Our Candidate for Congress.

The best known man in the great south-west is Thomas B. Catron, who this year leads the Republican hosts of New Mexico to victory and battle.

The nomination came to him unsought and unsolicited, as recognition of his eminent fitness for the great task.

All shades of opinion within the republican party converged in the belief, that his vigorous personality and commanding character were demanded by the exigencies of the time.

Catron is bound by no pledge but his whole life is a pledge.

For all the twenty six years that he has spent in New Mexico his energy has been devoted to the upbuilding of the Territory and the elevation of its people.

For all of those years he has stood in the advance ranks of party thought and purpose. During all that time he has been true to party friends and people. The performance of the past is all a guarantee of profession for the future.

The impetuous force of his character has brought him into many collisions. His enemies have been almost as numerous as the conflicts. But neither the battle nor the victory have left in him any of the bitterness of strife. The love of the man is as great as his force, his heart as tender as his extreme is rough.

The generous hand has known no enemy in its charity, as the great heart knows no [illegible] a friend.

Hundreds of [illegible] New Mexicans [illegible] never voted for a republican will not only vote, but labor for the success of Catron.

With the aggressive, forceful and [illegible] Catron as our representative in Congress, something will be accomplished. The next two years will not be full, as the last eight have been, of promises unfulfilled, of hopes deferred and great interests sacrificed. With Catron as our delegate we may rest assured that "Home rule for the Territory" will be a fact and not merely a glittering generality for a party platform. Justice will be done the citizens of New Mexico in the matter of their just claims against the government. The Territory will receive its just share of the favors of congress, and statehood may be expected as assured by the action of the next congress, if not of the present.

Amenities.

Our esteemed contemporary at Lake Oaks finds no argument against the candidacy or the election of T. B. Catron, except an abbreviation of his name. Such an argument is quite upon our contemporary's intellectual level.

The official organ of the county of Lincoln promises to speak out for the Democratic ticket at some future time! In view of the "circumstances" we await its deliverances with impatient interest.

From the Portland Transcript.

An eminent thinker of our own time has characterized the movement of the present age as one from liberty to unity. In other words, it is a growing recognition of the identity of the individual with society. The American revolution may be termed a movement from servitude to liberty. Nowhere is the spirit of that time more clearly and boldly formulated than in the Declaration of Independence. "We hold," it says, "these truths to be self-evident: That all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed." This was a declaration of individual independence in direct contradiction of the doctrine of the divine rights of kings, which then prevailed. As human affairs have become more and more complex, and each part more and more mutually dependent upon every other part, there has been a growing appreciation of another principle which subordinates every right of the individual to the welfare of the community. This is the movement toward unity. This principle has long been recognized within certain limitations as in the right of eminent domain and as applied to quasi-public corporations; but now there is a strong and increasing tendency to extend it to private enterprises as well, especially where carried on through the medium of corporations. Long established ideas as to the nature of industry are being uprooted and overturned; wealth is coming to be regarded rather as a public trust than as a private possession. So strongly and delicately involved has the machinery of industry become that every interruption however trivial, is felt along every nerve of the social body. The Homestead strikes, the troubles among the miners of Idaho, the convict war among the miners of Tennessee, the strikes among the granite industries of New England, and the almost endless list of strikes upon various railroad systems; and the loss and inconvenience they have entailed upon a long-suffering public, have given new emphasis to this movement. Whatever the immediate cause of these strikes, lockouts and boycotts, —and they often seem trivial enough,—it is apparent that there is behind them a more profound cause, deep and wide-spread, which is shaking the very foundations of industry. This must be recognized before there can be any permanent solution of the problem. Many questions are involved, all vital and fundamental, and have the sanction of long acceptance. Is the doctrine of competition grand under present industrial conditions? Must the laborer sell his labor for what he can get, or is he entitled to an equitable share in the profits which are the results of his toil? Is corporate capital private property or a public trust? Shall private enterprise be a law unto itself or be subjected to public control? Shall disputes between labor and capital be settled by mutual conflict, while the public stands by and suffers until superior strength and endurance gives the victory to one or the other, or shall they be submitted to public boards of arbitration? These are some of the questions that are pressing for solution; and it is impossible to avoid the conviction that they are to overshadow every other topic which is likely to come before this generation. The movement toward unity is unmistakable.

Several queer cases of accidental poisoning have been reported lately. The other day, in Chicago, a doctor in his office, treated two of his friends to a drink of carbolic acid, under the impression that he was dispensing rare old rye. In Dutchess county, N. Y., a preacher gave his congregation vitriol, believing it to be communion wine. Old topers always sniff their drinks before swallowing them, and it would be well for everybody to do the same. —Ex.

