The County High School

THE opening session of the new Lincoln County High School will begin as previously announced on Monday, September 8. The work of repairing and arranging the Capitan School building for the accommodation of the new school is progressing rapidly and as much of the manual training and domestic science equipment has already arrived and is being set up all indications are that every thing will be ready for the school to begin work on the opening date given above. From the number of pupils from the different parts of the county who have already signified their intention of attending a very satisfactory opening enrollment is already assured. The equipment for manual training, domestic science and other special subjects is of the best and the teachers have been selected with care. A full four years high school will be given. In view of the fact that the County High School is a home institution, county wide in its scope supported by and belonging to the entire county, where the opportunity for obtaining a high school education is equal to that of any school in the state there is no reason why most if not all of the 30 to 40 pupils in Lincoln County who are ready for high school, should not obtain this part of their education without going outside the county.

Tuition in the County High School is free to all pupils residing in Lincoln County. Any resident pupil who has completed the New Mexico Common School course of study or its equivalent as shown by the possession of the New Mexico State Diploma for common schools or its equivalent is entitled to admission to classes in the County High School and to free tuition in the school.

In arranging the work for a four-years course or rather courses of study, the interests of all classes of pupils have been held in mind and in so far as possible provided for. Several courses will be offered so that individual pupils may select subjects in accord with their personal needs or their plans for future work. Certain subjects will be required of all pupils but sufficient opportunity for optional selections of subjects will be allowed to meet the needs of all.

The work in all subjects in each course will be arranged in standard high school units. A "unit" as applied to high school work represents a year's work in any high school subject where not less than 5 recitation periods a week of not less than 45 minutes each are given to a subject for a period of not less than 36 weeks (9 months.) As each high school pupil ordinarily takes four subjects at a time (i. e. has one recitation in each of four different subjects daily.) a year's work in high school should ordinarily represent the completion of four units and a four year's course should thus represent sixteen units, or allowing one unit for a possible need of relaxing effort in one year of the course as many of our best modern schools and colleges are doing, a four year's course should consist of fifteen high school units with the option of taking sixteen when desirable.

The subjects offered in the County High School this year will be as follows:

- English (grammar and composition, rhetoric, and English and American literature) four units
- History and Social Science (general English, and American History civics and elementary sociology) three and one half units
- Foreign Language (Latin and Spanish) each two units
- Mathematics (algebra and geometry) three units
- Science (physiography, physiology, botany, zoology, chemistry or physics, elementary agriculture) selections to the amount of two or three units
- Commercial Branches (book-keeping, commercial arithmetic, typewriting, etc.) one or two units
- Manual Training one unit
- Domestic Science one unit
- Reviews (reviews of common school branches for pupils who expect to teach) one unit
- Elementary Normal (elementary pedagogy and elementary psychology as required for 1st or 2d grade teacher's certificate) one unit

After this year additional units in agriculture, domestic science, manual training and commercial branches will be offered giving all pupils opportunity to take one unit each year in one of these subjects. From the above list each pupil should select three or four units of work according to his ability, previous preparation, and the course he selects.

In all courses (except the commercial) each pupil will be required to take three units in English, three in history, two in a foreign language and three in science and mathematics (two in mathematics and one in science or one in mathematics and two in science), making eleven required units. In addition to the eleven required units each pupil must select four or five additional units to complete the required number for graduation in a four-years course.

The following four-year courses will be offered:
A General Course, consisting of the eleven required units as stated in the preceding paragraph and four additional or optional units selected by the pupil. By selecting

County and Road Commissioners

A conflict has arisen in many of the counties between the county road board and the board of county commissioners, and in some instances very unpleasant conditions exist. The road law, apparently gave the road board power to handle all road money, lay out new roads and close old ones, etc., just as the board of county commissioners formerly did, and, so far as Lincoln county is concerned there has been no friction between the two boards. However, the power of the road board to lay out new roads has been seriously questioned by attorneys, on the ground that the law did not empower the road board to condemn land and assess damages, and further, the contention is made that the power to create new roads and close old ones was never taken from the county commissioners.

With this view of the proposition, the county commissioners of this county did appoint road viewers recently, upon the proper presentation of a petition, acted upon the report, but at the same time, recognizing the conflict in the law, requested the cooperation of the road board, which, so far as is known, will be heartily accorded. So it will be seen that, while other boards have had their troubles, absolute harmony has existed between the two boards in this county—the road board systematically and energetically pushing the road work throughout the county and the county commissioners glad to be relieved of the burden.

