School Notes

Mrs. Cather's and Mrs. Massie's rooms gave a sale of home-made candy Thursday noon, with the usual excellent patronage.

In fact, a large quantity of candy found an almost immediate sale. This popular plan of raising money was revived to provide funds in the various rooms for the purchase of reference books for supplementary work, as prescribed in the manuals containing courses of study.

Each of the grades toward the high school will have a table of this nature, and the books purchased become the permanent property of the various departments.

The next page of the annual will give a continuation of the school's work during the past year, and a list of the names of the various departments.

The following are the names of the various departments: English, Latin, Greek, etc.

Must Punish Bandits

Washington, Jan. 13.—Eliseo Arredondo, ambassador designate of the de facto government of Mexico, called at the state department today and personally assured Secretary Lansing that Carranza troops had been dispatched to western Chihuahua with orders to kill or capture the bandits concerned in the slaying of American citizens.

He said every Carranza soldier in northern Mexico would be pressed into service, if necessary. By a statement later, Mr. Arredondo said that the men who lost their lives had attempted to reach their place of business before complete control of the region had been accomplished by the Carranza forces.

He said Carranza had ordered the troops to search for the bandits and to capture them if possible. He said the Carranza government was determined to see that the lives of American citizens in Mexico were protected.

Secretary Lansing said that the Carranza government was doing all that it could to protect the lives of American citizens in Mexico.

Catholic Church

Rev. J. H. Gilma, Pastor

There will be mass on Sunday, the 16th, at 10 o'clock a. m. Sunday school at 2 p. m.

Upon the developments depends the nature of action the United States will require. There is said to be no proof that General Villa actually made threats against all Americans, although some information to that effect has reached the department.

As for the responsibility of Carranza for the tragedy, the secretary feels that a question of facts remains to be established. The state department must know under what circumstances the Americans went into the district which they lost their lives and property.

The state department has no information regarding a draft of Carranza's troops reported in Carrizozo. It is said to have caused the Carranza troops to be sent to Carrizozo.

FAKES CATCH MANY

$239,000.000 Taken From Public in Four Years.

Post Office Department Issues 56 Fraud Orders in Last Year in Effort to Stop This Wholesale Victimization.

Washington, D. C.—Investigations conducted by government officers show that fraudulent schemes have taken from the public more than $239,000,000 in the last four years.

In one case the inspectors reported that during the last year a man received $46,500 from the sale of a metal finger ring, called an electro-chemical ring.

"The following diseases," reads that fakers' literature, "are caused by acid in the blood and are cured by this ring, which takes from one day to two weeks after the ring commences to work.

A fraud order was issued against a woman because she claimed to be able to give any person of great aversion a form like Venus without any discomfort.

One man claimed to have a list of 400 widows all matrimonially inclined some of them having such additional attraction as $20,000 who wanted to get in communication with life companions.

WIDOW 27 WITHOUT CHILDREN Looking for a friend for life, must be energetic and willing worker, have income of $150 a month.

As soon as anyone replied a plain graph of a good looking Polish woman was sent to the inquirer.

Another man had wonderful powers of observation when his palm was examined with gold according to representations made persons in many parts of the country.

Not all the persons against whom fraud orders were issued played on the susceptibilities of health or the sentimental side of persons to get their money.

A northwestern "company" used this advertisement "Girls do you want to earn $100 and have your photo used in advertising a new brand of chewing gum?"

A New Englander sold "lucky stones" at $1 each which he purchased by the thousands at from 24 to 16 cents apiece.

GET BEST OF CARE

Interned German Sailors Are Allowed Many Privileges.

Have Little Farm, Keep Poultry and Get Beer From City—Buy Baseball Equipment and Try to Learn the Game.

Norfolk, Va.—Perhaps nowhere else in the world, not even in their own country, could the welfare and personal comfort of 555 Germans be better looked after than in the case of this number of the Kaiser's subjects now interned at the Norfolk navy yard on the auxiliary cruisers Eitel Friedrich and Kronprinz Wilhelm.

While recent orders of the navy department have for the time being put a stop to the liberty formerly granted the crews of the two ships, they are still accorded every courtesy to make their stay on shipboard as pleasant as possible.

Secretary Daniels some months ago issued an order banishing wine beer or any other intoxicants from American warships.

The navy department permitted the Germans to cultivate a tract of land near the pier where their ships are moored, and this miniature farm is really a greater attraction for visitors than are the former sea raiders themselves.

Their garden is filled with potatoes, cabbages, tomatoes and other "truck." They also have quite a number of fowl—geese, chickens and a few ducks.

The Germans have provided unique and attractive little homes for their fowl, in America a place where chickens roost is called a "henhouse."

Captain Thierichens of the Eitel Friedrich and Captain Thierfelder of the Kronprinz Wilhelm were seen recently standing on the pier at which their ships were moored watching a number of men from both ships trying to learn baseball.

Captain Thierichens apparently takes more interest in things American than does Captain Thierfelder, who appears to be downhearted; he says he would rather be fighting than remain here with nothing to do.

Doctor Krugneck, one of the officers missing from the Wilhelm, is said to have wept bitterly every time he received a letter from home or wrote one of his relatives.

"He lost brothers and cousins in the war," Captain Thierfelder told a friend who had noticed the doctor weeping.

A German officer never breaks his word," he said. "I gave my word for all my men, and those who violate my confidence will be punished if they are caught."

Washington society has come to expect the unexpected from Miss Gladys Ingalls, daughter of the late president of the Big Four and other railroad systems and so they were not surprised when it became "bruited about" Washington that she was to take up chess on raising in addition to her many other activities.

Tulsa, Okla.—Miss Ada Boyd of Wyandotte is so large that a tray was required to convey her from a railway station to a hospital to undergo an operation.