Mr. H. L. Thurber, of the firm of Thurber & Co., New York City, the largest grocery house in the United States, recently said to a friend that he had been in California before fruit culture was thought of, and that he had been there several times since, within the last few years; that he had lately traversed the entire Pecos Valley, and had studied its conditions thoroughly. He said he believed that the Pecos Valley would, in time, excel any portion of California as a fruit producing country. Roswell Record.

Mann Satterwhite came down from the Feliz, Thursday, and states that the recent heavy rains in that section have made the country look splendid. The grass is growing finely, and horses are looking well. He has 160 acres on the Feliz under fence, and partially cultivated, and is breaking up 300 acres more. He has comfortable barns, etc. He is also engaged in clearing and breaking up 100 acres for Milton Shields; 50 for Otis Burk; the same amount for W. H. Reed, and 100 for Franklin Campbell. Roswell Register.

Republican District Committee.

Notice is hereby given that the Republican District Convention, for the Legislative District composed of the counties of Lincoln, Chaves and Eddy, will be held at Roswell, N. M., on Saturday, September 24, 1892, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for the Legislature, and to transact such further business as may be necessary.

The apportionment of delegates to said Convention is as follows:

Lincoln county, 8 delegates.
Chaves county, 4 "
Eddy county, 4 "

No proxy will be admitted unless the same is presented by a delegate coming from the county wherein such proxy issued.

The several counties are earnestly requested to perfect their organizations, so that full delegations may be in attendance.

By order of the Committee.

DEMETRIO PEREA,
Chm'n Leg. Dist. Com.

A. C. ROGERS, Sec'y.

Great excitement prevails among cattlemen in Chase, Greenwood and Lyon counties over the re-appearance of Spanish fever among cattle. Yesterday Dr. Richards, a veterinary surgeon of this city, went to Greenwood county and examined some cattle owned by H. C. Jackson, at his ranch on the south fork of the Verdigris. A post-mortem was held and it was found that the cause of the death of the cattle was Spanish fever. A large number have been exposed, and it is feared that heavy losses will ensue. Mr Jackson has lost about forty head of fine steers that would average 1,300 pounds each. There has been reported 900 head of cattle, which will average at least $20 per head, making the total loss nearly $20,000. At a meeting at Bazaar a few days ago there were 100 people present and much excitement prevailed.—Stock Drover.

Two Soldiers.

The armies they had ceased to fight,
The night was still and dark,
And many thousands on the field
Were lying stiff and stark.
The stretcher men had come along
And gathered all they could,
A hundred surgeons worked the night
Behind the clump of wood.

They flashed the lanterns in my face
And as they hurried by
The sergeant looked and said "He's dead"
And I made no reply.
The bullet had gone through my breast—
No wonder I was still
But once will I be nearer death
Than when upon that hill.

A gray clad picket came along
Upon his midnight beat;
He came so near me that I tried
To move and touch his feet.
At once he heard and felt my breast
Where life still fought at bay;
No one who loved me could have done
More than this man of gray.

Over me, all chilled with blood and dew,
His blanket soft he spread,
A crimson sheaf of wheat to be night
A pillow for my head.
Then knelt beside me for an hour
And bathed my lips and brow;
But for the man who was my foe
I'd not be living now.

Then as the coming daylight showed
He bent his lips to say:
"God spare you brother, though you wear,
The blue and I the gray!"

The sounds of war are silent now,
We call no man our foe,
But soldier hearts cannot forget
The scenes of long ago.
Dear are the ones who stood with us
To struggle or die,
No one can oftener breathe their
Or love them more than I

But from my life I'd give a year
That gray clad man to see,
To clasp in love the foeman's hand
Who saved my life to me.

A JOURNEY THROUGH EUROPE.

It is estimated that there are 300,000 blind people in Europe.

In Scotland the semi-annual fair for hiring farm servants and fixing rates of wages is still an institution.

The license law of Sweden forbids any person buying drink without purchasing something to eat at the same time.

Through a pneumatic tube seven hundred miles in length letters are whirled between Paris and Berlin in thirty-five minutes—at the speed of twenty miles a minute.

The average length of life is greater in Norway than in any other country on the globe. This is attributed to the fact that the temperature is cool and uniform throughout the year.

On an average each inhabitant of France consumes fifty liters or quarts of wine in a year. In Paris they do better—or worse—with an average consumption of one hundred and ninety-six liters.

