OLDEST AND LEADING NEWSPAPER IN CIRCULATION IN THE COUNTY OF LINCOLN, NEW MEXICO.

VOLUME 20

CARRIZOZO, LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, JULY 11, 1919

NUMBER 28

ABOUT A CAPITAN COURT AND OTHER THINGS

On last Sunday evening the writer had the pleasure of meeting an old-time friend from the Capitan district whom he had not seen for a decade or more of years—R. A. Hunnicutt, a prosperous gentleman. The meeting revived old reminiscences of the days when Capitan was the liveliest and most populous little burg in the county, with the mines running day and night and supplying most of the coal used in the southwest—that was before the Dawson coal fields were opened. About the time referred to the justice of the peace of that precinct was bartender in the only saloon in town, and minor infractions of the law were invariably tried in the rear end of the saloon, the little poker room being used, when occasion required, to closet a jury. But judge, jury, litigants and witnesses were always within "knocking" distance of the bar, and when court was in session Charley Watson was the bartender pro tem. Business was business in those days in Capitan. The saloon was the only public rest room the town afforded, and "his Honor," to his credit be it said, was very strict when there was anything on the docket, and limited those attending his court to a reasonable number of "bracers" before he stepped from behind the bar, took a seat at a card table, and declared "court was now open." After that an occasional "nip" was permitted, provided the man ordering was sober. But "the judge" would adjourn court till the following day before he would permit a witness or litigant to testify who was visibly under the influence. In that respect only did he differ from "Judge Bean, or Law West of the Pecos." But to get back to R. A. Hunnicutt:

About that time a little unpleasantness arose between Bill Puckett, the road supervisor, and the then county assessor, and the latter was hailed before "his Honor" for failing to pay his road tax. The defendant asked for a jury trial, and "the judge" acquiesced. This meant more costs for the court and more business for the cantina. The late Colonel

D. J. M. A. Jewett (peace to his memory), an able lawyer, a gentleman and a scholar, and a veteran of three wars, appeared for the defense, and Attorney Joe Donahue, locally known as the "Barrister," was retained by the prosecution. Those legal gentlemen got together and agreed on six "good men and true" to try the case. A list of the six names was placed in the hands of Pegleg Watson, who in addition to his duties as porter, was also constable and clerk of the court. The writer happened to be one of the six, and as he had business to do that day that could not be put off until the morrow, he asked Constable Watson to pass him up and subpoena someone else, but to no effect, as Watson said he was sworn to carry out the mandate of the court. I then stepped across to the cantina to see "the judge," and ordered a Capitan cocktail, inviting "his Honor" to join me. While sipping the ardent elixir, a decoction it would be hard to beat for potency and quick action, I informed "his Honor" that I was in a tight pinch and could not possibly spare a minute's time that day, and requested him to excuse me from jury service. He informed me that the case was in the hands of the counsel. I next interviewed my friend the Colonel, who politely told me that he could not help me, but if the lawyer on the other side excused me he would. I then looked up the "Barrister," and tackled him in this fashion:

"Which of the litigants are you representing, Joe?"

"I'm retained by Bill Puckett. Why do you ask?"

"Well," I said, "I'm picked to serve on this jury, and I would like to see you win a case—once in a while, Joe, but how you expect to win with me on the jury is more than I can see. I know enough about this case, that if I were a witness instead of a juror my evidence alone would acquit the defendant, but I would like to be excused from serving in either capacity, as this is my busy day." (I had not even heard of the case thirty minutes previous.)

"Well," said the Barrister, "if you can fix it with the Colonel it will be all right with me."

That settled it. The Colonel and the Barrister then got together to choose a sixth man, and Mr. Hunnicutt who happened along about that time was commended.

The defendant was acquitted, the road supervisor paid the costs, threw up his job in disgust, and soon after sold out his interests and left the county.

When I met my friend Hunnicutt Sunday he was as glad to shake my hand as I was his, and when I told him how I was the innocent cause of him being commended on the jury, he laughed heartily and said there was nothing to forgive, and even if there was, "Should not a meeting like this make amends."

Capitan is a quiet, well-behaved little burg today, but in the old days when three or four hundred rough-spun miners cut loose they made things interesting. The Colonel has long since joined the silent majority; "his Honor" emigrated to Canada; the "Barrister" was last heard of in North Dakota; Bill Puckett is somewhere in east Texas farming; the assessor is still in the Capitan neighborhood engaged in stock-raising, and the whereabouts of that man of many parts, Pegleg Watson, dependent knoweth not.

A New Law Firm

Geo. W. Prichard and W. C. Merchant, lawyers, formed a partnership this week, and have opened offices in the Lutz building. Mr. Merchant practiced law in Texas many years before coming to Carrizozo, and is considered an able attorney, and a learned counsellor. Mr. Prichard is too well known in Lincoln county and southeastern New Mexico to need any introduction. Suffice it to say that he has handled more cases in this and adjoining counties during the past dozen years than any other lawyer of our acquaintance, and invariably wins.

Small Residences Needed

Not the least asset of Carrizozo is its fine all-year climate, but people will not come here unless assured they can rent or purchase small homes to live in. Railroad men with small families are leaving here constantly for no other reason than that they cannot secure living quarters outside hotels and rooming houses. The people of Carrizozo "do things" when they get started, but what they need is a starter. Few investments pay better than small houses to rent.

ACTIVITY IN THE JICARILLAS

Considerable activity is reported from the Jicarilla mining district. While the ores of that district are of a multifarious kind, the activity at present is confined to the iron mines. There has been some talk about developing some gold prospects in that district, but no steps have been taken so far.

The iron ore company is composed of El Paso capitalists, who have purchased the interests of several local people there, and have a force of men developing and taking out ore.

Work on the narrow gage road is going steadily on. Two miles of steel has already been laid, and the length of the road when completed will be seven and one-half miles.

The company during the past month has shipped 21 standard gage cars of ore from their mines. The cars have a capacity of between fifty and sixty tons each. The ore shipped averaged 58 per cent iron, with some running as high as 65 per cent. The shipments will be regular as soon as the narrow gage line is completed, but at present the ore is being hauled to the nearest point on the El Paso & Southwestern in motor trucks. These trucks, of course, will be discarded as soon as the steel line is completed.

The motive power for the narrow gage railroad will be supplied by specially designed oil-burning locomotives, and the ore cars will be all steel.

This looks like a good start for the famous old mining camp, and the people there, as well as the iron company feel very optimistic about the future of the Jicarilla district. They are confident they have the mineral, and all that is needed to put the many mines in the district in the producing class is the magic touch of the capitalist, and that is bound to come sooner or later.

The iron company is taking out ore from three different workings—some tunnels and some inclines, with veins running from eleven to sixteen feet wide. The European as well as the domestic demand for iron is steadily increasing, and ore running 58 per cent iron is as good as a good gold mine.

Lincoln county has much unexploited mineral area. Old mines that once paid well, may be made pay again, while coal areas of vast extent are within its borders. Development of mineral wealth by all reasonable methods should be encouraged. A mine or mining prospect is absolutely worthless to its owner or the community unless it is made to produce, and it takes capital to do that.

A. S. McCamant Visits In County Seat

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. McCamant, of Corona, motored down to Carrizozo Monday, and while in town made this office a welcome call. Mack did his full share towards making the celebration in Corona a success on the Fourth. The committee, he said, expected a large crowd, and arranged to entertain a large crowd, but the crowd that invaded their patriotic hamlet on that occasion surprised them. The 25 beaves and 15 muttons in the barbecue was barely sufficient to go round, and the number will be increased by at least ten next Fourth. The people of Corona were delighted at so great a number accepting their invitation, and they believe that all appreciated their efforts to please on the occasion.

Two "Buddies" Return from Overseas

Two popular Carrizozo boys, who "did their bit" for Uncle Sam in the late European "unpleasantness" returned last Sunday. L. B. Crawford is one, and Geo. B. Barber, a son of the attorney of that name, is the other. They were attached to the aviation corps. A singular thing about these two "flyers," and perhaps worth relating, is that they enlisted the same day, were trained in the same camp, crossed the Atlantic on the same ship, were stationed in the same camp on the other side, took the air together, flew together, fought together, returned on the same boat, were discharged on the same day, and returned to Carrizozo on the same train. If that would not make life-long chums of two soldier boys nothing else would. They claim they had an interesting time on the other side and liked the game, but their most notable experience occurred when entering New York harbor with 1524 other boys, on the Italian troopship Duc de Abruzzi, after 19 days without seeing land. A dense fog overhung the harbor and they came within an ace of being rammed by a sister ship. The boys are in fine shape, and say they would not exchange their experiences for anything. Previous to enlisting Mr. Crawford was in the railroad service here.

Willard Loses

The big bruising contest in Toledo on the 4th of July was won by Jack Dempsey. Jess Willard lost the fight, but won $100,000. He took a terrific beating for the money, and went down in the third round with colors flying, the red predominating, and failed to respond for the fourth round. The American public paid more than half a million good dollars for the privilege of seeing those two gladiators hammer each other for nine minutes, and it is now paying Jack Dempsey $7,500 a week for the privilege of getting a peep at him on the stage. Barnum was not far wrong, after all.