Highway Improvement

SUPERIOR RURAL ROAD WORK

Suggestions to Communities for the Construction and Maintenance of Country Highways.

That full value may be received for the money appropriated for road purposes and that the best results obtainable may be secured it is essential that the right man shall be placed in charge of road work.

It is not sufficient, however, to let the matter rest with the appointment of a road overseer. He should receive the whole-hearted support of the community in the work.

Where the road overseer has had but little experience in road work, or where some new and difficult problem is presented to the experienced man, the office of public roads and rural engineering of the U. S. department of agriculture when requested, will offer advice and suggestions for carrying on the work and how best to overcome the difficulties.

To secure a satisfactory road of any type, it is absolutely necessary to remember: First, drainage; second, drainage; and third, drainage. The earth road, properly cared for, will answer satisfactorily for the traffic of many rural sections that cannot afford the better types of roads; but the earth road must be well drained.

With the exception of sandy roads, which are easiest for traveling when damp, all roads must have proper side ditches to carry away the surface water. In order to lead this surface water to the ditch, the road surface must have a crown, or rounded top, highest in the center and sloping toward the side ditches.

An Improved Road in Pennsylvania.

the split-log drag, is explained in Farmers' Bulletin 597, copies of which may be obtained upon application to the department.

After the road has been crowned and the crown is kept in condition by the wise use of the road drag, it should be seen to that ditches are kept free from weeds, etc., and that they are deep enough to carry off the water which runs into them.

Every Farmer Concerned. The improvements of good roads and ditches is a matter which concerns every farmer who desires to increase the value of his land or the farm property of the community in which he resides as a whole.

Crown Roads Before Drizzling. Before dragging a road it ought to be crowned properly and the drainage attended to—in other words, put into good condition and then the work of taking care of it will give the best results.

MAKING THE BEST OF BEANS

Way That They Were Prepared a Generation Ago Will Be Found Hard to Improve Upon.

In the Woman's Home Companion the cookery editor devotes a page to good old-fashioned dishes. A dozen recipes are given for dishes that were popular a generation ago.

"Pick over three cupsful of pea beans, cover with cold water and soak for several hours. Drain, put in steamer, cover with fresh water, heat gradually to the boiling point and let simmer until skins will burst, which is best determined by taking a few beans on the tip of a spoon and blowing on them, when skins will burst if sufficiently cooked.

"The reason that we, as homemakers, are obliged to put up with unskilled and inefficient assistance is because we do not do our share in training the raw material," said Mrs. Good Housewife with some emphasis.

RULES OF THE HOUSEHOLD

One Woman Writes Out What She Wants Done and Thereby Gets Results.

"What a cheerful man he is," "Yes, indeed. You can't hit him a hard luck story that will rob him of his smile."

To Grease Cake Pans.

To prevent layer of loaf-cake sticking to the pan, grease the latter well with butter, sift in flour to cover every part, then shake out all the flour that does not adhere to the pan, and pour in your cake dough.

Don't Neglect Kidneys

Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Prescription, Overcomes Kidney Trouble

It is now conceded by physicians that the kidneys should have more attention as they control the other organs to a remarkable degree and do a tremendous amount of work in removing the poisons and waste matter from the system by filtering the blood.

The kidneys should receive some assistance when needed. We take less exercise, drink less water and often eat more rich, heavy food, thereby forcing the kidneys to do more work than nature intended.

An ideal herbal compound that has had most remarkable success as a kidney and bladder remedy is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. There is nothing else like it.

In the great and glorious land of the free one has to pay for the drinks in order to get a whack at the free lunch.

Churches in New York realize the great advantages of advertising, and besides using the columns of the daily papers in their soul-saving work and electric signs and crosses on their edifices they send out solicitors, men and women, to help swell their congregations and enlarge their Sunday schools.

THE VERY TIME When Powerful Food is Most Needed.

The need of delicate yet nutritious food is never felt so keenly as when a convalescent gets a set back or account of weak stomach. Then is when Grape-Nuts shows its power for it is a most scientific and easily digested food.

"About a year ago," writes a Kansas woman, "my little six-year-old niece left the invigorating and buoyant air of Kansas, where all her life she had enjoyed fairly good health, to live in Ohio. She naturally had a change of diet and of course a change of water, and somehow she contracted typhoid fever."

"After a long siege her case seemed hopeless, doctors gave her up, and she was nothing but skin and bones, couldn't eat anything and for weeks did not know even her father or mother. Her parents, in trying to get something delicate and nourishing that she could eat, finally hit upon Grape-Nuts food and it turned out to be just the thing."

"She seemed to relish it, was soon conscious of her surroundings and began to gain strength so rapidly that in a short time she was as well, playful and robust as if she had never been ill."

"We all feel that Grape-Nuts was the predominating factor in saving the sweet little girl's life."

Stockmen's Guaranty Co. Ready for Business

A meeting of the stockholders of the Stockmen's Guaranty Loan company, organization of which has been under way for the past year, has been called at the company's offices in its home office building in Albuquerque, for January 22, when a board of fifteen directors will be chosen to assume the guidance of the company's extensive business operations, co-operating with the officers who will be elected at the same meeting. Success for this company means important advantages for the livestock interests of New Mexico, since the company's purpose will be the negotiating live stock loans, securing the capital in eastern money centers and relieving the stock growing interests of the state of the handicap of the old time borrowing condition.

The Stockmen's Guaranty Loan company, a co-operative organization of stockmen, organized under the laws of New Mexico with an authorized capital stock of $500,000, fills almost exactly the demands voiced over and over again by leading stockmen of the southwest, for a livestock loan bank which will be organized for and prepared to give quick and low rate accommodation to large and small live stock operations, when properly secured. While the company will in no sense do a banking business, it will bring its stockholders into close touch with large sources of money and its operations will have the effect of bringing large sums of foreign capital into the state, as well as to keep at home the huge sums of money which New Mexico stock interests, directly and indirectly, send out of state every year in the form of interest on their financial accommodations.

