Cows, Trees and Incorporation

SHALL stock—cows, burros, etc.—run at large in Carrizozo? has been a burning question for many moons; but the question was answered in the negative Monday of this week. A petition was presented to the board of county commissioners praying for a proclamation that would prevent animals from running loose in the town. The required number of signatures having been secured, there was nothing for the board to do but to issue the proclamation; and after a four weeks' publication of such notice the pound law will be in effect in Carrizozo, including all additions.

The avowed purpose of the action, and in so far as it goes it is a good one, is to protect trees, shrubbery, etc., that have been, and will be planted in the town. The town cow and burro have caused much woe to those attempting to grow trees, and especially was it necessary to protect trees on the streets and around the court house from the depredations of these animals.

Of course, there is another side to the question, but that had nothing to do with the action of the board; for when a petition with the requisite number of signatures was presented, asking for this order, it became mandatory upon the board to take affirmative action. There was no room for argument; there was no alternative on the part of the board, and the order had to be made, for good or evil. That difficulties will arise no one doubts; that hardships will be imposed on some—on many, in fact—goes unquestioned; but twenty or twenty-five signers to the petition could, and did, compel action on the part of the board; and the trees will be saved, even though, as a result, we have confusion worse confounded and friction without end.

Naturally, there is a conflict between those who want to see the town beautified by the planting of trees—and their preservation—at all costs, and those who want the cow for the service she renders the family. The question, therefore, is, or should have been, are the trees more valuable to the town and to the majority of the people than are the milk cows, which in many instances, are the main sustenance of some families. We say, this should have been the spirit evinced by those signing the petition—the greatest good to the greatest number.

We are not desirous of interposing any serious objection to the plan adopted, because we hope to see it lead to better things. But we do assert, in all good faith, that we feel the beginning was made at the wrong end. We believe there is a better way to have accomplished the same purpose—combining many other good things and by so doing eliminate the friction and turmoil that is bound to result. We believe that proper care could have been given the trees by fencing—and the outlay would have been small compared to what may result from the present plan. But we get the answer in the form of a query: "Where is the money coming from to do this? Appeals are too often made to business men for subscriptions." We answer, incorporate!

But when the question of incorporation is mentioned many go up in the air. Why? Are they afraid a town council will be unjust, place exorbitant taxes on our people and place restrictions around business that would be intolerable? If so, in the first place, they have little confidence in their neighbors and associates; and in the second place, they occupy a rather peculiar position by saying to the owners of stock, "We'll show you what you must do, but we don't want you to interfere with us." By making this restriction a burden is placed on a large part of our population—why not be consistent and place the burden on all property? Let us incorporate!

Every man in Carrizozo knows that Carrizozo annually expends a large sum of money on matters that must receive attention, and yet every man knows equally well that such expenditures are made by voluntary subscription, and knowing that, he also knows that the burden falls on a few. The biggest property owners are non-residents, and therefore not blameable for not contributing to the upkeep of the town, but a village incorporation, taxing all property alike, would shift the burden—not only from the shoulders of the few to those of the many, but to the large property owners who are now exempt by the present system. And in view of the fact that improvements—whether they consist in grading streets, building sidewalks, growing trees, etc.—enhance the value of all property in the town the taxpayer will be properly reimbursed for what taxes he pays by the increased value of his property.

Let's go the entire road; let's incorporate under the village act and put all kinds of property on an equal basis. Let's be fair to ourselves and to one another. Let's eliminate a little of the virus of selfishness and do something for the general benefit of the town. When this is done it will lead to better things and still better things.

Local self-government is, as it should be, a boon to be enjoyed by communities like this, and under it more real improvement and development can be accomplished than in any other manner. Not only is this true, but by incorporation the unwilling as well as the willing must bear their proportionate share of the cost of the upkeep of the town.

News Notes from Outside Points

FORT STANTON

Dr. R. G. Pearce returned last train day from El Paso where he took a quiet rest for a few days.

Dr. Lincoln has arrived to take up his work at the Post, and will reside at No. 4.

Chaplain Frund accompanied the Episcopal party to Capitan, Patos and Carrizozo Monday morning and afternoon.

His grace, the Archbishop, was a special guest of the Commanding Officer and family during his stay at the post Sunday afternoon and evening. Both parties enjoyed the visit immensely.

Dr. A. Brown is still holding house warming receptions. Popularity is not always the best.

Dr. Pearce's address while in El Paso was general delivery.

Mr. Joseph Gentry of No. 4 easily won the honors of being appointed as our next post master. Joseph always did love postal cards, so now he has the opportunity to see many.

Mr. Charles U. Babba, we are delighted to state, will not leave Fort Stanton permanently. How could we get along without Charles?

The Chaplain claims that Johnson Brothers of the popular Carrizozo garage can certainly take the honors in handling the Episcopal party in touring the county. It is so pleasant to have men at the wheel who know when the tires are down and the bills are up. Umpiring a ball game and automobiling are their specialties.

Rev. Father Teribus Christman, O. F. M., of Roswell, is one of the popular religious leaders of the state. He has a most pleasing disposition and presence, which accomplishes much in his ministry. Father Teribus assisted the Archbishop and the pastor, Father Girma, on the confirmation tour of the parish, which included Fort Stanton.

The ball game between Carrizozo and Fort Stanton on the Carrizozo diamond last Sunday resulted in an overwhelming victory for the Marines. The question of the hour in Lincoln county baseball is, "Who said Carrizozo knew the game or any part of it?" Carrizozo, you are slipping. Look out as the Capitan High School will consider seriously before accepting a challenge.

