

A Disastrous Wreck

One of the worst accidents in recent years, on the El Paso & Southwestern, occurred at Indiole, about 77 miles northeast of Carrizozo, Monday night about 7:10 o'clock. A local freight train made up at Tucumcari ran into an arroyo at the point named, the bridge having been swept away by a cloudburst. The bridge spanning the arroyo was 410 feet long and about 30 feet high over the center of the arroyo. It is the supposition that the bridge timbers had been swept away, but that the rails held, and the block was not thrown; hence the engineer and fireman received no warning.

The engine, No. 290, and ten cars, box cars and coke racks, plunged into the seething chasm, carrying with them the engineer, fireman and head brakeman. The engineer was H. S. Brickley, who was well known along the line, and he was a veteran in the service of the road; the fireman was E. C. Pryor, and the brakeman was Kirby, neither of whom are very well known here.

Relief parties went out from Tucumcari and Duran, but in the darkness and rain little was accomplished. Next morning, Tuesday, searching parties were formed and efforts made to locate the bodies of the ill-fated crew. In the afternoon of that day the engineer's body was found ten miles below the wreck, and those of the fireman and brakeman about a mile further down. Two other bodies were also found, supposed to be men getting a free ride on the freight; and it is still further reported that two more bodies—one an old man, the other a boy—have subsequently been found.

No. 4, going east, had it been on time, would have struck the washout ahead of the freight, but its tardiness, no doubt, saved many lives. When the freight plunged into the chasm the separation of the rails threw the block and saved No. 4, even after its delay.

All the bodies were taken to Tucumcari and prepared for burial, but the body of Pryor, the fireman, will be taken to the old home in Virginia. It is said that both the fireman and brakeman were single men. Engineer Brickley leaves a wife and three small children. The engineer also has two brothers in this county, J. C. Brickley, in the employ of the company at Coyote, and H. L. Brickley, cashier of the Stockmens State Bank at Corona.

Traffic has been almost at a standstill on this part of the line since the wreck. The company expects, however, to have the bridge repaired and trains running by tonight. In the meantime passenger trains are being detoured over the Santa Fe at El Paso, and practically all mail, going both east and west, is routed that way.

Splendid Rains

From every portion of the county comes the good news of good, soaking rains. Many local showers had fallen in various portions of the county prior to the general rains that began falling Monday night. The ground has received a good soaking and is in a most responsive mood. The rains were a little late for certain dry farm products, which will be cut short, but beans and corn will probably produce well. The Little Creek Mesa, where much farming is done without irrigation, is said to have one of the finest prospects for corn in its history. Beans also promise well along the Bonito and the Nogal Mesa. And the stockman, of course, is in clover; and, on the whole, conditions could scarcely be better.

"Facing the Mirror"

We are taking it calmly from a seat of patience—the fact that we are resting upon the pen point of our president.

For certainly since early spring our government has been in many important respects above reproach.

Congress is not in session, has not been in session during the most vital crisis faced by this nation since the Civil War. In this period the entire control of the destinies of the county vested itself and still remains in the hands of one man, our president.

In conducting the foreign relations of this government at a time of peculiar danger, the president has had no restraint save the approval of a perfunctory cabinet, an advisory body with no power to veto or delete.

The careful and elaborate machinery of checks and balances devised by our forefathers has been quietly and gently discarded, as unsuited to the time and conditions. Diplomatic "notes," documents hovering on the edge of ultimatum, potential casus belli, have been sent to the great powers without submission to or approval by a representative governmental body.

We are accustomed to think of the French Republic as a more centralized government than our own, and yet such messages as our president has sent, would, under the French constitution, have been passed upon by the Chamber of Deputies; they would have expressed the true voice of a nation speaking through its representatives.

Our policy, dictated by one man who is responsible to this country controlled by this country—informed as to national opinion by the public press and his private advisers, presents some phases wholly unusual, yet American.

It is true of course that the president may not declare war without the consent and ratification of Congress, but it is equally true that, in the unlimited discretion of his power, he may so involve us that war will be declared on us whether we will or no.

Until in due course Congress convenes or is convened in extra session, we are without a representative federal government.

However intelligent our congressmen, they are responsive to the opinion of their constituencies; at least they can express our collective policy.

In the mean time we have committed the honor of a great nation and the lives and happiness of a great people to one man.

It is material that he may be a good man, and a cute and honest "servant" of the people, a man of high character and good judgment. These attributes are his, our people may congratulate themselves on the deserved good fortune.

The material and vital fact is this: we have delivered the unlimited and uncontrolled power to our president responsible to us, and we have thereby established a precedent whereby we may deliver ourselves to the control of he who kisses the Bible on his inauguration day in front of the White House, where our liberties and the perils of our honor are taken at heart.

It is well enough to speak of our great president, to admire strong men, presidents who coerce congress and the legislative arm, presidents who usurp powers not delegated to them under the constitution, presidents governed by and responsible alone to the newspapers of the nation—but it is well too, that we realize the subtle change which has taken place in our government and understand its logical consequences.

A primrose man, however, benevolent, remains a primrose as Gladstone stood a wall of Gladstone.

A high minded man, honorable man, governing our country may well call the dynamic molecules of congress, concentrated to his goodness and improve our government thereby.

The picture is a pleasant one to those who have dreamed the dream of a republic, to better its classes by the exercise of truth and honesty.

CASUALTIES EXCEED EIGHT MILLIONS

Figures have been compiled up to June 1, giving in detail the losses sustained by the different countries engaged in the European, Asiatic and African wars. The figures were furnished by the French Relief Society, and are taken from official reports. The detailed estimate:

	KILLED	WOUNDED	PRISONERS AND MISSING	TOTAL CASUALTIES
France	400,000	700,000	300,000	1,400,000
Great Britain ..	116,000	229,000	83,000	428,000

The number of dead alone exceed the population of the city of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh combined; while the total casualties exceed that of the population of Pennsylvania, our second most populous state. The Russian losses alone exceed that of the population of any state of the United States except eight, while the German losses are greater than that of the population of our third city.

