COMMISSIONERS' PROCEEDINGS.

A Special Session to Canvass the County Seat Election Returns.

On Monday, August 23, 1909, the honorable board of county commissioners met at Lincoln, N. M., pursuant to adjournment of the regular July, 1909, meeting.

Present:—Robert A. Taylor, chairman; C. W. Wingfield and R. A. Duran, members. C. A. Stevens, sheriff; J. G. Riggle, clerk.

The minutes of a special session of the board of county commissioners of the county of Lincoln, territory of New Mexico, regularly called to assemble at the courthouse in said Lincoln county on 23rd of August, 1909, were read and approved.

It appearing that a certified copy of the order of this board, made on the 7th day of July, 1909, calling an election to be held on the 17th of August, 1909, on the proposition to remove the county seat to Carrizozo in said Lincoln county has been published for four consecutive weeks immediately preceding such election, in the Carrizozo News, a newspaper of general circulation published in said county, and by hand bills posted up in three of the most public places in each precinct in the county at least four weeks prior to said election, held on the 17th of August, 1909.

And it further appearing that the returns of said election held in said Lincoln county, pursuant to said order aforesaid, on the 17th day of August, 1909, have been received, the board, acting as a board of canvassers, duly proceeded to carefully examine the poll books and certificates of each precinct in said county, and continuing in session for the purpose of such examination, canvass and ascertainment continuously. The said board having duly canvassed and ascertained the results of said election as shown by the face of said returns from the voting precincts of the county upon the question whether the county seat should be removed from Lincoln to Carrizozo in said county, do find, as the result of said canvass and ascertainment that 900 votes were cast for Carrizozo and 613 for Lincoln, and that the total number of votes cast upon the proposition was 1513, a majority of 287 of the votes cast being for the removal of the county seat to Carrizozo.

It is, therefore, considered, ordered and declared by the board of county commissioners that Carrizozo is the county seat of the county of Lincoln and territory of New Mexico.

A NEW COUNTY ROAD.

The following county road was ordered by the board, commencing at the southwest corner of the north $\frac{1}{2}$ northeast $\frac{1}{4}$, section 20, township 9 south of range 13 east; thence running in a northeasterly direction one half mile; thence crossing the northwest corner of section 21 to a point to intersect the Nogal-Angus road near R. C. Skinner's house, then the proposed Mesa-Capitan road and the Nogal-Angus road, to follow the section line between sections 16 and 21 east for one half mile; and thence running in a southeast direction to the northwest corner of the homestead of W. R. Sterling, which is also the SW corner of W. C. Leo homestead the Mesa-Capitan road thence following the lines between said homesteads one-half mile east, thence following the most practical route and crossing the northeast corner of Isaac Harding homestead, thence crossing SE corner of section 14, thence northeast across section 13 to Angus and Capitan road.

The Angus-Nogal road to leave the Mesa-Capitan road at the NW corner of said W. R. Sterling homestead and follow the west line of said homestead south one-half mile to intersect the old Nogal-Angus road.

No further business. The Board adjourned to meet August 30, 1909.

J. G. RIGGLE,
Clerk.

Road to be Surveyed.

We have just been shown a letter from Goy. Curry, which conveys the glad tidings that the territorial engineer will begin the survey of a road from Roswell next Monday, leading through Lincoln county. The survey the governor thinks, will be completed in about two weeks, after which work will immediately begin, and a substantial thoroughfare will be built, in six or eight months through the entire county

Lincoln Renews the Fight.

Contrary to public announcement, Lincoln is again in the field and proposes to contest Carrizozo's right to the county seat. They secured an order from Judge Cooley restraining the commissioners from moving the records and prisoners until the injunction pending shall have been disposed of. Whether the injunction refers to the old suit, which their attorney had been instructed to withdraw, or whether it is a brand new proceeding is not known.

Just why a telegram from the judge to the board of commissioners was deemed necessary is not apparent; for, in the first place, the board had no idea of proceeding in a contrary manner, and, in the second place, the law did not empower them to do more than they did at the time. It seems, therefore, that the telegram was so much waste paper, unless it was sent to reassure the Lincoln people that the wicked Carrizozoans would not be allowed to stealthily remove records, prisoners, etc., at the hour when graveyards yawn.

We understand the Lincoln people intend to attack the constitutionality of the law whereby the election was ordered. We understand further that they will not attack the validity of the act, as they have decided that the mere stealing of the slip containing the signatures of the Council and House officials, was not sufficient to invalidate the law.

In justice to Dr. Laws, be it said, he stands by the decision of the committee published in our last issue, and has dropped out of the fight entirely.

The board of county commissioners having declared that Carrizozo is the county seat, the question arises that should court be held at Lincoln this fall will the decisions hold? We are inclined to say no; as the law is plain that court shall be held in the county seat, and Carrizozo is the county seat. However, we expect that matters will be adjusted before October and that court will be held here, as the hearing on the injunction will take place on Sept. 13.

Sergeant W. E. Dudley of the Territorial Mounted Police, was in town Monday and Tuesday.

A Sash and Door Factory.

As a result of Carrizozo being declared the county seat of Lincoln county at the late election, a feeling of confidence in the future of this town is already apparent. Negotiations are under way between a local man and an outside capitalist to establish a sash and door factory here in which all kinds of mill work will be turned out to order, and at prices considerably less than it can be imported for. In a conversation with one of the parties to the project we learned that the matter has been under consideration for some months, the deal depending on Carrizozo becoming the county seat. As soon as arrangements can be completed, work on the building will be commenced and the necessary machinery ordered. He stated further that he expected to see the factory in operation by next spring.

