WATTERSON SAYS FOLK MAY BE PRESIDENTIAL TIMBER

If the Circuit Attorney is Elected Governor of Missouri He Will Occupy Similar Position to That of Tilden in 1876

FOLK REGARDED BY THE EDITOR AS A MAN OF DESTINY.

Louisville, Ky., June 9.—In a lengthy editorial in the Courier Journal to-morrow Henry Watterson will discuss presidential possibilities, giving considerable attention to Circuit Attorney Folk of St. Louis. The opening paragraphs of the editorial are devoted to a reply to a recent summary of the outlook in Harper's Weekly.

After some more discussion of Grover Cleveland, Mr. Watterson will say: "The latest dark horse to edge his way, as it were, into the paddock has still a year before him to make record.

"Neither Mr. Tilden nor Mr. Cleveland had much more. If Joseph W. Folk of St. Louis be nominated and elected by the Democrats to the governorship of Missouri, he will occupy very much the position occupied by Mr. Tilden in 1876.

"But in the prevailing chaos it is conceivable that he may come to be in the running even without a nomination and election as Governor of Missouri. Mr. Bryan had no such lead or barking in 1896."

After quoting from The Republic three paragraphs, saying that politicians are figuring on Folk's future, Mr. Watterson continues:

"Between the lines there is some suggestive reading here. No one can ever predict just what a body of discredited politicians will do when scared into the need of doing something which will look like doing their duty.

"The career of Mr. Folk has thus far been exceptional and bears the earmarks of having a future before it. There seems to have been a meaning, if not a kind of destiny, in his election to the circuit attorneyship.

"We are assured he did not [illegible] his face. He wished for nothing [illegible] continue a successful law practice.

"But in spite of this the gang, which rules St. Louis, feeling that he would be an easy-going official, forced the nomination upon him.

"He accepted it only after the declaration that if elected he would discharge his duties fearlessly without dictation from any quarter.

"This the gang thought was only campaign chatter, but three weeks after Mr. Folk took the oath he discovered that the grossest corruption prevailed in almost all the departments of the city government.

"The magnitude of the corruption staggered belief, but the Circuit Attorney went right through it, even convicting the arch ringleader and engineer of bribery, the Bill Tweed of St. Louis corruption, a person by the name of Butler.

"No opposition, no threats, no bribe, could dissuade him from his course, so that now his influence is felt in State as well as local affairs. Charges of corruption in the Missouri Legislature aroused investigation, and the State capital, was quite as rotten as St. Louis, its commercial metropolis.

"Presidents seem to be born almost as surely as 'The Lord's Anointed.' What in the range of heroic fiction could be more extraordinary than the tour de force which carried the present head of the nation from a desk in the Navy Department to the executive mansion inside of less than four years.

"In American politics nobody can tell what a year may bring forth."

"Where Am I At?" Cobb Dead.

One Question on the Floor of Congress Made him Famous.

East Las Vegas, N. M., June 9.—Ex-Congressman James Cobb, of Tuskegee, Ala., author of the famous interrogatory "Where am I at?" made on the floor of Congress, died here yesterday from tuberculosis. Mr. Cobb, a Georgian, was a lawyer in Texas when the civil war began. He served under the Confederacy until Gettysburg, where he was captured, and after the war was a District Judge in Alabama for twelve years. He represented the Fifth Alabama District in Congress for twelve years. He was also a member of the Alabama Constitutional Convention.

Congressman Cobb held the centre of the stage in 1895, through a controversy with Congressman Thomas E. Watson, of Georgia, who charged him with being intoxicated during the debate on the Rockwell-Noyes contested election case, when Mr. Cobb asked the chair, in a bewildered way, "Where am I at?" Mr. Watson said that Mr. Cobb drank out of a private bottle and was badly mixed. A long Congressional investigation, with many humorous aspects, resulted in finding that Mr. Cobb drank only cold tea, was not intoxicated, and did not "reel in the aisles," as charged.

War Waged by Means of Bacilli.

American Medicine.

