White Oaks. Some of the members of the Methodist church, South, held a box social at the Club room last Saturday night. By securing the services of a prominent member of the heathen church, in good standing as an auctioneer, there was some lively bidding on the boxes sold and the sum of $35 realized. This will be used for repairs on their church, which for some time has had quite a swayback appearance. It is sincerely to be hoped these good women will succeed in their enterprise, that the town will have at least one sanctuary to offset the three saloons.

Fort Stanton. Dr. Laws, of Lincoln, spent Monday afternoon here taking part in the tennis games. The local agents for the various eastern houses are busy taking orders for Easter goods. Master Jean Dawson visited the early part of the week with his father and mother here. The non-sectarian services held in the hall Sunday evening by Chaplain Freund, P. H. S., were as usual well attended. The choir is rehearsing for the Easter music for both in the chapel and Library hall. High mass will be sung in the chapel Easter morning, during which a special musical program will be rendered by Mrs. F. C. Smith, choir leader, Miss M. R. Grier and Lieut. R. Monroe, with Lieut. J. R. Besse as organist. Dr. Irby will preside at the organ during the services in the hall Easter. Next Sunday, April 16, is Palm Sunday will be a special day at the chapel, when all regardless of beliefs, will hear a special program and witness the blessing and distribution of palms. Messrs. F. C. Berry and W. Lindsey, after spending a few days in El Paso, returned today. Rev. J. M. Gardner, of Carrizozo Baptist church, slipped up here with a hundred or more stereopticon slides and screen and showed them to a fair audience at the Congregational church last Thursday evening. The pictures were photographs of the people of our foreign wards in all manner of gay costumes and some without any costumes worth mentioning except a necktie or two around their middles and ankles. The "figgers" were introduced with a sort of religious monologue, and a few frills in the way of an impromptu temperance talk was given at the last. The matron of the White Oaks Consolidated mines has taken an indeterminate leave of absence. The legal and clerical heads are still on the job. Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Sager motored up Sunday last to visit with Judge Hewitt, whom they met on the way going to Carrizozo in Paul Mayer's machine peeping so fast he looked like everybody else and was unrecognizable. After sitting into his Ford so long and so cozy like, Frank looks like an old hen trying to set on fourteen eggs, in his new Buick. So many autos are speeding along our main thoroughfare these fine days that it begins to look as if we would have to widen the street for the better accommodation of county-seat-pleasure-seekers. I'd like to have a mobile car And keep it in a shed, And watch it suck the gasoline Whenever it was fed. I'd run it forty miles an hour And smile to see it get.

County School Notes. Election of school directors passed off quietly in most districts. Oscura and Paradise Valley being the exception, hardly a voter in those districts but that voted. In most cases the retiring director was re-elected, showing that the patrons have been well pleased with the local management of the schools. The new members elected were: Reyes Mirabal, Upper Glencoe; A. H. Pfingsten, Nogal Mesa; E. G. Gallegos, San Patricio; Mrs. Emma Bixler, Angus; A. J. Atkinson, Corona; Mrs. Lupe Sanchez, Rabenton; Mrs. Maude Hughes, Alto; Will Sterling, Oscura; A. M. Russell, Ancho; C. R. Dean, Baca Canon; Manuel Carrillo, Escondida; D. S. Williams, Little Creek; Elerdo Chavez, Idlewilde; Margerite Silva, Paradise Valley; William Walker and C. W. Wade, Gallo Canon; R. A. Casey, Tinnie; Roy Coe, Glencoe. The terms have closed at Tinnie, Idlewilde, San Patricio and Meek after seven months of successful school. The teachers have gone to their homes and the directors are preparing to put the buildings in better condition and to elect teachers for the coming fall term. Miss Gertrude Keller, who has taught three terms in Little Creek district, has signed a contract for seven months term in the Gallinas Mountain neighborhood. The term to begin in April. Work is being rushed on the new Paradise school that the term may begin in May. Many applications of teachers are being received for positions in our schools. Lincoln county holds an excellent financial record, every school obligation being met so far this year, which is attractive to the salary seekers. We should be able to have our choice from well qualified, experienced teachers. Miss L. B. Spillman, formerly reader in the State Department of Education, is at work on the forty odd sets of papers of the eighth grade examination of last week. The last examination will be held May 5 and 6. DESIGNERS ARE PUTTING FORWARD MANY NEW EFFECTS.

Skirts and Jackets of Different Fabrics Seen Among the Certainties of the Season—Evening Frocks of Silver Tissue.

The mingling of striped silk and plain blue serge promises to be a popular feature for the coming season. A handful of straws point to the fact that we will wear skirts and jackets of different fabrics on the street, and the favorite choice for the skirt will be striped or checked, heavy silk. The stripes, mind you, run around the figure more often than they do up and down.

This same idea is followed out in evening gowns, for skirts and bodices do not match in material, even if they do in color. All winter we have worn the bodices of gauze, and now it is supplanted by bodices of silk, heavily embroidered in silver.

There are one-piece frocks to be worn on the street either in the morning or the afternoon, that also show the fashion for the mingling of two materials. A blue faille skirt with a bodice of gabardine is used for one of the new models for one-piece frocks. It takes one back to the races in Paris nearly two years ago, when the first tight little bodice of gabardine and a flaring, striped skirt worn by that celebrated beauty, Miss Forzano; the model has evidently lain fallow in the brains of the designers and has been brought out again for the spring.

In its present form it gains a touch of novelty by being made of two materials that are in sharper contrast than the materials used two years ago.

After Doucet launched his remarkably lovely evening frock of silver tissue last November, America took hold of the idea and exploited it, but very few women would wear the gowns. Probably they were afraid of the reputation that silver tissue has of tarnishing and turning black when left to itself. And yet, after this gown was launched, women took hold of the idea of wearing colored, metal cloth frocks.

The production of this material was a triumph of the looms and of the master weavers. It was foisted upon the public without much heralding, and it became easily the foremost fabric of the month. Happily, it has not been dyed in brilliant colors; it has been guided by an artistic hand into pale pink, mauve, a peculiarly lovely shade of sky blue.

Entire frocks have been made of this fabric, the giving grace being that the skirts are very short and the bodices slim and low. Where trimming is demanded, it is supplied by silk net in the same color, but too ornately touched up with crystals.

If the idea of an entire gown of rose or mauve metal tissue does not appeal to a woman, at least, she may care to know that the fabric is in fashion in order to make use of it.

White Tulle Frock With Bodice of Silk Embroidered in Silver.

of it on another gown. A bodice of mauve-colored metal tissue goes very well with a skirt of mauve-colored tulle or even one of white and a simple adjustment of the fabric is to use it as a deep girdle on any kind of silk net dance gown, or as a deep bon on a lower skirt of tulle or chiffon.

Of course the milliners are using it for hats; they drap this colored tissue into high turbans and leave them untrimmed except for a spray of nigrette or gourd feathers.

The shoe men who have flooded the country with slippers of silver tissue will eagerly grasp the opportunity to use the new fabric. So far, all our colored slippers have been of satin. Women want a change.

PRETTY AND USEFUL TRAY

Our sketch shows a dainty and decorative little tray that is simple to make. Trays of the nature illustrated are useful in many ways and look very pretty upon the dinner table filled with fruit, or prepared in a small size form a handy addition to the writing table.

for holding those odds and ends that always tend to make the table look untidy unless some special place is assigned to them.

These trays can be made on the same lines in a variety of shapes, and in preparing the one illustrated a piece of cardboard must be cut out in the shape shown in the diagram on the right and scored across at the points indicated by the dotted line. It is, however, a good plan prior to cutting out the card to cut out a rough pattern in fairly stiff paper and bend it into shape. The card is covered on one side with pale pink satin, and on the other with thin white silk, upon which the floral design shown has been embroidered. The materials are sewed together at the edges and must also be tacked down to the card at the places where it has been scored across.

The four flaps are then bent upwards until the edges meet at the corners of the tray, when they are securely sewed together with white silk. The upper edges of the tray are bound with narrow green ribbon, and in doing this holes should be first pierced in the cord for the needle and thread to pass through.

The center portion of the design which appears upon each side of the tray is worked with silk in two shades of pink, and the leaves in various shades of green.

DRESS ACCESSORIES IN STYLE

Triangular pockets trimmed with buttons are of dark blue taffeta lined with gray blue taffeta, and are on a dress of beige taffeta. A pretty extreme in pockets is a bit of a patch pocket of taffeta on marquisette, terminating in long ends of narrow ribbon.

Very narrow box plaited ruffling is used around the bottom of bodices, to edge cuffs and deep pocket effects at the sides of a skirt, or it is placed in a narrow width around the bottom of a skirt. A dress of sheer material has the skirt carried above the belt in ruche effect.

A charming sleeve of chiffon or other transparent material is slightly gathered at the armhole, and at the dropped shoulder line a great deal of fullness is attached. The sleeve drops very full to below the elbow, where it is caught by two bands of ribbon tied in tiny bows.

