

INFLUENCE OF WINDBREAKS

A belt of evergreen trees surrounding buildings and yards have a wonderful influence in moderating the winter climate by decreasing the velocity of the wind. Government study and measurements show that a narrow belt of evergreen trees consisting of only two rows, planted close together, and forty feet high, will reduce a twenty-five mile velocity wind at two hundred feet to the leeward of five miles per hour. This reduction is equivalent to raising the temperature nineteen degrees, as it affects man and beast. This means more comfort for man, a saving of fuel in the home and of feed for the stock. Windbreaks also prevent the drifting of snow around buildings and feed yards.

Studies and measurements made by the Department of Agriculture show that there is a considerable increase in yield of fields and orchards sheltered by tree growth. The drying effect upon the soil and crop is decreased by decreasing the velocity of the wind.

Many benefits may be derived by planting trees around orchards. By reducing the velocity of the wind, the mechanical force of the wind upon the branches and fruit is decreased. This is especially true during storms. The drying out of the soil is much reduced. A windbreak of evergreens around an orchard prevents the cold, dry winds from winter killing fruit trees. Peaches can be grown considerably farther north if protected by surrounding evergreens than if grown in the open.

If a tall, fast-growing windbreak is desired cottonwood, lombardy poplar or black locust make excellent trees. Black locust is preferable since it is long lived and makes excellent fence posts. Green ash, box elder, maple, willows, evergreens or any bushy, slow-growing species are good trees to plant mixed with cottonwood or locust or set out along the edge of the tall trees. These bushy, slow-growing trees fill up the space under the branches of the fast growers and prevent the wind from blowing through.

Black locust can be grown successfully from seed in drills or hills and cultivated the same as beans. Cottonwood and lombardy poplar can be grown from cuttings if set out in moist soil.

Box elder, maple, oak, black walnut, willows or tall evergreens make good windbreaks.

For winter protection for orchards, windbreaks, or feed yards, set out evergreens. White pine or yellow pine, if properly cared for, will do well in any locality. Red fir does well in some places. Spruce is good if planted so that it is shaded while young.

Never prune trees used for windbreaks, except when the space, where the branches are cut off is filled by another tree.

To be successful with trees they have to be cultivated with as much care as orchards while they are young. If fruit trees require irrigation the young trees should be irrigated.

Evergreens require more care than broad-leaved trees.

Keep livestock from trees at all times.

An El Paso man said he just couldn't stop drinking and then proved that he could by committing suicide. Some men are so contradictory.

THE STAR OF THE SUNSHINE STATE.

(By Edward McQueen Gray.)
Amid the galaxy of spheres,
Divinely sweet to mortal ears,
Rings out a symphony sublime,
A jubilant, victorious chime,
From your bright place where,
Thronged on high,
Columbia's daughters gild the sky

Piercing the mists of sixty years
Lo, in the West a gleam appears!
And, flashing through the purple night,
Fills all the firmament with light.
Another Star! The Planets cry:
Welcome, thrice welcome to the sky!

Star of our hopes, whose gladdening beams
Fulfill the promise of our dreams;
Late born among thy Sisters fair,
Yet peer of e'en the brightest there;

So long desired, so long delayed,
Shine forth, exultant, unafraid!

Shine forth, O conqueror of fate,
Triumphant over scorn and hate;
Thou, in Columbia's diadem
The newest, yet the fairest gem;
Send down upon us from above
The light of Liberty and Love.

Past is the night, the dawning fair
Is flooding all the ambient air;
And, spurting with a high disdain
The clouds that barred his way
in vain.

The Sun God in his golden car
Rides forth to greet the new-born Star.

Ride on, victorious, elate,
Thou symbol of our Sunshine State!
And beam throughout thy pathway bright
Effulgent on our raptured sight,
O, glorious Sun! O Star divine,
New Mexico, for ever shine!

Bible school at 10 a. m. Preaching at 11 a. m., subject, "Glad Giving." Come out and we will show you what you have to give. There is not a person in this city but what can give, and they can give largely if they only so desired. Come out and let us help you to get the desire. We will not have an offering at this service. Some people's money amounts to but very little while their presence would amount to a great deal. At 8 o'clock in the evening we will have special children's program, observing Children's Day. I would like for you to come out and help encourage the children at this time. The program will be found elsewhere in this paper. As a rule, we always show what we represent in our notes.

C. I. WALKER, Pastor.

23d Psalm Revised by a Poor Republican.

My political boss is my shepherd; I shall not want for anything during the campaign; My boss leadeth me into the saloon for my vote's sake; He filleth my pocket with cigars; My cup of beer runneth over; He prepareth my ticket for me in the presence of my better judgment. Yea, though I walk through the valley in the rain and mud to vote for him, when he is elected he goeth straightway and forgetteth me. Lo, when I meet him again he knoweth me not. Surely the wool has been pulled over my eyes all the days of my life, and I should kicketh myself forever.