Held to be of sufficient credibility to justify cabling, the newspapers say that the revolutionary leaders in Bulgaria have obtained a quantity of plague bacilli and are determined to infect the people of Constantinople, Salonica and even Berlin, unless the Powers interfere in their behalf. Gunpowder, dynamite and other explosives have been thought of as conservers, and of civilization itself, because of the inability of the masses to secure these means of malevolent destruction. In some parts of Europe the pollution of the wells, etc., with disease germs will perhaps make the control of revolutionary and interior peoples by the engines and explosives of war no longer possible, or only so with increasing difficulty. We have long wondered if bacteriology would not be seized upon as an implement of war by private or public vengeance. Once, at least in old Europe, as history tells, disease was consciously used as a destructive agent for enemies, its effects on Spain and Europe brought by the returned Columbians was a full repayment, however, unintended, for the wrongs done them by the renegades of the discoverers of America. Perhaps the foregoing press dispatch is only a canard, or only a preliminary hint of a new agency to be thrown into the hates and wars of mankind. One must confess that the method could easily be used in some such way as that suggested. The thought is worth more than a passing smile of incredulity.

SAYS LEE OPPOSED SOUTH'S SECESSION.

Judge Emory Speer of Georgia Speaks on Life and Character of Confederate General

GENERAL'S SUBLIME PATIENCE.

Sword of Great Soldier, Jurist Declares, Was Drawn in Defense Favor Statue by Washington's.

Oxford, Ga., June 9.—Judge Emory Speer of Macon delivered today the annual commencement address at Emory College. His subject was "The Life and Character of General Robert E. Lee," and he gave a vivid and eloquent recital of the great soldier's career, dwelling upon Lee's sublime poise and patience both in victory and defeat.

Referring to Lee's motives in entering the service of the Confederacy Judge Speer said: "The time seems opportune for the American people to dispassionately inquire whether Robert E. Lee ever merited the reprobation even of the most ardent advocate of our perpetual union.

"Loving our reunited country with all my heart, counting the long years I have spent in its service as my chief honor, I yet contend that rich as it is in military glory, brilliant through the roll of its heroes, it can no longer afford to question the military and personal honor of Lee and his noble compatriots.

"America, with all her acknowledged power, cannot fail to appropriate that warlike renown which gleamed on the bayonets and blazed in the volleys of the soldiers of the South. Nor do her greatest and her best longer question the one or put aside the others.

"To the Constitution as he understood it, it is demonstrable that Washington himself was not more devoted than Lee, and his written and spoken words in that day of ungovernable passion portray in the clearest light his immovable aversion to disunion.

"Why, then, it may be asked, did Lee draw his sword in maintenance of secession, which he declared revolution, which he pronounced anarchy and which he foresaw and declared would inflict untold calamities upon the people? The reply is that he did no such thing. His purpose is declared in the letter to his son:

"'If the Union is dissolved and the Government disrupted I shall return to my native State and share the miseries of my people and save in defense will draw my sword on none.'

In his peroration Judge Speer referred to the proposition of the State of Virginia to place a statute of General Lee in Statuary Hall in the Capitol at Washington. In this connection he said:

"Deny Lee a place at Washington, ah, is it sure, if in the awful hour when in the invading columns approached Virginia's soil, the winds of the prophet had breathed upon the slain that they might live, that caught from the wall at Mount Vernon by the reincarnated hand of the Father of his country, defensive blade of Washington would not have gleamed beside the sword of Lee? Repel then not, my country, the fervid love of the sons who fought with Lee and of the children of their sons.

"Then honor him and in thy need, on those who love him thou wilt not call in vain. And woe to thy foes in the press of battle when the soul of Lee shall fire their hearts and his bright sword shall point the charging columns of thy sons."

Horrible Butchery of Christians.

Monastir, Macedonia, May 21.—Horrible details are arriving of the slaughter of the people of the village of Smerdesh, south of Lake Procha, May 21, by Bashibazouks.

On the arrival of the Bashibazouks Chakalaroff's band of insurgents withdrew to the mountains without sustaining any loss.

As no rebels were left in the village, the inhabitants felt no anxiety, until suddenly at sunset the Turks, who had surrounded the place, began a bombardment, whereupon the villagers assembled in the streets.

Though the artillery ceased during part of the night, the Turkish infantry fired all night long.

The artillery bombardments were renewed at daybreak, but as it was ineffective, the Turks set fire to the village on all sides and began a general massacre, slaughtering mercilessly women, children and the aged.

About three hundred houses were burned, and more than two hundred persons, mostly women and children, were killed.

The women and girls were murdered while resisting assault.

Whole households were slain. One family of seven was put to the sword and the bodies were heaped on the hearth.

Not a living soul was left in the village.

The survivors, many badly burned or otherwise injured, fled.

Some of the fleeing villagers were captured and their ears and noses were cut off before they were put to death.

