The Philadelphia baseballer, wealthy, and a member of the club, was seen last night in a case of military uniform, and he was well enough to marry.

Doctors Said Health Gone

Suffered with Throat Trouble

Mr. B. W. D. Barnes, of Warren County, Tennessee, writes: "I had throat trouble and had three doctors treating me. All failed to do me any good, and pronounced my health gone. I consulted Dr. Peruna, and after using four bottles I was entirely cured."

Mr. B. W. D. Barnes.

Mr. Gustav Himmelreich, Hochheim, Texas, writes: "For a number of years I suffered whenever I took cold, with severe attacks of asthma, which usually yielded to the common home remedies."

"Last year, however, I suffered for eight months without interruption so that I could not do any work at all. The various medicines that were prescribed brought me no relief."

"After taking six bottles of Peruna, two of Laxogen and two of Minalin, I am free of my trouble so that I can do all my farm work again. I can heartily recommend this medicine to any one who suffers with this annoying complaint and believe that they will obtain good results."

After meeting a nice young man for the first time a girl remains awake half the night wondering if she made an impression.

No Waves. A young mother who still considers Marcel waves as the most fashionable way of dressing the hair was at work on the job.

The precocious child was crouching on its father's lap, the baby fingers now and then sliding over the smooth and glossy pate which is father's "No waves for you, father," remarked the little one. "You're all beach."

THE CARELESS GROCER

Blundered, and Great Good Came of it. A careless grocer left the wrong package at a Michigan home one day and thereby brought a great blessing to the household.

"Two years ago I was a sufferer from stomach troubles, so acute that the effort to digest ordinary food gave me great pain, and brought on a condition of such extreme nervousness that I could not be left alone. I thought I should certainly become insane. I was so reduced in flesh that I was little better than a living skeleton. The doctors failed to give me relief and I despaired of recovery."

"One day our groceryman left a package of Grape-Nuts food by mistake, so I tried some for dinner. I was surprised to find that it satisfied my appetite and gave me no distress whatsoever. The next meal I ate of it again, and to be brief, I have lived for the past year almost exclusively on Grape-Nuts. It has proved to be a most healthful and appetizing food, perfectly adapted to the requirements of my system."

"Grape-Nuts is not only easily digested and assimilated, but I find that since I have been using it I am able to eat anything else my appetite dictates, without trouble from indigestion. The stomach trouble and nervousness have left me. I have regained my plumpness and my views of life are no longer despondent and gloomy."

"Other members of my family, especially my husband, (whose old enemy, the heartburn, has been vanquished) have also derived great benefit from the use of Grape-Nuts food and we think do morning meal complete without it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"Here's a recipe," and it is explained in the little book "The Road to Well-Being," in plain, simple, and easy-to-follow directions. It is a most interesting, true, and not an ordinary recipe.

HAS GREATEST CHARM

COSTUME WITH SOCIAL STAMP MOST ALLURING.

Well-Described as at Once a Compliment and a Challenge—Many Styles From Which to Choose Most Becoming.

Without a doubt, it is the costume with the social stamp which is the most seductive to feminine eyes nowadays. The street suit of old sort has undisputed ascendance, but the gown of more elegant description, which tells of the reception, high tea visiting, etc., bears with it something far more entrancing. It is elegant to begin with, and, besides, hints of one's interest in and appreciation of friends. It is at once a compliment and a challenge. One seeks for becomingness above all qualities in these costumes, social, for the best textures that can be afforded and for colors which will not conflict with drawing rooms.

As to styles, how many there are to choose from. The close slip covered with a Greek skirt, in some finer contrasting material, is much admired for young married women who give smart receptions, and to whom the classic stamp is becoming. Fine wools and velvet textures made up with high-

LINGERIE OF THE DAINTIEST

Women of Fashion Insists on the Lightest Fabrics and Most Excellent Embroidery.

Open work wheel embroidery so oft repeated that little of the background was to be seen is one of the favorite embellishments of a double set of underwear made for a coming trousseau. Two other sets of finest cambric are embroidered with little cupids and doves supporting a rope of roses, all rendered in the finest embroidery. A third set has Malines lace insert upon it, and the fine Malines crochets and Valenciennes decorate a fourth.

