

Easy Enough to Tell

Goodwin's Weekly, published at Salt Lake City, and, by the way, one of the ablest edited papers that comes to our desk, begins an editorial by asking "what is the matter with 'Jim' Hill?" Anyone can tell after reading the editorial, which we reproduce, what is ailing the Weekly. It is a standpatter of the standpatters and is awfully upset because we have no paucity, no famine and no great national disaster. A perusal of the article discloses two prominent features, to wit:

"Jim" Hill is one of the biggest railroad magnates in America, and his word should carry some weight. Therefore, the first feature is that Hill is satisfied, or, if not satisfied, is willing to give the present tariff law a fair trial; and second, Goodwin's Weekly, like all of its kind, regrets exceedingly the reappearance of good times, not only because such conditions convict all calamity howlers and place them in Mr. Roosevelt's celebrated club; and, further, that the most earnest prayer of all standpatters is that some calamity will overtake the government at Washington. A panic, pestilence, famine, just anything, Lord, on which to hang hopes of success would be absolutely pleasing to all such standpatters, and we reproduce the following from the said Goodwin's Weekly to substantiate the statement:

What is the matter with "Jim" Hill? What frightens him about a possible tariff agitation? There was a time when he thought nothing was settled until it was settled right. What has come over him now?

Prior to 1912 the country wanted a revision of the tariff. The party now dominant in congress blocked every attempt to have an enlightened revision. Through Colonel Roosevelt and the promise of a fair revision of the tariff Mr. Wilson was elected and his party given control of both houses of congress. Under Mr. Wilson's whip his party in congress proceeded, not to revise, but to smash the tariff and place his countrymen who work, on an exact level with the naked half slaves of Cuba, the poor laborers of the old world and the swarming millions of the Orient, and then had the effrontery to proclaim the dawn in the east of "Industrial Freedom."

And even "Jim" Hill bewails the prospect of this proceeding being complained of in next year's campaign. He thinks it liable to be started by the politicians.

It will be started all right, but not by the politicians. Indeed it was started the other day in Chicago and the result of the city election showed it started with a rush. The European war has neutralized some of the effects of that legislation for the time being, but the country is not forgetting what was intended. Mr. Hill says the country is now unable to sell one-third of its manufactured products.

If that is true, why did not Mr. Hill, if he felt impelled to write, refer to the state of our over-sea shipping?

Is the government helping that? Has the party now in power ever tried to help that? How is Mr. Hill's over-sea shipping? What does Mr. Hill think about imposing a tax on such American coast ships as desire to pass through the Panama canal?

Mr. Hill is a great industrial chieftain, but if he continues to write foolish letters to the people who have thought him a statesman will begin to lose faith in their own estimates.

But speaking of next year's campaign, a great many things will enter into it which people are not much considering as yet.

The European war is not over yet, and the belligerents are sending for a world's supply of gold and silver to the United States. The new currency is a great amount of currency is based upon the country. The banks have had to raise a vast amount of the money to pay the war.

have been reduced 14 per cent. Congress has yet another term in which to correct mistakes. Affairs in Mexico are liable to bring on a war any day. Japan is growing very presuming, if not absolutely saucy.

Prohibition is going to be pressed in the next campaign as never before. The potency of grape juice will be greatly increased.

There are other signs. It will be noted that the New York stock market has been booming for the past twenty days, as it has not before for seven years. All kinds of stocks have soared except such as the government has been for years persecuting. Steel has gone into the clouds, but railroad stocks have remained fairly stationary. What were once the favorite investments have friends no longer. Why? Because the government has driven all the roads except the great through roads to the point of being forced into the hands of receivers. What is to come of it all? Is "Jim" Hill in a roundabout way seeking to gain a respite for the roads by administering soothing syrup to Mr. Underwood's free trade?

University Commencement

Albuquerque, N. M.—For the first time in its history all of the events of commencement week at the University of New Mexico, which begin Sunday, May 9th, and end Wednesday, May 12th, with the commencement address by Felix Martinez of El Paso, will take place on the University campus. Heretofore because of inadequate facilities and transportation, the principal events of the commencement have been held in the business district. It is anticipated that next year part of the commencement program may be held in the restored Hadley hall, rebuilding of which was provided for by the last legislature. There are eleven graduates in this year's class, five of whom receive the Bachelor of Arts degree. The number of students is larger than at any former commencement time.

Sanitary Dairy for Fort Stanton.

The Washington authorities have this week approved extensive repairs to the dairy at Fort Stanton which when completed will give that institution a sanitary dairy equal to any in the United States. Nearly two cars of cement will be used in the concrete work, in which seventy-five individual, aluminum finished, iron pipe, skeleton stalls will be placed. The floor, manger, weighing platform, feeding walks, etc., will be of concrete. The inside of the long "U" shaped structure will be perfectly smooth and painted white. The dairy yard adjoining will be tiled, drained and graveled. Commodious yards and feeding pens will also be provided. All the material will be furnished by the government and the work will be done by a local contractor, Mr. J. N. White.

A preliminary investigation of the possible merits of combining Fort Stanton and Fort Bayard develops the fact that the total cost of maintaining patients at Fort Stanton is about one dollar per day each less than that at Fort Bayard, although the cost of food per patient per day at Fort Stanton is about 69 cents as against 50 cents at Fort Bayard. The difference is due chiefly to the larger number of high-salaried officers employed at Fort Bayard and to the fact that the farm and range herd at Fort Stanton materially assist in reducing expenses in the local institution.

