

MAY NOT ASK TAFT'S WITHDRAWAL.

Washington, July 9.—The scheme of Republican progressives in the house of representatives to launch a fresh campaign against President Taft by means of a petition asking him to withdraw as the Republican nominee proved a "flash in the pan" today.

When pinned down to it, the members who had participated in the conferences which developed the idea hastily joined the "don't mention my name" club. Those who started the movement abandoned their efforts to show the participation of the regular Republicans and it was apparent there was little support coming from that direction.

Only one of the participants in the formal conference, Representative R. R. Reese of Kansas, publicly admitted his share in the proceedings. He said he had a petition aimed at Mr. Taft, and he made it public, coupled with the following statement:

"My scheme was to appeal to Mr. Taft's patriotism and well known love for party solidarity. To be successful my petition would necessarily have to be presented to him by those who were his political adherents at the time he sought the nomination. I did not intend that the press should get hold of this scheme until I had a fair opportunity to try it out, but since it has become known, I prefer that a correct version be given. I had not proceeded far enough to solicit any signatures but had submitted the plan to several colleagues for suggestions."

The heading of Mr. Reese's petition recited the charges of fraudulent nomination against President Taft, freely made by the supporters of Colonel Roosevelt. It proceeded on a new tack, however, by asserting that whether the charges were false or true, they would affect the election, and that in the minds of progressive Republicans they would result in Republican defeat.

The petition of Mr. Reese has been adopted by the insurgents. While some were of the opinion that premature publicity had killed the scheme, others thought differently and all concluded it would be best to hold another conference when more insurgent leaders are in Washington.

Sixty-two railroad instruction trains operated during the year by the office of experiment stations of the United States department of agriculture covered more than 35,000 miles, and the meetings held in them were attended by nearly 1,000,000 people, according to the record given by the director of experimental stations, Dr. A. G. True. More than 3,000,000 persons attended agricultural fairs, county fairs, special exhibitions, and other public gatherings during the year.

PLEASED WITH OUR MOUNTAINS.

The El Paso Herald quotes an El Paso banker who passed through the mountains of Lincoln county recently in an automobile. We present the following, which relates to his trip in the mountains:

"If the people of El Paso who have automobiles had any idea of the beauty of the country so close to them, they would be motoring out to the Ruidoso river and the Capitan mountains all the time," said J. F. Williams, vice president of the city National bank, after returning today from a trip to Roswell in his Cadillac. "It is a beautiful camping place all along the Ruidoso," he continued, "and the drives north of there, up into the Capitan, are as pretty as anything I ever saw."

Mr. Williams was one of a party of several who made the trip from El Paso to Roswell in their machines last week and returned last night.

"We left El Paso Tuesday morning last," said Mr. Williams, "and reached Alamogordo seven hours later, after stopping an hour and a half for lunch on the way. That night we stopped at Bent, which we reached at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Next day we stopped at the Indian agency and also at the Ruidoso, and yet we reached Roswell by 8 o'clock in the evening, before dark. In going, we went down the Ruidoso river to Hondo and found the road rather rocky, but still not impassable. Returning we came up the Bonito to Lincoln and Capitan and then out across to Ruidoso postoffice. We found some pretty steep grades on this trip, but no rough roads and no sand. The scenery is superb in places. There is plenty of water, lots of springs and an abundance of shade and rugged scenery. It is an ideal camping place and I understand that the fishing is good. People who only use their automobiles to motor up and down the county road, have no idea what pleasures they are missing; what they can reach by very little trouble. The road from El Paso to Alamogordo is rather dusty and hot, but when the weather gets a little cooler, even that part of the trip will not be uncomfortable or disagreeable."

White Oaks.

The majority of White Oakers went abroad to give their patriotism an airing on the fourth. Cloudcroft, Ruidoso, Bonito and Nogal being the favored points. One hack loaded with young people who went to Nogal came back the next day with its occupants looking like the leaves of a Burro plant in the hot sunshine. The hack had lost one wheel which was replaced by another, and the top which was so gaily decorated when they started out, was no where to be seen.