Hartley—Brazel

At the Methodist parsonage on last Saturday two popular young people were joined in the bonds of matrimony. The contracting parties were Mr. Carl Hartley, of Springer, and Miss Beulah Brazel, of Capitan. The bride is a highly accomplished young lady known to most people in Carrizozo, and Capitan her home town. She has lived the best part of her life in Lincoln county; taught school in several precincts; was assistant postmistress in the Carrizozo office; took a course in trained nursing at Fort Collins, Colo., and had just recently returned home on a visit to her mother at Capitan, when Hymen, the god of marriage, intervened.

The groom is a son of one of the oldest families in Springer. He but recently returned from overseas service with the American troops, and therefore is not as well known here as his accomplished bride. The couple will make Springer their home. The News joins with the community in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Hartley long life and prosperity.

According to the Crop Bulletin New Mexico's fruit crop will be the largest in its history, and the rains of June have assured full crops of cereals. The prospects for the farmer and stock-grower were seldom better.

Recruiting Continues

A detachment from the Engineer Corps, which has been recruiting in this county the past week, left for El Paso Monday in their powerful motor trucks. The Engineers is considered a favorite branch of the service by many. Recently, when the U. S. troops were compelled to cross the Rio Grande, it took the engineers just one hour and 59 minutes to throw two pontoon bridges across that river for troops to cross over on. The officer in charge of the detachment stated that 6,000 men are wanted for service on the Mexican border, but enlistments are coming slowly he said, but if he could promise the boys there would be something more lively than patrolling to be done, there would be little trouble in getting 6,000 in a week, not alone from New Mexico but from Texas and Arizona. Maybe Uncle Sam will give them a trip into that country one of those days.

Building Program

There continues to be a general complaint that houses are difficult to obtain in every part of New Mexico. It has been admitted for many months that more houses must be built. In many localities commercial clubs and other organizations have done their best to get construction of houses started on a respectable scale. But so far the results have not been satisfactory. Houses for rent are still much in demand.

This is a serious matter, as the lack of houses will keep many people from locating in the state. This is more serious than ordinarily, as people are hearing much about New Mexico and its resources today in one way or another. The oil activity, now state wide, is especially giving the state much good advertising. Under the circumstances advantage needs be taken of the opportunity to bring people to the state. Lack of houses is a grave handicap that each community can remove by encouraging the building of homes.—State Record.

The Oil Boom Is On

Case after case is known where land of little or no demonstrated value has been labeled an oil property and floated for hundreds of thousands of dollars. The interested parties retain the lion's share of the "securities" issued, and only the funds taken from the pockets of the public are spent on prospecting and development. If oil is struck the insiders reap enormous profits, while if the property proves barren, why the insiders have lost little or nothing, the whole gamble having been financed by misguided buyers of the stock. Names are freely mentioned in Wall street, and my opinion is that when the boom bursts more than one scandal will be uncovered. It used to be fairly safe to accept reputable names as a guaranty that a stock flotation was all right; but from what one hears on all sides today, this rule no longer holds.—Exchange.

Can't Collect Gas Tax

Santa Fe, July 3.—Judge Colin Neblett in the United States district court today granted a temporary restraining order preventing the state from collecting an excise tax of two cents a gallon on gasoline. The suit was brought by the Continental Oil company, the Sinclair Refining company and the Texas company. The law was passed by the last session of the legislature. The state will appeal.

THE DAY WE CELEBRATE

The anniversary of American Independence was celebrated throughout the county in real old-fashioned style on the Fourth. Most of the outing and fishing parties camped along the Ruidoso, took in the Indian games on the Mesalero reservation, but few from this end of the county went there, as the distance was a little too far a one-day ride. Reports from there, however, state that the Indians and their ancient sports were interesting and well worth the journey to the reservation to see.

Fort Stanton attracted large numbers from here, as well as from nearer points, and all report having spent a pleasant day. The program was carried out according schedule, and was as interesting as it was varied. There were three boxing events which were evenly contested, the main contest being a ten-rounder, in which Red Hogan of Fort Bliss won the decision on points. The other contests were also good exhibitions of the game. The Stanton Amusement Club got up a good program, and carried it out successfully.

Corona attracted the largest crowd in its history. People were there from all parts, some coming all the way from El Paso. It was estimated that close on 3,000 visitors were entertained within its gates on that day. Fifteen fat beeves and 25 fat muttons were barbecued all of which were accounted for by the visitors before evening. More than 200 automobiles were parked around the race track, while the wagons, buggies and saddle horses were beyond even estimating. Where all the people came from still puzzles the committee. It was a great day in Corona. Something doing every hour, and yet the program had to be continued into the following day to decide some of the events. Corona certainly did itself proud on the Fourth, and those who attended the "big doings" there this year will help swell the crowd to still larger dimensions in 1920.

Carrizozo was almost completely deserted on the Fourth, the people having started out early for the different thriving points in the county, where doings were advertised.

Camp Meeting Of Old Time Religion

At the Providence Church of the Nazarenes, on road between Nogal and Capitan, on Friday night, July 18th, will begin our annual camp meeting. It will last ten days. We want every Christian from every denomination to come, praying for a great revival. We are not out to make Nazarenes or build up denominations. We want to reach every unsaved person in Lincoln county with a thunder bolt of salvation that will put a stop to so much worldliness in the church as well as out of it. Come prepared to camp and stay the full ten days—wood, water, and grass free. Prayer meeting at the same place, beginning on Wednesday night, will continue until Friday night when the meeting will begin.

Rev. H. C. Pagle and wife, and J. R. Jones and wife, assistants will be the human leaders. Every preacher and every devout Christian this reaches come and join in this prayer meeting and help hold on to God until the fire from Heaven falls and we take the country for Jesus.

WORK OF SIGNAL CORPS IN WAR

Official Reports Show Wonderful Service Rendered During Struggle.

HAD 96,000 MILES OF WIRE

Special Form of Wire Made and Many Telephone and Telegraph Stations Were Set Up in France.

Washington.—Official reports on signal corps equipment for the war, made public, show that one special form of telephone wire, unknown to commercial use before the war, was being turned out at the rate of 20,000 miles a month at a cost of nearly $10,000,000 when the armistice was signed.

The American telegraph and telephone system in France totaled 96,000 miles when the fighting ended, this being the semi-permanent installation. When fighting was at its peak the corps was approximating the use of 63,000 miles of output wire a month in addition, one development of the war being the necessity of two-wire circuits for front line operations to prevent the enemy from "listening" in on the old style single wire equipment. Wire wastage was enormous, as it had to be abandoned whenever an advance was made.

Of Special Design.

There had been set up in France last November 232 American telephone exchanges with 14,000 lines reaching to 8,950 stations. Even the telephone instruments used were of special design, combining both telephonic and telegraphic communication, and the production of these in the quantity needed was a problem in itself. At the close of hostilities the United States had 133 fully equipped telegraph stations in France, which were handling a daily average of 43,845 messages of 60 words each during the last days of the fighting, or within about 6,000 of the peak load.

An instance of the enormous demand that developed for field glasses, lenses for which before the war largely were obtained from Germany, lies in the work of the Bausch and Lomb company of Rochester, N. Y., which beginning with a capacity of 1,800 pairs of field glasses a year in 1914 had reached an output of 8,500 pairs a week in November, 1918, and was then aiming toward an output of 5,500 pairs a week by January, 1919. Similar expansions of facilities were necessary in many other plants. The requirement of the forces in France for the six-power artillery glass alone was approximately 100,000 pairs and 100,000 pairs were shipped from the United States.

Motion-Picture Photography. The report devotes considerable space to discussion of the progress made in motion-picture photography during the war. By these means, it is pointed out, the signal corps has created "a new kind of history of the war, a history written entirely in pictures for future generations to scan."

Carrier pigeons, never before employed extensively in the American army, were widely used in France. More than 15,000 were purchased and trained for that service and the report adds that "in actual use on the field the pigeons delivered more than 65 per cent of the messages entrusted to them, flying safely through the heaviest shell and gas barrage."

Woman Rules Relief

Has Charge of Large Activities in Czecho-Slovakia.

Lady Muriel Paget Tells of Urgent Food Needs of Millions of People.

Paris.—A woman has been entrusted with the big task of organizing and administering relief work in one of Europe's new states—Czecho-Slovakia. Lady Muriel Paget, an Englishwoman whose devotion to the Czecho-Slovak cause is well known, arrived here from Prague after a month's tour of the new republic, and outlined to the Associated Press correspondent her scheme for the relief of that country. Her plan, which has the approval of the Czecho-Slovak authorities, is to enlist a body of able and willing social workers to train the women of Czecho-Slovakia in social welfare work. Her ambition is to interest patriotic Czech women in America in the welfare of their native land.

"There are, roughly, 5,000,000 people in Czecho-Slovakia today who have just enough to keep body and soul together," Lady Muriel said. "Against these who may be described as the rural population, there are 7,000,000 who are below the line of bare existence. They are, broadly speaking, the industrial and mining population.

