Oh, the carelessness, the awkwardness and utter lack of discipline exhibited in my pupils! When they sit they loll, when they stand they loll and when they walk they lollop!" To overcome these careless, slip-shod physical habits requires the utmost kindness and patience and the most persistent and cheerful effort. Yet it is worth the effort, for with the improvement of the physical habit comes improvement in the mental habit of the pupil.

***

During the first session of school in the then new school building of White Oaks the pupils and teachers of the three departments contributed money with which a handsome large flag was bought and every school day during two years of school the flag was floated from the shell tower on the school building. The janitor made it his duty to care for Old Glory and daily took it down and put it up.

What teacher will start the effort for a flag on every school house in the county?

A spirit goes out of the man who means execution, which outlives the most untimely ending.

All who have meant good work with their whole hearts, have done good work, although they may die before they sign it. Every heart that has beat strong and cheerfully has left a hopeful impulse behind it in the world and bettered the conditions of mankind.

One of the familiar figures of White Oaks is about to pull himself loose and hike him to furren parts, where the wicked never cease from troubling and the bad man, without pretense of provocation shooteth up the town about once a week, or as often as the moon affecteth his bile. Jackson Plavius Cadwallader Langston, a citizen of this place since 1880, will leave, with Mrs. Langston, for Tucumcari where they expet to make their home for the future. It is understood they have located a homestead near that metropolis of Quay county and Langston will cultivate the succulent beet and the acquaintance of the political and religious aspect of that benigted region.

Sam Nied, after several weeks sojourn at Vera Cruz, Parsons and the country over beyond Nogal, returned last evening to see if his wife had "rustled" anything for Thanksgiving. It was easy to observe three blessings by the dimension of Sam's 7x9 smile, this morning that she had.

NEW MEXICO NEWS GENERALLY

Economizing Water Supply.

The New Mexico experiment station is making the study of irrigation problems its chief line of work; and among other problems is studying the most economical amount of water necessary for the production of crops. There are three directions says a press bulletin in which even an approximation to the least amount of water necessary for producing a full crop would prove very valuable.

The first is in pumping. Here each inch of water added above what is absolutely necessary increases materially the cost of producing the crop. Whether the crop is produced at a profit or a loss may depend on the use of a few inches of water more than is absolutely necessary.

The second is in estimating the size of the storage reservoir for the irrigation of a given area, or the area which can be irrigated from a reservoir of given size. In either case each acre-foot of water can only irrigate a certain area of land, and if a third more water than necessary is used, then the area which can be irrigated from the reservoir will be decreased one-third.

The third is in enabling us to economize in the use of the water of our present canal system. There is scarcely an irrigation system in New Mexico, or anywhere else, where there is not more land that can be easily reached than there is water for under the present methods of irrigation. If the amount of water used could be materially decreased without decreasing the crop yield, it would then be possible to increase the acreage under cultivation in that locality.

In many places, in other states, the people have found that they can do with very much less water than they formerly thought was possible; and such a thing may some day happen in New Mexico.

Not only would a more economical use of water permit the enlargement of the cultivate area, but it would save the man who has located on low land from being damaged by the seepage from the excess of water used by his neighbors above. Much of the alkali in the irrigated districts is due to the waste of water, either from over irrigation or from leaky ditches.

The experiment station is experimenting on wheat and alfalfa. This year one of the principal objects in the wheat experiments was to find out whether different amounts of water supplied after the wheat began to head had any marked effect on the yield, and if so, which amount was most economical.

One set of six plats was irrigated once a week after heading, receiving thirty-five acre inches of water per acre in seven irrigations, and gave an average yield of eighteen bushels per acre; another was irrigated once in two weeks, received twenty-nine acre-inches per acre in five irrigations, and one-tenth bushel per acre, yielded sixteen and six-tenths bushels per acre; a third was irrigated once in three weeks after heading, received twenty-five acre-inches per acre in four irrigations, and yielded fifteen and one-tenth bushels per acre, and a fourth set consisting of two plats received eighteen acre-inches per acre in three irrigations, and yielded ten and six-tenths bushels per acre. All of the plats received an irrigation at sowing, another in April and the third the middle of May when the wheat began to head.

From these results we would infer that eighteen acre-inches was not enough; and as the ten acre-inches over twenty-five only gave three bushels of wheat more, it would seem that twenty-five acre-inches was the most economical amount used.

It is only by repeating such experiments year after year that we will finally learn just what amount to use.

After heading the set of plants irrigated once a week received usually four acre-inches of water each week, but they generally lost in the moisture content of the first six feet of soil until the wheat was cut.

Practically none of the thirty-five acre-inches applied penetrated below the fifth foot.

The detailed results of these experiments will soon be published as a station bulletin.

The results of the experiments with alfalfa will form the subject of later press bulletin.

New Solicitor General.

The New Mexican prints the following sketch:

George W. Prichard of White Oaks, Lincoln county, who has just been appointed by Governor Otero, solicitor general of New Mexico, is an attorney who has been a member of the New Mexico bar for twenty-five years. He was born at New Harmony, Indiana, the son of James E. Prichard, who was a judge on the bench for a number of years and whose father was a soldier in the War of 1812. Colonel Prichard's mother, whose maiden name was Martha Downs, died when he was but a lad. His family on both sides were Kentuckians, whose ancestors came from Virinia.

Colonel Prichard's early education was derived mainly from private tutors. He graduated from the literary and law departments of the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, leaving that institution in 1872. He at once entered upon the practice of his profession and was successful from the start, being noted in his early youth for his eloquence. He practiced law at Little Rock, Arkansas, for some years after graduating. Governor Powell Clayton of that state appointed him lieutenant colonel of the Arkansas militia.

In 1876 Colonel Prichard was a candidate for presidential elector on the Republican ticket, a rare honor for so young a man. In 1879, Colonel Prichard came West in quest of health and settled at Las Vegas, in this territory. Twice he was elected to the Legislative Council and served his constituents in an efficient and creditable manner, and made an enviable record for honesty and carefulness.