Archbishop Pitaval, D. D., of Santa Fe, paid the Post a pleasant visit Sunday evening, May 4th, confirming a class in the Sacred Heart Chapel and making a very pleasing address to the large assembly present. His Grace possesses such a presence as to make all feel perfectly at home, while having the distinguished honor and privilege of same. The following are the names of the class confirmed at the Fort: Mr. and Mrs. John Able, Master William Thomas Coleman, George Frederick Curran, Anthony Michael Cross, Beatrice Elizabeth Brockway and Jose John Alveres. Solemn Benediction closed the service, which was given by His Grace, the Archbishop, as celebrant, Father Girma, Deacon, Father Christman, O. F. M., sub-deacon; and Chaplain Frund, master of ceremonies. The Sacred Heart choir rendered a special program, assisted by the King orchestra. Miss Margaret La Breche assisted in the orchestra, Mrs. F. C. Smith rendered a select solo which was enjoyed very much. Mr. Ben J. King, the accomplished violinist and leader of the choir and orchestra is an artist possessing the talent for refined music. Mrs. A. E. Lowett presided at the organ.

Jicarilla

W. A. Franklin and wife returned from Chicago a few days since. Mr. Franklin is going to start on his plans for a cyanide plant right away.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale and Mrs. Cardwell visited friends on the east side last week.

Mrs. Mary Campbell is improving slowly from her late protracted illness.

The family of Mr. Phil Reasoner is moving out from White Oaks to their Jicarilla home place. E. E. Wilson has just received his engine and other machine accessories and is ready to commence drilling again.

Mrs. E. H. Talbert will leave Saturday for Colorado and will visit friends in Albuquerque and Mountainair enroute. She will probably return the latter part of the summer.

The horses of Max Gubarra supposed to have strayed off, are now known to have been stolen, and four were taken from another place along the way. We learn that Gubarra is on their trail, though the thieves are several days ahead of him.

Frank Marsh is sojourning in the "Jicks" awhile, he having completed his work near Jack's Peak.

Mr. Talbert has purchased some pigs to help stock his new ranch, and to give it a home like appearance.

Besides the cackle from the hen house, we now have the sweetest notes of Robin Redbreast, and the little Mexican canary, as they build little by little on their dainty nests.

Corona

Mr. Lon Jenkins was up from El Paso Saturday receiving two car loads of cattle which he had bought last fall.

Several cars of cattle were loaded here Sunday.

Dr. Smith, the dentist from Las Vegas, was here Monday repairing teeth for the people who were in need of that kind of work.

Rev. Herbert Haywood came up from Carrizozo Saturday for his regular appointment. He was accompanied by his wife.

School will close the 16th after a nine months' term.

Mr. Brown of Roswell spent the week here.

Mr. Edmonston of Carrizozo was up here the past week looking after the sheep business.

Hon. Melvin Franks attended a meeting of the County Commissioners Monday.

Messrs. Doran and Root of Albuquerque were here the first of the week.

Rev. J. W. Varney filled his regular appointment at Varney last Sunday.

We have a few cases of measles in town at present.

We are expecting Dr. Richards and wife back from California in a few days.

Show Your Loyalty by Buying at Home

A LOYAL customer has written a little article containing twelve good reasons why he patronizes home industry. Thinking this worthy of your attention we publish it below.

Why buy at Home?

I Buy At Home—

- Because my interests are here.
- Because the community that is good enough for me to live in is good enough for me to buy in.
- Because I believe in transacting business with my friends.
- Because I want to see the goods I am buying.
- Because I want to get what I buy when I pay for it.
- Because my home dealer "carries" me when I run short of cash.
- Because some part of every dollar I spend at home stays at home and helps work for the welfare of the city and the county.
- Because the home man I buy from stands back of the goods, thus always giving value received.
- Because I sell what I produce to my home people, be it labor or goods.
- Because the man I buy from pays his part of the county and city taxes.
- Because the man I buy from helps support our poor and needy, our schools, our churches, our lodges and our homes.
- Because if ill luck, misfortune or bereavement comes, the man I buy from is here with his kindly expressions of greeting, his words of cheer, and if need be, his pocket-book.

HERE I LIVE AND HERE I BUY

Let us make Carrizozo a good place in which to work and live. It's easy and certain if everyone will contribute his share.

Dam Site Proposed

WE have a communication concerning a dam on the Bonito, which is worthy of consideration, in general terms, if not specifically, and is in line with other ideas that have been expressed for the construction of reservoirs in this country. The communication reads:

While the Bonito water case is in the courts and uppermost in men's thoughts seems the proper time to indicate the remedy for the scarcity of the water supply, as far as it concerns those interests lying below Fort Stanton on the Bonito and Hondo rivers.

This would not lie in barren litigation, for that can only affect distribution and can never increase the supply.

The proper remedy lies in the prompt use of a natural Reservoir, situated just above the junction of the Salado with the Rio Bonito, just north from the "Government Spring," so called.

This is an ideal dam site, a dyke juts up here and throws the underground water to the surface, witness the Government Spring, so called, and the water flowing on the canyon floor in the Salado just above. This is the most important point in any dam site, as it means a solid foundation under the dam, which in most cases costs more than the superstructure.

The high hills on either side will afford abundant material for the dam and so close in that the overhead tramway will convey all material to place.

The Reservoir site is on government land and unoccupied, being a part of the Fort Stanton reservation and is ample to hold any amount of water the drainage area will supply, about 350 square miles.

The benefits to the Bonito people will be ample to justify the expense, to say nothing of its being in line with a scientific scheme to control the floods in the Hondo system and so avoid the disastrous floods in Roswell town that are so alarming to property owners there.

The Salado has never failed of a sufficient flood season to furnish water to supply the dam, while at the same time it is not as steep a water shed as the Capitan slopes below, and so not liable to water spouts to break the dam by a sudden dash of rain or cloudburst.

The drainage basin is about 350 square miles in area. This would insure a steady flow of the Bonito in lieu of present torrential conditions. There would be water power and electric light and the dam site is close to the railroad point. A spur to the dam site would be perfectly feasible and inexpensive.

Billie Bryan Here

FOR a few minutes Monday evening Carrizozo admirers of William Jennings Bryan, Secretary of State, had an opportunity to bask in his pleasant smiles. The distinguished Secretary was on No. 4 on his way to Washington from California. The News reporter failed to get an interview on the Jap question, which occasioned the Secretary's visit to California.

