What should be said of a democracy which sends an army to preach democracy wherein there was drafted out of the first 2,000,000 men a total of 200,000 men who could not read their orders or understand them when delivered, or read the letters sent them from home?

Live Stock Should Be Well Treated

Prices Are High, and It Will Pay to Feed Generously and Protect All Animals From the Weather

Farm animals that are shabbily wintered—the idea being to fatten is easily preventable. It is due to the them and sell them early the next summer or in the fall—do not thrive or give a profitable account of themselves, writes DeWitt C. Wing in Breeders' Gazette. Poorly sheltered, stingily fed and compelled to drink icecold water, they become stunted. The severe weather of the winter months in the corn belt and elsewhere is hard on live stock, even when comfortable housing, generous feeding and an abundance of clean, temperate A fertile egg is one in which the germ water are provided.

Animals kept to do farm work, to breed, to make meat or to produce milk are worth more than they have been in a long time. They will be worth still more when grass comes.

Shelter is essential; it is a form of feed. It saves body heat by keeping animals warm and dry. Body heat is made with feed. Shelter, therefore, conserves feed. Inexpensive sheds, in the absence of well-equipped, modern barns and stables, will serve the purpose fairly well. Straw and corn stover can be used in walling up and sealing the ends and north sides of such improvised structures, which usually open to the south.

A beast worth wintering is worth wintering well, even on high-priced feed. All young stock should be fed more liberally, pound for pound, than mature animals. Both classes require a lot of roughage. Clover, alfalfa and cowpea hay, which are rich in protein, should be generously dealt out to young stock. Adult animals may be wintered largely on other hays, silage, corn fodder and corn stover (cut and hauled to them, or standing in fields).

Pigs, in order to thrive and make the best returns, must have plenty of protein feeds, like skim milk, bran, tankage and cowpea or soy-bean meal, which make muscle (lean meat) and bone; they must also have corn to make body heat.

Water from holes in the ice on a pond, creek or tank requires a lot of feed (fuel) to warm it when drunk by an animal. The best water for week. stock in the winter is pumped daily from depths at which its temperature is comparatively high. With practically nothing green or succulent to eat in winter, all classes of stock require much more water than they will drink if they are compelled to take it ice cold.

SOIL FROM FRANCE

Earth for Filling Purposes About Statue of Liberty

Here is a striking instance of thrift manifesting itself in postical justice. The tiny talend in New York harbor trance for 1,000,000,000 people healdes on which stands Bartholdi's Statue of mer Liberty is being enlarged. The soil used for filling-in purposes comes from France. It is the debris from the trenches, military rollway lines, warehouses and wharves. It was brought to America as ballast for the transports that carried our mighty lo-glons of liberty to France. Thus is mingled the soil of the two republics as a setting for the world's most typical symbol of liberty, just as the bodies of thousands of American sons are today mingled with the soil of France under the crosses where they lie. In this humble yet beautiful demonstration of the kindred ideals of the two nations. American thrift, which did so much to make victory possible, was the underlying impulse. -Thrift Magazine.

"We are starting on the new San Tiao Shib cutting, which is part of the general plan for the conservation of the river systems of Chihil," continued General Yang. "This cutting will include several streets. We are already tearing down the houses and building the tracks for the miniature railway. About 800 rooms in all will be removed to allow for the new cutting. But this does not matter. When the river is moved from its present bed and is forced to flow through the cuttings we shall have reclaimed Jack's ring? much valuable land. FOR POULTRY GROWERS

The farmers of the United States lose each year large sums because of improper methods of producing and handling eggs. One-third of this loss partial hatching of fertile eggs, according to the United States department of agriculture.

The eggs laid by a hen may be either fertile or infertile, depending on whether or not the male hird has been allowed to run with the female. has been fertilized by the male bird. Except for this process of fertilization the male bird has no influence upon the eggs which the hens lay. Egg production is equally great in flocks from which roosters are excluded.

A fertile egg does not keep as well as an infertile one because the fertilized germ responds more readily to high temperatures than the unfertilinfertile egg or to cause a blood ring to form in one. Such eggs are much more likely to reach the table in goodcondition and there is less spollage in shipments composed entirely them than in mixed shipments of fertile and infertile eggs.

