"Blue" worried, half-tick people should find out the cause of their troubles. Often it is merely faulty circulation which allows the blood to be loaded up with poisons that irritate the nerves.

A Colorado Case Mrs. Dacie Bruhn, "Boy From Idaho" 127 1/2 Twelfth St., Greeley, Colo., says: "I had a steady ache in my back and frequent attacks of dizziness made me feel weak and miserable. My kidneys acted irregularly. My feet swelled and I could hardly stand on them. For three months I hardly slept at all. I used three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and the trouble is now entirely gone and I am in good health."

WASHINGTON SIDELIGHTS

Washington Sentries Have Many Amusing Encounters

WASHINGTON.—Contrary to general belief, the sentries guarding Washington's military establishments, bridges and public buildings are not automotons. They can and do saunter, talk, laugh and otherwise act like human beings.

A few nights since a half-frozen sentry before the side gate of a big military establishment here beheld a solitary and stooping figure creeping along and eying the portal dubiously.

There is a famous bridge near Washington where several months ago a man leaped down to his death. It is closely guarded, for it carries a big water main.

New Rules for Stenographers in One War Office

ONE office of the war department doesn't believe in instructions favoring of red tape. So regulations have been evolved for stenographers.

1—Conserve air by eliminating some of the unnecessary conversation. 2—Conserve shoe leather by remaining at your desk; remember you are supposed to be a stenographer, not a floorwalker.

5—Don't acquire the saving habit to such an extent that you go home with your pockets full of paper clips every night.

7—Any person or persons having a part of their lunch hamburger cheese will kindly adjourn to the roof until the ordeal is over. There is a strong reason for this.

Win the War by Preparing the Land

Sowing the Seed and Producing Bigger Crops Work in Joint Effort the Soil of the United States and Canada

The Food Controllers of the United States and Canada are asking for greater food production. Scarcely 100,000,000 bushels of wheat are available to be sent to the allies overseas before the crop harvest.

Western Canada has an enormous acreage to be seeded, but man power is short, and an appeal to the United States allies is for more men for seeding operation.

Canada's Wheat Production Last Year was 225,000,000 Bushels; the Demand From Canada Alone for 1918 is 400,000,000 Bushels

To secure this she must have assistance. She has the land but needs the men. The Government of the United States wants every man who can effectively help, to do farm work this year.

Apply to our Employment Service, and we will tell you where you can best serve the combined interests.

Those who respond to this appeal will get a warm welcome, good wages, good board and find comfortable homes. They will get a rate of one cent a mile from Canadian boundary points to destination and return.

Hit Hun Hard
 "Therefore, I will save, I will sacrifice, I will endure, I will fight—cheerfully, and to my utmost—as if the whole issue of the struggle depended on me alone!"

The most gigantic drive in history is being made against the allied lines by the ruthless Hun. English, French and Americans are fighting shoulder to shoulder to repel the thrust of the monster and it is confidently felt that they will succeed. But the battle cannot be won in a week, most likely not in a month, possibly not in a year. We are the only nation opposing the barbarous Hun whose resources are untouched and whose wealth in men and means is almost limitless.

Therefore, let every young man, who is without dependents, when called upon, respond cheerfully; and let him remember that the best and truest men of all ages have been willing to die for a principle; and do not let him forget that a man who dodges this issue—the only issue before the American people—that his conscience will haunt him as long as he lives and that future generations will reproach him for not coming to the relief of his country in its time of stress.

But the responsibility is not alone on the boys whom the government has decreed shall bear arms; it is equally as great on those over age, and upon the women, as well, rests a heavy responsibility—but, God bless them, they require no adjuration for they have met every responsibility. The responsibility of those at home is to save foodstuffs; to buy war savings stamps, and Liberty Bonds—neither a gift—a bonafide and premier investment—to help the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A. and all kindred associations of mercy and to do everything that will speedily bring the war to a successful conclusion.

Let it not be said that we sent our boys across to face the blood-crazed Hun—the boy who is giving his all—and then neglected to save food and furnish money to the government for his sustenance and means for repelling the onward rush of the Berlin autocracy.

