

Fort Stanton

A number of the loyal fans accompanied the Ft. Stanton ball team to Roswell last Sunday, reporting a most enjoyable trip, notwithstanding the defeat of the invincibles.

Attorney Wood, of Carrizozo, visited the Post-Saturday and Sunday, leaving Sunday afternoon for Roswell.

Lieut. J. R. Besse and wife have returned from a delightful ten days' trip to El Paso.

Chaplain Frund, P. H. S., conducted the regular non-sectarian services in the library hall Sunday evening. His subject was the "Growth of Christianity." Mrs. Dr. F. H. McKeon presided at the organ and Mrs. F. C. Smith, the choir leader, directed the singing of various hymns in keeping with the topic of the evening.

Mr. Weber, our expert farmer, spent the past ten days in the east on business in behalf of the government.

The local tennis club is made up of the following members: Dr. and Mrs. F. C. Smith, Dr. and Mrs. Ruoff, Dr. F. H. McKeon, Dr. F. C. Barrett, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Leach. Games are played daily between the hours of 4 and 6 p. m.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Coleman, of Alto, stopped off for a day's visit with Mr. and Mrs. John Able. They will locate permanently at Lincoln.

Mrs. Weber and family have returned from a visit with relatives at Parsons while Mr. Weber was on his eastern trip.

The following was the invocation given by Chaplain Frund at the close of the non-sectarian services last Sunday evening:

"We pray thee, O God, of might, wisdom and justice, through whom authority is rightly administered, laws are enacted, and judgment decreed, assist with Thy Holy Spirit of counsel and fortitude, the President, that his administration may be conducted in righteousness, and be eminently useful to our people, over whom he presides, by encouraging due respect for virtue and religion, by a faithful execution of the laws in justice and mercy; and by restraining vice and immorality. Let the light of Thy divine wisdom direct his deliberations, and shine forth in all the proceedings and laws framed for his rule and government; so that they may tend to the preservation of international peace, the promotion of international happiness, the increase of industry, sobriety and useful knowledge, and may perpetuate to us all the blessings of equal liberty."

CHRISTIANITY AND THE MUSTARD SEED

"The Kingdom of Heaven is like unto a grain of mustard seed, which a man took and sowed in his field. Which is the least indeed of all seeds; but when it is grown up, it is greater than all herbs, and becometh a tree, so that the birds of the air come, and dwell in the branches thereof."—Matt. 13:31, 32.

The following is a synopsis of the sermon delivered by Chaplain Frund during the non-sectarian services last Sunday evening:

"Dear Friends—From these words just read our Lord alludes to the church in another parable. He compares it to the mustard seed which being sown in the ground springs up into a tree. Now in order to note the force and beauty of this parable it is necessary to bear in mind the peculiar characteristics of the mustard seed, as well to know something of the origin and development of religion.

"In the first place we know and are told on the authority of the Gospel, that the mustard seed is amongst the smallest, and the same authority tells us it grows into a huge tree. In the present country the mustard seed is known to grow to quite an enormous size, yet it falls short of that which it possesses in the country where this parable was spoken.

"Note also how it will flourish under the most unfavorable circumstances, and never has it been known to perish. Therefore the strength as manifested in its development, its great power of endurance, since of its resistance to destruction, and the little resemblance it bears to what it afterwards becomes, for between the little mustard seed and the stately tree afterwards there is not a shadow or sign of proportion. That the latter should come from the former is the last thing we would expect.

"Did you ever observe, how remarkable that from small things, or beginnings, Divine Providence so often brings forth such great results?"

"Christianity, which had such a humble beginning, and which was planted under such unfavorable circumstances, has now grown up despite the opposition of the world, the devil, and the flesh, to be the great bulwark through the sea of opposition so as to overwhelm anything human.

"The mustard seed we said when first planted and, as it were, lost, gave little encouragement as to what would be its future; for behold Christ deserted at the trying moments of his strife on earth by those who were to be the foundation, the rock upon which He was to build the church. Behold denial of his Apostles and desertion from the foot of the cross. Apparently lost were they as far as to being the followers of Christ and the parties to whom God was to trust all and from whom was to come the immense tree of Christianity.

"Let us view the sowing of Christianity from another point, taking the time after Christ's resurrection; how He found His Apostles shut up in a room away from the apprehension, the enmity of the Jews; Christ found them so many scared individuals, afraid to breathe.