Allen Lane has bought the handsome brick residence owned by Frank J. Sager, now of Carrizozo, and will move his family into it at an early date. They do not care to live where the floods can wash them out again, even though another such down-pour is improbable. Many of their household goods were ruined and some washed away. The piano floated around on its back in the parlor. Mr. Lane stayed in the lower rooms handing things up stairs to his wife and little boy until the water was above his waist. Even the range was carried from one side of the kitchen to another by the raging muddy torrent that swept through the house. The water was five feet high in the lower rooms and left a foot of thick mud over carpets, upholstered furniture and whatever was on the floor.

The little four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reddy was badly injured on the fourth by having some heavy lumber fall upon her where she was at play. The doctor hopes she may recover though internal injuries were feared for a time.

Mrs. E. H. B. Chew and her children have come up from El Paso to spend their vacation in this delightful atmosphere. The children will go back to school with renewed energies next September.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Coe, of Glencoe, were making a brief visit with home folks here before the fourth, as were also Mr. and Mrs. Ted Reasoner, of Jicarilla.

Rev. R. B. Evans, of Carrizozo, came up and preached in the Congregational church last Sunday evening. There is always an uplift and inspiration in his sermons which makes one wish he could give us his entire time. Carrizozo people can not afford to miss his sermons. His audiences in this "deserted village" of White Oaks, are very flattering. Mrs. Talbert, of Jicarilla, is here visiting friends for a few days.

O. K. Ingram and sons are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Spence. They came up from Roswell in Mr. Ingram's magnificent touring car.

Governor McDonald and Geo. Ulrich passed through here enroute to the Block ranch on the 8th.

Mrs. A. N. Price gave a most enjoyable birthday party to her little son Miller, on the afternoon of July 8th. All the little folks from town and neighborhood, and some from Carrizozo, were present. Mrs. Talbert, of Jicarilla, and Miss Grace Chew, of El Paso, assisted Mrs. Price in keeping the youngsters entertained. The Erick suburban home is a delightful place for entertaining either children or grown ups.

CAMORRA ITALIAN BAND CONVICTED.

Viterbo, Italy, July 8.—The verdict in the Camorra trial was handed down today. Nine of the accused were unanimously declared guilty of the murder of Mennaro Cuocola and his wife. The remainder were found guilty of belonging to a criminal association.

Great excitement prevails over the town. Reinforcements of troops and mounted police have arrived to assist in maintaining order. A body of 300 police has been especially entrusted with the surveillance of the court and its precincts.

Several relations of the accused, comprising wives, sisters and mothers, arrived here this morning, bringing an offering of wax candles to the Madonna, while others brought gifts for St. Rosa, the patron of Viterbo. Many of them took up their positions early today in the church facing the court house, where they remained kneeling, beating their breasts and imploring mercy for their beloved ones.

The presiding judge resumed his summing up of the evidence with fresh vigor, taking the greatest pains to explain to the jury the exact position of each of the accused and the significance of each of the 144 questions which the jury was required to answer.

All the accused maintained absolutely calm demeanors. Only Ciro Vitozzi, the priest known as the "guardian angel of the Camorra," displayed any shame at being forced to enter the iron cage with the other prisoners. He muttered prayers all the time, saying: "I am in the hands of God and the jury."

Baptist Church Notes.

At the regular monthly business meeting of the church a call was extended to Rev. Herbert Haywood, of Cleburn, Texas, to become pastor of the church. The church expects Rev. Haywood to begin a series of meetings immediately upon his arrival, which will be July 20. Mr. Haywood's native country is England. Rev. Walker tendered his resignation to take effect as soon as Rev. Haywood takes charge. Keep an eye out for an ad in next issue of this paper.

Jicarilla.

The crowd at the grounds on the 4th were beyond expectation. The day was perfect, and the hours past into sunrise on the 5th without a murmur of discord. All seemed as well pleased as at previous celebrations. Professor Burnett's lecture was very good and instructive and many compliments were passed upon his fine delivery and appropriate subject.

There will be a singing at the school house Sunday morning at 10:30. Dinner on the grounds and Sunday school at 2:30. Everybody come and enjoy the day.

Mrs. Adam Zumwall left on Monday's train for Silver City, where she will join her husband.