The boys in the trenches are hitting the Hun hard; the men and women at home can do the same. Let it be the motto of every American, whether at home or in the trenches: "Hit the Hun Hard!"

A Bill we Can Pay

A ten year old boy overheard a conversation about certain bills to be paid, and conceived the idea of making out a bill for his own services. So the next morning he laid this statement on his mother's breakfast plate. "Mother owes Willie for carrying coal six times twenty cents; for bringing water lots of times thirty cents; for going on errands twenty-five cents."

His mother read the bill; but said nothing about it. That evening Willie found on his plate the seventy-five cents and also another bill which read as follows:
 "Willie owes his mother for his happy home for 10 years, nothing for his food and clothing, nothing total nothing."

When Willie saw the seventy-five cents he was pleased. But when he read his mother's bill his eyes grew dim and his lips quivered. Then he took the money to his mother, threw his arms around her neck and begged that she would let him do lots of things for her.

 Mother's bill is rarely presented but it will pay each person to think it out and over for himself and then pay it in love and service.

LITHUANIA

Koenigsberg, Prussia, Claimed by the New Lithuania.

LITHUANIA, which has declared its independence of Russia, has a history that for hundreds of years was intertwined with that of Poland, with which it long maintained a loose sort of union. At the time of the dismemberment of Poland it went for the most part to Russia. Lithuania now comprises the Russian "governments" of Kovno, Vilna, Grodno, Vitebsk, Minsk, Mogilev, and Suwalki (the last a part of Russian Poland.) This territory is almost entirely occupied just now by the Germans, who swept over it in their campaign of 1915 against the Russians. In the herds of the Lithuanians the dominions of their princes extended, however, far beyond the limits of today, reaching even the shores of the Black sea, and embracing districts now included in Ukraine, Poland, and other parts of Russia.

A most interesting point about the claims of those who have brought about the Lithuanian declaration of independence is that, in their extreme form, they contemplate not only the separation of Lithuania from Russia but also the incorporation into the new state of German territory which centuries ago formed part of Lithuania. This district includes the important city of Koenigsberg, in what is now East Prussia, as well as Tilsit and other towns. If this district should form part of the new Lithuania, and if an independent Poland should have free access to the sea after the war through the seaport of Danzig, formerly Polish and now German, there would be a small wedge of German territory, isolated from the rest of the empire, between Poland and Lithuania. The Lithuanians re-enforce their claims to Koenigsberg and other cities now under German or Russian rule by pointing to the fact that they have names for them in the Lithuanian language which the cities bore in the old days before they were seized by Teutons or Slavs.

Once a Great Principality.
The Lithuanian nation in the fourth century of our era was living along the coast of the Baltic sea between Riga and Koenigsberg.

From the tenth to the sixteenth century the Lithuanian principality extended from the Baltic to the Black sea. In that territory were White Russians and Ukrainians or Little Russians. White Russians are mostly of Lithuanian stock. Whoever goes from Lithuania to White Russia soon notices that the same types, customs and festivities exist there. The language of White Russia is 25 per cent Lithuanian, and the attitude of the people toward the Lithuanians is very friendly.

The Lithuanians are Indo-Aryans, fair, light-haired, blue-eyed, tall, and strong. They are in no way related to the Slav or Teuton. They are said to have crossed from Asia to Europe about 2,000 B. C. They settled along the Black sea, near the mouth of the Danube. Gradually they were driven by other races until they came to the shores of the Baltic, where they finally settled. Here Lithuanians grew and prospered. They were peaceful folk, never fighting unless attacked, busy with agricultural pursuits, and a few with hunting and fishing. As a nation they were prevented from going into manufacturing or into commerce by physical surroundings, but some of the more venturesome made trips to Roman territory with cargoes of amber and various products of their country.

The language of the Lithuanians has been preserved to this day. Some even say that it is the oldest language in use. It closely resembles the Sanskrit and, in many cases of research work, is the key to it.

Beat Germans and Mongols.
The Lithuanians lived in clans until the thirteenth century, when, because of national danger, they banded together. They chose Rimgaudas as the first grand duke of Lithuania, and he soon collected a large army. He defeated the Germans and stopped the western advance of the Mongolians. He likewise defeated the Russians and increased the territory of Lithuania considerably.