In 1882 President Arthur appointed him United States attorney for New Mexico, which position he filled creditably and efficiently until the Cleveland administration appointed a Democrat in his stead.

Colonel Prichard has been a resident of White Oaks, Lincoln county, and has been engaged in the practice of his profession, always taking a strong interest in territorial politics.

Romeroville Sanitarium.

A Las Vegas correspondent gives the following details of the proposed new sanitarium near that city as follows:

Dr. Frederick W. Seward, of Goshen, N. Y., and Dr. W. T. Brown of Lancaster, Wisconsin, have purchased the magnificent Romeroville ranch property four miles below this city, and will immediately establish a tent, cottage and pavilion sanitarium of the most scientific and up-to-date nature. The ranch consists of 3,000 acres, part being under irrigation, the rest covered with pine and cedar forests. The big two-story ranch house, known throughout the territory as the Mansion, was built years ago by Don Trinidad Romero, every stick of timber being freighted from Chicago. It cost $25,000. There are a number of tenant houses, stone barns and large pastures. The location, in full view of the main range of the Las Vegas mountains, is ideal.

Dr. Brown is the physician who was at the head of the plan for reopening the Montezuma as a sanitarium. The proposition proved unsatisfactory because the physicians who intended to put $100,000 into it could secure a lease only subject to a sale should opportunity arise. Those noted physicians who were interested in the Montezuma scheme will send their patients instead to the Romeroville institution.

Dr. Seward is ranked as one of the greatest climatological specialists of the East. Every year he is appealed to by scores of eastern physicians to decide the localities in the West to which patients are to be sent. He is the owner of the "Interpines," the beautiful "Invalids' Home" at Goshen, New York. Twenty-eight years ago, Dr. Seward, a broken down invalid, came to New Mexico. He remained for four years and was entirely restored to health. Since that day he has always been the loyal friend of New Mexico and says that during the years since he left the territory, it has been his most cherished ambition to be able to establish a sanitarium in New Mexico.

The new owners have already ordered a supply of Walker tents and the work of building cottages and preparing the place for the reception of patients is to begin at once. It is proposed to prepare accommodations for an unlimited number of patients.

The Next Legislature.

The New Mexican gives the following as the probable make-up of the next Legislative Assembly:

First District, Colfax County—M. B. Stockton.

Second District, Mora County—Cristoval Sanchez.

Third District, Union County—F. L. Wright.

Fourth District, Leonard, Wood and Quay Counties—M. C. de Baca.

Fifth District, Santa Fe County—R. L. Baca and Ramon Sandoval.

Seventh District, Rio Arriba County—Jose Amada Lucero.

Eighth District—Taos, Rio Arriba and San Juan Counties—Granville Pendleton.

Ninth District—Bernalillo County—Seferino Crollott.

Ninth District, Sandoval County—Cornelio M. Sandoval.

Ninth District, Bernalillo and McKinley Counties—Thomas N. Wilkerson.

Tenth District, Valencia and Torrance Counties—Silvester Mirabel and Carl A. Dalies.

Eleventh District, Socorro and Sierra Counties—H. H. Howard and E. L. Ludlow.

Twelfth District, Dona Ana and Otero Counties—W. H. H. Llewellyn. The returns are not yet complete and the vote is so close on the legislative ticket in Otero county that this result may be changed, in which case, Florencio Luna, Democrat, is elected.

Thirteenth District, Grant and Luna counties—Colin Neblett.

Fourteenth District, Dona Ana, Grant and Otero Counties. Still in doubt but it looks as if James W. Hannigan, Republican, is elected by a small majority.

Fifteenth District, Chaves, Eddy, Roosevelt and Lincoln Counties—George F. Ellis.

This gives nineteen seats to the Republicans, four to the Democrats and one in doubt.

The Council will have only one Democrat, according to the latest returns, Charles L. Ballard, of Roswell, although the vote in the eighth district between Charles E. Miller and Horton Moore, the latter the Democrat, is very close.

The following will be members of the Council:

First District, Colfax, Mora and Union Counties—Jeremiah Leahy.

The Zuni Reservoir.

John B. Harper, chief engineer of the construction of the Zuni reservoir, while in the city yesterday, gave a New Mexican reporter some interesting facts in regard to the big dam and reservoir, which when completed will store water for the irrigation of about 6,000 acres of Indian lands. Work is progressing here quite satisfactorily so far. Considerable labor has been expended on the dam, which is considered by experts to be quite an undertaking. When completed it will be 400 feet long, seventy feet high and 300 feet in thickness at the base. It is made of dry rock with earth filled in by hydraulic washing. It will be about a year and a half before the dam and reservoir are completed, and about two years before the entire system is finished. The labor is all being done by Indians from the Zuni pueblos, and they are good workers.

"The building of the dam and reservoir is more of a test than anything else, as it is being constructed under typical New Mexico conditions, which consist principally of a lava flow on top and softer formations underneath, so that the success of it will mean much to the territory, outside of the irrigation of the 6,000 acres of reservation land. With its successful completion, I expect that the government will make appropriations for the constructing of several other reservoirs throughout the territory. We began work in February of this year and everything has gone splendidly up to date."—Santa Fe New Mexican.

Reservoir Protests Withdrawn.

A Roswell dispatch says that the protests entered against the building of the Hondo reservoir, twelve miles from Roswell, by Frank G. Tracy, president of the irrigation company of Carlsbad, and the Water Users' Association of Carlsbad, have been withdrawn.

The official withdrawal papers are now in the hands of United States Attorney Blen at El Paso. This removes the last doubt as to the building of the reservoir. The building of the reservoir will greatly enhance the future prosperity of the country and the entire valley.

The news was received with rejoicing by the citizens. Many had invested thousands of dollars here in property with the thought that the reservoir would be built. It will also mean that the flood waters of the Hondo will be caught and Roswell will be immune from the floods thereafter. The cost of the reservoir will be $240,000.

A Roswell dispatch of the 12th inst. says: The largest artesian gusher in this section of the valley was brought in to-day eight miles from this city and one mile from Hagerman's big orchard. The depth is only 481 feet but there is a river of water gushing high over the casing.