There are 1,500 villagers in the mountains without food or clothing.

Forty of the refugees, women and children, were caught by soldiers in a ravine and killed after horrible treatment.

Red Men Will Celebrate

The El Paso order of Red Men are asking permission for the Mescalero Apaches to leave the reservation to aid them in their celebration of the corn dance at Tularosa, July 4th. The Apaches celebrate a corn dance about June the 28th, but they have agreed to postpone it until the 4th if allowed to aid the Red Men at Tularosa.

In case the arrangement is made as suggested the El Paso & Northeastern will make a low rate excursion and Tularosa will have the greatest 4th in the old town's history.

Quitting Cotton.

In eastern Texas farmers are turning their attention to fruit and tomato culture and find that instead of 6-cent cotton bringing $12 to $20 an acre they can realize $150 to $200 an acre growing peaches.

Tomatoes are almost as profitable as peaches. Many varieties of vegetables are are grown at a good profit.

Raton Oil.

The oil well at Raton is down 1,900 feet and a good deal of oil is coming out in the buckets. It is heavy and of a dark green color. The company has had many drawbacks lately, the heavy rains have shut off the fuel supply. Teams cannot pull the supply wagons in the mud and slush, says the Raton Range.

ODDITIES OF EXPORTING.

What We Send Abroad and What We Get Reciprocity in Lamps.

We sent Dakota seed to Russia, from which she raises wheat to compete with our own products in the market of the world. To plant, cultivate, reap and harvest her crops, we send to Russia one-half our total exports of agricultural machinery. This year we have already shipped some 80,000 tons of these implements to the land of the czar. In former years all this passed through the ports of New York and Philadelphia, but a fractional increase in freight rates between the lakes and the east has diverted the trade to southern ports, while experiments are being made in direct shipments from Chicago by way of the lakes, the St. Lawrence river and the Atlantic ocean.

The cotton plant first came to America from Asia; now the greater part of the central Asian crop is grown from American cottonseed. American cultivators till the soil, which is watered by an American irrigation system. Yankee gins clean the fiber, American compounds press the cotton into bales wrapped with American bands, and finally the cotton finds its way to Moscow over a railroad built with American capital, and is turned into cloth by second hand machinery from an American cotton factory, to compete abroad with American prints.

Another regular article of export to central Asia is the Ohio grapevine cutting. The vineyards of central Asia are all offshoots from American vines, and the fruit is prized above all others in Russia proper for its delicacy and flavor. Twenty to thirty tons of American grapes to the acre is a common yield in central Asia, and as the American vine is free from parasites, it is being introduced everywhere the world over, from South Africa to northern China and Japan. We still export tobacco plants to Russian Asia, so that Russian tobacco, grape, cotton and wheat crops are all American once removed.

No Oriental fable is stranger than the accomplishments of the up-to date Yankee drummer. In Bagdad, the home of Aladdin, he offers new American lamps that burn either Russian or Ohio oil, for the old battered bronze tallow burners of the Bagdad housewife, and as these time-worn Oriental lamps find a ready sale in New York, the enterprising drummer who introduced the American lamp to Bagdad was well repaid for his trouble. Now, however, American lamps are becoming a drug in the Bagdad markets, and the supply of old lamps is rapidly giving out as our lamp trade with Turkey increases.

A Connecticut firm manufactures sacred scarabei for the Egyptian tourist trade. The little charmes are carved and even chipped by machinery, colored in bulk to simulate age, and shipped in casks to the Moslem dealers at Cairo. The Arabian guides are the chief buyers, many of them being adepts at "salting" the sands at the base of the pyramids, or about the sacred temple, where they artfully discover these scarabei before the very eyes of the Yankee tourist, and sell him for an American dollar an article manufctured at a cost of less than a cent, perhaps within a stone's throw of his own home. For enterprise it beats wooden nutmegs.—Collier's Weekly.

Pigs and Alfalfa.

Soy beans make a very good crop for producing hog feed. A very early kind of corn can be planted with soy beans and the hogs turned in to pasture when the beans are just ripening their first buds. The early varieties of corn succeed best in Colorado and with soy beans will help to give an assortment of feed. The greater variety of feeds we have the better, especially for keeping brood sows in good health. Soy beans, cow peas and alfalfa are of great value for this purpose.

