Road Committee Visits Alamogordo.

PURSUANT to instructions of the Lincoln County Good Roads Association, a committee visited Alamogordo Monday to witness the operations of the big road engine purchased by the Otero county road board. The committee made the trip at the invitation of J. B. Van Deren, of El Paso, who represents the manufacturers of the tractor and who desires to place a machine in Lincoln county. The visiting committee were: Paul Mayer, R. A. Duran, S. G. Anderson, T. E. Kelley, Lee B. Chase and Jno. A. Haley.

The machine was placed on one of Alamogordo's streets, with a grader attached, and the big tractor walked right along, pulling the grader with ease in the hard-packed street, and moving so much more dirt than can be done in an ordinary way that it would be difficult to make a comparison. Later in the day the machine was moved to rougher ground, the blade of the grader set deep into the earth, and the work produced was quite as efficient as before. Trials were made as to smoothing a road bed, cutting down the high places and filling in the low, and still excellent results were obtained.

The committee was very much pleased with the test and will recommend to the Lincoln County Road Board the purchase of a similar machine. Much of our county can be worked with this machine at a much lower cost than by the usual methods and it is the opinion of the committee that in the course of a very short time the machine will pay for itself by reason of the fact that it can do the work so much more readily and economically than any other manner. The Otero County Road Board is very much pleased with the machine and recommend it highly.

While in Alamogordo the committee also met two members of the Otero County Road Board—the third member being absent—and discussed with them the building of a road from Carrizozo to connect with a road coming from Alamogordo, via Tularosa. The committee was assured that Otero county would build her portion of the road, the work to begin at an early date. In the opinion of the Otero County Road Board, the proper location for the line is on the west side of the railroad, to take advantage of the concentration of flood waters by reason of the railroad embankments. While this was the prevailing sentiment there were others urging the adoption of the Three Rivers route, and the principal merit of that route is that some material assistance was offered if the road was constructed that way. Which ever route is adopted it seems quite certain that the counties of Otero and Lincoln will soon be linked by a good, passable highway and that is the result all desire.

The campaign for good roads is on; the people know the necessity and are bending every energy to obtain them. The County Road Commission appreciates conditions and its accomplishments are only limited to its capacity in a financial sense. At its last meeting the board very strongly intimated that the amount expended on roads in various localities would depend largely upon the work donated and assistance rendered by the people themselves. This is a fair proposition. A community that donates work or money or both in excess of its regular taxation deserves more consideration than one not doing so. But the road proposition is a live one throughout the county and an active campaign of road building will soon be in full swing. If the Board purchases the big tractor it will be the means of further stimulating the work and then real results will follow.

Owing to the inclemency of the weather the Fort Stanton ball team did not play the Captain-Lincoln team on the latter's grounds.

The recent rains have been of great benefit to this section of the country. At the Post it has made all happy, especially Peter Duffy, proprietor of the Easy Street Flower Garden.

The Commanding Officer addressed the patients last Sunday morning on the Friedman-Cure, stating that should the Public Health ever see fit to try same, that the patients of Fort Stanton would be among the first to get a share.

Owing to Dr. Brown's early hours of rising the usual morning salute has been abandoned.

"Beautiful Fort Stanton," a souvenir book consisting of half a hundred views of the Post and surroundings is in the press. It promises to be the best ever, having thirty pages with an up-to-date article for a preface, written by the Commanding Officer.

"The Lincoln County Year Book," consisting of illustrated scenes, and write-ups of Lincoln county is soon to be published by the Carrizozo-News. The editor states that Fort Stanton will have several pages dedicated to its history and beautiful scenery.

It is not an uncommon occurrence to see real happy patients at Fort Stanton. Even those confined to their beds afford us a pleasure to visit them. Mr. Robert Cook, of No. 10, is one of the many examples—always cheerful and ready to console those about him.

In the chapel last Sunday morning, Chaplain Frund spoke on the Duty of the Patients to one another regarding Christianity, a subject and sermon of much importance to the healthy as well as the infirm.

Daily conferences of all the Sanitarium physicians at Fort Stanton have been held at Dr. Lanza's quarters during the past week. They report much benefit derived in being able to operate and find out what it was that caused so much uneasiness from one of the staff. "Painful alright, but we had a good time," says Dr. Lanza.

Mr. Jose Alveres now holds the championship as the best croquet player at the Post. He has several strong opponents who keep him busy in order to hold the title.

The residents of "License Row" have daily conferences out

Nearly All Towns Incorporated

INCORPORATION must possess some very advantageous features, for the reason that practically all towns incorporate. So far as we have been able to ascertain Carrizozo is pre-eminent in its class of towns in that it is not incorporated. There is one other town of its population in the state—and only one, we think—and that is Santa Rosa. The distinction of being in a class practically alone may have its merits, but we fear a comparison with other towns, all progressing, improving and building under incorporation, will leave us little of which to be proud.

Incorporation may be accompanied by some disagreeable features; don't we have them without incorporation? Statehood has brought responsibilities and has entailed heavy burdens; yet the people voted overwhelmingly in favor of statehood—recognizing that statehood meant the assumption of burdens that did not go with a territorial form of government. And few there are today who desire to return to a territorial form of government. Why? Do people like to pay taxes so well that they become enamored of self-government? Decidedly, No. But the fact that they do possess self-government, are free to conduct their local affairs, without interference from Washington, fully justifies the extra burdens they have assumed. And this is the basic principle underlying our advocacy of incorporation: It will cost something, as a matter of course, but the question is, not so much the cost, but will it not give us better results that will be a sufficient recompense for the extra outlay?

One of the most urgent necessities confronting the town is protection from fire. The citizens purchased a fire engine some three years ago, and while it has saved its cost already, yet it has not been used efficiently, neither has it been properly cared for. This outlay for the engine was made by a few of our citizens, but its use is not restricted—except for lack of water. This restriction—lack of water—renders the engine useless, often, as a fire fighting machine and there is no way of securing water at given points without money. It has been suggested at various times that large cisterns be built at various points in the town, or that some means of developing water for this purpose be adopted, but so far the suggestion has fallen on barren ground; and it's only another evidence of the necessity of concerted action to reach a desired end. One sweeping conflagration in the town—which might occur at any time, and Carrizozo has been fortunate up to date in that respect—would mean a greater loss than all the money that might be collected by taxes for many years.

Assuming that incorporation will be beneficial—otherwise there is no reason for it—are we not willing, or should we not be willing, to pay the price? The disposition of any funds derived from taxation, or whatever method adopted—whether by taxation of the property within the proscribed limits or by an occupation tax, or by both—are to be made in the interest of the town and for its improvement and upbuilding. Every tax-payer would thus receive a direct benefit and the money spent, would, in its very nature, result in the improvement and upbuilding of each individual piece of property. And, in our opinion, the most just feature of the entire proposition is that every piece of property—improved or unimproved—would bear its just share of the burden and also receive its just share of the benefits.

There may be good reasons for not incorporating but if they exist they have not been given to the public. It may be that the people of Carrizozo do not want incorporation—that can only be determined by a vote; and we feel that until a vote is taken on the subject neither those favoring incorporation nor those opposing incorporation will be satisfied. To say that only a few favor incorporation and that there is little sentiment for it convicts the one making the assertion of an asininity exceeded only by one who would assert that incorporation had no opposition. It is a question that should be settled on its merits—as we believe it will—and whatever the results accept them.