Nevertheless, a law must be uniform in its application throughout the state—that is a general law—and, while conditions have been most satisfactory in Lincoln county, we are compelled to comply with the interpretation of the courts, to which tribunal the matter has been referred for adjudication. And until it is finally passed upon by the supreme court of the state confusion will reign and neither board will understand fully its duties in the matter. The County of San Miguel seemed to be having the greatest trouble over the proposition, and the treasurer of the county didn't know which warrant to honor—the one drawn by the road board or the one drawn by the county commissioners. So into court the matter went, and the following interesting communication from Las Vegas, published in the Albuquerque Morning Journal, tells the story, which, needless to say, is full of possibilities for trouble:

Judge David J. Leahy yesterday afternoon decided the long drawn out controversy between the board of county commissioners of this county and the county road board, in favor of the former. Both boards claimed the right to expend the money derived from the taxes collected from the levy for road purposes, and both boards had drawn warrants upon the treasurer for money in that fund. Both boards sought to mandamus the treasurer to pay their warrants.

District Attorney C. W. G. Ward presented to the court the laws under which both boards claim control of the road fund, but argued that the county road board merely took the place of the former road supervisors and had no authority over the funds raised through taxation; that the county commissioners alone were clothed with authority, to open roads, condemn and purchase lands, make contracts, sue and be sued and to expend money derived through the levy for road purposes.

Attorney General Frank W. Clancy, of Santa Fe, while admitting the conflict that existed in the laws presented, and agreeing that the warrants drawn by the county commissioners for expenditures for legitimate road purposes should be paid out of the road funds, urged that the laws of 1912 clearly gave the county road board power to expend money out of the road fund for constructing and improving roads, and argued that the treasurer should be required to pay the warrants of both bodies.

Judge Leahy said that meant the race would be to the board that could reach the treasurer first, and that the legislature could never have meant that two distinct bodies should have right to demand independent payment from the same source; that the intent of the new law was not clear, but that he would hold the law which specifically says that money derived from the levy for road purposes shall be paid out only upon order of the county commissioners, not to have been repealed by the latter law which says that money derived by taxation shall be expended under the control and supervision of the county road board.

The matter will be presented to the state supreme court as speedily as possible for final adjudication.

optionals with that end in view this course may be made preparatory to any of the college or normal courses of the higher state institutions or other standard colleges, universities and normal schools.

A Manual Training Course, which is the same as the general course except that not less than three of the four optional units shall be in manual training.

A Domestic Science Course, in which three or four of the optionals shall be in domestic science and household economics and domestic art.

An Agricultural Course which shall include three units in agriculture and allied branches, and one unit of manual training or domestic science.

The ranch of Mr. J. B. Wingfield on Indian Creek has recently received several visits from what is evidently a bear which believes in other than a vegetarian diet. Several of Mr. Wingfield's pigs have been discovered killed and partly eaten. Parties have trailed the invader, but have not been successful in bringing him to bay. Miss Rachel Harper and Mrs. M. H. Cook paid a visit this week to Mrs. Calfee at the I-X Ranch.

A Commercial Course of fifteen units consisting of three units in English, three in history, two in Spanish, five in commercial branches, and two optionals.

A Teacher Training Course of sixteen units for pupils who expect to teach and must begin teaching before they enter the regular normal schools. The sixteen units of this course will consist of the eleven required units of the general course, additional unit in science or mathematics (making two units in each of these subjects, a half unit of physiology and a half unit of physiography being required as part of the science units,) one unit in domestic science or manual training, one unit of reviews, one of elementary normal work, and one optional unit. PROPOSED TEMPLE OF ALIMONY TO MEET NEEDS OF THE DIVORCED

One of these days some American futurist will put in black and white a conception of that great American industry, divorce.

It will be a fearful thing—a reptilian mammoth, hydra-headed, of course, with pink eyes; horned, fanged, bat-eared, whiskered, serpent-tongued, with dozens of snake tentacles ending in sharp claws. And it will have an inscrutable Mona Lisa smile, predicts Kate Masterson in the New York Sunday World.

Beside it the octopus will appear as harmless as a household pet and as innocuous as a primor illustration. It will be part Ichthyosaurus with just a strain of ornithionos gigantous. And its real kennel name will be nine-syllabled, ending with a sneeze.

Like the inscrutable smile, translated, it will mean: "Am I so terrible after all? Isn't there a big interrogation point in the minds of all thinking persons as to whether I don't fill my place in the big scheme?"

Of course there are always the commandments to confront us when we feel progressive and broad-minded. But these are the days of eugenics and home-made marriage services and no marriages at all in some homes—mostly bungalows.