The fastest growth of young pigs can be secured by allowing them to run on alfalfa pasture supplemented with skim-milk and the addition of a ration composed of one-third wheat middlings plenty of clean water convenient is also essential. Do not try to raise good pigs with nothing but alfalfa nor feed them without a suitable alfalfa pasture. The young man who will stick to raising alfalfa and hogs will be independently rich within a comparatively few years.

The difference in the health of hogs pastuted on alfalfa and those that have been kept in feed lots and fed grain and dry feeds is well understood by every man in the business and particularly so with regard to young pigs. Sucklings that have alfalfa-fed mothers are far more rugged and healthy than are those that trace their ancestral dam to the pig-sty. Sows that forage on alfalfa raise lusty, hearty pigs that seldom fall victims to cholera, while the mothers kept on other feeds and not permitted the freedom of the alfalfa fields are generally inclined to become over-heated and sickly. Then too, our cool nights prevent that oiliness of fat and flabbiness of flesh so common to hogs in climates where warm nights prevail.—Field & Farm.

John Hullskutter, Rough Rider under Roosevelt in the Cuban campaign, was drowned in the Pecos River near Glorieta last Friday morning. He went fishing in the early morning and when found near noon time was dead in a foot of water.

A Psalm of Advertising.

[Printer's Ink.]

Tell me not in sneering manner
Advertising does not pay.
Rich are they who fling their banner
Boldest to the world today.
Advertising done in earnest,
Done with wisdom, heart and soul,
With determination, sternest,
Always wins the wished-for goal.
Lives of many men remind us
We to success can climb
If the reading public find us
Advertising all the time.
Advertising with persistent
Energy to spread our fame,
Ever honest and consistent
In performing what we claim.
In the world's commercial battle,
In the rivalry of trade,
We must hustle, shout and rattle
Ere impression can be made.
Not enjoyment—rather sorrow
Is the certain end of those
Who are apt to let tomorrow,
Like today, unheeded close.
Careless of their advertising,
Which, if penned in common sense
Is the method enterprising
That insures full recompense.

It is estimated that the damage to property from the floods in Kansas City alone was $50,000,000.

Coal Oil In New Mexico.

New Mexico repealed a coal oil inspection law some months ago to remove the excuse of the Standard Oil Company for robbing the people of ten cents per gallon in order to pay inspection fee of half of one cent. If the company has since reduced the price of oil, or if any competitor has dared to ship oil into the territory, or if merchants have dared to import oil bought from any other company, the territorial press has not mentioned the matter. It is pretty safe to say that the price will not be materially reduced without competition, and that any merchant who ships in oil bought below the octopus price, to give the people the benefit of competition, will find the Standard ready to give away oil, to make him lose money. But whenever such a method shall be adopted of monopolizing traffic, the territory should cancel the charter under which the corporation does business. El Paso Daily News.

The Standard Oil people have since the repeal of the Coal Oil Inspection law, reduced the price of kerosene two or three cents on the gallon. But, this reduction has been covered by the increase in our freight charges by the rail roads, and as a matter of fact the consumer gets little, if any reduction. Other products of the syndicate remain about the same to the trade as they have been since the monopoly cornered the business of the territory. As to the canceling of the company's charter, as is suggested in the foregoing article, which we clipped from the El Paso Daily News, that is alright as a suggestion, but the execution of such a measure is the rub. The Standard Oil company is not to be handled in that way. The facts seem to be that the monopoly is a greater power in this country than the government of New Mexico and we are dictated to instead of being the dictator.

That the territorial Assembly was bought when the Coal Oil Inspection law was enacted is as patent to the average citizen of New Mexico as it was that such a law existed up to the time of its repeal by the last session. A cancel of the charter if a possibility, would be well enough since to fight the devil with fire is considered right, but it is a question whether or not the Standard Oil company wouldn't have a corner on fuel before the battle could be well organized. We have always been taught by our revered tutors that hell itself would fall when pitted in strength against the powers of the United States government, but the octopian growth of the Standard Oil syndicate was a theory of potbabilities to them not yet understood. If it is not now time, it soon will be a necessity, to add publicity to truth, and say to the people that unless trust sentiment is curbed in this government, that everything not controlled by the Standard Oil company and its kindred combinations will have to get off the earth.

The El Paso Herald complains that El Paso has too many dive saloons where it is unsafe for a customer who wants a glass of beer to go. A saloon with a dive annex should never be allowed in any town.

A Piece of Tomfoolery.