Hopewell, manager of the New Mexico Fuel and Iron Company, the work of laying the steel will commence next week on the Santa Fe Central branch of twenty-six miles to the Hagan coal fields. The junction will be at Moriarity and the terminus at Hagan.

George M. Slaughter at Roswell received word from St. Louis saying his lot of Shorthorns had taken the first prize at the World's Fair and his lot of two-year-old Herefords the second prize. This same lot of Shorthorns took the first prize at the Royal Stock Show, and the same Herefords took the third prize at the same time. Slaughter's Herefords are famous throughout the entire West.

A Santa Fe dispatch of the 14th inst. says. Only three counties thus far have filed their official election returns. The figures changed the totals but not the result on the congressional delegate election. Valencia county gave Senator W. H. Andrews, the Republican candidate, 1,821 votes; George P. Money, the Democratic candidate, 5; Bernard S. Rodey, Independent Republican candidate, 31 votes. Luna county ave Andrews 154, Money 124, Rodey 71. Santa Fe county, Andrews, 1,110, Money 1,161, Rodey 254.

The New Mexico Territorial Medical Society is to be reorganized. The societies represented in this body are those of Albuquerque, Roswell, Las Vegas and Silver City. The laws that will govern the new organization are those laid down by the American Medical Society and are considerably different from those which have been used in the past. Dr. F. J. EXPOSITION AT PORTLAND, ORE.

Great Event for the Northwestern States Next Summer.—Buildings to Cost Half a Million.

The Lewis and Clark Exposition will open at Portland, Oregon, on June 1st next. More than one-half the buildings are already under roof and will be completed before January 1st, says William E. Curtis in the Chicago Record-Herald. The rest of them will be ready for business early in the spring.

A considerable part of the exhibits are coming from St. Louis, and the buildings will be ready for their installation as soon as they arrive, shortly after December 1st.

Compared with St. Louis the Portland Exposition will be a miniature, but it will equal those of Buffalo, Omaha, Nashville, Atlanta and Charleston. It is to be a million-dollar exposition. Five hundred thousand dollars has been contributed by the state and $500,000 by citizens of Portland of every class and quality. There are more than 3,000 stockholders. Half a million will be spent in buildings, about $350,000 in the improvement of the grounds, and the remainder will be working capital. The government of the United States has made a very liberal appropriation, and all of the Northwestern and Pacific states are taking an active and generous interest in the enterprise.

The site of the Exposition is about two miles from the city—twelve minutes by trolley cars from the center of things. The fence encloses 185 acres of land and 350 acres of water—a lake with an island which furnishes a key of the landscape scheme. Surrounding the lake is a group of low hills, the foothills of the mountain range that embraces Portland, and upon them the buildings will be placed. It is a superb location. The view from any part of the grounds is the same as that from the Mountain park of Portland, almost without a parallel for beauty and grandeur. Nine snow-capped peaks bound the horizon, as follows:

	Feet.
Mt. Ranier	14,528
Mt. Adams	12,402
Mt. Hood	11,225
Mt. Jefferson	10,204
Mt. Pitt	9,766
Three Sisters (South Peak)	10,206
Mt. St. Helens	9,756
Mt. Thielsen	9,253
Mt. Scott	9,128

The Olmstead brothers of Boston laid out the grounds and alloted fifty acres for buildings, twenty acres for concessions, ten acres for a sample farm under the management of the Oregon Agricultural College, sixty acres for the live stock show, and sixty acres upon the island in the lake for Indian villages and amusement grounds, Wild West shows, war dances, Indian sports, cattle roping, broncho riding, cowboy races, and other features of outdoor life peculiar to the plains and mountains of the United States.

Railway Building.

Statistics for railroad building during the present year show that the southwestern states have maintained the supremacy they have enjoyed since 1901. During the year a total of 4,714 miles of road have been constructed, and of this mileage 1,804 miles were constructed in the section mentioned, or more than one-third of the total.

The Northwestern states come next in importance in this connection, with 633 miles, and then the gulf and Mississippi valley states with 602 miles. The Pacific states are fourth with 561 miles.

JEST NUTS

What He Wanted.

The Tramp—"Say, mister, would you kindly give me $10 to get something to eat with?"

The Parson—"What, $10 to get something to eat with! Why, my good man, I never pay more than 50 cents for a meal."

The Tramp—"That's all right, mister; but I want to get a set of false teeth. See?"

Other Side of It.

Him—"I think a man should marry a girl he has known from his childhood."

Her—"Yes, but if a girl knew a man from childhood she would probably know better than to marry him."

Looking Ahead.

The Senior Partner—I don't see how you can charge the money you've spent on that impecunious young fellow up as business expenses?

The Young Lawyer—That's simple enough. He has a rich uncle that is sick, and there's going to be a lovely contest over his will.

Forced to Stop Drinking.

"How did he stop himself from drinking?"

He didn't. It was the work of his friends."

"And how did they accomplish it?"

"They took advantage of his stinginess and quit inviting him to drink."

Helping Out the Doctor.

Doctor (politely, but looking at his watch with visible impatience)—Pardon me, madam, but my time is not my own. You have given me all your symptoms in sufficient detail, and now, perhaps, you will kindly—er—ah—

Husband (not so considerately)—Maria, he doesn't want to hear your tongue any more. He wants to look at it.

A Hard Knock.

"There's an awful row on in the ladies' literary club."

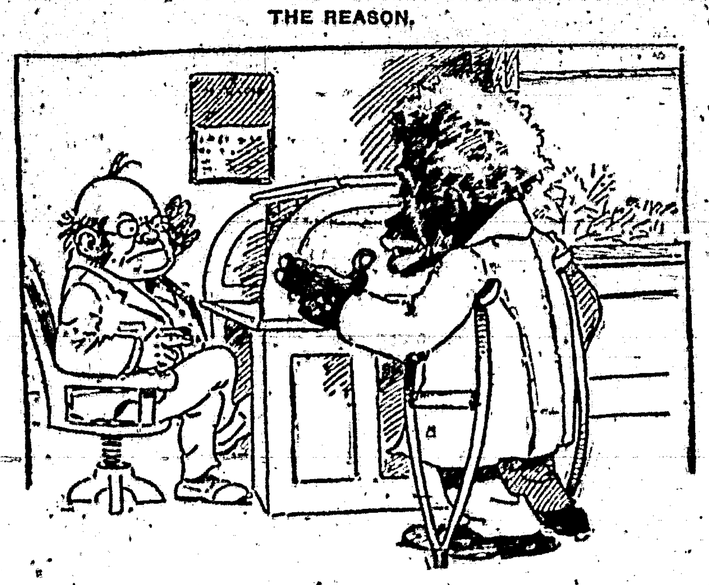
"What's the matter?"