Heat is the great enemy of eggs, both fertile and infertile. Poultry growers are urged to follow these simple rules, which cost nothing but time and thought, and will add dollars to the poultry-yard returns:

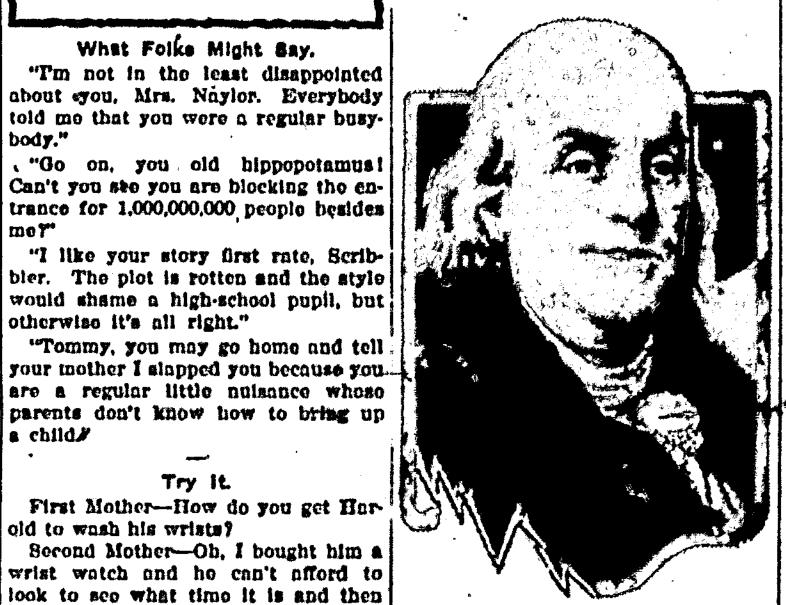

1. Keep the pests clean; provide ung nest for every four hens.

2. Gather the eggs twice daily. 3. Keep the eggs in a cool, dry room or cellar. 4. Market the eggs at least twice a

THE HOUSEWIFE'S PROBLEMS.

We hear much of the servant probem these days and it is truly a hard one to solve: the mistress problem is just as difficult. It is worthy of "note that a good ly finds a good ser-'ant: they stick, as does the bar o steel to the magnet which attracts it. Fully 80 per cent, and some statistics say 90 per cent, of the homes of America are servantless, and the housewife is more exercised as to how to make ends meet than to worry over a servant that she cannot afford to keep. Let the fortunate 10 to 20 per cent attend to the servant problem and the rest learn better how to work without one.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Although $14,550,000 was available for expenditure on the post roads from the federal aid road act, only $425,-.445 was paid from federal funds in the highway construction season of 1918 on all projects. An Attack of Influenza Often Leaves Kidneys in Weakened Condition

Doctors in all parts of the country have been kept busy with the epidemic of influenza which has visited so many homes, The symptoms of this disease are very distressing and leave the system in a run down condition. Almost every victim complains of lame back and prinary troubles which should not be neglected, as these danger signals often lead to dangerous kidney troubles. Druggists report a large sale on Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root which so many people say soon heals and strengthens the kidneys after an attack of grip. Swamp-Root, being an herbal compound, has a gentlo healing effect on the kidneys, which is almost immediately noticed in most cases by those who try it. Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., offer to send sample size bottle of Swamp-Root, on receipt of ten cents, to every sufferer who requests it. A trial will convince any one who may be in need of it. Regular medium and large size bottles, for sale at all druggists. Be sure to mention this paper.—Adv.

Body of Water is Considered Essential During Breeding Season-Some Kind of Shelter is Necessary for the Geslings.

Geeso can be roised in small numbers successfully and at a profit on forms and in localities where there is low rough pasture land and a natural supply of water. Grass makes up the bulk of the feed for geese, and it is doubtful, say poultry specialists of the United States department of agriculture, whether it pays to raise them unless good grazing range is available. Goese are good grazers and, except during the winter months, usually pick up most of their living. Their pasture may be supplemented with light feeds of the common or home-grown grains or wet mash dally, the necessity and quantity of this feed depending on the amount of pasture available.