A. G. Whittier, New Mexico state traveling auditor, has just made public a report covering a scrutinizing examination of the affairs of the company, made December 4-6, in which he gives the company a clear bill of financial stability, finding in his conclusions that the company's plan of operations is sound, that the company is on a thoroughly solvent basis, and that its officers are building a corporation which should work for the good of the state. Copies of the report, which have been printed in the Albuquerque papers, show it to be one of the strongest bills of health ever given a new corporation in New Mexico. The report is of special interest since it shows that the company, by assuming direct supervision of its stock salesmen and full control of its fiscal agent, have corrected the only source of complaint against it. W. C. Oestreich, the president, and other men directly interested in its organization, stand high in the Albuquerque financial community, and the company will begin its active career under very favorable conditions for service to the live stock interests and to the development of the state.

Gold Imports

The year just closed was of unusual interest with respect to the enormous flow of gold into the United States from Europe, mainly a result of the greatly increasing balance of trade in favor of this country since the outbreak of the war. For the first 10 months of 1915 the imports of gold were $345,360,973, of which $216,302,182 came by way of Canada and $28,214,049 from England direct, $24,246,139 from Australia, $19,050,810 from Japan, $13,460,700 from South America, $11,519,880 from France, $9,998,389 from the West Indies, and $6,282,182 from Mexico. The exports of gold for the same period were $15,875,480, of which $13,975,450 went to the West Indies. The imports of gold in 1914 were $57,387,741 and the exports were $222,616,156.

A Partnership Change.

A change in partners has taken place in the firm of Patty & Adams, the market-grocery north of the postoffice. A. W. Adams disposed of his interest to W. L. Eighteen Americans Killed

The killing of eighteen Americans by a group of Villa bandits Monday, near Chihuahua, has stirred this whole country to its depths. The Americans had been induced to re-enter Mexico and re-open their mining properties in the district, promised by Carranza and Obregon that they would be guaranteed protection. On the contrary, they were refused an escort, for which their respective companies offered to pay, and met their death at the hands of a band of assassins.

These men were taken from a train near Chihuahua, beaten and abused and finally shot down one by one. Only Americans were molested by the bandits, as the command was when the train stopped. "All gringos step out, please." The train, bearing a large number of Mexicans, who were not molested, was allowed to proceed to its destination. A lone survivor, who escaped the bandits' attention, tells a thrilling tale of the bloodthirsty manner in which the Americans met death and the assertion is positively made that General Villa himself was in charge of the assassination.

During the long conflict in Mexico in which many outrages have been committed, nothing equals this last in stirring up resentment in this country against the Carranza government. While it is true the United States and the Central and South American states have recognized Carranza as the head of the de facto government of the republic of Mexico, the sentiment in this country is generally in favor of some form of intervention, at least if Carranza fails to put an end to the outrages in that country. While thoughtful men will concede that Carranza should have a chance to redeem his pledge with respect to his ability to carry the warring elements within the borders of the country, who are to be a source of authority, it is all agreed that the limit of patience has about been reached, and that satisfaction must be secured for the commission of past outrages and a more substantial assurance that they shall not be repeated.

After the expenditure of a vast sum of treasure and the loss of thousands of men, the allies have abandoned the attack on the Dardanelles. Where immensely greater battles have been fought and the slaughter much larger, the failure of the allies to take Constantinople through the Dardanelles is the greatest blow that the allies have experienced.

The national Progressive committee has called the convention of that party for Chicago on the same date as that of the republican party, with the expressed hope and belief that the two parties can unite on a candidate for the presidency. The progressives assert that if the republicans nominate a progressive and write a progressive platform they will be ready to support candidate and platform.

The republican elephant which walked all over Teddy two years ago is casting longing, lingering glances in the direction of Oyster Bay. The Colonel is flirting, too, and a coalition is in prospect.

The Teuton drive through Serbia, the withdrawal of the allies from before Constantinople, even if the allies win in the end, must have the effect of prolonging the war. The way is now open for the Teutons to secure everything the Turks have to offer in food, ammunition, etc., and, considering the vast territory over which the Turk holds sway in Asia, that aid may be of material benefit to the central powers.

University Enrollment Doubled In Two Years

Enrollment of students at the New Mexico State University for the second semester, which began January 4, totalled 220 at the end of the first week, an increase of 24 over the total enrollment of the first half year period, and of more than fifty over the total enrollment of last year. It is an increase of one hundred per cent over that of two years ago. The increase in the second semester's enrollment is especially gratifying to the University government, since it was largely a voluntary increase. With the University dormitories well filled and additional cottages for students being built, no special effort was made to induce new students to enter for the second half-year period. The volunteers prove the growing influence of the university and the new students give representation in the student body from every county in the state for the first time since the university was established.

Conservative estimates predict a freshman class of 100 or more for next year and a total enrollment that will be well over 300.

Methodist Church

"Preparedness" is the war over. No neither is the war against sin at the Methodist church. The evangelistic services will continue through next week. Good music—special music at every service. "Preparedness" will be the theme Sunday night at 7:30. Sunday school Sunday morning at 9:45. Junior church at 2 and 3. Senior League at 6:30. You come, and don't come alone. Strangers welcome. Come to the "friendly church."