The full short skirt is still with us, and it is perhaps a little fuller, though not quite so short, but its fullness and its shortness are emphasized by the use of circular trappings, folds, flounces, tucks and even embroidery. Sleeves, too, are decidedly fuller than last season.

The combination of two materials, the tight waist and the flaring ruffled poplin are spring features. There will be checks, small, large, soft-toned and even checked checks for suits, frocks and motor coats.

Among smart underwear are seen very short drawers with a ruffle attached to a yoke and mounted on three rows of cording. Another ruffle goes around the lower edge and up the sides. The ruffles are starched to carry out the pannier effect of a gown. The newest corset covers have basques of lace or ruffles forming panniers on the sides. Silk voile is much used for lingerie.

Plain Summer Hat

A Charming Model is This. It Has a High Crown and Exceedingly Narrow Brim. It is Covered With a Daintily Figured Silk and Effectively Trimmed With Two Rows of Silk Front.

STOMACH MISERY GAS, INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" fixes sick, sour, gassy stomachs in five minutes.

Time is! In five minutes all stomach distress will go. No indigestion, heartburn, sourness or belching of gas, acid, or eruptions of undigested food, no dizziness, bloating, or foul breath.

"Pape's Diapepsin" is noted for its speed in regulating upset stomachs. It is the surest, quickest and most certain indigestion remedy in the whole world, and besides it is harmless.

Please for your sake, get a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any store and put your stomach right. Don't keep on being miserable—life is too short—you are not here long, so make your stay agreeable. Eat what you like and digest it; on joy it, without dread of rebellion in the stomach.

Pape's Diapepsin belongs in your home anyway. Should one of the family eat something which doesn't agree with them, or in case of an attack of indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis or stomach derangement at daytime or during the night, it is handy to give the quickest relief known. Adv.

How to Relieve KIDNEY PAINS

I have used Swamp-Root more or less this last few years, and have always got great relief. About three months ago I was taken down with severe pains through the back and limbs, I was very nervous and was very restless at night. I began taking your Swamp-Root and before I used a half bottle, I felt great relief, and I kept on taking it until I began to feel myself again. I have recommended it to my neighbors and friends, and several of them informed me that they have been greatly benefited by using it. I cannot say enough for Swamp-Root, and I heartily recommend it for Kidney trouble and Rheumatism.

You have my consent to publish this statement. I am 77 years old. Dr. Kilmor's Swamp-Root has saved my life.

LYDIA F. HUGGIN, 147 W. 43rd St., Los Angeles, Calif.

Los Angeles County of Los Angeles, D. 1914, Lydia F. Huggin, subscribed to the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and fact.

GRACE W. FRYE, Notary Public. Prove What Swamp-Root Will Do For You. Send ten cents to Dr. Kilmor & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample size bottle. It will convince anyone. You will also receive a booklet of valuable information, telling about the kidneys and bladder. When writing, be sure and mention this paper. Regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Adv.

Her Choice. "Your daughter," said Mrs. Olden after being conducted through the magnificent palace occupied by the Billingtons, "has such a splendid vocabulary."

"Do you think so?" her hostess replied. "Josiah wanted to get her one of them dictionaries, but I made up my mind right at the start that a vocabulary would look better in a room furnished like hers, even if it didn't cost quite so much."

"CASCARETS" FOR SLUGGISH BOWELS

No sick headache, sour stomach, biliousness or constipation by morning.

Get a 10-cent box now. Turn the rascals out—the headache, biliousness, indigestion, the sick, sour stomach and foul gases—turn them out to-night and keep them out with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse your stomach; remove the sour, fermenting food; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret to-night straightens you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from any drug store means a clear head, sweet stomach and clean, healthy liver and bowel action for months. Children love Cascarets because they never grip or sicken. Adv.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS

By KIN HUBBARD.

The size of this country an its pre-eminence in certain lines 'mongst the Nations of the world appeal to the pride of the average American, but they're certain forms of pre-eminence in which this sense of national pride is likely to be somewhat tempered. Take our divorce mills for instance. With the exception of Japan our country produces more divorces than all of the other so-called Christian countries combined, the output for the last fiscal year reaching the grand total of 60,503 split-ups which may be added by way of good measure forty-six nice fresh ones from Indynoplus alone last week.

T' fall allus crushes an' disheartens the normally constituted person, an' while he often pulls himself together an' starts afresh th' scars o' defeat remain. Some fellows go away amid flowery courtship, after refusin' t' listen t' th' advice o' friends, after stumblin' down th' church aisle red an' confused t' th' sweet strains o' Mendelssohn's celebrated march, after mumblin' "I promise," after givin' th' minister a five-dollar gold piece, after bein' showered with congratulations, after receivin' a flat full o' linen an' silver—t' fall!

Silly first impressions are accountable for most o' th' connubial botch work. A pair o' sparklin' eyes, a couple o' strong athletic shoulders, a well rounded figure, a military uniform, a pretty ankle, a musical voice, an' act o' gallantry, a winnin' smile, pretty hair, a roguish glance, an' arched expression, a gold tooth, a Norfolk coat an' a purty complexion—all o' these are th' decoys o' th' coquette an' th' home wrecker.

A Pair o' Sparklin' Eyes, a Couple o' Strong Athletic Shoulders, a Pretty Ankle, a Musical Voice, an' Act o' Gallantry, a Winnin' Smile, Pretty Hair, a Roguish Glance, a Gold Tooth an' a Purty Complexion—all o' These Are th' Decoys o' th' Coquette an' th' Home Wrecker."

A lot o' fond farewells an' best wishes an' a fine send off in th' local paper t' accept a lucrative an' responsible position in some great establishment in a far off city only t' return in a week. Sometimes a feller goes int' business with a great flare o' trumpets an' falls in a month. Sometimes a feller 'll set forth under th' most promising skies t' accomplish some laudable purpose an' meet with disaster. All o' us have failed at something or other at some time in our lives. But what a come down it must be, how embarrassing it must be, t' those who have a spark o' pride in their makeup t' make a mess o' anything as easy as marriage. O' all th' failures in life it is th' one most uncalled fer. After a

Th' qualities o' mind an' soul are not worn on th' sleeve. These are th' qualities that shape th' destinies o' th' newly-wed after th' illusions o' wedlock fade with th' passions o' th' rose tinted honeymoon. These are th' qualities too rarely considered in our rush t' win a muscle bound Apollo or a doll-faced Venus. Often while readin' th' divorce column these lines from that grand old novel, "Cora, th' Beautiful Sowing Machine Girl," are brought forcibly t' mind an' their true significance realized: "So, havin' grown tired o' Cora's beautiful complexion, Harold ruthlessly cast her aside an' bought a ticket for Seattle."

Th' War an' Paris Fashions

As th' war progresses, we miss some little thing ever day that used t' come from Europe, an' as a result our celebrated Yankee ingenuity an' creative ability 'll be put t' a test. In some respects th' situation is lamentable, but no cloud is without its silver lining. Th' general demoralization o' our commerce gives promise of shinin' off Paris fashions. This is as it should be. It is high time American women had some jurisdiction over their waist lines. For years a little handfull o' Paris modistes have been decidin' whether it wuz th' thing fer a woman t' be flat or round. For over a year our bulkier women have been hidin' around waitin' for a tip from Paris before venturin' in th' open, while their thin-spaced sisters were allowed over freedom.

Whose tastes are considered by th' men who create th' Paris fashions? American close roofed modest priced turban fer ever day is another thing that should be an easy matter for even th' milliners o' Elwood. An' it seems t' me that with our vast resources an' native blonde trimmers some means could be provided whereby a fair lookin' Sunday hat could be devised on this side o' th' Atlantic—something that would half way resemble th' price an' still leave a little tobacco money fer th' husband or father.

Why should American women wear a gown whose dominant note suggests th' nearly forgotten spirit o' th' French revolution? Why not wear something that's a reminder o' how close we come t' mixin' it with Mexico? We read in th' fashion notes: "Again you see th' exceedingly narrow skirt grown a trifle fuller in th' knees than ankles, but ample in th' straight, somewhat heavy, drapery o' th' grad-

"It is High Time American Women Had Some Jurisdiction Over Their Waist Lines. For Years a Little Handful o' Paris Modistes Have Been Decidin' Whether it Wuz th' Thing fer a Woman t' Be Flat or Round."

Innocent American girls flutter along our streets dolled up like th' brassy race track habitués o' Budapest, while their mothers are decked out an' scantied like th' Clydesdale matrons o' Monte Carlo.

Why can't th' women o' this country create their own fashions an' design their own doo daddo? If we kin invent churns an' twin-binders an' phonographs an' car couplers an' cherry seeders an' steam shovels why can't we all put 't'gether an' churn out a respectable skirt, or a pair o' opaque hose? Why should our autumn gowns follow th' Turkish idba instead o' th' Zanesville idea? If a dressmaker in Urbans, O., created anything as terrible as th' "Spectro de la Rose" transparent dancin' gown, wherein th' lower extremities are held at bay by a frail curtain o' point de Alencor lace, she'd be white capped. But th' modistes o' Paris kin design with impunity while our American women do their creatin' without a blush.