Albert May, of Nogal, passed through here on his way home from Ruidoso, where he has been visiting relatives the last few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Barrett and Mrs. Sam Howell left Wednesday morning for Roswell, where they will spend a few days.

Mrs. Sophia Pfingsten returned home on Monday's train after a two week's visit with relatives.

Several from here will attend the races at Alto tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Gamm visited several days at the Anstath home on their way home from the Ruidoso picnic.

Showing the "Queer."

One, quite likely two, possibly more, gentlemen of broad ethical views visited our town Tuesday night, and left a number of our business men with spurious $20 bills for which he, or they, received good money in exchange. Four of our town's people were recipients of $20 bills, and possibly more. The only reason others were not nipped was the lack of sufficient change to break a $20 bill.

The four bills that were exhibited the next morning upon a reasonably close inspection, proved to be $5 bills that had been raised to $20. A white, gummy ink, it appears was used to make the figure 20 and also the XX's. The other smaller figures around the margin of the bills were merely scratched over in order to obliterate the figures.

After the spurious nature of the bills was discovered, it was easy enough to detect the erroneous denomination, but at first glance, and particularly at night, the bills had a genuine appearance.

Deputy sheriff Roberts immediately notified all officers up and down the railroad to look out for a man bearing a certain description.

Democratic Platform Satisfactory.

Trenton, N. J., July 9.—Governor Wilson was in conference for more than an hour this afternoon with Samuel Gompers and other officials of the American Federation of Labor. After the meeting Mr. Gompers said: "We discussed with the governor the platform adopted by the Baltimore convention and expressed ourselves as being in entire accord with the planks which apply to legislation affecting the rights of the working people."

"I think the platform goes as far as a great political party can declare under present industrial and political conditions—that is, with any degree of assurance of being enacted into law."

Mr. Gompers said that he and his colleagues were acting as "envoys of the American laboring men." When he was asked whether the federation would support the Democratic ticket, he said, "we are going to report to our colleagues and they will make a declaration or authorize us to make it."

He described the Republican platform as "a magnificent piece of literary production and punctuated, but insofar as it affects the working people and their rights, it is conspicuously lacking."

Let There be Light.

In the past five years I have installed many Lighting Systems in the business houses and homes of New Mexico citizens, and for the summer months I am especially anxious to install Lighting Systems of the Coleman Hollow System of Lighting in all the ranch homes and surrounding towns; so I will in the next three months put these plants in at prices charged here in my home town. After this time expires, my whole work will be devoted to the general agency of the Coleman System of Lighting in the States of New Mexico and Arizona. Write for prices and booklets in regard to the best modern Lighting System on the market and make up your mind to do away with the old kerosene lamps.

SYNDICALISM IS NEW WEAPON OF LABOR

ARTURO LABRIOLA
ITALIAN SYNDICALIST LEADER

SYNDICALIST CENTER IN VICOPO

NEW methods of warfare and new aims have been introduced into the industrial world by syndicalism. In the United States most people made their first acquaintance with it through the strikes at Lawrence, Mass., and at Paterson, N. J. Even then they learned little of its principles. Yet many students of the labor questions believe that these principles will have to be reckoned with more and more. Therefore an account is given here of syndicalism up to date.

In an address delivered before the Sociological Society in England a few days ago A. J. Balfour declared that syndicalism has been brought into being by the apparent failure of the parliamentary system.

"It is a pathetic fact," he said, "but many of the most earnest men of Europe regard the representative system as almost played out. It is pathetic when you think with what high hopes each successive development of the representative system has started out."

Syndicalists have given up all hope of attaining their ends through parliamentary or legislative action and look to other means for securing social reforms.

Direct action is the epitome of the syndicalist platform: You want something? If you are strong enough to compel the people to give it to you, take it. Syndicalists do not preach plunder, neither do they say: If you want something, ask for it. No. You must demonstrate that unless a certain thing you desire is given to you, you are in a position to destroy "passively" property equal or superior in value to that certain thing.

How the Idea Works Out.

Every striker knows that and the idea is not original. What is original, however, is the application of this principle to every act of civil life.