A Dangerous Flood.

Clifford Hulbert and family were up from Lincoln yesterday, and Mrs. Hulbert and children went to Three Rivers last night to visit Mrs. Hulbert's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Nabours.

Mr. Hulbert told us, while here, of a disaster that overtook himself and family, while driving up the canyon, above Capitan, on their way to Carrizozo, one day last week. The road this side of Capitan follows a deep canyon for a short distance, and just as they drove down into the canyon Mrs. Hulbert remarked that it would be a dangerous place to meet a flood. Mr. Hulbert pulled up his team at once and, about that time his wife shouted: "There it comes." Looking up the canyon about 100 feet ahead, a wall of water, at least 4 feet high, was seen coming down upon them. The father and mother made haste to get out taking the children with them, the last child being safely landed on the bank as the flood struck the team and wagon. The wagon and team were hurled down stream, the wagon overturned, with its load of vegetables, camp outfit, etc., and the wagon becoming a mass of wreckage, as well as an entire loss of its contents. The running gear of the wagon was later recovered and the team saved from drowning. The loss was considerable, but, considering the situation, it might have been much worse.

INCREASE AS THEY TRAVEL.

Circumstance That Shows How Stories Are Magnified in Their Repetition.

England's recent fright over an imagined airship from Germany is paralleled by the amazing tiger scare which put central and south Wales in commotion about seven years ago. It was reported that a tiger had escaped from a traveling menagerie at Brecon. Mangled sheep were said to mark its course across country to Llanrindod Wells, some farmers lost their dogs and on market days at Bulth, Brecon, Penybout and Llanmarach the wild beast was the center of rumor. Country schools were closed because parents feared to let their children go along the roads, and bands of armed men sought to hunt the tiger down.

This state of terror lasted a week, though no person was found who had actually seen the tiger, but only people who "had heard that some one else," and so forth. Then the truth was hunted down, and the origin of the whole affair discovered at the remote hamlet of Eberedw. One night the schoolmaster there, in dismissing the children, playfully had warned them not to loiter in going home lest a tiger should get them.

The scared children accepted the warning as real, and hastened home with stories of a savage beast lurking behind hedges or growling in ravines. And so the story grew, as stories do under the culture of imagination.

Trumpeting Ancient German Chorals.

The most noted ornament of the town is the Rathaus, which no artist who visits Rothenburg fails to sketch. It is of a most imposing beauty, consisting of an older Gothic building, dating back to the middle of the thirteenth century, with an elaborate renaissance facade. It was from its darkling dungeons that many of the instruments of torture in the museum at Nuremberg came, for Rothenburg was not tender in its treatment of prisoners. The earlier building has a high square tower crowned with a bell cupola, where thrice a week the choir of St. Jakob's, a reverend church lying within its shadow, painfully climbs, armed with trumpets and other musical instruments. The sweet Lutheran chorale is repeated four times, as the musicians respectively face the four points of the compass, and the ceremony, so in keeping with the quaint, old-time life of the town, is one of the visitor's unforgettable memories of Rothenburg.—From a Rothenburg (Bavaria) Letter to Vogue.

Not Honored in Old Age.

Warships, unlike war horses, stand small chance of being turned out to grass when their work is over. The old British battleship Edinburgh, which is on the sale list, is to be used as a target. If the vessel survives the gun fire it is probable that she will be subjected to an attack of torpedoes, to discover what would be the effect of a well-placed shot with a Whitehead on the bottom of a ship of the Dreadnought type, which a section of the Edinburgh's bottom can be made approximately to represent.

French Officer Rival of Maxim.

Col. Humbert, a retired officer of the French artillery, has invented a gun silencer like that of Hiram Maxim, as it employs the principle of muffling the sound by confining the gases of the explosion and allowing them to escape gradually. Col. Humbert, however, uses simple horizontal cells, whereas the cells in Maxim's device are arranged on the principle of the gyroscope. Col. Humbert's silencer is much heavier than Maxim's.

TRAINER TORN IN FIGHT WITH LION

THREE ASSISTANTS BATTLE DESPERATELY TO RESCUE ONE ARMED VICTIM.

PISTOL BROUGHT INTO USE

Men Armed with Iron Prongs Finally Force Animal Back Into Cage After Long Contest in Narrow Passage.

New York.—Pinned in a dark, narrow passageway of an animal show arena, at Coney Island, three men fought desperately for more than half an hour the other morning with a full-grown African lion to save the life of Capt. "Jack" Bonavita, a one-armed lion trainer. The remains of Capt. Bonavita's one arm was badly torn, and the rescuers themselves were injured.

The lion, which was shipped to Coney Island from Mombasa several weeks before Col. Roosevelt started for that port, has been known as

He Took Refuge Behind a Second Pedestal.

"Roosevelt" since he was taken into the arena.

The animals are generally fed at the close of the show, but owing to the hard work of "breaking" the lion Roosevelt, Bonavita has been taking the animal in the arena late at night and orders have been given not to feed unless he has finished rehearsing.

As Bonavita stepped into the cage and snapped a whip the big beast sprang upon him. Missing the trainer, the lion crashed into a pedestal and then turned his attention to the destruction of a chair. Then the whip was brought on the animal's eyes and it turned to retreat.