GAVE UP STAGE FOR BUSINESS; HAS NO REGRETS

NEW YORK—I came to New York because I wanted to be an actress. I had my wish. I was "on the stage" and was more successful than the average actress. I am staying in New York because I have got a good job as a stenographer. I am "off the stage" now. I am a business woman. And to say that I am glad that I made the change is putting it mildly. "I have found that, for the girl who, through force of circumstances has to make her own way in this world, the business office is so much more desirable than the stage that it is hard to make a comparison. I was just twenty-two years old when it became necessary for me to begin to make my own living. In the little Ohio town where I had lived all my life I had achieved more than a local reputation as an amateur actress. I had the talent, was well equipped both physically and mentally, and had the ambition to become a successful actress. My work in amateur theatricals had attracted the attention of professionals playing in our town, and for two seasons I had occasionally played minor parts in a summer stock company at a summer park. Quizzed for the Chorus. "Go to little old New York; that's the place for you," said the professionals whose acquaintance I had made in this manner. "You've got to go to Broadway if you want to get started." I did want to get started. I had $80 in real money. I packed my suitcase, with my set of Shaw on top of my skirts, and came to West Forty-eighth street to begin my start. The manager of the summer stock affair had given me two letters of introduction to friends of his along the Rialto. One was to a musical comedy producer with a little office on Thirty-ninth street. "Oh, yes," he said, glancing at my letter; "you're the one Tom wrote me about. Ever wear tight?" "No, sir; I don't wish to wear tight," I said. But he wasn't such a bad fellow after all. He told me that all he had was a chance in a chorus, that I was pretty lucky to be offered any kind of a job, but that if I didn't want it he'd do anything he could for me—for Tom's sake. Yes, he was better than the rest; the others wanted to do things for me—for my sake. He gave me a letter to another manager. "They're putting on a rube comedy road company," he said. "I think they'll last about as far as Rahway, but you might as well go now. "Trying it on the Dog." I took the letter and went to the second office. At first I thought that I had run into a department store where they were selling $2 near-silk petticoats for $1.98. Women large and women small, women old and girls young, brunettes, blondines, handsome, ugly, bojeweled and bedraggled—there must have been a hundred would-be actresses jammed into that stuffy little room and all of them fighting to get a position in front of a little glazed door marked "Private." After an hour the door opened and a boy came out. "Nothing doing today," he said. "Instantly there was a babel. "But Mr. Blank sent for us; he said we were to be here today sure." The boy grinned. A week later I got my first interview with this manager. He was fairly beside himself by this time, as his show was billed to open in New Haven in a week and he didn't have his company completed. He was a good fellow and a capable producer, but there were too many hang-overs mixed in with the days on which he worked. Well, I got a job. It was exciting. For six days and nights we rehearsed our heads off. My part was to stroll across the stage arm-in-arm with three other girls whenever the director thought it ought to be done. For this I and the other three girls were to draw $15 a week. On the final day we went to New Haven. That night after the performance we packed our bags and eddily flitted back to New York. The show "wouldn't do," and even the electricians knew there was no use trying it out any further. What a "Friend" Means. Three weeks later I got my first regular employment. It was a thinking part in one of the big Broadway successes of the year. We played at one theater 200 times, and during that time I played the leading woman's part three times. I resembled her in face and figure, and had been made her understudy. I got $40 a week. Let me say right here that was as high as I ever got. In the spring four companies playing this success were made up to go on the road. I was selected for the company that was to play the south, and my hopes rose high, as I felt sure that I would be given the lead. When the time for rehearsing came I broached this idea of mine to the manager, who was to take out the southern company. "Now," said he, "a friend of —" (the owner of the show) is going to have that." "Why?" I asked. "You know the part is made for me." "I know it is," he agreed, "and you ought to have it. But I ain't heard no friend-of-yours putting in a spiel for you. The new girl is — a friend; don't you get me?" "Do you mean to say that influence is all that counts in a case like this?" I asked. "It counts enough to say that you don't get no boost till you get some pull," he said. "You could get it easy, too; you're young and look good to me." It cost me my job to tell him what I thought of him and the methods of the owner, but I felt better when it was over. Experience No. 2. The road to quick preference was not one I could follow. Talent Not Key to Success. So I determined to make my talent win me my way. For the next two months I had a series of experiences that disgusted me. I sought employment steadily, but it was in the season when only cheap companies were being given work, and the two positions offered me were so much lower than the one I had just left that I could not accept them. Finally I went on the road with a light comedy. My part was one that fitted me excellently, and I made something that resembled a hit. It cost me something in pride to do it, because the leading man was drunk every night and persisted in pestering me with his attention. He said he would marry me as soon as he got a divorce. In the meantime I laughed at him and told him to take his pleas elsewhere. For the rest of the tour he did everything he could to spoil my scenes, but in spite of him I came to New York with something of a reputation. Too Old-Fashioned. That was all the good it did me. Managers acknowledged that I was competent far beyond the ordinary, and several of them had good parts that were made for me; but what right had I to expect one of them? I wasn't a star. Who was putting in a word for me? Where was my pull? My only qualification was my ability to play the parts successfully, and that wasn't enough. This is not saying that ability has not some small chance of winning recognition, by itself on the stage. But my experience showed me that they are so small as to be the merest kind of a gamble, and that most opportunities for success are not gained in this way alone. The landlady in my rooming house on Forty-eighth street put it all in a few words. "You're old-fashioned, dearie, and that's a handicap in this business." At the end of three years of being an actress I sat down and began to figure up. I was then twenty-five years old, mature physically and mentally, and, by the word of managers, a good actress. Yet I had never got beyond minor parts at a small salary; I had suffered—actually suffered—in the long periods between engagements, and so far as I could see nothing but some unforeseen stroke of luck could bring me the advancement necessary for the chance of a successful career. Wrecks of Youth and Hope. All around me were the wrecks of youth and hope, women who were hanging on because they hoped and hoped for that stroke of luck to strike them. Beating them out in all lines of the profession were girls who were willing to pay any price for preference—and who were paying it. I saw before me years of continued struggles, of long waits between engagements when my savings would be swallowed up, of constantly diminishing hope. Was it worth the struggle? Was it a sensible way for a girl to spend her life? These were the questions I asked myself, and from my experience there could be but one answer—No! I began to look around. I had special ability only in one line, that of acting. I had tried that, and was ready to throw it up. As I was making my own living it was up to me to fit myself for something else, and here good luck favored me. A girl with whom I had gone to school back home was employed in a Cortlandt street office, and in six months she was leaving to marry a young doctor employed by the road. When I told her of my resolution she said: "Why don't you try for this job? You can study stenography and I'll help you, and when you are ready I'll speak to the boss." That was what I did. At the end of six months I was a fairly fast stenographer, and I got the job. The salary was $30 a week to start with. This was only half of what I had been getting on the stage, but there were no long spells of idleness between engagements. And that there was a chance for the future is proved by the fact that now, three years later, I am in charge of a department of stenographers and drawing $45 a week. But the fact which struck me most deeply, and which made me most glad that I had deserted the paint-stick for the pencil was the difference in the treatment accorded me. Why, it was like going into a different world. As an actress—and simply because I was an actress—men had flattered me and had pursued me in a way that nauseates any woman of character. In the office there is a difference. The men who pay me attention here do it in the same way they would wish other men to pay attention to their sisters. And the work—for the first time I felt that I had got hold of something real, something vital to this world, that I was doing something truly useful. I found that there is only one test in the office—"make good." And a woman can make good fully as well as a man if she wants to do so hard enough. Is the work in the office harder? No. Because it is regular work, has same hours, and in the end is not nearly so wearing. Is it as interesting as the work of the stage? To me it is much more so. It is real, it is a part of the big, busy, useful world. And lastly, my life now has thrown me into contact with men who, when they begin to court a woman, have intentions and hopes of honorable and happy matrimony. After all, that's what counts most with any real woman.—Grace M. Hall, in the New York World.

And lastly, my life now has thrown me into contact with men who, when they begin to court a woman, have intentions and hopes of honorable and happy matrimony. After all, that's what counts most with any real woman.—Grace M. Hall, in the New York World.

ful. I found that there is only one test in the office—"make good." And a woman can make good fully as well as a man if she wants to do so hard enough. Is the work in the office harder? No. Because it is regular work, has same hours, and in the end is not nearly so wearing. Is it as interesting as the work of the stage? To me it is much more so. It is real, it is a part of the big, busy, useful world. PRETTY PAIR OF TWINS

BY DON MARK LEMON.

Ed. Burns and Tim Smith married as pretty a pair of twin sisters as you'd see in a picture gallery, and then settled down in the same town long side of one another. For a year—everything went as smooth and easy—and then a change came over the spirits of Ed. Burns and Tim Smith. Ed. got to looking at Tim's wife, and Tim got to looking at Ed's wife, and they concluded they had married the wrong sister. It was amusing when you come to reason it out, for the girls were as much alike as the same letter out of the same identical printer's box. But Ed. remarked to his wife, what a fine housekeeper her sister was, and Tim remarks to his wife, what a fine cook her sister was. Ed. says to Jenny—that's his wife: "Why don't you dress yourself up pretty, like your sister does? She's got style, she has." And Tim says to Mary—that's his wife: "Why don't you look stylish, like your sister does? She's got a backbone like a wax figure in a Fifth avenue store."

It run on this way most a year, and Ed. and Tim got more and more careless of their wives' feelings, and the two women folks got more and more miserable and unhappy. Well, it went on this way till the rift in the fiddle was big enough to swallow a meeting house, and then one day something curious happened. Ed. and Tim kissed their wives and made up, and acted prettier than they did in their courting days, and everybody in town was glad to see it but me. You see, Tim had taunted Mary about how much nicer her sister was, till Mary flies up and says: "Why don't you trade me for Jenny, and be done?" Tim could hardly believe his ears for a moment, then he grabs Mary and shouts: "You mean it?" "Yes," says Mary, with her lip a trembling. Just then who should come in but Ed. and Jenny, and I'll be eternally demoralized if Ed. and Tim didn't go at it on the spot and swap wives without any compunction or boot. "Nobody will know we've done it," said Ed. "You couldn't tell 'em apart till you've lived with one of 'em a year."