For some of the little malines jackets finely plaited chiffon flounces are chosen as an edging and others have scalloped ones oversewn with wool, which looks cozy and of an uncommon appearance upon wool backed satin. Completely charming are the coverlets sold to be thrown over the lingerie sets when put out by the lady's maid for morning or evening wear, each one among them a match to the lingerie.

The alpine and blouse from the lingerie department of a well-known maker of such frivolities are like gossamer for lightness of weight, and show the simplicity of line and design that is absolutely delightful when the finest fabric are used. There is a real pink crepe blouse with a collar and a straight yoke of black Chantilly lace, in which decorative is added a little breast pocket trimmed with a fan of Chantilly. Another of the three-layer kind, the first of these sets colored cotton and the third of pale blue with a sandwiche between of "pale yellow" lace.

WASTED COATS SHORT BODICES

With innumerable yards of neplum tails, and the one-piece gown in all its ramifications are other favored models. Few long skirts appear for day wear, although if the reception is to be followed by a "dinner," the hostess or the young matron who helps her receive, may wear a unique "fall"—the skirt running out into a sharp point behind, or else bunched together with a buckle or rosette. How funny the styles of the day will appear a decade hence, when history has shelved them, with things dead and gone. In the interim there is no abatement in the love of foolishness—tight skirts, mammoth handbags, hats which look like Indian headdresses, bushel baskets, what not. And as yet the foolishness is all lovely.

In the illustration the one-piece effect is given here and a flat trimming used on both waist and skirt. The style is charming for a fancy wool, velvety cloth, or marquisette, and here quite an exceptional novelty cloth in black and white is used. The trimming is black velvet, the buttons being covered with the same goods.

Black and white, all black, black with color! Who can foresee the banishment of black for use in color, the time when it will be regarded as passe, unbecoming, undesirable? Nobody can, for the good reason that black is forever rewarding to become, rags, forever smart, distinguished, rare, and so, although season by season new colors come and go, the black dress in all its phases remains. At present the black and white version is the distinguished thing but it would take a book to tell of all the materials used, all the styles of the "ink-and-snow" gown, all the hundred and one tricks employed to soften and vary the bodice. But one thing is everywhere observable—the black and white scheme must be definite sharp black, sharp white and never little blurring mixtures. You literally see the gown coping like a circus horse—that is, if it is the latest French notion in wool or velveteen.

With the black and white gown many pure white hats and fur sets are worn, or else the hat will be black with a white fancy feather, while the charming markings of pointed fox will give the black and white note to the furs.

White Blouses Revived. It seems essential to wear some touch of black at the neck of a white blouse these days, and the fashion will be followed out in America without doubt. More than white blouses are sold than for the last four years, because they have returned to favor with morning suits, provided they are quite plain and very sheer. The only trimming allowed is a narrow band of Irish insertion down the front and at the collar and on edge of Irish Picot on the frills over the hand and down the front.

Chinese Sewing Bag. As today is a day of fancy stitchery, of knitting, of crochet and of embroidery among women who are busy and women who are at leisure, workbags are very important. Hundreds of them are being made for gifts, but the newest idea is the bag of heavy Chinese mackintosh embroidery, the top of which is run through a jade bracelet and the sides of which are trimmed with those funny little Chinese ornaments in green wood and beads that are put on the lanterns and can be bought at the Oriental shops.

THE "NOTE OF INTERROGATION" TOQUE.

Smart Stockings. Lace inset stockings are to form a part of the smart girl's winter wardrobe. Short skirts obligate her to garter her ankles attractively. Formerly one lace was used only on black or white stockings, but at present the prevailing taste for color demands that lace be used on all stockings. Lace must be dyed to match the silk used for the stockings. Many of lace are used in some cases, while in others they form a decorative or true layer of lace. The year latest novelty is in black stockings.

DIDN'T THINK SHE WAS TIRED

Mr. Jinks' Mean Inclination When Young Lady Discovered Him at His Seat.

"That was adding insult to injury," said Representative Mann, the minor leader of the house, a member of a political squabble. "It reminds me of young Jinks."

"Late one night young Jinks sat in a crowded trolley car, and when a girl he knew got aboard and stood directly in front of him, he made no sign. His face hidden by his newspaper, he pretended that he didn't know the girl would like to have his seat."

"After a while she spoke."

"Good evening, Mr. Jinks."

"Why, good evening."

"I've been to the Primrose social dance."

"Indeed?"

"Then, after a pause, she added: 'It's a wonder, Mr. Jinks, you wouldn't offer me your seat!'"