Big Express Shipment

This station broke its record Wednesday in a single express shipment, not only in weight but in value, as well. Indeed, it is unlikely that a similar shipment was ever made in the state. The shipment consisted of 10,000 pounds of tungsten from White Oaks, the shipper being the White Oaks Mines, Consolidated. Another novelty connected with the shipment was that it was not a short haul—it went to Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. The demand for this product is so great that the steel mills couldn't wait for the slow process of freight; hence the quicker but far more costly method of transportation. As tungsten has a market value of $45 to $55 per unit, owing to its grade, or $2.25 to $2.50 per pound, some idea of the value of the shipment may be obtained.

WE'D have a fine sort of a world if we permitted unproved, untried, untested men to leap in and abrogate what pleases their vanity. Our battleships would rust in the docks—there would be no stokers—every sailor would be strutting about the decks in the cocked hat of a near admiral.

The Stock Industry and the Telephone

No single industry derives more benefit from a comprehensive telephone service than does the stock business.

Telephone service unites the breeder, the shipper and the market in a community of interest.

The market uses telephone service in canvassing the territory of supply.

The breeder uses telephone service in keeping in touch with demand.

The shipper uses telephone service to keep himself informed as to market conditions.

The ranchman uses telephone service in the economical handling of his stock on the range—in feeding, in negotiations with buyers and in securing cars and making other shipping arrangements.

Altogether, comprehensive telephone service is a valuable factor in the growth and development of the stock industry.

THE LITTLE TOWN

By KIN HUBBARD.

Stew Nugent is at home t' put his feet under his mother's table. He has been t' th' city for three years an' says that th' trouble with a little town is that ever-buddy knows ever-buddy else's business. That's th' reason Stew went away three years ago, an' it's one o' th' best things about a little town. You know who your next door neighbor is in a little town an' you know who lives over th' hardware store. An' you know whos able t' have a fourin' car an' you know whos able t' own one.

memory o' ole scenes an' faces grows greener an' greener as th' years roll by an' many a time th' heart aches with a longin' t' go back. In th' great city parks th' benches are filled with poor unfortunates from th' little towns who have tried hard an' failed. Pride alone keeps em from returnin' t' th' ole home town an' they become aimless wanderers on th' face o' th' earth an' are lost an' forgotten in th' mist o' time.

A four flusher hat seems t' be cut out for th' artificiality o' th' city, an' that's where he ought t' live. But if you want t' live a honest, quiet,

Some fellers apologize fer livin' in a little town. When you ask 'em where th'ir from they color up an' stammer an' stutter an' say, "I—er—why—I'm from Rosenville—that is my folks live ther. Well, I've been livin' ther too, but I'm thinkin' o' goin' t' Chicago. Ther's no opportunities in a little town for a young man. An' when you also him up you can't help picturin' what a furry little cause when he gets ther. O' course lots o' folks that go t' th' city succeed, but they've got th' ole home metal in 'em. But whether they succeed or fail, th'

And She Usually Does. The same girl may appear divine to a young man; divine to th' disinterested observer, and feline to another woman. — Louisville Courier Journal.

Wishes in Honduras. Honduras is a rich country and its resources remain t' almost a virgin condition. It possesses a climate that varies with its topography, the temperature on the coast being hot, in the lowlands of the interior it is warm, and in the mountains it is temperate and in some places cold. Its mountains are covered with minerals, and its tablelands and valleys are especially adapted for raising cattle and for agriculture.

Adage Traced to Bible. "A little bird told me," is an almost universal adage based on the idea that this ubiquitous wanderer from the vantage of the upper air spies out all strange and secret things and tells them to those who can understand. Thus in Ecclesiastes 10:20: "Curse not the king; nor in any thought, add curse to the rich; for by th' bed-chamber; for the bird of the air shall carry th' voice, and that which hath wings shall tell th' matter."

The Beauty Spot

By WARREN E. BOYDEN

With a rude shock the gentle current of an ideal girlhood life was abruptly changed into the fierce, raging torrent of tragedy. It came about to Lura Denison on a slumberously peaceful June afternoon and in a garden redolent with the swaying odors of violets and roses.

This was the situation: She was one of a party of friends visiting Eldene, the pretty summer resort at Crystal Lake. Lura was only a school teacher and dependent on her own employment for a living. She was one of a coterie however representing exclusiveness as to wealth and social position. She could not dress as richly as her cousins, the Worthingtons, but her garb was neat, tasteful, her figure perfect, her face beautiful and her manner full of sweetness and fascination.

To the power of those kindly magnetic eyes Clyde Rawson had paid full tribute. He was a favorite with everybody, a heedless, impulsive young fellow, awed by the end of his resources, but enjoying his "last dash of folly," as he termed it, before going forth to grapple with the practical issues of life.

From all Lura had learned he had recently been discarded by a rich uncle. It was not that Clyde was dissipated, but in his independent way he had gone contrary to the wishes of his mandatory relative. There had been a tiff, and Clyde had left home with the announcement that he need depend upon John Griffiths for no further financial help.

"It's sort of rough to have your expectations cut off all of a sudden," Clyde confidentially told Lura. "But a certain half cousin of mine is willing to truckle and lie to Uncle John, while I am not. Perhaps it's a good thing for me, though," he added ingeniously, "for I was leading an idle, motiveless life."

And now just at this moment Lura, half hidden by the thick verdure of a tall flowering shrub, stood gazing positively, almost sadly at Clyde Rawson, lying fast asleep in a hammock. She had always admired his frank, chivalric character. She had quite cherished certain tender words he had spoken to her. Lura was going back to the hard dull grind of a little red school house within two days. She wondered if they would ever meet again—more than that, if she could ever forget him!