One advantage in mising grese is that they are generally quite free from direase and all insect pests, but ocensionally they are affected by some of the diseases common to poultry. A body of water where they can swim is considered essential during the breeding season and is a good feature during the rest of the year. The market for geese is not so general as for chickens, and this should be taken unden constieration before embarking in green raising. In the South many geers are kept for the production of feathers rather than for their flesh. and many cotton growers keep them to kill the weeds in their cotton fields.

Houses for Geese. Except in winter or during storing weather when some protection should be provided, mature geese do not need a house. Some kind of shelter, such as a shed open on the south side, a poultry house, or a barn is usually provided by breeders in the North and is used by many in the South. Coops, barrels, or some other dry shelter should be provided for young goslings. It is important that the houses should be kept clean and that the floors bo provided with plenty of clean straw.

Geese, like other kinds of poultry, should be selected for size, prolificacy, and vitality. They should be mated several months prior to the breeding season to obtain the best results; therefore breeding stock should be bought in the full. Goose matings are not changed from year to year unless the results are unsatisfactory. A gander may be mated with from one to four geese, but pair or trio matings usually give the best results. The wild gander usually mates with only one goose. When mated, geese are confined to small yards, but it is allowed to run in flocks. From 4 to 25 geese may be kept on an acre of land, and under most conditions ten is a fair average.

Mr. Wilson's Triumph:

(Promitte New York Times) Americans who regretted the president's decision to absent? himself from the country in these days of domestic need and urgency, and the Times was one of those which regrested it, will not only cheerfully admit the greatness of his achievements at the Paris conference, but will rejoice in their recognition of his now amply demonstrated fitness for the work he undertook. Mr. Wilson's presence at the conference has not been a cause of discord or of jealousy; it has not been resented. It was seen from the beginning that he went there not to dominate, as his critice said, but to unite the nations. He has been marvelously suckessful in bringing into agreemen who represented interests that seemed to be conflicting. His influence in this work has prevaited because all the other nations represented looked upon him as a wise and impartial friend, interested only in making justice and the welfare of peoples the basis of the decisions reached. His triumph! in securing unanimous approval of the league of nations constitution is one in which every. American may take pride. Mr. Wilson has a dreadful way with his critics. He does not reply to them, he does worse. They rail at him as an idealist, ad visionary, a man without practical objectives, or if he have them, that they are impossible of agceptance; and they obligingly point out the things he qught to do. Mr. Wilson calmly con inues his Wilson's foreign policy throughout "has been a black stain of dishonor upon the Amercan people"; that "his principles have been a crazy patchwork of contradictions," consistent only in one idea, that the war "must end in a peace without victory." It this be just criticism, then Mr. Wilson has as his accomplices in dishonoring the American people, in constructing "his crary patchwork of contradictions," and in bringing the war to an end without victory, some fourteen nations of the carth, including the greatest civilized nations. Such criticism recoils disastrously upon him who utters it. Not even the natural desire of a great political party to find or create "issues" for the coming presidential election can give lodgment in the minds and hearts of the people to this estimate of Mr. Wilson's distinguished service.

The day when the project of the covenant of peace was approved unanimously in Paris was one of the greatest in the world's history. The people of all the! nations understand that; the people of America, with their! horror of war, cannot be fooled! about it, they cannot be misled into any small and narrow view of its momentous promise. In bringing the plan of the league into form and acceptance, Mr. Wilson has played a master role; every. American feels, that in his heart, every American understands that he brought great abilities, extraordinary qualities! of tact and persuasion, and al. Committee

RAINBOW'S END A Novel

By REX BEACH Spoilers," "Heart of the Sunset," Etc.

(Copyright, by Harper and Brothers)

FOREWORD ** **

The Cuba of the days of Weyler and Gomez and the ragged, half-starved bands of "insurrectos" furnishes admirable background for this delightful story, inwhich love, war and the search for a buried treasure are the principal strands that are interwoven to make a plot that is worthy of the mind of Rex Beach. The author of "The Spoilers," "The Barrier." and other stirring tales, has produced his most thrilling story in "Rainbow's End."