They should be enough creative genius even in Pers, Ind., t' turn out an' evening gown that would leave a little for th' imagination. A nifty emulsion. Josh—Why do you think college boys are so fond of athletics? Boss—I suppose that the youngsters overhear us old chaps braggin' 'bout what we did when we were boys an' sort o' feel it their duty to try to keep up.

Explosions. Flatbush—I see by the paper that a telephone which is claimed to be explosion proof has been invented.

Bensonhurst—Why, I never heard of an explosion in a telephone. "You didn't? Say, every time my wife telephones me there's an explosion!"

Everyone Should Drink Hot Water in the Morning

Wash away all the stomach, liver, and bowel poisons before breakfast.

To feel your best day in and day out, to feel clean inside; no sour bile to coat your tongue and sicken your breath or dull your head; no constipation, bilious attacks, sick headaches, colds, rheumatism or gassy, acid stomach, you must bathe on the inside like you bathe outside.

To keep these poisons and toxins well flushed from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, drink before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became saturated with an accumulation of body poisons, begin this treatment and above all, keep it up!

CHANGE IN SOCIAL HABITS

Telephone Has Been Credited With Dispensing With Many of the Former Informalities.

It is really curious to note the change in our social habits that has the Brooklyn Eagle states. Informal evening visits or afternoon calls have almost disappeared. To "drop in" unannounced in the friendly, old-fashioned way is no longer good form.

We are all so frightfully busy! "You can never get your really nice friends unless you date them up three weeks in advance," is the wall of many a would-be hostess. "What evening next week can you dine with us?" the query goes over the telephone.

Letitia and her six-year-old brother were ready to eat some lunch which had been placed on the table. Letitia said, "Who will ask the blessing?"

STOPPED SHORT

Taking Tonics, and Built up on Right Food.

The mistake is frequently made of trying to build up a worn-out nervous system on so-called tonics.

"I found myself on the verge of a nervous collapse, due to overwork and study, and to illness in the family," writes a Wisconsin woman.

"My friends became alarmed because I grew pale and thin and could not sleep nights. I took various tonics, but their effects wore off shortly after I stopped taking them. My food did not seem to nourish me."

Reading of Grape-Nuts, I determined to stop the tonics and see what a change of diet would do. I ate Grape-Nuts four times a day with cream, and drank milk also, went to bed early after eating a dish of Grape-Nuts.

The Old Violin

By EYA MORRIS ROBERTSON

(Copyright, 1914, by W. G. Chadman.)

"Oh, Natalie, what do you think—you are an heiress!" "Nonsense, Kate!" "It's true," affirmed her married sister.

"Here is an item in the Rossville paper, and it says that among the beneficiaries of Uncle Warren's will are several relatives outside of his direct family. See—your name: 'Miss Natalie Prescott.'"

Natalie's pulse fluttered a trifle. Her name was, indeed, mentioned. She lay down the violin on which she had been practicing and read the announcement.

"Maybe it's ten thousand dollars, maybe it's twenty!" cried Kate excitedly. "You know that Uncle Warren was a very rich man. My! If you should get a big lot of money, think what you could do for the children and for me, poor, overworked and a nervous wreck!"

"I'm going to find out. Trust me for that!" declared Kate determinedly. They were of wide, diverging natures, these sisters. Natalie, patient, tender-hearted, industrious. Her sister was just the reverse—complaining, dissatisfied, eager for some good fortune that would enable her to live without labor.

Would Draw Sweet Plaintive Melody From the Vibrant Strings.

It was a week later when Kate flashed in upon Natalie at the piano in a feverish state of indignation and excitement.

"The mean old hunk!" she scolded; "what do you think? I wrote the lawyers of uncle's estate, demanding to know what they had left you—"

"Oh, Kate! remonstrated Natalie. "I've got the reply," and Kate waved an open letter in her hand. "All he has left you is that old clap-trap of a violin he doted over so."

"Oh, Kate! Did he, indeed?" cried Natalie with sparkling eyes. "Why, his prized Carero is priceless! It was his most precious treasure. To think that he would leave it to me!"

Kate frowned off, ridiculing the extravagant delight of her sister over "a piece of antiquated rubbish!" Natalie fondly thought of the old man's delight in his favored instrument.

Often he had played to her, and he had even allowed her to handle the old instrument, but tenderly, as though it were an infant in arms. There was a large intrinsic value to the instrument on account of its maker, age and power of melodious expression.

Natalie, however, never thought of selling it, especially when the violin duly arrived with a note from the lawyers of the estate, saying that Mr. Warren had expressed the hope the cherished instrument would never go out of the family.

was a stranger; "the divine music! That instrument! It came surely from one of the music masters. May I look at it?"

His fine, statuesque face inspired Natalie with confidence. She opened the little garden gate. She welcomed him as a brother in art. He took up the violin with an air of rare devotion and reverence.

After that he came often to the quiet rendezvous. He was a member of a local orchestra, he told her; his life was devoted to one devouring theme—music. Their preferences were identical, they grew to be friends.

"Oh, Miss Prescott," he said anxiously. "I have a great favor to ask! They have placed me on a program for a violin solo at the great symphony concert. The leader says it will settle my admission to his circle at high compensation. Oh, if I had only the Carero for a single fifteen minutes—the great, glorious Carero—I know I should succeed!"

She regarded him with a tender light in her eyes. "You will be very careful of the instrument?" she said. "I will guard it with my life!" cried the delighted enthusiast.

Natalie sat entranced when Victor, at the concert, began his solo number. All about her tense, strained faces told of the general effect of the beautiful music. The gifted player was given an ovation, and the pleased face of the orchestra leader told that the fortune of the young violinist was assured.

Natalie had gone to the waiting room when the program was finished. Victor was to join her there and accompany her home. Suddenly a scream startled her. The next instant, followed by excited members of the orchestra, the young musician reeled into the room with bloodless face and staring eyes.

"The Carero!" he shrieked. "It is stolen!" and fell senseless at her feet. A doctor was summoned. He looked grave as he felt the pulse and opened the eyelids of the insensible young musician.

"Get him to a hospital at once!" he ordered. "If the strain he is under is not soon relieved he will lose his mind."

Natalie heard the others tell of how Victor had left the violin unguarded for a moment, to find it gone five minutes later. She sat softly crying to herself. Natalie was about to proceed slowly home when the leader of the orchestra appeared hurriedly.

"You are the young lady to whom the Carero belongs," he said. "It is found. It seems that the caretaker locked it up for safety, has just returned and found it."

"Oh, I must hasten to the hospital at once!" fluttered Natalie. A nurse led her to a room where Victor sat, muttering to himself incoherently: "The Carero! The Carero!"

"Mr. Dalsell—Victor," spoke Natalie tremblingly. "we have found the Carero. See, it is here," but he never even looked up.

"May I try an experiment?" faltered Natalie, and the nurse assenting, she removed the violin from its case. Natalie began playing the masterpiece of the concert as best she could.

Victor started at the first melodious note. His eyes lost their moody expression. A rare ecstasy came into his face—reason was recalled by the marvelous magic!

The Carero brought distinction and wealth to Victor, and love, marriage and happiness to both these talented children of art.

Health Benefit of Yawning. Yawning is said to have an exceedingly healthful function besides having a salutary effect in complaints of the pharynx and the eustachian tubes.

According to investigations yawning is the most natural form of respiratory exercise, bringing into action all the respiratory muscles of the neck and chest. It is recommended that every person should have a good yawn with the stretching of the limbs morning and evening for the purpose of ventilating the lungs and tonifying the respiratory muscles.

NO CONSCRIPTION IN CANADA

No War Tax on Land—Embargo on Shipment of Live Stock Removed.

During the prevalence of the foot-and-mouth disease in some portions of the United States, an embargo was placed upon inter-state shipments.

Recently, though, an order has been issued by the Department of Agriculture, removing the embargo, and settlers are now free to take in the number of head of horses or cattle that are permitted by the Customs authorities and the freight regulations.

If one prepares to purchase land, there could be no better time than the present. Prices are low, and particulars may be had from any of the land companies, of which there are several, or from the Canadian Pacific and Canadian Northern railways, whose holdings are in the older settled districts and whose terms are exceedingly easy to the settler.

Lately there have appeared articles in a number of United States newspapers to the effect that there was conscription in Canada, or that such a law was likely to be put into effect.

This statement should set at rest the conscription talk that has been so freely used to influence those who may be considering settling in Canada during the war.

It has also been said that there was a war tax on land. Hon. Dr. Roche, Minister of the Interior, over his own signature has denied this, and the promoters of the different provinces join in saying "such a report is absolutely untrue, and has no foundation what ever in fact, nor is there likely ever to be any such tax upon land in Canada."