The Exchange Bank has received a supply of several issues of the Southwest Trail, the monthly publication issued by the agricultural department of the Rock Island railroad. The articles dealt with in these issues are: "Making Money in Raising," "Selling Grass," "The Pit Silo," "Farm Poultry," etc. The bank will be glad to distribute these papers to all interested callers.

Eastern Visitors

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wightman, of New York, have been here and White Oaks the past week and left this morning for El Paso, from which point they will go to New Orleans and thence by boat east. Mrs. Wightman is a delightful woman, full of life and energy, and sparkling with joy, while Mr. Wightman is a man of affairs and an author of a number of books, the best known, perhaps, being "Soul Spur," of which the press has made very favorable comment both in the United States and Canada. The country home of the Wightmans is at Say Brook, Connecticut.

Cool Weather

The past week has been exceptionally cool, so much so that grave fears are expressed for the Lincoln county fruit crop, which is chiefly grown on the east side of the mountains, where the temperatures are lower than they are here. Even at our altitude, and on the west side, we have had slight frosts and a little ice also. Our main hopes, however, for the safety of the fruit are that the backward spring has retarded the trees and the stage where a frost would be damaging. Loss of a fruit crop means a big loss to our orchardists.

Notice to Teachers

The State Department of Education has issued the following: "We have found it advisable with reference to examination in Reading Circle work to allow special examinations under the supervision of the county superintendents. Many teachers do not have to attend institute or are planning to go to California. If any county superintendent desires this special arrangement, therefore, we shall be glad to take up with him the question of arranging special examinations for teachers who must take the Reading Circle examinations, but who do not have to attend institute or regular examinations."

Shall be glad to hear from teachers who wish examinations in Reading Circle work at other than the regular examination at close of our county institute, June 25 and 26.

Yours Truly,
Mrs. W. L. GUMM,
Supt. Lincoln County Schools.

School Notes

Although the attendance is falling off in all the grades the school building is still far from being deserted and this is the season of faithful work, as examinations are drawing near.

What bids fair to be an interesting tennis game will take place on the local court Saturday afternoon, the weather permitting. The opposing side will be teams from Capitán.

Quite a rousing game of base ball, requiring eleven innings for decision, was played Wednesday afternoon. The contending parties were the 5th and 6th grades on the one side and the 7th and 8th grades on the other, the former winning by a score of 6 to 5.

The banquet given to this year's graduating class by the junior class will take place just before commencement. Mrs. Julia E. Gurney will probably furnish the service.

County School Notes

Best collection of poll-tax that the county ever known.

Continued rains weakened the building of school district No. 5, Upper Glencoe, to such an extent that it had to be abandoned. The term will be completed in a rented building.

Hondo voted a bond issue of $2500.00 to add another room and repair the old building. Prof. S. W. Kelsey and Miss Ethel Phillips have been elected teachers.

School has closed at Picacho with interesting exercises of May Day, character-May baskets, winding a May pole, etc.

Mrs. G. M. Taylor of Picacho returned home after a visit to Roswell.

Many teachers are planning to attend summer terms at the state normal schools.

From the Richardson district came the word that the dry arroyo near the school has been running so high with water for two weeks that pupils have had to cross on a fence. Another director writes "we can have no school until a bridge is built across the river."

The directors at Rabenton have elected Mrs. G. E. DeNisson as teacher for next term.

School Ball Game

The ball game between grades five and six, and seven and eight proved a very exciting and interesting game, the score tying up to the eleventh inning when the fifth and sixth grade made a score making a record of 6 to 5.

The line up for seventh and eighth grade was:

Captain, Mayo Hamilton
Catcher, Ware Brazel
Pitcher, S. Bethea and D. Gumm
First Base, Mayo
Second base, Sam and Deane
Third base, Joe Spence
Short stop, George McGee
Left field, Homer Donaldson
Center field, Pink Roberts
Right field, Lawrence Rowland
The line up for the fifth and sixth grade was:

Orange Blossoms

The flower itself is not visible to the naked eye, but the fragrance of the orange blossom, permeates the atmosphere of this office and its immediate surroundings. We expect the buds to burst in full bloom at an early date. And in view of the approaching event and that our association gives us the privilege to offer the following borrowed suggestion as a guide:

All day, like some sweet bird, content to sing
In its small cage, she moveth to and fro—
And ever and anon will upward spring
To her sweet lips, fresh from the fount below,
The murmured melody of pleasant thought,
Unconscious uttered, gentle-toned and low.
Light household duties, ever more inwrought
With placid fancies of one trusting heart
That lives in her smile, and turns
From life's cold seeming and the busy mart,
With tenderness, that heavenward ever yearns,
To be refreshed where one pure altar burns.
Shut out from hence the mockery of life;
Thus liveth she, content, the week, fond, trusting wife."

Lincoln County Sunday School Convention

The fourth annual convention of the Sunday Schools of Lincoln County will meet in Carrizozo next week on the 12th and 13th inst. Rev. Edward D. Raley will deliver lectures relative to methods in Sunday school work.

The meetings will be held at the Methodist church and there will be two sessions, the first on the evening of the 12th and the second on the evening of the 13th. Announcements have been sent throughout the county and it is hoped that most of the Sunday schools will be represented by delegates at one or both of the sessions. On Thursday evening reports of the different Sunday schools of the county will be given.

Attractive programs are being prepared for both evenings. Rev. Raley succeeds Dr. Merritt and is the field secretary of Arizona and New Mexico for the National Sunday School Association. It is therefore hoped that there will be a large attendance on both evenings to welcome Rev. Raley and hear his instructive lectures.