Bonavita quietly called to Tallon, another trainer, that the animal was "bad." At the same time he took refuge behind a second pedestal, intending to meet the attack which the lion had already begun.

When the beast, with a flying leap, came in contact with the barrier Bonavita quickly stepped behind the arena door, which had by this time sprung open. Although the maneuvers did not take more than a second, the trainer was given a gashing wound as the lion struck the chair and pedestal.

The big lion grew more infuriated and followed into the passageway in which Bonavita had taken refuge. The door swung automatically and the trainer barely missed the beast as it started down the narrow corridor towards the dens which on that side were all occupied.

It was in this passageway that Tallon, McField and Rey, trainers, were hurrying to Bonavita's rescue. As the men turned a corner and started down a runway under the steps leading into the arena they came face to face with the infuriated animal.

At a moment when the rescuers were getting decidedly the best of the encounter the lion made an upward spring. Like two fire balls the eyes showed his adversaries the direction he was taking and, not alone relying on the prongs, the revolvers were brought into use.

As the battle progressed Bonavita, held from escape by the closed doors, waited.

As the lion seemed to gain in the fight, Bonavita fired three shots and then the beast appeared to turn a complete somersault. The fourth shot was followed by a warning from Bonavita that he was now using bullets and that the men should keep clear of line of fire. The effect of the somersault was to break in one of the cage doors and the trainers, quick to take advantage of the position, closed in with their irons.

FARMER WILKS' BEARD MAKES MEAL FOR GOAT

HUNGRY ANIMAL ON ROOF GARDEN ATTACKS FREAK WHISKERS OF FELLOW PERFORMER.

New York.—List to the sad tale of the lost whiskers of Farmer Wilks.

Those who have wandered upon the roof of the Hammerstein theater know Wilks, the man who draws a comfortable salary simply because he has the longest beard under cultivation in the world. At least, that's the advertisement.

At night when the vaudeville performance is given up in the air Farmer Wilks is quite the most prideful thing on the little Hammerstein farm. Until the accident his whiskers measured 10 feet 9½ inches from face to tip. Now they are much shorter, and he will be forced to spend many weary months on his Iowa farm repairing the ravages of the Hammerstein goat.

The goat has always been jealous of the whiskers of the Iowa farmer. The goat has whiskers only ten inches long and time after time his goatlets has been seen gazing enviously at the farmer and then look down despairingly upon his own short and foolish looking beard.

Farmer Wilks droppel into a sound slumber after the intermission.

The jokes on the stage did not arouse him and the songs did not have the slightest effect upon his sleep. He dreamed of whiskers 40 feet long as he lay on the rug on which he exhibits his whiskers.

The few who sat at the tables back in the farmyard paid no attention to the farmer or the whiskers, and they did not heed the goat.

But the goat was busy. Softly he crept out of his stall and approached Farmer Wilks. Then he began to browse upon the beard.

Farmer Wilks awoke with a cry of pain. The goat had swallowed a part of the beard and was nibbling away at the rest.

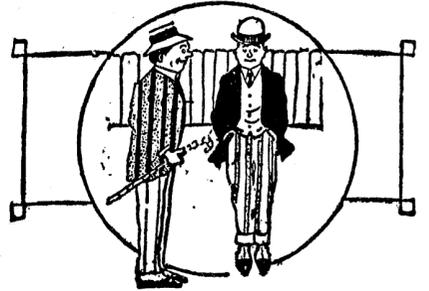

Farmer Wilks beat at the goat with his bare hands, crying piteously in a way that attracted the attention of Harry Mock. Harry Mock drove the goat away and rescued what was left of the whiskers.

It was impossible to determine the extent of the loss, but it is believed that the goat ate off at least two feet of beard.

Patient's Grave Mistake.

"So you're feeling perfectly well again, and never touched the medicine I gave you, eh? You made a grave mistake, Mrs. Tibbs, a grave mistake." "How so, doctor?" "Why, if you'd taken my medicine, you'd have known what cured you, and, as it is, you haven't the least idea."—Life.

DREADFUL DANDRUFF.

Girl's Head Encrusted—Feared Loss of All Her Hair—Baby Had Milk-Crust—Missionary's Wife Made

Two Perfect Cures by Cuticura.

"For several years my husband was a missionary in the Southwest. Every one in that high and dry atmosphere has more or less trouble with dandruff and my daughter's scalp became so encrusted with it that I was alarmed for fear she would lose all her hair. After trying various remedies, in desperation I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. They left the scalp beautifully clean and free from dandruff, and I am happy to say that the Cuticura Remedies were a complete success. I have also used successfully the Cuticura Remedies for so-called 'milk-crust' on baby's head. Cuticura is a blessing. Mrs. J. A. Darling, 310 Fifth St., Carthage, Ohio, Jan. 20, 1908."

The Happiest.

In the smoking-room of the Finland, discussing a June wedding, Andrew Carnegie said:

"And thank goodness it wasn't an international marriage, though the bride did have 18 millions.

"Not," appended Mr. Carnegie, "that I object to international marriages wherein the two parties are good and honorable and well matched. But so many of these marriages are like one that a Boston cynic described to me.

"Was it a happy marriage?" I asked this Bostonian.

"Oh, quite," said he. "The bride was happy, her mother was overjoyed. Lord Lacland was in ecstasies, and his creditors, I understand, were in a state of absolutely endless and uncontrollable bliss."