CHAPTER I.

--1---The Valley of Delight

In all probability your first view of the valley of the Yumuri will be from the Hermitage of Montserrate, for it is there that the cocheron drive you. There you overlook the fairest sight in all Christendom—"the lovellest valley in the world," as Humboldt called itfor the Yumur nestles right at your feet, a vale of pure delight, a glimpac of Paradise that bewilders the eye and fills the moul with ecstany.

Standing beside the shrine of Our Lady of Montgerrate, you will see beyoud the cleft through which the river emerges another hill. La Cumbre, from which the view is wonderful, and your driver may toll you about the splendid homes that used to grace its slopes in the golden days when Cubs had an aristocracy. Your cochero may polpi out a certain grove of orange trees, now little more than a rank tangle and tell you about the quints of Don-Esteban Varona, and its bidden treasure; about little Esteban and Rosa, the twins; and shout Schaulian, the glant slave, who died in fury, taking with him the secret of the well.

. The Spanish Main is rich in tales of treasure-trove, for when the Antilles were most afficient they were least secure, and men were put to strange shifts to protect their fortunes. Certain heards, like jewels of tragic history, in time-assumed a sort of evil personality, not infrequently exercising a dire influence over the lives of those who chanced to fall under their spells. It was as if the money were accuracd, for certainly the seekers often came to evil. Of such a character was the Varona treasure. Don Esteban himself was meither better nor worse than other men of his time, and although part of the money he hid was wrung from the toll of slaves and the traffic In their bodies, much of it was clean enough, and in time the earth purified it all. Since his acts made so deep an impress, and since the treasure he left played so big a part in the destinies of those who came after him, it is well that some account of these matters should be given. The story, please remember, is at eld one; it has been often told, and in the tailing and retelling it in but natural that a certain glamour, a certain tropical extravagance, should attach to it. therefore you should make allowance for nome exaggeration, some accretions due to the lapse of time. In the main, however, it is well authenticated and runs parallel to fact.

Donna Rosa Varona lived barely long enough to learn that she had given birth to twing. Don Esteban, whom people knew as a grim man, took the blow of his anddes bereavement as became one of his strong aber. Leaving the priest upon his knees and the doctor basied with the babies, he strade through the house and out late the suppet followed by the walls of the alaye women.

Den Beteban was at heart a selfish man, and now, therefore, he felt a sullen, Berce resentment mingled with his erior. What trick was this? he nexed himself. What had he done to merit with misteriuse? Had he not made rich gifts to the church? Had he not knelt and prayed for his wife's and precious ornaments." "True! She had all that any woman's heart could desire, but in return dren. You have lost her, but you have gained an heir, and a beautiful girl baby who will grow to be another Donna Rosa. He paused and shifted his weight uncertainly, digging his stiff black toes into the dirt. After s time he said, slowly? "Excellency! Now, about the well-7"

"Yes. What about it?" "Did the Donna Rosa confide her share of the secret to anyone? Those priests and those doctors, you know..." "She died without speaking."

"Then it rests between you and me?" "It does, unless you have babbled," "Master!" Sebastian drew himself up and there was real dignity in his black face.

"Understand, my whole fortune is there—everything, even to the deeds of patent for the plantations. If I thought there was danger of you betraying me I would have your tongue pulled out and your eyes forn from their sockets."

The black man spoke with a simplicity that carried conviction: "Times are unsettled, Don Esteban, and death comes without warning, You are known to be the richest man in this province and these government officials are robbers. Suppose-I should be left alone? What then?"

The planter considered for a moment, i"Well, when my children are old enough to hold their tongues they will have to be told. If I'm gone, you shall be the one to tell them. Now leave me: this is no time to speak of such things."

Sebastian went as noiseleasly as he had come. On his way back to his quarters he took the path to the well-the place where most of his time was ordinarily spent. Behastlan had dug this well, and with his own hands he had beautified its surroundings until they were the lovellest on the Varous grounds. It was Bebastlan's task to keep this place kreen, and thither he took his way, from force of habit.