The overland circus hit town yesterday and gave a performance last night to a fair sized crowd.

Mrs. Frank L. Elliott was visiting here the past week from Tucumcari. She returned Tuesday.

Little Frank came up from El Paso this week with his father, and is enjoying a visit with his playmates.

Dr. F. S. Randles came in this week from the Yellow Jacket where he has been doing some development work.

Attorney Buel R. Wood spent several days the past week at Tularosa, where he was looking after some legal matters.

Maurice Edmiston, who has been calling here the past two years, went to Clovis today to enter the Santa Fe machine shops.

Taxes Have been Dodged

(Special Tax Article)

Albuquerque, N. M., May 6.—The inference that a motion filed before the state tax commission, last week by the Santa Fe railway company for a reconsideration of recent increases in valuations of its properties ordered by the commission, was a preliminary to taking the increases into court is incorrect according to W. C. Reid, general New Mexico attorney for the company, who in an interview given out here today states that the object of the motion was just the opposite; namely, to keep the matter out of court if it is possible to do so. The motion for a reconsideration, Mr. Reid points out, leaves the matter open and within the jurisdiction of the tax commission. The order, permitted to stand without any action by the railroads, would have become final and the only opportunity for a re-adjustment would have been through a court process. To take the question into court, Mr. Reid stated, would tie up large sums of tax money needed for support of state and county governments, and this the Santa Fe company desired to avoid. The corporations hoped, he said, that in the adjustment of valuations of other classes of property now under way by the commission, it might become possible for the tax commission to modify its order as regards the railroads and which they consider excessive, as compared with other classes of property, as now valued.

The discovery by the commission in sixteen of the twenty-six counties of 664,000 sheep, worth at $4 a head more than two and a half million dollars, and which were entirely omitted from the tax rolls last year, points to one of a number of sources from which largely increased valuations are likely to be obtained before the commission completes its investigations of the various county assessment rolls now under way.

That omitted cattle, of a value equal to that of the omitted sheep are likely to be discovered as the rolls are further analyzed is the opinion expressed by those familiar with conditions in the state; while it is believed that vast values in other classes of property are likely to be discovered.

Miss Nell Mitchell, of El Paso, who is visiting her friend, Miss Frida Eckman, will, we understand, spend the summer here.

The farmers and ranchers of the east side are busy, so busy that they have not put in an appearance here for several days. The late, damp spring is making them hustle.

Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Minor Gaylord, family well known in this county, died in El Paso yesterday and will be buried today. Death resulted from appendicitis.

The visitors, though making only a short stay, were delighted with the country, its climate and kindness extended on all sides. They hope soon to renew acquaintanceship and become better informed on the country and its resources.

Col. G. W. Prichard returned to Santa Fe Wednesday, after having spent a fortnight here attending to legal matters and looking after the development of his mining property at White Oaks. The development work to date on his mines has been productive of very satisfactory results and the Colonel stands a splendid chance to bring in a paying producer at an early date.

Ed. F. Couray was down Monday from the Comrey Bros. ranch near Ancho. Ed. usually good natured, possessed a full-grown grouch on this day and kicked at everything from Santa Fe to Washington. Though not a sheep man, he kicked because wool had gone down to 26 cents. We endeavored to soothe his turbulent mood, however, by suggesting that it was the better plan to take things as they came and not borrow trouble over predictions that wool would likely continue on a descending scale until it reached 30 cents.

HOW DETECTIVE PEYSER SCORED

Stopped Printing Forged Pool Room Tickets on the Horse Races.

USED A MINIATURE CAMERA

Early Acquaintance With Crooks and His Knowledge of Human Nature Have Helped Him to Succeed and to the Establishment of a Big Business.

By OSBORN MARSHALL.

(Copyright, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

It was in the good old days of the early nineties when horse racing flourished under a kinder law in New York than it does today that Tom Egan had the distinction of being official stationer and printer to the bookmakers and poolrooms of the city. He supplied them with pencils and pads, blank books, ink and record books and did whatever printing their business called for. He it was who printed the colored tickets issued to those who bet on the races in the poolrooms or on the track. These tickets, which were filled in at the time of the betting, served as a record of the transaction, and in case the bettor was lucky he received his winnings on presentation of the ticket.

Tom's business with the poolrooms and bookmakers had thrived and it seemed that the neat little profit from printing the tickets would continue so long as Tom Egan continued to run his printing press.

One day, however, Mr. Egan got word that there were counterfeiters at work. Fake tickets were being printed and filled out to duplicate Egan's tickets, and every once in a while winnings went to a holder of the fake ticket instead of to the real winner.

So between Mr. Egan and the poolroom operators a new system had to be devised. Thereafter tickets were printed in several colors, according to the number of the ticket. That is, all tickets numbering between one and a hundred should be pink, all between one and two hundred should be green, and so on throughout the list. Each day a different color was used for a different set of numbers, and as this code was communicated secretly to the poolroom men it was hoped that in this way they could detect the fraudulent tickets.

But the trouble continued. Apparently the dishonest printer printed his slips on every color of cardboard every day. Then when the races were over the man who manipulated the fraudulent tickets would manage to see over the shoulder of the holder of the winning ticket, note the number and the color, select a ticket of the right denomination and color from his own collection. All it is and, on presenting it to the bookmaker or poolroom operator before the lawful winner arrived, he would get the winnings.

Called in Frank Peyser. "Something had to be done and it was clearly up to Egan to think what it should be. 'I know who the crook printer is,' he told the poolroom men. 'But I haven't written enough to convict him. However, I think I can stop the issue of the fake tickets.' Then Egan sent for Frank Peyser, known to be one of the sharpest young racketeers of the city.