Curtain Falls on Thaw Episode

Let us hope that the final act in the Thaw trial has been reached and that the curtain of silence has been drawn on the whole disgusting affair. For the past eight years Thaw has been a headliner because he killed a man who the world agrees needed killing, but had little sympathy for Thaw as his executioner. The man killed had exceptional gifts—for good and evil. His visions of art were lofty and he possessed the faculty of giving expression to it in the most attractive manner. With these gifts and a polished exterior men were drawn to him and he was almost worshiped by women. He met Evelyn Nesbit, who had never been trained in the school or restraint, and following their natural impulses it was also natural they should become careless and indifferent of the proprieties that govern regulated society.

This was the foundation. Then in stepped Thaw, son of a wealthy family, who had traveled a gait of unbridled license and who spent his money so lovingly upon the beautiful Evelyn that his apparent generosity was about as appealing to her as White's personality and transcendent genius had been.

If Thaw's love for the woman had been sincere and finally upon discovering the truth—which was well known to the world—had, in a frenzy, taken the life of Stanford White there would have been few to question its justness; and this might well have been written at the close of the tragedy and long since it would have been forgotten.

But Thaw was not in that class. He was a moral wreck, without an honorable idea, and some vile spark in his nature urged him to commit murder in a most spectacular manner. His two spectacular trials, his commitment to the asylum, his escape and recapture, his subsequent trial in which, before a jury, he established his claim of sanity, resulting in his release, have filled the columns of the press and nauseated.

Stanford White is dead—he got what he deserved; Harry Thaw has been behind the bars for eight years—let us hope the punishment will be sufficiently lasting that we may not hear of a repetition; Evelyn has about dropped out of sight—let us hope never to return; and once for all let us drop the curtain over the delectable trio and think of things more pleasant.

W. M. and Fred Ferguson were here Saturday from the Mesa, attending to some land matters.

Parsons

School opened Monday morning with eighteen pupils enrolled and Mrs. Nichols as teacher. Mrs. Nichols taught last term in Parsons district and the directors were very glad to secure her services again.

Mr. and Mrs. George Reddy are occupying apartments in Pine Lodge. Mr. Reddy is employed by the Parsons Mining company, assisting in installing the electric power line from White Oaks.

Mrs. L. A. Scott of Carrizozo is visiting Mrs. J. M. Rice.

Mr. Lucas, who is working for Mr. White at the saw mill on the Bonito, last week moved his family into the James cottage, so his children can attend the Parsons school.

Mrs. Nichols, the popular young school teacher, has quarters in the Byrd house this year.

Mr. Tom Keiller spent last week at Fort Stanton, the guest of his father, Dr. William Keiller. Returning to Parsons Sunday, Mr. Keiller again left for the Fort Monday morning, so as to miss as little as possible of the roundup. Tom is a student of the Rice Technical Institute at Houston, Texas, but is learning many things this summer not taught in schools.

The Upper Bonito was well represented at the services at Angus last Sunday; among those in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Grafton, Messrs. Buck and Tom Jennings, Mr. Short and Mr. Bush.

Miss Charlotte Rice returned Sunday from Fort Stanton, where she has been visiting her sister, Mrs. W. L. Weber.

Mr. Otto Postler, the marine architect who died in Oscura last week, had many friends in Parsons and vicinity who regret his death and sympathize most sincerely with his friend and fellow countryman, Mr. Ernst Selige, who has recently taken up a ranch near Oscura.

The Parsons Mining company has the poles for the electric power line all set to the Parsons mill and is stringing wires this way from the American. It is hoped that as soon as the power line is completed work will be begun on the Parsons mill.

Parsons expects to be a thriving mining camp with a greatly increased population before many months have passed.

The long drouth has been broken and the daily showers are very much appreciated by those who have recently put in crops of grain.

Mr. A. T. Anderson, a devotee of the Ford and the busiest man around, spent last Sunday in Parsons. Mr. A. B. Graham and son, D. J., and Messrs. Merriam and Bjeldaaners from the camp also returned home Sunday to enjoy a turkey dinner.

Arabela has let a contract for the building of a new up-to-date school-house.

The new school building at Ducinoso will be ready for the term next week. S. R. Moss will be in charge.

Ruidoso directors have decided to enlarge the school building and employ another teacher. This is a move in the right direction, no teacher can do justice to eight grades.

The Misses Ivy and Lucile Lindsay, of Bernic, Missouri, will teach the schools at Angus and Alto. These young ladies come well recommended for successful experience as teachers.

The Nogal Mesa district has installed new furniture and equipment. Another year they plan to build a modern building.

San Patricio has received the new furniture for the school; their building was put in perfect condition last summer.

Work will soon commence on the Hondo addition, of one room and basement, which will later be used for manual work.

Picacho is advertising bids for contract of a building using one of the prettiest of the state plans. Adobes will be used and finished with pebble dash coat of cement.

Upper Glencoe is planning to repair its building, which was weakened by the spring rains.

The schoolhouse at White Oaks has been thoroughly repaired, painted, kalsomined and a third room prepared for school.

The Nogal directors have had extensive repairs made to the schoolhouse. New equipment and blackboards inside and the building pebbled, dashed and the yard graded.

Word from Blue Water is that they need more paint to complete the work of making their building complete. It has been replastered.

The only improvements the Oscura district can think of is a room for domestic science and manual training which they will build within the year.

Haca Canon directors are planning to move their building on to deeded land that they may put on permanent repairs.

The Tison Mountain schoolhouse has been made ready for a fall term of school.

Parsons district has put a new roof on the school house and purchased new equipment.

Andrew McBrayer and Maurice Brooklin, of Jicarilla, paid a visit to this community last Sunday.

There were two marriages in Jicarilla last week. Bivian Brooklin and Miss Silvia Myler were married the fourteenth. Arley Stuart and Miss Virgie Mobley "went and did likewise" on the seventeenth. We wish this happy quartette a smooth sail down life's turbulent sea.

There were invitations circulating in this settlement to a dance at Jicarilla Saturday evening. We learn it was well attended, and passed off pleasantly.

SEEING LIFE with JOHN HENRY & George V. Hobart

John Henry Has a Musical.

SAY! DID you ever stray away from home of an evening and go to one of those parlor riots?

Friend wife called it a musical, but to me it looked more like a session of the Mexican congress in a boiler factory.

They pulled it off at Mrs. Luella Frothingham's, over on the Drive.

I like Luella and I like her husband, Jack Frothingham, so it's no secret conclave of the Anvil Association when I whisper them what that the next time they give a musical evening my address is Forest Avenue, corner of Follage Street, in the woods.