One hesitates to think what things might be if, for instance, there were no divorce. It used to be a disgrace in the old times—but many things were disgraceful in the old days—suicide, for instance. Suffragists and divorcees are found in the best families nowadays.

There is a certain chic about it for a woman. It is almost as good as being a real widow.

Besides that you will note, like neuroasthenia and paranoia, common persons never have it. They can't afford it. It doesn't thrive in the tenement districts. But when you get to the elevator apartments where there are two or three baths to a flat and maids leashed to dogs, there it flourishes like a bay tree.

Not Always So Common. Our great-grandmothers and fathers did without it to a great extent and went on cheerfully throwing the china at each other till death did them part.

Six questions were ignored. Now they teach the answers in the schools. There are no more of the scorching love affairs or the blistering letters except in the police news.

It is woman that has changed, of course. Sir Galahad is not much heard of at the ladies' clubs. He belonged to a time when they used to have stereopticon views and a chamber of horrors called a Family Album on the marble-topped parlor table.

Men and women respected each other and there was less comradeship between them in marriage and out of it than now. And divorce was not considered at all nice.

Show girls didn't run off with college boys and enter into the holy bonds of a dare, for it wasn't so easy to escape and win on the alimony question when the honeymoon was over. This was back in the eighties-fifties.

But with the early sixties divorce began to boom. They started to keep track of them. There were about ten thousand a year. Now there are ninety thousand.

It is one of the giant commercial growths of the age. It wraps up millions of dollars in its claws. It gives occupation to thousands—lawyers, clerks, typists, all busy in the big mill. It occupies blocks of office buildings. It uses tons of stamps, stationery, pens, ink, copying machines. It consumes fortunes in telegraph and telephone tolls.

It keeps gangs of hard-working private detectives busy day and night getting blue prints to back up their statements. It hides in taxicabs and stops at hotels invariably named after the saints. Divorce evidence obtained under an eagle's wing seems to carry weight with a jury.

Has Tried Many Residences. Divorce flitted about for a while looking for a suitable residence. It tried Rhode Island—it planted itself on the rock where the Pilgrim Fathers discovered the first clambake—then switched off to Dakota. It even visited blue-bibbed Philadelphia.

Then it planted itself in the healthful climate of Reno, where it has built up a flourishing, fashionable cottage colony, with delightful hotels, bridge drives, boating, bathing and fishing.

Here life moves to music while one waits for the papers. The social life is charming. Jones sojourning while he sheds Mrs. J.—whom he married through a misunderstanding—meets Mrs. Smith, who is severing her home ties. Both expect to be bored to extinction. They meet and find that life has only just begun for them. They go back east, married.

A genius for statistics has figured out the amount of money that changes hands in this way and suggests the establishment of an alimony bank. Here the tremendous divorce plant could be centralized. The payments and disbursements of moneys could be transacted. The scheme stretches out in endless vistas.

Divorced persons are often singularly sensitive about their troubles. They need careful handling. The alimony bank could make sympathy and delicacy the rule with its clients. Employers might be chosen who had themselves being through the process and would know, therefore, all the little points of importance.

Reads Like Ideal Plan. There would be no mixups. Alimony getters and alimony payers would have different departments and entrances. A cheerful atmosphere would be cultivated. There would be no hard feelings or criticisms or gossip. There might be afternoon tea.

And as in so many cases the divorced make up their differences and marry again there could be a regular chaplain who would settle the knot quietly, cut the service and omit all unnecessary swank and show.

The timid ex-wife going to draw her first payment would be met at the entrance doorway by an usher, in smart uniform who would take her up in a plush-lined elevator to the proper office and window. If she didn't like checks she could get antiseptically sprayed and germless money.

Naturally embarrassed and confused, she would be offered tea and cakes and then politely shown out of a secret door opening on another street. For, as some one once said, it is nothing to be seen going any place, it is to be seen coming out that counts.

For, of course, divorce is not yet quite respectable. That is one of the charming things about it. That is what made Reno such a pleasant place to stop—far pleasanter, for instance, than Chautauqua or the East Aurora farm. Culture isn't everything.

Many Possibilities in Idea. The concentration and localization of divorce in this Temple of Alimony would rob it of many of its terrors. It would give it a cachet. Remember what a dreadful sort of trade pawn-broking used to be. And now look at it as it is carried on in little white marble buildings resembling Carnegie libraries or Turkish baths—with rows of motors at the door.