"I have spotted the man who does the fake printing," he told Peyser, "but I can't prove it, and I don't know as it would do much good if I could. What we want to do is to get a photograph of him and have it sent to every poolroom and every bookmaker in this part of the country. Then they will know him and can steer clear of him. Now, what I want you to do is to get the photograph. He runs a printing shop down on Broadway and Twenty-seventh street." Egan told Peyser the name of the suspected printer and Peyser said he would get the photograph if anyone could.

First he went to see the printer on the pretext of wanting to do some business with him, taking care not to arouse his suspicions. Then, when he had secured his confidence, he went to a nearby photographer. "There is a fellow around here," he told the photographer, "whose picture I've got to have. He isn't anxious to be photographed, either. What I want you to do is to hang out on Twenty-seventh street and Broadway and wait till you see me. I'll come out about noon with my friend and when you see you can level the camera and take the picture."

This agreed upon, Peyser went to see the printer, with whom he had already arranged to have luncheon. At noon they rounded the corner of Twenty-seventh street and Broadway, Peyser talking eagerly to the printer as they walked along. The photographer was seated on a bootblack stand, having his shoes polished, camera in hand, on the opposite corner. He leveled the camera at the dishonest printer and Peyser continued to talk vigorously.

Unable to get the right focus from the bootblack stand, the photographer swung down and started out in the street. Then he rested his camera on the wheel of an express wagon that happened to be standing at a convenient distance and started to focus again.

"Say," said the printer to Peyser, "who is that fellow over there and why is he 'mugging' me? What have I done that would make anyone want a picture of me?" "You!" exclaimed Peyser, with a laugh. "Nobody's 'mugging' you. Why, there does seem to be a camera man, but how do you know he isn't aiming at me? Guess I'd make as good-looking a picture as you would."

"I don't like it, anyway," said the printer, and the keen eyes of the detective did not miss the nervous com-

pression of his lips. The printer pulled his wide-brimmed hat over his face and shrunk his chin down on his breast. "They can get a picture of me but if they want it. That can't be much good," he growled.

After lunch, during which Peyser tried to get the printer's mind off the camera episode, he left and hurried to the photographer.

"Here, Mr. Peyser," he said, "let I couldn't get any results. Your friend pulled down his hat and that's all I could get." He held up the dripping negative that he had been developing and showed only a blur of a hat that would be of no use as an identification.

Peyser hurried on with his discouraging news to Egan.

"What are you going to do about it?" asked Egan. "My poolroom and bookmaking business means a good deal to me and I'll lose it if we don't get a stop to these fake tickets. What are you going to do?"

"I am going to take the picture myself," said Peyser, "and I am going to have it ready in forty-eight hours."

The next day when Peyser went to see the printer, he was met by the bootblack who had been with the printer when he was seen with the camera. The bootblack told Peyser that the printer had been seen with the camera and that he had been seen with the camera.

One of the first things that Mr. Peyser always asked the amateur shopkeeper when he had taken her to his office in the department store and had forced a confession was concerning her health. "Are you in the hands of a doctor?" he would say, and then, "Are you taking medicine for your ailment?"

Usually the answer to these questions would come in the affirmative. Then Mr. Peyser would ask to examine the medicine before going further with the order. Usually a whiff of it would be enough. It would tell him that the offender was unwittingly under the influence of opium or other drugs, and in such cases out of the pot someone drug was taken as a medicine.

In these cases Mr. Peyser would usually let his offender go.

Mr. Peyser is now at the head of a detective bureau of his own and from his office, overlooking the bustling section of Broadway, streets work all over the city.

GOOD ROADS

EXPENSE OF GRAVELING ROAD

Problem of Graveling Highways at Moderate Cost Solved by Commissioner Rheinhardt of Idaho.

Evidently Otto Rheinhardt, commissioner of the Nampa highway district, Canyon county, Idaho, has solved the problem of graveling the highways at moderate cost, writes H. F. Stephens in Denver Field and Farm. Three years ago he decided to gravel the district's share of the boulevard between Nampa and Caldwell. A half mile away, Indian creek runs parallel with this boulevard and there an abundant supply of gravel was procured. Fortunately the very heavy traffic incident to hauling rails and ties for the Interurban electric line track cut through the gravel, mixing the underlying soil with the superimposed gravel in suitable proportions for cementing a firm, smooth roadbed. A percentage of clay soil mixed with the gravel makes a hard, smooth roadbed not likely to absorb the rainfall. The result on the boulevard has been to secure a very serviceable roadbed which has been commended by local and United States engineers.

Under the inspiration of this successful roadbed a neighborhood lying to the west, called Orchard avenue, decided to gravel on the following plan: The farmers to donate the use of teams and wagons with dump boards. The Nampa highway district to provide gravel, usually donated by those who have it, pay the shovellers and a man to help dump the loads and also spread and smooth the gravel on the roadbed, using for this purpose a King drag or other implement weekly for two months or until settled and cemented with the underlying soil. Four inches of gravel in the middle of the roadbed with two inches on the sides most readily mixes with the underlying soil in such proportions as to shed rain and form a smooth, solid bed. Heavy traffic cuts through the gravel in wet weather until enough underlying soil has been mixed and cemented with the gravel to shed rain and create a solid roadbed.