"Food, most of it from America, is now coming into the country through Trieste at the rate of about a hundred carloads a day; yet 400,000 people in eastern Slovakia are starving, and even in the better-situated parts the flour ration is only three pounds a head per month."

Lady Muriel explained how this situation is utilized by the Magyars in Hungary to sow discontent among the Slovaks.

"Practically all the intelligent classes have left Slovakia," Lady Muriel continued, "and it is during the present crisis and until their own people can be trained to do constructive and administrative work that the Czecho-Slovak government and the people have asked me to organize temporary assistance and provide advice."

Lady Muriel will establish her relief headquarters at Pressburg, from which center the sixteen necessitous Slovakian districts will be fed, clothed and medically assisted.

PAYS COOL $11,500 FOR VASE

Parrish Watson Takes Fancy for Chinese Art of Seventeenth Century.

New York.—Oriental art treasures from the collection of the late Charles Stewart Smith came to the final session of their sale in the American Art galleries one day recently, and the leading price of $11,500 was paid by Parrish Watson for a tall, brilliant sang-de-boeuf vase of the Kang Yao genre and bearing a seventeenth century date of the Kank-hai era. It is said to have been the property of the late Captain Brinkley, U. S. A., a noted connoisseur in Japan, before being bought by Mr. Smith. A tall powder blue vase of the same era went to J. Volrain for $900. J. Goetz paid $704 for a small sang-de-boeuf vase of the Kang-Yao genre and K'ang-hai era. The session yielded $22,167 and the whole sale $27,010.

BURGOMASTER OF LOUVAIN

Dr. Alfred Neripox, burgomaster of Louvain, Belgium when that town was in the hands of the Hun, is here in this country to deliver lectures, telling what truthfulness Belgium suffered.

POSTMASTER 63 YEARS

West Virginia Official Has Great Record.

Leaves the Work and Expects to Hold Job for Many Years More.

Elkins, W. Va.—Many postmasters and other federal office holders cling tenaciously to their jobs, but it is doubtful if any can boast of a record that will compare with that of George F. Moore, who has been postmaster at Elroy, Pocahontas county, continuously for 63 years. Mr. Moore says he expects to continue handling the mail at Elroy for ten or twenty years longer. He is now eighty-four years old.

When a post office was established at Elroy in 1860, Mrs. J. K. Moore, mother of the present postmaster, was she was succeeded by her son, who was appointed during the administration of President Franklin Pierce. Mr. Moore has served continuously since that day and has given such satisfaction that patrons of the office say they will not allow him to give up the job until his physical condition makes it necessary.

Postmaster Moore holds the job because he loves the work and because the people love it, not because he needs it. He is engaged in the mercantile business, owns a large farm and is president of the First National bank of Marlinton. All of these enterprises, including the post office, get his personal attention. In addition to his many business affairs, Mr. Moore is the pastor of the Southern Methodist church at Elroy and has had time to prepare two sermons a week besides conducting the regular weekly prayer

Grand Duke Nicholas Had Rasputin Flogged

London.—Lieut. Col. Napier, formerly attached to the staff of Grand Duke Nicholas, told a story of Rasputin, the hypnotist monk of the late czar, Rasputin, one day hounded into the presence of the grand duke at general headquarters, exclaiming: "Do you know who I am?" "Who are you?" the grand duke replied. "Rasputin!" "Are you?" the grand duke replied. "Well, I am going to have you flogged this time, and if you come here again I will have you hanged!" Rasputin was flogged and the grand duke was the only man in Russia who dared to have it done.

WASHINGTON CITY SIDELIGHTS

"Listen In" on the Radio, but Don't Touch Keys

WASHINGTON.—The wireless amateur has come into his own again and has the official sanction of Uncle Sam to "listen in" as long as and as often as he pleases. But he must not place his finger on the key of his instrument—not if there is the slightest danger of his sending out a spark that will interfere with the operations of the government radio stations, for Uncle Sam has reserved for himself the exclusive right to send, allowing his nephews—and possibly a few nieces—to join him in picking up messages that come through the ether.

When the United States was a neutral and as such took over control of the wireless, thousands of amateurs were debarred from not only sending or receiving messages, but from possessing any instrument by which messages might possibly be picked up. When the country entered the war against Germany the measures became even stricter, for every person with a wireless outfit came under suspicion of being a spy.

The government is going to license amateurs, and radio inspectors will make periodical visits in various cities during which the licensed amateurs are expected to undergo examinations.

Uncle Sam will brook no interference on the part of amateurs who try to send messages or who attempt to test sending equipment. The existing law will be strictly enforced regarding interference.

In New England alone there are over 2,500 active amateur radio operators who are keen to resume their favorite pastime of "listening in" for the mystic codes—as well as the decipherable messages.

Many of these amateurs confused matters at the beginning of the war, before the United States took control of the wireless, by reporting all manner of sensational "spy" plots, mystic code messages and messages, mostly undecipherable, that they believed to emanate from some secret Hun radio tower.

THIS WEAK, NERVOUS MOTHER

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

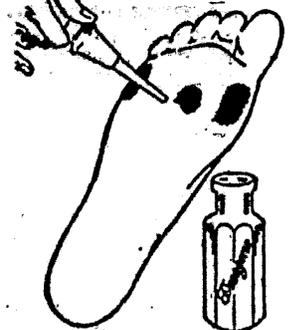

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I was very weak, always tired, my back ached, and I felt sickly most of the time. I went to a doctor and he said I had nervous indigestion, which added to my weak condition kept me worrying most of the time—and he said if I could not stop that, I could not get well. I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound my husband wanted me to try it. I took it for a week and felt a little better. I kept it up for three months, and I feel fine and can do anything now without distress or nervousness." Mrs. J. WORTHMAN, 2642 North Taylor St., Philadelphia Pa.

The majority of mothers nowadays overdo, there are so many demands upon their time and strength; the result is invariably a weakened, run-down, nervous condition with headaches, backache, irritability and depression—and soon more serious ailments develop. It is at such periods in life that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will restore a normal healthy condition, as it did to Mrs. Worthman.

Naturally. "He went all to pieces." "What made him do that?" "He was broke."

"CALLUS CORNS" LIFT RIGHT OFF

Apply a few drops of "Freezone"—No pain!

Don't suffer! A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store. Apply a few drops on the corns, calluses and "hard skin" on bottom of feet, then lift them off.

When Freezone removes corns from the toes or calluses from the bottom of feet, the skin beneath is left pink and healthy and never sore, tender or irritated.

Although a girl may know but little of business, she always knows enough to consider sealed proposals.

THIN PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Vitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force.

Feeling from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing an appetite and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Increased weight also carries with it increased improvement in the health. Nervousness, depression, and lack of energy which nearly always accompany extreme thinness, should disappear, nullify, or be removed, and the body glow with the bloom of perfect health.

Caution.—Although Vitro-phosphate is a natural and powerful tonic, it should not, owing to its tendency to increase weight, be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.

The Milk Bottle's Life Is but Seventeen Trips

THE average milk bottle makes only 17 trips before it is broken or lost. For every consumer who has a quart of milk delivered at the door each day the dealer in the course of a year has to supply 20 new bottles. This is the report made by dairy experts of the department of agriculture, who have just completed an investigation of the staggering waste of millions of milk bottles annually.

The investigation, conducted in 80 cities, shows that the average milk dealer buys 17,040 new bottles a month and the large dealers buy more than 60,000 a month, which are largely, though not entirely, replacement stock.

In 10 of the cities investigated more than 8,000,000 sound milk bottles are collected annually from the city dumps, the specialists report. In some cities the business carried on by junk dealers is one of the most serious sources of milk bottle losses, they say. Not only do they sell the bottles to dealers in the city, but often ship them to other towns. Most states have no laws restricting such traffic.

Only 53 cities had milk bottle exchanges, or places where milk bottles from all sources are sorted out and returned to the owners, provided he is a member of the exchange.

Nineteen states have regulations governing the use of milk bottles, the report concludes, and 72 cities reported the use by dealers of other dealers' bottles.

This is another proof our extravagance as a people, since most stores and delicatessen shops charge one cent for the bottles and redeem them.

One wonders how many of the 8,000,000 bottles on the dumps represent a cent each.

Thirteen Mascot Number of "Lucky Thirteenth"

THE Thirteenth regiment of engineers which Chicago welcomed home the other day calls itself the "Lucky Thirteenth," and believes that 13 is its lucky number. Certainly the thirteens in its history are many. They include: July 13, 1917—Named "Thirteenth engineers."

Went East in three trains of 13 cars each.

Transported through England on railroad No. 13. Every car and locomotive numbered 13.

Arrived in France August 13, 1917. Assigned to headquarters of First Army—13 headquarters in the name.

Published newspaper in France, Wlady City Echo—13 letters.

First American locomotive assigned to the regiment—"No. 13."

First passenger train into Sedan since 1914, in charge of Thirteenth engineers, arrived January 13, 1919.

Embarkation order for home—No. 13. Graves in France—13.