"Jinks then got up. He was very angry," he said, as he hooked himself to a strap.

"I thought you wouldn't want it for as you said you'd been to a dance, I knew you must have been sitting all the evening."

PIMPLES COVERED HIS BACK

"My troubles began along in the summer in the hottest weather and took the form of small eruptions and itching and a kind of smarting pain. It took me mostly all over my back and kept getting worse until finally my back was covered with a mass of pimples which would burn and itch at night so that I could hardly stand it. This condition kept getting worse and worse until my back was a gold mass of big sores which would break open and run. My underclothing would be a clot of blood."

"I tried various remedies and salves for nearly three years and I was not getting any benefit. It seemed I was in eternal misery and could not sleep on my back or lean on a chair. I was finally given a set of the Cuticura Remedies and inside of two weeks I could see and feel a great relief. I kept on using Cuticura Soap, Ointment and also the Resolvent, and in about three or four months' time my back was nearly cured and I felt like a new being. Now I am in good health and no signs of any skin diseases and I am fully satisfied that Cuticura Remedies are the best ever made for skin diseases. I would not be without them." (Signed) W. A. Armstrong, Corbin, Kan., May 26, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

The man who is satisfied with himself never worries on account of his neighbor's estimate of him.

SEVEN YEARS OF MISERY

How Mrs. Bethune was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Sturgeon, Mo. "For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I had cramps, backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone in the room. The doctor gave me medicine to ease me at these times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband's told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do all my own housework, work in the garden and entertain company and enjoy them, and can walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the week. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl, and tell them what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. DeMa-Burnham, Sturgeon, Mo.

Remember, the remedy which did this was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It has helped thousands of women who have been troubled with displacement, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means have failed. Why don't you try it?

Prude Mercantile Co. Assigns

The Prude Mercantile company of Tularosa, made a voluntary assignment this week. The Credit Men's Association, of El Paso, are the assignees and have taken charge of the business. The company, it is said, has more than enough stock on hand to meet all obligations, but the inability of the company to realize on some large accounts produced financial distress, and the management made a voluntary assignment. J. W. Prude, who is an old time Lincoln county man, was manager and principal stockholder. His friends hope he will weather the gale and come out all right in the end. Another local stockholder, Gunten, was bookkeeper, and following the assignment committed suicide by shooting himself with a pistol. Remorse over financial difficulties was supposed to be the cause of the rash act.

To Organize a Civic League

The women of the town are to meet at the Methodist church next Friday, March 1st, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, for the purpose of organizing a Civic League. The primary object is to clean up the town. Every woman in town is not only requested but expected to be present. This organization has accomplished a great deal for other towns, and the Carrizozo field is ripe unto harvest. Hygienic conditions are probably not worse here than in the average small town, but the Lord knows they are bad enough and there is vast room for improvement. And the women, believing that cleanliness is next to godliness, mean to better their condition.

From California

We are in receipt of a very pleasant and entertaining letter from our old friend John H. Canning, who is engaged in business at Perris, California. He writes discouragingly of crops in his particular section, on account of the drouth and hot weather. The thermometer registering 65 to 80 degrees daily for 45 days. Notwithstanding the total loss of the grain crop, many farmers will recoup their loss from the alfalfa crop, which they are making productive by means of pumping plant. Personally, Mr. Canning writes in a hopeful manner and says that he is enjoying a good business and all are in the best of health, which is good news, mean to better their condition.

The Traveling Auditor.

Day by day evidence is accumulating which creates the conviction that Traveling Auditor Joerns is holding on to his office for the purpose of protecting someone. While it is true that no charges have been presented against any bank or treasurer, yet the failure of Joerns to resign leads to the belief that "there is something rotten in Denmark" and that the traveling auditor is clinging to his office for the purpose of giving the guilty party or parties, all the grace in his power to straighten things up.

The action of the traveling auditor in not resigning, when he knows the governor desires peace and harmony at the beginning of the new state government, is censured, not only by democrats, but by his own political associates. He is merely taking advantage of the situation. Why don't he resign?

Many irregularities are reported, but they have not come from auditor's office, and if these reports are true, what hope is there that the auditor will investigate them now when he has failed to do so in the past? And if the present traveling auditor were to make an examination he would necessarily condemn his past official life, should he find any wrong doing, for they have occurred during his incumbency, and the responsibility has been his, hence his natural inclination would be to administer a coat of whitewash.