The general prosperity of Western Canada farmers and business institutions is such that Canada is well able to take care of the extra war expenses without any direct war taxation. This has been well illustrated by the magnificent response to the Dominion Government's recent bond issue, which was more than doubly subscribed for within the first eight hours of its being offered to the public.

Exceeded Instructions. My little granddaughter was invited to lunch at a neighbor's. She is rather notional in her eating. On leaving I said to her: "Now, if there is anything put on your plate that you do not like, don't say anything. Just eat a little of it if you can, but make no remarks."

On her return she said: "Grandma, there was a dish that I don't like (beans). I didn't want the folks to know that I didn't like them, so I ate two dishes."—Exchange.

Throw Off Colds and Prevent Grip. When you feel a cold coming on, take LAXATIVE BROWN QUININE. It restores energy of cold and grip. Only One BRAND QUININE. K. W. GROVE'S signature on box, etc.

Reasonable. Knicker—What is a pessimist? Bocker—A man who believes the snow always drifts on his side of the street.

Appropriate Ejaculation. "Here somebody says that insanity is caused by bad teeth." "By giv'!"

PUBLIC HIGHWAYS

GOOD ROADS ARE NEGLECTED

Lecture Is Read to States by American Highway Association—New Jersey Took Initiative.

The American Highway association reads the states a lecture on their neglect of good roads. There are 2,250,000 miles of public road in the United States. The annual expenditure for construction and maintenance amounts to $260,000,000.

Improvement in most instances means a plowed furrow for a drain and a wagon load of gravel in a chuck hole. In fact there are only about 120,000 miles of really good road in all the 48 states. The trouble with highway construction is that often waste and graft get together.

The association has been doing some market figuring, and it finds that 450,000 miles of real highway, around the centers of population, would reduce the cost of living as well as add to the enjoyment of living.

Concentration in Washington might mean unity and co-ordination, but it would also mean increased appropriations. The work belongs to the states.

Surface Roads in Country. Ohio Leads With 23,312 Miles—Indiana Next With 26,321—Missouri Brings Up the Rear.

There are 2,273,600 miles of roads in the United States, of which 247,490 miles, or 10.9 per cent, are surfaced. Of surfaced roads Ohio has 23,312 miles; Indiana, 26,321; New York, 22,398; Georgia, 12,600; Wisconsin, 11,500; Kentucky, 10,636; Texas, 9,700; California, 9,388; Illinois, 9,000; Massachusetts, 8,928; Michigan, 8,859; and Missouri, 8,000 miles.

To Spend $3,000,000. Minnesota will spend $3,000,000 for better highways. To date this year the state has given counties for state aid $750,000 for highways, which will be increased to $1,500,000 before next January.

Booster Never Quits. The good roads booster never quits. He talks good roads until he gets them, and then he keeps reminding everybody what a blessing they are.

Roads Should Shed Water. Country roads should be kept in such condition that they will shed every drop of water that falls on them.

Unprofitable Roads. Bad roads are unprofitable. They put a farmer out of business and make nothing for any man.

IS CHILD CROSS, FEVERISH, SICK

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated, give "California Syrup of Figs."

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely. A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask at the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Adv.

Perfectly Apparent. "He boasts that he is a self-made man." "He shouldn't. It's unnecessary. Anybody can see he's not the work of an expert."

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF HAIR STOPS FALLING

Girls! Try This! Makes Hair Thick, Glossy, Fluffy, Beautiful—No More Itching Scalp.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderline you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderline immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderline and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable luster, softness and luxuriance.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderline from any store, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderline. Adv.

Persistent. "Be sure and get the right tooth doctor." "Don't worry I'll get it if I have to pull out every tooth in your head."—Life.

DRINK LOTS OF WATER TO FLUSH THE KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat and Take Salts for Backache or Bladder Trouble—Neutralize Acids.

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Adv.

The Pinch. First Golfer (to clubmate who has just been trimmed woefully)—Well, what's your handicap? Second Golfer—Honesty, mostly!—Judge.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the original little liver pills put up 40 years ago. They regulate liver and bowels.—Adv. "It is queer you did not notice how the wind was howling last night." "So was the baby."

In 1908, when there were some mutterings against the nomination of Secretary Taft, President Roosevelt said to the mutterers: "Take Taft or you'll get me!" He has slightly changed the words this year, but the air is familiar. He now says: "Take me or you'll get the devil!" And that isn't what the republicans want. They want the offices.

The greatest battle the world has ever witnessed has been in progress at Verdun, France, for more than fifty days, and still rages with unabated fury. Horror and admiration are the two controlling thoughts—horror at the unheard-of sacrifice of life, admiration for the courage and endurance of both Germans and French.

Prohibition does not deal exclusively with the liquor traffic. An evidence of this is an order recently promulgated by the school board of Clovis, New Mexico. Teachers employed by the school board of that town are required to sign a pledge that they will not dance at any time.

The American line of communication, incident to the pursuit of Villa, now stretches a distance of three hundred and fifty miles into Mexico. And the American column continues to lengthen the distance.

Watch Teddy put on the soft pedal concerning the hyphen. He has been boisterous, rancorously so, in his condemnation of the hyphenates but that has kept him in the public eye.

Who'd 've thought Clovis contained so many Connecticut yankees that it would deny the teachers the privilege of tripping the "light fantastic"?

It seems a good safe bet that Colonel Roosevelt will be the republican nominee for president. Then watch a bunch of old liners eat crow and declare they like it.

The inalienable right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness has been abridged by the Clovis school board.

Roosevelt, Root and Hughes figure largely in republican calculations, but the greatest of these is Roosevelt.

Those Clovis teachers are calculated to have a perfectly "ripping" time. They may resort to chewing gum.

A Soaking Rain

A glorious rain fell Wednesday and the life-giving fluid continued to drench the earth throughout Wednesday night. It came gently, steadily, without dash or cessation for hours and hours, and the hungry earth drank it up as it fell—every bit of it soaking into the ground and none going to waste. It was doubly beneficial in that the temperature was normal and has been followed by mild, pleasant weather. Incalculable good will follow this soft spring rain and our inhabitants are smiling with all nature.

on file and of record in the office of the State Corporation Commission. In Testimony Whereof, the State Corporation Commission of the State of New Mexico has caused this certificate to be signed by its Chairman and the seal of said Commission, to be affixed at the City of Santa Fe on this 8th day of March, A. D. 1916.

ARTICLE I. The name of the corporation shall be "OPHIR DEVELOPMENT COMPANY."

ARTICLE II. The principal place for the transaction of the business of the corporation shall be at Jicarilla, in the County of Lincoln and State of New Mexico; and the corporation may have one or more offices within or without the State, at such place or places as the Board of Directors may, from time to time, determine.

ARTICLE III. The general nature of the business for which this corporation is formed is to conduct a general land and livestock business, and to purchase, own, lease, option or otherwise acquire, and to sell, lease, option or otherwise dispose of all kinds of ranches for the raising of cattle, sheep, goats, horses and mules; to do a general ranching business, including the buying and selling of cattle, sheep, goats, horses and mules; to purchase, own, lease, option or otherwise acquire, and to operate, sell, lease, option or otherwise dispose of mines, mining claims, petroleum and natural gas claims and properties; to purchase, own, lease, build, option or otherwise acquire, and to operate, sell, lease, option, or otherwise dispose of any and all kinds of mills, plants, smelters and refineries for the reduction of gold, silver, copper and other minerals, including oil and gas, and to do any and all things connected with the affairs of the corporation, not inconsistent with law, and in any part of the world.

ARTICLE IV. The amount of the capital stock of this corporation shall be One Million ($1,000,000) Dollars, divided into one million (1,000,000) shares of the par value of One ($1.00) Dollar each. The Board of Directors may issue the capital stock in such amount or amounts and at such time or times as they may elect, either for cash, services, property, or other valuable right or thing, and the judgment of the Board of Directors as to the value of such services, property or other valuable right or thing shall, in the absence of actual fraud, be conclusive. The amount of capital stock with which this corporation shall commence business shall be Thirty Thousand ($30,000) Dollars.

ARTICLE V. The names and addresses of the incorporators and the amount of Capital Stock subscribed for by each is: Alfred E. Kimlin, 1200 North 5th St., Quincy, Ill., 5,000; Lawrence, 1477 Vermont St., Quincy, Ill., 5,000; G. F. Heinz, 1401 Broadway, Quincy, Ill., 5,000; Edwin T. ARTICLE VI. This corporation shall commence business on the filing of this certificate of incorporation, as provided by law, and continue fifty years from valid date, unless sooner dissolved in accordance provided by law.