The Saturday Night Bout

SATURDAY night was the first time a bout was pulled off in Carrizozo under boxing rules. Two preliminaries, preceding the main bout, were as interesting as the main feature. The Kansas and Oklahoma Kids then waltzed into the ring and fought for four rounds, or rather, the Kansas Kid knocked out the Oklahoma Kid in the fourth and all was over. The Kansas Kid, so the official reporter said, out-classed the Oklahoma Kid in ring work, blows and, in fact, in everything, and landed on his opponent at will.

DEATH OF ADMIRAL EATON A MYSTERY; POLICE SAY POISON

PLYMOUTH, Mass.—Mrs. Jennie May Eaton was locked up in the county jail here pending a hearing on the charge that she murdered her husband, Rear Admiral Joseph Giles Eaton, by poisoning him. Mrs. Eaton was brought here from Hingham, where she had been arraigned earlier in the day following her arrest. Through counsel she pleaded not guilty, waived the reading of the complaint, and was held without bail. It has not been determined whether the inquest into the sudden death of the rear admiral will be resumed. It was intimated that Mrs. Eaton might not be brought to trial. The possible appointment of a commission to pass upon her sanity was suggested. Rear Admiral Eaton died in his bed at the home in Norwell where he lived with his wife, her mother, Mrs. George Harrison, and his stepdaughter, Dorothy Ainsworth. The death was unexpected and due, the other members of the family said, to an attack of indigestion which followed a too hearty meal of roast pork. Circumstances led to an investigation, and according to a statement by District Attorney Baker, evidence of arsenic poisoning was discovered by Prof. William F. Whitney, who analyzed the contents of the stomach. For ten days the authorities have known that the rear admiral died of arsenic poisoning, and their efforts have been directed to finding where and by whom the poison was obtained and to laying bare the home life of the Eaton family. Strife in the Family. In the first quest they have not been successful, the district attorney says. Along the second line of inquiry a wealth of evidence has been furnished by friends of the family and neighbors. The picture was not an altogether pleasant one. The rear admiral and his wife, who was twenty years his junior, did not always agree, it was said, regarding those who should be received at their home. In the record of celebrated cases in New England there is none which has as its central figure a stranger and more contradictory character than Rear Admiral Eaton. That part of his life which reached its close in his mysterious death seems to be cut off sharply from that which had gone before. The eccentric chicken farmer of Assinippi, shambling in and out of his hen houses, careless of what the world thought, was to all intents and purposes a person entirely distinct from the punctilious commander whose word was law on the bridge of Uncle Sam's battleships. Only a few years ago his colors fluttered down for the last time from the staff at the Charlestown navy yard, where he had served with distinction as commandant, Marines and jacksies stood in stiff lines of parade to do honor to their retiring leader. Guns boomed a formal farewell. Comrades gripped his hand and wished him a smiling godspeed. Only a few days ago his body was taken to a little burial plot outside the city of Lowell and lowered to its last resting place. No ceremonial guard from the navy favored arms at the graveside, no bugler from the ships sounded "dab," none of the men who had been his friends in stations at home and abroad bowed heads in respect. Only strangers at His Grave. Beside the grave was only a little group of strangers. His widow and her daughter remained in the background. A half dozen of the lookers-on, undertakers, hackmen and reporters, were his pallbearers, and his plain pine coffin was set down by an improvised sledge made from the harnesses of the horses which had drawn his hearse. The contrast in the two events was typical of the remarkable difference between the early and late portions of his career. For four decades he had won reward after reward until he had reached the highest place. The whole world had been his field of service. He had commanded the respect of a long line of distinguished superiors. He had brought his services in safety through the dangers of the famous Santiago fight and had done efficient duty throughout the Spanish war. He was received gladly in the best social circles, a member of clubs and organizations of recognized prominence, and was noted for his executive ability and scientific attainments. He was a scholar of ability and of wide reading. He had been a professor at the naval academy and had written interestingly on both historical and technical subjects. Became "Town Character." That was one side of the man. The other showed him living almost isolated on a back road in the country. With no near neighbors and only an occasional visitor he went his way unmindful of any but his own concerns. Any day he might be seen wandering about his place in rough clothes and overalls, doing the work of a farm helpe. From being one of the most looked-up-to persons in the community he became little by little hardly more than a "town character." His strange methods of life, his peculiarities of personality, and his domestic difficulties made him the object of eager gossip. His past was often forgotten, but his present was keenly remembered. During the week before he had been seen in West Norwell apparently in robust health. He had been about his house and grounds or pottering as usual among his hens. Then came the announcement of his death, a death strangely in keeping with the oddness of his latter days. Secrecy Follows Death Report. Just what happened has been made a matter of secrecy by those who have investigated the circumstances. There was, however, something about the death which caused the authorities to become immediately active. Medical Examiner Osgood of Rockland at once got in touch with the officers of the state police, following an autopsy. Scarcely less remarkable than the lonely death of this once honored naval commander was his lonesome and pathetic burial. Probably no other officer of high rank in the service of the United States was ever laid at rest with so little regard to his past achievements. Not a single brother-in-arms of this veteran sailor, who had given nearly 40 years of his life to his country from the time he served as a midshipman under Farragut until he retired a rear admiral, was present to signify love and regard. None of the bluejackets, none of the marines who had fought with him and done his bidding were anywhere to be seen. There had been a simple funeral service at the Assinippi home which was attended only by the family, and a scattering of neighbors and then the body was taken to Lowell for burial at Dracut, beside that of his first wife and a daughter who had died many years ago. Of all his friends and relatives, only his wife and one of his stepdaughters were present. Strange Scene in Cemetery. The rest of the little company that surrounded the grave were strangers. The scene was in an out-of-the-way corner of Oaklawn cemetery in the town of Dracut. A hearse arrived, a carriage containing the wife and daughter and others containing the undertaker, his assistants, newspaper men and photographers made up the shabby cortege. Then came the saddest incident of all in a sad day. The wife and daughter remained in the carriage looking on dazedly. From time to time the girl wept quietly. The hearse drew up but there was nobody ready to move the casket. The need of pall-bearers had been forgotten. After a moment of uncertainty the undertaker called to the driver of the hearse and a hackman. As they stepped forward a newspaper man and a photographer offered to help. These four, with the undertaker, and his assistant, bore the body to the graveside. There was another pause and then it was discovered that the usual sledge by which a coffin is lowered were missing. While the little company of strangers looked on in a stilled, punctured only by the clicking of cameras, the driver of the hearse unfashioned his palms, leaped them beneath the plain pine casket, and at a sign from the undertaker the casket slid at last from the hearse. No prayer was offered, and no word of condolence spoken. Without more ado the watchers turned and fled into their carriages. Made No Effort to Hold Friends. That was the last episode of a bizarre chapter of incidents which made up Rear Admiral Eaton's peculiarly changing life since his retirement from the navy. Never had there been a more striking transition from high dignities, respect and social recognition to neglect, disregard and practical ostracism. The change, however, was not abrupt. It came little by little with the passing years. It was due in a large measure to Eaton himself and the manner which he had chosen to live. If his friends fell away, it was because he made no effort to hold them. If his position in the social world altered, it was because of the sensational incidents with which his name had been linked and his contempt for conventions. Rear Admiral Eaton was by no means a shattered and worn man when he retired from the navy. To be sure he was fifty-seven years old, but owing to his active life, much of which had been spent in the open, he looked several years younger. He was straight, alert and energetic. The desire to Mrs. Eaton from his fellows was not at all evident at that time. Indeed, he was always fond of company, was of a convivial disposition, and pronouncedly a man among men. There was nothing in his material circumstances either to bring about the change. He was well-to-do in a moderate way. He drew his retirement pay of $2,260 a year, and had besides considerable means of his own. It seemed as if he had a long period of well deserved leisure at his disposal. Left Navy Yard in 1906. He left the Charlestown navy yard in 1905, and in the following year, while a resident of Washington, his first wife died. The marriage had always been considered a particularly happy one, and friends of Eaton were not a little surprised when a short time afterward they learned he had again married. His second wife was a divorcee, the former wife of D. H. Ainsworth, at one time clerk of the United States senate, and later employed as a clerk in this city. She was the daughter of George Harrison of Alexandria, Va., and a relative of ex-President Harrison. Mrs. Eaton was some twenty years younger than her second husband. Rear Admiral Eaton, while discussing his family affairs during one of the periods when he was much in the public eye, said that he had not and courted Mrs. Ainsworth under the impression that she was a widow. He said that he did not learn that she had been divorced until later. The marriage was quiet, and then Mr. and Mrs. Eaton, with Mrs. Eaton's two daughters, Dorothy and June, the latter now Mrs. Ralph Preble Keyes of Lonsdale street, Dorchester, came east. It was soon after that the family moved to Assinippi. Why Rear Admiral Eaton chose that out-of-the-way village for his home and so altered his former way of life has not been satisfactorily explained. The D. Franklin Jacobs estate which he purchased lies in the township of West Norwell on the road between Hingham and Rockland. Curious From All Parts of World. Although the place was not unattractive, it was far away from any scenes of activity. It was situated on a road well back from the village and was nearly a half-mile from the nearest house. The house itself is a pleasant building of the type of a half-century ago. It is not large, a two-story affair with the barn attached at the side and rear. At the outset the retired officer took pains to make everything about the place comfortable. The rooms were well and tastefully furnished, in keeping with the old-fashioned type of house, and the furniture was for the most part of the heavy mahogany variety of a generation ago. Many of the rooms were made doubly interesting by a collection of weapons and curios which the admiral had gathered in many parts of the world. On account of his recognized social standing, Admiral and Mrs. Eaton were welcomed by society on the South Shore. At first they were made much of and invited about frequently. It seemed as if they were to take a prominent place in the social life of the district. Little by little, however, they dropped many of their acquaintances and began to live more and more to themselves. Admiral Eaton busied himself among his hens, of which he kept as many as 500, and entered into an apparently prosperous business of shipping chickens and eggs to the Boston market. Dropped Clubs and Became Farmer. Then there began to be gossip about the admiral and his domestic relations. People noticed that he appeared to have developed a certain eccentricity. He seemed to lose interest in the affairs of those about him. He dropped out entirely from naval circles in Boston, and was seldom seen at his clubs. He became less and less the epic and open officer, and more and more the farmer. Owing to the fact that he had always been noted for the neatness of his dress, his habitual appearance in rough clothing and soiled overalls was all the more noticeable.