The following act of congress designed to keep anarchists out of the country, took effect on the 3rd inst.:

"Do you disbelieve or are you opposed to all organized government, or are you a member of or affiliated with any organization entertaining or teaching doctrines of opposition to all organized government?

"Do you advocate or teach the duty, necessity or propriety of the unlawful assaulting or killing of any officer or officers, either of the individual or of officers general in charge of the government of the United States or of any other organized government, because of his or their official character?

Imagine an anarchist who would refuse to swear anything else, it is expected that murderers and assassins would refuse to swear anything that would further their interests.

Trouble in The Islands

A race fight has been going on in the Hawaiian legislature. The bone of contention was over a bill providing for a governmental immigration agent, which the natives claimed to be a scheme to bring a sufficient number of Americans to Hawaii to out vote the native inhabitants. This measure which was a clause of the appropriation bill was defeated. The vote was strictly on race lines.

The Miner's union at Butte Mont., is the strongest organization of its kind in the world. It was organized 25 years ago and has never had a strike or any kind of friction with employers. It seems to have been the purpose of this organization to prevent strikes rather than bring them on. The Butte Miners union has, however, paid out to strikers in the twenty-five years of its life about $50,000.

Fort Stanton as an element of the local government of Lincoln county has been practically abolished by the late decision of Judge McMillan in the contest case Armstrong vs. Owen for the office of sheriff. Now proper action should be instituted to end the life of the precinct by attaching it to Capitan for election purposes.

Alamogordo was the scene of a Riot among the Mexican population last Saturday. The trouble is the culmination of a feud which has existed between the denizens of old Mexico and native Mexicans and about forty combatants were engaged in the melee. Ten or twelve were wounded with knives and one it is thought seriously.

Monday, the 15th, was the one hundred twenty-sixth anniversary of the birth day of the American flag. The day was observed generally throughout the cities and towns of the nation, while "The Star Spangled Banner," was played by every band in the United States.

The Ohio Platform.

New York Times.

Senator Hanna has been as good as his word. After receiving the President's telegram he said that the platform should indorse the administration and favor Mr. Roosevelt's nomination next year. It does that unreservedly. The declaration that President Roosevelt has adhered "to President McKinley's policies" is, however, without warrant of fact. President McKinley's policy of revising the tariff if it should prove that any duty was no longer needed for protection, or if it imposed any unnecessary burdens upon our manufacturers seeking to supply themselves with raw material, left a very deep impression upon the minds of the American people. It was a declaration invested with unusual solemnity from the fact that it was the last public utterance of Mr. McKinley. President Roosevelt has not adhered to that policy. He has conspicuously departed from it. He treats the tariff as sacred, following in that particular the course of Senator Hanna and the Pennsylvania protectionists rather than that of his broad-minded and enlightened predecessor.

Tendency In Platforms.

The Iowa Republican platform, though it did not fully embody the "Iowa idea," declared for revision whenever it should be ascertained that the tariff sheltered a trust, or words to that effect, which the President characterized as careless phraseology. The local enemies of the Iowa idea nevertheless rejoiced in what they considered a compromise victory—there was some consolation in the fact that the platform did not call for immediate revision.

Canada's preferential tariff which admits imports from the United Kingdom 33 per cent lower than from all other countries has had little, if any, effect on importations from the United States. In 1901 our Canadian trade amounted to $115,000,000 while that of British merchants was only $44,000,000. United States exports to Canada during the last five years have increased 93 per cent. and British exports have only increased 23 per cent.

Armstrong takes charge of the sheriff's office in better general condition than any man who has assumed its duties for several years. During Owen's short term he has revolutionized the entire system around the court house and jail. The grounds have been fenced, the jail cleaned from floor to ceiling and painted, and property repaired, windows put in etc. The stables, grounds and out building have been cleaned and remodeled. He has one of the finest gardens growing ever seen in Lincoln County. Most of these improvements have been made without expense to the county, the work being done by the prisoners. Credit must be given him for not only making the county an excellent executive officer, but for instituting an entirely new and improved system of doing things in the province of his jurisdiction. Even in this short time he has made a record that will not soon be forgotten by the people of Lincoln County.

Board of Education at Santa Fe.

LIST OF BOOKS SELECTED.

Says the New Mexican of the 4th:

The Territorial Board of Education adjourned last night after an all day session. It was after 5 o'clock when the day's work was completed and the adjournment taken. The question of adopting books for the high schools of the territory was not taken up. The course of study of the Normal Institutes of New Mexico was given the official approval and sanction of the board and was ordered used by the county institutes of the territory. The same was ordered published in pamphlet form.