Even as he slumbered, the inevitable sunny smile of perfect love for the world and all its creatures lingered upon the handsome face. Lura's heart beat faster, as she noted that he wore in his buttonhole a dainty little straw flower she had given him the day previous. Then she drew back, for there was a rustle in the opposite shrubbery. She flushed not only at the thought of anyone discovering her regarding thus raptly the object of her interest. She seized the tennis racket she carried in one hand, more closely, and was about to fly when her face grew deadly pale. She uttered a quick gasp. Then, with an inarticulate cry she sprang clear of her ambush.

A form had become vaguely outlined in the opposite bush. A hand was thrust forward. It held a leveled revolver and it was pointed direct at the sleeping man in the hammock. For an instant only Lura caught sight of a dark sinister face behind the weapon. She craved air.

Crack!—a quick, terrifying report rang out, but not before Lura had reached the side of the hammock. She was on her knees then, her arms about the sleeper, raising him. She felt a stinging contact on one cheek, then waiting about, she prepared to scream for help, when she noted that the wretched would-be assassin was appealing for his life away from the spot.

Lura was reeling with the reaction from the great strain of excitement. She almost collapsed. Springing to his feet, Clyde Rawson seized her swaying form.

"Miss Denison—Lura!" he cried incoherently, "what has happened? I was asleep. I fancied I heard an explosion—"

"Yes," faltered Lura, withdrawing from his clasp. "Oh, Mr. Rawson! you must go away from here. Someone just now tried to kill you. A dark-faced, tall man with a head of crisp curly hair. He fired at you. I got in front of you. The bullet must have struck the hard wooded tennis racket. It rebounded to my cheek—"

"You risked your life—for me!" voiced Clyde, his tones trembling with vivid emotion. "Poor, dear cheek! It is marred! You might have been killed—for me! Oh, my friend, my more than friend!"

He had clasped her in his arms with a fervor that made her helpless. Gently, reverently, his lips swept the abraded cheek. Then he held her at arms length, his eyes met her own fairly scintillating with the overpowering emotions that filled his grateful, loyal soul.

"Listen to me, Miss Denison—Lura," he spoke, "you have described a man whom I know. For only one reason would he seek my life. The existence of that reason I must at once explore. Please let me see you safely to the hotel."

In a moment he was the calm, courteous gentleman he ever presented. He spoke no other word. He only lifted his hat politely as they reached the hotel. Half an hour later, in her room Lura was handed a large envelope, sealed. A note accompanied it and it read:

"I am handing you my will. If anything happens to me, and I really have anything, it is left to you to battle an evil genius who seeks my death. I expect to return tomorrow. I must see you then, at all hazards."

What strange circumstance was this! Lura was fluttering, amazed, mystified. When she went from her room again she wore a tiny patch of adhesive plaster over the spot on her cheek. The bullet had barely grazed it, but had left a visible abrasion on the skin. Her friends rallied her as to her "beauty spot," but Lura made no explanation.

Her fair cheek tingled whenever she thought of Clyde Rawson, with joy and pride because she had saved his life, with longing hope because the memory of that kiss at least presaged heartfelt gratitude and devotion.

She was in the garden of the hotel that next evening, wondering when Clyde would return, wondering, too, if he would return at all, when a form came hurrying towards the garden bench where she was resting.

It was Clyde Rawson, bright, brisk, eager, light spirited. He sat down beside her. He caught both her hands and looked her in the eyes. His friendly frankness disarmed her. She could not resist the magnetism of his presence.

"I have come with great news, with strange news," he said at once. "My one thought was of you—of you, who saved my life at the risk of your own."

His assailant had been his renegade cousin. As Clyde had suspected, the motive had been to put him out of the way as the heir to the property of Mr. Griffith that the cousin and his friends might inherit.

"I am rich now, Lura," he told her. "I have given it out that in case of my death the disposition of my property is left to the woman I love, the woman to whom I have hastened to ask her to become my wife."

"You mean—you mean," faltered Lura, "poor little humble me!" "Who else?" questioned Clyde—"only you would have known that long ago, but I was so poor. But now—and he kissed the "beauty spot" that was a reminder of the unalterable devotion of a noble soul.

Illustrating the Idea. A school inspector was examining a class in grammar, and trying to elucidate the complex relations of adjectives and nouns by a telling example. "Now, for instance," said he, "what am I?"

"That was an easy question, and all the children shouted.

"A man!" and then looked round triumphantly.

"Yes, but what else?" said the inspector.

This was not so easy, but after a pause a boy ventured to suggest:

"A little man."

"Yes, but there is something more than that."

This was a poser, but at last an infant phenomenon almost leaped from his seat in his eagerness, and cried:

"Please, sir, I know, sir—an ugly little man!"

His Woe Witticism. "I made a—er—hm!—pun yesterday!" boasted skippy little Mr. Meek.

"My wife bought from an agent a book entitled 'The Truth About the War,' and I believe after she got it she was sorry she had done so. Perhaps she supposed until she examined it that it was a suitcase book, although I am not sure about that part. Anyway, I said: 'The truth is smitely and will prevail'—se-hel-neh—just like that. And she smote me on the head with the volume. I was so proud of my wit that really the blow did not hurt much."

His "Happy Training." "A two-cent stamp, please," said the lady at the stamp window of the post office.

"Yes, ma'am," replied the new clerk who had just graduated from a department store. "Will you take it along or have it sent?"