Syndicalists are modern if anything. They do not believe in a millennium in which love and brotherhood will be the only motives of human action. On the other hand, they refuse to share the anarchist's scorn for modern civilization and his hankering for a return to nature. They are practical and businesslike. The past is dead and the future is unknown. The immediate needs of the present hour are to them the sole object of interest.

Consider now the application of the syndicalist theory.

The primary aim of labor unions is to have the work of the world done by their members daily; secondly, they are trying to keep out of the ranks of those who work for the world, so that their members will find employment all the year round. In this way, they wish to secure for their employed members the highest possible salary for the shortest possible day's work.

When fighting for recognition of their unions or for higher pay union men confer and sign agreements with their employers, thereby recognizing them formally.

Work for All, No Employers.

Syndicates, on the other hand, wish to secure employment for every human being willing to earn a livelihood. Their primary aim is to shorten the working day so that there shall not be any workers out of employment. Secondly, regarding the employers as mere parasites, they aim at driving them out by demanding a steadily higher wage until the workers receive the full value of their labor. They over confer with employers and never sign any agreements with them.

One labor union can only admit men belonging to one craft. Locomotive engineers, telegraph operators and ticket agents may be working for the same railroad, but cannot belong to the same union.

Syndicates, on the contrary, bind all workers in one solid union, divided up for local convenience into groups of more closely allied interests. Take, for instance, the employees of a steel mill. According to the union system steel workers, machinists, truckmen, stationary engineers, blacksmiths, should belong to different groups. A syndicate would admit every one employed in the mill, from the janitor to the foreman, from the office boy to the stonographer.

Finally the labor unions have reduced to the strictest minimum the number of apprentices. Syndicalists of France, Italy, England and America agree on calling this a crime against the rights of the individual. As Haywood put it:

One Evil of Trade Union Rules.

"The pointlessness of this country and of Europe are filled with young boys whom unions have prevented from learning an honest trade."

The antagonism between syndicalists and union laborers is well illustrated by the fact that in Germany, France, and elsewhere have been helping the police in breaking a strike organized by syndicalists.

It can easily be seen what tremendous power syndicates may wield owing to this system of organization. Should any one class of employees, say the opticians, walk out of a weak mill, production would be at a standstill until the strike was over. However, it would only take a few days to put the whole plant once more in good working order. On the other hand, should the truckmen, watchmen, stonographers and bookkeepers also strike in sympathy and stay out until the spinners had won their point the whole plant would be absolutely disorganized.

The recent strikes in England have not only been stimulated by this gospel and led by its chief representatives, Tom Mann, Ben Tillett and others, but from the very first they have been an actual application of the new idea and have marked a long step toward the complete reorganization of the British unions.

They were started with the seamen's strike in June, 1911, when the dockers in many places struck in sympathy, at the same time adding demands of their own. When the seamen won their strike they refused to go back to work at several places until the dockers received what they were striking for. With the dockers were involved teamsters. The railway strike was largely due to the fact that the railway unions decided to co-operate with this federation.

It Invented Sabotage.

If the syndicate is not strong enough to win a strike, or if as it has happened several times in France the government interlopes and fills with soldiers the places left vacant by strikers, the workmen are directed to give in, resume work and begin a new form of strike, sabotage.

The word "sabotage" was coined in 1804 by Pougat, the most powerful French organizer. Sabotage never was generally or effectively applied until a year ago, when the French railroad men lost their big strike. The strike only lasted three days. Then Premier Briand issued an order making every railroader a recruit, and all went back to work as soldiers, some 3,500 of them were discharged and then the silent strike began; sabotage was kept up until every one of the 3,500 employes had been reinstated.

Every man began to discharge his duties in strict accordance with the letter of the rule. Railroad men acted like the Chinese tailor who had been commissioned by a foreign consul to make a duplicate of a suit of clothes given him as a model and who carried out his instructions exactly—so exactly, in fact, that a patch on the trousers, a torn ball on the waistcoat and two grease spots on the coat were carefully duplicated on the new garment.

Station men would work faithfully until the precise minute when they were supposed to quit, and then allow a freight car they had been moving to crash to the bottom of an incline or to obstruct the path of incoming trains. Repair gangs would keep on repairing the track in front of a limited, delaying it for an hour and disorganizing the schedule, or else let it pass over a stretch of unfastened rails, and consequently sink into the roadbed.