TIRED ALL THE TIME.

Languor, listlessness, dullness of spirits are often due to kidney disorders. Pain and weakness in the back, sides and hips, headaches, dizziness, urinary disorders are sure signs that the kidneys need immediate attention. Delay is dangerous.

Alonzo Adams, Osceola, Iowa, says: "My kidneys failed me. I suffered awful pain and was so weak I could not work, and often had to take to bed. I was dull and exhausted nearly all the time. I consulted doctors and used medicines, but only Doan's Kidney Pills helped me. Soon I was permanently cured."

FOR WARM WEATHER

NUMEROUS PRETTY THINGS IN TUB TEXTURES.

White Gowns, Both Plain Tailored and Elaborate, Are Much Worn—Smart Muslin Hats Also in Great Favor.

Midsummer materials show a decided preference for tub textures, and surely nothing is more comforting to the body in warm weather than a covering which can wash, and which soothes the eyes and nerves besides with immaculate whiteness or delicate flower tints.

White has its usual tremendous vogue and plain tailored gowns in

A Girlish Frock of Linen.

These are countless in number and varied in style, but there is a special weakness for the fussier thing. Such materials as admit of pretty handwork—tucks, embroidery and dainty lace edgings—are much to the fore for out-of-town wear.

Everything now shown, in fact, suggests coolness, guimpes and sleeves being only an excuse for concealment with their unlined nets, tucked gauzes and open eyelet needlework; while coats have dropped sleeves entirely and headgear assumed something like a touch of reason.

Altogether, there is a rural flavor upon the town; flowered calico holds a choicer place than silk, as far as the counter goes, and in the milliner's window field posies and pale grasses vie with the farmer's fruits for notice, their simple prettiness quite putting the more gorgeous flowers to the blush.

The lingerie headgear is most charming, and though the prettiest of this is, of course, for misses and children, there are very smart muslin hats for women, which, with their frills and ribbons, go delightfully with certain quaint frocks in the same materials.

A misses' gown of almost classic simplicity is pictured here, but if the material is carefully chosen a gown in this model could be worn on the most festive day occasion and even on a smart evening one. The dress is suited, however, to any service, for all that is needed is to suit the material to the use required. For a really fine frock, white or pale cream shantung, both of which wash beautifully often, and always clean superbly, will be a rewarding material, as no matter how plain a gown is, this rich silky texture creates a look of great elegance.

The scallops in this case could be done of hand embroidery, and the buttons be of silk embroidery, while a somewhat handsomer textile than net should be employed for the long sleeved guimpe. A parasol in the same material as the dress makes the get-up very fetching, and the deep basket hat would be lovely if of panama or leghorn, with a white, deep blue, rose-colored or black ribbon.

For this little dress eight yards of shantung, pongee or linen 27 inches wide, and two yards of tuck net 18 inches wide, will be required by medium figures.

NEW GOWNS SHOW A CHANGE

The Louis XV. style is more than apparent in many of the new gowns. An excellent example is shown in a point d'esprit gown made with a skirt that is definitely flaring in the light of what our eyes have become accustomed to.

The skirt is festooned with filmy founces over the lining of coral-colored silk. The polonaise, which dips back rapidly from the waist line in the skirt, is of a quaint coral-colored brocade, the ends of the skirt part knotted back in a wholly original way and the middle of the back falling in with the train.

There is no girdle at the front, but there is at the sides and back. The low neck has a sort of berth of the silk edged with a lace frill and the short sleeves have deep lace frills.

The polonaise is a growing fashion and it is more than likely that a good deal of it will be seen next fall. If Louis XV. styles are again materialized, it will be sure to crop out.

A Tablier for New Gown.

Swing stoles, or tabliers, richly embroidered or incrustated with beads and weighted with fringe, are a feature of new Paris frocks for ceremonious wear. One handsome costume shows five of these tabliers hanging over a satin gown and laced together to give the effect of a tunic. Over a black lace or net evening frock a gold-embroidered tablier is very stunning, and any woman could make this dress accessory at home. The tablier should hang straight from the bust or high girdle, and should be at least four inches wide at its narrowest part. The lower edge, near the foot, is rounded off in broad tab fashion, and is weighted by fringe. The tablier is embroidered with soutache braid or coarse silks, and the Pharaoh, or Egyptian, patterns are most popular.

NEW SENSATION FOR DOBBIN

Come to Think of It, He Would Have Felt Funny Sitting in the Position Indicated.

The family horse, who rejoiced in the eminently proper equine name of Dobbin, had earned a rest by long service, and was accordingly sent away to the country to spend his declining years in the broad pastures of a farmer friend of his owner. The distance being somewhat excessive for his rheumatic legs, he was shipped to his new home by rail.

Little Edna, the family four-year-old, viewed the passing of Dobbin with unfeigned sorrow. She sat for a long time gazing disconsolately out of the window. At last, after a deep sigh, she turned with a more cheerful expression, and said:

"Did old Dobbin go on the choo-choo cars, mamma?"

"Yes, dear," answered her mother.

A broad grin spread over the little girl's face. "I was just thinking," she said, "how funny he must feel sitting up on the plush cushions.—Woman's Home Companion.

Burning String in the Sick-Room.
Months spent in a sick room have taught me many things for the comfort of an invalid, one of the simplest and most effective of which is burning a string to purify the atmosphere.