It was decided that the authority conferred upon the board by the 46th section of substitute for Council Bill No. 5 relative to the holding of county institutes be delegated to the territorial superintendent of public instruction. There was some discussion as to whether or not previous experience in teaching should be one of the necessary qualifications for an applicant for his A grade certificate. The opinion of the solicitor general was asked. In the future applicants for second grade certificates will be required to be examined in arithmetic, geography, orthography, reading, grammar, history, physiology, elementary pedagogy and penmanship. All applying for first grade certificates will be examined on these subjects and also on civil government, elementary algebra, advanced pedagogy and elements of zoology and botany.

Teachers' certificates that have been issued the past year were approved. The territorial superintendent of public instruction was authorized to notify all county superintendents that questions prepared by the board for teachers' examination are to be used at once.

Colonel Chaves, the territorial superintendent, was authorized to act for the board on all matters except where a contest may arise.

Is Our Pace Too Fast?

Leslie's weekly.

The New Haven physician who, in a recent address before the American Therapeutic Society, ascribed the weakness of the heart and the circulatory system now so common among certain classes of men and women to the high tention of modern life, was doubtless well within the truth.

We keep up a fast pace everywhere, in our efforts to keep "in the swim" of business and society, gauging everything by the clock and rushing from one appointment to another at literally electric speed.

"If we are actually sick" said this physician, "unless we are seriously ill, we fight and wrestle with the disease, whatever it may be, instead of calmly giving up and allowing the disease to be temporarily master of the ceremonies." "And even our children," declare the same speaker, "are early infected with this feverish, headlong haste to do something. They see too much, do too much, are amused too much, compete in school too much, are taught too much, are awake too much for the welfare of their nervous system. All this, or something very much like it, has often been said before, but the warning needs repetition, and perhaps, by and by, some will hear and heed before it is too late.

With all our many and ever-increasing applications of electricity, we need to remember that the laws of the human organism remain the same, and the human machine cannot be run on the electric motor plan. A great deal of the strenuosity displayed in modern life is totally unnecessary. Quite as much could be effected in the long run by taking things more moderately.

A VISITING MINISTER TALKS ABOUT OUR TOWN AND PEOPLE.

His Experience in Reaching Here Has Deeply Impressed Him and Was Surprised to Find Civilization and Culture in this Isolated Nook of the Rockies.

LEFT FAVORABLY IMPRESSED

White Oaks, New Mexico, is a very hard place to reach, and expensive also. It is a mining camp. It has only 500 people. The mines are temporarily but only partly closed. There are three churches.

I have been thinking that possibly we might be excused from continuing this work, for I am heartily opposed to over churching. Well, I started from Albuquerque at midnight. I must go through a corner of Texas. I reach El Paso in the morning, where I stayed until near night, taking the "limited" so as to make sure of connection. We encounter a wreck, stay long on the desert, reach Carrizozo at one o'clock Sabbath morning. It is a little town and every bed is full. I sit a while at the depot on my grip, every seat being occupied. Then I go to an eating house and get permission to sit by the fire. The hours are long until morning.

White Oaks is thirteen miles away over the plains. Every team is engaged. The stage has no certain time of starting. It looks as though I must walk the thirteen miles, but at last the stage was ready. They called it a hack. It was in fact, a rude four-wheeled wagon with poles set up and canvas curtains. The wind was cold, very cold as we climbed the Mesa and mountain. I was so tired from my all night vigil that even on the jolting road I fell asleep.

We reached White Oaks at 10:30. It is a pretty camp; our church is of stone. The people knew that I was coming. I found the Sunday-school in session. Just now we have no pastor, but the Sunday-school is large and I was greeted with enthusiasm. At eleven o'clock I preached to a house full. Service over, men and women came to speak words of such warm welcome and hearty love for the work for the Executive Committee and secretaries and for me that I was immediately made sure that our work was appreciated. The homes of the people were thrown open. I was in the midst of warm-hearted, earnest Christain friends, whom we have developed by our gifts.

In the evening we had a great throng of people. The house is large; it was crowded; some boys sat on the floor and at the close of the service we had a love feast. A people intelligent, earnest, hearty some of them from the East, bringing eastern culture, some trained up here by our missionaries, a church in the mountains, full of faith and godliness, a blossom in the wilderness brought to flower by home mission!