"Nobody but us will know it," says Tim, looking at Jenny like a boy with a dime in his pocket looks in a candy store window. Then Jenny and Mary went upstairs together and changed clothes, and came down, and Tim grabs Ed's wife and Ed. grabs Tim's wife, and everything looked as rosy and comfortable as the big gold seal on a divorce certificate. Ed. goes home with Mary and Tim stays with Jenny, and the two men folks were as frolicsome and affectionate as two bull-pups with their first muscles taken off. Ed. acted as if nothing was too good for Mary, and Tim thinks there wasn't anything half good enough for Jenny, and the two women folks got to laughing and growing fat from pure joy, and as nobody but them and me knew anything about the deception, and me laying low and saying nothing, why, things went on from good to better and from better to best. But what sort of surprised me was the way that the sisters took to it. Their consciences didn't seem to be troubling them at all, and they grew fat and saucy on the love they were getting. I concluded that Ed. and Tim hadn't wanted to swap wives any better than Mary and Jenny had wanted to swap husbands. But I couldn't blame the women folks much, for they were now being treated like human angels. Well, it went on for most a year this way, with Ed. and Tim treating the sister they had swapped for like knights in old story books treated their beautiful lady loves, then, one day, I discovered something that'll make me turn over and laugh in dry grave. I've said before that Jenny and Mary being twins and born of the same mother looked just alike, and I'll be eternally shamed if they hadn't fooled their own husbands. They had gone upstairs and changed dresses, and then came down and pretended Mary was Jenny and Jenny was Mary, and Ed. had gone off home with his own wife, thinking her Mary, and Tim had stayed where he was with his own wife, thinking her Jenny, and by treating their wives like they were some other fellow's wife, I'll be hanged if they didn't love 'em like they were. When I discovered the truth, I went home and fed my bull-pup on liver till he begged me to quit it, and then I sat down and wondered about how long it would be before Ed. and Tim would find out the truth, and the truth would make 'em ashamed. The instrument. "I heard the young couple we passed say they wanted to drink in the starry night. How could they do it?" "Isn't there the Dipper?" Reason of it. "Ma, are you the windows of the soul?" "They say so, dear." "Then is that why sometimes they look glaucy?"

Even in Castile. Sam Bernard was talking at the Lamps in New York about the recent arrest of some foreign dancers on the score of immodesty. "Of course those dancers were all right," he said, "and they got off. Their arrest was dictated by prudery. Such prudery reminds me of a hospital I know. "In the building of this hospital a cold storage chamber for the accommodation of dead bodies was included. One of the hospital doctors, in going through this cold storage chamber, found that a partition divided it in two. "What's this partition for?" he asked. "Oh, sir," said the foreman primly, "that's to keep the sexes apart."

Important to Mothers. Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it bears the Signature of Dr. J. C. Fitcher. In Use For Over 30 Years. Children Cry for Fitcher's Castoria.

Cleaning Tiles. Many times the tiles of a hearth will become so stained that water will not clean them. Never clean tiles with water. Use turpentine on a piece of flannel and polish with a dry cloth and the tiles will look like new. (When you know how a man prays you know what kind of a God he believes in. Too bad, but some people simply can't exchange their dollars for sense.

PAINFUL, TRYING TIMES. Housework is hard enough for a healthy woman. The wife who has a bad back, who is weak, or tired all the time, finds her duties a heavy burden. Thousands of nervous, discouraged, stolid women have traced their troubles to sick kidneys—have found quick and thorough relief through using Doan's Kidney Pills. The pills are much easier to bear if the kidneys are well. A Complete Cure. Mrs. E. White, 222 West Ave., San Francisco, Cal., says: "I had such sharp shooting pains in my back that I could not get on my feet. I bought Doan's Kidney Pills and used them. My back was so sore I could hardly get up. I tried other pills but they did not help. I have not had any more of these pains since I used Doan's Kidney Pills. I feel like a new woman." County Commissioner Duran returned to Lincoln Tuesday after a visit to Alamogordo the day previous as a member of the committee appointed to inspect the big road engine.

Richard C. Burton made final proof on his homestead, south of town, this week. Mr. Burton has recently set out a number of fruit and shade trees on his land and they are doing nicely.

Paul Mayer, Secretary of the County Road Commission, joined the committee of inspection, of which he was a member, and went to Alamogordo Sunday evening. From Alamogordo he went to El Paso, returning later this week.

Tom McDonald was in from his Mocking Bird Gap ranch yesterday to receive a car of fine hogs from Kansas City. The washouts in the Tucumcari country delayed the arrival of the stock, however, and they are expected here today.

Take Plenty of Time to Eat

There is a saying that "rapid eating is slow suicide." If you have formed the habit of eating too rapidly you are most likely suffering from indigestion or constipation, which will result eventually in serious illness unless corrected. Digestion begins in the mouth. Food should be thoroughly masticated and insalivated. Then when you have a fullness of the stomach or feel dull and stupid after eating, take one of Chamberlain's Tablets. Many severe cases of stomach trouble and constipation have been cured by the use of these tablets. They are easy to take and most agreeable in effect. Sold by all dealers.

Visited Gran Quivira Sunday

FOUR autos left here Sunday morning, each carrying its full quota of passengers, bound for the Gran Quivira ruins, about fifty miles north. The first car was driven by H. H. Joseph and carried Mr. and Mrs. Emert and Mrs. Hoeck; the second car was driven by H. S. Fairbanks and carried Mrs. Fairbanks, Mrs. Mudge, Mrs. Joseph and brother; the third car had for its driver, the distinguished chauffeur, S. L. Northlane, and the passengers were Miss Hull, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Kimbell and Mrs. Rink, a sister of Mrs. Kimbell, who is visiting from Perzusa, Falls, Minnesota, and the fourth car had Al Smith at the throttle and others in this car were Mrs. Smith, Sam F. Miller, the official photographer, Messrs. Ayers and J. Ziegler.

The quartette of autos started at a reasonably early hour for the scene of the ruins—the foundation and destruction of which are shrouded in mystery—and had little difficulty in reaching their destination, arriving at 2 o'clock p. m. Three hours were spent amid the prehistoric surroundings, the sight-seers, visiting various points of interest, picking up pottery, and speculating on the buried past; while the official photographer took snap shots at the old church, the adjoining ruins and general views of the silent city, once—hundreds of years ago—filled with a thriving, industrious population of which history records little. It is true that much has been written concerning these famous ruins, the founding and subsequent destruction—all highly entertaining—but all lacking authenticity. For conjecture and speculation have furnished the medium for information where actual knowledge was lacking.

At 5 o'clock the crowd started on their return home, and soon after troubles began, and continued so persistently that they did not reach home until Monday morning at 2 o'clock. Rain was encountered and the plain became a sheet of water, more suitable for propelling gondolas than autos, and as S. L. Northlane did not belong to an aquatic family his inability to strike terra firma only in spots made the ladies weep and the men swear; for it is the rule of the road that all must assist when one car is in trouble, and thus it was that Northlane was chargeable for the discomfort of the entire party.

The condition produced the old and world-wide difficulty of the sexes, and accentuated the philosopher's assertion that the cause of all domestic troubles had its origin in woman's love of dry goods and man's love of wet goods. The men waded and pulled around in mud and water knee deep and upon entering the cars came in contact with dry skirts and the irrepressible conflict was on. Oh, no; nothing stronger than Bonito water was taken from town—just wet goods vs. dry goods.

Anyhow, all reached home and, despite the difficulties, ready to make the trip again—but not with Northlane, ah no! The resolutions drawn up by the ladies, expressing their feelings toward the distinguished chauffeur, would make interesting reading; but as we do not care to take the risk of a conflagration in the office we must deny ourselves the pleasure of reproducing them.

The News Weekly Lay Sermon

THE inquietude of the heart which doubt has robbed of its faith in God is an evidence that skepticism is a malady, not a normal state. The sadness of our times under the pressure of positive disbelief and negative uncertainty has in it the promise of a return to health and happiness. Already we can see, if we look with clear eyes, the signs of what I have dared to call "the reaction out of the heart of a doubting age towards the Christianity of Christ, and the faith in Immortal Love."—Henry Van Dyke

Floods at Dawson and Tucumcari

TUESDAY the coal camp at Dawson experienced the worst flood in its history. The town itself did not suffer so much, but in the canyon where are located the railroad tracks, coal workings and appurtenances belonging to the extraction of coal much damage was done. Grades were leveled, tracks washed out and so much damage done that it will require considerable time to put things in their usual condition, although temporary repairs have been made that will permit the company to continue its extraction and transportation of coal. The bridge at Colfax, between Dawson and Tucumcari, was badly damaged, as was a number of others on the Dawson branch.

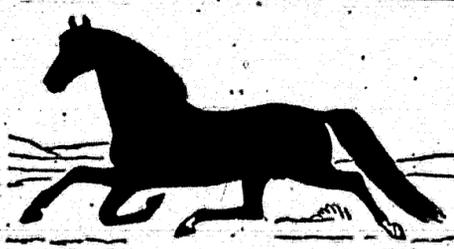

Wednesday night a terrific rain visited the section between Tucumcari and Montoya on the main line—and yesterday morning water was still running over the tracks. No bridges were washed out in that locality and the road bed may not be seriously damaged, but all trains were delayed, and No. 1, which was due here at 2:30 yesterday morning, did not arrive until yesterday afternoon.

Rains have fallen all 'round us, but have not yet struck our bailiwick. They're comin'.

WOOL

Wool is maintaining a steady price and a fair sale, despite the prediction of the clammy howlers. In fact, the market is better now than at any time this season, according to market reports. This is a pleasing information in two ways: First, because the sheep interests—one of the biggest industries of the west, and particularly of New Mexico—will not be harmed, and second, it proves conclusively that a demand for a commodity is the controlling element in its price, regardless of a high or low tariff. The firm tone of the wool market adds strength to the proposition that all matters will adjust themselves under a tariff levied for revenue purposes only.

Income from Tariff

WASHINGTON, June 9.—A table prepared by the senate finance committee showing comparative figures based on the Underwood tariff bill and the present tariff law, shows the average ad valorem rate in the proposed law to be 32.99 per cent as against 43.64 per cent under the Payne-Aldrich bill.