Take a soft string and stick it with a pin to the back of a chair; after lighting, blow it out gently, leaving the tiny spark, which will create smoke enough to make a decided difference in the atmosphere.—Harper's Bazar.

ORIGIN Of a Famous Human Food.

The story of the great discoveries or inventions is always of interest.

An active brain worker who found himself hampered by lack of bodily strength and vigor and could not carry out the plans and enterprises he knew how to conduct, was led to study various foods and their effects upon the human system. In other words, before he could carry out his plans he had to find a food that would carry him along and renew his physical and mental strength.

He knew that a food which was a brain and nerve builder (rather than a mere fat maker) was universally needed. He knew that meat with the average man does not accomplish the desired results. He knew that the soft gray substance in brain and nerve centers is made from Albumen and Phosphate of Potash obtained from food. Then he started to solve the problem.

Careful and extensive experiments evolved Grape-Nuts, the now famous food. It contains the brain and nerve building food elements in condition for easy digestion.

The result of eating Grape-Nuts daily is easily seen in a marked sturdiness and marked activity of the brain and nervous system, making it a pleasure for one to carry on the daily duties without fatigue or exhaustion.

Grape-Nuts food is in no sense a stimulant but is simply food which renews and replaces the daily waste of brain and nerves.

Its flavour is charming and being fully and thoroughly cooked at the factory it is served instantly with cream.

The signature of the brain worker spoken of, C. W. Post, is to be seen on each genuine package of Grape-Nuts.

INO. A. HALEY, Editor.

The commissioners met at Lincoln Monday to canvass the election returns of the 17th. By reference to another column in this issue, it will be seen that the only change the official figures make is in precinct 10, Ruidoso. The official count there gave Carrizozo 26 to Lincoln 35, instead of Carrizozo 25 to Lincoln 36, as at first reported. The total vote is as reported, except that the Ruidoso vote makes a slight change in the individual totals. Carrizozo is credited in the official count with 900 votes instead of 899, and Lincoln with 613 instead of 614, making 1,513 votes cast and increasing Carrizozo's majority to 287.

Delegate W. H. Andrews was in Santa Fe this week looking over the situation, apparently with an eye to fixing up the political fences for next year's campaign. The old threshed-out statement that the admission of New Mexico to statehood this winter is an assured fact, is, consequently, again going the rounds of the republican press of the territory. The old story has been used so often as a vote-getter, that few people pay attention to it—even the papers that publish these statements have little faith in them, but publish them with a view to keep the disgusted members of that party from stampeding. We do not wish to be understood as saying that we won't get statehood, as we believe we will, but not this winter; and when we do get it it won't be through Andrews. We firmly believe that New Mexico would be a state today if it were not for Andrews and the discredited gang of boodlers who handle him.

An injunction has been issued by the courts restraining the commissioners from moving any of the court fixtures or county records from Lincoln to Carrizozo until the courts have passed upon the merits of the suit filed some thirty days ago by the people of Lincoln. Carrizozo has been declared the county seat by a majority of the voters of the county, and the only effect the injunction can have will be to delay the removal a month or two. Carrizozo can afford to wait.

NOTICE.

It appearing that a certified copy of the order of this board, made on the 7th day of July 1909 calling an election to be held on the 17th day of August 1909, on the proposition to remove the county seat to Carrizozo in said county has been published for four consecutive weeks immediately prior to such election in the CARRIZOZO NEWS, a newspaper of general circulation published in said county, and by hand bills posted up at three of the most public places in each precinct at least four weeks prior to said election, held on the 17th day of August 1909.

And it further appearing that the returns of said election held in said Lincoln county, pursuant to said order aforesaid, on the 17th day of August 1909.

The Board, acting as a board of canvassers, duly proceeded to carefully examine the poll books and certificates of each precinct in said county, and continued in session for the purpose of such examination, canvass and ascertainment continuously.

That said board having duly canvassed and ascertained the results of said election as shown by the face of said returns from the voting precincts of the county upon the question whether the county seat should be removed from Lincoln to Carrizozo in said county, do find as the result of said canvass and ascertainment that 900 votes were cast for Carrizozo, and 613 for Lincoln, and that the total number of votes cast upon the proposition was 1,513,—a majority of 287 of the votes cast being for the removal of the county seat to Carrizozo. It is therefore considered, ordered and declared by the Board of County Commissioners that Carrizozo is the county seat of the county of Lincoln, territory of New Mexico.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

Our principal merchants have gone to the eastern markets to make their fall and winter purchases, which will be on a larger scale than heretofore.

Geo. C. Hopkins, who has been engaged in developing his mining properties south of town, came in contact with some poisonous vine, and both hands are badly affected. He is having these useful—but now useless—members treated, and hopes to overcome the bad effects of the poison soon.

J. P. Nash, at one time station agent at Capitan, is now superintendent of terminals for the E. P. & S. W., with headquarters at El Paso. Since leaving Capitan, Nash has tried his hand as despatcher, brakeman, operator and conductor. He spent about a year in Capitan and will be remembered by many.

Last week, in the hurly-burly incident to the election, we overlooked the item of the marriage of Geo. L. Dillard and Miss Gertrude Forbes, both of Nogal, which was solemnized at Lincoln. Mr. Dillard has lived for many years at Nogal, and is quite well known throughout this section. The bride is the niece of Mrs. Thomas Moore, of Nogal, and arrived a few months since from California. May their lives be long and pleasant.