ARTICLE VII. The affairs of this corporation shall be managed by a Board of Directors consisting of not less than five (5), nor more than nine (9) members, who shall be stockholders of the corporation and who shall be elected at the Annual Meeting of the stockholders. Vacancies in the Board may be filled by the Board of Directors, and any Director elected to fill any vacancy shall hold his office until the next Annual Meeting of the stockholders, or until his successor shall have been elected and qualified. The Directors shall have power to make and alter By-Laws, subject to the same being altered or repealed by the stockholders, as provided by law. The first Annual Meeting of the stockholders shall be held at the principal office of the corporation on the first Tuesday in June, A. D. 1916. Notice to stockholders of any Annual Meeting, or Special Meeting, of the stockholders, shall be given in such manner as may be fixed by the By-Laws. The officers of the corporation shall be a President, Vice-President, Secretary, Treasurer, and such other officers, agents and factors, as may be fixed and determined by the By-Laws, and who shall be elected or elected by the Board of Directors. Any two offices, except that of President and Vice-President, may be held by the same person.

ARTICLE VIII. The highest amount of indebtedness to which this corporation shall at any one time be subject, shall be Thirty Thousand ($30,000) Dollars.

ARTICLE IX. The private property of the stockholders shall be at all times exempt from liability for corporate debts.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, we have hereunto set our hands and seals this 6th day of March, A. D. 1916.

After Four Years of Discouraging Conditions, Mrs. Bullock Gave Up in Despair. Husband Came to Rescue. Catron, Ky.—In an interesting letter from this place, Mrs. Bettie Bullock writes as follows: "I suffered for four years, with womanly troubles, and during this time, I could only sit up for a little while, and could not walk anywhere at all. At times, I would have severe pains in my left side. The doctor was called in, and his treatment relieved me for a while, but I was soon confined to my bed again. After that, nothing seemed to do me any good. I had gotten so weak I could not stand, and I gave up in despair. At last, my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I commenced taking it. From the very first dose, I could tell it was helping me. I can now walk two miles without stopping me, and am doing all my work."

The Red Albert Payson Circle Terhune

AUTHOR OF "THE FIGHTER," "CALEB CON-OVER," "SYRIA FROM THE SADDLE," ETC. NOVELIZED FROM PATHE PHOTO PLAY OF THE SAME NAME BY WILL M. RITCHIEY.

SYNOPSIS.

"Circle Jim" Borden, named from a red trademark, on his horse has seized the third prize term. One in each Borden generation, always a criminal, has borne the Red Circle mark. Jim and his son Ted are the only known living of the Borden. Max Lamar, a detective, is detailed to keep an eye on Jim. June Travis and her mother meet Jim as he is released. Jim and Ted are killed. Next day Lamar sees the Red Circle on a woman's hand outside a curtained automobile. June, marked with the Red Circle, robs a man and escapes. June's nurse discovers her theft and tells her she is "Circle Jim's" daughter, though Mrs. Travis does not know. Mary tricks Lamar. Lamar visits "Smiling Sam," Jim's old crime partner. Sent to Saritón, the guards at a jail. Mary points her out to Lamar, who follows her back to town, captures her with the jewels and goes after Smiling Sam. On the edge of a cliff pursues and pursued engage in deadly combat. Gordon, a fugitive, rescues Lamar, and June in turn saves Gordon from arrest. Smiling Sam sees the Red Circle on June's hand, tells her he knows her secret and follows her to her city home. She helps Gordon to get away, after recovering for him the securities receipt which incriminates him by tricking Farwell and Lamar.

TWELFTH INSTALLMENT
LIKE A RAT IN A TRAP

While Max Lamar was musing in miserable uncertainty over the problem of June's guilt or innocence, June herself was confronted by a problem quite as disheartening and far more perilous.

Mary had told her of "Smiling Sam" Egan's presence in the Travis house, and June realized all it might mean to her. The man, hidden in the attic storeroom, held her fate, her liberty, in the hollow of his grimy hand.

He had seen the Red Circle on her hand. He was crafty enough to know how fearful a hold over the girl this secret gave him.

June could bear the suspense no longer. Impulsively she got to her feet and rapped the room toward the hall door.

"Where are you going, dearie," asked Mary in sudden anxiety.

"I'm going to see him," replied June. "I must."

June had taken off her hat, and as she spoke she was stripping the gloves from her hands. The left glove came off first. Then, as the right glove was half removed, its wearer noted the pulsing Red Circle on her hand. Instinctively she drew the glove over it. Meantime Mary had flung herself between June and the door, exclaiming in horror:

"Oh, my dear, my dear! You mustn't! He—ho might kill you!"

"Kill me?" echoed June, bitterly. "I almost wish he would!"

"If you're going there," declared the valiant nurse, giving up the unequal battle, "then I'm going too. I'll keep him from harming my baby if anyone can."

June a step ahead, they emerged into the gloomy attic room.

Mary paused, starting timorously around the dismal and cluttered room. From an impromptu couch of patched quilts and moth-eaten pillows, between two trunks, a frosty head cautiously came into view.

At sight of June and Mary he grinned pleasantly, got up, stretched

"Please!" implored June. "Please go! Please don't endanger me by staying here. At any moment my mother may find you're hidden in our house, Yama or one of the other servants may tell her, and—"

"That's up to you," philosophically answered Sam. "That's your share of the game, Miss Travis. I can't look out for everything."

"I did all I could for you when you came out of prison, penniless and an outcast," went on June, ignoring his flippancy. "I gave you help. Now that I'm in such dire peril, won't you please help me by going away and saving me from the danger of your presence here? Every minute you stay in this house is a menace to me. Oh, please go!"

"Go?" he said argumentatively, and still smiling at her. "Go where? To jail? That's where they'll stick me if I leave here before this row blows over. And even this dusty old hole and Mary's half-portion food are a whole lot better'n the pen."

"But you could creep out at night—"

"And be nabbed at daybreak. No, thanks. I'll—"

"But I'll give you enough money to—"

"You sure will, miss. I'll see to that. But not till it's safe to sneak out. I'm laying low. Just now. And you're goin' to help me do it."

"But don't you see what it means to me?" pleaded June. "You can't stay hidden here indefinitely. If my mother should happen to come up to the attic or—"

"If she does," interposed Sam, almost solemnly, "so much the worse for her."

"Oh!" cried June in horror.

"Listen here!" went on Egan, a note of rough authority in his voice. "Let's you and me come to a show-down. You're goin' to keep on hidin' me here and feedin' me and protectin' me; an' when I get out, you're goin' to keep me on Easy street. Not because you want to. But because you've got to. Because if you don't, you know I can tell a whole lot of intertain' things about Circle Jim Borden's crook daughter."

"You beast!" flamed June. "You beast!"

"Cut out the snappy stuff!" ordered Sam. "Treat me easy and you'll find me easy to treat. That's always been my way. But come any rough business with me, and you'll always find me on hand with a bucketful of trouble. Remember that. So don't call names, any more. Huh!" he rumbled in contempt. "You're a swell one to be talkin' to me as if I wasn't as good as you. Why, you and me is in the name now. If you think we ain't, just take a look at that!"

As he spoke he caught her by the right wrist and tore away the loosening glove from the back of her hand. The Red Circle blazed into view. June tore herself free from his grasp, just as Mary sprang forward to rescue her darling from the man.

Both women broke into fierce speech. But Egan's deep voice easily dominated and drowned their words of anger.

"I stay right here, my lady," he announced loudly. "And you'll see I'll well look care of. If you don't—or if you try to double-cross me, everybody is goin' to know all about Circle Jim's daughter. Get that?"

Next morning, June put on a riding habit, ordered her saddle horse brought to the door in half an hour, and then shut herself in her own den.

Taking from a drawer the big packet of banknotes she had stolen from Farwell's safe, she counted them carefully. Then she sat down at her typewriter and pounded out a half dozen lines. Addressing a large envelope, she put the typed sheet into it and stuffed the sheaf of banknotes in there, too. Sealing the envelope, she thrust it into the inside pocket of her riding coat, and ran downstairs.

June turned her horse's head toward the section of the city where stood the Farwell corporation's factory. It was not a savory neighborhood, at best. And this morning it was even less peaceful than usual. For the bulk of the Farwell employees were gathered in the big yard of the factory holding an impromptu indignation meeting.

Silas Farwell's failure to keep his word about sharing with his men the profits of the concern was the theme of their spokesman's harangue.

From the building's entrance, Farwell watched the gathering of the men in the yard. He knew well enough what was up. And he knew, as fragments of the spokesman's speech came to his ears.

At last, as he was about to go into his office, Farwell saw the spokesman and two of his audience detach themselves from the group and walk toward him. He understood the object of their visit.

His right hand slipped into the pocket of his coat, and his fingers closed about the cold butt of a pistol that rested there.

The men drew near. At sight of their employer, they halted, glanced at one another, and then stepped up to him, taking off their hats as they came.

"Mr. Farwell," began the spokesman, nervously, clearing his voice as he spoke. "Mr. Farwell, we are a delegation from the hands, chosen—chosen to ask you if you mean to make good on your promise to share profits with us. We—"

"No," said Farwell, coolly. "I don't. I explained that, in the notice I had the janitor tack up on the work-room doors. I—"

"Then, you rotten crook," roared the spokesman, losing hold of his temper. "What do you mean to do?"

