

Refused Insurance

Mr. Dunning Left Service in Bad Shape, But Doan's Soon Corrected His Trouble.

Geo. Dunning, ex-Chief Boatswain Mate of the U. S. Navy, 470 Medford St., Somerville, Mass., says: "Every bit of trouble I suffered from my kidneys was a result of exposure at sea. I was retired practically an invalid. My kidneys became more irregular all the time and some nights I was forced to get up every half hour. The kidney secretions burned like fire and were filled with brick-dust-like sediment. My joints ached, my back was inflamed, I couldn't stand over to look my shoes and had to be helped up and down. Right after my retirement from service I tried to get insured, but was turned down because of kidney trouble. I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and used water boxes. By that time every kidney trouble I had left me and my back was lit from an ache or pain left. I tried for insurance again and was declared a good risk. I give Doan's Kidney Pills credit for putting me in perfect health. Subscribed and sworn to before me.

BELCHING Caused by Acid-Stomach

Let KATOINIC, the wonderful modern stomach remedy, do the trick relief from disgusting belching, flatulence, indigestion, bloated, gassy stomach, dyspepsia, heartburn, nervousness, etc. They are all caused by Acid-Stomach, which about nine people out of ten suffer from, one way or another. One writes a letter to the Editor of KATOINIC, "I could not eat a bite without belching it right up, some and better. I have not had a bit of trouble since the first bottle of KATOINIC. Millions are victims of Acid-Stomach without knowing it. They are weak and ailing, have poor digestion, belch frequently, are nervous and may at last be driven to a grave. Doan's is likely to follow if an acid-stomach is neglected. Cirrhosis of the liver, cancer of the stomach, gastritis, catarrh of the stomach—these are only a few of the many ailments often caused by Acid-Stomach. A sufferer from Catarrh of the Stomach of 11 years' standing writes: "I had catarrh of the stomach for 11 long years and I never felt any relief until I used KATOINIC. It is a wonderful remedy and I do not want to be without it." If you are not feeling quite right—lack energy and enthusiasm and can't keep your weight or locate the trouble—try KATOINIC. It will do the trick better than any other. At all drug stores—a big box for $2.00 and your money back if you are not satisfied.

Horse Meat to Be Sold by U. S.

Wild Kipins, The Small for Work, Will Be Shipment in Fresh Supply

The sale of horse meat may get a crimp in the high cost of living in the United States. The average American citizen may not be aware of the fact, but nevertheless it is true, that congress has opened the way for slaughter and sale of horses as food for human beings.

In the future, if the family pocketbook will not stand the strain of purchasing a beefsteak, the good housewife may step around to the corner grocery and buy a chunk of horse meat and still keep within the family means.

Horses are to be slaughtered and the meat sold under regulations carefully prepared by the department of agriculture so as to insure at all times the wholesomeness of the product.

The following announcement on the subject is made by the department of agriculture:

"To open up the channels of trade for some of the inferior horses in this country that do not pay for their keep, and to increase the horse supply in some of the larger cities in the United States and abroad, where horse meat is used for human food, the department of agriculture is authorized by congress to inspect horse meat and horse meat products. The amendment to the regulations governing meat inspection by the department was passed by congress on July 24, with an appropriation of $100,000 to carry on the work during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1930.

"While it is expected that as a result of this amendment inferior horses throughout the country will be slaughtered for human food, it will open a market especially for the small horses—many of them wild—in the western range. These animals are eating much of the limited supply of range feed which is needed by live stock that is better able to pay for its keep. Elimination of the undesirable horses not only will save feed for more worthy cattle and sheep, but will add hides to the leather supply and increase meat stocks."

Every establishment in which horses are slaughtered for the preparation of food products for transportation or sale in interstate or foreign commerce must be federally inspected under the new regulations. The slaughter of horses and the preparation and handling of horse meat must be conducted in establishments separated from those in which other animals are killed and handled.

All horse meat or horse meat products must be conspicuously labeled or branded "horse meat" or "horse meat product" and must bear the statement "U. S. inspected and passed by the U. S. department of agriculture." The regulations list a number of horse diseases which, if found in any animal slaughtered, will cause it to be condemned as food.