ECONOMY IN KITCHEN SOMETIMES CARRIED TO EXCESS IT REALLY MEANS WASTE.

Use of Left-Overs Does Not Constitute a Saving When Time and Money Are Spent in an Unpalatable Dish.

There is a deal of so-called economy that is senseless extravagance and defeat in itself the purpose of economy. Too many women, in their effort to save everything, throw away a large amount of material that could be expended or used in a much better way, and in the end attain a result that is far from gratifying. There is more than the mere saving of five cents' worth of left-over food to be considered in the practice of economy, notably labor, the cost of fuel, time and the final result of the whole. The desire to save half of a five-cent loaf of bread, which causes some women to use a quart of eight-cent milk and four eggs at four or five cents apiece, half an hour's time, and ten cents' worth of fuel in order to produce a dish that no one likes and that the whole family refuses to eat is the result of a mistaken idea of economy. By far better would be the purchase of a quart of ice cream at fifty cents, which would save her time, labor, fuel and give the family the pleasure of a luxury and add to the value of the menu. If, to offset the expense of the ice cream, she could be taught to buy less bread, cut it carefully, just what was needed for each meal and no more, to use half slices and broken pieces for croutons, there would never be any more stale bread left in her breadbox than she would need for breading croquettes or chops once or twice a month. If, in spite of careful buying and cutting, she should some day find herself with part of a loaf of bread to dispose of, she might much better throw away the three or four cents' worth of food than expend thirty or forty cents to save it. If a tablespoonful of peas suggest no other dish than an omelet which calls for six eggs to be garnished with the peas, they had better be thrown out.