What distinguishes syndicalists from unionists and socialists is their absolute internationalism. Socialists are naturally supposed to be citizens of the world, but whenever there appears a war cloud on the horizon French and German socialists will very speedily under the pressure of public opinion and join the bellicose chorus of patriots.

Would Abolish War.

Syndicalists, on the contrary, try to get together and to avert the war peril by threatening their governments with reprisals in the form of a strike or a civil war.

A good example of this method of proceeding was the syndicalist meeting held in Paris last August, when France, Germany, England and Spain seemed on the point of drawing swords over the Moroccan imbroglio. Schmidt, Bauer and Silberstein speaking in behalf of the German, Harris and Negro of the Spanish, Kollbeck of the Dutch, Tom Mann of the English, Viret, Gavalo and Morheim of the French syndicalists, declared that their constitutions were absolutely opposed to war, and proclaimed the brotherhood of European workmen.

A month before Viret, the secretary of the Associated Labor Council of France, had been invited to address the Berlin syndicalist. His speech, the importance of which was fully appreciated by the imperial government, which ordered him to be immediately expelled, contained among other things the following remarks addressed to the French and German governments:

"Just try once, you blockheads, to stir up one people against the other; to arm one people against the other; you will see if the people won't make an entirely different use of the weapons you put into their hands. Wait and see if the people don't go to war against an entirely different enemy than you expect!"

Fight Militarism.

The French and Italian syndicalists are fighting militarism with tooth and nail, for a standing army is an ever present danger in case of strikes.

An early in 1909 the government of Holland broke a general strike by the use of the army to operate the railroads, and the same thing was done in Hungary in its following year. In 1905, these measures had such success that the Hungarian government went further two years later and took away the right of organization from the agricultural laborers, while at the same time it used the army as strike breakers in harvest time and made permanent arrangements for doing this in a similar contingency in the future.

Syndicates conduct in all branches an active underground propaganda by means of small pamphlets—cheaply concealed in the pocket. As a result of this agitation there were last year 15,000 desertions; 10,000 men refused to answer their call to military service. At the time of the wine growers' riots in France several regiments sent to put down the riot refused to obey their officers and joined the wine growers' parades.

Lamb's Tenure of Life Not Long.

A party of privileged nightbirds were admitted to a private view of a monogamous between performance, and among other things were shown what was called a "Happy Family," that is to say, in one and the same cage there was a toothless lion, a tiger, somewhat the worse for wear, and a half-famished wolf. Beside these wild animals, curled up in one corner, was a diminutive lamb which appeared as if slumbered.

"How long have the animals lived together?" asked one of the party.

"About twelve months," replied the showman.

"Why," exclaimed a lady, "I am sure that little lamb is not as old as that."

"Oh," said the showman, quite unmoved, "the lamb has to be renewed occasionally."

TIMES HAVE CHANGED

In grandfather's day the American family stayed pretty much in one place. It grew up on the old farm, or lived in the comfortable farm house. The children went not more than a mile to school, and going away to college was exceptional. Travel had not become general.

But the world has been extended. Today the typical American family is scattered much of the time. Father hurries back and forth between cities on business. Mother has her own interests, and goes to meetings, conventions, on visits and jaunts.

These modern conditions are all good. They mean a broader life and better opportunities. But they also bring a certain element of anxiety and loneliness, due to separation. Trains are delayed, epidemics break out in schools, rumors and alarms come flying from many directions, very often groundless, yet causing worry and fear.

The first resource in such emergencies should be the long distance telephone.

The family with the best realization of the telephone possibilities enjoys the greatest peace of mind.

HALLEY & DINGWALL, PUBLISHERS.

WANT TAFT TO WITHDRAW.

Republican congressman and other federal officials and those who are up for re-election this fall are anxious to get Taft out of the way. They fear that his defeat will carry them down to defeat also. A petition was, therefore, started for the purpose of convincing the president of the utter impossibility of his re-election, and the resultant demoralization of the republican party.