"Note the development when the descent of the Holy Ghost, that little seed sown, gets its powers of development; how from that moment these men went forth to preach Christ to the world. And what was the world at that time? Ah, here again note the sowing of the seed—in a ground, a time most unfavorable—no friends, but enemies, notwithstanding all that Christ had done in his 33 years to prove to them their folly and their sins. These twelve Apostles were the seed as planted by Christ; he stood and watched them sow Christianity; watched their labors and their fruits.

"That little seed, the babe in Bethlehem, was already sown deep, and at times indications were that it was lost, but the Master watched, assisted, cultivated it with his blessings. His promises, His death, His resurrection.

"As the birds of the air came and dwell in the branches of the mustard tree so now do we find the true followers of Christ, the lame, the sick, the sinner, whose hearts once hard, but seeing the love, the mercy of the God come

Lincoln County Teachers' Institute

The Lincoln County Teachers' Institute was opened Monday morning with an attendance of twenty-nine, the same as last year. Supt. J. S. Hofer of Tucuman in charge, ably assisted by Mrs. E. V. Jewett in the industrial branches, and Miss Eva Felton in primary methods and black-board sketching.

Saturday afternoon the Commercial Club and Civic League are to give the teachers an outing, which will be an excursion to the Malpais, with supper served there. Examination in psychology will be given Thursday afternoon, June 24, at two o'clock. If possible examinations in the Reading Circle work will be given Tuesday and Wednesday afternoon at 3:30.

and quickly rest under the tree of faith, of God's mercy, thereby becoming rescued, rested in the church.

"Just as the tree in our harvest fields gives shade and rest to the man toiler, who is gathering the crops, so as to live until his call out of the world, so the Church gives courage, truth, sympathy, love to those who wrestling with the world, the devil and flesh, need protection and rest.

"Kings, emperors, men of high rank fought the church in the beginning; there seemed little chance for the seed of Christianity, which afterwards sprang up taking in these same enemies as true followers, so today this great tree of Christianity, strong and powerful, such as the gates of hell itself shall not destroy it, so God states, is found growing in places which to the human mind are most unfavorable. Nations still would endeavor to shake this tree, but ah, it has planted its roots too deep to be injured by weak and sinful man. Christianity will ever grow despite the enemy and until the end of the world will she give protection, rest and conscience to all those who seek her branches for that consolation and final guarantee which is given from the beginning by her founder, Jesus Christ."

Prof. Schreck in State Normal

Prof. Chas. A. Schreck, who has been superintendent of the Lincoln County High School at Capitán since its organization, and who went to Las Vegas last week to attend the summer state normal, has been assigned to duty by President Roberts of that institution. Prof. Schreck will have charge of a class throughout the summer season. This makes the second Lincoln county teacher to be given a position with our state normals this summer and is a distinction of which their friends and Lincoln county are proud.

Ancho

Miss Emma Wood, sister of Mrs. John E. Wilson, who lives near San Antonio, Texas, reached here Wednesday of last week and, of course, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Wilson. We bid her welcome to our community and hope she may have a pleasant visit.

This has been a week of some misfortunes. Twelve of Mr. Nathan Adler's fine year old heas disappeared Sunday night. The Ancho store was broken into some time during the same night, but as yet there has been nothing found missing. Four heads of cattle have been killed by the railroad trains. Doubtless, they were in quest of water as it is a very scarce article just now in our part of the country.

Mr. Ralph Mason, a former employe of the brick plant, but a resident of Des Moines, Iowa, reached here last Friday, and is visiting with the John E. Wilson family. They will, some of them, come back to Ancho, especially when there is a drawing card. Ralph is a special friend of the writer, and he was quite glad to see him once more.

Mr. Wills, the genteel and popular foreman of the brick plant and manager of the Ancho store, left Saturday for Dawson, N. M., and is expected to return tonight.

We have been having some changes in our railroad employes within the last few days. Mr. Kersey has been succeeded by Mr. Magurder, but only temporarily as Mr. Kersey will return in the not distant future, and will still be our day agent. Mr. Cude, our section foreman, who has been

White Oaks

Children's Day was observed at the Congregational church by the Sunday School. The program was all that could be desired. The children, under the efficient teaching of Mrs. Pearl Reasoner, Mrs. Lula Lee and Mrs. Leighnor, performed wonderfully well. Two very pleasing piano solos were given by Miss Wilson, a niece of Mrs. Rudisilles, who is spending the summer here.

Several selections were played on the Victrola, also two speeches by Wm. Jennings Bryan, "Memorial" and "Our Great Republic."