The estimated loss of revenue through the augmented free list in the Underwood bill will be $24,718,328 on an import valuation of $102,534,466. Revenue under the proposed bill, exclusive of the income tax, is estimated at $266,701,130 as compared with $304,216,694 under the present rates. With the income tax revenue estimated at approximately $80,000,000, the total revenue under the proposed bill would aggregate about $347,000,000.

In the sundries schedule, where in the Democrats have added many articles not heretofore taxed or have increased rates on luxuries, their ad valorem equivalent shows an increase over the Payne-Aldrich rates from 24.72 per cent to 33.27 and the estimated revenue from this schedule is raised from $27,000,000 to approximately $64,000,000.

Wool revenues, it is estimated, will decrease from $27,000,000 to $15,000,000. The sugar revenue would decrease from $60,000,000 at the rate of $20,000,000 a year until sugar goes on the free list in three years.

The proposal of the subcommittee in charge of the agricultural schedule to put a countervailing duty on live stock, grains and flour will be discussed by the majority members of the finance committee. With these products on the free list, subject to a countervailing duty, cattle from Canada would be dutiable at from 22 1/2 to 25 per cent ad valorem; the Canadian tariff on cattle; meats would be dutiable at 2 1/2 to 3 cents a pound; wheat 10 to 12 cents a bushel; oats and rye 9 to 10 cents a bushel; flour 50 to 60 cents a barrel; rye flour 45 to 50 cents a barrel; oatmeal 50 to 60 cents a barrel.

Forests to Assure Pure Water

SECRETARY HOUSTON has just approved an agreement between the Department of Agriculture and the town of Safford, Arizona, by which the Forest Service and the town will cooperate to conserve Safford's water supply, which comes principally from the Crook National Forest.

This is the latest one of many such agreements. According to the figures of the Forest Service there are nearly 1,300 cities and towns in the west which derive their water supply from lands within the National Forests. Where these cities desire it the Government joins hands with the citizens for the purpose of maintaining a permanent and pure water supply.

Stock raising, for example, or any other occupancy of the land, which ordinarily would be encouraged, would be inadvisable on a watershed which forms a source of drinking water. The Forest Service recognizes that water is as necessary a commodity for wooded hillsides to supply as are saw logs or mine props. A watershed area may offer an opportunity to furnish the greatest benefit to the largest number through supplying an unpolluted source of water for domestic purposes.

Contracts like that just made with Safford are now in force with Cascade, Colorado Springs, Durango, and Manitou in Colorado; Salt Lake in Utah; and Baker City and The Dalles, Oregon. The famous Bull Run watershed, which supplies Portland, Oregon, is on the Oregon National Forest.

The cooperative agreement in each case provides that the land may not be used without approval by the town, except for the protection and care of the forests. The Government agrees to extend and improve the forests by seeding, planting and forest management, so far as the funds for that purpose are available. The city, for its part, assists by paying the salaries of the additional guards necessary to carry out the agreement, and contracts to bear the greater part of the cost of any improvement work which it considers immediately desirable.

Club Building to Open

THE railroad ladies of the town met yesterday afternoon at the railroad club building to formulate a plan for the opening night. A decision was reached to open the doors next Tuesday night, and a general invitation to all will be extended. There will be music, bowling and dancing, with light refreshments. Eight o'clock is the hour and the ladies expect YOU!

THE Lincoln County Institute which began a two weeks session here Monday morning has the largest attendance of any institute ever held in the county. Besides a large number of Lincoln county teachers, both Otero and Torrance counties are well represented.

Prof. J. S. Taylor, of Deming, is the conductor, and Mrs. Lillian A. Bess, of Tucumcari, has charge of a class in manual training. Prof. Taylor conducted the institute here last summer and is a gentleman of wide experience in the training of teachers. Mrs. Bess is getting her classes interested in training work, and the enthusiastic manner teachers are taking hold give promise of most excellent results.

State Director of Industrial Education, Miss Monette A. Myers, was in attendance two days this week, giving the teachers a talk on industrial work in general and a model lesson in domestic art. Prof. J. H. Rigney, of the State Agricultural College, also spent two days at the Institute—Monday and Tuesday. He addressed the teachers on the subject of agriculture in the schools, gave some very helpful suggestions on the subject and aroused such an interest among the teachers that all became agronomists on the spot. Mrs. Gamm, the county superintendent, is in attendance at all sessions of the institute and lends every aid to the encouragement of the teachers.

Over forty teachers have already enrolled, and their names and the places from which they came are as follows:

Mrs. E. H. Simmons, Misses Cooper and Livingston of Tularosa; Mrs. Redie and daughter, Miss Vida, from Clouderoft; Miss Mary Stevens, Progresso; Misses Mildred and Nita Taylor, White Oaks; Mesdames Abbott, Jewett, and Benzo from Albuquerque; S. C. Barrett and wife, Mrs. Perkins, and Misses Tiekner and Wilson, Ancho; Mrs. Jennie Wright, James Canon, Miss Gertrude Keller, Nogal Mesa; Miss Theo Richardson and E. # HUSBAND NAILED RUBBER ON GATES

Wife so Weak and Nervous Could Not Stand Least Noise—How Cured.

Mumfords, Ala.—"I was so weak and nervous while passing through the Change of Life that I could hardly live. My husband had to nail rubber on all the gates for I could not stand it to have a gate slam. I also had backache and a fullness in my stomach. I noticed that Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound was advertised for such cases and I sent and got a bottle. It did me so much good that I kept on taking it and found it to be all you claim. I recommend your Compound to all women afflicted as I was."—Mrs. F. P. MULLENBORG, Mumfords, Alabama.

An Honest Dependable Medicine

Is Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound. A Root and Herb medicine originated nearly forty years ago by Lydia E. Finkham of Lynn, Mass., for controlling female life.

Its wonderful success in this line has made it the safest and most dependable medicine of the age for women and no woman suffering from female ills does herself justice who does not give it a trial.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Finkham, Medicine Co. (Confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

An Exception.

Favors the Commission Form.

"What is your opinion, 'squire," inquired Joe Doe, of Senator Smugg's declaration that if the president is going to dictate legislation congress might as well be abolished?"

"My opinion, Joseph," calmly replied the Old Coder, "is that the senator always did talk too much. He should have said, 'Congress might as well be abolished,' and let it go at that."

Nothing Doing for Him.

A well-known but broken-down Detroit newspaper man, who had been a power in his day, approached an old friend the other day and said:

"What do you think? I have just received the prize insult of my life. A paper down in Muncie, Ind., offered me a job. 'Do you call that an insult?' 'Not the job, but the salary. They offered me twelve dollars a week.' 'Well,' said the friend, 'twelve dollars a week is better than nothing.' 'Twelve dollars a week—thunder!' exclaimed the old scribe. 'I can borrow more than that right here in Detroit.'"

Matter of Curiosity.

Miss Gibson was very rich and Mr. Hanna was very poor. She liked him, but that was all, and he was well aware of the fact. One evening he grew somewhat tender and at last he said: "You are very rich, aren't you, Helen?" "Yes, Tom," replied the girl, frankly. "I am worth about two million dollars." "Will you marry me, Helen?" "Oh, no, Tom, I couldn't." "I knew you wouldn't." "Then why did you ask me?" "Oh, I just wanted to see how a man feels when he loses two millions."

MORE THAN EVER

Increased Capacity for Mental Labor Since Leaving Off Coffee.

Many former coffee drinkers who have mental work to perform, day after day, have found a better capacity and greater endurance by using Postum instead of coffee. An Ills. Woman writes:

"I had drank coffee for about twenty years, and finally had what the doctor called 'coffee heart.' I was nervous and extremely dependent; had little mental or physical strength left; had kidney trouble and constipation.

"The first noticeable benefit derived from the change from coffee to Postum was the natural action of the kidneys and bowels. In two weeks my heart action was greatly improved and my nerves steady.

"Then I became less dependent, and the desire to be active again showed proof of renewed physical and mental strength.

"I am steadily gaining in physical strength and brain power. I formerly did mental work and had to give it up on account of coffee, but since using Postum I am doing hard mental labor with less fatigue than ever before."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum now comes in new concentrated form called Instant Postum. It is regular Postum, so prepared as to be ready for use in the portions required.

A general of Instant Postum with hot water and sugar and cream to taste, produces instantly a delicious beverage.

Write for the little book, "The Postum Story," to Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"Canned" Indian Songs to Be Placed in Archives

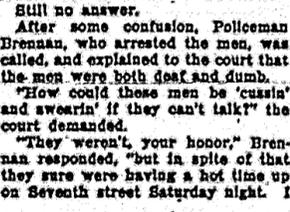

The Indians have been singing to the phonographs under the direction of Mr. O'Hara. The Indians could hardly grasp the idea at first of how they could sing into a tin horn and thereby record their music. After the first song had been sung, however, the reproduction was given them in a few minutes and the magic of the operation was bewildering to them.

Mr. O'Hara is arranging to visit Glacier National park early this summer and complete his records of the Blackfoot tribe there.

Through the interior department arrangements were made to take these records privately in New York in an out-of-the-way loft. There is one song in particular which the Glacier Park Indians sing, in which musical critics find considerable merit. This is a song descriptive of the Blackfoot Indian's love of his home environment. Big Top, the Indian interpreter, says:

"My people always sing this song, because when they go away from the mountains their hearts are lonely, and it makes them think of home, sweet home."