The idea seems with possibilities and there isn't the shadow of a doubt that what to the thoughtless reader may seem a jest will be one of the realities of the future. For there is no stamping it out. Divorce is growing and, while laws may be made which will restrict it and make it more difficult, men and women will wrench the bonds asunder when they find them troublesome.

As it stands at present it must always be a wrench and a wrangle. Lawyers control it now and make it as elaborate as possible. The more fuss there is about litigation the higher the price.

The Temple of Alimony would have to secure a high priest—one of those terribly bald men with eyeglasses whose name has never been touched by the breath of scandal. This is always a wise move when running anything at which the finger of scorn is likely to point.

Though this custom of having tombstones made to hold portraits originated in this particular place, it is now being adopted in neighboring towns.—Harper's Weekly.

STATISTICS OF DIVORCE

In 1927 there was an average of 27 divorces in every 100,000 of population.

In 1927 the divorces numbered 72,062, the estimated increases in five-year periods being 30 per cent.

New York furnishes only 20 divorces to every 100,000 of population.

About 9,000 men in New York are paying alimony.

Figuring $35 a month as a fair average, the total alimony payments a year in New York reach $3,750,000.

And on this in neat rows some of the more serious magazines. The literature of the temple of alimony would be one of the most important items.

It should by all means include a Book of Divorce Etiquette. Francis Crownshield could get one up splendidly. He did that Rules for Dinner Conversation—a book that no one who pretends to be anyone can afford to be without.

You may recall the beginning page. To start conversation gracefully with a dinner neighbor who may be unknown to you, take up your roll and ask smilingly: "Is this my bread or yours?"

If ever a manual of this sort was needed badly it is in this matter of divorce.

Because everything is at present so crudely ordered in regard to the matter no one knows what to do. If two divorced people were to meet and shake hands in friendly fashion, or even appear decently civil to each other, they would be talked about.

As a general thing they are so happy over the separation that they have only the most grateful feelings for each other. The one matter that seems to create dissension—and this also should be arranged by some device, just set of rules—is the division of the worldly goods—the wedding presents, the plate.

Proper Division a Requisite. Who gets the canary? Which is to have faithful Fido? It is all right for Annabel to take the pearls that Alfred has given her—the toilet ivory—but it would seem as though she might leave him the silver cigarette box which his best man gave him.

If half the Annabells and the Alfreds could be separated on probation, as some of the judiciaries are now doing, they would make up their rows. A number of couples would fall on each other's necks and go out of the courtroom weeping tears of joy.

Nerve fagged, tired men who feel that their wives dislike them; neurotic, novelized women who think he doesn't love them any more, rush into divorce without in the least meaning to do so.

The Temple of Alimony might help them to make up their minds. Not every indignant wife is as sure of her own Grandparents Were Content With Throwing 'Round the Family China. Exact requirements as the colored lady who appeared in a southern court to complain that her husband was unduly attentive to other ladies of his acquaintance.

She recounted some of his offenses. "I see," said the judge sympathetically. "I suppose, then, madam, that you wish to obtain a divorce?"

"Divorce"—protested the lady. "Judge, do you think I want to do that? I want the handsomest niggal in Carolina and let him marry one of them coons? Oh, no, judge, what I want—is an injunction!"

SHOW PICTURE OF THE DEAD

Tombstones in New England Cemetery Are Furnished With Some-what Unique Decoration.

Many means have been used for marking the resting place of the dead, or in ornamentation of their graves, from the ornate tombs of marble and granite to the grotesque totem poles of the American Indians. The French, who are noted for their fine taste in decoration and their discrimination in art matters, distinguish their marble tombs with hideous wreaths of jet or purple glass beads. But it has remained for a little cemetery in New England to set a new fashion in a means of commemorating the dead.

A hole is chiseled into the slab or monument and into this is fitted a picture of the one whose grave it is beneath. The portrait is generally a photograph or tintype. A cover which can easily be lifted up is then placed over the opening. Anyone passing through the cemetery and wishing to know how the person before whose tombstone he has halted appeared in life has only to raise the little cover over the picture to satisfy his curiosity.

This is by no means a new custom in this town. It began many years ago. On one of the monuments is a photograph placed there in 1865, which is as clear as though it had been put there a year ago.

Though this custom of having tombstones made to hold portraits originated in this particular place, it is now being adopted in neighboring towns.—Harper's Weekly.

LAMB CHOPS, ENGLISH STYLE

Across the Water They Are Generally Served With Green Peas, and Combination is Delicious.