"Why, the president requested Grace to write an article on her personal reminiscences of the civil war."

"Well?"

"Well, Grace claims she wasn't born until ten years after the war was over."—Detroit Free Press.

THE REASON.



Mr. Jackson—I wants to git a divorce.
Lawyer—Has your wife left you?
Mr. Jackson—Dat's just do trouble. She won't leave me.

None to Spare.

"Your husband will pull through, madam," the surgeons said, "although the injury to the skull is quite severe, and we shall have to remove a small portion of the brain before the operation is entirely over."

"Don't remove any more than is absolutely necessary," pleaded the anxious wife. "Poor George hasn't any to spare."

Hopeless.

Optimist—I suppose you consider yourself unlucky because you weren't born with a silver spoon in your mouth?

Pessimist—Well, if I had been born that way this life wouldn't bother me.

Optimist—Of course not.

Pessimist—Yes, it would just have been my luck to have the spoon choke me to death.

Cynical.

"See here!" exclaimed the city editor, "you speak of the bride as being 'led to the altar.'"

"Well?" replied the new reporter.

"Well, that's nonsense. There never was a bride who couldn't find her way there, no matter what the obstacles might be."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Certainly.

Hicks—I see Miss Roxley is bringing her fiance, Lord Noodle, back with her. Wouldn't it serve her right if she had to pay duty on him?

Wicks—Huh! If the duty were "ad valorem" the government would owe her money, wouldn't it?—Catholic Standard.

Safe.

"Your pa and ma are going to take you to Europe with them, aren't they?" asked the caller.

"Yes'm," replied the little boy.

"And aren't you afraid?"

"No'm; I ain't afraid o' nothin'. I'm been vaccinated."

And He Was "It."

Judge Lueders—There isn't any evidence against this man, officer. Why did you arrest him?

Officer Green—Well, there wasn't any evidence against any one else, your honor, and I had to arrest somebody.

Two Viewpoints.

Mr. Hoamley—I had a dream about you last night, Miss Pechis. I dreamed that you and I were married, and——

Miss Pechis—Well, well! Isn't it funny how circumstances alter cases?

Mr. Hoamley—How do you mean?

Miss Pechis—Well, that wouldn't have been a dream if I had had it. It would have been a nightmare.

Couldn't Stand That.

Frayed Fogarty—I'm much 'bliged to yer, lady, but dat old suit won't do fur me, nohow.

Mrs. Goodart—Why not? It's almost new, and it will keep you warm; it's certainly big enough for you.

Frayed Fogarty—Dat's de whole trouble. It'd be so baggy on me it'd make me look like a British Cook or somethin'.

Making No Insinuations.

Barnes—When Howes came to the city he was honest and unsophisticated.

Shedd—And now he is a competent thief?

Barnes—I didnt insinuate anything of the kind. I was only thinking that he is now worth half a million.—Boston Transcript.

Grizzly Pete—Did, eh?

Bronco Bill—Yes, an' de boys said dey hoped so, too, so dey could have de fun uv lynchin' him over ag'in.—Judge.

One on Mamma.

Anxious Mother—My dear, you should begin to think seriously of marriage. I was married at your age.

Pretty Daughter—Yes, I know you were, mamma; but grandpa says you were at my age for nearly five years, so I have plenty of time yet.

He Was an Optimist.

Jack—Congratulate me, old man. Miss Fussleigh has made me happy for life.

Tom—Indeed! When is the wedding to take place?

Jack—Never. She refused me.

In the Car.

"The fare register says, 'Out 10.' What does that mean?"

"I guess it means the conductor is out 10 cents. Anyway, he looks short."

FORGOT HIMSELF.

Mother—Baby has been jabbering away for half an hour but I can't understand a word she says.

Father (absently)—I've noticed she grows more like you every day.

Losing No Time.

Earning Your Salary.

A boy or man who works simply for his salary, and is actuated by no higher motive, is dishonest, and the one whom he most defrauds is himself. He is cheating himself, in the quality of his daily work, of that which all the after years, try as he may, can never give him back. If I were allowed but one utterance on this subject, so vital to every young man starting on the journey of life, I would say: "Don't think too much of the amount of salary your employer gives you at the start. Think, rather, of the possible salary you can give yourself, in increasing your skill, in expanding your experience, in enlarging and ennobling yourself."

A man's or a boy's work is material with which to build character and manhood. It is life's school, for practical training of the faculties, stretching the mind, and strengthening and developing the intellect, not a mere mill for grinding out a salary of dollars and cents.—Success.

Turned the Boys Heads.

Professor George H. Howison, the head of the philosophy department of the University of California, has startled the college community by declaring that the large number of women students attending the university is inconsistent with the attainment of high scholarly ideals.

An Honest Opinion.

Mineral, Idaho, Nov. 14th.—(Special.)—That a sure cure has been discovered for those sciatic pains that make so many lives miserable, is the firm opinion of Mr. D. S. Colson, a well known resident of this place, and he does not hesitate to say that cure is Dodd's Kidney Pills. The reason Mr. Colson is so firm in his opinion is that he had those terrible pains and is cured. Speaking of the matter he says:

"I am only too happy to say Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me lots of good. I had awful pains in my hip so I could hardly walk. Dodd's Kidney Pills stopped it entirely. I think they are a grand medicine."

All sciatic and Rheumatic pains are caused by Uric Acid in the blood. Dodd's Kidney Pills make healthy Kidneys, and healthy Kidneys strain all the Uric Acid out of the blood. With the cause removed there can be no Rheumatism or Sciatica.