Defendants in Court "Demonstrate" Innocence

N. O. HARPER, clerk of the police court, reading charges of disorderly conduct to Harry Johnson and Charles O'Connor, knowing that the charge of "cursing and swearing" was generally contained in such information, included these words:

"How do you plead, guilty or not guilty?" Mr. Harper demanded.

No answer.

To facilitate the business of the court, Bailiff Hopkins went close to the men and asked them in a low tone whether they were disorderly or not at the time mentioned in the paper. But he received no answer.

"Are you guilty or not?" Mr. Harper asked, in a polite but somewhat louder tone than he had used before.

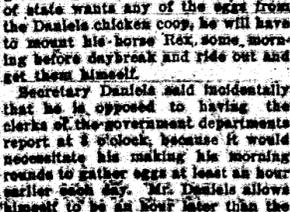

Still no answer.

After some confusion, Policeman Brennan, who arrested the men, was called, and explained to the court that the men were both deaf and dumb.

"How could these men be 'cursing and swearing' if they can't talk?" the court demanded.

"They weren't your hoorer," Brennan responded, "but in spite of that they were having a hot time up on Seventh street Saturday night."

Why Mrs. Townsend's Great Dane Was Lonesome

HERE is a splendid great Dane in Washington, who is also a bit distraught, and inclined to be lonesome because he cannot realize the perfectly-at-home feeling, which makes dogs of high and low degree at ease with the world, and utterly content. He belongs to M. Constantia Bran, the minister from Denmark, who presented him to Mrs. Townsend, and the great Dane was introduced to one of the most magnificent homes in Washington, shows every attention, and gives every luxury that the most ambitious dog in the world could dream of. But he was not happy, and began calling upon the people across the street, at first only occasionally, and then, twice a day, once spending the greater part of the forenoon, and again staying two or three hours in the afternoon. Finally he went back in the evening, and guests arriving for a dinner party at the house across from Mrs. Townsend's found the great Dane at the steps.

One guest, whose dog is a dainty, coquettish Chow, passed an awful moment when she had visions of never getting past the great Dane, who seemed greater and greater as he stood above her, on the topmost step, across the carved walnut doors.

When she finally accomplished it, with the help of the chauffeur and footman, she entered the drawing-room all but breathless.

"Why doesn't that great Dane of Mrs. Townsend's stay at home? He has all that large garden to wander about in, over there, and—" she stopped, because she was nervous.

"Oh, that dog is simply lonesome," her hostess explained. "You see they only speak French and English to him over there, and he gets so homesick to hear his native tongue that he comes here to visit my Danish-butler!"

Daniels Gathers Eggs; Bryan Wants Division

SECRETARY of the Navy Daniels the other day disclosed the fact that he keeps at his country place near Washington some ninety chickens, that yield him every day twenty eggs, and he thereby put himself in line for a lot of trouble.

For when Secretary of State Bryan, who keeps a riding horse by the name of Rex, but who owns no chickens, heard about his colleague's wealth, he made the proposal that Mr. Daniels ought to divide those fresh eggs among the other members of the cabinet.

Mr. Daniels has not yet been heard from on the proposal, but the general opinion is that if the secretary of state wants any of the eggs from the Daniels chickens, he will have to mount his horse Rex, some morning before daybreak and ride out and get them himself.

Secretary Daniels said incidentally that he is opposed to having the clerks of the government departments report at 3 o'clock, because it would necessitate his making his morning rounds to gather eggs at least an hour earlier each day. Mr. Daniels allows himself to be an hour later than the clerks of his department, but makes up for it by staying half an hour later in the afternoon.

Raising babies as a fine art is the latest subject for the output of Uncle Sam's printing office, according to the announcement made by Miss Julia Lathrop, head of the children's bureau of the government.

Work has already been begun, she said, on a series of "infant bulletins."

"These bulletins," said Miss Lathrop, "will be a series of pictures of infant life as we have found it. They will be issued in an effort to disseminate and popularize scientific knowledge of child-bearing and raising in a manner that will be understood and appreciated by every mother in all stations of life."

Notice on United States

The United Shoe Machinery Company is the only real obstacle to the formation of a shoe trust. We have the small manufacturer to start in business and keep going. He could not afford to buy and care for his machines, but he can afford to lease them on the terms we give him based on the number of shoes he makes—an average of less than 2-3 cents a pair—and let us keep them up to date. That is a fair arrangement. Some of the big fellows don't like our system, because they think we ought to give them special rates. But the little fellows stand with us because they know we treat all manufacturers alike no matter how many machines they use. If it were not for our methods of doing business there would be no small factories anywhere and no prosperous factories in small towns.

The United Shoe Machinery Co., Boston, Mass.—Adv.

THE BEST TREATMENT FOR ITCHING SCALPS, DANDRUFF AND FALLING HAIR

To allay itching and irritation of the scalp, prevent dry, thin and falling hair, remove crusts, scales and dandruff, and promote the growth and beauty of the hair, the following special treatment is most effective, agreeable and economical. On retiring, comb the hair out straight all around, then begin at the side and make a T-shaped parting. I cannot discover into what the parting with a bit of soft flannel held over the end of the finger. Anoint additional partings about half an inch apart until the whole scalp has been treated, the purpose being to get the Cuticura Ointment on the scalp skin rather than on the hair. It is well to place a light covering over the hair to protect the pillow from possible stain. The next morning, shampoo with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Shampoos alone may be used as often as agreeable, but once or twice a month is generally sufficient for this special treatment for women's hair.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address Post-card "Cuticura, Dept. 1, Boston." Adv.

Introducing Breakfast Foods.

Until recently there were hardly any kinds of breakfast foods on sale in the Amsterdam grocery stores. But now several dealers are handling them. The Dutch do not, as a rule, serve a warm meat breakfast, but almost universally take a cold, light meal, consisting of bread, cheese, cold meats, milk and tea or coffee.

A CLERGYMAN'S TESTIMONY.

The Rev. Edmund Heaslop, of Wighton, Pa., suffered from Dropsy for a year. His limbs and feet were swollen and puffed. He had heart fluttering, was dizzy and exhausted at the least exertion. Hands and feet were cold and he had such a dragging sensation across the loins that it was difficult to move.

After using 5 boxes of Dods's Kidney Pills the swelling disappeared and he felt himself again. He says he has been benefited and blessed by the use of Dods's Kidney Pills. Several months later he wrote: "I have not changed my faith in your remedy since the above statement was authorized. Correspond with Rev. E. Heaslop about this wonderful remedy."

Pneumonia and Erysipelas Serum.

Not long before his death last February Dr. Philip Hanson Billes of Baltimore discovered serum for the treatment of pneumonia and erysipelas, which are now being tested with much interest. Dr. Ford of the Johns Hopkins medical school, who followed Dr. Billes in his work, says that the serum for pneumonia is not a cure in any such sense as the antitoxin for diphtheria, but that it is helpful in the treatment of the disease.

Over-Night Relief for Constipation

A Small Dose on Retiring and You Are Well and Happy by Morning

It is only natural that the simplest of ailments should be the most general, and so we have a whole nation suffering from constipation and indigestion, for they are closely allied. But common as constipation is many people do not seem to know they have it. They will complain of headache, drowsiness or biliousness, all unconscious of the cause of the trouble.

You should have a full and free movement at least once a day. If you pass a day you are constipated, and the result will be that you will catch a cold easily or have a more serious ailment.

To cure the constipation and forestall still graver trouble take a dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at night before retiring and by morning relief will come, without disturbance from sleep or any inconvenience.

Legions of people use it regularly in such emergencies, some of them formerly chronic invalids who have suffered from constipation all their lives.

Mr. A. B. Danner, 328 Riley St., Harrisburg, Pa., says: "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin gave me almost instant relief from stomach and bowel trouble. I now eat anything I want, and sleep well. Many others will tell you they have tried most but have recommended for this purpose but have found Syrup Pepsin the only one always reliable. A bottle can be obtained at any drug store for fifty cents or one dollar, the latter size being bought by families already familiar with its merits.

Syrup Pepsin is mild, pleasant-tasting, and non-gripping. Mothers give it to tiny infants, and yet it is effective in grown-ups. It is for everyone who suffers from any form of stomach, liver or bowel trouble, constipation, dyspepsia, biliousness, etc. Its action will so delight you that you will forever avoid harsh cathartics, purgatives, pills and salts.

If no member of your family has ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it before buying in the regular way of a doctor, send your address to the postal will do to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 303 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and a free sample bottle will be mailed you.

Mining Conditions Improving

At times dark clouds have hung about and enveloped the mining industry in Lincoln County and the prediction of thoughtless persons has been that the obscurity would not be removed; but faith in our mineral resources, hopes for their development have ever lingered with us, and the development that is now in progress fully justifies the faith of years. That we may not make statements that are questionable, we speak through the medium of Chris Yeager. He has been in this county—mining—a number of years, and in an interview with the El Paso Times said:

The White Oaks mining camp of New Mexico is now looking better than ever in its history. There are two big gold districts in southeastern New Mexico. One is the Jarilla mountains and the other is the big gold belt extending from the White Mountains northward across White Oaks and the Jarilla Mountains.