Briefly, in making possible the utilization of horses for meat, the regulations place the matter under federal supervision, thereby insuring that the product is clean and wholesome. The regulations, it is explained, merely provide for the inspection. The number of horses used for meat will depend on the extent to which horses are marketed for that purpose and likewise on the demand for the product. In some cities horse meat already has a ready sale.

British Maidens Sigh in Vain for Husbands While Living Cost Grows Higher

Shortage of men and the high cost of living are responsible for the husbandless plight of at least 2,000,000 British maidens.

The avian finds that diamonds have advanced 75 per cent. Wedding rings have increased in price on almost the same ratio as engagement rings. What is still more ominous for the man who is inclined to become a husband is the fact that the average British maiden eats more than she did before the war.

War work encouraged large appetites, but long endurance of bully-beef hampers and stews and enforced acquaintance with Irish and other varieties of stews have made those formerly delectable dishes somewhat unpalatable to the maiden who, during the time the Germans were being whipped, was stimulating her energies with plain "grab."

A box of good chocolates that used to cost 50 cents now fetches $1.25 to $1.50 a pound. In the frowziest movie theater they get 60 cents for a fairly good seat that formerly was sold for 25 cents.

When it comes to after-marriage expenses the intended husband finds that household furniture has gone up at least 500 per cent. A piano costs $500 or $600. A respectable baby carriage sells for $40 to $60. Shoes are $12 to $15 a pair. As to rent, if a man cannot buy furniture at its present exorbitant price he must pay $40 to $60 a week for a small furnished flat.

American Angora Cats of English or Scotch Origin

Angora is the name popularly applied to Persian and other varieties of long-haired cats—a strange custom, for cat fanciers have never been able to find a long-haired cat in Angora. Antiquarians testify, however, that they were known to the ancients long before the Christian era. They were first carried to the United States by sailors who brought them from India to Maine. The hardier specimens adapted themselves to the Maine climate, and became very popular and were raised for show purposes. Maine having had cat shows long before the first national show at Madison Square Garden, in 1896. English cat fanciers, however, were more careful to preserve the thoroughbred strain, and won many prizes in American exhibitions. American dealers bought this stock, with the result that now most champion American cats of this breed are of English or Scotch origin.

The Great Constructor. "What you want is constructive criticism," said the artist. "What is your idea of constructive criticism?" "The kind our press agent writes."

Encouragement. "Can you find room for this little poem I dashed off today?" "Certainly; plenty of room. There isn't a thing in the waste-basket just now."

Still Popular. "Yes, I manufacture candles." "Dear me, do people use candles still?" "Oh yes. I sell a good many for birthday cakes."

A Royal One. "What a pretty flush Miss Bertha had in her cheeks the other evening." "Not half as pretty a one as I had in my hand."

Helping It Over Him. "That fellow can't pay you. Why don't you call his account square?" "Wouldn't do," said the merchant. "He'd immediately want to open up another line of credit."

Fruits and Vegetables Should Not Be Wasted

A pantry wall filled with home-canned and otherwise preserved fruits and vegetables means more varied, attractive and wholesome diet during the winter months, as well as cheaper living. Don't let any vegetables go to waste. It will be wise economy to store all your can, dry, pickle or brine. A well-ventilated cellar is a convenient storage place. If there is no available space there an outdoor pit storage is satisfactory. Select a well-drained spot, pile the vegetables in a shallow trench, cover with straw, then a layer of dirt, etc., to protect from freezing, and provide ventilation at the top.

Philatelists Swindled by German Stamp Speculators; Fake Estonian Stamps

"A German citizen, who knows how eager the world's collectors are to obtain the stamps of the countries of the new Europe, has succeeded in pulling the wool over the eyes of philatelists, many of whom have paid as high as $30 for a set of Estonian stamps which have proven to be 'fakes,' writes Kent B. Stiles in the stamp department of Boys' Life.

"When the Esths proclaimed their land an independent republic on the day on which the armistice was signed, last November, the German citizen was living at Reval, where the proclamation was issued. He hurried to a post office and purchased stocks of the stamps which the German occupation authorities had forced the people of this former section of old Russia to use during the days of the invasion by the German troops. These stamps are Germany's own 'woman in armor' designed labels, but with the surcharge 'Postgebiet Ob. Ost.' upon them.