The Frothinghams are nice people and old friends and they have more money than some folks have hair, but that doesn't give them a license to spoil one of my perfectly good evenings by sprinkling a lot of canned music and frisksed recitations all over it.

The Frothinghams have a skeleton in their closet. His name is Uncle Heck and he weighs 237—not bad for a skeleton. Uncle Heck is a Joe Morgan. His sole ambition in life is to become politely picked and fall asleep draped over a gold chair in the drawing room when there's high-class company present.

For that reason the Frothinghams on state occasions put the skids under Uncle Heck and run him off stage till after the final curtain.

On some occasions Uncle Heck breaks through the bars and dashes into the scene of refinement with merry quip and jest to the confusion of his relatives and the ill-concealed amusement of their guests.

This was one of those occasions. Early in the evening Jack took Uncle Heck to his room, sat him in front of a quart of vintage and left the old geezer there to blash around in the surt until sleep claimed him for its own.

But before the wine was gone Uncle Heck put on the gloves with Morpheus, got the decision, marched down stairs and into the drawing room.

Then Claribel Let Down Her Hair and Proceeded to Give Us a Mad Scene—and it Was.

where he immediately insisted upon being the life of the party.

Uncle Heck moved and seconded that he sing the swan song from "Lobengrin," but his idea of a swan was so much like a turkey gobbler that loving friends slipped him the moccasins and elbowed him out of the room.

Then he went out in the butler's pantry hoping to do an Omar Khayyam with the grape, but not finding any he began to recite "Down in the Lehigh Valley me and my people grew; I was a blacksmith, Cap'n's yes, and a good one, too! Let me sit down a minute, a stone's got into my shoe."

But it wasn't a stone, and it didn't get into his shoe. It was a potato salad and it got into his face when the Irish cook threw it at him for interfering with her work.

"I'm discouraged," murmured Uncle Heck, and presently he was sleeping with magnificent noises on the sofa in the library.

There were present at the battle in the drawing room Uncle Peter Grant and Aunt Martha; Hep Hardy and his diamond shirt studs; Bunch Jefferson and his wife, Alice; Bud Hawley and his second wife; Phil Merton and his third wife; Dave Mason and his stationary wife; Stub Wilson and his wife, Jennie, who is Peaches' sister, and a few others who asked to have their names omitted.

The mad revels were inaugurated by the Pippin brothers, who attempted to drag some grouchy mate out of jitters that didn't want to give up. The Pippin brothers part their hair in the middle and always do the march from "The Babes in Toyland" on their mandolins as an encore.

If Victor Herbert ever catches them there'll be a couple of alias chorale-dancers away to the bad.

When the Pippin brothers took a bow and backed off into a vase of flowers we were all invited to listen to a soprano solo by Miss Imogene Glass-face.

When Imogene sings she makes faces at herself. When she needs a high note she goes after it like a hen after a ladybug. Imogene sang "Sleep, Sweetly Sleep," and then kept us awake with her voice.

Then we had Rufus Kellar Smith, the parlor prestidigitator, Rufus was a bad boy.

He cooked an omelet in a silk hat and when he handed the hat back to Hep Hardy two poached eggs fell out and cuddled up in Hep's hair.

Rufus apologized and said he'd do the trick over again if someone would lend him a hat, but nothing doing. We all preferred our eggs boiled.

Then we had Claribel Montrose in select recitations. She was all the money.

Claribel grabbed "The Wreck of the Hesperus" between her pearly teeth and shook it to death. Then she got a half-Nelson on Poe's "Raven" and put it out of business.

Next she tried an imitation of the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet." If Juliet talked like that dame did no wonder she took poison.

Then Claribel let down her back hair and started in to give us a mad scene—and it was. Everybody in the room got mad.

When peace was finally restored, Mrs. Frothingham informed us that the rest of the "paid" talent had disappointed her and she'd have to depend on the volunteers. Then she whispered to Miss Gladola Hungerschnitz, whereupon that young lady giggled her way over to the piano and began to knock its teeth out.

The way Gladola went after one of Beethoven's sonatas and slapped its ears was pitiful.

Gladola learned to injure a piano at a conservatory of music. She can take a Hungarian rhapsody and turn it into a goulash in about 32 bars.

At the finish of the sonata we all applauded Gladola just as loudly as we could, in the hope that she would faint with surprise and stop playing, but no such luck.

She tied a couple of chords together and swung that piano like a pair of Indian clubs.

First she did "My Old Kentucky Home," with variations, until everybody who had a home began to weep for fear it might get to be like her Kentucky home.

The variations were where she made a mistake and struck the right note.

Then Gladola moved up to the squeaky end of the piano and gave an imitation of a Swiss maul box.

It sounded to me like a Swiss cheese.

Presently Gladola ran out of raw material and subsided, while we all applauded her with our fingers crossed, and two very thoughtful ladies began to talk fast to Gladola so as to take her mind off the piano.

This excitement was followed by another catastrophe named Minnehaha Jones, who plucked up a couple of soprano songs and screeched them at us.

Minnehaha is one of those fearless singers who vocalize without a safety valve. She always keeps her eyes closed, so she can't tell when her audience gets up and leaves the room.

The next treat was a mixed duet on the flute and trombone between Clarence Smith and Lancelot Difenberger, with a viola obligato on the side by Hector Tompkins.

Never before have I seen music so roughly handled.

It looked like a walk-over for Clarence, but in the fifth round he blew a couple of green notes and Lancelot got the decision.

Then, for a consolation prize, Hector led out in the middle of the room, where he assassinated Marconia's "Cavalleria Rusticana" so thoroughly

DEVOTED HIS TO GOOD WORK

Devout Little Johnny Would Give His Penny to Buy Bibles for Poor Kids.

The little visitors at Aunt Mary's were Helen, age six, and John, age four. They played keeping grocery under the piano, envelopes, books and other articles representing the stock in trade. They took turn about as grocer and customer. The grocer bore the name of Mr. Popcorn.

"Mr. Popcorn," said Helen, "have you any rabbis this morning?" "Yes'm," answered the polite grocer. "Are they nice and fresh?" "Yes'm."

"Then you may give me a good, big fat one for 15 cents."

During a lull in the grocery transactions Aunt Mary gave each of the visitors two cents—two cents in real money.