Mr. and Mrs. Hyatt and little baby are visiting their father, Mr. Hanner. They motored from Deming.

Mr. Will T. Coe, of Glencoe, made a trip to White Oaks. We are always glad to see Will. Come again.

Dr. R. E. Blaney returned Wednesday from Fort Stanton. He was accompanied by Pete J. Duffy, who will return today.

Lila Branum, James A. Cooper, Sr., and James A. Cooper, Jr. were here Monday and Tuesday from their homes near Ancho.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Crawford, Mrs. F. W. Getty, Mrs. W. G. Bohling and Miss Georgia Lesnett went to El Paso yesterday morning.

here about four months, has been succeeded by a Mr. Woods, late of Collin county, Texas and Mr. Cude takes charge of No. 5 section gang. However, we will not lose him altogether from our community as his very pleasant family will remain with us and some of us will have the pleasure of changing smiles about every Sunday with him, so he tells us, and perhaps oftener.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Grube a daughter, at Cloudercroft, N. M., Sunday morning, at 1:30, weighs 3 lbs. Mother and baby doing well.

Grandma's Flirtation

MILDRED CARTER

Now that I have passed my seventy-eighth birthday I like to sit on the piazza and doze in the sun on warm afternoons. I like to see the life of the village, the girls and young men passing along the sidewalk underneath. Sometimes one of them will look up at me. "Hello, grandma!" they shout cheerfully, and nod.

I like it, especially in springtime, when the leaves are beginning to unfold, and nature takes on a renewal of life. It is always a miracle to me, this new opening of the buds, just the same now as when I was a girl so many years ago.

I was brought up very strictly, in the Presbyterian belief. In those days we all thought that only the elect could be saved, and that many were destined to perish everlastingly in hell fire. Then, I remember, Mr. Darwin brought out a book which told us we were nothing but monkeys, and had no souls, any more than the beasts. I was never so sure that the beasts hadn't, and I am less sure of it now than ever; but, still, that was a period of great unrest. A lot of religious folks ceased to believe in anything, and there was a good deal of hypocrisy in the matter of church going.

But of late years I have seen the change that is coming over folks again. It isn't so much that they are turning back to the old beliefs as that they are beginning to believe. They haven't got it all down so fine, about predestination and all that, I mean, but still they are beginning to believe as they used to. And that strikes me as the finest sort of belief—a belief in which there is a good deal of hope mixed, a belief you have to cling to—faith, I suppose.

To my mind it isn't only the opening of the leaves year after year, but the opening of our hearts, too, that convinces me of a better life to come. I don't believe any of the young people who see me nodding here in the sun understand that even at seventy-eight one may be, at heart, the same as a girl of twenty.

It was only three months ago that I met Tom Beasley, after a separation of fifty years. The Beasleys had lived for generations in this little town, but Tom went west when he was a boy, after a quarrel with his sweetheart, and I understood he had married and settled for good in California. The first part was true, but the second was exaggerated; at any rate, he had come back a widower, his children being married and scattered, to end his days in Four Corners.

When I looked at the gray old man, and remembered the dark-haired boy whom I had loved so much and sent away, my heart felt as if it was going to break. But after a few weeks I felt quite differently.

He had sought me out, and he learned for the first time that I had six children living, and eight grandchildren, and that I had been living with my daughter Molly since my husband died.

"Tom," I said to him, "I don't mind telling you that I never loved my husband half so much as you."

"Lizzie," he answered, "you haven't anything on me there."

We chatted together quite gayly, and presently Tom comes over pretty nearly every afternoon. If he sees that I am asleep he goes away very softly, so as not to disturb me. And sometimes I only pretend to be asleep, so that I can sit still and think and live in my memories.

"Grandmother's flirtation," the grandchildren call our talks. I never enters their heads that, for all my six children and seventy-eight years, I am just as much interested in Tom as though he were again the dark-haired boy whose photograph, very faint and faded, stands on my bureau.

At first, as I said, my heart was heavily broken. But then I need to sit out here in the sun and think over. And gradually I seemed to work things out in my mind, and at first I was reconciled, and then happy, and now I am just like a girl in mind again.

You see, as I was saying, folks are coming back to belief, though it is not the old certainty. Now I never regretted marrying Jim, and I hope and am sure that I shall meet him again, and that whatever there was of common interest and affection between us will be renewed. But that doesn't shut me out from Tom.

Now suppose I had married Tom. Would the old romance, which exists still, in spite of my seventy-eight years, continue? Or would it have been frittered away with the cares of life, the bearing and rearing of my children, the friction of things and the struggles? I think it would have been.