The welcome of the "Lucky Thirteenth" was a warm one. The men of the Thirteenth engineers deserved warm recognition. The regiment was organized in Chicago by Chicago engineers and business men and was sent to France all bound round with the traditions and hopes and ambitions of the city. Though the business of an army engineer is to supply mechanical aid to the military operation the soldiers of the Thirteenth engineers disclosed surprising dexterity in the use of not only tools but arms.

New Dreadnaught California Is an Armed Hotel

WHEN the 68 officers and 1,022 men to be assigned to the battleship California, now in process of construction at the Mare Island navy yard, take up their quarters on the latest and most formidable of the nation's fighting craft of her class, they will find every modern convenience provided for their safety and comfort.

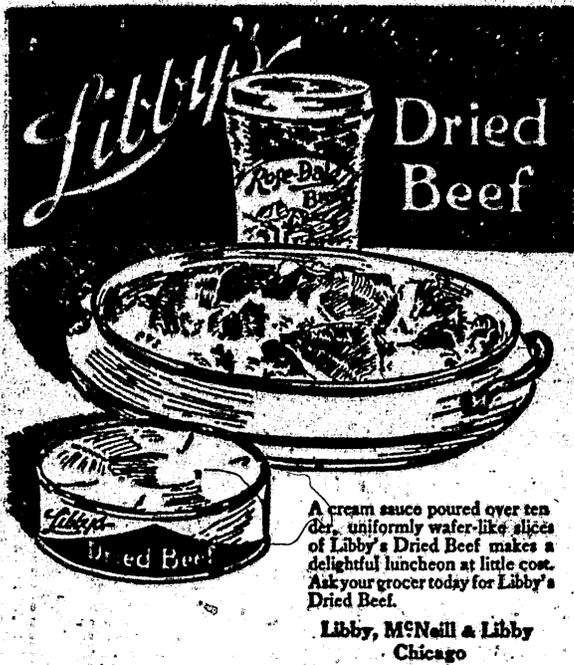

While every known protection will be provided against mine and submarine attack, and naval officers consider the California to be as nearly impregnable against destruction as it is possible to build a ship, the structure consists of the most complete of a dental office, barber shop and a score of conveniences usually associated with hotels. An electric potato peeler, which can handle 1,000 pounds an hour; electric ice cream freezer, and a dish-washing machine, which will handle 1,000 dishes an hour, will be among the conveniences which will both speed up and lighten the work.

Electricity will play an important part on the great battleship, for its use will be extensive. The main engine of the vessel will be electric. The electric generators driven by steam turbines of 20,000 horse power, and steam supplied by oil-burning water-tube boilers. Electricity will handle the ammunition, fire the guns, raise and lower boats and barbets, slow the ship and regulate the ventilating stowage.

The California's keel was laid on October 26, 1916, and she soon will be ready to leave the ways. Her cost when the award was made by Mare Island three years ago was placed at $7,425,000.

She is 364 feet long and her displacement is 20,000 tons. She carries 20 main gun.

FIXING LEAKY FOUNTAIN PEN

Really No Need to Put Up With Annoyance That Can Be Remedied Easily.

If you have a fountain pen that leaks around the joints, especially so if it is one of those types of fountain pens having a point which disappears by turning a section of the barrel, try an application of heavy oil. To remedy the defect, soak the pen in warm water, not hot, and allow it to dry, particularly inside. Then apply oil to the spindle which revolves. The oil should be worked through the bearings from end to end. You can now refill the pen and wipe off the excess oil. A heavy cylinder of oil is best for this purpose. To unscrew the parts of a fountain pen which have become set, merely heat the pen with hot water or by holding it near a flame, but be careful not to get too hot for there is danger of melting. While pen is heated a slight twist will often loosen the set.

NEW FASHIONS IN GOWNS AND COATS

Styles as They Are Reflected in the Latest Ideas of Apparel.

MANY PARIS MODES ADOPTED

Evening Coats Vie With Evening Gowns in Their Brilliance—Taffeta Favorite Fabric—Tunics in Evidence.

Fashionable cities of the United States keep their fingers on the pulse of Paris. The mood of the moment expressed on the banks of the Seine is immediately felt by the style diagnosticians on this side of the Atlantic. Every symptom is known, every fashion idea is gauged by the clothes specialists over here.

Many of these Paris modes are adopted outright because they spring from a field long fertile with all that is lovely. Many others have to be adapted to the American woman and still others created especially for her.

The wise designer, observes a prominent fashion correspondent, like the true artist, knows what is beautiful and selects it from the myriads of ideas and fabrics which are as conglomerate as a hundred daubs of paint on an artist's palette.

Out of this class of fashion creators with "the know" has arisen the American couturier, who, while keeping a watchful eye on Paris, knows how to create her own models, which rival in loveliness and perfection any importation that France may send over.

With the coming of peace the Parisienne burst into bloom. Like some rare bulb that had lain in dark hibernation awaiting the call of the spring sun, she dazzled the world. Her evening gowns could not be sufficiently brilliant in color to express her mood of joyousness.

Naturally, the American woman, atune with the same joy of victory, followed suit. Brilliance marked every gathering. Jewels were brought from their velvet boxes, and once more the American woman bloomed. The marvel was how quickly femininity was able to clothe itself in the new and brilliant raiment of joyous peace.

Taffeta Favored for Coats. Evening coats vie with evening gowns in their brilliancy. Taffeta is the favorite fabric for these summer mantles, though baronette satin with its glimmering folds makes exquisite evening wraps. Glace silk, with two tones running in its depth, is found in many of these capelle garments.

Two contrasting layers of chiffon or georgette crepe make delightfully pretty wraps and give sufficient warmth for balmy summer evenings. These wraps are frequently yoked in the drop shoulder line and the silhouette suggests the old-fashioned dolman, which lends itself perfectly to these modern capes. Crystal tassels, or those of silver, gold and jet, trim these garments or act as ornaments on heavy strands of beads that lie the fronts of the cap together. Pearl and jet are effectively combined in this head trimming.

The collars of these wraps are sometimes made of the material. They are cut straight, made double, and are gathered and wired at the center back to give the high line reaching nearly to the crown of the head. Fur, especially white fox and skunk, is used with lovely softness on these capes when a fur collar is needed. The contrast of peltry with silk is always lovely, however inconsistent it may look in summer.

Ostrich feathers are profusely used to trim these evening capes. The graceful fronds of ostrich make the ideal trimming for the summer wraps. Fringe is seen on these garments, but not so much as formerly.

A lovely evening wrap is made of graduation pink taffeta. A long cape falls loosely over the shoulders, but is cut to wrap snugly around the waist, giving the narrow silhouette.

Down of White Taffeta With Design of Pink Roses.

Never were such gleaming, glittering materials used for evening gowns. There are metal and bead embroidered nets, metal brocades, heavily apoged and jetted nets, lustrous satins and rare laces. No fabric seems too costly to put into this season's evening gown, and if one cannot afford a gleaming costume, one must "go in" for disappointing, dainty girlish effects, or do something to a simple satin or silk frock that will make it stand out with noticeable distinction among the glittering creations roundabout.

Such a trick has been tried with a black tulle dinner frock, which has tulle wings at either side of the skirt and garlands of flowers attached in striking manner to skirt and bodice. This simple dance frock is interesting and it has the new, perfectly flat back, with a train falling from shoulder to floor. Over this train of blue and silver brocade floats a light drapery of black lace, and the same lace is draped over the arms and held in scarf ends at the wrist.

Over this cape fall two long, graceful overcoats that hang in points at the back. These points are weighted with giant tassels of pink and pearl beads that dangle from a calyx of jet. Two long strands of pink and pearl beads start from the front under the collar and meet between the shoulders in a head cabochon. A single strand then hangs from this ornament and ends with a tassel on line with the other two. Tunics characterize evening gowns. This is the natural outcome of the narrow line around the feet. The short tunic, quite full or knife-plated, is used with delightful effect on dance frocks.

A beautiful black and gold evening gown is taken out of all commonness.

Black and Gold Lace Evening Gown With the Prevailing Tunics.

by the brilliancy of its trimming. The bodice is black tulle, sleeveless, as most evening gowns are.

The tunic of this gown is serpentine. It is made of black lace stocked with gold. Around the edge of this lace run three bands of vividly contrasting colors, blue, purple and emerald green. Beneath this tulle falls the light skirt of black charmeuse with a short train. A long sash end is weighted with a tassel of jet and gold. The girle of this gown belongs to the "rainbow division" of girdles. Four bands of color, blue, purple and green, are flanked with gold.

A tunic of different length is on the frock, with the underdress of lace ruffles. This gown is particularly picturesque on a young girl. White taffeta is flowered with brilliant pink roses. This material is used for the overskirt and the four triangles which make the bodice. The modesto consists of soft cream lace ruffles mounted on flesh-colored mousseline. The ruffled underskirt is likewise mounted on a scant petticoat of mousseline.

The girle of this gown is pink taffeta in the same shade as the roses. It is bound with silver ribbon.

Varieties of Tunics.