"And what are you going to do with the money?" asked Aunt Mary.

"I'm going to put my two pennies in the bank," said Helen.

"And I," said John, "I'll buy candy with one penny."

"And what will you do with the other penny?"

And John, who has been impressed by the missionary talks at Sunday school, answered: "I'm a-goin' to give it to buy Bibles for poor kids."—Providence Tribune.

He immediately insisted upon being the life of the party.

marks, which in their original state form the basis of a Scotch ballad called, "Loch Lomond."

Bud's system of speaking the English language is to say with his voice as much of a word as he can remember and then finish the rest of it with his hands.

Imagine what bud would do to a song with an oatmeal foundation like "Loch Lomond."

When Bud barked out the first few bars, which say "By yon bonnie bank and by yon bonnie brae," everybody within hearing would have cried with joy if the piano had fallen over on him and flattened his equator.

And when he reached the plot of the piece, where it says, "You take the high road and I'll take the low road," Uncle Peter took a drink; Phil Merton took the same, Stub took an oath and I took a walk.

And all the while Bud's wife sat there, with the glad and winning smile of a swordfish on her face, listening with a heart full of pride, while her crime-laden husband chased that help less song all over the parlor, and finally left it unconscious under the sofa.

At that point Hep Hardy got up and volunteered to tell some funny stories and this gave us all a good excuse to put on our overshoes and say "Good night" to our hostess without offending anybody.

Hep Hardy and his funny stories are always used to close the show.

"John," said Peaches after we got home; "I want to give a musical. May I?"

"Certainly, old girl," I answered. "We'll give you in the nearest moving picture theater. If we don't like the show all we have to do is to close our eyes and thank our lucky stars there's nothing to listen to."

"Oh! aren't you hateful!" she pouted. "Maybe I am, at that."

"Didn't Want to Learn Details." A gentleman, clad in a plug hat and an air of determination, together with sundry other garments not necessary to enumerate, uprose on a dry goods box at the most prominent corner in the village and, holding aloft a vial and wriggling serpent, invited, in stentorian tones, all good people within the sound of his voice to gather around him for profit and entertainment.

"What d'ye s'pess is comin' off?" inquired a citizen, addressing the Old Coder.

"D'know!" snarled the veteran. "Proberly he's some infernal office-seeker who is going to promise, if we elect him, to get rid of all the snakes in the county by eating 'em. Anyhow, I'm going home! G'day, Ellsworth!"—Kansas City Star.

Lost the Point. Jones, who appreciates a joke, but, like many others, cannot repeat one with any degree of success, heard for the first time the joke about the dog being the most musical of animals, "because he wears a brass band round his neck," and determined to spring it on the first party of friends to which he was invited. The time came, and he electrified his victims with the exclamation, "I say, I've a really good one!" He asked, "Why is a dog the most musical of animals?" they gave it up. "Because," announced Jones, triumphantly, "he wears a brass collar round his neck."

FOR BETTER ROADS

Department of Agriculture Gathering Information to Serve as Basis for Estimating Value.

The United States department of agriculture is now gathering information which, when complete, should not only give the total mileage of public roads in the United States and their cost, but should serve as a basis for estimating the relative value of the different kinds of highways. Some 15,000 sets of inquiry blanks have already been distributed through the state highway commissions, and some of these are now beginning to come back to the department. Each set consists of four cards.

Of these the first asks for information on the mileage of different classes of roads in the county to which it is sent. The mileage does not include, of course, streets in cities and towns. The roads are divided into ten classes as follows: Brick paved, concrete, macadam with the addition of some substance such as asphalt, oil, or tar, plain macadam, gravel, shell, and other hard surfaced roads, sand and clay mixture properly graded and drained, ordinary earth roads properly constructed, and, finally, unimproved roads.

The second card asks for information in regard to the tax rate for the roads and the amount of work and money expended on them.

The third blank is concerned with the names of local road officials, and the fourth with facts in regard to the bond issues and the indebtedness of the counties for their road systems.

As there are approximately 3,000 counties in the United States, in many of which the mileage has never even been estimated, it is hardly probable that this preliminary survey will be exact. The department, however, will be able to detect any exceedingly inaccurate reports for the road mileage per square mile of territory does not vary excessively. Except in desert or undeveloped country less than half a mile of public road to every square mile of territory is rare, while, in the most thickly populated rural sections the maximum is no more than two and one-half or three miles. Thus, in France, there is an average for the entire country of 1.76 to a square mile. In Italy, however, this has fallen to .86, possibly on account of the mountainous character of much of the peninsula and of Sicily and Sardinia.

In America the average is approximately 80 miles, which, in view of the fact that much of the country is sparsely settled seems unduly high. An explanation, however, is to be found in the fact that in many states the law provides that each section, line shall be a public road. Thus, for example, there are in the state of Iowa alone more than 194,000 miles of legal highways, manifestly a much larger mileage than is required by traffic.

When the information in regard to the existing roads which the department is now seeking is complete, it is the intention to continue the inquiry year after year in order to ascertain the durability and economy of the various kinds of highways. The data thus collected should be useful to road engineers all over the country and it is hoped that county agents and others interested in improvement of agriculture will do their best to facilitate the collection of the desired information.

Shortens the Distance. There is nothing that shortens the distance between the farm and the market as much as good roads. It's the greatest economy the farmers can have.

Wide Tires to Stay. The wide-tired wagon has come to stay. On our common earth roads and in the field a 50 per cent more load can be pulled on a wide-tired wagon than on one with narrow tires; then, again, the wide tires help in packing the road, while the narrow tires make the rut.

Should Not Grumble. The dairyman, whose products are particularly perishable, should be the last man on earth to grumble about paying money for road improvement.

Could Spare Her. Tommy's mother was an invalid, so his Aunt Lavinia looked after him and the house. And she never missed a chance of pointing out a fault or expounding a precept.

"Oh, dear," said Tommy one day, after auntie had lectured him for ten minutes, "I wish I had wings!"

"Why, my pet?" asked mother, pleased at this angelic inspiration.

"Oh, I'd fly up in the air with Aunt Lavinia, and I'd fly and fly till I couldn't get any higher."

"Yes, dear," said mother proudly, as the little chap paused impressively. "What would you do then?"