"Just this," answered Farwell.

Before the others could guess his intent, his left fist caught the spokesman, flush on the point of the jaw, and sent him sprawling.

The stricken man scrambled to his feet. His two companions at his side, he sprang like an angry dog at Farwell's throat. But the three men stopped their rush almost in midair, as the factory owner flashed out the pistol from his coat pocket and leveled it at the foremost of them.

There was an instant pause; as the assailants blinked irresolutely at the black pistol muzzle and at the coldly murderous eyes behind it.

"Go back to your work," said Farwell, breaking the momentary silence. Beneath the menace of the leveled weapon and the dominating gaze of their employer, the trio looked sheepishly at each other; then, one by one, turned and shuffled away toward the yard.

Farwell dropped the pistol back into his pocket and continued upon his way to his own office.

The three delegates returned to their fellows. The rest of the men crowded eagerly around them for news of the interview.

"It's no use," reported the spokesman. "I asked him, and he—"

Something white flew through the air, striking him across the eyes and then falling to the ground at his feet.

"Three cheers for Silas Farwell!" shouted the spokesman.

The three cheers were given with a thunderous zest.

The men came to a halt just in front of the window, shoving forward the spokesman, who still held the bundle of money in one hand and the typewritten letter in another.

"Mr. Farwell," he began, "we want to thank you. It was a funny way of sending us our cash, but it was mighty welcome. And I want to apologize to you for—"

"What are you blithering about?" queried Farwell, in dire perplexity. "And what's that money you're shaking at me? What is it?"

"The money?" echoed the spokesman, as a murmur of surprise ran through the crowd. "Why, the cooperative profits money, of course. The money this letter of your agent—"

He got no further. Farwell reached out of the window and snatched the typed note from his hand. He would have snatched the money, too, but that chance was to be just put of his reach.

"Who gave you this?" roared Farwell when he could get his voice.

"A girl," answered the puzzled spokesman. "On horseback. Threw it over the fence to me. She rode past, two minutes ago. And—"

But Farwell, note in hand, had bolted out into the street. He was just in time to see a girl, mounted on a slenderly built saddle horse, turn a corner, several blocks away, and vanish from his view.

Alongside the opposite curb lounged a mounted policeman, chatting with a passerby. Farwell ran across and seized the officer by the arm.

"Did you see a woman ride past here a few moments ago?" he demanded.

"Why, yes," returned the patrolman, wondering at his interlocutor's excitement. "I did. I didn't take much notice to her, except that she rode mighty well. She'd gotten past me before I saw her. Is—"

"She has robbed me," interrupted Farwell. "Catch her! She turned to Struck the Would-Be Murderer Across the Knuckles.

The spokesman looked around him in bewilderment. So did the other men. They had a fleeting glimpse of a girl on horseback, riding away from the board fence that divided the yard from the street.

"She threw it at you," said one of the men. "I saw her. What is it?"

The spokesman had stooped and was picking up the white thing that had struck him. It was a large envelope, very thick. The others pressing close around him in jostling curiosity, he tore open one end of the envelope.

Out fell a package of big denomination bills. A cry of amazement broke from the crowd. The spokesman, holding the money in one hand, stared stupidly at the envelope. He read aloud the typewritten address:

"FOR THE EMPLOYEES OF THE FARWELL CORPORATION."

"What the blue blazes!" he sputtered.

Then he saw a sheet of notepaper sticking half way out of the torn envelope. He drew it forth and, in a voice shaking with wonder, read the few typed lines it contained:

"Accept and distribute the inclosed as part payment of your accumulated co-operative profits in the Farwell corporation—An Agent."

A cheer from hundreds of hoarse throats broke in on his reading.

"Come on!" yelled the spokesman, enthusiastically, as he flourished the handful of big bills. "Come on, boys! Let's go to the boss and thank him. He's a white man, after all."

Farwell, in his ground-floor office, overlooking the yard, glanced out of the open window, just in time to see the crowd start toward the building. His hand went to his pistol butt. He thought he understood that unanimous movement.

Presently, his look of dogged defiance changed to one of bewilderment. This mob of avengers was behaving most strangely! The men were dancing along, laughing and waving their caps and shaking hands with one another. Surely no angry mob would act thus.

Just then, the front rank of them caught sight of Farwell standing in the open window. A roar went up.

the past twenty-four hours. And now, at last, he had nerved himself to make the test he had planned—the test which, he believed, would prove to him, once and for all, June's guilt or innocence.

With a shivering heart, but with firm step, he approached the Travis house.

And at the same moment, Yama, the Jap butler, was privily conveying "Smiling Sam" Egan's late breakfast to the attic. For some occult reason, Sam loved to torment and frighten the dapper little butler. And Yama's visits to the hiding place were moments of terror to the poor little yellow man.

Today was no exception. He set the tray down in front of Sam and started to pour out a glass of wine for him. But Yama's hand shook pitifully, from sheer fright. A spoonful of wine fell on Sam's knee.

With a truly terrifying growl Egan snatched up the carting knife he still carried in his belt and rushed at the Jap.

"I'm going to cut my monicker on your measly heart!" he snarled.

Yama did not pause to see if the threat would be fulfilled. Dropping everything, he fled.

Egan returned the knife to its place, chuckling amusedly at the scare he had given the butler. Then he picked up the bottle of wine and tried to read its label.

But the light was dim and his eyes were nearsighted. He went over to the window to get a better view of the label. Close to the pane he stood for an instant, curiously and laboriously spilling out the name.

And, in that instant, Max Lamar, turning in at the front-walk, chanced to look up—and saw him.

Lamar halted and stared upward more keenly. But Sam had moved away from the window. Max, with the excitement of a hound on the scent, bounded up the veranda steps.

At the top, he collided violently with a little figure that shot out of the front door. It was Yama, still in flight from Sam's imaginary pursuit.

"What's up?" demanded Max.

Yama stared, speechless and gasping.

"What's the matter?" repeated Lamar. "Did you see him, too? Were you going for the police?"

"Saw—saw nobody!" babbled the Jap, still remembering Sam's threat of what he would do should Yama betray his hiding place. "Eww nobody. Going for a little walk. I—"

"Going for a little hundred-yard dash, you mean," corrected the perplexed Lamar. "Let me in there. I've just seen—"

"Why, Mr. Lamar!" exclaimed a voice from the foot of the steps.

Max turned, to see June, in riding dress, crop in hand, mounting the veranda toward him.

"Miss Travis!" he said, hurriedly. "I caught a glimpse of a man I'm almost sure was Sam Egan."

"Really?" asked June, her heart beating fast. "How interesting! Whereabouts?"

"In that topmost window of your house. The attic window, I suppose. He was—"

"What nonsense!" she laughed, nervously. "How could he possibly—?"

"I must go and look for him," insisted Lamar. "That is, if you'll let me. He probably remembered your goodness to him in other days, and sneaked in here to try to persuade you to help him. Let me go in, please. He mustn't get away from us again."

June, too confused to make any protest, led the way into the house. She was sick with terror. In the library doorway they met Mrs. Travis. She came forward, cordially, to greet Lamar. The crime specialist cut short her salutations by saying, brusquely:

"Mrs. Travis, I have reason to think a criminal is hiding in this house. 'Smiling Sam' Egan, the crook I told you about, down at Saritón. May I search for him?"

"Why certainly," assented the startled old lady. "But—oh, I do hope you are mistaken, Mr. Lamar! I can't believe—"

Max had already started up the stairs. June, dreading to go with him, yet dreading far more to remain in suspense, followed. Mary, who had been crossing the lower hall as Lamar entered, hurried after her.

The search of the next floor was merely perfunctory.

"He's not down here!" declared the crime specialist at last, in growing impatience. "I'm going to try the attic. How do I get to it?"

He was standing close to the doorway, as he spoke, the doorway leading to the attic stairs. And his strong voice carried every word to the fugitive above.

At the sound, Egan started to his feet, knife in hand. This attic was no place to be cornered like a rat in a trap. If he could get downstairs, a knife-thrust in Lamar's body might leave the way free for him to escape to the street. Yes, and that same knife-thrust might silence Lamar forever. If so, he had no fear of the household's women blabbing as to who had done the murder. They would not dare.

Knife in hand, Egan tiptoed down the stairs. With his free hand he opened the door a little way, and peeped out into the upper hall.

Lamar had just moved from that very door, and was standing with his back to him, only a few feet away, looking about for the entrance to the attic stairs.

But June saw the door open. She saw the broad, hideous face, the tight-gripped knife. She saw Sam crouch for a spring. She saw him, knife raised, launch himself at the unsuspecting Lamar.

Then, as the man stabbed, June awoke from her daze of horrified inaction. With a scream she seized Lamar, and by main force hurled him to one side and half way around.

The knife-thrust missed its mark by the fraction of an inch. Lamar, whirling, caught sight of his foe. As Egan's arm went back to stab again, Max grappled him.