A spiral tunic that describes a double line is the distinctive mark of an evening dress which is chiffon in the shade of rose that carries a violet tone in its threads. This very unusual shade is combined with turquoise blue. The bodice is made of rose chiffon with a surplice of flesh pink. A tunic of rose chiffon overlaps another of turquoise blue. This same idea is repeated to the sleeves, where turquoise blue shows beneath the rose sleeve which is cut very short. Tiny rows of silver gauze ribbon run on both of these tunics and tie the sleeve.

The girle of this varicolored gown is rose chiffon and it is strapped with two geranium pink ribbons and one of turquoise blue, the center line being blue. These ribbons tie at the left side and the three ends hang to varied lengths.

The skirt of this frock reaches to the ankles and is draped in a slightly bias line to conform to the swirl of the tunics.

SOME DAINY EVENING GOWNS

Metal and Beaded Nets Afford Elegant Costumes for Wear on Formal Occasions.

'CAP'N' EZRA RILED

Ancient Mariner Has Trying Day in Boston Town.

And He Will Find Many to Agree With Him in His Positive Assertion That "Umbrellas is Dangerous Weapons."

I heard a sigh behind me as I unfolded my favorite evening sheet. Someone settled into the seat and rested wearily against me. I exhumed myself from my sheet and stole a side-long glance. In the little leafy man with the nervous bit of chin whiskers I recognized Cap'n Ezra Godskins of our town.

His mild blue eye caught mine and I wished him good evening. He replied with another sigh and the cryptic remark, "Umbrella is dangerous weapons." Then, like another and better known Ancient Mariner, he seemed unable to contain himself and launched forth into the subject that was torturing his soul.

This is the captain's plaint: "I come into town this mornin' bearin' no man any malice. It looked like rain, but I didn't calc'late to let that spoil my good nature. Most every one but me was totin' a umbrella.

"I was bumpin' along in the crowd leavin' the station an' just at the entrance I was surrounded by five fat old ladies who was so interested in decidin' where they was goin' to meet for lunch that they didn't notice that I was standin' in the middle of the confluence an' gettin' the benefit of all the emphasis of the pointin' they did with their umbrellas.

"A lady pointin' one direction with a parasol wants to look where a she's a-pointin'.

"I squeeze out of there just in time to get gouged in the nigh leg by a young feller that carried his umbrella strapped to the side of his valise. He gave me a nasty look for bein' there.

I started up the street and saw a feller ahead of me carryin' his umbrella over his shoulder like a musket. He turned to look into a store window and bumped a old man into the side of the head with the muzzle of his weapon. They had some words.

"A young girl that looked bright enough to know better was carryin' her umbrella in the middle and talkin' so fast at the same time I guess she didn't know she was proddin' folks both ahead and behind as though she might be sayin' 'Got up, Jessie; go 'long, Bill!'

"A tall feller with a black ribbon on his eye glasses was walkin' his slim umbrella round by the handle, thereby gettin' most of the sidewalk and a lot of unfavorable opinion for himself. He varied this a little by usin' it as a cane, swingin' it well out in front and behind. Every once in a while it swung into some one's shanks or stabbed 'em in the instep. He sure had the comfort an' safety of other folks in mind.

"People used 'em as wedges to get into the crowd and as a pry to get out. One young feller I see was standin' on the edge of the sidewalk, leanin' back on his umbrella and talkin' to a friend of his'n. Some feller goin' along mindin' his own business caught his toe in it and brought the lad down at nent as a nincom.

"Now if he had a had his umbrella hangin' down straight from his hand the way it should ha' been an' been goin' about his business instead of blockin' up the sidewalk he wouldn't a had to go home and changed his breeches.

"The trouble is that folks who carry a umbrella so it didn't interfere with anybody else is generally the ones that gets fabled.

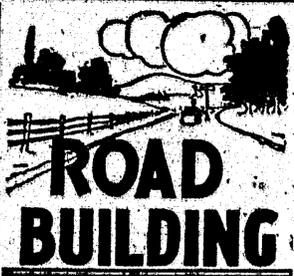

"I ain't got the heart to speak of umbrellas when folks carries 'em raised. They is worse than dangerous then; they is positively deadly. I been dodgin' carelessness and thoughtless handlers of umbrellas all day and in the hands of them class of people that is a dangerous weapon. Yes, sir, umbrellas is a dangerous weapon."—Dorothy Globe.

Notes Issued by Austrians.

A correspondent writes that Austrian notes were not the only "duds" that caused trouble and loss to the allies. Every British soldier who served on the western front must have had experience (he says) of those pretty Belgian notes which were not worth the paper they were printed on, for the reason that the enemy were in control of the Belgian national bank. "It was never safe," (he adds) "to accept change for a hundred franc note or other note of high denomination without examining each small bill given in lieu. One was almost sure to come across one or two nice clean Belgian five-franc notes hidden away among the genuine French stuff."

For Sale.

He had determined to "mop up" not in the sense, however, that one thinks of these days. He had seen a mop such as he desired advertised for 98 cents (original price $1.50), and made haste to get one, for he had also determined to buy nothing unless it was "on sale." The mop cost 86 cents, a handle 10 cents extra, a bottle of polish was added for good measure. He proceeded to drop the bottle, and as the mop without the polish was useless, it was necessary to buy another bottle, which set him back 50 cents. The bargain cost him $1.50 instead of 98 cents, as he had pictured. However, he is still determined to beat the H. C. L.

ROAD BUILDING

ATTENTION TO EARTH ROADS

Authority on Highway Construction Likes Concrete, but Favors More Care of Lanes.

More attention has got to be paid to the earth roads if the coming bond elections are to go over. This is the opinion of E. L. Stevens, inventor and road expert. Mr. Stevens is, perhaps, one of the most unique characters in the road-building world. A graduate civil engineer, he felt the tremendous need for the perfection and development of the road system of America. He stepped out from the promising channels of the regular engineering profession and went down almost below the level of ordinary men to study road building, says Rocky Mountain News. He has made road building and maintenance his life work and is now, probably, as well qualified as any man telling the methods for the proper up-building of the nation's highway system.

For a number of years Mr. Stevens has been highway commissioner for the Estes Park highway. This piece of road work in itself is a testimony to his ideas. He is also the inventor of the Stevens improved road drag, one of the simplest and most efficient road machines on the American market.

Mr. Stevens believes in concrete highways and prepared boulevards, but he also believes that the earth road, which comprises more than 80 per cent of the country's highways, is of no less importance. "A concrete highway isn't going to do a farmer much good if he has got to haul his load three miles through hub-deep mud before he gets to it," is Mr. Stevens' attitude.

The farmer is the man who is going to pay for most of the country roads, and although concrete roads are needed where the traffic is sufficiently heavy the earth roads that feed the concrete road must be kept up.

As an inventor of road machinery, a road engineer, a road supervisor and a road worker for his practicalities and the life dream of better roads as his idealism, Mr. Stevens is ably qualified to judge highway problems.

UTAH TO SPEND $8,000,000

Part of Money Is to Be Spent for Improvements on Arrowhead Trail to California.

The state of Utah has decided to spend about $8,000,000 on roads in the next two years, with an expenditure this year of about $2,000,000. Some of the Utah millions, which are made up of state and federal funds, are going to be used on the development of the Arrowhead trail, which is tributary to all parts of southern California, from San Diego and Imperial valley on the south to Fresno and San Luis Obispo on the north.

$300,000,000 FOR HIGHWAYS

Sum Which If Capitalized at 5 Per Cent Would Represent Investment of $6,000,000,000.

Government road officials estimate that road construction and maintenance in the United States involve an annual outlay of over $300,000,000 a year, which, if capitalized at 5 per cent, would represent an investment of $6,000,000,000. There has never been a nationwide traffic census to show either the direction or volume of traffic over these highways.

Roads Must Be Linked Up.

If we are to keep costs down, our highways must be linked up and there must be through trunk lines provided to which feeders can be built.

Lower Hauling Costs. Hauling costs are lowered by good roads because the less of the load is lost by the wear and tear on the road.

One of Major Activities. Road building will shortly become one of the major activities of our government.

IS IT FAIR?

It being true that the cost of living is about on a par with the balance of the country, it likewise holds good that your local merchant is entitled to your trade, it is not fair to him or to yourself to go outside to buy your supplies. When you send away for a bill of groceries you generally make up a long list and enclose draft or P. O. order (checks are not acceptable). When you go to the local merchant for a box of matches or a box of toothpicks you feel aggrieved because you don't get the same discount given you by a catalog house when the order for toothpicks is accompanied by a nice order for other goods. Let your local merchant figure on that catalog order before you send it in. Give him an opportunity to meet it, at least.

Every dollar that is checked out of the valley for goods means just so many dollars less to loan to the makers of prosperity in the valley, so many dollars less to boost the value of your property, to build your schools and churches.

It's not for us to criticize a man for saving money on his purchases, but we do maintain that you ought at least give your local merchant an opportunity to meet competition - take your bill to him first, if he can't or won't meet it, then use your discretion. The merchant will then have no cause for fault finding.