If they can go into the stockpot, together with three or four other bits of palatable vegetables which will give a good flavor to the soup, they will have been well utilized, but it is an extravagance to build up a new dish around them. There is wretched waste in saving the little piece of fat which is left from the steak if it takes an hour's time to render into clear white drippings for frying. If there is a large amount of fat that can be used in such a way and it can be done without taking time from other necessary tasks, it will be a real economy to utilize all such fat, but there are many other things beside the coat of lard to be computed when figuring the amount saved by this process.

Don't Persecute Your Bowels

Get out cathartics and purgatives. They are brutal, harsh, unnecessary. Try CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS. Purely vegetable. Act gently on the liver. Stimulate bile, and soothe the delicate membrane of the bowels. Cause Constipation, Indigestion, Headache, Nervousness, Biliousness, and all the ailments which attend a sluggish bowels. SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE. Genuine must bear Signature.

Washing a Shawl.

To clean a wool shawl make a good lather of soap and warm water, just comfortably hand-hot, and squeeze the shawl in this, with both hands until it is clean. Do not rub any soap on the garment, says the Commoner. Then rinse the article in several waters of about the same temperature as the suds, squeeze the water out, or run it through the wringer, but never wring with the hands. Lay the shawl on a clean cloth to dry, hanging it loosely and moving it about occasionally; when nearly dry, spread a clean sheet on the floor and pin the shawl out to its proper size on a line, unless you want it stringy.

Good Plain Crust.

A good plain crust for meat pies, apple pies, etc., is made by using one cupful of clarified lard or pork dripping, or shredded suet to one quart of flour and about one-half pint of water. Rub the shortening evenly into the flour and work to a smooth dough with the water, but add it little by little. Do not knead or handle more than necessary, but pat and roll it out on a lightly floured board, and spread the top with bits of dripping, fold and again roll out to shape as desired.

Sweet Pear Pickle.

Boil together for a quarter of an hour two cupfuls of vinegar and three and a half cupfuls of sugar. Tie in a muslin bag half a dozen cloves, one ounce of ginger, one inch of cinnamon stick and 12 allspice. Put all in the vinegar and boil for eight minutes, then add ripe pears which have been cored, peeled and cut in halves. Cook in the syrup until the fruit is tender and put up hot in glass jars. This quantity of syrup pickle is enough for six pounds of pears.

Maple Sugar Cookies.

Cream together one scant cupful of butter, with three cupfuls of crushed maple sugar and add in the order mentioned two well beaten eggs, three quarters of a cup of sour milk in which has been dissolved a scant teaspoonful of baking soda, and sufficient sifted flour to form a batter that will drop from the spoon. Allow plenty of space on the baking tin, as the cakes will spread when cooking and bake in a rather quick oven, until they are crisp and brown around the edges.

GOLD IN THE HEAD

Is the First Chapter in the History of Chronic Disease.

A cold in the head is the first chapter in the history of disease and death. This has been so often repeated that there are few people indeed who have not witnessed many examples of it. A cold in the head is rarely severe enough to confine a vigorous person to the house. As a rule, it ends its recovery without any treatment. It is a terrible mistake, however, to pass by a cold in the head as a trivial matter. Every case should be treated.

Those who have used Peruna for such cases will testify unanimously that a few doses is sufficient to remove every vestige of the cold. How much better it is to treat a cold in this way than it is to allow it to go on and on for weeks, perhaps months, leaving effects that will never be eradicated. Yet there are those who neglect to take Peruna for a cold in the head. This neglect is due to the false notion that a cold in the head is hardly worth noticing. A cold in the head is in reality a case of acute catarrh. It ought to be called so, in order to awaken people from their lethargy on this subject. In a large per cent of cases cold in the head will end in chronic catarrh. Unless properly treated with some such remedy as Peruna, perhaps 50 per cent of cases of cold in the head will lay the foundation for chronic catarrh. A tablespoonful of Peruna should be taken at the very first symptom of cold in the head. Usually where the cold is not very severe a tablespoonful of Peruna before each meal and at bed time is sufficient. It may be necessary, however, where the attack is more serious, to keep strictly in the house and take a tablespoonful of Peruna every hour. Younger people, feeble or delicate women, should take a teaspoonful every hour.

"Yes, Cordella, it is strictly proper to play hyenas on an upright piano." "Mother, God couldn't tell how I love you." "All right, Bob. I appreciate that. But let's talk about it tomorrow." Success. Robert's thoughts turned to father's automobile troubles, and of the expert called to disentangle matters. "Mother," he remarked suddenly, "even an expert couldn't tell!"

CONSTIPATION

Mansjon's Paw-Paw Pills are unlike all other laxatives of cathartics. They coax the liver into activity by gentle methods, they do not scour; they do not grip; they do not weaken; but they do start all the secretions of the liver and stomach in a way that soon puts these organs in a healthy condition and corrects constipation. Mansjon's Paw-Paw Pills are a tonic to the stomach, liver and nerves. They fortify instead of weaken; they enrich the blood instead of impoverishing it; they enable the stomach to get all the nourishment from food that it put into it. Price 25 cents. All Druggists.

Health a Factor in Success
The largest factor contributing to a man's success is undoubtedly health. It has been observed that a man is seldom sick when his bowels are regular—he is never well when they are constipated. For constipation you will find nothing quite so good as Chamberlain's Tablets. They not only move the bowels, but improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion. They are sold by all dealers.

Baseball Organization

A FEW baseball enthusiasts met Monday to perfect an organization and to organize a team. The meeting finally decided to select a manager and place the matter of the organization entirely in his hands. Dr. Robert R. Lucas was chosen for manager and at once took up the question of listing players and assigning them their respective positions. As soon as the manager can get all his men together he will put them at work and he expects every man to do his duty. This town has never refused its support to a ball team, and the better the team the more loyal support it will receive.