Mindaugas, the next grand duke, a capable organizer and administrator, continued the work successfully. Gedeminas, a shrewd diplomat, as is shown in his correspondence with the popes of Rome and the Teutonic order, was the next grand duke of note. He established the grand duchy of Lithuania on a firm basis, vanquished the Russians, Teutons, and especially the Tartars, and so helped save Europe from the greatest disaster that could have befallen it—Invasion and occupation by Mongolians. At this time Lithuania extended from the Baltic sea to the Black sea. After the death of Gedeminas, his two sons, Algirdas and Keistutis, reigned, and waged battles with Teutons and Slavs.

In 1569 a sort of dual Polish-Lithuanian government was adopted. Even then Lithuania kept its independence. In the three partitions of Poland the major part of Lithuania was annexed by Russia and the smaller by Germany. Thus Lithuania was removed from the map of the world.

The people were forbidden to use the Lithuanian language, and the possession of any Lithuanian books, even prayer books, was considered a political crime, and schools teaching Lithuanian were closed. The Russian government prohibited the use of any type in print but the Russian. The people as a result, smuggled in books and newspapers printed in Latin type, from Germany. Eventually the imperial order was revoked and the use of Latin type re-established. From that time on Lithuanian literature has flourished, many newspapers having been published and many books printed.

There are probably about 7,500,000 persons of genuine Lithuanian stock. In addition to these, the Lithuanian state would include 1,500,000 Poles, Jews, Russians, and Germans, making a total of 9,000,000 for Lithuania proper. If Letland should be united with Lithuania it would add 2,500,000 Letts, making a grand total population of 11,500,000 for the new nation.

Russian Peasant's Hard Life.

The whole existence of the Russian peasant is out of joint. He is born in a world of earth and wood, where his life is circumscribed by a log cabin that, in thatched in fall, when it assumes an appearance of ugliness, but becomes a huge harp for the March winds to play their woeful dirges on. The thatch is fed to the few starving animals, and the dispensable wooden props and decorations used to cook dinner with long before the approach of spring. Here between the unplastered, undecorated walls he lives with his horse, his pig, his hens—always provided he has any—under the same roof, glad of their sociability and animal warmth, being much in need of both. His home is one of the mice of sizzas, lopsided, weather-bent, broken-down shacks that stand huddled together, freezing in God's solemn peacefulness and uncanny dreaminess. Enchantingly joyless on a canvas, but a dreadful place to live in.

Java's Sugar Production.

Java is such a fruitful land that one hesitates to specify the principal crop, but it is one of the great sugar-producing countries of the world. The annual export of sugar amounts to something like 1,700,000 tons. People are so accustomed to thinking of sugar in terms of pounds that nearly 2,000,000 tons of sugar seems to have a stupefying effect on the mind. There are more than 400,000 acres of land under cultivation in sugar on the island of Java and the average yield per acre is four and one-half tons, which is a yield that is high above the average of sugar land.

GOWNS SHOW AN ALGERIAN SKIRT

New York.—The persistence shown by France in the dressmaking houses in continuing a certain trick for several years, deserves more attention than is usually accorded it, writes Alme Rittenhouse.

A study of the obstinate way in which Paris designers have held on to a thing they liked might go far toward convincing a vast number of the critics of women's apparel that fashions are not as flighty as they seem. The weather vane turns, it is true, but it swivels back into the same quarter so frequently that at times there is a feeling that it changes little.

The American shops, it is claimed, constantly convince their patrons that an old gown must be replaced by a new one by showing a revolution in silhouette.

We have millions of women to dress, where France has thousands, and we have a population that is quite capable of indulging in its desire for new clothes from the rim of the arctic circle to a line above the tropics.

It is a well-known fact that the American buyers who go to Paris to get new clothes often refuse lovely gowns if they bear a close kinship to those that were sold the year before. They wave such frocks away with the remark that American women must have novelty.

This act has always depressed the designers in Paris, who care for beauty and detail rather than for startling changes, and it is the French designers who say that they rack their brains for eccentricities to give to America far more than they would if their clientele were only Rome, Paris and London.