Rev. G. F. Winfield, of Higgins Texas, is visiting his brother Walter E. of this place. Tuesday they drove out to the crater in the mal pias, and Wednesday they took a trip to Water Cannon and the foothills of the White mountains. The scenery in this country is so different from his native country, that it is a novelty to the visitor, who, by the way, for the first time saw pine timber on his trip to the white mountains. W. E. is doing his part to make his brother's visit a happy one.

The dance given Saturday evening in the Wetmore Hall for the entertainment of the visitors to the base ball game was well attended.

J. H. Canning, of the Carrizozo Trading Company left Monday for the eastern markets to purchase a stock of fall and winter goods for the company.

J. H. Greer, of Nogal, was in Carrizozo Tuesday. He reports business very quiet in the district from a mining point of view, but the indications are good for a revival in the near future.

Mrs. D. W. Roberts was in town this week on her return from a visit to Lincoln. She left for Oscuro this morning, from whence she will go to Estey to join her husband. She called at this office and had her name placed on our subscription list.

Attorney Geo. Spence returned yesterday from a ten days' outing in the Capitan mountains. He was accompanied by a party of visiting friends. All were pretty well sunburned, but had an fine trip.

In another column appears a little poem entitled "It" It was written by a friend of the News at Tinnie formerly Analla, this county, by Bill Whittikens, but we know it was not Bill, yet won't tell.

Attorney Geo. W. Barber, of Lincoln, went to Santa Fe the end of last week on legal business. He returned Tuesday. His visit to Santa Fe was connected with some legal matters concerning county seat removal.

R. R. Larkin, of Las Vegas, an old New Mexico educator but now traveling for Ginn & Co., book dealers, was in Carrizozo Wednesday. He visited the county Institute and made an entertaining talk to the teachers.

The Lincoln County Normal closed yesterday, after a successful session of two weeks. Prof. Milne of Albuquerque, who so ably conducted the institute, will leave for home tonight. Twenty-two teachers were enrolled during the session. Examination is in progress today, and will be concluded tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. McDonald entertained the teachers who are attending the normal, last Saturday at their pleasant and beautiful home one mile and a half north of town. Many games of various characters were indulged in, and a flag contest pulled off. In the flag contest Mrs. Elizabeth Gumm won first prize and Mr. Sam Kelsey the second prize. A ramble through the "orchard and meadow" concluded the afternoon's pleasures, and as the shadows of evening were falling the teachers returned to town invigorated and happy.

SUCCESSOR TO DIAZ

Mexico Concerned Over Coming Vice-Presidential Election.

Ramon Corral, a Protege of Diaz, and Gen. Reyes, Idol of Army, Leading Candidates Now, With Jose Limantour a Possibility.

City of Mexico.—What is quite generally conceded to be equivalent to a campaign for the presidency of Mexico is now being waged in this country, the contestants being Ramon Corral, the present vice-president, and Gen. Bernardo Reyes, governor of the state of Nuevo Leon. These men are active candidates for vice-president. The election is not until next year, and the race promises to become very exciting by that time.

President Diaz, who has agreed to accept the presidency for another term of six years, will be 80 years old September 15, 1910, and it can hardly be expected that he will live out his term of office.

The vice-presidency of Mexico was created by an amendment to the constitution six years ago, and Ramon Corral was the first man elected to that office. His election was a mere formality, as he was in reality selected for the place by President Diaz, who is said to have had him in training with the view of making him his successor. Vice-President Corral was recently renominated for the office on the ticket with President Diaz. The nomination was not unanimous, as some of the delegates to the convention insisted in voting for Gen. Reyes, and others wanted to support Jose Ives Limantour, present minister of finance, but the Corral adherents were in the majority and their candidate was nominated.

The anti-American issue promises to become largely involved in this campaign. Supporters of Gen. Reyes are already making an open charge that it was through Mr. Corral that E. H. Harriman obtained from the Mexican government a remarkably favorable concession for the railroad which he is building down the Pacific slope of Mexico, and that the great American railroad magnate will draw from the public treasury of Mexico as a subsidy for building this road more than $10,000,000. It is claimed that Mr. Harriman has other great industrial favors to ask of the Mexican government and that he is lending his aid to bring about the election of Mr. Corral to another term as vice-president and to ultimately elevate him to the presidency.

Mr. Corral, as vice-president, performs the dual duty of minister of the interior. In this office he supervises the internal affairs of the country, in which many Americans, among them Mr. Harriman, are interested, but his friends deny that he has extended any unusual favors to any person.

Mr. Corral is unpopular with the army, and without its united support Mr. Corral, or any other ruler of Mexico, would be badly handicapped in preserving peace and order. Gen. Reyes is the idol of the army. His bravery has been proved upon many battlefields. He also has the confidence and highest respect of a large part of the business element throughout the country. It is stated that Gen. Reyes personally deprecates the fact that the anti-American issue has been injected into the campaign. During the long period that he has been constitutional governor of the state of Nuevo Leon he has always extended a warm welcome to the investment of American capital in that commonwealth. Monterey, the capital of the state and the home of Gen. Reyes, is the most Americanized city in Mexico. Many millions of dollars of American capital are invested there in smelters and other large industrial enterprises. It has been through the liberal encouragement offered by Gen. Reyes to investments of this character that has caused that city to grow and prosper to a wonderful degree.

Has Poetry Enough; Wants Wood.