"Did Laura say I was perfect?" "She said more than that; she said you were a perfect numbskull.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Gratitude compels me to acknowledge the great merit of your Vegetable Compound. "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been cured of severe female troubles by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was nearly ready to give up, but seeing your advertisement I purchased one bottle of your medicine, and it did me so much good that I purchased another, and the result was so satisfactory that I bought six more bottles, and am now feeling like a new woman. I shall never be without it. I hope that my testimonial will convince women that your Vegetable Compound is the greatest medicine in the world for falling of the womb or any other female complaints."—MRS. Coats and Walking Skirts.

The habit coat which will accompany the walking skirt bids fair to be plain, and the sleeves, like those in most garments, will be moderate. An effective model of light weight mustard brown cloth is trimmed with passementerie braid. The skirt is hung in small box plaits, with the exception of the front breadth, and attached just about the knees with little clusters of braid loops. The bottom of the skirt is trimmed with rather an elaborate pattern done in the braid, but at this point the plaits are left free. The bolero has reversible fronts faced with silk in the same tone and embroidered with the passementerie, the coat fastening with passementerie loops and buttons. The sleeves are gathered into the cuff by means of a row of small box plaits taken in the material half way between the shoulder and elbow. The cuff about the hand is trimmed with passementerie.

Shoe Lore.

Slippers run to gayety and high heels. Some of the new ones have eight straps.

Cuban heels are more fashionable for walking than French heels.

Many women are wearing a plain-vamped shoe without a tip.

Dull kids will be more fashionable this season than for some time.

Patent leather is the thing for dress occasions, but is not durable for hard wear.

It seems true that toes are becoming more pointed than for several years past.

In high dress shoes cloth uppers are in good taste.

Bronze slippers, buttoned with a strap across the instep and worked with bronze beads, are modish.

As for stockings, extreme open-stitch styles are demode, and a fine but plain woven hose is the correct thing.

Joy of the Boudoir.

One woman who uses a costumer in her room says that it is the joy of her life. A costumer always needs explanation, for no one is quite sure of it by its proper name. It is the clothes hanger with a central pole and prongs of one kind or another at the top. The woman who uses them says that she keeps her outdoor wraps, which she is constantly using, on the costumer, has them always at hand, and does not have a remorseful conscience because they are not tucked away in the closet. Anything she wishes to have conveniently at hand she puts on the costumer, including the clothes which she removes when she retires at night. One of these in the bent wood costs $5. It can be finished in enamel to match chamber sets if desired.

Misses' Tucked Coat.

Tucked coats worn with belts that confine them at the back and sides are exceedingly becoming to young girls and are among the latest and most attractive models shown. This very excellent example is adapted both to the costume and to the general wrap and to the many materials of the season, but is shown in a mixed brown cheviot trimmed with brown velvet edged with fancy braid. The long lines of the front, provided by the tucks which pass over the belt, add greatly to the style and make a specially noteworthy feature. The sleeves are the new ones that are full at the shoulders and are finished with roll-over cuffs.

The coat is made with front, back and under-arm gores and is finished at the neck with a simple roll-over collar. The sleeves are full and are plaited into bands that are concealed by the cuffs. The belt is adjusted over the back and fronts to the center tucks, where it passes through openings left for the purpose and is closed invisibly.

The quantity of material required for the medium size is 5 yards 27 inches wide, 2¾ yards 44 inches wide or 2¼ yards 52 inches wide, with ½ yard of velvet and 1¾ yards of braid to trim as illustrated.

Ivory in Fashion Again.

Ivory toilet sets have once more come into fashion after years of neglect, during which time silver-backed brushes have been in vogue. Now and again by tortoise-shell sets mounted in gold, at present the apex of extravagance and fashion.

Some people say it is the interest we feel in the Japanese at this moment that has brought back the ivory toilet sets into favor, but others declare it is simply the moment for ivory. A jeweler says that there is another cause, and that is that ivory is not quite so expensive as it was. It is being used either plain or carved, and sometimes delicately colored with art nouveau tints and designs.

Blouse or Shirt Waist.

Plain shirt waists always are in demand and always fill a need. This one shows the new sleeves that are full at inches wide, 7 yards 44 inches wide box plait at the center front. The model is made of Russian blue Sicilian mohair, stitched with corticelli silk, and is worn with a belt and tie of black taffeta. All waisting materials are, however, appropriate, the many mercerized cottons, as well as wool and silk.

The waist consists of the fitted lining, which is optional, fronts and back

The back is plain across the shoulders, drawn down in gathers at the waist line, but the fronts are gathered at their upper edges, also, forming becoming folds. The sleeve are in shirt style, gathered into straight cuffs, and at the neck is a regulation stock.

The quantity of material require for the medium size is 3¾ yards 2 inches wide, 3½ yards 27 inches wide or 2 yards 44 inches wide.

Novelty From Paris.

"Tilleul" is the name Parisians apply to the greenish yellow or yellowish pale green called after the linden tree. It is seen in the smart brocades which imitate old-fashioned colors chiefly seen now in scraps of hoarded satin or brocaded velvet, or in some hereditary garment handed down by a long-pedigreed colonial dame. One cannot say tilleul is strictly becoming to the majority of women, but a pronounced brunette, with a clear, high color, may safely venture upon wearing this fashionable new shade near her face without the aid of a lace assistance. It is seen in the narrow waistcoats of dressy broadcloth costumes.

About Muffs.

Muffs are a very important item in the fashionable girl's winter outfit; and the new ones are just as quaint and old-timey as are the smart effects they accompany. There are the familiar flat pouch shape, the round pillow, bigger than ever; and nowadays they term the Victorian what used to be called the granny muff.

A very fascinating novelty combines a handbag and muff; the bag is mounted invisibly in the top of the muff, just a jeweled clasp peeping out to indicate its whereabouts. Others in the same style show merely a purse, but either form is in the height of fashion.

Beautiful Irish Lace.