A moderate percentage of clay soil mixed with the gravel as applied will pack and cement from the beginning. The clay gravel beads along the reclamation ditches piled by the dredges supply ideal material for graveling our roads. This mixture of clay, sand and gravel packs from the very first and does not need underlying soil cut in by heavy traffic. Coarse gravel, free from clay or soil, will need an admixture of soil from below to secure a hard, smooth roadbed. Orchard avenue has now been gravelled two years. Its success from the start has been such as to attract the attention of other neighborhoods.

STATE AID FOR GOOD ROADS

One Reason Why Fuel Prices Are High Is Because of Cost of Hauling Over Bad Highways.

Nearly every one of the state legislators is considering demands for more help for road building, says St. Joseph News-Press. Ten years ago all the states together put up but $2,000,000 for road building, exclusive of local funds. In 1914 they spent $43,000,000. But as four-fifths of this was done by six eastern states and two Pacific coast states, the problem is far from solved nationally. Many of our big problems always come back to the cost-of-living question.

Plant Nut Trees.

Some nut or fruit-bearing trees set out on country roads 50 feet apart, would add much of beauty and comfort to the highway. It would be necessary, of course, to have well-graded roadways to drain off the water; for mud holes and poor roadbeds would not dry out quite so fast as where the sun shines on the roadbed all the time. The better roadbeds would be well worth while. —Lobby Cady.

Personal Benefit and Profit.

Go at road improvement with the same determination you would to dig ditches or build fences—with the full realization that it is for your own personal benefit and profit; and let only merely a "public duty."

Aid for Permanent Roads.

State and national aid for permanent roads is sure to come, but it is not likely to come to any community that has, by their lack of interest in good roads shown that they are unworthy of it.

MAKES BEST IRONING BOARD

Hoopless Tails Tow Useful Apparatus for the Kitchen May Be Constructed.

The most rigid ironing board I ever used a carpenter made for me out of thoroughly seasoned oak, one and one-quarter inches thick, smooth and free from knots.

The length of the board was five feet; the width at widest point, 18 inches, which tapered to eight inches, then rounded off.

On the under side of the board were fastened two braces or cleats of wood, three-quarters of an inch in thickness and three inches in width.

One of the braces was made flush with the widest end of the board—the front brace, two feet three inches from the wide brace, supported a tongue that reached the back and rested on the floor against the baseboard.

Fastened to the brace on the wide end of the ironing board were two sections of a pair of loose joint hinges, so fastened that they would fit into the remaining part of the hinge that had been previously made fast to the window sill.

This enabled me to couple my ironing board to the window sill. The tongue that supported the front of the ironing board, was made fast to the cleat by a strap hinge.

When not in use the board was easily removed, the tongue placed against the board, then placed behind a door or in a closet. When in use I simply had ironing board perfection, because the window flooded with light the work I was doing and the article being ironed seemed to be on a foundation as solid as the floor, while the construction of the device allowed one to iron any garment on it without musing.

Any ironing board can be fixed in the same way by adding a cleat and tongue. —Exchange.

HINTS OF PRACTICAL VALUE

Proper Ingredients for Crust of Glass Fruit Jars.

Easy Method of Opening Glass Fruit Jars.

It will aid the young housekeeper to know just what to use to make crust for one pie. Here is a reliable recipe:

Take one generous half-pint of pastry flour, one generous tablespoonful of shortening, half a teaspoonful of salt, half a teaspoonful of baking powder. Sift the dry ingredients, rub in the shortening, moisten with cold water until sufficiently to roll out; wet pie crust is never crisp; a quarter of a cupful of water should be ample. Roll thin.

Pie crust should be rolled in one direction—away from you. Do not put meat directly on the ice; it draws the flavor and spoils it. A cloth moistened with alcohol is effectual in cleaning piano keys. Place tiny cotton flannel disks or soft dories between your decorated plates when not in use, as a protection.

Timely Tips.

If you wish to make a rissole, first prepare the mince. Then heat it in a good, thick brown or white sauce, according to the color of the meat you use, and be very careful about the seasoning, which may consist of pepper, salt, celery salt, cayenne, parsley, finely grated lemon peel, mushroom catchup, and (if you are using chicken or game) a little ham or bacon.

Warm the well-flavored mince in well-flavored sauce and see that the mixture is of the thickness of porridge. Then turn it on to a dish and let it become cold. When cold it will stiffen a little more, and with well-flavored hands you can form it into the shape you prefer. Have ready a beaten egg yolk, and brush over, and roll in fine crumbs. Then fry, drain, and serve very hot.

To Wash Comptoirs.

Make a nice warm soapsuds in bathtub. Put comptoir in. Take scrubbing brush and scrub soiled ends, using washboard to scrub on. After soaking and stamping, let water off and drain, then fill the tub with clean water and rinse. Let the water off and drain. Don't try to wring. Put on line; when almost dry beat with carpet beater. It will be as light and flaky as new and no muss to clean up.

Onion on Toast.

Take half of a large sweet onion, slice very thin, put in frying pan with butter; season with salt and pepper. Cover and let stew slowly for ten or fifteen minutes, then remove cover and let brown. Toss with flour and milk as for meat gravy. Four or five hot slices of toasted bread.

English Monkey.

One cupful shelled out in small pieces, one cupful bread crumbs which have been soaked in one cupful sweet milk, one egg beaten light, one-half teaspoonful salt, each cayenne, black pepper, one tablespoonful butter; cook five minutes. Serve on toast or crackers.

Over and Underneath.

Heat one tablespoonful of butter in skillet. Stir in one pint of tomatoes; simmer five minutes; add one pint of minced meat, pepper, salt, paprika and one tablespoonful of well-seasoned green pepper.