"These occupation stamps the German citizen took with him into Germany, and upon them he had overprinted the inscription 'Eesti!' meaning 'Estonia.' These were then allowed to circulate among stamp dealers. It was supposed that they had been legitimately issued by the Estonian government, and they were soon regarded as being among the more valuable stamps of Europe's reconstruction period."

Noise Like Airplane Adds to "Movie" Plane Scenes

All kinds of instruments are used behind the stage in theaters and picture houses to produce imitations of noises, such as the clattering of horses' hoofs, the entrance of a train into a station, and so on; and quite elaborate machines have been thought out to produce these noises. Flight has made it necessary to invent still another one, and a new instrument has been produced to make a noise like an airplane. Two large disks are fitted together with partitions like a water-wheel, and holes about four inches apart are arranged round the circumference. While one man turns the "wheel" quickly round, another man pours a jet of compressed air against the holes, and the noise is exactly like that of the motor of an airplane in flight.

What to Have for Breakfast.

If a woman be her own maid, as statistics tell us 83 per cent of us are, a dainty satisfying breakfast is her family's by a little preparation in advance. An alarm clock to insure the right time of rising will give ample time to arrange the meal hurriedly. He who goes mornings from a quiet house, comfortable and well ordered is twice as capable as his neighbor whose wife either leaves him to prepare his own meal or comes down with disordered hair and apparel, and whines at him from across a miserable breakfast. The "uniform breakfast" advocated by some is a most convenient one as it saves brain tag; you know just what you are to prepare and the family knows just what they will have; however, the most of us like an occasional break from fruit and cereal, eggs and bacon, either or both, toast and coffee, with perhaps a doughnut or cookie to finish off with.

A pleasing variety in the daily menu is secured by having a variety of prepared cereals as well as those which need cooking. In this way there is no chance to tire of any one kind and the favorites may be repeated more often.

Codfish balls, broiled or baked mackerel, fishan huddle and smoked salmon are fish dishes which are permissible for the first meal of the day. Of the meats the favorites are bacon, ham, chops, corn beef hash, fried beef and calf's brains.

Eggs are universally used as a breakfast dish and are served in so many ways that one never tires of them. Omelets form an especially desirable egg dish. Scrambled, fried, poached, cooked in the shell, cooked in ramekins with cream, and eggs in combination with rice and other foods too numerous to mention are all desirable dishes.

A Sweet Omelet.

Separate the whites and yolks of the eggs using four, six or eight, the number suitable to the family appetite. Beat well, season with salt and a dash of cayenne, add as many tablespoons of cold water as there are eggs, adding it to the yolks when beating them. Turn the yolks into the stiffly beaten whites; pour into a hot well-buttered, smooth omelet pan to which has been added a half cupful of blanched almonds. Cook as usual, fold and serve with hot maple syrup.

BIFF! Stop Jangling Liver and Bowels with Violent Drugs, but take "Cascarets."

"Dynamiting" bile out of your system with calomel and other sickening purgatives is all wrong. Salts, Oil, and Cathartic Waters act by flooding the bowels with the digestive juices which are vital to the stomach. Cascarets are different. They act as a tonic to the bowel muscles, which is the only sensible way to relieve a bilious attack, a sour, acid stomach, or constipated bowels. There is no gripping or inconvenience. You naturally return to regularity and cheerfulness. Cascarets cost very little and they work while you sleep.—Adv.

Nice Distinction. "Mrs. Galumpus is always getting after Mr. Galumpus for not having more spirit."

"Doesn't Mrs. Galumpus run over him, too?"

HEALTH CRUSADERS FIGHT OFF ILLNESS

Twenty-Five Thousand School Children Just in Modern Tournament for Better Health—Seal Sale Finance Crusade.

The days of chivalry have returned in New Mexico. Through out the schools of the state, there are 25,000 Crusaders who are combating the demons of ill health and preventing a fatal disease. They are enrolled in the Modern Health Crusade, conducted by the New Mexico Public Health Association in most of the public and many of the private schools of the state.