The newest thing in Irish lace might better be called French-Irish. It has the beauty of the work of Irish crochet, treated after the wonderful fancies of the French. It's a wonderful combination. For the Irish work only a few patterns—the shamrock predominating—and make them over and over; while Paris indulges in marvelous, darting flights, and illumines everything she touches with radiant changes.

Cloth Collars.

One sees a few cloth collars in the shops, handsomely embroidered by hand and applied with curious little motifs. They come in white, black and a few colors, and make a lovely accessory to the cloth gown of similar shade.

Deeper than these is a waite cloth collar that reaches the proportion of a shoulder cape, embroidered with handsome padded Easter lilies.

A New Fad in Ties.

Grass-green tape ties in white canvas golf and tennis oxfords are a late summer fad at the country clubs, links and tennis courts. Both men and women [illegible]

THANKSGIVING ON THE FARM

Oh! the farm was bright, Thanksgiving morn,
With its stacks of hay and shocks of corn,
Its pumpkin heaps in the rambling shed,
And its apples brown and green and red,
And in its cellar its winter store
In bins that were filled and running o'er
With all the things that a farm could keep,
In barrel and bin and goodly heap,
Hung to the rafters and hid away—
Oh! the farm was a goodly sight that day!

And here and there were the Jersey stock,
The sheep and horses—old Prince and Jock—
The turkeys and geese and awkward calf,
And the goat that made the children laugh,
A pair of mules that a friend had sent
Out to the farm on experiment;
Pigeons and fowls and a guinea-pig,
Dogs that were small and dogs that were big,
Chickens that were white and black and gray—
Oh! the farm was a pleasant place to stay!

Out back of the house the orchard stood,
Then came the brook and the chestnut wood,
The sawmill where the children play,
The fodder-barn with its piles of hay,
The walnut grove and the cranberry bog,
The woodchuck hole and the barking dog,
The wintergreen and the robber's cave
(Wherein who entered was counted brave),
The skating pond with its fringe of bay—
Oh! the farm was a pleasant sight that day!

The big home-barn was a place of joy
For the romping girl and the climbing boy,
With beams and mows and ladders to mount,
Horses and oxen and sheep to count;
Hunting of nests of sly old hens,
Tunneling hay and fashioning dens,
Helping the men to do up the chores,
Shutting windows and locking the doors,
Letting some work come in with the play—
Oh! the farm was a jolly place to stay!

Oh! the pantry shelves were loaded down
With cakes that were plump and rich and brown,
With apple pies and pumpkin and mince,
And jellies and jams and preserved quince,
Cranberry sauce and puddings and rice,
The dessert dishes that look so nice,
Vegetables, breads and bonbons sweet,
A great brown turkey and plates of meat,
Sauces fixed in the daintiest way—
Oh! 'twas a glorious sight that day!

Oh, the farm was bright Thanksgiving morn,
The sun shone clear on the hay and corn,
The guests came early with laugh and shout,
And the boys and girls scattered about,
Seeking the pets they had known before,
Climbing through window instead of door,
Racing from barn to corn-crib or mill,
Shouting and laughing with glee, until
The dinner horn sounded. Oh, I say
'Twas pleasant upon the farm that day!

Uncle Isaac's Matchmaking

"Well, I declare!" said Aunt Nancy Winters, "I never did see a turkey fat up nicer'n that one! I tell you, Pa, it's too good for jest you an' me to set down to. Hadn't we ought to invite somebody to help eat Thanksgivin' dinner?" Aunt Nancy paused in her task of stripping the feathers from the turkey in question, and beamed placidly upon Uncle Isaac through her gold-bowed "specs."

Uncle Isaac Winters rubbed his hands together gleefully, and a genial smile overspread his face. "Jest like you, Nancy, to think about somebody sharin' your blessin's. To be sure, to be sure, have somebody in to help dispose of that feller. Who'll you invite?"

"Well," said Aunt Nancy, reflectively, "I've a notion to ask Marietty Peabody, poor, lonesome old maid! I don't know as there's a soul in the village that would enjoy a nice piece of breast meat an' sage stuffin' an' Hubbard squash an' mashed potaters an' gravy an' mince pie an' pumpkin pie better'n she would. I do believe she lives pretty slim sometimes."

Aunt Nancy sighed a motherly sigh, and looked thoughtfully at the big turkey lying across her lap. "'Pears to me Marietty done a foolish thing when she give Silas Plummer the mitten the way she did years ago. I wish she was married an' settled down in a home of her own. Silas would be a good provider an' Marietty she's a neat housekeeper—neat as wax—an' seems to me they could be real happy together."

Uncle Isaac sat down on the edge of the wood box and looked at Aunt Nancy's kind old face. "S'pose we try an' make a match betwixt 'em," he suggested. "It's high time that old spat of their'n was cleared up. Let's see—it's as much as ten year, ain't it, since they quit speakin' to each other? I say let's ask 'em both here to dinner to-morrow an' see how it'll turn out."

Aunt Nancy stared at him in amazement. "Isaac Winters," she said, "be you clean gone crazy? Why, the very idee! A pretty Thanksgivin' it would be, wouldn't it, with them two glarin' at each other an' never sayin' a word! My! my! you don't know Marietty Peabody, I guess, or Silas Plummer either, if you think you could pacify 'em at this late day."

"Well," said Uncle Isaac, meekly, "you know best, Nancy! you always know best. I thought mebby it would work all right, but that's all a fool man knows about sech things. Think I'd best hitch up an' drive down to invite Marietty? Jest as soon if you want I should."

Aunt Nancy turned the big turkey over laboriously. "Why, yes, Pa," she said, "you better go. Give Marietty my compliments an' ask her to spend Thanksgivin' with us. If she's goin' to meetin' to-morrow she'll likely ride home with you in the cutter."

When Uncle Isaac returned, an hour later, he remarked: "Marietty seemed awful tickled about your invite, Nancy, an' she said she wa'n't goin' to meetin'—she hadn't a new [illegible] early an' help fix things for dinner an' then you an' her could visit longer, she said."

"Well," said Aunt Nancy, "that's real good of Marietty. There'll be quite a lot of work fixin' the vegetables an' such, an' I guess she can help me quite a little. I'm real glad she's comin', poor soul!"