We have on hand more poetry than we can find room for. What we need is more wood. It is true the poetry is pretty wooden, but it doesn't fling out the warmth of oak and pine. We therefore prefer an ordinary load of wood to a cord of poetry.—Adams (Ga.) Enterprise.

The Madness of Sari

By Prince Vladimir Vaniatsky

(Copyright, by J. B. Lippincott Co.)

"Natural!" Dicky Monvill laughed, as the punkah waved lazily over his head. "Natural! It's so natural that I can remember everything that happened back in those hazy days. That is, they were hazy until I reached here yesterday."

From the time of his arrival, 24 hours before, Dicky had attracted the attention of the dwellers in the Fort—which is English Bombay—almost, in the entire presidency of Bombay. The Times of India spoke feelingly of his return to Bombay, and the deputation of oilskin-capped Parsee gentlemen waited upon him with an elaborate address of welcome.

"Rum place, Bombay," sentimentously remarked one of the men.

"Eh?" queried Dicky, with an abstracted air. And the man who spoke thought Dicky's mind had wandered back to London. But Dicky, had he been asked, would have told that his thoughts were of the Bombay of ten years ago. His eyes wandered out over Bombay harbor, where the lights of innumerable vessels twinkled, and where a blaze of deck light and white sides proclaimed the presence of a foreign man-o'-war.

"She's an American cruiser on her long way to the Asiatic station," remarked one of the men in a conversational tone. "There is an Admiral Blank on her—he's going out to take command. We'll just have him over—eh?—for an exchange of courtesies."

"Charmed," returned Dicky, with his mind yet back in the dead past—out along the road to Poona, a little native house, and a Hindu girl, and a voice thrilling with the love-songs that lured him.

Then when at the Royal Yacht club Sir Richard met the American admiral it was to hear him exclaim in his hearty tones:

"Monvill, Monvill!"

"Oh, yes, Monvill," ruminated the American admiral, regardless of the title. "There was a chap of that name—a sub-lieutenant in the gun-room of the Belligerent of her majesty's navy when I was a midshipman on the Quinnebaug these many years ago. Know him?"

"Right-o," cried Dicky, "that was my dad!"

"Well, do you take after him?" asked the admiral, with a quizzical smile.

"Of course, I can't touch the old boy in anything," loyally replied Dicky.

"In those days," said the admiral, "he was rather—well, wild. No offense intended, you know."

"Wild, was he? He was always in trouble over women and things like that," and Dicky smiled genially at the thought of his father's gayeties. Those of us who take pride in family are even proud—in a way—of our family vices."

"I'm expected up at Government house for a sort of a song and dance act. Suppose I'll see you there. Here's an A. D. C. who was to meet me and take me up to Malabar hill. Glad to have met you, Sir Richard." The admiral held out his hand and turned to meet the governor's aide-de-camp.

"What's going on?" Dicky asked, as he watched, for the second, the stalwart back of the American admiral, with the gold on his uniform aglitter as he passed from the Royal Yacht club. "I've had a bid—do you still call them 'commands' out here?"

"Well, yes, rather," replied Fitz

John, "but they're beastly bores and put one in a nasty humor with the present governor. He goes in for engaging native talent. Fancy! When he first came out he had us all up to see a troop of native magicians. Usual old stunts—cobra and all that sort or rot. Just fancy!"

"That the bill for to-night? If it is—"

"No, oh, no. This time it is a wonderful contralto—chocolate color, of course. She's a Bombay Hindu woman who has had some experience with Europeans. Some musical artist found she possessed a voice, and the result was Marchesi, La Scala, Dresden, and the rest. Woodhull has heard her. Say, there, Woody, any voice?"

"Ripping!" answered Woodhall; "never realized her power until she sang her last song—a Hindu love song—queer stunt. Made me feel lumpy around the throat, though I'm reputed to have whiteleather for a heart."

"Then I'll go," said Dicky, "so that his excellency will not consider that I have slighted him."

The trio sidled inside and took some chairs in an obscure corner. Sir Richard Monvill glanced over the people with an indifferent gaze. He looked at the singer, who was standing in an affected pose waiting for the accompaniment to begin. She was of good figure, but a hideous dress of orange-colored satin gave the powder and rouge that lay thickly on her dusky cheeks a disgusting accentuation, and made her even more hideous.

The key-note fell. And she sang, in a deep, rich contralto—with an accent that brought Dicky to wondering—a French chanson of the seventeenth century. So marvelous were her intonations that Dicky could see the brocades of La Belle Marquise. Then he split his tight, white gloves applauding.

"She'll sing that Hindu love song now," said Woodhull, who had just joined the trio and had helped in the applause.

In its expectation the ballroom became deathly silent.

Then she sang—sang until Dicky felt the world swimming before his eyes—sang until Dicky's throat closed as though a strong hand had gripped it. Then he remembered a little house far out on the white road to Poona and a Hindu girl. That was her song. The song she had made for him out of the fullness of her love, out of the joy of life, out of the breath that came from the nostrils of love. But how came this hideous creature to sing it? Then Sir Richard was no longer the man of importance, the wearer of titles and honorable names, but the subaltern, the Dicky who was snubbed by Molly Burke, and the Hindu girl again sang like the bulbul to him of her love.

It was over. The applause brought many white gloves to the beggars, split.

After the affair Sir Richard went to meet her with the spirit of Dicky, the subaltern, hungering for the Hindu girl's song of love. He went half willingly, half unwillingly.