The Modern Health Crusade is a system of practical health instruction depending for its success upon the formation of health habits rather than the memorization of mere rules. The child is regularly enrolled as a Crusader and is assigned eleven health chores which must be done daily. If seventy-five per cent are done for two weeks, the child becomes a page in health chivalry. At five weeks, a squire; at ten weeks, a knight; and at fifteen weeks, a knight banneret. Pins and buttons with a seal of success are awarded at the end of the various periods.

Pushed by the National Educational Association and the state department of education, the Crusade has been widely adopted in New Mexico. All of the counties except Doña Ana, Grant and Sierra have pupils enrolled. San Miguel county leads in the number of Crusaders with 3,078 in rural schools only. Union is second with 2,876 in the rural schools, 200 in Clayton and 250 in Doña Ana. ATHLETES VICTIMS OF TUBERCULOSIS

Many Shining Lights of Ring, Track, Diamond and Air Succumb to Dread Disease Which is No Respector of Persons.

The recent death from tuberculosis of a number of athletes, such as celebrated boxer's startling prowess in his chosen field in the world of sport, give proof that the disease is no respecter of persons and are regarded by the medical fraternity as conclusive evidence that physical culture must be exercised if perfect health is to be enjoyed.

Robert Law, dare-devil aviator who a death-defying stunt, have thrilled hundreds of them and during the past few years, is among the latest victims of tuberculosis. For years he defied death in every form, yet a few days ago he died after a wasting illness at a hospital in Greenville, N. C.

The list of athletic champions who have recently died of tuberculosis includes "Terry" McElovers, who once wore the crown as a lightweight prizefighter, "Mike" Murphy, for years trainer of the track and field teams of the University of Pennsylvania and "C" Seymour, once the star of the New York National League baseball team, the Giants. Even those who were once physically fit fall victims of the Great White Plague when they permit their resisting power to be lowered.

The New Mexico Public Health Association, engaged in stamping out tuberculosis in the "Sunshine State", must have 300,000 if the work now outlined for 1920 is to be done. It can get that amount only through the sale of Red Cross Christmas seals and public health bonds in the drive between December 1 and 10. As every county and practically every school district is thoroughly organized for the drive, the officials of the association believe the desired goal will be reached.

STRONG LINE-UP FOR SALE OF XMAS SEALS

$40,000 IS GOAL OF CAMPAIGN FROM DECEMBER 1 TO 10

Ninety-one Per Cent of Money to Stay in State for Public Health Work —Pankey is State Chairman

With the coming of December 1 one of the most complete sets of machinery ever erected in the state of New Mexico will be set into motion to raise $40,000 for public health work within this state. Headed by Lieut. Gov. B. I. Pankey, state chairman of the drive, there is a force of 1,500 persons and several thousand workers to be made a thorough census to see if the money necessary to carry out a broad program of health protection during the year of 1920.

The chief reason for raising the money will be the sale of Red Cross Christmas seals. These five-cent stamps of health have been sold in New Mexico for the past eight years. This year, the New Mexico Public Health Association, state agent for the seals, hopes to achieve a sale which is greater than all the other years combined. Seven million seals are being prepared at state headquarters in a large hall for distribution over New Mexico. The drive is to sell at least one seal to every person in the state to prevent and cure.

Money Stays in State

In addition to being the greatest sale in the history of the state, the 1920 campaign is notable in that 91 per cent of the money raised will remain within the state, the remainder going to the federal government for the purpose of financing the National Tuberculosis Association in its campaign against tuberculosis in all parts of the country.

The health program which the association has outlined consists first of the employment of six public health nurses who would be available for demonstrations of home care of the sick and would be able to direct nursing work during an epidemic, such as the influenza outbreak of last winter. They would also direct workers to find the health needs of the state. They could be mobilized at any point to meet a localized epidemic. They would be in charge of the school work and would be in charge of the Modern Health Crusade which is financed entirely by the association. Another would be detailed to follow up New Mexico soldiers, sailors and marines who were discharged and returned to the service for physical defects.

Lecturers on 'Great Program'

The employment of public health nurses is included in the great program. The world's best public health Spanish speaking communities and would give lectures in Spanish with illustrations to show methods of safeguarding health. The other would lecture only in English. Provision is made for educational work, for the distribution of suitable literature in all necessary languages and for financing the Modern Health Crusade. The portion of money which will be spent for administrative salaries is eight per cent of the total, much below the usual figure in work of this kind.