White Oaks.

Memorial Day was fine though, very warm. Some of the flowers sent from California, to be used were withered by the heat. There are only three resident members of the Grand Army Post here now, but in the cemetery there are twenty five low mounds, where sleeps some of the members who answered the roll call on the other shore. The three comrades here decorated all those graves and also graves of confederate soldiers who lie buried in our cemetery.

On the evening of Memorial day the ladies of White Oaks gave a reception to the members of the Grand Army and the wives and widows of old soldiers. It was an enjoyable occasion. Judge Hewitt, post commander, Lee H. Rudisille, Post adjutant and J. C. Klepinger, Mesdames Fisher, Brown, Biggs, Rudisille and Leighner were the guests.

Judge Hewitt went to Carrizozo Monday on legal business.

Harry Dawson came up from Carrizozo Tuesday with a life insurance agent to interview our interprising citizens.

Mrs. Tinnon was here from Carrizozo a few days last week.

Rev. J. H. Heald, of Albuquerque, came in on the stage the other day in response to an invitation from Rev. Evans.

Julian Taylor and family were in White Oaks on Memorial day. The stork visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Lee Jr., last Saturday and left a fine boy.

The brother of Mrs. Chas. Spence came in last Sunday. He will probably locate in Carrizozo.

Mrs. Wells will entertain the ladies of the Pastor's Aid Society at her country home beside the White Oaks springs, on Wednesday of this week.

The Sunday school is preparing for Children's Day exercises.

Mr. McVay, representing the El Paso Herald, was in town last Saturday.

The Wild Cat Boys have their power house up and the work of installing the electric plant is progressing nicely.

Civic League Ball.

One of the most brilliant of all social affairs of the season was the Civic League Ball given last Friday evening in the Peoples building. The grand march was led by Messrs. Whittingham and Northlane, each having a flat wheel, did not interfere in the least with the schedule. The voting for all purposes, young lady, matron or gentleman was lively, and at 10:30 the ballot box was closed and the votes soon announced, resulted as follows: Miss Lee Kennedy winning the young lady's prize, a beautiful silk parasol, received 2990 votes. Mrs. Edith Anderson received 1405 votes, winning the matron's prize, a beautiful all leather pocket book. Jake Ziegler, by far the most popular gentleman in the city, won the gentleman's prize, a box of fancy cigars, on 290 votes.

The hall was beautifully decorated and delicious refreshments were served. Music was furnished by a four piece orchestra.

The proceeds of the Voting Contest and Ball were $164.92 and expenses were $46.00, leaving $118.92 which will be spent in cleaning up the town.

Advertising as a Guarantee.

When a business concern invests a large sum of money in a handsome store and equipment for retail merchandising, the public feels a certain degree of confidence that the concern has goods worth examining. People argue that unless they had established a reputation for fair dealing and unless they had goods that they knew filled a need, they would not dare spend so much money.

Advertising, likewise, acts as guarantee of substantial business character. When a firm spends money freely on this necessary form of salesmanship, the public concludes that it must have goods back of it that have demonstrated their worth, or the firm would not have set apart this sum of money for selling them through the newspapers.

A concern that does not advertise impresses the public as merely an experiment. The fact that it may have been in existence for many years does not help it so very much. The public may even look at mere existence for a long term of years as a disqualification, indicating preference for old time methods. It takes advertising to prove that you have confidence in your goods.

The oak is in the middle of the forest, which is surrounded on every side by trees that shelter and shade it, runs up tall and sickly; put away from it its protectors and the first blast will overturn it. But the same tree growing in the open field, where it is continually beat upon by the tempest, becomes its own protector. So the man who is compelled to rely on his own resources forms an independence of character to which he could not otherwise have attained. Therefore prefer rather to climb up hill with difficulties than to roll down with inglorious ease.

Big Celebration to be held on July Fourth, at Corona.

Corona is to celebrate the fourth of July in great style this year. One of the largest celebrations ever held in that section of the country is anticipated. They will have a big barbecue, dance and horse racing. They have made a good circle track and expect some of the best horses in the country to run. Some prominent men will address the people. Every body is invited to attend.

All business is founded upon confidence. If a bank loses the confidence of the people it is ruined. A department store forfeits the esteem of its patrons, if a news paper abuses the trust of its readers, if an employer wrecks the faith of his helpers, old Chronos sharpens up his sickle and whistles for the Receiver. The bank may be solvent, the department store may be well equipped, and the newspapers may be run by an Apostle—but when confidence flees out the sheriff comes in. The man whose word is good as his bond, has an asset more valuable than money. Many a man can borrow a hundred dollars on the security of ten callous spots on the inside of his hands, and none on his conscience. Yet there are big property owners in their wife's name who can't negotiate the loan of a toothpick this side of the Canadian boundary line. To have and deserve the confidence of friends and business acquaintances is worth a Missouri farm in any market—and that is going some.