Wipe each chop with a damp cloth and trim off any extra fat. Break an egg in a saucer, add a tablespoonful of warm water and beat with a fork just enough to break the stringiness. Have ready a quantity of dried and sifted bread crumbs. Creaker crumbs are often used, but do not give as crisp a crust. Dip each chop in the egg. Lift up and drain for a moment, then roll in the crumbs. Repeat until the chops are breaded. In a saucepan put a tablespoonful of butter, one-half of a teaspoonful each of salt and sugar and one-quarter of a teaspoonful of pepper. Place over the fire, and as soon as hot add one quart of shelled peas. Cover and shake for two or three minutes, add just enough boiling water to keep from burning and cook, adding a little water as needed until tender. Have a quantity of fat in a saucepan. Heat until smoking hot. Plunge in two or three chops at a time; in half a minute draw to the side of the fire and cook more slowly. They should be done in from five to eight minutes, according to the thickness of the chops. Drain on unglazed paper. Heap the peas in the center of a platter and range the chops round.

Negligence Called Manslaughter. The case of Stehr vs. State before the Supreme Court of Nebraska, involved the sentence of a father for from one to ten years in the penitentiary for criminal negligence, because during a blizzard in Nebraska, he permitted the fire to go out, snow drifted through a crack in the door and broken windowpane, and the bedding of all the members of the family was frozen stiff. The feet of one of the children were frozen, and although such fact was apparent to the father, no physician was called in for 16 days when amputation was found to be necessary and the child died of blood poisoning. The defendant was convicted of manslaughter for criminal negligence in failing to provide medical care after he discovered the frozen condition of the child's feet. In affirming the conviction the court held that for a parent having special charge of an infant, child culpably to neglect so that death ensues as a consequence is manslaughter, although death or grievous bodily harm was not intended, and if the parent has not the means for the child's nurture it is his duty to apply to the public authorities for relief.

Negligence Called Manslaughter. The case of Stehr vs. State before the Supreme Court of Nebraska, involved the sentence of a father for from one to ten years in the penitentiary for criminal negligence, because during a blizzard in Nebraska, he permitted the fire to go out, snow drifted through a crack in the door and broken windowpane, and the bedding of all the members of the family was frozen stiff. The feet of one of the children were frozen, and although such fact was apparent to the father, no physician was called in for 16 days when amputation was found to be necessary and the child died of blood poisoning. The defendant was convicted of manslaughter for criminal negligence in failing to provide medical care after he discovered the frozen condition of the child's feet. In affirming the conviction the court held that for a parent having special charge of an infant, child culpably to neglect so that death ensues as a consequence is manslaughter, although death or grievous bodily harm was not intended, and if the parent has not the means for the child's nurture it is his duty to apply to the public authorities for relief.

S. T. Gray was over from Capitan Wednesday, returning yesterday morning. Mr. Gray reports very little rain in the Capitan country, but says plenty of rain from this date, with late frosts, will make good grass. He cited the year of his arrival in Lincoln county—September 1, 1884, 29 years ago. He turned his cattle loose on the Salado, where Capitan now stands, it began to rain September 4, did not frost until the middle of October and the winter range was fine.

MEXICO DECLINES OUR GOOD OFFICES

MEXICO, through provisional president Huerta, has declined the good offices of this government in the settlement of differences existing in that republic.

The message declared it to be the purpose of this government, in view of a rejection of its plans for mediation, to impose an embargo on all arms and ammunition to either side, and the army has been increased along the border to see that the embargo is strictly enforced.

Our Calf Story not in this Class

White Mountain, N. M., Aug. 24, 1913

Dear Mr. Haley:

Apropos of your article in this week's "News" concerning the cow owned by Mrs. M. R. Grumbles, I thought it might be of interest to write you a few details on a case of which I have personal knowledge.

In the town of Weld, Franklin Co., Maine, where I have lived for considerable lengths of time, a farmer named Williams owned a cow which gave six calves at a single birth.

I am well acquainted with both Mr. Parlin and Mr. Williams and have in my possession a very good photograph of the calf sextette after they had been mounted, which I would be glad to loan you, should care to run this item in the "News" as of interest to your subscribers.

A few such cows in this country would sure help reduce the High Cost of Living, provided of course the cows were hardy enough to successfully weather the storm of such prolific maternity.

Yours truly, Norman Riggs.

World's Record Made at Great Bixley Shoot

EUROPEAN shooting authorities are enthusiastic in their praise of the remarkable marksmanship of Major P. W. Richardson at the annual meet of England's National Rifle Association at Bixley, England.