"I'd drop Aunt Lavinia!" said Tommy savagely.—Stray Stories.

Somewhat Different. "What is the price of that porch chair?" asked the lady shopper.

"Seventeen dollars, madam," replied the clerk.

"Seventeen dollars?" echoed the would-be customer. "Aren't you mistaken? It surely can't be worth that much."

"Pardon me, madam," rejoined the conscientious salesman. "It is probably worth $1.50, but you asked the price."

Nothing Done. "Mamma," called four-year-old Harold from the nursery, "please come and sit by my bed until I go to sleep."

"Mamma's busy now," was the reply. "Keep quiet and the angels will be with you."

"You said that before, mamma," rejoined Harold, "and I have kept quiet ever so long, but not a blamed angel has showed up."

FOR BETTER ROADS

Department of Agriculture Gathering Information to Serve as Basis for Estimating Value.

The United States department of agriculture is now gathering information which, when complete, should not only give the total mileage of public roads in the United States and their cost, but should serve as a basis for estimating the relative value of the different kinds of highways. Some 15,000 sets of inquiry blanks have already been distributed through the state highway commissions, and some of these are now beginning to come back to the department. Each set consists of four cards.

Of these the first asks for information on the mileage of different classes of roads in the county to which it is sent. The mileage does not include, of course, streets in cities and towns. The roads are divided into ten classes as follows: Brick paved, concrete, macadam with the addition of some substance such as asphalt, oil, or tar, plain macadam, gravel, shell, and other hard surfaced roads, sand and clay mixture properly graded and drained, ordinary earth roads properly constructed, and, finally, unimproved roads.

The second card asks for information in regard to the tax rate for the roads and the amount of work and money expended on them.

The third blank is concerned with the names of local road officials, and the fourth with facts in regard to the bond issues and the indebtedness of the counties for their road systems.

As there are approximately 3,000 counties in the United States, in many of which the mileage has never even been estimated, it is hardly probable that this preliminary survey will be exact. The department, however, will be able to detect any exceedingly inaccurate reports for the road mileage per square mile of territory does not vary excessively. Except in desert or undeveloped country less than half a mile of public road to every square mile of territory is rare, while, in the most thickly populated rural sections the maximum is no more than two and one-half or three miles. Thus, in France, there is an average for the entire country of 1.76 to a square mile. In Italy, however, this has fallen to .86, possibly on account of the mountainous character of much of the peninsula and of Sicily and Sardinia.

In America the average is approximately 80 miles, which, in view of the fact that much of the country is sparsely settled seems unduly high. An explanation, however, is to be found in the fact that in many states the law provides that each section, line shall be a public road. Thus, for example, there are in the state of Iowa alone more than 194,000 miles of legal highways, manifestly a much larger mileage than is required by traffic.

When the information in regard to the existing roads which the department is now seeking is complete, it is the intention to continue the inquiry year after year in order to ascertain the durability and economy of the various kinds of highways. The data thus collected should be useful to road engineers all over the country and it is hoped that county agents and others interested in improvement of agriculture will do their best to facilitate the collection of the desired information.

Shortens the Distance. There is nothing that shortens the distance between the farm and the market as much as good roads. It's the greatest economy the farmers can have.

Wide Tires to Stay. The wide-tired wagon has come to stay. On our common earth roads and in the field a 50 per cent more load can be pulled on a wide-tired wagon than on one with narrow tires; then, again, the wide tires help in packing the road, while the narrow tires make the rut.

Should Not Grumble. The dairyman, whose products are particularly perishable, should be the last man on earth to grumble about paying money for road improvement.

Keen Rivalry. "All the farmers hereabouts seem to own motor cars. I don't suppose an automobile salesman could do much business in this community."

"Oh, yes, he could. The farmers about here have quit trying to see who can raise the finest cattle and the biggest crops. Every one of them is trying to get hold of a car with improvements the other fellows' cars don't have."

Dry Land Wheat

As an evidence of what could have been done in the production of wheat in Lincoln county this year we wish to invite an inspection of our windows. We have two sheafs of wheat that were brought in by W. M. Ferguson from his farm on the Mesa above Nogal. These sheafs were cut from a 4-acre plot of ground, sown last winter. While all the heads are not well filled, owing to the fact that no rain had fallen on the patch since April, the grain is plump and of a fair size, and Mr. Ferguson thinks the yield will be about 20 bushels per acre. It goes to show what a profitable crop of wheat could have been grown in Lincoln county, notwithstanding the unfavorable season during the last two months of its growth.

The Pay Back Club

Up in Santa Fe they have organized what might be properly called a "Pay Back" Club, and the members insist upon bringing suits against officials and others who have improperly expended the public funds.

The latest matter up for discussion by the club is the appropriation carried in the bill appropriating money for the Texas boundary suit fight. This little matter of $9,200 is said to have been wrongfully paid out by the state auditor, because it is not actually a law, having been signed by the president of the senate under protest after the final adjournment of the legislature, and is so endorsed.

The fact that the tax payers of the state have been wronged of a few thousand dollars more or less is not sufficiently novel to create a great interest, but that money can be paid out on bills acted upon after adjournment is unquestionably of great interest to all tax payers, as there is another legislature in sight, and still more coming, and the amount of damage the politicians can do if they are permitted to do their legislating in that manner can not be estimated in advance.

The adoption of a Latin-American commerce and business course is one of the latest and one of the most interesting departures considered by our state university. In view of the prospect for an expansion of trade with Latin America and the need of an acquaintance with the business, customs and language of the South American countries, this department should prove to be a most popular one. Outlet for our products, farm, mine and factory, is a pressing need, especially during the European conflict, and the establishment of trade relations with our South American neighbors upon the proper basis at this time means a permanent and profitable trade which should have been ours at all times. Such a course as is proposed by the New Mexico University will prepare men for this particular work, and the benefits to be derived therefrom are so patent that the proposition must meet the hearty commendation of all our people.