California and the Jap

RESTRICTION of immigration has been a right exercised by the government, itself, and a number of states have laws forbidding alien ownership of land. Before the California-Japanese embroglio we do not recall ever seeing such actions seriously questioned. It is generally conceded that each state has the right to conduct its own affairs, and the constitution guarantees to each state that right, providing the exercise of such a right does not conflict with the federal government.

Now, as to the difficulty with Japan, incident to the passage by the California legislature of the alien land bill, the administration at Washington takes the position that such a law would be a violation of our treaty with Japan. The administration may be right in its position, but it does not appear to us that the action of California is of sufficient gravity to produce war with Japan. And on the other hand, the sentiment of the country seems to be with California, for one reason or another, even though there exists a question of international law. The sentiment for California exists first because there is a very strong impression that the federal government is interfering with the rights of a state; and second, the average American doesn't like to be bullied, and more particularly by such cattle as the Japanese. This latter sentiment is no doubt the stronger in this particular case and universally the feeling is expressed that if nothing but a fight will do the little brown men of the Orient, then it's up to us to give them a sound drubbing.

No Peace in Mexico

AS was to be expected, Huerta and the assassins of Madero are having the devil's own time down in Mexico. For a short time following the brutal killing of Madero the entire population of the republic was stunned over the outrage, and the assassins took the quiet acceptance of their rule to be an endorsement of the atrocious deed. It was not long, however, until rumblings of discontent were heard, and the more severe the attempts to repress the murmurings the stronger the discontent grew. First one state and then another refused to acknowledge Huerta's rule and now scarcely a state in the north but what is in open rebellion.

The state forces, known as constitutionalists, have all but driven the Huerta, or federal, forces from the northern half of the republic. Many battles have been fought—some only minor engagements, while others were sanguinary—and in almost every instance the state troops have been victorious. The rule of Huerta, therefore, is not only precarious but seems doomed to end soon, and few there will be to mourn its demise. A government erected upon treachery and assassination cannot expect a long lease of life.

The Underwood tariff bill passed the house this week, and will now go to the senate. A few democrats in the senate are inoculated with the bacilli protection, but if believed they will be unable to accomplish much in opposition.

A lot of republicans and some democrats, who are for protection for their own interests, delight to refer to the panic of 1893, alleging the Wilson bill as the cause. When confronted with the statement that the Wilson bill did not become a law until August, 1894—eighteen months after the panic struck—they fall back on the assertion that it was anticipated. These same prophets of evil are now declaring that panic, wreck, and ruin will follow the Underwood bill—but they have learned something in twenty years—they did not date the panic ahead of the bill's passage. The bill has passed the house, and the wheels of commerce continue to revolve.

It doesn't matter to the senators and congressmen from Louisiana—by fiction democrats—that only a small per cent of our population is engaged in the production of sugar, while everybody consumes it, they insist on a high tariff rate for their product. No higher principle is controlling them than that governing the Pennsylvania republicans who insist on a high rate of duty for the steel and iron products of the Keystone state. In fact, it appears that the Pennsylvanians are entitled to a greater degree of charity, and they are certainly more consistent.

Mrs. Silas May Dies at Tucumcari

NEWS reached here Wednesday that Mrs. Silas May had died that morning at Tucumcari at the hour of 4 o'clock, from small pox. An epidemic of small pox pervades Tucumcari and Mrs. May contracted the disease, partially recovered, suffered a relapse and died within twenty-four hours thereafter.

Mrs. May grew to womanhood and married in Lincoln county. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Baker, old residents of this county, and was a very estimable woman. She went to Tucumcari with her husband and children about eight years ago. Her father and mother, in addition to husband and children, were with her at the time of her death. A sister, Mrs. John Adams, lives here and she has other sisters and brothers living at various points. The sincerest sympathy of all goes out to the husband and the little orphaned children, bereaved by the untimely death of a loving wife and mother, and the old father and mother and other relatives to whom she made life a constant joy.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

Lone Set of Whiskers Upsets Wilson's Cabinet

WASHINGTON.—It was whispered, but the whisper was not absolutely verified, that the real absorbing question before the Wilson cabinet at its special meeting the other day was that of a delicate tonorial policy, one involving the much-vaunted "Jeffersonian simplicity" in its inherent principles and requiring razor-edged diplomacy in its treatment.

The intricacies of the Mexican situation, the matter of patronage distribution, the subject of diplomatic relations with South and Central America, the tariff, the currency and kindred topics all were shelved while the cabinet members turned their combined statesmanship loose on a pair of offending whiskers.

Secretary Redfield of the department of commerce is the owner of the hirsute appendages in question. With one exception the other members of the cabinet are as smooth-shaven as was Jefferson himself. Not one has a hair on cheek, chin, lip or jaw, while a few in addition have domes that are sparingly thatched. The Secretary of Agriculture, David F. Houston, has a very small mustache, so sparse in fact, that it is barely noticeable.

Opposite President Wilson sits Mr. Redfield at the foot of the great mahogany table, a position that makes his facial decorations all the more conspicuous.

The whiskers that tickle the fancy of the cabinet are of the Burnside pattern. If allowed to grow a bit more luxuriantly they would be a famous pair of Dundrearies. They lack the awishing whiskerbroom of Senator Kern's beard, but are of a type that might adorn with equal grace a prosperous banker or a patent medicine man.

When the Redfield Burnside loom in sight their wearer might be taken for a successful manufacturer, a returned missionary or an advance agent for a three-ring circus, for they lack the umbrageousness and the effulgence that go with the statesman's cut.

In official circles it was reported that a resolution was presented asking that Mr. Redfield detach himself from the whiskers.

This report raised a question in a western delegation of how such a tonorial policy adopted by the national administration might affect Col. James Hamilton Lewis in his contest for election to the United States senate.