That seems the strange thing about life—the moment you begin to realize happiness you lose it. It all consists in the looking backward or looking forward.

Now, what an adventure life ought to be, and was, and is becoming again, with the old faith coming back to us. Because I am quite sure that it is this youth in our hearts, which never dies, no matter how old we are, that is to be realized in the life to come. I am quite sure that then at last, we shall find the happiness which we all try so hard to catch and somehow miss.

Well, then, does anyone mean to tell me that my heart won't be big enough to hold both my husband and Tom, in an existence where there is no marrying or giving in marriage? It seems to me that there one will have all the romance of girlhood and all the joys of being a mother, and a grandmother too.

I have put this idea into words rather crudely, not being a writer; but, anyhow, that was my conclusion, and I told Tom about it. You can't imagine how pleased it made me to know that he understood.

"That is just how I have been feeling, my dear," he told me. "You see, when I heard you were married I felt it seemed impossible for me. But by and by I began to find out that it has got to be lived, and I tried to live it. My wife and I were very happy together. And I thought often that if it had been you our children would have been different souls."

"Yes," I told him. "I should be dreadfully unhappy without Polly and Dora and Mark and Phillip and the two boys in Los Angeles."

"But now we have each other as well as our own," he answered.

I closed my eyes, because I wanted to think. I was casting over in my mind the different women I knew, and it seemed to me that whether they had married the right man or the wrong man it seemed pretty well to even itself out. And I thought of those who had never married at all, and what a load of experience these must be waiting for them in the next life.

"For my part, Tom," I said, "I would not have it any different. I am so glad I never married you—and I used to think my heart was broken."

"Same here," he answered, squeezing my hand, and then I saw a couple who were passing along the street look up and smile at us.

"It'll be over tomorrow about the same time," said Tom, getting up and taking off his hat with the sweeping gesture he used to use. I watched him walk away toward his cottage. How pleasant it is to be alive, I thought. And how pleasant it is to be an old woman, with all one's troubles lived through already.

STRICTLY "WHILE YOU WAIT"

Chinese Needlewomen Mend Masculine Garments While Seated in Public Street.

In many towns of China one may have his garments mended on the street, and "while he waits." Native sewing women are to be seen on low stools, perhaps on the sidewalk, mending articles of masculine attire.

The accomplishments of these street seamstresses are somewhat limited, their efforts with the needle being for the most part confined to "running." Other branches of needlework are practically unknown to them. As a consequence their efforts are better appreciated by native workmen than by foreign travelers.

They are never short of patrons among the former, for these are often natives of other districts, and, having come to the city to engage in business, have no one to mend a rent for them. Their wives being left at home, they are glad to avail themselves of the services of the street needlewomen. For this class of customers the skill of the itinerant sewing woman answers practically every purpose.

Generally speaking, these women are wives of boatmen and laborers who live in the houseboats which line the creeks of many Chinese cities and towns, and their needles are a great help toward the solution of the problem of maintenance in a crowded city or town.

One-Hundred-Pound Motorcycle. To bridge the gap between the ordinary bicycle and the modern, high-power motorcycle, a lightweight medium power machine has been developed. It is built with a sturdy frame of the loop type, much lighter than that of the average motorcycle. With its tank filled the machine weighs only 110 pounds as compared with the approximately average weight of 200 pounds, or more, of the larger type—Regular Mechanism Magazine.

ST. GALL, HARD HIT BY WAR

AMONG the innumerable cities and towns which have been razed by the war is St. Gall, in neutral Switzerland. It has seen its trade of cantaries grow swept away by a struggle in which its people have no interest. St. Gall is a town of one industry and that for the export trade, says the National Geographic Society. It is a world-famous center for the manufacture of machine-embroidered white goods, and its wares have found sale over the whole earth. It has done an annual trade in these articles with America of between six and seven million dollars a year. It also had heavy business with the countries of Europe and South America and those of the Orient. Since the outbreak of the war its export routes have been closed, while some of its largest customers have been forced by their war expenditures to stop all purchase of foreign-made luxuries.

The town has grown wealthy through the centuries, and it has continually developed its one industry, built many factories, large and small, where an important percentage of the embroidered white goods of the world are worked, and through all the neighborhood around the city the same industry has found development, as a home industry, in which hand machines are used.