A Strong Indictment

(Philadelphia Ledger)
Having by endless repetitions of the "American shell and munitions" lie fired the German heart into a fury of rage over "perfidious America," having also added oil to his fury by using the perjuries of Stahl, the Lusitania affidavit maker, in a state paper and circulating them as gospel truth all over Germany, the German foreign office has reached the very climax of absurdity in officially protesting to Ambassador Gerard against the export of "poison shells" by the Cleveland Automatic Machine company. This "poison shell" canard has been exploded again and again. Its circulation over here does no credit to the minds or the hearts of the hyphenated Americans who are still giving it currency. Yet months after the fact has been established that the Cleveland company does not manufacture shells of any kind, to say nothing of poisonous ones, that it simply exported metal-turning machines before the war, its largest foreign customer being the Krupp works, and that it has not since the war began sent any of its machines abroad, the German foreign office categorically accepts the old canard as true.

You Need a Tonic

There are times in every woman's life when she needs a tonic to help her over the hard places. When that time comes to you, you know what tonic to take—Cardui, the woman's tonic. Cardui is composed of purely vegetable ingredients, which act gently, yet surely, on the weakened womanly organs, and helps build them back to strength and health. It has benefited thousands and thousands of weak, ailing women in its past half century of wonderful success, and it will do the same for you. You can't make a mistake in taking

CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

Miss Arrelia Wilson, R. F. D. No. 4, Alma, Ark., says: "I think Cardui is the greatest medicine on earth, for women. Before I began to take Cardui, I was so weak and nervous, and had such awful dizzy spells and a poor appetite. Now I feel as well and as strong as I ever did, and can eat most anything." Begin taking Cardui today. Sold by all dealers.

MRS. MABEN WAS MADE WELL

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Wants Other Suffering Women To Know It.

Murfreesboro, Tenn. — "I have wanted to write to you for a long time to tell you what your wonderful remedies have done for me. I was a sufferer from female weakness and displacement and I would have such tired, worn out feelings, sick headaches and dizzy spells. Doctors did me no good so I tried the Lydia E. Pinkham Remedies—Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash. I am now well and strong and can do all my own work. I owe it all to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and want other suffering women to know about it."—Mrs. H. E. MABEN, 211 S. Spring St., Murfreesboro, Tenn.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for nearly forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women everywhere bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtues of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Why Lose Hope: No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (consultants) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

LACING AS TRIMMING

RATHER OLD FASHION THAT IS ONCE MORE IN VOGUE.

Illustration Shows How Effective It May Be Made—White Satiate the Best Material for the Collar and Vest.

Lacing as a trimming is revived in the way of novelty every once in a while, and, judging from its present vogue, this is one time. There is something quaintly attractive about the fad, but in many cases it is overdone. Just a touch is all that is needed, and it usually occurs at the neck and sleeve ends of a blouse, and, probably, the girdle.

Here in the model sketched we find the sleeve ends laced and the back of the bodice. That last sounds inconvenient, doesn't it? But the effect is really too pretty to forego, and, besides, the world is full of kindly disposed souls, who can on most occasions be induced to help one in and out of difficult things and thus save us contortions.

In geranium-coral faille or any of the lovely rose tones this chic little frock will commend itself to those of you who love pretty clothes. The lacings are merely narrow bias folds of the silk knotted at the ends and run through strongly buttonholed eyelets. As the long sleeves are not set into the armholes of the bodice, it will be necessary to use white china silk or something equally thin for a foundation blouse into the armholes of which the sleeves may be sewed. White tulle is used for the collar and the vest, and by supplying snappers around its inside edge it can be fastened to the foundation blouse and be removed for laundering.

The bodice shows a rather deep Y in front, but in back is rounded in a shallow curve about the neck. The length is extended a bit below the waist line and in front cut to give the effect of little vest corners, then draped up in place by means of a vertical line of shirring through the center. The wide armholes are bordered with a set-on braid of fine tucks. As the lacing down the back of the waist must not be drawn tightly together, ample here the bodice of plain black silk is straight and severe with prim little turn-over collar and cuffs of white, lace-edged. Wide bristles of the stripes are gathered into black-and-white-striped silk covered buckles on the shoulders. The skirt of the stripe is cut bias and opens over a "v" shaped piece of plain black silk which, like the blouse, fastens with black silk covered buttons in buttonholes done in white. The belt and buckle are of plain black silk and a band of the same finishes the bodice.

Rainy Day Hospital.
When the children break a doll or toy we tie it up and put it in a box which is used for broken toys. On a rainy day we open a carpenter's shop and a hospital. The furniture is put on the table, where nails, hammer, glue and so forth are found. The dolls are put to bed, each with a ticket pinned on with its number. As each number is called the patient is operated on with needle or glue as needed. Later we play carpenter's shop and mend the furniture.

Of Season Utensils.
New agate and tin cooking utensils require seasoning before they are used. To do this, simply let them stand on the back of the range for two hours, filled with scalding water and bicarbonate of soda, one teaspoonful to a quart of water, then wash and dry in the regular manner.

Serge in Many Forms.
There are many forms of the silk serge, ranging from a twill almost invisible to a heavy diagonal; but the sarah weave is a medium twill and is extremely good looking, either in plain one-tone colorings or in black or color with hair line stripes of white.

CARE OF FACE IN SUMMER
Hot Weather Particularly the Time When Complexion Must Be Made a Matter of Moment.

Summer is not a season of pure delight to the woman who values a good complexion. During the warm months extra precautions are necessary in order to preserve the texture and beauty of the skin, for hot winds, hot sunshine and salt water all play havoc with the complexion.

It is hardly possible to go about with a protection in the form of a well wrapped about one's face, for this is too warm for comfort, and disagreeable and dangerous to the eyes, besides. But there are certain precautions which can be taken to relieve the burning sensation which comes from exposure to the sun. When you have been out in the hot summer air and allowed the sun's rays to kiss your cheeks you will find, of course, that your skin will become red and dry from this reckless exposure. Don't come in from out of doors, where you have been enjoying a motor trip or a game of tennis and wash the dust and dirt from your skin with soap and water. This only increases the burning sensation and the dryness of the skin.

First rub on a quantity of cold cream and rub thoroughly with a soft cloth. After the irritation has been somewhat lessened the face should then be thoroughly washed and cleansed. Fill a basin two-thirds full of fresh soft water. Should the water which flows from the faucet be hard, then soften it with a teaspoonful of borax to every basin. Dip the face in the water, and afterward the hands. Soap the hands well and rub with a gentle motion over the face. Dip the face a second time into the water in the basin, rinse thoroughly and dry with a thick, soft towel. After the facial bath apply some simple lotion, slightly astringent. It will be found very refreshing.