Mr. J. M. Sinclair of Oklawaha, Tenn., writes: "I strained my back, which weakened my kidneys and caused an awful bad headache and inflammation of the bladder. Later I became so much worse that I consulted a doctor, who said that I had Diabetes and that my heart was affected. I suffered for four years and was in a nervous state and very much depressed. A Good Job. The professional joker entered the office one morning in fine humor. "Say, Bill," he shouted to his friend at the next desk, "I heard of a job that would interest you. It takes only a few hours in the evening and pays good money."

"Fine!" said Bill. "Tell us about it." "Well, you just go down to the apartment and see my friend Mr. He'll fix it up for you. But be sure to bring a trap along."

"A trap?" "Sure. You'll have to have a trap. The job's catching mice for the cat-fish."

Easy Money.

Burglar—Come, now, I just beat up the janitor and got upstairs here and I want your purse quick. Flatdweller—You beat up the janitor?

Burglar—Yes. Here, where are you going? Flatdweller—It's all right, I haven't any purse myself, but I'm sure I can raise one among the tenants in a few minutes.

An Insinuation.

"They tell me, Mrs. Comoup, your daughter—went through that reception in her honor without any faux pas." "No such thing! She had as much of it as anybody that was there."

Proofs of It.

"The author of that work hasn't a leg to stand on." "How about his footnotes?"

SOME HARD KNOCKS

Woman Gets Rid of "Coffee Habit"

The injurious action of coffee on the hearts of many persons is well known by physicians to be caused by caffeine. This is the drug found by chemists in coffee and tea.

A woman suffered a long time with severe heart trouble and finally her doctor told her she must give up coffee, as that was the principal cause of the trouble. She writes:

"My heart was so weak it could not do its work properly. My husband would sometimes have to carry me from the table and it would seem that I would never breathe again. The doctor told me that coffee was causing the weakness of my heart. He said I must give it up. It seemed I could not give it up until I was down in bed with nervous prostration."

"Try Alexeyev's I lay there and suffered. Finally husband brought home some Postum and I quit coffee and started new and right. Slowly I got well. Now I do not have any headaches, nor those spells with weak heart. We know it is Postum that helped me. The Dr. said the other day: 'I never thought you would be what you are.' I used to weigh 32 pounds and now I weigh 115."

"Postum has done much for me and I would not go back to coffee again, for I believe it would kill me if I kept at it. Postum must be prepared according to directions on pkg.; then it has a rich flavor and with cream is best."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Well-Being," in pkg.

Postum comes in two forms: Regular Postum—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages. Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage. 25c and 50c pkg.

Both kinds are equally delicious and cost per cup about the same. "There's a Reason" for Postum. —Sold by Grocers.

one and two hundred should be green, and so on throughout the list. Each day a different color was used for a different set of numbers, and as this code was communicated secretly to the poolroom men it was hoped that in this way they could detect the fraudulent tickets.

But the trouble continued. Apparently the dishonest printer printed his slips on every color of cardboard every day. Then when the races were over the man who manipulated the fraudulent tickets would manage to see over the shoulder of the holder of the winning ticket, note the number and the color, select a ticket of the right denomination and color from his own collection. All it is and, on presenting it to the bookmaker or poolroom operator before the lawful winner arrived, he would get the winnings.

Called in Frank Peyser. "Something had to be done and it was clearly up to Egan to think what it should be. 'I know who the crook printer is,' he told the poolroom men. 'But I haven't written enough to convict him. However, I think I can stop the issue of the fake tickets.' Then Egan sent for Frank Peyser, known to be one of the sharpest young racketeers of the city.

"I have spotted the man who does the fake printing," he told Peyser, "but I can't prove it, and I don't know as it would do much good if I could. What we want to do is to get a photograph of him and have it sent to every poolroom and every bookmaker in this part of the country. Then they will know him and can steer clear of him. Now, what I want you to do is to get the photograph. He runs a printing shop down on Broadway and Twenty-seventh street." Egan told Peyser the name of the suspected printer and Peyser said he would get the photograph if anyone could.

First he went to see the printer on the pretext of wanting to do some business with him, taking care not to arouse his suspicions. Then, when he had secured his confidence, he went to a nearby photographer. "There is a fellow around here," he told the photographer, "whose picture I've got to have. He isn't anxious to be photographed, either. What I want you to do is to hang out on Twenty-seventh street and Broadway and wait till you see me. I'll come out about noon with my friend and when you see you can level the camera and take the picture."

This agreed upon, Peyser went to see the printer, with whom he had already arranged to have luncheon. At noon they rounded the corner of Twenty-seventh street and Broadway, Peyser talking eagerly to the printer as they walked along. The photographer was seated on a bootblack stand, having his shoes polished, camera in hand, on the opposite corner. He leveled the camera at the dishonest printer and Peyser continued to talk vigorously.

Unable to get the right focus from the bootblack stand, the photographer swung down and started out in the street. Then he rested his camera on the wheel of an express wagon that happened to be standing at a convenient distance and started to focus again.

"Say," said the printer to Peyser, "who is that fellow over there and why is he 'mugging' me? What have I done that would make anyone want a picture of me?" "You!" exclaimed Peyser, with a laugh. "Nobody's 'mugging' you. Why, there does seem to be a camera man, but how do you know he isn't aiming at me? Guess I'd make as good-looking a picture as you would."

"I don't like it, anyway," said the printer, and the keen eyes of the detective did not miss the nervous com-

pression of his lips. The printer pulled his wide-brimmed hat over his face and shrunk his chin down on his breast. "They can get a picture of me but if they want it. That can't be much good," he growled.