The nerve of the petitioners, however, failed when the time for the presentation of the petition came. And it is just as well that it did. In the first place it would have had no effect on the president, because he would not have given the matter a moment's consideration; and in the second place, should he withdraw it would only make confusion worse confounded. No man in the republican party desires the empty honor of attempting to heal the differences existing in the republican party, with the certainty of defeat staring him in the face. In addition, there is a feeling that the president is responsible, largely, for the disruption of his party and if any body is to suffer he should be the one. And, again, there is Roosevelt in the field, and the leaders of the republican party have determined to humiliate him even though they go down to inglorious defeat.

No, the gentlemen who will suffer by reason of Mr. Taft's candidacy will have to make the best of it. The national republican party has put its seal of approval on the president, question the methods however we may, and upon that action the party must stand during the campaign, and fall, if the people fail to approve that action; on the 5th of November. It is patent to everyone that Mr. Taft is a weak candidate, but it is equally certain that if a republican is to be president after the 4th of next March the "Man of Straw" is the only chance.

One More Taft Blunder.

The selection of Charles D. Hillis, the president's private secretary, as chairman of the republican national committee, has led to much unfavorable comment by the republican press. The following comment from the Albuquerque Morning Journal is interesting:

"The selection of Charles D. Hillis, secretary to President Taft, for the very responsible position of chairman of the republican national committee charged with the management of the coming campaign, is but another of the long list of blunders that have characterized the administration and the leaders of the party.

Hillis has had no experience. Before he became secretary to the president, he was a school teacher. His relation to the administration has given him a wide acquaintance among public men, but not the sort that one would expect to find in a man selected for director of the campaign.

The republicans have been in power for a long time. They have become accustomed to victory with little effort. During the past two or three years feuds have sprung up in the party, and there has been no one to advise republicans safely and sagely. The unrest of the times has had much to do with it, and personal ambitions have had much more. A fight might have been made that would have had a chance to win, but with Hillis as leader that does not appear probable at this time.

The fact is, the national republican leaders seem to have about as much wisdom as has been displayed by the republican leaders of New Mexico—a hopeless tangle of incompetents, a blundering bunch of self-seekers, men who do not learn by experience and who will not get out till they are kicked out. Their getting out appears at this time to be only a matter of a few months."

In all the turmoil ament the Baltimore convention, the fact stands out boldly that nothing they could have done would have been more pleasing than the nomination of Wilson for president. This does not apply to democrats alone—thousands of progressive republicans are happy over the result.

"Uncle" Joe Cannon is not saying a word. Possibly his experience two years ago in progressive Kansas taught him a lesson. He, no doubt, thinks he can do more for himself in his congressional district than he can for his less fortunate brothers elsewhere.

There will likely be no necessity for an anti-prize fight law in New Mexico. The Las Vegas fiasco will prove a better preventative than prohibitive legislation.

President Taft had his wish—his private secretary, Hillis, has been made chairman of the National republican committee.

To steal a kiss is natural. To buy one is stupid. Two girls kissing is a waste of time. To kiss one's sister is proper. To kiss one's wife is obligation. To kiss an ugly woman is gallantry. To kiss an old, faded woman is devotion. To kiss a young, blushing girl is—quite a different thing. To kiss one's rich aunt is hypocrisy. Kissing three girls on the same day is extravagance.

A tin peddler cheats a farmer's wife out of eleven cents on her rags and seventeen cents on a calf skin, while she works off two dozen bad eggs on him at twenty five cents, and stuffs a pound of hen's feathers into a sack of goose feathers she sells him at fifty cents a pound. Wonder how much the tin peddler is ahead.

The day of the stand-patter has been long in the land, but his life is fast ebbing. A new day is dawning, a new deal has been called for and the people are to have an inning. After the fourth of next March the stand-patter, whether republican or democrat will have little voice in this great government.

A huckleberry pie that had been baked without any air holes in the top of the crust, exploded when it was placed on the table in a Roswell boarding house a few days ago and several people were injured. There should be a drastic legislation providing for air holes in boarding house pies.

The rush on the local line has slackened temporarily—the California shipments are to be succeeded by Arizona molons, and the break will be healed soon.