A Spanish gentleman, accompanied by his wife, has succeeded in performing the feat of crossing the Andes in a carriage. They started from the Argentine Republic and landed at Catama, a distance of three hundred and sixty miles. The vehicle was drawn by three mules. The journey was accomplished in eleven days.

FUNNY BITS.

"Turn's poison in the ice cream now," said he. "Oh then let us die together," said she.—N. Y. Press.

Hideous Thought.—Patient (who has been in railroad collision, feebly)—"Doctor, can I recover?" Doctor—"What?" Patient—"Damages, of course."—Yonkers Herald.

"Papa," said a little girl, who had been getting a great many satisfactory answers to a great many questions, "what's the use of our having a dictionary in the house while you are here?"

Country Boarder (to miner who has previously invested in a dictionary)—"Oh! you must look among the B's for celery, not the Z's."—Miner—"Well, how's O to know? What's good of a dictionary without a binder?"—Tidbits.

The Bachelor Housewife.—"Shall I dress the chicken my man?" said the domestic to the young housewife. "Does the chicken?" Oh! yes of course, and see that it is well dressed. So much depends on appearances nowadays."—Detroit Free Press.

A LITTLE WIT.

Whatever good we demand in others ought to be found in us.—Rome Herald.

The fellow sitting on the fence can always see the farmer straighter than the man behind the plow.—Columbus Post.

Half have been married because they had to stay at home and darn the girls' stockings when they should have been allowed to go a-courting.—Rome Herald.

If the telephone girl has a soft voice it is next to impossible for the man at the other end of the wire to believe that she isn't pretty.—Somerville Journal.

By the time a girl gets too old to take much interest in paper dolls she is quite old enough to take a good deal of interest in paper dollars.—Somerville Journal.

When you see the organist and all of the church choir holding an animated conversation you cannot be dead certain that the text is not the text of it.—Binghamton Leader.

AROUND THE LIBRARIES.

Last year 3,000,000 books were issued to the people of London from free libraries.

The Astor library of San Francisco, founded by Mr. Adolph Sutro, contains about 50,000 volumes, many of which have been selected with reference to the needs of students in various subjects.

The librarian of a public library says that some of the delicately bound books in his charge are injured when handled by persons wearing soiled gloves. In some of the European libraries gloved readers are not permitted to handle the books.

Drexel Institute, Philadelphia, has been presented by George W. Childs with the portraits and autographs of every president of the United States, and also with portraits of Thackeray, Dickens, Bulwer, Lowell, Hood, Bryant, Willis and Longfellow.

DEW AND VINE.

Twelve average tea plants produce one pound of tea.

Farmers in the New England district of Australia are about to turn their attention to grape growing.

The business of importing watermelons from Mexico to the United States is reaching large proportions.

The handsome and fragrant blue-blossomed vine known as the wistaria was named in honor of Dr. Caspar Wistar, a Philadelphia physician.

Lapland, a country which we always associate with arctic snowdrifts, icebergs, etc., has 800 species of flowering plants, 60 ferns and over 100 species of mosses and lichens.

The American elm is named by American Gardening as the ideal street tree for the reason that its top as a rule is V-shaped and does not require so much trimming as do round-headed maples and linden.

COMMERCIAL FACTS.

Russia exports every year more than a million pounds of caviar, which is prepared from the roe of the sturgeon. It is "caviar" to the general.

Forty-seven million oysters were landed in England and Wales in 1891, against something under 37,000,000 in 1890.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Louisville, Ky., sold more tobacco last year than ever before—124,018 hogsheads. Cincinnati is the next largest market, with sales of 119,004 hogsheads.

The Italian bark Mariani brought from Asia Minor a cargo of 650 tons of bird seed, the largest importation ever known to come from that port in one bottom.

PLOWHANDLE PLODDINGS.

Some people dress for work, but never work for dress.

High-priced clothes and low-priced cattle will not pay the mortgage on the farm.

A lawyer can raise more off the line fences than the farmer off all the lands between them.

GOSSIP OF AMERICA.

In England the city of Chicago is called "the food dispensary of the universe."

Kansas has four cities in which the vote of the women is larger than that of the men. The entire set of "councilmen" are women.

Fresh baths are advocated in St. Louis as a means of preventing the loss of about forty boys who annually drown in the Mississippi river at that point.

The old monument to Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry, hero of Put-in-Bay, that now stands in the public square at Cleveland, is about to be removed to make room for a soldiers' and sailors' monument.

A Denver paper says it is the season of mixed costumes. A woman appeared on Washington street recently wearing a black lace dress, russet shoes and a blue sailor hat, and carrying a tan colored covert coat on her arm.