I have mined in many gold camps, and make it a rule always to follow the reported booms. Once I made a fortune in the gold excitement in one of the camps of Nevada, and now, I believe, is the psychological time to make money in mining in New Mexico. What I have just seen in the White Oaks region convinces me that there will be a big boom north of El Paso. I expect to revisit the Jarillas soon; as I am familiar with every part of that rich mining district.

The Wild Cat Leasing and Mining Co., of White Oaks camp is working about twenty-five men on the North Homestake mine. They are increasing their present force of men and are adding ten stamps more to the ten-stamp mill they already have been operating and also adding an extensive cyaniding plant, to consist of four Pachuca tanks. This mine is developed to a depth of between 1200 and 1300 feet, and the company is milling ore that averages about $15 gold per ton. The Wild Cat Company is composed of Edward Queen, D. L. Jackson and Allen Lane of White Oaks. They also have a bond and lease on the South Homestake mine, which adjoins the North Homestake on the east. The Rita and the Little Nell mines are being worked by Mr. Dye of St. Louis, with a force of seven men and are yielding fine, rich gold ore. The Rita Company is composed of Col. Harrison and other capitalists of St. Louis, Mo.

The Baxter Gold Mining Co., of which Jack Linahan is president and the stockholders are El Pasosans, is being done under contract, a shaft being sunk to a depth of fifty feet and a tunnel being driven to a distance of 175 feet on the claim called the Little Johnny. This mine adjoins the Old Abe mine on the west. Judge Hewitt, principal owner and president of the Old Abe, has just bought the controlling interest in the Little Mack mine in the same camp and will start work with a force of men this week.

C. K. Hartley of Orogrande, who is working the big iron mines in the Jarilla Mountains near Orogrande, called the Iron Queen and Duke, is also working the Yellow Jacket iron property, six miles west of the White Oaks camp and about seven miles north of Carrizozo, being about three miles east of the railroad, with a force of fifteen to twenty men and is shipping fifty tons of high grade hematite iron ore daily to the plant of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Co., at Pueblo, Colo. Hartley will soon increase his shipments to 100 tons per day. I discovered this property several years ago and after developing it, sold it for a good figure. It belongs now to Charles Spence and associates of El Paso.

The White Oaks district is situated in a group of hills called the White Oaks Mountains, which really constitute the northern continuation of the Sierra Blanca or White Mountain range. One of these hills is called the Baxter mountain, and in this is the scene of the principal operations and location of the chief mines. The picturesque village of White Oaks is in a basin or amphitheater surrounded by oak clad hills, and is substantially built of brick and stone houses, and looks like some prosperous town back east, rather than a mining camp. It is one of the best places in the hot weather season I ever saw, and some day will become a summer resort. East of it are fine coal mines owned by the Old Abe Company, it is only twelve miles by stage from Carrizozo.

The total production since the discovery of gold in White Oaks, some time in the early fifties, when it was a placer camp, is authentically stated to be about three million dollars. Placer gold was found about 1855 by the Mexicans and worked extensively, and about 1879 gold in quartz veins was discovered on what is now the North Homestake grounds. White Oaks completely refutes the old superstition, or libel, of some would-be experts that the values and the veins of New Mexico don't go down to any great depth.

The Old Abe is in good ore at a depth of 1500 feet below the surface and the North Homestake is in splendid ore running through the mill an average of $15 gold per ton, which is much higher than the values at the same depth in the famous Cripple Creek district of Colorado.

Geologically, the White Oaks district is covered by cretaceous sedimentary rocks, limes and shales, through which igneous intrusions have intruded. The shales, limes and mountains have been cut by dikes, and through all these are found the quartz veins, more or less pyritiferous on reaching depth, but well oxidized at the surface. Many of the veins are for the most part more stringers or streaks,

News Notes from Outside Points

Jarilla
The marriage of Miss May McBrayer and Mr. Myler was solemnized Tuesday the 10th, at the bride's parents.

Jesse May and family came in from their home near Capitan, to attend the marriage of his niece, Miss McBrayer.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Reasoner of White Oaks, were visiting at the Reasoner home in this camp Sunday last.

E. E. Wilson had the misfortune to get his tools "hung up" in the well he is almost completing, and the delay is any thing but pleasant.

Bivian Brookin is employed in the mill force, and they are fast getting things in shape for the new mill.

The picnic here is about given up, since the majority are intending to take in the merriment at the White Oaks jubilee. However, there are always those you find it impossible to go a way for a picnic, and there is "talk" of a neighborhood reunion, with basket dinner and dance at the pretty green grove near the school house.

A. N. Price and son were in camp Sunday from White Oaks.

We learn that Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Haskins are sojourning in White Oaks for a while.

There seems to be "something" here that has enlivened the hopes of every one. Every one feels encouraged in the result of their work, and jubilant in anticipation. It may be the fire of our will-to-the-wisp hope, long defended, or it may be at last the psychological moment for its fulfillment. Any way, "things" are paning out to the most skeptical in a convincing way.

Mr. Ed. Fox is one of the mechanics at the mill.

C. L. Kennedy is striving to annihilate the weeds on his farm.

There has been much replanting in this vicinity, owing to the seeds early sprouting, and dying from excessive heat and drought.

There was a dance at Ancho Saturday, to which some of our young people went. It was given complimentary to the bride and groom of last week, as we have learned.

FORT STANTON

Mr. J. A. Haley, editor of the Carrizozo News was here on business Saturday. He and Mr. Peter J. Duffy drove to Lincoln in the afternoon.

Major J. Ross Thomas and sister, Miss Laura Thomas, came up from Roswell Sunday. Major Thomas will spend the summer months here and Miss Thomas will visit Mrs. F. C. Smith several weeks.

Doctor and Mrs. Bullock of Roswell were visitors here Saturday and Sunday. Dr. Bullock held early mass in Dr. Markoe's quarters Sunday morning.

Regular evening services were held in the amusement hall Sunday evening by Father Frund. This will be the last services of the season, as Father Frund left Monday for quite an extensive trip in the East, to be gone several months.

Mr. Chas. Babbs, chief electrician and office assistant returned from a visit home last Friday.

Mr. H. H. Cater, who has been visiting in Georgia for the past two months is expected back the latter part of this week. Mr. Cater has been missed very much by his many friends and they will be very glad to have him back again.

Lincoln

Henry Lutz, Jr., is at home from college at Roswell.

Misses Rose and Bell Lutz have returned home for the summer vacation from the eastern seminary.

The Lutz auto party to Santa Fe and Las Vegas was most enjoyable to all concerned. Leaving Sunday afternoon, returning Tuesday. Making a trip of 420 miles without accident or delay in the big Lutz Velie.

Father Girma was called to Carrizozo Monday on a sick call, having a very pleasant trip in the auto with Mr. Henry Corn, county assessor.

Dr. Laws spent Monday at Capitan on business.

but in many places there are numbers of these veins which in connection with the intervening wall rock, constitute workable ledges or irregular shoots or pockets of some magnitude.

A great part of the production of the White Oaks district has come from ore in which the gold was free. In most of the ore worked recently the gold is associated with limonite, or with partially oxidized pyrite. The deepest worked mine in the district is the Old Abe, which has reached the depth of 1500 feet. The greater part of the production also came from pockets and shoots of high grade ore. For instance, here was taken out once in two days from the North Homestake mine $35,000. The general average of the ore extracted and milled in the Old Abe mine is said to have been $20 gold per ton. There are two big stopes in the Old Abe; one called the Fish Pond and the other the Duck Pond. The Fish Pond stope was 20 feet wide, 50 feet long and 60 feet high, and yielded $80,000.

In the South Homestake there are also two old stopes, one called the Devil's Kitchen and the other the Capitan stope, both of which have yielded the miners great fortunes. I shall not be surprised to hear of other similar stopes being struck in the near future that will excite the mining world.

Other former producers in the same camp were the Little Mack, the Lady Godiva, the Little Nell, and the Compromise. Most of the veins or ledges have a general north and south strike. In this respect they are similar to the gold bearing fissures in the Jarilla mountains and in the Sierra Blanca or White Mountain range of New Mexico. In the Jarilla Mountains, about twelve to twenty miles north of White Oaks, some fine gold discoveries have been made within the past few months and some Chicago people are developing them and I am told are planning to put up a mill.

Severe Hail and Rain Storm

WEDNESDAY of last week

Lincoln was visited by a destructive hail and a severe rain storm—in fact, a water spout—that caused great damage to roads, farms, gardens, orchards, and killed and drowned quite a number of animals. The biggest single loss of stock was by Henry Fritz, who lost 526 head of Angora goats. The goats were being herded on a hillside and when the hail and heavy rain hit the flock, the herder could not control them. The goats dashed into a canyon, piling one on top of another, and the flood came down and swept them away. The roads were made temporarily impassable by the wash from the hills—boulders and debris—but an emergency road crew soon had the obstruction removed.

LAW'S DEMAND MADE NAUGHT OF NEW LIFE

How the "Shadow" Caught Up With "Piney" Whaley.

UNEXPIATED CRIME FOUND HIM

Now Leaves Happy Home for Five Years' Term in Prison.

WIFE WILL AWAIT HIS RELEASE

Had Never Known He Was a Fugitive From the Law, but the Discovery Has Not Swerved the Woman to Whom He Chiefly Owe His Redemption—Seemingly Harsh That the Law Should Turn Apparently Good Citizen into Convict.