Back and forth across the hall, the two men swayed and lurched in their fierce wrestle. The shoulder of one of the two close-locked bodies struck against the attic door, slamming it shot. Chairs were overturned, and the hallway became a bedlam of noise and fury.

Sam managed to wrench his knife hand free. He lunged murderously at Lamar's throat. Max was too late to guard the blow. But he shifted his lithe body to one side. The blade flashed past it and was buried, half to the hilt, in the wood of the door.

Sam now turned his full attention to the task of crushing his opponent with his bare hands.

Max merely defended himself, as best he could. At last he was able to draw his pistol.

But, as he did so, Sam seized the crime specialist's right wrist with both his own huge hands, and exerting all his brute strength and weight, twisted Max's hand outward and upward.

No human power could withstand that pressure, so suddenly and skillfully exerted. The pistol leaped from Lamar's opened fingers and fell to the floor.

Mrs. Travis, at first sound of the battle, darted into the nearest room, snatched up a telephone and summoned police headquarters.

It took her some moments to get the connection, because police headquarters "Central" was just then listening to a patrolman's thrilling account of the way Attorney Charles Gordon had come to the chief of police, a little while before, and given himself up to justice—laughing as he did so.

But presently Mrs. Travis was switched from headquarters to the precinct station phone. And in less than a minute two policemen were on their way to the Travis house.

Meantime, the fight in the hall had reached a new and more vital stage—a skirmish for possession of the fallen pistol.

It was Sam Egan who at last secured the pistol. Despite his enemy's efforts he gradually worked its muzzle toward Lamar's writing body.

The muzzle at last touched Max's side. Sam's finger tightened on the trigger. In the same moment the pistol spun out of his hand, exploding harmlessly, the heavy-caliber bullet burying itself in the woodwork of the wainscoting.

June had seen the newest peril of the man she loved, and with her riding crop had struck his would-be murderer heavily across the knuckles.

Sam whirled about to face her. As he did so Lamar snatched up a heavy vase from a pedestal and brought it down with all his remaining force upon Egan's head.

Smiling Sam dropped to the floor like a struck bull.

Max bent over him and snapped a pair of handcuffs on the senseless man's thick wrists. Then, weak and dizzy and yawning, Lamar rose again to his feet, panting as he tried to stand upright.

"He must have broken in here last night," he gasped. "Miss Travis, I owe you my life. I—"

"Your hand is cut!" cried June. "See, it's bleeding! Let me bind it up for you."

The tramp of feet sounded on the stairs below them. The two policemen, escorted by the chattering and shuddering Yama, ascended to the upper hallway. At a word from Lamar they picked up the unconscious Egan and lugged him away between them.

Max, still reeling with exhaustion, turned abruptly to June.

"Miss Travis," he said. "I must ask you one or two questions. I would cut off my right arm sooner than ask them. But I must. Everything depends on your answers."

June forced a smile to her ashen lips. She knew the moment had come. The moment of reckoning, which she so long had dreaded.

Smithsonian Scientist Finds Bees Can Smell

WASHINGTON—Experiments with 5,500 honey bees recently completed by Dr. N. E. McIndoo of the Smithsonian institution have led him to the conclusion that bees can smell and taste. The two senses are combined so closely that the scientist says they cannot be separated.

In testing the senses of these insects the following substances were the most important ones used: Vinegar, lime sulphur, kerosene, carbolic acid, formic acid, oil of peppermint, quinine and strychnine and various other salts mixed with cane sugar and honey.

The experiments show that bees like honey best of all foods, and that they are able to distinguish the difference between various kinds of honey. Doctor McIndoo also discovered that bees don't like oil of peppermint.

Doctor McIndoo's tests during four years convince him that the sense of smell of the bee is much keener than that of man, and that it serves him as a sense of smell and taste combined.

The department of agriculture also has been interesting itself in bees and is pointing out to beekeepers their needs, especially during the long flowerless winters.

The investigators of the department found, for instance, that fully 10 per cent of the colonies of bees in the country are lost each winter from starvation, cold and similar causes. One of the principal reasons for trouble is that the owners of colonies are not willing to allow their tiny laborers to retain a sufficient supply of the honey they have gathered to feed them even on a low ration, or in lieu of this to supply sugar sirup.

Another trouble is that the owners fail to make any provision for solving the temperature problem, assuming that the bees can manage to get through the winter's cold without trouble.

Plant Explorer Brings Specimens From Asia

FROM wanderings and explorations in the remote provinces of China, up into Tibet, across the stretches of the Gobi desert, into Russian Turkestan, across the Altai mountains, and through the virgin forests of the upper Yalu and Tumen rivers, Frank N. Meyer, plant explorer for the department of agriculture, has returned to Washington, bearing with him, in the form of hundreds of specimens carefully assorted, labeled and classified, new and strange plants, seeds, leaves, roots and cuttings that may, after thorough investigation and exhaustive tests, prove of incalculable value to the farmers, fruit growers and gardeners of the United States.

Startling as have been the adventures of other explorers of the earth's uncharted and unmapped regions, none of those have been of more interest than have befallen Mr. Meyer in his wanderings about the unknown regions that lie above and back of China. Indeed, his fourth and latest trip was cut short and he was forced to abandon his prearranged program because his bearers were strongly disinclined to enter the wilds of a hitherto unpenetrated portion of Tibet in the face of declarations by Tibetans that should they proceed they would most certainly be boiled alive in oil.

In search of plants of immediate economic importance to agriculture Mr. Meyer has traversed the fertile plains and the immense stretches of the steppes of eastern Siberia and has penetrated the jungles and the deserts where grow the rudimentary and as yet unused wild plants that may by cultivation be adapted to the use of man. Among his discoveries is the wild peach of China, beloved by present-day scientists and botanists to be the parent stock. A wild pear is another discovery of this quiet Hollander on Uncle Sam's pay roll. This wild pear, sturdy, hardy and strongly resistant to diseases such as prove almost insuperable obstacles in the way of fruit growers, is to be used in tests and investigations as grafting stock, in the hope that in it may be found the solution of the problem of eradicating pear blight and other tree diseases that for years have wrought havoc in American orchards.

A hitherto unknown variety of chestnut, strongly resistant to the deadly chestnut blight that has killed thousands of trees in eastern United States, was another of Mr. Meyer's discoveries.

Varieties of wild grapes and wild plums that may prove invaluable to American horticulturists are also among the discoveries of this scout of science, who has brought back with him cuttings and roots and seeds to be tested at the various experiment stations of the department of agriculture.

Colds Make Backs Ache

MORE aching backs, more kidney troubles come in March, than in any other month. Slushy sidewalks, dampness, raw winds and sudden changes cause chills and colds. And chills or colds tend to hurt the kidneys. It is good sense to use a kidney remedy when recovering from a cold and at any time suffering from a lame back, sharp pains when stooping or lifting, dizzy spells, irregular or annoying kidney action, and a run-down, nervous state.

Don't delay and take a chance of getting dropsy, gravel, Bright's disease or some other serious kidney disease. Use Doan's Kidney Pills, the best-recommended, special kidney remedy. All over the world grateful people frankly praise Doan's.

Here's What Colorado People Say:

Logan West, 505 Center St., Pueblo, Colo., says: "Exposure to all kinds of weather was largely responsible for the pains in my back. Colds settled on my kidneys and mornings when I got up, my back was very painful. Nights when I came home from work, I had a tired, dull ache through my kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills fixed me up in good shape, removing all signs of the trouble."

Mrs. I. T. Burns, 609 E. Seventh St., Pueblo, Colo., says: "Almost all my life I had rheumatic pains. Sometimes I was so lame that it was hard to get around. The least cold settled on my kidneys and made the suffering worse. Sometimes my kidneys acted too freely and then again not often enough and I was also subject to dizzy spells. Doan's Kidney Pills have given me relief from these spells and have spared me a lot of suffering."

COLT DISTEMPER

You can prevent this loathsome disease from running through your stable and cure all the colts suffering with it when you begin the treatment. No matter how young, SPON'S is safe to use on any colt. It is wonderful how it prevents all distemper, no matter how cold or horses at any age are "exposed." All good druggists and turf goods houses and manufacturers sell SPON'S at 50 cents and $1 a bottle, $5 and $10 a dozen. SPON'S MEDICAL CO., Chemists and Bacteriologists, Greeley, Ind., U. S. A.

The Army of Constipation

is Growing Smaller Every Day. CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS are responsible—they not only give relief—they permanently cure Constipation. Millions use them for Biliousness, Sick Headache, Sallow Skin, SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE. Genuine must bear Signature Wm. S. Carter

A Light Dream. Prof. Ulrich Dahlgren of Princeton university predicts that the time will come when the luciferous substance of chemical composition carried by fireflies, certain fish and other animals, will be used for illuminating houses, etc. He believes that this will come about when the nature and proportions of the chemical constituents of these substances are discovered, and says they will give a light having an efficiency of 99 per cent instead of the 15 per cent produced by lights now in use.