In the London Daily Telegraph's report of the competition, July 22, this mention is made of Major Richardson's work:

"Major P. W. Richardson, the well-known marksman, who captained the last British shooting team that visited Canada and Australia, has created what is believed to be a world's record by scoring 33 consecutive bull's-eyes at 1,100 yards. They were secured, it is true, in two competitions, plus extra shots, but as they were obtained absolutely without interval the feat stands unparalleled. Improved ammunition, it must not be forgotten, played its own part in the phenomenal shooting witnessed last week in the match-rifle competition. Major Richardson shot with American service ammunition, manufactured by the Remington Arms Union-Metallic Cartridge Company."

NEWS and GOSSIP of WASHINGTON

Washington Is a City of Many Tall Flagpoles

is not among the accessories of that building.

A man who has an intimate knowledge of such things told the writer that he had computed that there are 500 flagpoles above the roofs of Washington city. A number of private and public buildings support more than one pole. The capitol has four permanent staffs, one on the senate side, one on the roof of the house, one at the west front and one at the east front. On the state, war and navy buildings are three poles, one for each of the departments quartered in that crowded structure. On the postoffice department are two poles, one on the east and the other on the west tower. Some of the big new office buildings carry more than one flagpole. On the Colorado building are three. Even some of the older buildings are not content with one. On the Ebbitt house are four.

A tall pole is 50 feet. A few in the city rise a little above this height. The average cost of one of these poles, including the installation of it, is $200.

In the grounds of the naval and military establishments in and around Washington the masts rise 150 feet, but they are in two or three sections.

Subpoenaed Man "Cum Ez Quick Ez He Could"

THERE walked into the hearing room of the senate lobby investigators the other day a lank man, wearing a yellow linen duster, a black slouch hat, and a yellow-gray beard that looked like half a yard of corn-silk. He carried in his hand a yellow telegram.

"Well, I'm here," announced the stranger to the capitol cop guarding the door of the committee room. "I cum ez quick ez I could, and here I am."

The yellow telegram was a subpoena addressed to A. D. Baldwin, Cleveland, Ohio, and commanded the person designated to appear before the investigators forthwith. Mr. Baldwin was attending a class reunion at Yale university, and the office boy at his Cleveland quarters had forwarded the message to New Haven. There the telephone company, for want of specific instructions, had looked up A. D. Baldwin in the city directory and served the telegraphic subpoena upon the first A. D. Baldwin in sight.

There was parley with the committee clerk, and explanations followed. The wrong Mr. Baldwin averred that "if the committee wuzn't in a hurry for him" he thought he'd just strill around and take a look at this shack.

"I haint been to Washington since 1865," he announced, as he indicated a little bronze button in the lapel of his faded coat, "and I'd like to see if it hez changed much."

Finally, it was explained to Mr. Baldwin that he was not the man wanted. "The committee will pay your expenses and your day's service," said the clerk. "What are your expenses?"

"Oh, I dunno," replied the wrong Mr. Baldwin. "I paid for my railroad ticket. I guess that was all. Oh, no, I had to pay a nickel ter ride across New York."

"Haven't you eaten anything?" demanded the clerk.

"Oh, sure," replied the wrong Mr. Baldwin. "I at a snack in New York this morning. I guess it was about a quarter's worth. I don't eat much, unless I'm hungry."

The sergeant-at-arms was instructed to pay the wrong Mr. Baldwin the sum of $26.80.

Battleships Indiana and Massachusetts as Targets

TWO more warships of the United States navy, a few short years ago rated as among the most powerful battleships in the world, are to be pounded to pieces by the heavy guns of the modern dreadnoughts and their scarred remains then sold for junk. The Indiana and the Massachusetts, twenty-year-old war vessels that cost more than $3,000,000 apiece, are the victims selected for the slaughter. The Indiana distinguished herself in the battle of Santiago in 1898, when the Spanish fleet was destroyed as it attempted to run to safety. The Massachusetts also participated in the same war.

Development of warship building has left the Indiana and the Massachusetts far behind. The Massachusetts and Indiana were built at Crump's shipyard and were launched in 1893. Their main armament consists of four 13-inch guns and eight 8-inch guns and their speed was about 18 knots an hour. Each vessel cost $3,062,333.

Modern battleships have a speed of 21 knots, a displacement of 27,500 tons, and their armament consists of ten 14-inch guns, each 50 feet long; twenty 5-inch guns and other smaller weapons. The new vessels can place a shot accurately far beyond the guns of the batteries of the Indiana and Massachusetts.