Grew Around Monk's Cell. St. Gall perches high up on a mountain shoulder, considerably back from the Lake of Constance. It grew up around the mountain cell of a learned Irish monk, St. Gallen, who, taken sick here in the seventh century while on a pilgrimage to Rome, built him a cell 1,000 feet up the mountain-side, and, upon his recovery, vowed to devote his life to the conversion of the mountain tribes. Around his cell there has grown up a city of more than thirty thousand, which bears his name, and which is known to the dry-goods buyers of all countries.

An abbey was built, and its Irish monks, distinguished throughout Europe for their devotion to learning, here made a safe retreat for their studies. Centuries before the Renaissance the monks of St. Gallen studied both Greek and Latin, and painstakingly copied many of the ancient texts. These manuscripts are still preserved in the library of St. Gall, and they form a priceless nucleus of its collections.

Considerable American capital has been attracted to this energetic little manufacturing city. Some of the great factories, with their scores of Calais-Paris connections are excellent—and had almost forced to spend some hours in the city, the first thing he remarks is that there seems to be a dozen or more women to every man upon the streets. While, of course, the relative disproportion is nowhere near so great, still girls and women do largely outnumber the men, as the lace industry is constantly drawing them from the surrounding country to its factories. Wages in this industry are very low, and many of its operations can be performed as well by young girls as by men.

The latter next notices lace signs everywhere, upon commission houses and factories. Generally, these signs appear in three languages, French, German and English. In spring, and autumn he will meet a continual stream of his countrymen, buyers for the big importing houses.

Factories Are Worth Seeing. Of his own free will, however, the traveler seldom stays. He is always willing to leave Calais for most any where. There are plenty of self-centered, serious, hustling business towns at home, and there is no occasion for enduring the monotonous twentieth century atmosphere which one is on a pleasure trip. There are, nevertheless, many things worth seeing in the flat, dingy, strictly practical port city. Visits to the great lace factories are well worth while, and usually give one a new reverence for the possibilities of insensible machinery. To see the most intricate patterns mingled in a foam wave of exquisite lace, possibly of several colors, with gold and silver threads, and all this done by a massive, complicated piece of machinery, at one end devouring thousands of thread strands, and at the other, giving forth a lace equal to the highest cunning of the human hand, is to witness almost the perfection of man's inventive genius. And, then, this piece of machinery operates automatically, much like the player-piano.

Calais shares with Nottingham, England, the honors for the manufacture of machine-woven laces. The other two leading lace towns make what are known as the embroidered and "burat out" laces, on entirely different machines. Calais smuggled its industry from England, but it has added to the original English processes and machinery enough to be in position to claim a perfection of its own. Aside from, and beyond, its momentary military interest, Calais has the liveliest interest for the person wide-awake to present-day marvels, as a

VIEW OF ST. GALL

Highly intricate, almost intelligent machines, are entirely owned by American manufacturers, who regularly visit their plants and make preparations for this country's seasonal supplies. The American consulate at St. Gall is a very busy office, and it has to do almost solely with the embroideries and the machine-embroidered laces of St. Gall and of the surrounding villages for American consumption.

Less Town Also Suffers. Another town that has suffered severely by the war is Calais, which though it has been looked on by tourists as merely a threshold of continental Europe, is in reality one of the four greatest machine-made lace cities of the world. It is as a center of manufactured laces that Calais in peace times is most widely noted.

Calais is a lace town. Almost everything about it has some bearing upon the thing. Lingerie webbing which it makes and distributes over the world, should a tourist take his Paris express—a thing by the way, which is most improbable, for the world center of lace production where all the famed handmade lace genera are imitated on machines.

Find Potash in California.

The salt-increased valley floor commonly known as Searles Lake, in southern California, has lately come into prominence through the widespread interest in the search for an available source of potash in this country and the apparently promising prospects this locality affords of a considerable commercial production in the near future. The estimate made three years ago that this deposit contains four million tons of water soluble potash salts seems to have been amply confirmed by subsequent developments. That this amount of potash salts will actually be produced and placed on the market cannot yet be considered assured, but so far as can be judged from evidence available, it seems that this deposit is the most promising immediate source of commercial potash in the United States.

As Hot Weather Approaches Fish Should to a Great Extent Take the Place of Meat.

Fish Dish.—Prepare the fish as for fish balls; chop the cold potatoes and mix with fish. Fry brown six good slices of salt pork; take out the pork and turn the heat into the frying pan; add half a cupful of boiling water; let this heat slowly, stirring often; then spread smoothly and brown, being careful not to let it burn. When brown fold it as you would an omelet; dish, and garnish the dish with the slices of pork. When the pork is objected to butter can be used instead.