Gray Squirrels at Soldiers' Home Are Well Fed

THE gray squirrels in the Soldiers' Home grounds are happy and well fed. Perhaps it may be that they are the most carefree and the best fed squirrels in the district. There is a strong friendship between many of the veterans and these frisky little creatures. Of course, they are tame, very tame. This is not peculiar to the Soldiers' Home squirrels, because the squirrels in the capitol grounds, in the Smithsonian grounds, in the Monument lot, in Franklin park and in other of the city squares are extremely tame. But these Soldiers' Home squirrels when they see a man in blue and feel the want of a hickory nut or a filbert or a peanut do not hesitate to walk right up to him or climb right up on him and ask in the squirrel language for what they want.

West of the main building, Scott hall, is a tree whose summer shade is dense. Under it is a rectangle of brick pavers. On this pavement are rows of benches placed as they would be in a hall, that is, the rows are as close together as they can be for the comfort of the occupants. Many men sit there on warm and genial days and on soft and balmy evenings. It is a squirrel playground. But in winter the benches are removed and the veterans do not linger there. Neither do the squirrels.

Lincoln went forth to see the attack by Early's troops on the northern line of Washington's defenses at Fort Stevens, and which has been occupied as a summer home by other presidents—is an oval around which tall elms are growing. This oval is bisected east and west by a brick walk. On the trunk of each of these trees about six feet from the ground is nailed an old grape basket, and each of these baskets is kept nearly filled with nuts and acorns. It is the principal dining room of the Soldiers' Home squirrels—the squirrels' mess hall. These little baskets of acorns may be seen on trees in other parts of the Soldiers' Home grounds, but here they are close together.

The Anderson cottage is pebble-dash—that is, the walls are. Squirrels climb these walls and scamper up and down as nimbly as they do the trunks of trees. It seemed to the Rambler that a number of the squirrels have built their homes somewhere back under the eaves of this cottage.

McCoy's Humor Enlivens Debates of the House

REPRESENTATIVE MCCOY of New Jersey, one of the most serious-faced men in congress, has the most surprising way of enlivening the debates of the house with humorous suggestions. No one is safe in speech or in motion when McCoy is on the floor looking solemn.

great founder of the Democracy. "The house fell into a general clatter of talk over these books and it developed that nearly all the Democrats had bought them, while from such good old Republicans as Uncle Joe came suggestions that "the gentlemen on the other side are easy marks."

Whereupon Representative McCoy, as serious as he was the day he undertook to probe the expenditures in the postoffice department, arose and addressed Champ Clark:

Recently, during a discussion of a project to erect one-hundred-thousand-dollar memorials in Washington, D. C., to Thomas Jefferson and Alexander Hamilton, Representative Cooper of Wisconsin wanted to know what had become of a fund raised by the sale of Thomas Jefferson's works, and which had been advertised as a fund with which to erect a statue to the

"Mr. Speaker," he said, "as there seem to be so many suckers in the house, I move that the bill be referred to the committee on merchant marine and fisheries."

And, Speaker Clark, without a smile, put the question, and the house voted "Aye" with a roar.

Where Representative McDermott Drew the Line

A CANDIDATE for congress has to stand for a good many things, but I draw the line on drinking snake liquor," said Representative James T. McDermott of Illinois.

"You see, it was this way. I had been in a mighty hard campaign and was about exhausted. I dropped into a cafe run by an old German. He inquired about my health, and I told him that I was 'all in.'" time, he explained, sympathetically. "Now I wanted this man's friendship, but I simply could not go the snakes. I have heard that snakes could be found in things handed over the bar, but this was a little too realistic for me."

"I afterward learned that he turned against me for refusing to take his remedy and that he voted for my opponent; but I think that it was rather too much of a man to expect him to drink liquor in which he saw snakes in advance."

RECORD OF WORK WELL DONE

Anti-Tuberculosis Campaign Fruitful of Results for the Good of All Mankind.

Some comparisons showing the progress of the anti-tuberculosis campaign in the last eight years and the present needs of this movement are made by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis in a brief report of its work recently issued. During the eight years of its work, the national association has assisted in the organization of over 800 state and local anti-tuberculosis societies located in almost every state and territory of the Union. Over 500 hospital and sanatoria have been established, with more than 30,000 beds for consumptives. About 400 dispensaries, with more than 1,000 physicians in attendance and at least 150 open air schools for tuberculous and anemic children, have also been provided. Laws dealing with tuberculosis have been passed in 45 states, and ordinances on this subject have been adopted in over 200 cities and towns. An active field campaign of education against tuberculosis has been carried on in 40 states and territories by means of lectures, exhibits, the press, and the distribution of over 100,000,000 pamphlets on this disease.

BABY IN MISERY WITH RASH

Monroe, Wis.—"When my baby was six weeks old there came a rash on his face which finally spread until it got nearly all over his body. It formed a crust on his head, hair fell out and the itch was terrible. When he would scratch the crust, the water would ooze out in big drops. On face and body it was in a dry form and would scale off. He was in great misery and at nights I would lie awake holding his hands so that he could not scratch and disfigure himself. I tried simple remedies at first, then got medicine, but it did no good.

"Finally a friend suggested Cuticura Remedio, so I sent for a sample to see what they would do, when to my surprise after a few applications I could see an improvement, and he would rest better. I bought a box of Cuticura Ointment and a cake of Cuticura Soap and before I had them half used my baby was cured. His head is now covered with a luxuriant growth of hair and his complexion is admired by everybody and has no disfigurements." (Signed) Mrs. Annie Saunders, Sept. 29, 1911.

No Little Girl for Him. The six-year-old son of a well-known Indianapolis family attends a dancing school. He is a chubby little fellow who has not begun to stretch out yet, and he keenly feels his "shortage." He demands that he be recognized as a little "grownup." Several days ago the teacher planned to instruct her pupils in dancing "the butterfly." A five-year-old girl who is small for her age, and just a trifle stouter than our hero, but an adept at dancing, was assigned as his partner. He gazed at her in silence. Then he took hold of her hand and, with his mouth set firmly, walked straight over to the teacher.