STATISTICAL SHREDS.

Three and one-half millions of people are always on the sea.

The population of America increases by 7,000 persons a day.

Most of the immigrants last year came from Germany, the fatherland furnishing 103,000. Ireland sent 60,000 and Italy a few more than that number.

In America, as in France, the average size of families has been steadily decreasing for the last half century. The average is now 4.04, where in 1850 it was 5.6.

More dogs go mad in cold weather than in hot, as shown by statistics. Canada and all northern countries show a large excess of cases, while in India and Africa the disease is exceptional.

All About Shorthand:

This is the title of a 32 page pamphlet of information, containing answers to all the questions an inquirer would be likely to ask about books, instruction, salaries of stenographers, how to secure positions, etc., etc. It will show what young men have done at home on farms and in workshops; how from the humblest beginnings the highest success has been reached by learning this art at place-meal study, and while pursuing other occupations. The success of stenographers as compared with the success of young men in any other vocation in life, will be seen to be marvelous and encouraging. The author of this system was himself a farmer's boy and learned the art while following the plow. The information he gives in this pamphlet will be of interest and value to every young man (or young woman either) who must earn their owning. The pamphlet is mailed for 5 one cent postage stamps to anyone writing for it and mentioning the paper in which this article appears.

THE LOCAL BUDGET

There is one case of diphtheria in the hospital at Fort Stanton.

Geo. Curry, who has been sick at Fort Stanton for the last two weeks, is slowly recovering.

Miss Eugenia Roberts is in town to remain a few weeks before going to her home in Texas.

Judge Cronin left town, Wednesday, with Mr. Paul Mayer, for a week's visit at White Oaks.

A baby girl came to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Norman, on the morning of Sept. 8th.

A session of Probate Court and a meeting of the County Commissioners have made Lincoln quite lively, this week.

Peter McCourt, who not many months ago, was running a tin-shop in White Oaks, lately made a rich strike at Cripple Creek, Colo. and sold out for $100,000.

Mr. Frank Cox was in town Wednesday. He reports fine crops of oats and hay and the largest crop of fruit ever raised on the Ponasco.

Mr. Thos. B. McCourt died at his home in White Oaks, last Friday, of dropsy. He was Superintendent of Schools for Lincoln county.

Mr. John Newcomb brought in a load of Bartlett pears, of phenomenal size, from his ranch on the Ruidoso, last week.

Wm. Pragor, of Roswell, passed through town Tuesday on his way home from White Oaks.

A cloud burst in the mountains south of town, last Sunday afternoon flooded our streets for a few hours, but did no damage.

Mabel, the only surviving child of Mr. and Mrs. Thornton is very low with diphtheritic scarlet fever, the disease of which her sister died last Monday, and there is little if any hope of her recovery. Truly, sorrow is laying a heavy hand on the afflicted parents.

Mr William Rosenthal, of the firm of Rosenthal & Co. of this place, and Miss Jennie Weinberg, will be married Oct. 1st, at Hann, Germany. Mr. Rosenthal writes that they will be in Lincoln the 1st of November.

At their late meeting, the County Commissioners appointed Mr. W. S. Ryan County Superintendent of Schools, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. McCourt—an appointment which does credit to the judgment and good sense of the Board.

DIED—Eva, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Thornton of Lincoln, N. M., on Monday September 5th, 1892, at 4:30 p. m., age, 3 years 7 months and 8 days. Buried Tuesday at the Fritz Ranch Cemetery.

"A wee bit lassie"—who carried joy and happiness in every lineament of her sweetly beautiful baby face—Jack Thornton's baby—little Eva—has been taken to heaven by the angels. This world was too cold, cruel, and the angels carried her home. Our hearts are sad to lose our little sweetheart—everybody's sweetheart—and the day is gloomy in that the sun shines less bright. But we bow to the stern decree. God was just; He saw one of his angels being buffeted in the storm of life and he called it home. In "suffering children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for such is the Kingdom of heaven," indeed is that Kingdom heaven. God's will be done—we bow. Amen.

The Santa Fe Route, with its usual promptness, has not only arranged for reduced rates of less than one fare for the round trip to the National Encampment at Washington in September, but has also secured Free Sleeping Accommodations for all old soldiers after arrival in Washington.

New and commodious barracks have been erected in the Washington Monumont Park, in which we will reserve quarters for all old soldiers and G. A. R. if application is made in advance.

Arrangements have also been made to serve meals in temporary dining rooms in the vicinity of the barracks at very moderate prices.