IN LITTLE ANDORRA

STREET SCENE IN ANDORRA LA VIELLA

WHEN the president of Andorra sent a message to President Wilson, many an American was compelled to hunt up on the map the location of the tiny republic in the Pyrenees. "Who has ever been in Andorra?" asked the Chicago Evening Post, and in reply Marlon H. Drake wrote: "In the summer of 1913 I tried to reach this quaint, ancient and hidden republic from the Spanish side, but could gain no assurance from any tourist office in Madrid that it was accessible, so I went the long way around, via Barcelona, Perpignan, Arcasonne, Toulouse, Foix and Ax-les-Thermes, in France. Here I was warned that the trip was dangerous, that there were smugglers and brigands and terrible mountain storms, and that a woman who took this trip might not return alive. This only whetted my traveler's spirit, and I bought a pair of homp-colored shoes, packed a knapsack, strapped a camera over my shoulder and went by post-chaise to L'Hospitallet, where I engaged as guide an Andorran boy, handsome, respectful and neatly dressed in brown corduroy, who was the first night at Souldou, where I found good food, white tablecloth and napkins and slept in a room with a rough stone floor, on a good bed, with embroidered sheets and pillow slips. "The people were kindly, interested in the news of the outside world, courteous, some quiet and some loquacious. "I was now in the valley of the Valira river, which flows south into Spain and over the rocky road from Canillo and Encamp I passed churches built of the brownish gray stones of the country, with Catalan bell towers. At Andorra la Vella, the capital, they were celebrating their day of liberty, and their flags of yellow, blue and red—the blended colors of Spain the spiritual and France the temporal mother—were flying in summer sunshine. I walked into Las Escaldas late in the afternoon, passing bubbling sulphur springs, and was greeted hospitably by Doctor Pla, the cultured proprietor of a first-class hostelry. My little guide left me to return to the dirty, muddy town of L'Hospitallet. I bade him farewell in French, and he replied in Catalan, the Andorran tongue. At Las Escaldas hotel I found many fat Spanish priests, gay and working at the dirty little inn, hired a mountain horse, and with suppressed excitement started out over the rocky pathway back of the rude little church of this far-south town of France.

"I mounted higher and higher above the rushing Aricge river, sometimes tramping and sometimes on horseback over the watershed between France and Spain, up into the pastoral country of Andorra. Once when my horse was picking his way along a mountain ledge a fat cow stood calmly across the pathway. I looked far up the mountain and down in the depths of the valley and wondered what would happen, when, quietly, apparently without noticing me, Mrs. Cow threw her weight on her hind legs and tobogganed down the slippery grass. A drenching rain poured from the clouds, lightning played around the mountain peaks, and it was thrilling to be in that lonely grandeur.

Hard Trip in Mountains. I walked and rode over loose stones, on narrow and fearsome ledges, at times above and often below cascades, over hard, sharp, cutting, slippery slats, past quaint stone thrines with iron crosses, tiny terraced fields of vegetables and tobacco, perpendicular hayfields amid the wonderful stillness of the lofty Pyrenees and the noisy, rushing torrents. I waded through trickling, cool brooks, where rivers were born and stopped jolly, who had come for the sulphur baths, as well as numerous Andorran slans, up in the cool Pyrenees for their holiday.

Raise Many Cattle. Andorra has six counties, about a dozen towns and some five thousand inhabitants.

The chief occupation of the people is cattle raising, and thousands upon thousands of cows may be seen browsing in the rich pastures, yet it has never occurred to Andorrans to milk these cows and butter, and milk are unknown in the republic. Dairy products are nonexistent. The only cheese made is that from the milk of sheep. Visitors find it impossible to procure milk or cream for their coffee.

The capital, Andorra la Vella, has a population of 500 and contains the Casa de la Vall, or house of representatives. This is a large sixteenth-century building at the extremity of the town, overlooking the valley toward Spain. It is parliament house, town hall, school, palace of justice and hotel for the councilors' all in one. It is also used as a temporary prison in the rare cases when a prison is necessary. Crime in Andorra is practically unknown. The only Andorrans suffering imprisonment are the smugglers of tobacco caught by the French or Spanish customs officers, and these are not looked upon as malefactors by their fellow citizens. Smuggling is regarded as a legitimate trade.

President Wilson's Old Typewriter Cannot Spell

WASHINGTON.—When President Wilson writes a message to congress it looks something like this: "In addition to which the machine's alphabet is badly chewed as to legs and shoulders. The space bar suffers from intermittent paralysis. Some of the letters are virtually mute. Others have bold, black faces. The ribbon is about as fresh and whole as a battle flag in a museum. The mechanism generally is decrepit, and limps heavily through the affairs of state only under the severest presidential goading. Mr. Wilson admits it is far from faultless, but he likes it, and he is very proud of the fact that it has no hyphen.

You couldn't get a typewritten line out of the president on any machine but this one—not even with a dark lantern and a jimmy. White House humorists say he has hand-raised the poor old thing so long he has developed a personal attachment for it. If so, that is the only valuable attachment it has.

For years and years the ancient machine has endured professorial, authorial and presidential pecking. And pecking is right, for Mr. Wilson is a disciple of the Hunt system, or—foregoing hesitation.

Wherefore it may be said that this is the only typewriter that ever had the distinction of having hesitated with a president.

The low, rakish form of this ancient, rusty friend of the president resides in his library. They understand each other's idiosyncrasies and eccentricities and they stand together at any time to battle submarines, blockades of neutral ports or a—oh, any darned thing.

Starting Lively Campaign for Trade in China

AN aggressive campaign to obtain for American business a share in the development of the enormous resources of China has been planned by the departments of state and commerce. The plan contemplates the development of an American vested interest in China that will insure to the United States a fair share of that country's foreign trade and be powerful enough to take care of itself in the complicated political and commercial situation there.

The scheme was developed by Paul S. Reinsch, minister to China; Julian H. Arnold, commercial attaché at Peking, and Dr. Edwin J. Pratt, chief of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. Mr. Reinsch brought to Washington a program framed by himself and Mr. Arnold, which was submitted to Doctor Pratt, Secretary Lansing, and other officials. It was generally indorsed, and the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce has already begun work along the lines suggested. Mr. Arnold will return to the United States this winter and tour the country to secure capital for investment in China.