After lunch, during which Peyser tried to get the printer's mind off the camera episode, he left and hurried to the photographer.

"Here, Mr. Peyser," he said, "let I couldn't get any results. Your friend pulled down his hat and that's all I could get." He held up the dripping negative that he had been developing and showed only a blur of a hat that would be of no use as an identification.

Peyser hurried on with his discouraging news to Egan.

"What are you going to do about it?" asked Egan. "My poolroom and bookmaking business means a good deal to me and I'll lose it if we don't get a stop to these fake tickets. What are you going to do?"

"I am going to take the picture myself," said Peyser, "and I am going to have it ready in forty-eight hours."

The next day when Peyser went to see the printer, he was met by the bootblack who had been with the printer when he was seen with the camera. The bootblack told Peyser that the printer had been seen with the camera and that he had been seen with the camera.

One of the first things that Mr. Peyser always asked the amateur shopkeeper when he had taken her to his office in the department store and had forced a confession was concerning her health. "Are you in the hands of a doctor?" he would say, and then, "Are you taking medicine for your ailment?"

Usually the answer to these questions would come in the affirmative. Then Mr. Peyser would ask to examine the medicine before going further with the order. Usually a whiff of it would be enough. It would tell him that the offender was unwittingly under the influence of opium or other drugs, and in such cases out of the pot someone drug was taken as a medicine.

In these cases Mr. Peyser would usually let his offender go.

Mr. Peyser is now at the head of a detective bureau of his own and from his office, overlooking the bustling section of Broadway, streets work all over the city.

Nearly every one of the state legislators is considering demands for more help for road building, says St. Joseph News-Press. Ten years ago all the states together put up but $2,000,000 for road building, exclusive of local funds. In 1914 they spent $43,000,000. But as four-fifths of this was done by six eastern states and two Pacific coast states, the problem is far from solved nationally. Many of our big problems always come back to the cost-of-living question.

Plant Nut Trees.

Some nut or fruit-bearing trees set out on country roads 50 feet apart, would add much of beauty and comfort to the highway. It would be necessary, of course, to have well-graded roadways to drain off the water; for mud holes and poor roadbeds would not dry out quite so fast as where the sun shines on the roadbed all the time. The better roadbeds would be well worth while. —Lobby Cady.

Personal Benefit and Profit.

Go at road improvement with the same determination you would to dig ditches or build fences—with the full realization that it is for your own personal benefit and profit; and let only merely a "public duty."

Aid for Permanent Roads.

State and national aid for permanent roads is sure to come, but it is not likely to come to any community that has, by their lack of interest in good roads shown that they are unworthy of it.

MAKES BEST IRONING BOARD

Hoopless Tails Tow Useful Apparatus for the Kitchen May Be Constructed.

The most rigid ironing board I ever used a carpenter made for me out of thoroughly seasoned oak, one and one-quarter inches thick, smooth and free from knots.

The length of the board was five feet; the width at widest point, 18 inches, which tapered to eight inches, then rounded off.

On the under side of the board were fastened two braces or cleats of wood, three-quarters of an inch in thickness and three inches in width.

One of the braces was made flush with the widest end of the board—the front brace, two feet three inches from the wide brace, supported a tongue that reached the back and rested on the floor against the baseboard.

Fastened to the brace on the wide end of the ironing board were two sections of a pair of loose joint hinges, so fastened that they would fit into the remaining part of the hinge that had been previously made fast to the window sill.

This enabled me to couple my ironing board to the window sill. The tongue that supported the front of the ironing board, was made fast to the cleat by a strap hinge.

When not in use the board was easily removed, the tongue placed against the board, then placed behind a door or in a closet. When in use I simply had ironing board perfection, because the window flooded with light the work I was doing and the article being ironed seemed to be on a foundation as solid as the floor, while the construction of the device allowed one to iron any garment on it without musing.

Any ironing board can be fixed in the same way by adding a cleat and tongue. —Exchange.

Proper Ingredients for Crust of Glass Fruit Jars.

Easy Method of Opening Glass Fruit Jars.

It will aid the young housekeeper to know just what to use to make crust for one pie. Here is a reliable recipe:

Take one generous half-pint of pastry flour, one generous tablespoonful of shortening, half a teaspoonful of salt, half a teaspoonful of baking powder. Sift the dry ingredients, rub in the shortening, moisten with cold water until sufficiently to roll out; wet pie crust is never crisp; a quarter of a cupful of water should be ample. Roll thin.

Pie crust should be rolled in one direction—away from you. Do not put meat directly on the ice; it draws the flavor and spoils it. A cloth moistened with alcohol is effectual in cleaning piano keys. Place tiny cotton flannel disks or soft dories between your decorated plates when not in use, as a protection.

That Senate Journal

Because of their desire to force upon the people of this state their dishonest political measures the republicans have been forced to go to a length which threatens the very foundations of a free government, and if the courts uphold the most remarkable contentions of the attorney general of this state the next legislative assembly can run wild and actually bankrupt the state by drawing out the legislative session at pleasure.

None of the bills passed over the veto of Governor McDonald were acted upon until after the time set by the constitution for the end of the legislative session, and in order to make it appear legal the majority leaders proposed to have the journal changed to show that they were still working in the fifty-ninth legislative day. For that purpose they instructed the committee on the revision to revise the journal, and it is supposed that the committee withheld the document from filing, as provided by the constitution, in the office of the secretary of state, for the purpose of so revising the journal as to make it show that all the bills acted upon after 12 o'clock noon of the final day were acted upon within the time set by the constitution, the "legislative" day contention being relied upon, with the farther idea that courts would not go behind the legislative journals.