The next morning when Uncle Isaac, in his Sunday clothes, came into the kitchen and lifted his chin high so Aunt Nancy could adjust his collar button and necktie, the dear old lady said: "If I was you, Pa, I'd look all over the meetin'-house an' pick out the lonesomest-lookin' person there—anybody you think ain't invited nowhere to Thanksgivin' dinner—an' ask 'em to come along home with you."

"Anybody," asked Uncle Isaac. "Did you say anybody, Nancy?"

Aunt Nancy started swiftly toward the oven door. "Land sakes! I believe that turkey's boilin' dry," she said, as she opened the oven door with a clang and poured hot water into the sizzling roasting-pan. Her rosy face peered into the big, savory-smelling oven.

"Yes," she said, "ask anybody you think looks lonesome."

Uncle Isaac drove off to meeting with a merry jingling of sleigh bells. He chuckled to himself as he drove along. "I shouldn't wonder if Silas Plummer would be lookin' kind of lonesome to-day," he said. "Great guns! Who'd ever think I'd take to matchmakin' at my time o' life?"

When the Thanksgiving sermon had been preached and the last hymn sung, the congregation moved toward the doors. Silas Plummer buttoned his overcoat and prepared to go his lonely way. But Uncle Isaac, unhitching the old white horse, called to him.

"Hold on, Silas," he said, "don't you want to ride along with me? An', say, by the way, Nancy said she'd like first-rate to have you eat Thanksgivin' dinner with us."

Silas Plummer hesitated—and was lost. "Much obliged, Uncle Isaac," he said; "you and Aunt Nancy are very kind, but I was calculatin' on goin' to the restaurant for my dinner."

"Restaurant nothin'!" cried Uncle Isaac, jovially. "Come, pile in here an' we'll be goin'. Nancy'll be jest tickled to death!"

But privately Uncle Isaac wash't so sure of that. "Merciful Moses!" he thought, "mebby I've gone an' put my foot in it. But we'll wait an' see how it turns out. If Nancy scolds, I'll tell her the poor fellow looked lonesome, an' sure enough he did."

The cutter stopped at the side door with a jingle of bells. Aunt Nancy came to the window and looked out. "Of all things!" she said to herself, "what in the world possessed Pa to go an' do that! My land! what shall I do? Here's Marietty an' there's Silas, an' they won't speak—I know they won't!"

Marietta was in the kitchen chopping cabbage, and did not see the newcomer, who was ushered into the [illegible] by Aunt Nancy, whose hospitable soul was filled with conflicting emotions. She resolved upon a desperate move. "Marietty," she said when she returned to the kitchen, "I guess that cabbage is chopped fine enough now. Won't you jest step into the settin'-room an' put some wood in the stove."

Marietta stopped chopping cabbage and filled her arms with wood from the wood box. She looked very nice in her best black dress and lace-trimmed apron. The warm kitchen had given a flush to her cheeks and the pink ribbon at her throat was very becoming.

She went through the dining-room and into the sitting-room. Aunt Nancy, listening intently in the kitchen, heard the sudden dropping of the armful of wood. "My sakes alive!" she said, "whatever shall I do. They'll both get mad an' go home most likely. Dear, dear, what did Pa go an' ask him for?"

In the sitting-room the wood lay on the rag carpet at Marietta's feet. She stooped to pick it up, but Silas was already gathering the sticks together. In some awkward way their hands touched, and they looked at each other.

"Marietty," he said, "can't we overlook the past? Can't we be friends again?" His earnest dark eyes were looking into hers with the old look. Marietta held out her hands, and he caught them in his. The next moment his arm was around her and she was crying softly upon his shoulder.

He was smiling at her in the old way which used to be so pleasant to her until that misunderstanding came between them. He took her hand and led her into the sunny kitchen where Aunt Nancy was about to take Uncle Isaac to task.

The good old people started in astonishment as Marietta and Silas entered hand in hand. The lovers looked ten years younger.

"Aunt Nancy," said Silas Plummer, "you an' Uncle Isaac have made a real Thanksgiving for me."

"An' me too!" chimed in Marietta, with blushing cheeks. "Oh, Aunt Nancy, we've made it up an' we're as good friends as ever!"

She looked proudly up at the tall figure at her side. Love was in her eyes—love and pride. And in the face of Silas Plummer was a look of happiness which had long been a stranger there.

The dinner was a great success. The big turkey was roasted to a delicious brown, the cranberry sauce was rich crimson, the mashed potatoes white as snowdrifts, and the Hubbard squash a golden yellow. The mince pie was Aunt Nancy's best, and the coffee was of her famous brewing. It was a glorious dinner, and Uncle Isaac said so after the guests were gone.

"But land, Nancy! I believe them two wouldn't have known the difference if it had been plain salt pork an' johnny-cake. My! my! to think what a good matchmaker I am. It's just amazin', ain't it?"

And Aunt Nancy smiled serenely and said it was.

TERRIBLE SUFFERING

THIS YOUNG WOMAN APPEALED IN VAIN FOR HELP.

When Hope had Almost Settled Into Utter Despair Relief Came from an Unexpected Source.

Mrs. Emma Heidebreder, of No. 1323 Hickory street, Burlington, Iowa, whose husband is an employee of the Rand Lumber Co., tells a story of pitiable suffering:

"For about five years," she says, "I had a host of physical ills that kept me an invalid and puzzled the doctors. Some of them thought I was going into consumption. At times I was so weak that I could not comb my hair or even wash my face. Then excruciating pains ran suddenly up my thigh and I had to be carried to bed screaming in my agony. I could no longer do my work and the strain upon my husband's purse was very heavy. I craved food but what I ate only gave me discomfort. My liver was torpid, and often I had to be carried to the door for air to save me from suffocating.

"The worst was the pain which seemed as if my thigh were being pushed out of my body. The best doctors could do was to deaden it by narcotics. Once they thought I could not live for more than two days. In one of my worst attacks, a friend said: 'Why don't you try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills? They are the only thing that ever helped my rheumatism.'