State department officials have been watching commercial conditions in China since the recent granting of extensive special privileges demanded by Japan. No political steps have been taken to obtain concessions or privileges for Americans, however, and the policy of the government has been steadfastly against commercial politics such as other nations have employed in China. The plan now proposed will, it is expected, develop an American interest there which will be powerful enough to meet the competition of other nations.

Doctor Pratt pointed out that American capital was piling up as a result of the European war, and that vast sums of idle money are available for investment. The bureau expects to take advantage of every opportunity now offered in China and to have an American interest strongly entrenched there at the close of the war.

Work in the desired direction has already been begun by agents of the commerce bureau in the United States, and several New England business men are now in China closing contracts for the installation of American machinery in cotton mills built under Chinese government supervision.

White House Social Secretary Must Know a Lot

THE appointment of a new social secretary at the White House has served to direct attention to the important duties of this "official," about whom so little is usually heard and yet who wields a remarkable power in directing the social affairs of the administration.

It is generally acknowledged in Washington that the new social secretary, Miss Edith Benham, a daughter of the late Rear Admiral Benham, has brought to the post qualifications which ought to insure the success of the social regime of the new mistress of the White House.

First, the social secretary at the White House must be a lady born and bred. She must have had experience in Washington society and have learned that it is an unpardonable offense to admit the wife of a United States senator to step in or be seated at a table before the wife of an ambassador. She must know all the rules of precedence down to the dotting of the "i" and the crossing of the "t's". She must be a woman who will never forget that no one may properly precede an ambassador and his wife except the president of the United States, the vice president and the members of the cabinet and their wives.

Not only must this question of precedence be thoroughly understood by the social secretary in Washington, but she must also know each and every individual in the wealthy resident and unofficial circles. It is necessary for the invitation list maker to know the personal and social standings of all whom her employer may meet or from whom she may receive calls.

The social secretary at the White House has charge of the social mail and the visiting lists. She opens and replies to every formal note, and after conference with the mistress of the White House accepts whatever engagements she thinks should be accepted and sends regrets to those her judgment dictates she should reject. Sometimes it has been said that the White House social secretary stretches her ingenuity a little and manipulates the dates and engagements of the first lady of the land so that she may accept those which are considered especially desirable and turn down the others.

It Is No Wonder That Guard Jones Exploded

THERE is a man who stands guard near the entrance to the grounds at Mount Vernon, and while his name may not be Jones, still again it may be Jones, and Jones it must be until further information. He was attending strictly to his own business one day not long ago, when an Englishman of most pronounced type entered the gate. Mr. Jones is used to having people thrilled as they set foot upon that sacred soil, but this Englishman did not display the least sign of a thrill. He looked at Jones and asked: "What is there to be seen here, my man?"

Now, Mr. Jones is exceedingly displeased when spoken to in that fashion, and probably showed it in his reply, which was that some of the hedges of boxwood were very ancient. The wily Briton moved on and looked things over in the garden. It wasn't long before he returned to Mr. Jones, and, fixing his stolid gaze upon that warder of the sacred soil, made free to remark: "Why, I see Mr. Washington got these box trees from England."

Jones exploded.

"No, and want's more, he got this whole country from England, Good

WESTERN CANADA'S WONDERFUL YIELD

Wheat Yields Reports Extraordinarily Heavy.

When one hears of individual wheat yields of thirty-five to forty bushels per acre, there is considerable incredulity, but when yields, in whole townships extending into districts covering three and four and five hundred square miles in area, of upwards of fifty and some as high as sixty-five bushels per acre are reported, one is led to put his ear to the ground to listen for further rumblings. The writer having heard of these wonderful yields made a trip through the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, to ascertain first hand their truthfulness. It was remarkable to discover that Dame Rumor was no rumor after all, that modesty was her mantle, that all that had been said of these yields was true, and that yields of over seventy bushels per acre were told of. These were so high that the truthfulness of the story was doubtful and very little was said of them. But such there were, and not in one instance, but in several, not in one locality but scattered in places hundreds of miles apart. Leaving these out altogether, there were large areas in which the average was over fifty bushels per acre, which in all common sense ought to satisfy most people. One hundred and thirty threshers in Alberta have made their returns to the local government as required by an act of the Legislature, and the average of the wheat threshed was fifty-three bushels to the acre. So immense was the yield that official verification was required before giving it out to the public. Sitting in the smoking compartment of a day coach, where on passing through a farming community, there may be gathered the gossip yarns of the neighborhood, one bears also a lot of news. Just now, the sole topic is that of the crops. A man with more or less of a hirsute appendage, smock, clothes and hands giving the appearance of one working in the field, was asked as to the crops. He had got on at Warner, Alberta. Taking out his pipe, lighting it and then crossing his knees, holding his chin in his hands, possessing an air of supreme contentment, and with an intelligent face, he looked the man who could give some information. And he was just the man. He was a thresher and on his way to Milk River to secure some more help. He was requisitioned for information. "Yes, a good season, I've made a lot of money. As for yields, let's see," and then he began to string them off. "Peterson had 63 bushels of wheat per acre on his five hundred acre farm; from 380 acres Roland got 65 bushels per acre; Tugler had one hundred and ten acres that went 63 bushels; Carr had 65 bushels per acre off an eight hundred acre field." And he gave others running from 58 to 66 bushels per acre. All these people lived east of Warner, Alberta. Looking out of the window and seeing immense fields, still covered with stubs, he was asked why they were not threshed, he replied that there were not enough "rigs" in the district, and that they would not get through before Christmas.