Fish With Tomato Sauce.—One cupful tomatoes, one-half cupful water, one-half of an onion sliced. Cook tomatoes, water and onion twenty minutes. Make one tablespoonful of butter and add one tablespoonful of flour, stir into hot mixture, add one-half teaspoonful pepper, cook until it thickens and strain. Put fish in a baking dish and pour the tomato sauce around it. Bake from fifteen to twenty minutes in a moderate oven.

Fish Toast.—One cupful flaked cold fish, free from skin and bones. Heat in water sufficient to moisten; add butter, pepper and salt. When hot pour on slices of buttered toast; garnish with eggs poached in mummington.

Scalloped Halibut.—Shred one cupful of cold flaked halibut; pour in the food pan one and one-half cupfuls milk and let come to a boil; add butter, salt of an egg, salt and pepper; then the crumbs of four crackers; add lastly the halibut; let it cook five minutes, then add two hard-boiled eggs chopped fine, and serve on a hot platter with bits of buttered toast.

SERVE THIS SUNDAY EVENING

What is Known as "Farmer's Fruit Cake" is Somewhat Different From the Ordinary Delicacy.

Three coffee cupfuls of dried apples, two of molasses and one of butter, one of sugar, one of raisins, stoned and chopped, two eggs, the juice and grated rind of one lemon, two teaspoonfuls of soda and one pound and about one-half cupful over of flour to be of the consistency of soft ginger cake. Put the apples to soak over night (in cold water), in the morning chop them very fine and stew them in a cupful of water they were soaked in, and add two of molasses. When very soft take them from the fire, turn them out to cool and add to them while warm two teaspoonfuls of powdered cinnamon, the same of cloves and the juice and rind of the lemon. Stir to a cream the butter and the sugar, and add the eggs beaten light, then the apple and raisins, then the flour and beat the soda dissolved in a table-spoonful of hot water. Bake in a moderate oven an hour and a half or two. Test with a splint.

Potato Chewer. Pare and cut into thick slices four large potatoes. Peel, slice and brown in a tablespoonful of butter one onion (medium sized); add potatoes to hot fat and onion, then sprinkle with teaspoonful of minced parsley (parsley need not be added if not liked). Add boiling water enough just to cover potatoes; cook until tender—do not let them become too dry and burn. When done, add one quart hot milk, salt and pepper to taste, then yolks of two hard-boiled eggs mashed fine and the whites minced. After milk is added, add about half a dozen hard crackers and let them steam a little while. This will serve five or six persons.

Dyeing a Rug. A Brussels rug which begins to look threadbare may be greatly improved in appearance and made to do at least one more season by giving it a dye bath with dye such as is used for fabrics. A 9 by 12 rug will require two packages. Prepare all at once in one large kettle so the color will be uniform, but take out only a small quantity at a time so you will have a supply of hot clean liquid to work with. Apply to small space at a time with even strokes straight along with the weave of the carpet.

Molded Beef.

Procure a shin of beef, have the bone sawed in four or five pieces, cover with boiling water and cook until the meat leaves the bone. Then chop fine, discarding all the gristle and hard bits; set the liquor away until all the fat has risen to the top; then remove the fat and boil the liquid down so it will jelly when cold. Season with one-half teaspoonful salt, one-half teaspoonful black pepper and salt to taste. Add the chopped meat and simmer for ten minutes, stirring often. Four into mold until cold.

Grandma's Cakes.

One cupful sugar and one-half cupful butter creamed until light, then add two well beaten eggs gradually, after all are well mixed add one-fourth teaspoonful baking powder, then enough flour to make dough stiff enough to handle. Roll thin and cut into fancy shapes. Bake on cookie sheets for 12 minutes, moderate oven. The grown-ups as well as the young ones can now make them disappear.

Cooking Dried Apples.

When you cook dried apples, try adding a little grated orange peel to them before the stewing process. This adds the apple of any but it may have and gives it an added zest. Grate only the outside skin, as the white inside skin is bitter.

Keep Weeds Away.

Weeds must be kept several feet from the wheel-track else they will draw the moisture from the roadbed and thus loosen it. This is especially true in regions of moderate rainfall.

Your Needs.

How about that road in front of your farm? Did you get out with a light log and smooth it down at the right time? Did you fill up the low places? Take a little half-price in the road that runs in front of your farm and see that it is in good shape, for yourself and your neighbor.