I told the people we should go on with this work without doubt or question. The Baptists have a right to be here. They have no house of worship. The Methodist have a class of their own and work in harmony. Our church is the leader; it gives the inspiration, and culture and standard of life, not only here but in all this part of the territory. It is a bright spot in a large neglected country. What a mistake it would have been to withdraw from the field after so much expenditure! Only personal visitation reveal what we have done. Nowhere in my realm is there more to show for our expenditure than in this beautiful camp in the mountains. I leave them at once but the benediction of all the people followed me. I cannot tell you the beauty and joy of such a welcome, its appreciative, loving gratitude. I was weary and worn when I came. I have been lifted and inspired by our beloved people of White Oaks. I want the brethren of our Committee to write White Oaks on their hearts and to remember that in the far off mountains there are blessed results of their labor and toil. There is a song in the desert, "The inhabitant of the rock is singing." In the neglected fields where God's name is blasphemed and his word trampled under foot and where thick darkness is over the people, here and there is a bright and beautiful spot illumined by the Gospel we have preached. In the wilderness and solitary place the rose is blossoming and old promises of farseeing prophets are fulfilled.

The Game Law.

The following synopsis of the present game law of New Mexico which has been prepared by the warden, will be of interest to persons who expect to fish or hunt during the present season

The open season for different kinds of game is as follows

Deer, with horns, may be killed, with gun only, November and December each year limit one deer.

Elk, Antelope and mountain sheep—killing absolutely prohibited.

Wild turkey and mountain grouse—with gun only October, November and December

Quail with gun only—October, November, December, January and February.

Pheasants (every species) killing absolutely prohibited.

For fish, the open season is

For mountain trout (every species) with rod, hook and line only May 15 to October 15 Size limit, not less than six inches. Weight limit 15 pounds per day.

Bass, (large and small mouth species) May 15 to October 15 with rod, hood and line only. Weight limit, 25 pounds per day.

Game or fish killed or caught within the territory of New Mexico must not be sold at any time.

Where water is taken by ditch for irrigating purposes from streams wherein are living fish, wire screens must be placed at the intake of such ditches. Size of mesh ¼ inch.

Use of dynamite, drugs, or throwing saw dust in streams, etc., a felony.

Penalty, a fine not less than $25 for each offense.

Mescaleros Making Money.

The Mescalero Apache is getting down to business, and instead of waiting around the agency for the government to distribute rations they are cultivating their lands and caring for their flocks. They have shipped 15,500 pounds of wool this spring getting 13 cents a pound. They have in 200 acres of wheat which promises a large yield. An estimate from the agency says the reservation will produce 300,000 pounds of oats at this harvest.

Much of this reformation is due to Lieutenant Stotler's work when in charge of the affairs of these Indians. He was the man who gave them sheep, farming implements and taught them to build their own houses, cultivate the land etc. They were forced to discard their Indian costume and don the dress of civilization.

Substitute for "Dope."

Druggists in some places, yes, many places are making a peculiar mixture for the "Dope Fiends." Six to nine parts of Quinine is mixed with morphine and it is claimed that the compound is much less injurious and is really a good substitute. The druggist's long suit in the mixture is, however, in substituting a cheap drug for a very expensive one, and so long as it is "dopes" that are swindled where's the difference? The moral obligation, if there is any, is not a matter of consideration.

Since the flooded district around Topeka is getting from under water it is seen that the estimate of loss, misery and suffering, was entirely too low.

New Coal Fields.

Coal lands are being taken in southwestern Valencia county by Phelps-Dodge Company. Twenty-five hundred acres have been taken.

The locality in question is about 50 miles north of the Datil range in Socorro county, also north of the Mogollon range and northeast of the headwaters of the Gila river and its tributaries. The section is about 50 miles south of the Santa Fe Pacific railroad. Rail communication could be established from that point or from Solomonville on the Southern Pacific railroad in Arizona.

A Funny Piece of Business.

The great mine and mill at Albemarle, in which there is a million dollars invested, and the electric power plant of the same company, at Madrid, which cost more than two hundred thousand, will all be sold under execution in a few days, to pay an indebtedness of six thousand dollars! And a scheme for building a railway from Thornton to Bland is about to be put in effect. Queer things are going on up this way. Albuquerque J-Democrat.

Night Watchman Killed.