Then, beneath the rouge and powder, apart from the hideous gown of orange and black, Dicky—who was now the subaltern—saw the little Hindu girl. She acknowledged the introduction with a peculiar grace. Her voice was low and musical.

Later when Sir Richard reached his chambers he was not surprised to find a note awaiting him. It was hastily scrawled on Government house paper.

"If you will ask for me at the Taj Mahal," it ran, "you can see me to-night." But the signature was a queer little thing in Hindustanee. Ah, how familiar!

When Sir Dicky had walked feverishly over the few feet of ground between the club chambers and the Taj Mahal hotel he found himself asking, in a queer, throaty voice, for Mme. Martinez.

"Sir Richard Monvill? Madam Martinez sent word that you were to be shown into her private parlor."

Dicky found himself alone in the room. He looked around it. Autographed photographs of Melba, Eames, Flancon, Chaminade and Paderewski were there, but in a great frame of carven Burmese silver there was a photograph of the Dicky Monvill of ten years ago.

Then, like a whirlwind, a native woman came into the room. Her bare, dimpled knees and slender, graceful ankles showed beneath native garments.

"Dicky!" she moaned, and fell sobbing at his feet. Her golden anklets were almost the color of her brilliant skin, and the heavy bracelets that clinked about her wrists were the same for which Dicky had borrowed money of the Parsee to pay. But her throat, her beautiful, statuesque throat, was bound, as it had been that evening at Government house, in a swathing of chiffon and glittering sequins.

Dicky succumbed. All the thoughts of ten years ago came back with her sobbing voice, her bewildering presence. He took her in his arms—the sharp edge of a bracelet cut his hand. The Hindu girl laughed.

"See, Dicky, I have cut mine, too." She laughed again as she drew the bracelet across her other hand.

"Foolish!" he cried, and he lifted the cut hand to his lips. She snatched it away. But her smile was the smile of the blessed ones. Then she seized his hand and placed her lips to the scratch and drew from it the blood that ran.

When the morning came Dicky bent over her. Her face was flushed with fever, her irregular breathing startled him. He called her:

"Sari! Sari! Are you ill?"

She smiled in a dazed way.

"Dicky, I shall die to-day—or—tomorrow, perhaps. See!" She tore the fanciful conceit of chiffon from her neck. The beautiful throat was horribly swollen.

"I knew you would be at Government house last night. And there I sang my Schwanlied. I knew I should meet you." She caught him convulsively to her breast. "Oh, Dicky! Dicky! what did I do in my madness? Tell me, it is not in your blood too!"

"What does it matter?" Dicky asked as he bent over and kissed her.

"Tiens!" exclaimed Prince Euxine. "Bombay! It is horrible! It is a horrible place there! They have the plague—the bubonic plague—and the finest singer of the Indies died of it. And my best friend, Lord Dicky, is lying below with my doctors hovering over him. No, it is not the plague he has—no, not quite—we got him away in time to save him. I would not go there again for twenty million rubles. I? No, not I."

Camden, N.J.—"It is with pleasure that I add my testimonial to your already long list—hoping that it may induce others to avail themselves of this valuable medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I suffered from terrible headaches, pain in my back and right side, was tired and nervous, and so weak I could hardly stand. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored me to health

Gardiner, Me.—"I was a great sufferer from a female disease. The doctor said I would have to go to the hospital for an operation, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound completely cured me in three months."—Mrs. S. A. WILLIAMS, R. F. D. No. 14, Box 39, Gardiner Me.

Because your case is a difficult one, doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has cured many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, indigestion, dizziness, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result is worth millions to many suffering women.

The Albuquerque Fair.

The Twenty Ninth New Mexico Fair and Resources Exposition at Albuquerque, October 11-17 will have the merit of being new. The management believes that the people have tired of the same old thing year after year and has been hunting novelties. It has found them. One of the most interesting is the Southwestern Marathon, the first long-distance endurance race to be run in this part of the country. Another brand new attraction here will be the Stobel airship, a real airship that flies; one that has made flights before thousands of wondering spectators in all parts of the United States, and the greatest dirigible balloon ever invented, The immense ship of the air will make daily and nightly flights over the city and the fair grounds. Another brand new thing in the line of sports is the game of pushball. This will be the first time this game has ever been played in the southwest, or, for that matter, in the whole west, and it promises to be the most exciting innovation in the history of the carnival spirits at Albuquerque. The biggest novelty of the bunch however, is President William Howard Taft who visits Albuquerque for the first time during the fair. A reception to President Taft is being prepared which will smash all records for enthusiastic demonstrations in the southwest.

A hotel man from the northwest has been here for the past week looking up a location with a view to erecting a modern hotel building. This town is fairly well supplied with hotels, or at least it has been up to the present. There are five good hotels here besides several restaurants and rooming houses. But now that Carrizozo is the county seat there will be a greater demand for hotel accommodation than heretofore, and a modern up-to-date hotel should prove a paying investment.

"IT."

In an old adobe office ABIDES IT,
He fought for the cause—he never did quit,
He paid no TAXES, so he had no fit,
He got his pay anyway, this man Schmidt.
He showed to the town the lies at stake,
And swore by grab the Boosters were a fake,
That the county had bought an old earthquake—
Of all the men I ever met "Pete takes the cake."
His fierce oratory made the Burros shed tears,
He went Rabbit hunting and jumped a bunch of Bears;
But tell us quick, somebody, and stop our fears,
How the hell Lincoln did without him all these years?