"Don't you think you'd better give me a bigger girl?" he asked.—Indianapolis News.

OH! MY BACK!

A stubborn backache that hangs on, week after week, is cause to suspect kidney trouble, for when the kidneys are inflamed and swollen, bending the back brings a sharp twinge that almost takes the breath away that almost takes the breath away that almost takes the breath away.

It's hard to work and just as hard to rest or sleep. Doan's Kidney Pills revive sluggish kidneys—relieve congested, aching kidneys. The proof is in an amazing collection of backache testimonials.

AN IDAHO CASE

L. O. Warner, 124 N. Main, Boise, Idaho, writes: "I have been suffering from backache for several years, and it was so bad that I could not do any work. I tried many remedies, but nothing helped. I then bought Doan's Kidney Pills and after taking a few boxes I was cured. I can now do any work I wish to do."

The Board declares Capitan to be a regularly designated High School in and for the County of Lincoln and issues certificates of election in accordance with law.

In the matter of the request of the Board of Trustees of School District No. 7, Carrizozo, petitioning and requesting the Board to designate the High School, now being held at Carrizozo and which said petition states has been regularly held and reported for the three years last past, as a Regular County High School under and by virtue of the law, Chapter 57, 1912 S.L. and amendments thereto. The Board rejects the same and refuses to designate Carrizozo as a place for a regular High School after being sufficiently advised in the premises.

The bond of Earl Black as constable for Precinct No. 15, Oscura is approved as to form and sufficiency of securities.

In the matter of the Estimate of Supervising Architect Otto Goetz, who reports to the Board that it is his estimate that the Contractor on the Court House and Jail at Carrizozo is entitled to $141 20 for work done and material on the ground the same being 80 per cent of the amount due, and that the Architect is entitled to 2 1/2 per cent per contract, or $40.97. The Board accepts and approves the estimate. It is ordered that the following allowance be made out of the Court House Fund.

Ben Bechtel, Contractor $1311.20
Otto Goetz, architect 40.97
In the matter of the petition of

A. J. Rolland, A. H. Harvey and other citizens of the town of Carrizozo requesting the Board to issue an order prohibiting the running at large of horses, cattle, sheep, swine and other domestic animals within the limits of the platted townsite of Carrizozo and all the additions thereto. The said petition being signed by over twenty-five residents and in conformity with the law it is hereby ordered by the Board.

That running at large of cattle, horses, swine, sheep, goats, burros and other domestic animals within the limits of the platted townsite of Carrizozo and all the additions thereto is hereby prohibited by virtue of Chapter 146 of 1909 session laws.

The Clerk is instructed to post the required three notices in the town of Carrizozo containing this order and cause the said order to be published in some newspaper published in the town of Carrizozo for at least four weeks.

It is understood by the Board that the limits of the town of Carrizozo and each townsite and addition are to be plainly marked as required by law.

The Board adjourned at 5 p. m.

Archbishop Pitaval Confirms Hundreds in Lincoln Parish

THE Most Rt. Rev. Archbishop Pitaval, D. D., of Santa Fe, has just completed his confirmation tour of the Lincoln Parish of which Carrizozo is a part, and the Very Rev. J. H. Girma, of Lincoln, is the pastor. The growth of the county can be noted by the large number of confirmations he has had on this Episcopal visit. The Lincoln Parish is one of the largest in the Arch Diocese of Santa Fe. The following are the missions of the parish visited by his Grace, this past week and the number he confirmed in each:

On May 1st at Picacho, 28; on May 2nd at Las Palos, 83; May 3rd at San Patricio, 130; May 4th at Lincoln 65 and at Fort Stanton 8; May 5th at Capitan 51, at Potos 61 and at Carrizozo 62.

His Grace, the Archbishop, was accompanied on the trip by the pastor, Rev. J. H. Girma; and Rev. Father Terribius Christman, O. F. M., of Roswell. At Fort Stanton they were entertained by Chaplain Freund, U. S. P. H., who accompanied them to Capitan, Potos and Carrizozo. His Grace was greatly pleased over the result of his trip through this parish, stating that it is one of great importance, and shows that the pastor has done great work in every part. The parish of Lincoln covers an average of two hundred square miles which means much labor for its energetic pastor. His Grace left Carrizozo for El Paso and Santa Fe Tuesday morning at 3 a. m. The immense crowd out to greet him on his visit to Carrizozo Monday evening proved the popularity of this great prelate of the church.

Fort Stanton Wins Sunday Game

NOT in form was the verdict on the Carrizozo team which crossed bats with the Fort Stanton aggregation Sunday on the local diamond. The first few innings both teams showed up well, an absence of errors and runs: the predominant feature. However, toward the middle of the game the visitors began to slug the ball pretty lively, and at the close of the seventh inning had scored nine times. During the same time our boys were unable to have more than two runs to their account; and a succession of costly errors cost the locals the game by a wide margin. It is only just to say, notwithstanding the big drubbing given our boys, that the line up was not what was hoped for, and under the circumstances a much worse game might have resulted.

NOTICE

By virtue of Chapter 146 of the Session Laws 1909, and in accordance with the request and petition of over 25 citizens of Carrizozo requesting the ordering of the prohibiting of the running at large of domestic animals on the townsite of Carrizozo and the platted additions thereto it is ordered by the Board.

That the running at large of cattle, horses, swine, sheep, goats, burros and other domestic animals within the limits of the platted townsite of Carrizozo and the additions thereto is hereby prohibited after the fourth publication of this notice and the posting of three hand bills within the town of Carrizozo.

The News' Weekly Lay Sermon

THERE is no one quality gives so much dignity to a character as consistency of conduct. Even if a man's views be wrong and unjustifiable, yet if they are prosecuted with steadiness and vigor, we cannot withhold our admiration. The most characteristic mark of a great mind is to choose some one important object, and pursue it through life. It was this made Caesar a great man. His object was ambition; he pursued it steadily; and was always ready to sacrifice to it every interfering passion or inclination.—Anna Laetitia Barbauld.