But the local merchant has a just grievance when any state or county institution, supported by taxes paid by citizens of New Mexico, goes outside of the state to buy supplies that can be obtained within the state, even at higher prices. Price should not be considered in this instance. Printing for state institutions must be done within the state where possible. The merchant and the printer is entitled to as much consideration as a state institution. Exchange.

If the Republicans in the house of representatives are practicing economy when they cut millions from appropriations for the army and the navy, what are Republicans in the senate doing when they help Democrats to restore these millions? Perhaps the answer is that Republican representatives are doing what their party wants, while the Republicans in the senate are grudgingly doing what the people demand.

A WORD OF WARNING

A Chicagoan, writing to the Chicago Tribune, after a visit to the soldiers' hospital at Fort Benjamin Harrison to see his wounded son, made a pertinent observation it would be well for those who are trying to make political capital out of their opposition to the League of Nations on the alleged ground of Americanism to bear in mind. He wrote:

"There are about 1000 wounded soldiers (in the Fort Benjamin Harrison hospital) who saw service overseas. While there, I heard enough from the wounded soldiers—to convince me that any man in public life who takes a stand against the proposed league of nations will most assuredly be retired to private life. * * * All the wounded men with whom I talked feel that the president is trying to do something for humanity. They know what war really is, and are anxious for universal peace. * * * Talk to the soldiers, more especially to those who have been wounded or gassed, and they will tell you, as they told me: 'We have had all the war we want. We want peace.' And that is what President Wilson crossed the sea for, to bring about peace—international peace—peace for all people."

Thrift is not necessarily a habit but a conviction. Get convinced, now and buy W. S. S.

clear to the public his attitude regarding the league of nations. He furnishes an explanation to the New York Sun, from which we quote:

"His (Hays') former statement, made at Fort Wayne, Indiana, more than a week ago, he took pains to correct in detail," says the dispatch published by the Sun. "He said that he had stated that he did not consider the league of nations a 'partisan question.' The impression had gone forth that Mr. Hays had asserted that it was not a party question."

Now we know what Mr. Hays said; but will any one be good enough to enlighten us as to what he meant?

Thrift is not necessarily a habit but a conviction. Get convinced, now and buy W. S. S.

Lumber has made an average advance of 25% since the beginning of the war.

With an abundance of employment at high wages and the recent stimulus to economy caused by the war, there is more money that could be utilized for home building than there has been for many years.

Lumber is relatively low in price, the advance not having kept pace with the increases in wages, freight rates and other commodities — from 35 to 50 per cent and over.

Now, therefore, while other commodities are higher in proportion, and Lumber is lower, is the time to do your building.

Parsons Notes

Parsonites generally spent a safe and sane Fourth. There was little going on in the way of picnics or neighborhood parties.

Thomas Bragg took his family to Fort Stanton for the celebration, while Mr. Grafton decided that would be a good time to visit the Grand Quivera. He was accompanied by his son Hugh, and Messrs. Reddy and De Pries made a good start the morning of the Fourth. All went well till within about twenty miles of the ruined city, when their car balked as cars in this country are apt to do, and the gentlemen were glad to get home as best they could with the aid of solicitous friends.

Messrs. Wagner and Roper, two army boys from Fort Bliss, spent the week-end with J. H. Fulmer and family. The boys had a good time and were loath to leave the cool and invigorating air of the mountains for the heat of El Paso.

James Robison made a trip to Carrizozo during the week, and left his car there for repairs.

Recent storms have destroyed much of the good work put on the roads, so cars out of commission are the order of the day.

Messrs. Wright and Harris spent the week-end with friends in Parsons.

Amos Gaylord of Nogal Canon and his niece, Mrs. Walter Scott of El Paso, rode over the mountains Sunday, and spent the day with friends.

Mrs. A. C. Austin, who has been visiting Mrs. Rice for some time, returned home when Mr. Gumm and son Deane motored over from Carrizozo Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Clough and family, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vosburg, who came in their car from Lovington, N. M., are visiting Hubert Reddy and family.

Dr. and Mrs. Dryden left Monday for Pima, Arizona after an interesting trip to the Isle of Pines and back. They drove overland in their car from New Orleans.

The Cost of the War in Men and Money

The price paid by the United States to win the war is told in a statistical summary just published by the war department. The billions of money and the thousands of deaths furnish telling arguments in favor of the league of nations, which will save both in future by preventing war.

The salient facts of America's participation in the world war are given in the subjoined table:

Total armed forces	4,800,000
Total in the army	4,000,000
Men who went overseas	2,086,000
Men who fought in France	1,390,000
Greatest number sent in one month	306,000
Greatest number returning in one month	333,000
Tons of supplies shipped to France	7,500,000
Total registered in draft	24,234,021
Total draft inductions	2,810,296
Graduates of Line Officers' Training Schools	80,468
Cost of war to April 30, 1919	$21,850,000,000
Cost of army to April 30, 1919	13,930,000,000
Battles fought by U. S. troops	13
Months of participation in war	19
Days of battle	200
Duration of Meuse-Argonne battle	47
Americans in Meuse-Argonne	1,200,000
American casualties in Meuse-Argonne	120,000
American battle deaths of war	50,000
American wounded in war	236,000
American deaths from disease	56,991

CHAPTER XXI—Continued.

Norine rose, her face aglow with new strength, new determination. "I brought you back when you were all but gone. I saved you after the others had given you up, and now you are mine to do with as I please. You belong to me and I sha'n't consent you."

"Esteban!" Norine cried in a voice she scarcely recognized. She retreated into the doorway with one hand upon her leaping heart. "Esteban! Look! They're coming—here! Yes! It's—It's O'Reilly!"

Young Varona struggled from his hammock. "O'Reilly!" he called, loudly. "O'Reilly!"

There came a shadow, then in the doorway the figure of a man, a tattered scarecrow of a man whose feet were bare and whose brown calves were exposed through flapping rags. His breast was naked where thorns had tried to stay him; his beard, even his hair, were matted and unkempt, and the mud of many trails lay caked upon his garments.

It was O'Reilly! Dumb with amazement, blind with tears, Norine found herself staring upward into his face, and heard him saying:

"I told you I would bring her home." The next instant she lay upon his breast and sobs of joy were tearing at her.

The story of Rosa's rescue came slowly and in fragments, for the news of O'Reilly's return caused a sensation. His arrival was interrupted many times. "As a matter of fact, our getaway was ridiculously easy," he said, "for we had luck at every turn—regular Irish luck. I made Morin independent for life, but it wasn't the money, it was Jacket who induced him to bring me clear to Tortuga. He landed us one night, this side of the Moron trechs. Since then we've waded swamps to our ampute, we've fought the jungle and chewed bark—but we're here." Johnnie heaved a deep sigh of relief.

"Where did you get the money to hire schooners and corrupt captains?" Branch inquired.

O'Reilly hesitated; he lowered his voice to a whisper. "We found the Varona treasure."

Norine uttered a cry. "Not Don Esteban's treasure?"

"Exactly. It was in the well where young Esteban hid his loot."

Johnnie produced from his pocket a handful of coins.

Branch's eyes bulged, he touched a gold piece respectfully, weighed it carefully, then pressed it to his lips. He rubbed it against his cheek and in his hair; he placed it between his teeth and bit it.

"It's real!" he cried. "Now let me look at the jewels."

"Here are them. She's wearing them on her back. Kunched backs are lucky, you know; here's worth a fortune."

"Why, this beats the Arabian Nights!" Norine gasped.

"It beats—" Branch paused, then wagged his head warningly at the girl. "I don't believe a word of it and you know it."

Then Johnnie told the story. When he had finished there was a long moment of silence. Then Norine, who loved tremendously, said: "That boy! That blessed boy!"

"You're too wily, wily, wily!" O'Reilly gasped. "You got Rosa of Esteban—she had to be lured to tell you this. He didn't tell because he couldn't bear about it in Company. Now, and there won't be any more him now. I'm afraid he'll tip off the news about that treasure in spite of all my warnings. Those jewels are a temptation; I won't rest easy until they're safely locked up in some good vault. Now then, I've told you everything, but I'm dying for news. Tell me about yourself, about Esteban. I expected to find him well. What's all this?"

"Oh, Johnnie!" Norine began. "He's very ill. He isn't getting well. Help me, Johnnie! Help me to get him home—"

"Of course I will. We'll take him and Rosa away where they can forget Cuba and all the misery it has caused them. We'll make him well—don't worry."

O'Reilly saw little of his sweetheart that day, for Norine promptly bore the girl off to her own quarters and there attended to her needs, the most pressing of which was clothing.

While O'Reilly was similarly engaged in making himself presentable, he and Branch talked earnestly, with the result that they repaired later to General Gomez. O'Reilly concluded by saying:

"I've done what I came to do, sir; but Miss Varona is badly shaken by all she has been through. She's very nervous and far from well. Esteban, too, isn't recovering."

General Gomez nodded. "Miss Evans declares he must have a change, and we have arranged to send him out of the country. His sister, poor child, should go, too."

"But how? How can you take two women and a sick man?"

"We'll manage somehow," O'Reilly declared. "It isn't far across to the Bahama Bank. I'll agree to come back if you so desire."