IN THE gray wool of Charles Whaley's existence Love spun a single radiant thread. The fact is futile now, for Charles Whaley, after two years of stolen happiness, is serving the first days of a five-year sentence in Sing Sing.

The burglary for which he is atoning was committed three years ago. Whaley, though arrested at the time, escaped, and in a new world, under a new name, tried to live down his past. He failed. Just as he was beginning to take hope the unexplained crime found him.

He has a wife and two children. It was their love which held him while he hid from justice; it is their love he leaves behind. When he emerges from prison it will be waiting, for the discovery that her husband is an escaped criminal has not swerved the woman to whom he owes redemption.

Everyone knows the story of Jean Valjean, the fugitive-philanthropist of Victor Hugo's most famous novel. Charles Whaley is a Jean Valjean of common life. For the time being he has failed, but when released from prison gives him new opportunities to prove his reformation, there will be plenty of well-wishers to give him help.

It was in 1910 that Charles Whaley, a rational of the law, with an accomplice named Richard Fitzsimmons, robbed a dry-goods store at Port Washington, L. I. Fitzsimmons was sentenced to one year in the county penitentiary; Whaley escaped while awaiting trial.

He was twenty-five years old at the time. The most of his life had been spent on Long Island and the waters about New York. He had been in trouble a good deal of the time, but he had never got into anything approaching to gravity his situation when he found himself an escaped prisoner with the possibility of recapture and a heavy penitentiary sentence. For a time he worked as a fireman on a harbor boat. During much of it he meditated. His chief conclusion was that his whole life had been a big mistake, and that if he ever intended to repair it the moment had come to begin. Just a year after his escape he started on the job.

IT WAS a big one. When a man has spent nine years in piling up varied and sundry misdemeanors he cannot put them all right in a minute. In Greenport, L. I., there was a girl who, two years before, had come into Whaley's life for a brief period. It had not meant much to Whaley, but it had meant a good deal to the girl. Whaley started his new life by going to Greenport and marrying her. She knew his real name, but in consideration of the remainder of the village, it was considered advisable for him to settle there under a new one—Frank Lawrence. He got a job on one of the Round Oyster boats; turned into steady, everyday work and tried to forget the past.

It was not so difficult. He had escaped imprisonment for a year; perhaps he could do it indefinitely. He decided that the district attorney's office was satisfied with one victim; that it was willing, so far as he was concerned, to let bygones be bygones. His work on the oyster boat paid him $35 a month. Out of this he supported himself, his wife and a child. He had always been an unwise drinker; with the advent of new aspirations he gave this up. The love he had once treated lightly came to be the most important thing in his new, strange, exciting career. He loved his wife, believed in him; that she watched him every step toward reformation with the faith of an unshakeable love. He never told her he was an escaped prisoner.

UNDER these influences the old Whaley melted away and a new man, contented to grow. He had only one specter—the money knowledge of his over-prudent daughter. It was unobtainable. When time his absence returned from the oyster boat there was a man with his face of hopelessness, the fear that one of the wharf ing figures on the wharf might be that of an officer of the law. On shipboard he was safe, but from the moment he landed until his departure there was the haunting possibility that his crime would find him out, that he would cease to be Frank Lawrence, honest man, and again become "Piney" Whaley, the dishonored fugitive. There were times when it did not trouble him at all, but there were also times when it chilled him from head to foot. These occasions came usually when he was happiest, when, for the time being, the memory of his danger had been almost obliterated.

He would be seated in the front room of his home—a three-room cottage—which he had rented shortly after his marriage. Dinner would be over. His wife—the woman whose unwavering devotion had helped him most in his long struggle—would be sitting beside him. Over in one corner, Helen Marie, his daughter, would be arguing with an imaginary audience some highly portentous problem of babyhood. Everything would be a part of the new life, the happy and untroubled existence of Frank Lawrence. There would be a knock at the door. It might be a neighbor, it might be the wind, it might be anything, but to the man, it was always the same. He had been found. In a moment the door would open. A man would step in—probably like Smith, the constable from Fort Washington. He knew him.

"Well, Piney," he would say, "I guess you'd better come along with me." Then—but Whaley never got past that point. The door would open, revealing—no one except a neighbor. Whaley would wipe the sweat of his face, give a harsh, unnatural laugh, and excuse himself for a moment, saying he was going after a drink of water. When he found himself alone, he would fall into the nearest chair, shaking from head to foot.

The months passed, some swiftly, some with an awful deliberation, but all full of a peace and happiness such as Charles Whaley had never known before. The hope, long growing, that justice was no longer concerned with his existence became a conviction. There was no question about it. Charles Whaley was dead; Frank Lawrence could go unhindered on his way to redemption. After all, it had not been such a very important affair, only a matter of a broken pane and some stolen overcoats. Surely the great state of New York would not concern itself for long about such an insignificant occurrence. One man had served a year in jail; he himself had spent two months there while awaiting trial. And, above all, he had turned over a new leaf, he was trying to do the right thing. There would be no object in sending him to the penitentiary. He was safe.

IN his reasoning there was one thing Whaley forgot: He had escaped. If he had never been caught in the first place all his conclusions might have been justified. The authorities do not search overlong for petty offenders. But Charles Whaley had escaped. The law had held him in its hands, and he had slipped away. During all his fabled security the search had been going on, quietly, systematically, relentlessly. The Nassau county authorities had traced him through a dozen steps of his regeneration; then they had lost the scent. It had remained hidden for a year and a half. A rumor had come that he was working as an oysterman. The authorities had again taken up the trail. They had inquired in every town along the coast. They had not found him, but they were wide awake. They were still searching.

One day there came through Greenport a peddler named William Russell. He had known Whaley in Port Washington; in fact, Whaley had been threatened to look him. Russell saw Whaley on the street. Whaley did not see him. That night the district attorney's office in Mineola received a telephone call. It was Russell. He delivered the news. Whaley had no business being in Greenport. His oysterman had not cut his own throat. It is hazardous, however, that there was another baby—Lillian Frances, this time—a baby just two weeks old and exceedingly in need of attention. It was one of those occasions on which a husband is really needed in his home. Whaley had stayed.

He was sitting in the front room. There was a knock at the door. "Come in," said Whaley, cheerily, for under the spell of recent events the old fear had vanished altogether. The door opened. A man stepped in. It was like Smith. "Well, Piney," he said, "I guess you'd better come along with me." New York World.

Great Value of Aluminum. The conductivity of aluminum is about 60 per cent. of that of annealed copper. Accordingly, an aluminum conductor must be considerably larger in cross sectional area than a copper conductor if the two are to carry the same amount of current. Aluminum wire is always coated with a thin oxide which serves as an insulator. This insulation is enough, according to some European manufacturers, to permit of using bare aluminum wire in the coils of magnets. As the oxide film is of inappreciable thickness, a coil of the wire thus constructed would be no bulkier, if as bulky, as a coil wound with insulated copper wire. H. F. Stratton, writing on this subject in the Electrical World, states that he has been unable to secure sufficient insulation when depending upon the aluminum oxide film as it naturally occurs in the commercial product. In order to increase this oxide, some European manufacturers wet the coil and then heat it.

Not a Thunder Expert. The masterful manner in which some people evade an issue was mentioned at a recent dinner when this one was recalled by Rear Admiral Philip Andrews: "In New Orleans one night," the admiral said, "there was a man on the stage who offered to answer by mental arithmetic any question that might be asked by the audience. 'Just so long as the question remained in the expected channel the sailing was easy, but finally one man got beyond the bearings. 'If you please, sir,' said the man, rising from his seat, 'how far off can you hear thunder?' 'You can't tell me,' responded the man. 'Why I thought—' 'Not about thunder,' replied the stage party, doing a quick piece of dodging. 'You see, I am a lightning calculator.'—Washington Post.

Save Steps and Strength. There is great and untold waste of human energy through the making of false and unnecessary motions. The founder of a household experiment station has a favorite illustration of the average woman's waste of steps in the making of a cup of tea. He observed one cook in a large kitchen, first cross the room to a distant pantry to get her tea caddy, then go to the sink over the stove to get her teapot, cross the room again to get a strainer from the table drawer. The spoon for measuring she sought in a dresser which was located in another corner, and the cup which carried the quantity of water was gained from the dining-room china closet.

Want More Eggs Produced. The production of eggs is attracting considerable attention among farmers of South Africa. The South African Poultry Association recently held a conference in Johannesburg and decided to promote inquiries into the working of the egg glands of Australia and the co-operative systems of Denmark and Russia, and thereafter to formulate a scheme embodying the best features of each organization adapted to South African needs.

To Clean a Laze Yolk. Laze yolks can be cleaned without removing them from the yolks in the following manner: Moisten raw starch with cold water until it forms a thick paste, and apply this to the laze. When it has dried, brush the starch from the yolk and the laze will appear like new.

SATISFIES ALL TASTES

IDEAL MENU FOR TWO PERSONS IS GIVEN HERE.

Suggestion for Solution of Problem Which is One of the Hardest With Which Housewife Has to Contend.