If the legislature can construe the plain language and intent of the constitution into meaning that a legislative day can contain more than one calendar day, there is no end to what the next legislative assembly can do. It can meet the first day and continue the legislative day indefinitely, and the constitutional limitation will amount to nothing.

It is not believed, not for a moment, that the courts will stand for any such political horse play with the constitution, but the fact that the leaders of the great republican party will attempt such a thing is of itself startling to those who do not know the past records of those leaders in the political history of New Mexico. They have no regard for a constitution, and cannot be expected to have any respect for the laws of the land. With them it is gaining an end, and they consider it of importance to the republican party that the state auditor, who is a republican, and a member of the old gang, should control the investigations made into the finances of state and county officials, and in order to protect the men in danger from fair investigation they are willing to sacrifice any old constitution—even the one they imposed upon the people of the state.

The alleged senate journal is not yet on file with the secretary of state because that official very properly desires to have the courts pass upon its genuineness. The presiding officer of the senate, who happens to be a man of honor and integrity, as well as courage, says the journal has been falsified, and it must be admitted that he has all the circumstantial evidence to support him, as well as the evidence of a number of reliable citizens. The journal, or parts of the journal, according to republican officials, has been going around from man to man, not all of them officers charged with its custody under the constitution, and if it has not been falsified it is because some one in authority changed his mind. The question is naturally asked: If it has not been changed and consequently falsified, why was it taken away and withheld from the proper officials for more than a month? A couple of days was sufficient for all legitimate purposes if it had to go to Las Vegas.

Until some very strong evidence is produced to show that the documents now offered for filing are actually the senate journal the majority of the people will believe that Lieutenant Governor E. C. de Baca knows whereof he talks when he says that it has been falsified. And Mr. de Baca is not backward in making his statement and offering the proof, either, while the republicans are offering explanations of a rather fishy nature.

Evidently Ellego Baca is not expecting the government to get anywhere in that Salazar matter, and the experience of New Mexico with other investigations by government experts gives encouragement to that belief. It will be recalled that the government flooded the territory with expert investigators some years back on land matters, and aside from jumping onto a few unfortunate real settlers they accomplished nothing. And then there were the timber and coal land investigations. It will also be recalled that the government went after an ex-census enumerator, and after putting two men on duty with every court official and juryman got a dog-fall verdict. Surely the government has been unsuccessful in the past.

The republican insist that the alleged journal of the senate which they wish to file in the office of the secretary of state is the only genuine journal and has not been tampered with. If it has not been tampered with what was the matter? Did they lose their nerve? Surely they took that journal away and kept it away for forty days for some purpose, and if they did not intend to tamper with it why was it necessary to disregard the constitution and remove it from the custody of the officials elected for the purpose of caring for it? The men responsible for this glaring disregard of law and decency will have to talk some to convince the intelligent people of this state that there is not something wrong.

The dries and the wets are having an awful time in Santa Fe. The wets are desperate and have threatened a number of prominent politicians, one a supreme court justice, and, according to the reports, the justice called them down and informed them they could go where asbestos clothing best withstood the climate. The wets are encouraged to believe that the efforts of Catron and Marcelino Ortiz will carry the day, as those two political leaders have captured the party machinery and are using it for the cause of their saloon supporters.

Speaker Clark should not be so peeved because our Bob is trying to steal his political thunder in that land business. Of course it is an old issue, and it is admitted that Champ Clark has been advocating all the things suggested for twenty years, more or less, and that it is rather exasperating to have some fellow crowd in and try to cop out the credit, but our Bob needs votes to keep that state land office in the family, and—but Champ should know how it is himself.

It is impossible for the lay mind to understand the relation of the decision in the traveling auditor's case to the evidence and the issues, and the next expenditure for legal staff for the dear people should be an official to be known as the legal interpreter, who will be charged with the duty of making the average citizen understand what has happened to him.

A strong opposition to the re-nomination of Senator Catron is developing in the republican party, but there is no concentration in favor of any one candidate. It seems to be a general determination to get rid of one of the party barnacles and let almost any man have the job. The republicans can do no worse, anyhow.

Heavy rains on the deep snows in northern New Mexico are swelling the rivers and causing property damage. Reports from the Rio Grande water shed indicate high water for some months, and dangerous floods if the rains continue. The wet weather has caused some damage to live stock.

Teddy may be getting considerable advertising from his libel suit, but it must be admitted that it is not of the desirable kind. Teddy is very much a political fake, and the libel suit is assisting the people to understand him.

COULD SCARCELY WALK ABOUT

And For Three Summers Mrs. Vincent Was Unable to Attend to Any of Her Housework.

Pleasant Hill, N. C.—"I suffered for three summers," writes Mrs. Walter Vincent, of this town, "and the third and last time, was my worst. I had dreadful nervous headaches and prostration, and was scarcely able to walk about. Could not do any of my housework. I also had dreadful pains in my back and sides and when one of those weak, staking spells would come on me, I would have to give up and lie down, with it worse off.

I was certainly in a dreadful state of health, when I finally decided to try Cardul, the woman's tonic, and I firmly believe I would have died if I hadn't taken it.

After I began taking Cardul, I was greatly helped, and all three bottles relieved me entirely.

I fattened up, and grew so much stronger in three months, I felt like another person altogether."

Cardul is purely vegetable and gentle-acting. Its ingredients have a mild, tonic effect, on the womanly constitution.

Cardul makes for increased strength, improves the appetite, tones up the nervous system, and helps to make pale, sallow cheeks, fresh and rosy.