Through the twillight came Pancho Cueto, the manager, a younglab man with a parrow face and bold, close-set eyes. Spring Sebastian, he began ! "So Don Keteban has an heir a his children and the death of his wife. Don Esteban Varona, as had been his custom, steered a middle course in politics, in that way managing to avoid a clash with the Spanish officials who ruled the island, or an open break with his Cuban neighbors, who rebelled beneath, their wrongs. Esteban dealt diplomatically with both factions and went on raising slaves and sugar to his own great profit,

The twins, Estebas and Ross, devel oped into healthy children and became the pride of Sebastian and his daughfer, into whose care they had been given. As for Evangeling, the young negress, she grew tall and strong and handsome, until she was the finest slave girl in the neighborhood.

Then, one day, Don Esteban Varons remarried, and the Donna Isabel, who had been a famous Habana beauty. came to live at the culnta. The daughter of impoverished parents, she had heard and thought much about the mysterious treasure of La Cumbre.

Before the first fervor of his honeymoon cooled the groom began to fear that he had made a serious mistake. Donna Isabel, he discovered, was both value and selfish. Not only did also crave luxury and display, but with singular persistence she demanded to know all about her husband's financial

Now Don Retebati was no longer young; she had soured him with suspicion, and when once he saw himself as the victim of a mercenary marriage he turned bitterly against his wife. Her curiosity be sullenly resented, and he unblushingly dented his possession of any-considerable wealth. In fact. he tried with malicious forenulty to make her believe him a poor man. Dut Isabel was not of the sort to be readily deceived. Finding her arts and coquetries of no avail, she new into a rage, and a furious quarrel ensuedthe first of many. She pried into the obscurest corners, she attestioned the slaves, she lay awake at night listening to Esteban's breathing, in the hope of surprising his secret from his dreams. At length a time came when they lived in frank comity; when dashel hever spoke to Esteban except in repreach or anger, and when Esteban unlocked his lips only to taunt his wife with the fact that she had been thwarted desplie her cumaing.

It was only natural under such conditions that Donna Isabel should learn to dislike her stepchildren-Beteben had told her frankly that they would fully at this show of ignorance, but he | inherit whatever fortune he possessed. "My blessed doves! But will, they listen to you?" moaned the slave.

"Papa does whatever we ask," they assured her, gravely. "If he should growl we'll come back and hide you in the big wardrobe where nobody will ever find you." Then hand in hand, with their long nightgowns lifted to: their knees, they pattered out into the hall and down toward the living room, whence came the shouting and the in the bladder, disbetes and Bright's dislaughter.

Don Mario de Castano, who was facing the door, stopped in the midst of ribald song to cry: "God be praised! What's this I see?"

The others looked and then burst into merriment, for across the litter of cards and dice and empty glasses they saw a dimpled girl and boy, as like as two pens. They were just out of bed: they were peering through the smoke. and blinking like two little owls.

"So! You awaken the household with your songs." some one chided Don

A Word About the Kidneys

BY DOCTOR WATSON.

People are easily frightened when they think something is the matter with their lungs or heart, and well they may be; but few people understand the dangers of diseased kidneys. These organs have a duty of vital importance to perform, and if they are diseased, there is no telling how or where the symptoms may appear. The kidneys are filters, and when they are healthy they remove the poisons from the blood and purify it. Speaking with one of the commissioners appointed to make a survey of the food situation in the battle-torn countries of Europe the writer was told that the depletion and shortage of food was far greater than anybody had expected. With the investigation, which at that time had merely started much had been brought to light that had only been surmised. Herds of live stock were completely wiped out, fields that had been prolific yielders of grain, roots and vegetables were terraced and hummocked by bombs and shells, many of them still lying unexploded and dangerous. Until this land can be gone over and cleaned nothing in the way of cultivation can be carried on, and even where that is done the work of leveling and getting under cultivation will take a long time.

Much more devolves upon the farmer on this side of the Atlantic than was at first supposed.