One of the difficulties of a family of two, man and wife, is to prepare a bill of fare from week to week and not have to eat the same kind of meat several days in succession. If the man is not one who works at manual labor, he is quite likely to have a small appetite. The woman does her own housework, perhaps, and she, too, is not a large eater. Now a ten-pound roast would last two people of this kind much more than a week. To buy less prevents them securing the best cut of beef, although when they buy lamb it is quite possible to get a good roast much smaller. An excellent idea is to buy out a course in advance. Buy something like this: Roast beef one week, lamb the next week, turkey or chicken or roast pork the third week, then miscellaneous dishes—the fourth week—like halibut from chicken, lobster, if not too high, shrimp, a boiled dinner once. This would give a change sufficient to satisfy most tastes.

Let the roast be, say, seven or eight pound sirloin. Have it boned and one slice of steak cut off of it. The steak will do for the Sunday dinner, the bones will make a splendid vegetable soup for Monday dinner, and by Tuesday the best will be ready to roast. It will surely last the ordinary family of two Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, and perhaps, there will be enough left for a slow on Saturday. Fish may be served Friday any week, oysters another Friday in your season. The second week an eight-pound leg of lamb will give chops for Sunday. Cut the bones and take them off both ends of the roast, and a vegetable stew may be had—again Monday, and the rest the next three days. So on, with the other meats provided for the different weeks. It is possible and advantageous to use fish twice during the week. Scaloped fish makes an excellent dish occasionally.

Of course, the menu that is prescribed above is meant for dinner only, whether served at noon or at night. It is for the man with a limited income, say from $15 to $20 per week, where the wife does her own work. For those of smaller incomes perhaps roast sirloin is too expensive, and also roast lamb. Then rib of mutton and mutton may be substituted. A slice of cold roast beef of lamb will be acceptable in the morning often with the egg. Cold corn beef for an excellent dish to keep in the pantry in case of unexpected demand. It makes a good relish at night with supper if that meal is served instead of dinner.

White Rice Cake. Take the whites of six eggs, one cup of new milk, two cups of white granulated sugar, four cups of flour, two-thirds of a cup of butter, favoring, and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Cream butter and sugar together, then add the milk part of the flour; the beaten whites, and then the rest of the flour. Bake in a round tin. When cool frost over with white. Before the frosting is wholly set decorate the tops and sides of the cake with roses formed with almonds. At the time of serving insert in the center of each of the six top roses a little yellow candle, the end wrapped in parchment paper, so as to avoid direct contact with the cake. Trails of smelt about the base add a pretty effect.

Spanish Salad. Place some heads of endive and arrange them in a mound in the middle of a dish. Peel some rather large tomatoes, divide them into sections and place around the endive. Roll some eggs very hard and when cold shell and set them in a mortar, having cut them in halves and scooped out the yolks, being careful not to break the whites. Put shrimps or lobster meat into the mortar with the yolks and pound to a paste. Fill the hollows of the whites of the egg with the paste, lay "X" at the top and place around the tomatoes. Straw chopped shallot and sweet pepper over the endive, mix together in equal proportions oil and vinegar, seasoned with salt and pepper, and pour over the salad. Serve at once.

Mocha Gems. Cream two teaspoonfuls of butter and one of sugar, add one egg well beaten. Mix one cup of coffee and half a cup of milk, add it alternately with one and one-half cups of flour mixed and sifted with one and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Then beat in one cup of rolled oats. Pour into hot buttered gem pans and bake twenty minutes in a hot oven.

Grated Cheese, Mince Patties. Grated cheese on a dish, combined with sliced mushrooms, cream, and a little butter, and baked in a hot oven.

No Fashion. They say that Captain Ogdin's match that sets the world aglow. "What's what I'd like to know,"—Cornell Widow.

Week Way. "How would you make these remedies popular?" "Make them anti-katle."

Be happy. Use Red Cross Bag Bites; much better than brandy. Delights the laundress. All grocers. Adv.

Pleasant Affair at the Club House

THE club house opening Tuesday night was largely attended and highly enjoyed. Besides an overflow attendance of town people, many were there from up the line as far as Tucumcari and the western division, also, as far as El Paso was well represented. Bowling, pool and billiards furnished amusement for a large portion of the crowd, while a still larger number devoted themselves to terpsichorean pleasures. Refreshments consisted of punch, ice cream and cake—the best in the land—and the big, jolly assemblage had a most delightful time. The railroad ladies, who had charge of the affair, were the recipients of many compliments.

Captured at Socorro

FELIPE CHAVEZ, wanted in this county on the charge of disposing of stolen property, has been apprehended by the sheriff of Socorro county and is held in jail there. Deputy A. T. Roberts was notified and left yesterday for Socorro to bring the prisoner here. Chavez sold a horse sometime ago to Gallacher Bros, which was afterwards claimed by a man living in the Black Range, Socorro county, and the horse was turned over to him when his claim was established. Deputy Roberts was accompanied by Horace French, Joe R. Adams, Al Smith and Willie Galacher, the trip being made by auto.

The engine on the experiment farm broke down this week. The engine was an old one, used temporarily, pending the arrival of the new engine.

A House Party

THE PARKER girls who are spending the summer at the Bar W. ranch were hostesses the past week to a quartette of young ladies from El Paso. The visitors were the Misses Frances and Lorene Mayer, Misses Bernice Brick and Ruth Morriss. Nothing could prevent the occasion being a jolly one with a house full of lovely femininity. The guests left Wednesday night for Cloudcroft, accompanied by the Misses Lina and Frances Parker, and a house party at the summer home of the Morrisses is now on.

Take Plenty of Time to Eat

There is a saying that "rapid eating is slow suicide." If you have formed the habit of eating too rapidly you are most likely suffering from indigestion or constipation, which will result eventually in serious illness unless corrected. Digestion begins in the mouth. Food should be thoroughly masticated and insalivated. Then when you have a fullness of the stomach or feel dull and stupid after eating, take one of Chamberlain's Tablets. Many severe cases of stomach trouble and constipation have been cured by the use of these tablets. They are easy to take and most agreeable in effect. Sold by all dealers.

An agreement to co-operate with the State of New Mexico in the protection of game on national forests has been entered into by the United States Forest Service. Negotiations looking toward a similar arrangement with the game wardens of Arizona are under way. On the other hand, the game wardens will report to the nearest forest officer any fires they may discover on or near a national forest.

The present plan is a logical development of the general policy of the Forest Service to help the State authorities in game protection. It specifies more definitely than heretofore the extent of the cooperation forest officers are expected to furnish. In a letter to State Game Warden Trinidad C. de Baca, the Government outlines the proposed activities of Forest Service men in assisting to enforce the game laws of New Mexico, as follows:

Forest officers will pay strict attention to the enforcement of the game laws in so far as their duties permit, by reporting all cases of violation of the game laws to the regular deputy State game warden in whose district an offense is committed. They will make arrests in flagrant cases where it is impossible to notify the deputy State game warden, and where the violator is likely to leave the section of the country. They will also furnish to the proper officers all available information, which will assist them in apprehending or prosecuting violators of the game laws.

The rangers will further be expected, as far as practicable, to keep a record of the total number of game animals by classes killed in their districts, to be turned in to the State game warden, at the end of the season.

Maps showing the telephone will be furnished to deputy State game wardens by forest supervisors.

In case the regular deputy State game warden discovers fire on an acre within or contiguous to the forest, he is expected to promptly notify the nearest forest officer of the fact.

The matter of maintaining the game supply in New Mexico and Arizona is being taken up energetically by both these States. On the Carson, Pecos, and Gila National Forests of New Mexico, deer, wild turkey, and, in certain localities, bear may be found, while on the Sitgreaves and Apache National Forests in Arizona big game in quantities abound. In the White Mountains of the Gila National Forest is some of the best hunting in the country.

Repairing and Maintaining Roads

THE making of good roads is one of the most important duties of the American people and their prompt repair and careful maintenance essential. There is probably no subject in which the progressive farmer is more deeply interested than that of having roads connecting him with his markets over which he may be able to haul the greatest possible load. Good roads, like all other good things, are too expensive to build and of too much value to be neglected.

The Office of Public Roads of the Department of Agriculture has published a bulletin on "Repair and Maintenance of Highways." This bulletin does not treat the subject of road building, but takes up the repair and care of roads after they are built. All classes of roads, from the natural earth road to the macadam roads with bituminous surfacing, have

The water conduits which account of the use of heavier vehicles and motor trucks, the tendency of road building toward heavier and more substantial foundations and consequent reduction of the cost of maintenance.

The News' Weekly Lay Sermon

"WEALTH brings noble opportunities, and competence is a proper object of pursuit, but wealth, and even competence, may be bought at too high a price. Wealth itself has no moral attribute. It is not money, but the love of money, which is the root of all evil. It is the relation between wealth and the mind and the character of its possessor which is the essential thing."—Hillard.

Teachers Visit the Mal Pais

MANY of the teachers—thirty-two in number—attending the Institute here visited the Mal Pais last Saturday afternoon.

The pedagogues made a close study of the lava flow, examining its character, studying its geology and selecting specimens of the rock that had been heated by and thrown out of nature's oven. If a conclusion was reached as to the date of the eruption and the resultant effects our reporter failed to secure it, but a report is expected later. The teachers returned to the Foreman ranch, which nestles near the lava beds, there spread their lunch, which was a delightful affair and to which the Foreman's contributed quite materially. A number of the teachers returned by the beautiful home of Governor McDonald and all reached town before the shades of night had fallen. The local commercial club furnished the conveyance for the teachers to and fro for which the thanks of the teachers were tendered.