It is this underlying trait in the French dressmakers that gives them the desire to persist in a certain line—which is coming back to the original discussion.

Now the Zouave Skirt.

This line happens to be, at the present moment, that tucked-in effect at the hem of the skirt, which is suggestive of the trousers, of the Algerian troops.

Nobody would remember, probably, the exact date of the beginning of this idea, but it was evolved long before the war. It has been brought out in various kinds of skirts.

The house of Callot was probably the first to bring out the idea in a narrow skirt, but it did not take that America does not want that loose, overfull skirt with its ungraceful line about the ankles? Debutantes and young girls continued to dance in this kind of skirt wherever the fiddles sounded, but women of more mature years dismissed it as a fashion from the start.

Now, here it is again, not only here, but very much accentuated and accepted as the leading silhouette among certain houses that establish fashions.

The first French gowns that come over show it; the American dressmakers who are preparing for a brisk spring trade speak of it as a powerful factor in the shaping of the new fashions. And the interesting part of it is that it entirely changes the silhouette.

This seems to be in contrast with the stated fact that France is persistent in certain things and maintains a certain line for a longer period of time than America. The truth is that France persists with a trick, but changes the silhouette and still uses the trick, and that is what she has done in the new Algerian skirt.

It is difficult to say whether the trousers of the French troops in Algeria give the clue to this new skirt or whether it was the entire array of men in baggy trousers which curve in below the knees to fit the legs.

Here is the silhouette. The waist is normally large, the line down the hips is either straight or slightly bulging through the fullness of the material, and the hem is exceedingly narrow and tucked under. A woman wearing the most fashionable of these skirts, with high boots added thereto, will look at a slight distance as though she wore baggy trousers and army boots.