Special trains containing Pullmen and Tourist Sleepers, Chair Cars and coaches will be arranged from Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico and Oklahoma, on which we will reserve accommodations if advised of your wishes.

Stop-overs will be allowed east of our lines.

As the Santa Fe is the only line in the West offering these inducements, it would be advisable to make early application to the undersigned or to Geo. T. Nicholson, G. P. & T. A., Topeka, for such accommodations as you may desire.

You shouldn't fight with neighbors' children, said a Pittsburg Sunday school teacher to one of her scholars: "you should heap coals of fire on their heads." "I can't," was the reply; "we burn natural gas."

Nature seems to have provided that no poison which acts externally shall have any effect internally, and vice versa. Thus the most deadly snake venom can be swallowed with impunity, the juice of the stomach presumably decomposing it and rendering it harmless. Many experiments says the Washington Post, have been made to prove this On one occasion recorded by Humboldt, one person swallowed the whole of the poison that could be obtained from four Italian vipers without suffering any bad consequences. In the same way the poison from the envenomed arrows of South American Indians can be swallowed with safety, provided only that there is no wound on the lips or inside of the mouth.—Ex.

Old prospectors tell of their discovery of the entrances of caves in the Grand Canon of the Colorado. As they had nothing but candles, the strong draft of air blowing thro' the caves from the entrance always extinguished the candles, preventing exploration to any great depth. They believe there are great caves leading from the sides of the canon under the mountains of rocks which persons properly equipped for the purpose, could explore with little difficulty. In view of the fact that persons who have tried to drill wells on the high mesas in the surrounding country have lost their drills in the bowels of the earth, and strong currents of air would come whistling up though the hole made by the drill, it would seem that the section was all honey combed with deep underground caverns and these air currents come from the openings in the sides of the Grande canon.—Flagstaff Democrat.

The Las Vegas Stock Grower hits the nail square on the head when it says: If we are to attract immigration and capital to New Mexico we must advertise its resources ourselves. A country whose people are too thoughtless or too shiftless to assist every effort to forward its development will never secure the attention of the pushing and progressive people who are looking for homes and investment in the west. This is a pointer for the people of those sections of New Mexico in which no effort is being made to prepare an exhibit for the Territorial fair.

THE HEAD.

It Has Some Well-Defined National Characteristics.

It is interesting to observe how the shape of a man's head acts as an index to his nationality—that is, if you know how to consult the index. As a proof of this, notice how long and narrow the average American head is. Hats made in England will not fit such a head at all, the head being so long "fore and aft" as to make the hats too wide at the sides. With the Germans it is the reverse, if any difference. The head of a true Rhinelander is wide at the temples; if the hat is the exact length, in nine cases out of ten it has to be stretched sideways in order to make it fit. English heads are wide, but not so pronounced as those of the Germans. There is more of a "sliding scale" with them as to the relative length and breadth. The Celtic head is almost invariably round or oval, and without pronounced phrenological "bumps." For general smoothness of the cranial protuberance, the Italian comes next to the Celts, either of the two beating the classic Greeks in that respect. Odd as it may seem, anatomists declare that the Turkish skull is almost identical in shape, size, etc., with that of the enlightened nineteenth century inhabitants of the United States. Hat dealers, such as makers, furnishers, etc., say that the heads of all nations are gradually growing larger. In 1860 the average hat used was six and seven-eighths, to-day it is seven and a quarter.—St. Louis Republic.

THE ONE THING NEEDFUL.

Advice of a Parisian Gentleman to the Comte de Chambord.

A gentleman, who believed that to an important extent clothes made the man, even when the man is a royal personage, visited Comte de Chambord at Frohsdorf, a few years ago. Comte de Chambord was the grandson of Charles X., the last Bourbon king of France, and the French royalists called him Henri V.; and hoped, until his death, in 1883, to restore him to the throne. The marquis, of whom this story is told, was a Parisian, a man of fashion, and an ardent royalist. Comte de Chambord was glad of an opportunity to talk over political affairs with a man who must know what was going on in Paris, so, after a few minutes' chat, he said: "Marquis, it is not often that I have a chance to talk with anyone so well informed on the signs of the times in Paris as yourself. Now, in case I return to Paris, what would you advise me to do?" He waited for a bit of profound political philosophy. The marquis looked at "Henri V," and hesitated. Should he venture on a great liberty? But his advice had been asked; as a loyal subject, he would give it frankly. "Sire—monseigneur," he stammered, "I think you had better give up your German tailor, and have your trousers made in Paris." "My trousers!" "Yes, sire; pardon me, but your trousers are out of fashion."—San Francisco Argonaut.