Everybody expects the governor not to investigate these affairs, and everybody who knows the governor feels that he will do so. But it is natural that the governor would desire to have a man in whom he has confidence, and one of his own selection before any accurate and satisfactory examination is to be made. Is it the policy of the present auditor to cover up the situation, as long as possible? Does not the auditor know that after a while patience will cease to be a virtue and that sufficient means will be found to separate him from his office? The people demanded a change in the coming past November, he must know they do not approve of his action. Is the case so desperate with some of his friends that he is willing to be made the goat? If not, why don't he resign?

As for this broad and the 22nd of February, Washington's birthday is celebrated. How shall any man add ought to the praise or eulogy of George Washington? History and biography, eloquence and poetry have exhausted their combined riches upon the successful leader of the American revolution and the founder of the American republic—our first great national hero.

Trade at home with the home man, the man that resides at home, lives in your own town, spends all his money at home, and see how much better you and he feels about it. Your money will stay at home then, ten to one he comes in in a few days later and spends more money in your house than you did in his. Don't let a man trade either with you a hundred years and not buy anything of him. If you don't commence some time to reciprocate he is liable to need something in your line, get mad and walk clear down to New Orleans after it. Reciprocity is a good thing even in a small country hamlet.

A well known minister who had been preaching a begging sermon, concluded it as follows: "I don't want any to contribute who have not paid their subscription to the home paper, for country papers need money a great deal more than do the heathen." That minister knew what he was talking about.

In an adjoining town, while a ladies' card club was playing for a $2.00 book as prize, the sons of these same ladies, small boys, were arrested in a hay mow while playing for a 50c prize. They had organized a club like their mothers. The mothers cried and said, "What a terrible place this town is to raise boys, anyhow!" Served them right. They might have known the difference between a haymow and a parlor, and a $2.00 and a 50c prize.

The day ought not to be so very far distant when intelligent, thoughtful people will select their family paper with as much care as they do their preacher or their school teacher, for, as a matter of fact, the family paper may have as much to do in shaping public and private morals as either the teacher or preacher. A public journal in the family circle, be it good, bad, or indifferent, is read more or less, by every member of the family who reads at all. The teacher has the child or young person five or six hours a day, the preacher talks at or over them an hour or two a week while a paper is in the home the whole week through, and is generally thoroughly read because it is always at hand, if for no better reason.

A little boy found the following letter on the street, inscribed with someone's initials, whom we cannot guess, and handed it to us to read. The envelope was unsealed and had no address, but we think the party who wrote the letter evidently intended to address it at the postoffice before posting it, but on the way there it must have dropped from his pocket.

If we knew the name of the writer we would return the letter to him, but think he will identify it herewith and call for the missive at an early date. Therefore, for his information, we print extracts from the letter, hoping thereby the writer of the same will recognize it forthwith:

"Dear Kitty:
 It will surprise my turtle dove to learn that I have started in to build a nice little nest for my dearie. The nicest little home for two ducklins like you and I you ever saw. Now, tootsie-wootsie, don't ask any questions, it's all coming out as I said, you remember when I gave you the ring, a little cottage for you and I with the ivy creeping over the porch, a cottage nestling among the foothills of the Rabbit Ears. Isn't that just lovely? When do I expect to have it ready? I know, Sugarplum, that is your next question. In the meantime trust me like you would Fido and Fudge. Isn't that perfect, a la carte, you know. Trust me, peaches and cream, for a domestic, such as only love's sweet dream can know.
 Yours ever faithful, with many kisses" J. C.

Don't loaf on the streets and tell strangers that the town is dead. It is not. The trouble is not that of a dead town, but that of dead energies of too many of its people. Show that you are alive by moving lively, wide awake by jumping into it, on the alert by improving your opportunities, and getting there because you are in the lead of the procession.

Did you ever know that there are three persons in the United States who enjoy the privilege of receiving and sending letters without being obliged to use postage stamps? These are the widows of former presidents Mrs. Grover Cleveland, Mrs. Benjamin Harrison and Mrs. James A. Garfield. By a special act of Congress these three ladies enjoy the privilege, so if you have occasion to write them you need not affix any stamp to your letter.

You are probably aware that pneumonia always results from a cold, but you never heard of a cold resulting in pneumonia when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was used. Why take the risk when this remedy may be had for a trifle? For sale by all dealers.