"The best use the government could make of the Massachusetts and the Indiana is to take them out to Chesapeake bay and use them as targets for our modern long-distance guns," declares Capt. Grant of the Philadelphia navy yard, where the two old vessels are quartered. "They are slow in speed, and way behind the standards of modern war vessels in every respect. The Missouri and Alabama will soon be as obsolete as the Massachusetts and Indiana and will very soon be consigned to the target service or the junk heap."

Experts Would Dress Bidy in Much Gay Attire

BIRD fanciers and experts in the bureau of animal industry are seeking some method of cross-breeding whereby the unattractive but useful hen can sprout plumage as variegated as Joseph's coat of many colors.

The activity of the experts is inspired by the fact that an ever-increasing number of states are passing stringent laws against the destruction of birds for their plumage, while several federal laws prohibiting the traffic in such plumage, already are in effect.

The bird division of the National Museum also has the matter under consideration, but it is inclined to believe that the evolution of the common hen along the lines desired is scarcely practicable.

"It might be accomplished," said one of the museum scientists facetiously, "by hatching the eggs in a dye house, or a paint shop.

"It might also be accomplished by feeding the chick-biddies ochre, Prussian blue and other varicolored paint powders instead of corn or other grain. One, you know, can never tell what might happen in such a truly scientific experiment."

The bureau of animal industry, however, is taking the matter more seriously and is casting about for some solution of the subject.

Occasionally the sense of humor can be exchanged for dollars.

"I want my money back for these here socks," said the man as he handed the clerk a package. "The sign you had up said the socks was guaranteed for three months."

"Well, what's the matter with the socks?" asked the clerk.

"I only wore them three weeks, and I had to take them off and buy another pair because this pair had holes in the toes," replied the man.

How Simple.

"My dear," said Mrs. Snaggs to her husband, "what is a canard?"

"Don't you know what a canard is?" queried Snaggs, rather snoringly. "Why, the word itself conveys its own meaning."

"Does it? Well, really, I can't see it. What does it mean, dear?"

"Why, a canard is something one canardly believe, of course."

"Oh, to be sure! Why couldn't I think of that?"

Legal Opinion.

"A cat sits on my back fence every night, and he yowls and yowls and yowls. Now, I don't want to have any trouble with Neighbor Jones, but this thing has gone far enough, and I want you to tell me what to do."

The young lawyer looked as solemn as an old, sick owl, and said not a word.

"I have a right to shoot the cat, haven't I?"

"I would hardly say that," replied young Coke Blackstone. "The cat does not belong to you, as I understand it."

"No, but the fence does."

"Then," concluded the light of law, "I think it safe to say you have a perfect right to tear down the fence."

What Made Him Sick.

Certainly public employees who have to submit daily to a rapid fire of well-meant but needless questions may be excused if they occasionally turn upon their persecutors. An elevator boy, in the New York Tribune, was one of the victims.

"Don't you ever feel sick going up and down in this elevator all day?" a fussy lady asked him.

"Yes, ma'am," courteously replied the elevator boy.

"Is it the motion going down?" pursued the lady.

"No, ma'am."

"The going up?"

"No, ma'am."

"Is it the stopping that does it?"

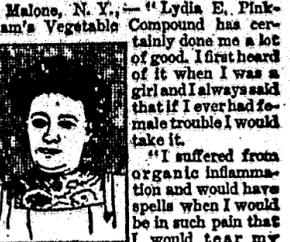

"No, ma'am."

"Then what is it?"

"Answering questions, ma'am."

IN SUCH PAIN WOMAN TORE HER CLOTHES

Testifies She Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Malone, N. Y.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has certainly done me a lot of good. I first heard of it when I was a girl and I always said that if I ever had female trouble I would take it."

"I suffered from organic inflammation and would have spells when I would be in such pain that I would tear my clothes. One day my husband got the neighbors in to see what the matter was but they could not help me. My first thought was for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I sent my husband out for it and took it until I was entirely cured. I am a woman of perfect health and my health and happiness came from Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine. You may rest assured that I do all I can to recommend your wonderful medicine to my friends."—Mrs. FANN SROBE, Route No. 3, Malone, N. Y.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard remedy for female ills.

SCALP TROUBLE FOR YEARS

268 Harrison St., Elyria, Ohio.—"My case was a scalp trouble. I first noticed small bunches on my scalp which commenced to itch and I would scratch them and in time they got larger, forming a scale or scab with a little pus, and chunks of hair would come out when I would scratch them off. It caused me to lose most of my hair. It became thin and dry and lifeless. I was troubled for over ten years with it until it got so bad I was ashamed to go to a barber to get my hair cut."