"I took his advice. After using one box I felt better, and I continued to use the pills for three or four months with steady improvement until I was well. For four years I have been able to do all my household work, and no longer have to take medicine for any serious trouble. I gave one box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to a man on crutches because of rheumatism and advised my market woman to buy a box when she was complaining of the same trouble. I heard that he was soon able to throw his crutches away, and she told me she had got rid of the rheumatism by the use of one box and could not thank me too much."

Testimony multiplies as to the magnificent curative powers of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People in cases of rheumatism, neuralgia, nervous headache, palpitation of the heart and all forms of weakness in either male or female. They are sold by all druggists throughout the world.

The little girl was describing a football game. "There was a lot o' men fightin' over a yeller squash," she said, "but I don't know which of 'em got it."

HISTORIC FAKES

Capture Money of American Sightseers in London.

Not long ago a more or less official investigation was made into the history of the picturesque Fleet street barber shop in London that for years has been described by its proprietor as "formerly the palace of Henry VIII. and Cardinal Wolsey." The investigating committee's "findings" have just been made public, says the correspondent of the Washington Post, and they prove conclusively that the place never was a "palace" at all and that neither the much married sovereign nor his much-tried prelate ever lived there.

This is an uncommonly interesting development, because it means that of the three London establishments that Americans practically support because they believe them to be interesting links with the past, two are absolute "fakes." And it has been pointed out in the London press only recently that while the third of these places has real claims to historic interest, its right to the distinction on the strength of which it has been a gold mine to its owner is open to a lot of doubt.

To the thousands of Americans who have visited and patronized the quaint little waste paper establishment in Portsmouth street, Lincoln's Inn Fields, that is called "The Old Curiosity Shop Immortalized by Charles Dickens," it may be rather a shock to hear that—its proprietor's assurances to the contrary notwithstanding—the building is no more the one where Little Nell and her grandfather lived than the Fleet street barber shop is a former residence of Bluff King Hal.

And though it seems a pity to upset a pleasing tradition, investigation proves that while "The Old Cheshire Cheese" in Fleet street may have been visited by Dr. Samuel Johnson, it almost certainly was not one of his favorite haunts and not the scene of his favorite symposia with Boswell and Oliver Goldsmith. Yet probably nine out of every ten Americans who visit London make a point of either lunching or dining at the "Cheese" in order to see "Johnson's Seat" there, just as nine out of every ten pay visits to and increase the revenues of the "Old Curiosity Shop" and the "Palace of Henry VIII. and Cardinal Wolsey."

"Mamma, is that all the pie I can have?" "Yes, dear. It is quite enough for such a small boy." "Then, mamma, please cut it in two pieces and give me one piece at a time."

TILL NOON.

The Simple Dish That Keeps One Vigorous and Well Fed.

When the doctor takes his own medicine and the grocer eats the food he recommends some confidence comes to the observer.

A Grocer of Ossian, Ind., had a practical experience with food worth anyone's attention.

He says: "Six years ago I became so weak from stomach and bowel trouble that I was finally compelled to give up all work in my store, and in fact all sorts of work, for about four years. The last year I was confined to the bed nearly all of the time, and much of the time unable to retain food of any sort on my stomach. My bowels were badly constipated continually and I lost in weight from 165 pounds down to 88 pounds.

"When at the bottom of the ladder I changed treatment entirely and started in on Grape-Nuts and cream for nourishment. I used absolutely nothing but this for about three months. I slowly improved until I got out of bed and began to move about.

"I have been improving regularly and now in the past two years have been working about fifteen hours a day in the store and never felt better in my life.

"During these two years I have never missed a breakfast of Grape-Nuts and cream, and often have it two meals a day, but the entire breakfast is always made of Grape-Nuts and cream alone.

"Since commencing the use of Grape-Nuts I have never used anything to stimulate the action of the bowels, a thing I had to do for years, but this food keeps me regular and in fine shape, and I am growing stronger and heavier every day.

"My customers, naturally, have been interested and I am compelled to answer a great many questions about Grape-Nuts.

"Some people would think that a simple dish of Grape-Nuts and cream would not carry one through to the noonday meal, but it will and in the most vigorous fashion."

53 Cottage St., Melrose, Mass.
Jan. 11th, 1904.

Dear Sir:
"Ever since I was in the Army, I had more or less kidney trouble, and within the past year it became so severe and complicated that I suffered everything and was much alarmed—my strength and power was fast leaving me. I saw an advertisement of Swamp-Root and wrote asking for advice. I began the use of the medicine and noted a decided improvement after taking Swamp-Root only a short time.

I continued its use and am thankful to say that I am entirely cured and strong. In order to be very sure about this, I had a doctor examine some of my water to-day and he pronounced it all right and in splendid condition.

I know that your Swamp-Root is purely vegetable and does not contain any harmful drugs. Thanking you for my complete recovery and recommending Swamp-Root to all sufferers I am,"

Very truly yours,
I. C. RICHARDSON.

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but it promptly cures kidney, liver and bladder troubles, the symptoms of which are—obliged to pass your water frequently night and day, smarting or irritation in passing, brickdust or sediment in the urine, headache, backache, lame back, dizziness, poor digestion, sleeplessness, nervousness, heart disturbance due to bad kidney trouble, skin eruptions from bad blood, neuralgia, rheumatism, diabetes, bloating, irritability, wornout feeling, lack of ambition, loss of flesh, sallow complexion, or Bright's disease.

If your water, when allowed to remain undisturbed in a glass or bottle for twenty-four hours, forms a sediment or settling or has a cloudy appearance, it is evidence that your kidneys and bladder need immediate attention.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is for sale at drug stores the world over in bottles of two sizes and two prices—fifty cents and one dollar. Remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

EDITORIAL NOTE.—In order to prove the wonderful merits of Swamp-Root you may have a sample bottle and a book of valuable information, both sent absolutely free by mail. The book contains many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women cured. The value and success of Swamp-Root are so well known that our readers are advised to send for a sample bottle. In sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure to say you read this generous offer in this paper. The genuineness of this offer is guaranteed.