GOVERNOR AT LAST DECIDES TO STOP FIGHT, RUMOR.

Unconfirmed Report in Capital Last Night That He Will Send Another Message to Legislature Today; Has the Power.

Santa Fe, N. M., June 5.—There is a rumor here tonight, passed very quietly from mouth to ear of only a few people, to the effect that Governor McDonald has made up his mind that the police power he has as chief executive of New Mexico is ample to put a stop to the Johnson-Flynn fight, scheduled for Las Vegas on the 4th of July, and that he will send a message to the legislature tomorrow, coincident with the coming of Jack Johnson to give a fistie exhibit in this city, that will make it very clear that the fight will have to seek some place other than New Mexico.

Let it be understood that this is the merest rumor, but certain things that have fallen from the governor's lips within the last twenty-four hours give color to the story. It is understood that he has had the law looked up very carefully, and it is understood further that if he likes he can use the mounted police or call out the militia to preserve the peace. It is said that in the absence of a specific statute against prize fighting, the English common law prevails and that the governor has convinced himself that he cannot escape responsibility for the fight if it should take place.

From the beginning he has said he would stop the fight if he had the power to do so. Few people have questioned his sincerity on the matter, and the action he is likely to take tomorrow is in line with what has been his declared purpose from the time the fight was first spoken of as likely to be staged at Las Vegas.—Albuquerque Morning Journal.

One would think people would get tired of being killed in automobiles crossing railroad tracks. It seems such an avoidable manner of death. It may be true that the same person is never killed twice that way, but that is no help. The experience of the dead ought to teach the living. Apparently it doesn't. Every motorist must know from repeated and repeated demonstration that when a motor car and a train of steam cars dispute at a crossing as to which shall pass first the motor car invariably gets the worst of it. Yet, week after week and month after month, the argument goes on and contestants on the motor car side proceeded to the hospital or the cemetery.

At a funeral of a well known saloon keeper in southern Illinois a few days ago, the minister, instead of making the usual announcement that "an opportunity will now be given to view the remains," thought to make a change in the announcement and said: "An opportunity will now be given to pass around the bier." And quite a number of old fellows in the back part of the room wiped the sympathetic tears from their eyes, removed their quids of tobacco, spit out of the window and awaited results.

We can understand the ease with which a fool and his money are parted, but what puzzles us is how the fool got the money to part with.

FAMILY TELEPHONE ORGANIZATION

Modern conditions have brought about the need for what might be called a long distance telephone organization of the family. "When in doubt, telephone" is an axiom that ought to be impressed upon every member of the family going on a journey, or to live at a distance. The mother can reach her children at school, and children should be required to telephone home occasionally. When husband or wife set out on a journey a telephone itinerary should be jotted down and left behind.

Members of the family traveling should not be content with providing means by which those left at home may reach them quickly, but should communicate with the home frequently, and particularly when there is bad weather, transportation delay, disturbance of public order, or any other unusual condition where the traveler happens to be. Bad news flies fast, and is magnified by distance. These things cause apprehension at home.

No other medium conveys the personal assurance and causes such peace of mind as the long distance telephone talk can give.

Mr. Roosevelt is still the friend of extortionate protection and empty bread basket. Observe this item from his New Jersey speeches. "In the tariff for instance, I believe in a protective tariff, but I want to see the benefit of protection get in to the pay envelope. I don't want to see it all stop at the office." In other words, it is all right to rob the consumer if the manufacturer will give a little more of his loot to his employees.

There are mighty few young people who go into marriage with any real idea of what it means. They get their notion of it from among the clouds where they lived until they were engaged, and naturally about all they find up there is wind and moonshine, or from novels which always end before the real trouble begins, or they keep on, leave out the chapters that tell how the husband finds the rent and the wife the hired girl. But if there's one thing in the world about which it's possible to get all the facts it's matrimony. Part of them are right in the house where you were born, and the neighbors have the rest.

A man who sits by the fire, smokes his pipe and reads the newspaper, with his little trail will carry the water and fuel, fixes up the fire to keep him warm, is not worthy of such a woman's willingness.

"The HOUSE of Good taste"

Look most to your spending. No matter what comes in, if more goes out you will always be poor. The art is not in making money, but in keeping it; little expense like mice in a large barn, when they are many, make great waste. Hair by hair heads get bald; straw by straw the thatch goes off the cottage, and drop by drop the rain comes into the chamber. A barrel is soon empty if the top leaks but a drop a minute.

Each age of our lives has its joys. Old people should be happy, and they will be if Chamberlain's Tablets are taken to strengthen the digestion and keep the bowels regular. These tablets are mild and gentle in their action and especially suitable for people of middle age and older. For sale by all dealers. Subscribe for the News $1.50 per year.