"I tried everything I could get hold of, — and — but received no cure until I commenced using Cuticura Soap and Ointment when the scale commenced to disappear. The way I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment was to wash my scalp twice a day with warm water and Cuticura Soap and rub on the Cuticura Ointment. I received benefit in a couple of weeks and was cured in two months." (Signed) F. J. Busher, Jan. 28, 1913.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."—Adv.

Overdid It. "What's the matter?" asked the lawyer's friend. "Been in a railroad accident?"

"No. I had a jury case the other day, and I argued so elaborately for the purpose of making it appear that my client was a fool instead of a knave that I got him acquitted on that plea."

"What has that to do with your appearance?"

"He met me outside, after court had adjourned."—Judge.

Telling a Secret. It is doubtful whether the person who asserted that secrets were made to tell, foresaw, even in his most cynical mood, anything like the following conversation in Das Echo:

"Lottie tells me that you told her the secret that I told you not to tell anyone."

"Oh, isn't she mean! I told her not to tell you that I told it to her."

"Yes, I told her that I wouldn't tell you if she told me, so please don't tell her that I told you!"

Young Grammarian. Jack walked into the house rubbing his nose, and trying hard to keep back his tears. After he had gained control of his feelings, he turned to his mother and said:

"Mother, Bobby Brown is the worstest boy that ever lived."

"There is no such word as 'worstest,' my dear. You mean that he is the worst boy that ever lived."

"Worst, mum! Well, he's lots badder than that."

"No, I didn't, mother."

"Yes, you did. Have you not been in swimming?"

"Yes, mother."

"Didn't I hear her say to you not to go in swimming?"

"Oh, she didn't tell me that. She only came out and said: 'Boys, I wouldn't go in swimming,' and I shouldn't think she would, an old rheumatic woman like her; but she didn't say anything about our going in swimming."

CLOUDED BRAIN Clears Up on Change to Proper Food.

The brain cannot work with clearness and accuracy, if the food taken is not fully digested, but is retained in the stomach to ferment and form poisonous gases, etc. A dull, clouded brain is likely to be the result.

A Mich. lady relates her experience in changing her food habits, and results are very interesting:

"A steady diet of rich, greasy foods such as sausage, back-wheat cakes and so on, finally broke down a stomach and nerves that, by inheritance, were sound and strong, and medicine did no apparent good in the way of relief."

"My brain was clouded and dull and I was suffering from a case of constipation that defied all remedies used."

"The 'Road to Wellville,' in some providential way, fell into my hands, and may Heaven's richest blessings fall on the man who was inspired to write it."

"I followed directions carefully, the physical culture and all, using Grape-Nuts with sugar and cream, leaving meat, pastry and hot biscuit entirely out of my bill of fare. The result—I am in perfect health once more."

"I never realize I have nerves, and my stomach and bowels are in fine condition. My brain is perfectly clear and I am enjoying that state of health which God intended his creatures should enjoy and which all might have, by giving proper attention to their food." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

County Road Meeting

THE Lincoln County Road Commission, through its chairman, Dr. Jas. W. Laws, announces that it will hold a regular meeting in town Carrizozo on Monday, the 8th day of September.

The Commission wishes to call the attention of all persons filing bills for approval that it is required that they be submitted on the regular form and sworn to before an officer authorized to administer oaths.

When submitting bills it is necessary to itemize the expense, stating where the work was done or material supplied. This is required in order to conform with the request of the State Highway Commission for the local Commissioner to show amounts spent on each road.

Bills for the Commission's consideration may be mailed to the clerk at Carrizozo.

The general public is invited to the meetings and their suggestions will be welcomed.

Mr. Collard and son left for their home in El Paso last Tuesday. Mr. Collard made many friends here, who were loath to relinquish so general an addition to our community.

E. H. Tarter has been trying to move his stock to his ranch on the east side. But as work is possible only between showers these days, he has an unenviable job.

Mr. May was through camp with the weekly distribution of fresh garden peas.

George Spence got a good soaking Friday while on his way to camp. The wetting may not have been "good" but it was thorough certainly.

Saturday there was a new discovery of gold at the "Sallie Dear," and while every one was gratified to hear of the new strike, it created quite a raffle of excitement. This new find was in an entirely different part of the previous discovery, and while we have no reliable figures as yet, it is said to be very rich, carrying considerable wire-gold.

Andrew McBrayer went on a business hike to the county seat the last week end.

E. E. Wilson is spending the week-end at home.

We hear of some rich strikes from the placer beds, but can not give the accurate amount realized. It would be interesting to the readers of the News, boys. If you would give an account of your finds, once in a while.