An American writing of a trip he made through Western Canada says: "I went as far west as Saskatchewan, back to Regina, Moose Jaw, and down on the Soo line, and I must say that I never saw such crops, or ever heard of anything to compare with it in any country on earth. The country is over the hill, and certainly the farmers have a lot to be thankful for. There are very few of them that have done their work and done it properly but what have their debts paid and have bank accounts left."

And he only traveled the skirt of the country. The same story could be written of any part of any of three Provinces—Advertisement.

FOR THE SCHOOLGIRL

FROCK THAT COPIES FASHION OF HER ELDERS.

Attractive and Economical, It Will Be Pleasing to the Mother as Well as a Delight to the Small Wearer.

Even the little tots are sporting themselves in the contrasting material costumes that were so much in vogue in the eighties. The fashion has one thing to recommend it, and that is its economy where old clothes are to be made over. Part of Jane's and of Milly's frock would make a quite new-looking suit for Milly. Or a good skirt could be made to serve duty for a tunic of new material. As every mother knows, children are hard on their clothes.

The tunic in the patterns may be made with either long or short sleeves and with a plain hem or a scalloped bottom. The pattern makes allowances for both, and this really gives a woman two patterns for the price of one.

The writer recommends the long sleeves and, if one has the time, scalloped bottom with a narrow bias fold of a contrasting color stitched over the edge of the scallops.

The material used here is a striped and a plain gingham, and the blouse is attached to the waistband and worn with an outside belt. For dress wear there should be a dainty white lingerie collar.

Now that grown-ups wear plaited and gathered dresses the small ladies want to do the same—or their mothers want them to which amounts to the same thing. Perhaps the prettiest way of putting in gathers on little folks' frocks is the old-fashioned smocking, which has been revived and has, perhaps, never been more popular. Smocking is easily learned, and it makes a very pretty decoration to smock white frocks with colored cotton, or blue or pink linens and cotton with white embroidery cotton.

If a mother does not wish to take the trouble of making a skirt and tunic according to this pattern she can easily omit the tunic skirt.—Washing ton Star

WORK-CASE TO FIT POCKET

Most Useful and Simple Little Recipe May Be Work of a Few Idle Minutes.

A pocket work-case just to hold half a dozen needles and the contents of a reel of cotton wound upon a card is a very useful little thing, and our sketch shows a neat little article of this description. It can be made from any remnant of silk and is lined with thin silk and bound at the edges with narrow ribbon.

It folds together in the center, and the two sides are stiffened with pieces of card sewn in between the silk and the lining. Upon one side a pocket is made in which the cotton wound upon the card may be placed and on the other it shows the shape in which the case should be cut out and the corners and a small slit cut for holding the needles.

The charming model of this evening cap is made in a mushroom shape with a narrow brim of satin and a small ruff of malines over the brim. It is trimmed with large poppies with heavily beaded petals. A satin ribbon is tied under the chin to hold the hat on.

TWO GOOD CLEANING HINTS

Best Method of Removing Mildew From White Goods—For Paint Stains on Clothing.

For removing mildew from white material take one teaspoonful of chloride of lime and one teaspoonful of washing soda. Put this and the mildewed article into two quarts of cold water and let it boil for about four hours; then skim off the scum, add two pailfuls of cold water and let it stand over night with the article well covered. If this is not long enough, put the article back again and soak it until the mildew entirely disappears, then rinse well and wash in the usual way. Be sure to take off the scum, for that is what burns the material in so many of the recipes given.

To remove paint from clothes use equal parts of benzine and ammonia, rubbing with a cloth on the wrong way of the nap to get out all the paint. Then hang the garment on the clothesline to dry in the open air. When dry, if no trace of the paint is seen, brush the cloth in the proper direction. When using benzine keep away from fire.

Feathers and Furberlows.

Millinery feathers besides ostrich are cool and numerous short feathers and quills. Very short pheasant feathers are so pasted together as to resemble tiny birds with outstretched wings. Beautifully embroidered pheasant quills of diminutive size in silks carrying out the colors in the natural pheasant plumage grace a plain black velvet hat. They lie on the brim under the brim and also are arranged about the stiff collar of the crown.

Shawl Draperies.

Lace of many kinds is in request, and shawl draperies are among the most artistic touches for the evening dresses of today. Sometimes these are attached at the back and held up to the figure at the sides by bracelets of small roses made in gold gauze slipped over the arm. The low bodies of transparent stuffs is often kept in place by a chain of diamonds.

The Yellow Touch.

A dash of yellow is being extensively used this season with blue as sometimes in pipings or a wool flower tucked in the belt.

edges is sewn for the needles, and the needles selected should not be too small.

The case fastens when closed with a tab and a push button as seen in diagram A. The initials of the owner can be worked where indicated.

Panne Velvet Stylish.

It looks as if panne and mirror velvet would be more stylish than the ordinary silk pile velvet for the afternoon and evening dresses this season. Of course for the conservative woman ordinary velvet and velveteen will be worn for suits and gowns also. It is just a case of shiny surfaced velvets being more fashionable, just as they are for millinery styles in the women's materials vicuna, which looks like a very fine pongee fabric, is very smart for the long outside afternoon coats; it is to be had in magnificent colorings—deep panny, heliotrope, wine old blue, deep greens and browns. Afternoon dresses are combinations of chiffon and mirror velvet, though here and there are very good taffeta models made with ruffled by bands of metal lace and of fur. Bands of velvet replace fur on some of the less pretentious models.

Flare Below Hips.

Practically the only Paris couturier to sponsor the short sleeve on suits is Mme. Jenny, who shows them to advantage on some very youthful suits. Almost all of the suits flare below the hips and are belted in novel fashion, many being outlined in stitching. A good deal of quilting is noticed on frocks and evening gowns, but the distinguishing feature of the evening gowns is the profuse use of wonderful metallic crests and Spanish lace.