On the night of the 10th instant John Jones, night watchman at Raton, was murdered by a Negro dining car porter in a saloon of that city. Two or three trains were delayed at Raton on account of washouts and these porters were off drunk taking in the town, when some difficulty arose, causing the night watchman to strike one of the Negroes. This was quickly followed by a shot from the pistol of Wm Mimms hitting Jones in the head, killing him instantly. The whole number were arrested and jailed and to get them away from a mob were moved to Las Vegas in the night. Two hundred armed men went to the jail and broke in the doors but found the criminals gone.

Turquoise Mine.

Geo. S. Goode, railroad contractor, has a turquoise mine near Pearce, Ariz. He is now installing an expensive cutting plant. This property, Mr. Goode says, has the possibility of being the largest in the world. A vein has recently been uncovered which is about 40 feet in width. The formation is dolomite limestone and the turquoise is reported to be almost as rich as the peacock blue of the Oriental product.

New Paper at Santa Fe.

Santa Fe, June 13. Tomorrow, it is said, a morning daily will appear, the Bulletin, to be independent and anti-administration in tendencies. It will have Associated Press service.

SUPPOSED TO BE FRISCO Land agents are now in the vicinity of Roswell securing the necessary lands for right of way through that section for the Vernon, Roswell and El Paso railroad, and the men are working towards El Paso, says an exchange. This line is supposed to be an extension of the Frisco system. This line will either be built into Alamogordo or El Paso and until the surveys are all finished it will be hard to say which route the line will take. The engineering corps surveying the route are working in east Texas surveying and cross sectioning.

A car load of dynamite exploded on the Prescott, Phœnix and Santa Fe railroad last Friday. The explosion tore up the ground for a distance of 80 feet. Two men standing almost in reach of the car were but slightly injured.

The famous El Paso "Kid" who gives his name as Major Toney, a Negro boy, who robbed a jewelry store in Albuquerque a few days ago, has been jailed in Raton. He got away with something over $400 worth of jewelry, and is also charged with numerous petty crimes in El Paso.

OLD JUPITER PLUVIUS MAY STAY TOO LONG.

When the dust becomes a nuisance,
Making trouble everywhere,
Flying into eyes of passers
On each city thoroughfare,
It is then that we are greeting
Old J. Pluve without distrust,
And we're joyously applauding
As we see him lay the dust.

When the grass is parched and withered
By a lengthy drouthy spell,
And the need of rain refreshing
Parks and meadows plainly tell,
It is then that we're rejoicing
As J. Pluve comes on the scene,
And gets busy with his sprinkler
Till the grass again is green.

When the fields where crops are growing
Have been blistered by the heat,
And 'tis feared that in the gardens
There'll be ruin that's complete,
It is then that rural dwellers
Smile and for good harvest plan
As J. Pluve gets into action
With his mighty sprinkling can.

When the wells and springs are dwindling,
And the streams are going dry,
And there's fear of water famine,
Making countless thousands sigh,
It is then that there is rapture,
And 'tis spreading far and wide
As J. Pluve is freely dumping
Down the rain so long denied.

There is certainly much pleasure,
Making town and country gay,
When J. Pluve is reappearing
After drought has long held sway,
But 'tis also just as certain
That if he too long remains
Old J. Pluve we'll be denounced
Till he stops his tiresome rains.

MAY SUE AT HOME.

New Mexico Court Decides Residents Cannot Bring Suits in El Paso.

Final judgments have been rendered by the district court in suits which have been brought by the El Paso & Northeastern Railway campany against George Richardson of this town and Ralph S. Connell of Tularosa, enjoining each of said persons from further maintaining their suits in El Paso, Tex.

The determination of these suits in the manner above indicated establishes an important principle, which is that a citizen of this territory has no right to go outside of the territory and maintain a suit against another citizen of the territory on account of personal injuries occurring in this territory.

It has been the custom heretofore for parties living in New Mexico and desiring to bring suits against corporations for damages for personal injuries, to go to El Paso, Texas, and institute such suits. This has worked a great hardship upon many of the industries of New Mexico, as the defendants in such suits were unable to take witnesses from New Mexico to Texas by any process of court, and were dependent entirely upon such witnesses going voluntarily.

The theory upon which these cases were decided is that it is unjust and oppressive to compel a man to go away from his own home to defend litigation which could as well be tried there.

The decision of the court in the above mentioned cases leaves the defendants free to prosecute their litigation in the territory of New Mexico if they desire, but restrains them from carrying it on in the state of Texas. Alamogordo News.