Gomez shook his white head. "No! You come to find and save your fiancée, and you volunteered to serve with us while you were doing so. We have no desire to keep any man against his will. So, one must escort Miss Evans, who is our guest. Why not you two?"

"I was looking forward to an interesting ceremony this afternoon," Gomez went on. "Has your arrival changed the plan?"

"Oh, no, sir!" O'Reilly said quickly. "I'd like to make it doubly interesting; if Miss Varona will consent to such a short notice."

"Bravo! You have a way of doing the unexpected. Why not? I don't think Miss Varona will have it in her heart to refuse you anything."

The old soldier was right. Rosa did not gaily let love, and toward sundown the city among the leaves witnessed an unseasoned scene.

Rosa, very demure in her borrowed nurse's uniform, was round-eyed, chided, and wailed much indignation, but when she was addressed as General O'Reilly she blushed to the roots of her hair and struck close to her husband's side. Branch proved to be a happy choice as Esteban's proxy, for he relieved Norine's anxiety and smoothed her apprehensions.

When Rosa and O'Reilly returned to Esteban's cabin they found Norine ahead of them. She was kneeling beside the sick man's hammock, and through the doorway came the low, insistent murmur of their voices. Rosa drew her husband away, whispering happily:

"He'll get well, God and that wonderful girl won't let him die."

CHAPTER XXII.

The Rainbow's End. The journey to the coast was made by very stages and Esteban stood it fairly well. Jacket, of course, went along. Upon the announcement of O'Reilly's intended departure for the States he had promptly abandoned Cuba to her fate. He afterwards bravely and discreetly accepted a loyal American citizen.

"What was the best information obtainable at Tortuga, O'Reilly had arranged upon securing a mailboat from a certain fellowman whose sympathies were known to be loyal, but in this he was disappointed. A day clearing at an unfrequented part of the north shore, only to find it deserted and already grown to weeds. The boats were empty, the boats were gone—all but one old boat, too rotten to warrant mending which lay high up on the beach, its planks worm-eaten, its seams wide open by the sea.

O'Reilly was in a quandary. He grievedly doubted Esteban's ability to stand the rough return journey, and when he spoke to Norine of turning back she was insistent at the suggestion.

"We must do what we can," she said. "We must get him over. He isn't fit to go through that road—but he'll get home."

"Then I guess we'll have to go through it," he said.

"You'll get him in their acquaintance some time that you'll be back," she promised him.

"You'll get him, if you want to stick this miserable tub we found on the beach—"

"I'll risk anything—a raft, even. Is there an even chance of our getting across?"

"Perhaps. It all depends upon the weather."

When morning came O'Reilly made a closer examination of the abandoned boat. The result was not encouraging, but he determined to make use of it, and the crazy craft was launched. It was necessary to handle her gingerly, and when she took the water she leaked abominably. But during the night she swelled and in the morning it was possible to ball her out.

From the point of leaving it was perhaps five miles across the sound to the fringe of keys which in this neighborhood bordered the old Bahama channel with its unplumbed depths of blue water. Here it was calm, so the run was soon made.

When the coastline of Cuba had become a blue eastern Rosa crept back and seated herself beside her husband. "How much I love you," she whispered. "But I never can tell you, for we are never alone. Was there ever such a courtship, such a marriage, and such a wedding journey as ours?"

It proved to be a long, long night, for the boat, though roomy, was uncomfortable. Daylight brought an increased breeze which heated the boat further. Fortunately the haze was not thick enough to wholly obscure the sun and so O'Reilly was enabled to hold his course. But he did not like the look of things. In time there came a spiteful drizzle which completely hid the sun and left no indication of the course except the direction whence drove the rain.

No one spoke now. Even Esteban lay silent, shivering miserably upon his sodden bed. Rosa finally straightened her aching back and smiled at her husband.

"Are we going down?" she asked. "Oh, no! This is merely a squall," he told her, with an assumption of confidence he was far from feeling.

Deliverance came suddenly, and from the least-expected quarter. Out of the mist to starboard there materialized a shape, a schooner driving ahead of the wind. The refugees descried her simultaneously and stood ankle deep in the wash, waving their hats and their calabashes, and shouting crazily until she saw them and fetched up.

There was a babble of voices, shouted questions, hysterical answers. Rosa was weeping softly; Norine had lifted her arms and howled clutching him tight, while her tears fell upon his face.

The schooner was a sponge-bound for Havana; its blackbird crew spoke Spanish and they willingly helped the strangers overboard, laughing and shouting in a childlike display of excitement. Rosa there was hot food and coffee, dry beds and blankets for those who needed them.

Johnnie tucked his bride snugly into one of the hard berths, then stooped and kissed her. Rosa's teeth were chattering, but she smiled happily.

"God's hand directed us," she said.

"And I've found mine," O'Reilly asserted. "I've gained your father's treasure, and more—I've found the prize of all the Indies." With his arm about Rosa he drew her into the house.

Esteban lowered himself into his chair and Norine rushed herself upon his arms. He lay back with eyes closed. From the regions at the rear came the voice of Jacket. The boy was in a declamatory mood. He had gathered an audience, as was his daily custom, and was addressing them in English:

"I killed more'n a dozen Spaniards at Pinar Bravo. It was my day. By rights I should have been made a general, but—"

BOTH MEN IN RIGHT PLACE

At Least, That is Likely to Be Verdict of Those Who Told Over Income-Tax Schedule.

The visitor was being conducted through a state institution for the insane and his guide was an able young man from the harness ward whose keen intelligence made the visitor wonder why he was under restraint.

Stopping in front of a padded cell, they looked at a stout, short individual with a forelock draped over one eye and a pose characteristically Napoleonic.

"That's the Little Corporal," said the visitor asked of the guide.

"Yes; he had that hallucination for five years."

Across the corridor in another cell was an old man peering over a number of blue prints.

"That's the matter with him?"

"Fear," he laughed the guide; "he thinks that he has invented a submarine-proof ship. The hull of the ship is honeycombed with holes; when the war-head of the torpedo strikes, it goes into one of the holes and it holds fast by its sides."

"But," objected the visitor, "suppose the torpedo strikes between the holes?"

"In that case," said the guide as he shook with laughter. "It wouldn't count and the submarine would be entitled to another try."

In the last cell was a middle-aged man at a high desk. He looked up at the other approached and nodded smilingly.

"What's the matter with him?" queried the visitor.

"He's hopeless; he believes that he is an authority on income-tax legislation."

"All," said the visitor, "and he isn't?"

"No, indeed," replied the guide; "I am the only authority."—Kest. Reg.

Weak From Pain

Mrs. Gibbert Was in Misery, But Doan's Brought Her Splendid Health.

"About 15 years ago my kidneys were in bad condition," says Mrs. Lucy Gibbert, 1620 Columbia Ave., Harvey, Ill. "There was a constant dull, bearing down pain in the small of my back. I couldn't turn over in bed without such pain I could hardly breathe. Mornings I was stiff, sore and lame all over; my back was like a rusty hinge."

Inflammation of the bladder nearly drove me wild. The kidney secretions passed every little while, day and night, a little at a time. My back became burned like fire. Great seas of water formed under my eyes."

"I was in such misery that I would become weak and so nervous I would scream. Whatever relieved my headaches and the back of my neck pained me. I was so dizzy I didn't dare bend over for fear of falling on my face. My sight became blurred. I was all over."

"Five boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of kidney trouble. Since then I have enjoyed splendid health and I owe it all to Doan's."

National Guard Loses Most

Suffers More Severely in War Than Regulars or National Army

Study of casualty statistics of thirty combat divisions of the American fighting forces in the war, issued by the war department and giving figures up to a recent date, sheds some light on the relative part played by the regular army, the National Guard, the National Army and the marine corps in the war. The tables show those killed in action, dead of wounds, missing in action or taken prisoner. Field signal battalions, ambulance companies, trains, and some other specialized branches of the service are not included, but the tabulation shows graphically the total losses of each basic section of the army.

Slightly wounded or others who were able to return to the service are not included, the figures applying only to those who were absolute losses so far as active military operations were concerned.

Figuring the percentage of loss, not according to the numbers in each section but for the total American force, it is found that the losses of the regular army were 30 per cent, the National Guard 39 per cent, the National Army 27 per cent, and the marine corps 4 per cent.

The table follows:

	Killed in action.	Died of wounds.	Missing in action.	Prisoners.	Total.	Pct.
National Guard	11,555	4,598	5,445	1,457	23,055	39
Regulars	8,524	3,549	5,207	551	17,831	30
National Army	8,023	3,207	3,800	708	15,901	27
Marines	1,800	707	271	76	2,854	4
Totals	28,492	12,029	14,903	2,882	58,087

*The marines are listed with the Second division of regulars.

KEEP POULTRY FREE FROM LICE

Lousy hens are not likely to prove good sitters. Lousy chicks lose vitality and die. A lousy flock is unthrifty. With poultry and eggs selling at high prices, the poultryman can well afford to apply the simple remedies which will keep his birds free from lice and mites.