ROAD BUILDING

POOR ROADS ARE EXPENSIVE

More Fines Over Freight Rates Than Cost of Hauling Crops From Farm to Railroad.

A good deal of fuss is raised over freight rates, and everybody who has anything to do with the transportation of crops or merchandise is up in arms the moment railroads give the least intimation that freight rates are to be advanced. But at the same time, there is a strong tendency to give no attention to the cost of hauling farm crops from their point of origin on the farm to the railroad station; a matter of greater concern than all the railroad rates in the world, says Fruit Grower and Farmer.

Uncle Sam has found that it costs in the neighborhood of 25 cents a mile to haul a ton over the average country road. But this cost may run up to ten times this figure over bad roads, and be reduced as many times over good roads with modern vehicles. This cost is something that is rarely ever figured in by the producer when summing up his marketing expense, even though it will frequently make a figure that is not much less than the cost of getting his produce to the distant market by rail.

Good roads are expensive to build and are more or less of an expense to maintain, but if it were possible to compare the lowered cost of transporting the farm produce over the road before and after improvement it would be found that the cost was paid back with interest within a very few years after improvement. Low grades are of first consideration, for it costs more money to haul over a hilly road than over a level one, where the surface is the same. But on almost any road, it is easily possible to have at least a smooth surface on which to drive.

The King drag is the implement that will make the surface smooth and keep it smooth. And the wonder of it is that more farms do not have a drag as an essential part of their equipment. Road dragging time is just coming with the breaking up of the snow, and its usual accompaniment of mud. Heavy traffic over such roads makes ruts and bad roads of the worst sort, unless the ruts are filled by dragging. Prepare now to keep your road dragged this year and lower the cost of hauling your produce to market.

Remember, also, that wide-tired wagons pull more easily than narrow-tired ones 90 per cent of the times when they are used. The wide tire does not cut so deep and makes a better track on roads which are traveled while the ground is soft. The wide tire packs the surface into a firm roadbed, and thus enables it to drain well in time of rain.

In cornfields, plowed fields, field lanes, and on pasture and alfalfa land, the draft on the wide tire is considerably less, no matter what the condition of the soil. The wide tire does not cut up the meadow or field as does the narrow tire. This is also important, as a smooth surface in the meadow is much easier to mow over. Use no tire less than four inches on your field or on soft roads; make a King road drag and use it. Thus lower your own freight rates by lowering your hauling costs.

University Acquiring Its State Lands Values

The University of New Mexico began this week an economic and resource survey of its 305,000 acres of New Mexico lands which it is confidently expected will greatly enhance the value of the lands and encourage their future development, and which will be of almost equal value to the adjacent and contiguous lands owned by the other state institutions, or in private ownership. Under various grants of congress the university has title to lands in almost every county in New Mexico. At the minimum sale prices fixed by congress these lands are valued at well over one million dollars. In the confident belief that the lands are worth many times that amount, in soil, water and mineral resources, the university government this week sent Dr. Charles T. Kirk, professor of geology, and Dr. John D. Clark, professor of chemistry, with two student assistants, to eastern San Miguel county, whence they will spend the rest of the summer in working over university lands through Quay, Union and Colfax counties. The entire survey will occupy the summer time of the two professors for four years. Dr. Kirk is an expert mineralogist and hydrographic engineer, while Dr. Clark is a specialist in soil chemistry. Their reports will determine, as closely as surface indications can show, the probable soil values, water resources and mineral content of every acre of university land. The value of the salt bearing lands, more than 2,000 acres, owned by the university in Torrance and Socorro counties, is estimated at well over a million dollars, while vast areas of the lands lie in highly mineralized districts. There is some timber land which has not been sold. The present heavy demand for state land, present in all parts of the state, have determined the government of the university to sell no more of the institution's land until more is known of their actual resources and probable values.

New Homesteads in Lincoln National Forest

During the months of April and May just past, the Forest Service office at Albuquerque reports, 772 acres of land within the Lincoln National Forest in New Mexico were listed with the Secretary of the Interior and will shortly be opened to entry under the forest homestead act. The lands thus listed were applied for individually by six applicants, and each one of these tracts was examined by a forest officer and found to be more valuable for agricultural than for forest purposes. Those whose applications within the Lincoln forest were favorably acted upon during April and May are J. C. McDaniels, E. W. Henley and M. T. Keller, of Nogal; F. B. Brightwell of Capitán, Martha A. Isenberg of Glencoe, and Elizabeth F. Lacey of White Oaks.