The use of a good cleansing cream before the facial bath and a suitable lotion afterward has a really wonderful effect in improving the complexion. The effect of a clean face is in itself altogether delightful. Such a bath tends to rest and refresh the bather and put her in a good temper. Many a bad complexion is due to nothing more nor less than neglect of a proper cleaning process. If more faces were kept really clean a great improvement in the appearance would be noticed.

Harlequin Designs Popular.
The profusion of black and white worn this season lends itself nicely to the new popular harlequin designs in squares and diamond shapes. They are almost too striking for people to want them for whole dresses, but they are charming in combination with plain black. The slender woman can wear them well.

When Making Buttonholes.
To make buttonholes on thin material, before cutting the buttonholes baste a piece of India linen or muslin underneath where the buttonholes are to be. Cut the buttonholes through both and work. When finished, cut away the piece of goods underneath close to the work, and the result is a good, firm buttonhole.

FINE COMBINATION OF COLOR
Example of What May Be Done by Contrasting the Shades That Have Widest Difference.

Black and white being the mode in Paris must, of course, be the mode on this side of the water, and very beautiful effects are achieved by this striking color combination. In the example here the bodice of plain black silk is straight and severe with prim little turn-over collar and cuffs of white, lace-edged. Wide bristles of the stripes are gathered into black-and-white-striped silk covered buckles on the shoulders. The skirt of the stripe is cut bias and opens over a "v" shaped piece of plain black silk which, like the blouse, fastens with black silk covered buttons in buttonholes done in white. The belt and buckle are of plain black silk and a band of the same finishes the bodice.

Question of Supplies.
"Daisy," remarked her Sunday school teacher, "don't love your cat too much. What would you do if it died—you wouldn't see it again?"
"Oh, yes, teacher; I should see it in heaven!"
"No, dear, you're mistaken; animals cannot go to heaven like people."
Daisy's eyes filled with tears, but suddenly she exclaimed triumphantly, "Animals do go to heaven, for the bible says the promised land is flowing with milk and honey, and if there are no animals, where do they get the milk?"

At the Club.
"So our proposal was laid on the table, after all."
"I thought it would be dashed."

Suspicious Precaution.
"Did he marry for money?"
"Well, he always makes her wear a veil when they go out together."

The Usual Thing.
Mrs. Askit—Do you keep a servant?
Mrs. Nolt—Yes, and several of her relations.—Indianapolis Star.

If a man disputes a claim made by a preacher the members of the preacher's church consider him an infidel.

When a man says, "It isn't the money, but the principle of the thing," put that with the other hapdoodle.

Advertising will put a lightweight in the limelight, but it will not always keep him there.

REMINDERS

Reminded Him.
Mr. Highbrow, who posed as an arbiter of taste, looked round the tiers of boxes at the opera house the other evening and said:
"I suppose, if a woman's shoulders are very beautiful, she has a right, a moral right, to wear a very décolleté gown. At the same time—"
"Mr. Highbrow chuckled and shook his head."
"At the same time," he resumed, "the fashionable woman of today reminds me of the prophet."
"How so?" said his interlocutor.
"How so?"
"She hasn't much on 'er in her own country," was the smiling reply.

The Fire Fiend.
Mayor Thompson of Chicago, who is advising stricter measures to prevent insurance frauds, said:
"There are, you know, a great many business men who in their ideas about insurance are like Exe."
"I'm afraid, father," said Exe's son, "this property isn't worth repairing any more."
"Very well, son," said Exe. "Send, then, for Smith of the Marine and Fire company at once. Let us always bear in mind the old proverb: What can't be cured must be insured."

For Her Sake.
"You can't afford to be without this wonderful work."
"That's good. My wife says I am always doing things I cannot afford to, and this will prove she is right."

Sympathetic.
Meker—Poor man!
Bleeker—To whom do you refer?
Meker—To the chap who is going to marry my former wife.
Bleeker—But I thought he was rich.
Meker—So he is—poor man!

Naturally.
"The line of battle in Europe just now reminds me of our telephone exchange."
"How so?"
"It's a line that's always busy."

Puffed Injuries.
Redd—He seems to be all puffed over his new automobile.
Green—Oh, did it hurt him as badly as that?

A Paying Well.
Bill—Why, he has a well on his place.
Jill—Yes, he's way behind the times. "Behind nothing! It's an oil well!"

Its Affliction.
"What's the matter with that infant industry?"
"I think it has infant paralysis."

HAD HIS MOTHER PUZZLED

Washerwoman Never Could Understand Son, Therefore She Dubbed Him "Grasshopper."

Polly, the washerwoman, was deep in a discussion of her family's shortcomings.
"Mah fambly suttinly do hab some shawtoomin's," she declared. "For instance: Mah son Jawge es jea' lak a grasshoppah."
"My goodness!" gasped the mistress. "How, Polly?"
"Well, buhcawse only two things in de whole worl' worries him: He worries dat he has to wake up to eat, an' den he worries dat he hab to stop eatin' to go to sleep. Ah suttinly doan undahstan' dat boy."
"But how do you conclude that he is like a grasshopper?" queried the perplexed mistress.
"Jes' buhcawse he er do most m'undahstandable creature dat Ah kin think of, dat's why," she answered.—Louisville Times.

Summer Plans.
"You are going away for the summer?"
"Of course," replied Mr. Biggins; "that is to say, my family will go away. I'll stay here."
"But the climate won't be comfortable."
"I don't care anything about the climate. All I want is rest and quiet."

Fine Chance for an orator.
"Who is the principal speaker, now being introduced?"
"I don't know. I heard the master of ceremonies mention his name when he began a few introductory remarks, but that was so long ago I have forgotten what it was."

A Long Vulgarian.
"This seems to be a very exclusive restaurant."
"Yes, indeed. Why, even the waiters are perfect gentlemen. The only coarse person one ever sees here is the proprietor, and I don't suppose it would be possible to exclude him."

Worse Things to Talk About.
"HUMAN pride takes curious forms."
"For instance?"
"I know a man who never tires of bragging about his patent sardine can, for which he paid $6.60."

Brain the Huffer.
Mary—Speaking of animals, which is your favorite?
Hazel—The bear.
Mary—Oh, yes; of course.

Maybe a Peanut.
"Why do you think he has a family tree?"
"Because he's a nut."