A GRATEFUL ACKNOWLEDGMENT. Mr. F. C. Case of Welcome Lake, Pa., writes: "I suffered with Backache and Kidney Trouble. My head ached, my sleep was broken and unrefreshing. I felt heavy and sleepy after meals, was always nervous and tired, had a bitter taste in my mouth, was dizzy, had floating specks before my eyes, was always thirsty, had a dragging sensation across my loins, difficulty in collecting my thoughts and was troubled with shortness of breath. DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS have cured me of these complaints. You are at liberty to publish this letter for the benefit of any sufferer who doubts the merit of DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS."

Three Hundred Million Bushel Crop in 1915 Farmers pay for their land with one year's crop and prosperity was never so great.

Regarding Western Canada as a grain producer, a prominent business man says: "Canada's position today is sounder than ever. There is more wheat, more oats, more grain for feed, 20% more cattle than last year and more hogs. The war market in Europe needs our surplus. As for the wheat crop, it is marvelous and a monument of strength for business confidence to build upon, exceeding the most optimistic predictions."

Wheat averaged in 1915 over 25 bushels per acre Oats averaged in 1915 over 45 bushels per acre Barley averaged in 1915 over 40 bushels per acre

Prices are high, markets convenient, excellent land, low in price either improved or otherwise, ranging from $12 to $30 per acre. Free homestead lands are plentiful and not far from railway lines and convenient to good schools and churches. The climate is healthful.

There is no war tax on land, nor is there any conscription. For complete information as to best locations for settlement, reduced railroad rates and descriptive pamphlets, address: Superintendent, Immigration, Ottawa, or W. V. BENNETT, Room 4, Box 514, Omaha, Nebr. Canadian Government Agent

Home Talent.

A man from "upstate" had gone to a theater in New York. In an interval between the acts he turned to the metropolitan who had the seat next to him.

"Where do all them troopers come from?" he inquired.

"I don't think I understand," said the city dweller.

"I mean them actors up yonder on the stage," explained the man from afar.

"Was they brought on specially for this show or do they live here?"

"I believe most of them live here in town," said the New Yorker.

"Well, they do ruddy blamed well for home talent," said the stranger.—Philadelphia Chronicle-Telegraph.

Well, Why?

Representative Bowdle of Ohio, whose vigorous anti-suffrage speech was the feature of a suffrage debate, sat at a recent dinner party in Washington beside a suffragist.

The suffragist, desirous of showing woman's serfdom of servitude, said: "Mr. Bowdle, why does a woman, when she marries a man, take his name?"

But Mr. Bowdle, desirous to show woman's sheltered and easy economic position, smiled and answered: "Why does she take everything else he's got?"—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Clean the Blood

Spring is the time of the year when we should put our house in order. We're run down after a hard winter—after grip, colds, catarrh. It's time to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, purely vegetable and free from alcohol or narcotics. It will search out impure and poisonous matter and drive it from the system. Buy "Discovery" now in tablets or liquid.

It will dissolve the poisonous accumulations and replace the bad blood it drives out, with rich, pure blood full of vital force.

It will clear the skin; eczema, pimples, rash, blotches will dry up and disappear; boils, carbuncles and other evidences of tainted blood will pass away, never to appear again.

A NEW DISCOVERY

"Anuric" is a recent discovery of Doctor Pierce, who is head of the Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y. Experiments at Dr. Pierce's Hospital for several years proved that "Anuric" is a wonderful eliminator of uric acid. For those easily recognized symptoms of inflammation—as backache, scalding urine and frequent urination, as well as sediment in the urine, or if uric acid in the blood has caused rheumatism, it is simply wonderful how surely "Anuric" acts; and in gravel and gout, invariably the pains and stiffness rapidly disappear.

Go to your nearest drug store and simply ask for a 50-cent package of "Anuric," or send Dr. Pierce 10c for trial pkg.

Story of the Auto, the Copper and the Negro

DURING the icy downpour of sleet that engulfed Washington on a recent day, one of Major Pullman's finest stood beneath the awning at the entrance to Keith's theater incensed in his water-proof cape and watched the pedestrians shivering about in the slush.

Two handsomely dressed women left the theater and crossed the street to an automobile. Getting inside the machine, they wrapped themselves snugly in and gave two or three yanks and pulls at the steering apparatus, but the car didn't budge. This process was repeated several times, when the guardian of the law, observing their predicament, hastened from his station under the awning and volunteered assistance. The cop gave the iron starting handle a twist or two, but there was no visible sign of life in the car. He tried it again, and then again and again. Gradually a crowd of sympathetic eyewitnesses gathered and offered advice. The "cop" gave his cap to a newsboy to hold and then he tried it again. For some strange reason the car refused to move. Evidently the carburetor was sick or some other ailment peculiar to automobiles had seized the machine.

"Let me get a trial at dis car, boss," said a dusky son of toil, showing his way through the little circle. No one objected and, taking a firm grip on the handle, the darkey ran it around a couple of times. A pause for breath and he tried it again. The response was instantaneous, and as the motor commenced to work everybody laughed. The ladies expressed their thanks, the crowd dissolved, and the "cop" wended his weary way back up Fifteenth street to Keith's.

What the policeman had to say about automobiles as he strode along was confidential, but it was a comment which deserves to go down as "concise and peppery."

Bomb Scare Interrupted the Senatorial Labors

THE senate office building one afternoon recently was humming with the rapid workings of legislative machinery. But just as Senator Blank turned to Senator Dash and inquired "How many cards" a page entered in hot haste to whisper in the senatorial ear.

The senator gasped and, arising hastily and wrapping his senatorial dignity about him, took the shortest route to the door. He was followed by others, as the rumor spread that a German spy had been found in the garret and was about to drop a bomb down the elevator shaft.

But it was all wrong, Von Reventlow, it was all wrong, Von Reventlow, it was all wrong. He wasn't a German, anyway; he was an Italian named Volpe Tommaguio, and he didn't have any bomb, and he was caught by a policeman and taken where he belonged—to St. Elizabeth's, which is the Washington name for Matteawan.

M. B.—Senator Dash ultimately took three cards, but he didn't better.

Attend Home Institutions

An advertisement of the New Mexico State University, now running in the News, brings forward a new and very impressive view of the value of attendance upon New Mexico educational institutions by young men and young women of this state who expect to make their homes in New Mexico after college education has been completed. This is the matter of acquaintances, friendships and personal relations formed during college days, and knowledge of conditions and opportunities in the region where the education is acquired.

Father Dies

J. F. Kimbell received a message Friday last that his father was at the point of death at Eldorado, Kansas. Mr. Kimbell left that night and reached his father's bedside only a few hours prior to his father's death.

The elder Kimbell was in his 79th year and met with an accident in a collision, the exact nature of which has not been definitely determined, as the shock produced a state of unconsciousness from which the aged sufferer never recovered. Mr. Kimbell, Jr., will be detained for some time, adjusting matters following his father's death.

Republicans Hold Primary

Republicans of this precinct held a primary Monday night at the court house to elect delegates to the county republican convention, which meets at Capitan tomorrow. This precinct was entitled to four delegates, but decided to double the number, giving each half a vote. Those elected were: William Kahler, O. T. Nye, W. H. Osborn, Henry Lutz, Andrea Luernas, Dr. T. W. Watson, W. S. Brady and A. J. Rolland. The county convention will elect six delegates to the state republican convention, which will in turn select six delegates to the national republican convention at Chicago.

Minstrel Will Repeat

They're going to give it again for the benefit of many who'd like to hear it again, and for those who couldn't take it in on last Friday night. The High school minstrel will be produced at the Crystal again next Friday night with some substantial additions, such as popular songs by the entire High school chorus; and the prices have been cut to 15 and 25 cents. The proceeds are for the beginning of a school library, and all interested in school betterment should support this worthy movement.

Held at Estancia

Gus Wallick, wanted for burglarizing the Ancho store and postoffice about six weeks ago, has been arrested by the Torrance county authorities and is in the Estancia jail. John B. Baird, under sheriff, at whose instance the arrest was made, went to Estancia last Friday to bring back Wallick. When he reached Estancia, however, he found the prisoner in such a physical condition, suffering from a serious case of blood poisoning, that he thought best not to undertake his transfer from Estancia to Carrizozo. As soon as the prisoner recovers sufficiently he will be brought to this county and arraigned on the charge of burglary.

New Auto Agency

A new auto agency has been established at Corona, this county, and the firm is known as Atkinson, Simpson & Co. They have the Lincoln county agency for the Chevrolet and Studebaker cars. Two carloads—one of the Chevrolet and one of the Studebaker—are on the road from the factory.

The Chevrolet is the best low-priced car on the market, and it will make a greater distance on a given quantity of gasoline than any car on the market. The Studebaker, a standard car, known and recognized by motorists to be equal to the best.

Ask for a demonstration. Write or see Atkinson, Simpson & Co., Corona, N. M.