How It Is Done

The stranger within our gates may want to know how the laws of this state are made, and for the purpose of fully explaining the simple system under which the state works, the following facts are given:

The state is re-remanded so that under ordinary conditions the republicans have a safe majority in the legislature, and when they need two thirds, they unseat the legally elected opposition members.

The republicans have a number of bosses, who besides being the bosses in their party are the special representatives of special interests, and after seeing to the election of republicans in as many legislative districts as possible, these bosses go over to Santa Fe and reside during the session of the legislature.

These bosses earn an honest living by passing such legislation as will enable them to continue in the employ of the special interests, who will also furnish campaign funds for the election of the legislators at the next election.

These bosses draw all the bills of importance permitted to become laws, and order killed any bills presented by those not in favor with their party.

As these bosses do not draw salary from the state, and yet do all the legislating, it has been suggested that the people quit electing legislators and let the bosses do the legislating at their own homes, which will save lots of trouble, needless money and cut out the necessity of having public records juggled, shuffled and falsified.

With copper at 20 cents, wool 20 cents, sheep $6, and cattle $40 there certainly should be little room for complaint in the southwest.

From the Bosphorus to the North Sea, from the Adriatic to the Baltic there is nothing doing only thousands of men killed and wounded every day.

The biggest robs in our history and the biggest exports of American products is about to reverse the figures on the international ledger. From a debtor nation we may soon become the creditor nation.

The second note to Germany reiterates the position advanced in the first note. Its unquestioned firmness is softened by careful phrasing which gives Germany an opportunity to gracefully accept its provisions.

The natural resources of New Mexico are undeveloped, and will remain undeveloped as long as unprincipled politicians insist upon running the legislative department as an annex to a political party. To grow as its natural resources warrant, this state must have some business legislation.

And that senate journal situation is still just as clear as mud. The only thing the lay mind can clearly understand is the statement of fact made by Lieutenant Governor C. de Baca, who was there when the journal was falsified, who knows it was falsified, and who is not afraid to tell the truth about what was done.

In their efforts to discredit Governor McDonald and embarrass his administration certain politicians have cost the tax payers of the state hundreds of thousands of dollars in actual money, to say nothing of the many more hundreds of thousands of damage done by the discreditable methods employed.

Some of the statistical sharps up in Santa Fe figure that the total valuations of the state for the purposes of taxation will be about one hundred millions of dollars short of enough to produce the required revenue. Statehood has its burdens, as well as its advantages, and the people voted for the constitution they are working under.

If all signs are not at fault one Don Francis Hubbell, oftentimes denounced as the representative of all that is wicked in politics, and its most persistent practitioner, will again be in the lead for his party, and that a number of those the loudest in their denunciations will be shouting his praise again. Such the workings of the system.

Don't kick about the amount of your taxes. Remember the county salary bill is a very liberal measure, and then there are a few items like that twenty and odd thousands of dollars for the little printing game the schemers worked through the legislature. Just think of the happiness that two thousand dollars will cause that lawyer of Albuquerque, who is the chosen of the gods.

There is a very strong rumor floating around to the effect that several gentlemen representing special interests in this state can easily sidetrack Catron if they are permitted to name his successor. It makes very little difference to the democrats who the republicans nominate for senator.

The people are going to make a cleaning at the next election, and few republicans will be in the winning.

The prohibitionists hope to have a local option election on for every day next year. That will be going some, but you never can tell what is going to happen.

New Mexico at San Diego

Through Waldo C. Twitchell, assistant manager of the New Mexico board at the San Diego Exposition, it is learned that the registration of our states' people at the New Mexico building in the week ending May 24 was 1386, or about 15 per cent of the attendance at the building. The latter was estimated as 9156, about a quarter of the total attendance at the fair that week.

The board sent out several hundred letters that week, in addition to distributing about 3,000 pieces of literature promoting New Mexico's interests. And it is noted that the attendance at lectures in New Mexico's building is averaging better than at any other building on the grounds.

For the week ending Saturday, June 5th, Monday was the biggest day in the history of the New Mexico Building. Fully 7060 people visited the building on that day. Over 1200 listening to the lecture program which covered the entire state. Was distributed over 5000 pieces of literature that day. Over 300 cards requesting more information were filled out. These names will be sent to all parts of the state.

Hon. A. A. Jones, of Las Vegas, assistant secretary of the Interior, and many other prominent men and women visited the building during the week. Ninety-six New Mexico people registered during the week.

E. E. Wilson was in Saturday from Jicarilla.