The University of Missouri college of agriculture has used sodium fluoride effectively and recommends a larger use of it by poultrymen. This chemical is exceedingly poisonous to all species of chicken lice. It kills both adults and young, including the young which emerge from the eggs present at the time of treatment. One application of sodium fluoride to all fowls on the farm will completely destroy all lice present.

Sodium fluoride may be applied as a dust or as a dip. One pound of the chemical will be enough to dust about one hundred hens by the pinch method. This method, developed by the United States department of agriculture, is as follows: Hold the fowl by the legs or wings with one hand while with the other hand a small pinch of the chemical is placed among the feathers next to the skin. Apply one pinch on the head, one on the neck, two on the back, one on the breast, one below the vent, one on the tail, one on either thigh, and one scattered on the underside of each wing when spread. Hold the chicken over a large shallow pan while dusting, to recover the material that might ordinarily be lost.

Only One-Fifth of Hen's Egg Is Nutritious; Much of Substance Is Water

In a hen's egg only one-fifth of the substance is nutritious. One-ninth is refuse, and the greater portion, about two-thirds, is water, according to authority.

White-shelled eggs are not so good as yellow ones, for they contain a trifle more water and less fat.

Judged by the amount of nutriment, a goose's egg is the most valuable, next in order are ducks, guinea fowls, hens, turkeys, and plovers' eggs.

Eggs contain a large quantity of sulphur, which is purifying to the blood and good for the complexion. To get the best egg you must feed your fowl on grain. And to cook it in the most digestible way you must not boil the water. Heat the water to 180 degrees and leave the egg in it for ten minutes. You will then digest every kernel. But if you boil it for three minutes no less than one-twelfth of it will fall to be digested. Thus, if you eat two eggs boiled at 212 degrees every day you waste five dozen in a year.

Yankees in France Ate Millions of Pounds of Candy and Confections

An idea of the huge amount of candy consumed by the army is given in a war department announcement. During the five months from November 11, 1918, to April 11, 1919, there were purchased for shipment to the overseas forces 80,094,375 pounds of candy, 5,360,000 packages of salted almonds and peanuts and 2,626,000 packages of popcorn confections.

There was shipped during the month of February 5,325,000 pounds of candy. This included not only candy and confections for sale in the sales commissaries, but also the amount authorized by the ration allowance. The ration allowance of candy for our troops overseas for the month of November amounted to approximately 2,000,000 pounds.

It would take a convoy of 236 transport ships to carry this amount of candy.

Passed Up as a "Runt," Young Schalk Developed Into a Great Backstop

Back in 1910 Frank Navin heard of a kid catcher whose backstopping, running and hitting were startling inhabitants of a small Illinois city which had a club in a bush league.

The Tiger president immediately dispatched one of his hired manhunters to look at the player. The scout liked the catcher, but did not let his enthusiasm get the better of him because the youngster was hardly five feet five inches tall and of slight build. Who ever heard of a runt like that being able to stand up under the fire expected of major league pitchers?

In the meantime equally favorable reports were being received of another minor league catching star whose play attracted much attention in the Texas league. The same scout looked at this catcher.

It finally came time for a showdown. Mr. Navin could get both catchers for reasonable prices, but in the meantime he agreed with the traveling representative that the kid catcher in Illinois was probably too slightly built and he took the one with the Texas club, who was a big man and also looked like a valuable prospect.

The one he picked was Jack Onslow, a fair catcher but a little shy on big league requirements. The one he passed up because he was a runt was Ray Schalk.

The rest is an old story. Schalk has been a star with the White Sox almost ever since and more than once made Mr. Navin holier "youch!"

SAYINGS OF WISE MEN

A book's a book, although there's nothing in it.

A boor remains a boor, though he sleep on silken bolsters.—Danish Proverb.

I broke my leg perhaps for my good.—Spanish Proverb.

Make it a point never to complain.—Bos.

Boldness is never blind, therefore it is ill in counsel but good in execution.—Bacon.

Owls Eat Anything and Swallow All Food Whole

Owls have a peculiar method of eating. They eat everything they want, whenever they find it, and swallow the whole works—whole, says a writer in the Omaha World-Herald. The idea would be the same if you sat down to dinner and consumed the beefsteak, plates, napkins, tablecloth, knives, forks and spoons. After the owl has had this contemplation in his department of the interior for some time, and it has been digested for all the nutrition there is in it, his extraordinary inside permit him to drop the refuse out through his mouth in the form of a hard, round pellet.

Cooking Wins Husbands, According to Advice of Friendly Marriage Clerk

The better a woman can cook, the more chances she has of not only getting a husband, but of keeping him. Such is the statement of a Wisconsin marriage clerk, before whom thousands of couples sign the papers required in making them man and wife.

The clerk also says a poor cook has much less chance of getting a husband than one who can't cook but is willing to learn. And he says "all women can cook if they try to." He bases these conclusions on the effects of the culinary art in the game of love on inquiries he has made to thousands of brides-to-be when they appeared before him.

"I have asked many future brides if they could cook and in practically every case they stated they could, and when they said they could not, they supplemented it with the statement they were learning," he said.

That many men have been won by good cooking was stated by the Badger state marriage clerk as a common occurrence.

"Time after time a man will come for a license to wed his landlady or the one who has cooked for him. It is no uncommon thing to have them tell me what a good cook they are going to marry and even often invite me to dine with them at their new home."

"They say music hath charms in love, but it does not compare with what a good meal will do to win a man."

Equipment Necessary and Processes for Silvering Familiar Looking-Glasses

There are several processes for silvering mirrors, the simplest of which, perhaps, is to provide a large flat stone table and spread upon it evenly a sheet of tinfoil without crease or blemish. This is covered uniformly to a depth of one-eighth inch with mercury. The plate of glass, perfectly cleaned of all grease and impurities, is floated in the mercury carefully so as to exclude air bubbles. It is then pressed down by loading with weights in order to press out the mercury which remains fluid. After about twenty-four hours it may be raised on its edge to harden, and should be finished in a few weeks.

Another method involves the use of a solution made as follows: Mix one ounce nitrate of silver, three ounces water, one ounce liquid ammonia and three ounces spirits of wine. Filter after solution has stood three or four hours. To every ounce of the solution add one-fourth ounce sugar dissolved in equal quantities of water and alcohol. The surface to be silvered is covered with this liquid at a temperature of 100 degrees, maintained till the deposition of silver is complete. When dry, coated surface is covered with mastic varnish.

SMILES AND SMILES

Light Literature.
"And now we shall spend an hour in my library."
"I'm agreeable."
"Which book do you prefer?"
"Just gimme a book of cigarette papers and I'll be satisfied."

Did So.
"Forty thousand muscles, eh? That's a good many."
"What of it?"
"I see the elephant's trunk is said to contain 40,000 muscles."
"Well, well! Mother Nature displayed ingenuity when she packed that trunk!"

Differ Only on the Board.
"Some one has compared life to a game of chess. What do you think of that idea?"
"I don't know. Anyhow, we are something like the pieces—when shoved into the wooden box at the end of the game, king and pawn are of equal value."

More Domestic Discussion.
"Kicking about a few military titles? Why, I could have married Wombat, who is now a millionaire. But I didn't!"
"That's one big reason why he's a millionaire."

Completing His Education.
The Victim—That young fellow who had the next chair was a fine barber. Why did you send him back to the barber's college?
The Head Barber—He was a good operator, yes; but he had an impediment in his speech, so I sent him back for a post-graduate course in conversation.

PHYSICALLY FIT AT ANY AGE

It isn't age, it's careless living that puts men "down and out." Keep your internal organs in good condition and you will always be physically fit.

The kidneys are the most over-worked organs in the human body. When they break down under the strain and the deadly uric acid accumulates and crystallizes look out! These silty crystals tear and scratch the delicate urinary channels causing excruciating pain and set up irritations which may cause premature degeneration and often do turn into deadly Bright's Disease.

One of the first warnings of sluggish kidney action is pain or stiffness in the small of the back, loss of appetite, indigestion or rheumatism. Do not wait until the danger is upon you. At the first indication of trouble go after the cause at once. Get a trial box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules, imported direct from the laboratories in Holland. They will give almost immediate relief. If for any cause they should not, your money will be refunded. But be sure to get GOLD MEDAL. None other is genuine. Is sealed boxes, three sizes.—Adv.

Western Canada's "Horn of Plenty" Offers You Health & Wealth

Western Canada for years has held to the world—the same responsibility of production will rest upon her. While high prices for Grain, Cattle and Horses are sure to remain, prices of land is much below its value. Land capable of yielding 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre can be had on easy terms at from $15 to $20 per acre—good grazing land at much less. Many farms paid for from a single year's crop. Raising cattle, sheep and hogs brings equal success. The Government encourages farming and stock raising. Railway and Land Companies offer unusual inducements to Home Seekers. Farms may be stocked by loans at moderate interest. Western Canada offers low taxes, good markets and shipping; fine schools, churches and beautiful climate. For particulars as to reduced railway rates, location of land, stock raising, etc., apply to the Hon. W. W. HENKETT, Room 4, Box Building, CHICAGO, Ill. Canadian Government Agent.