Balancing the Scale.
"Isn't that song rather low?"
"Yes, that's why I'm slinging it at the top of my voice."

Its Outcome.
"Who won at the tea fight?"
"Nobody. It was a drawn battle."—Baltimore American.

A new girl put in an appearance this morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Humphrey. All parties getting along fine.

The Woman's Home Mission will meet at the Methodist Church next Wednesday at 3 p. m. All members are requested to be present.

The game of ball, played at Roswell last Sunday, resulted in the defeat of the Fort Stanton team, the score being Roswell 14, Stanton 2.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Vaughn, in El Paso Tuesday, a wee girlie. Mother and child doing nicely and "Kid" is standing up bravely.

W. J. Broocke, a hustling farmer on Little Creek, was here Monday and Tuesday, in attendance upon the sessions of the county road board.

P. E. Lacey and family and Mrs. Victoria Thompson and children left Monday for an outing on the Ruidoso. They expect to return about the first.

We handle Flour, Feed and Stock Salt. Just received a car of fine Alfalfa and Oat Hay. And we are always pleased to quote prices. Humphrey Bros.

Thos. J. Johnson came in last week from Arizona and is spending a couple of weeks with his parents and family. Tom has been a way about four years, but time appears to have dealt kindly with him.

Mrs. Alice Brown, who has been spending a couple of weeks on her homestead three miles south of town, will leave Monday for Los Angeles, to be gone three months, during which time she will visit the two coast fairs.

Porty Humphrey was here Saturday from his Little Creek home. Mrs. R. J. Forest and children returned Wednesday from a visit to Arizona.

Henry Lutz leaves this afternoon for San Antonio, Texas, to look after a wool consignment.

Louis Lalone left last week for Miami, Arizona, where he has an acceptance of work in the mines.

Roy Baird left Tuesday night for a visit to his old home in Mason, Texas. Roy expects to be absent about thirty days.

Dr. and Mrs. Watson have returned from a week's outing on the Tularosa and Ruidoso. The streams were so high and muddy, however, that they met with little success fishing.

Silas May and John Grayson were here Saturday and Sunday from Tucumcari, having come by the way of Roswell in an auto. They drove over to Bonito Monday.

Miss Nelle Coomes, of Evansville, Indiana, arrived last Sunday to visit her sister, Mrs. J. E. Bell here. Miss Coomes has visited here before, and thinks our climate ideal.

Mrs. Rogers, mother of Arthur Rogers, Fort Stanton, and Mrs. Dave Parker, Alto, came in Monday night from Alpine, Texas, and went over to Capitán next morning to visit her children.

Ed Roberts and family arrived last week from St. Louis and drove over to the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Brown, near Bonito. Mr. Roberts is a son of Mrs. Brown and they will spend part of the summer in the mountains of Lincoln county.

Evangelistic Services At White Oaks

Beginning Sunday afternoon there will be held evangelistic services each day during the entire week at the Congregational church at White Oaks, at 7:30 in the evening. The preaching will be by Rev. E. D. Lewis. Everybody come.

Off For a Fish

Syl G. Anderson, George Olney and Thos. C. Fitzpatrick left last Friday for the Mesquero Indian Reservation, and are now engaged (possibly) in pulling big ones out of the Tularosa. This stream is said to be well stocked with speckled beauties, and we anticipate some good fish stories when the boys return.

County Road Board Holds Session

The Lincoln County Road Board met in the court house Monday, and continued its session far into the night before completing its labors. Chairman J. W. Laws, Secretary and Treasurer J. B. French and Member Paul Mayer were present, as well as Harry B. Dawson, clerk of the board.

With reference to a petition presented by Dr. F. H. Johnson for a change in the Capitán-Patos road, the petitioner was instructed to secure additional names on his petition, forward same to Member Mayer, who would present the matter to the county commissioners.

H. E. Keller was authorized to warn out men on what is known as the Keller road and to work the road from the Bonito to the Mesa, giving receipts for work performed. The board agreed to meet the amount of work with a cash appropriation equal to the amount of work done.

The board expressed its desire we should have a slashing good ball game Sunday; and the boys will appreciate your presence and can use the cash.

Some extensive improvements on the streets are being made this week under the supervision of W. M. Barnett. The streets that were graded two years ago are again getting an overhauling.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Biles and son, Wyth, arrived the past week from Plainview, Texas, and will probably spend the summer here. Mrs. Biles is a sister of A. W. and J. R. Adams and also related to the Gray family.

Mrs. Mamie R. Grumbles and daughter, Miss Ida, returned last week from San Diego and other California points. They not only visited the exposition at San Diego, but saw much of the Golden state while absent.

William Chisholm returned the past week from El Paso, where he had been in the hospital as a result of an injury received on the road some two months ago. His hand is still in bad shape and will be permanently injured—if not almost useless.

Trains are expected to start through east tonight. Every effort is being made by the company to repair the broken bridge above Duran. Mails, passenger traffic and freight shipments have been in a great jam as a result of the break in the line.

to work in harmony with the State Highway Commission in the disposition of the half a million dollar bond sale, and went on record in favoring the proposition to put up two per cent in the difference of the par value of the bonds and their selling price, Lincoln county's share being $240.00.

W. R. White was authorized to warn out men in his locality, work the Bonito, Crockett Canon, pipe line road and to issue receipts for such work.

The petition for the purchase of the Gonzales toll bridge and calling for the establishment of a road on the west side of the Bonito was referred to the county commissioners; with certain adverse comments, however.

Plans for future work include Corona, Nogal, road and Nogal hill, Alto country, Ruidoso, work on which is now under way; Carrizozo and all emergency work as it may arise.

Bills were approved and warrants drawn amounting to about $2750.00.

Ruidoso Items

Splendid rains on the 'Doso, crops fine and everyone pleased.

First cutting of alfalfa put up in first class shape, and second crop just about ready to cut.

Ruidoso school district is going to build a modern room to its school house, and the directors will employ two teachers for next term.

Quite a lot of campers on the Ruidoso, too numerous to mention.

Base Ball Sunday

Manager Rolland announces a game of ball on the local grounds Sunday, between our team and the El Paso shop team. Carrizozo cleaned up on the visitors the last time they were here; let us all go out Sunday and see if the matter is repeated.