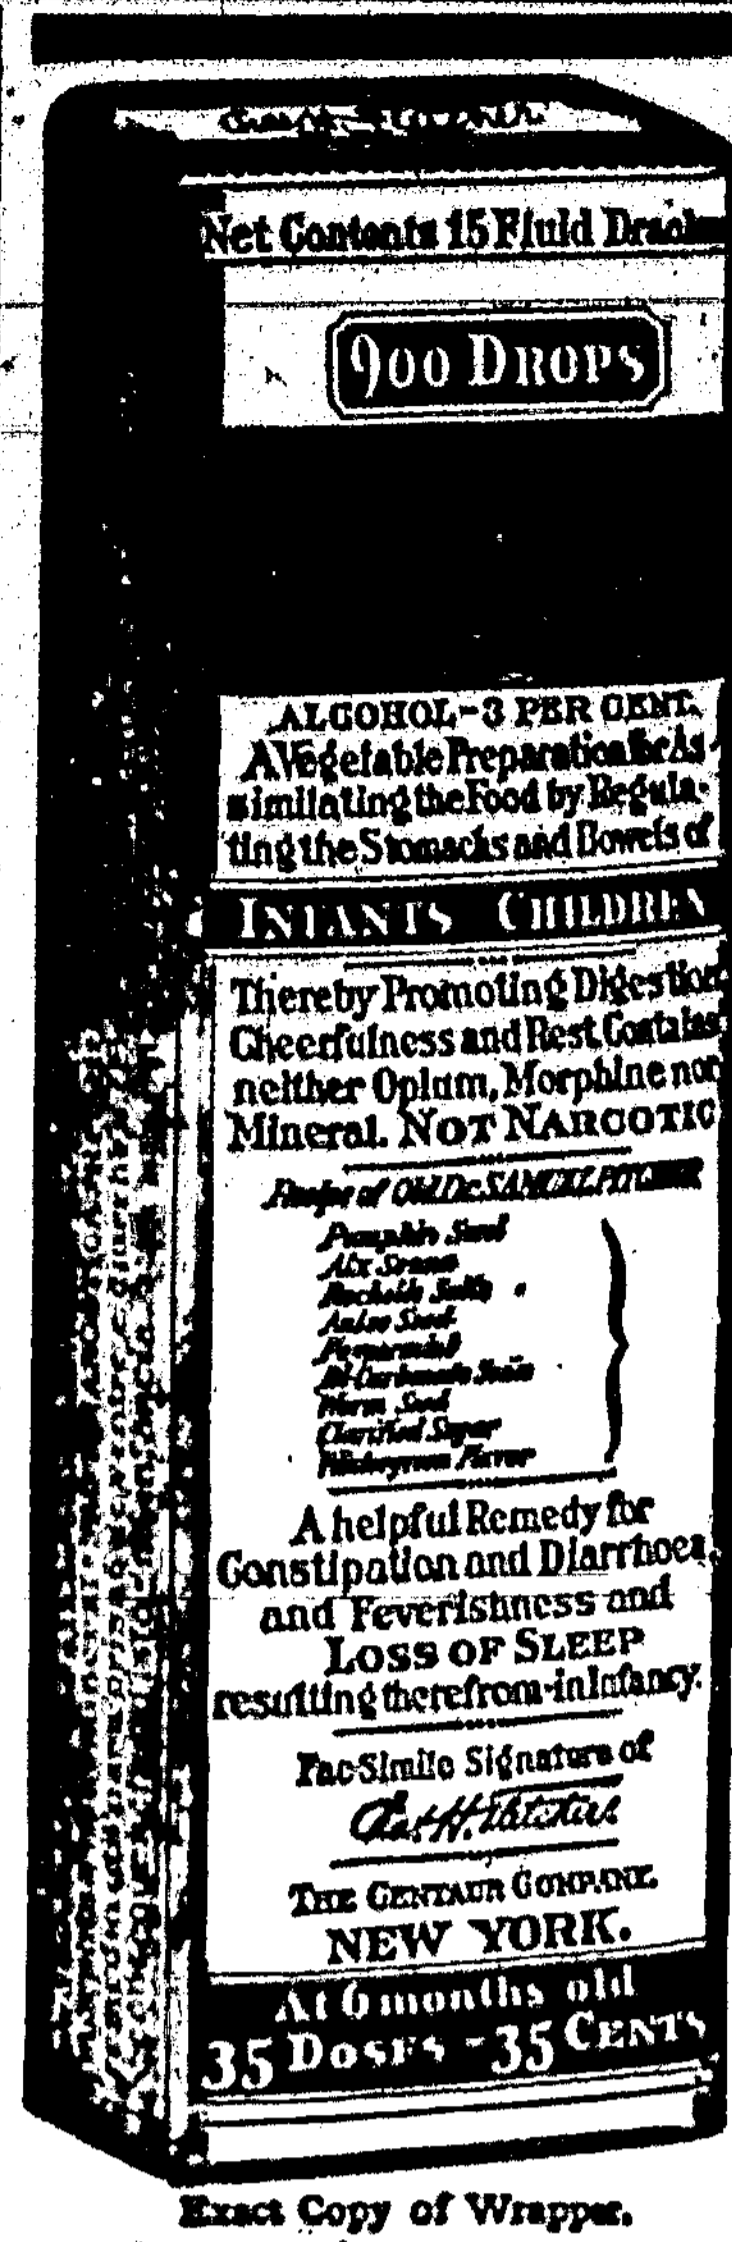

To the majority of women this news, may not be welcome. They will fancy a far more sensational garment than what actually exists. That mild revolution against the sheath and the hobble skirt may also crop up against this Algerian skirt, but both the other features of fashion were incorporated in our ordinary apparel after a while, without creating disturbances.

There is so little fullness in this new skirt that it does not seem to be even a first cousin to the skirt of Jenny with its tucked-up hem. That skirt, which pervaded the continent for two years, had a tendency to flare out, to fling itself away from the ankles; this skirt goes in so rapidly from knees to hem that it does not need to undergo the same treatment that was accorded the other skirt.

For instance, to be technical—the fullness at its hem is not caught up and gathered to a short, narrow lining. This is not considered necessary. It is merely turned under and run into the conventional hem, allowing its fullness, slight as it is, to fall against the shoetops and accentuate the trousered effect.

This extreme skirt has brought about the narrowest silhouette we have had in years. When the hem is not tucked under, it is only wide enough to provide free movement in walking. The skirts are necessarily short, for their narrowness would greatly impede progress if they were long.