The drive is to open December 1 and continue ten days. Special services in a number of churches on Sunday, November 30, will signalize the launching of the campaign. Slides in motion picture theaters throughout the state will show the progress of the Christmas seal sale over New Mexico.

THE STAND FOR HEALTH

The desultory fighting against tuberculosis and other preventable diseases must give way to concentrated effort. The story of the ants who carried away a mountain is too familiar to need repetition. We know the wisdom of a united stand.

War records show that out of every 1,000 men of draft age examined, 24 were rejected because of tuberculosis. New Mexico had its share of rejections from this cause. Nearly three hundred boys from this state were sent home from camp because of a tubercular condition. Not a county in the state escaped. Those rejected were not mainly descendants of men or women who came to the state already infected. Many were born and raised here. Their names were Jones and Arnold and Smith and Lucero. Tuberculosis is no respecter of ancestry.

There is little sentiment in the call of the New Mexico Public Health Association for $40,000 with which to fight preventable disease, teach health in the schools, and lay a basis for a stronger, more vigorous citizenship. Good business sense demands better health.

Money has been given for bankrupt Europe for bleeding Belgium, for starving Serbia. Is it not time to pause that charity best begins at home? Ninety-one per cent of the money raised between December 1 and 10 remains within New Mexico for this task: to prevent tuberculosis. It does double duty. It builds the generations to come. It does triple duty: Each Red Cross Christmas seal carries a message of hope, of cheer, of "peace on earth, good will toward men" to any part of

Many Young Men and Women Offer Themselves For Christian Service

Southern Baptists Will Have Ample Working Force for New Program—Campaign Hopes to Strengthen Local Churches and Win 2,500,000 Lost to Christ During Next Five Years.

Preparing Themselves for Special Ministry at the Training School, Fort Worth, Texas

Each year, the most encouraging development in the history of the Southern Baptist Church is the response of young men and women to the call of Christ. This year, the campaign for special Christian service in the South, which began in the fall of 1919, has resulted in a record number of young people offering themselves for service. The campaign is a part of the larger program of the Southern Baptist Convention to strengthen local churches and win 2,500,000 lost to Christ during the next five years. The campaign is a part of the larger program of the Southern Baptist Convention to strengthen local churches and win 2,500,000 lost to Christ during the next five years.

Proclamation among the many interesting accounts of the special services held in the churches was a report from Rev. E. Allison, a Baptist minister of Etowah, N. C. who, now in his eighth year, looks back over an active ministry of sixty years, practically all of which has been spent in the ministry which he is now serving. Mr. Allison has the unusual distinction of having baptized 1,000 persons and at least 100 children under his ministry. He has been happily by an assistant pastor since Mr. Allison's health has not been good, due to his advanced years. When this aged minister of the gospel presented the call for volunteer special Christian service in the South, three young men, all of whom were converted and reared under Mr. Allison's ministry, responded for the ministry themselves, one of them being his nephew. The campaign hopes to enlist a large number of Christian workers, other than those several thousand who will give themselves entirely to special religious work. The campaign hopes to enlist 2,000,000 additional pupils in the Sunday Schools of the South and Southwest, win 2,500,000 additional souls to Christ during the next five years, bring the Baptist church membership in the South to 10,000,000 and enlist all their full-time workers in the cause of the church in the South to 40,000, and enroll 40,000 young men and women in the denominational schools where they will prepare themselves for lives of Christian usefulness in their communities or for service in any part of the world where they may be needed. While it is the hope to raise $75,000 to be devoted in the larger program of Christian service which gave the campaign its name raising the money is only one of the objects sought. Baptists are being implored to give themselves and all of their talents as well as their money to God, Director Scarborough announces.

Early in the participation of the United States in the world war, the American Red Cross perceived the value of mobilizing the school children of the country and the Junior Red Cross was organized. Before the war ended nine million children were enrolled and helped in the war fund and membership campaigns, in chapter production of relief supplies and manufacturing furniture for the refugees whose homes and household goods were destroyed.

Children everywhere in the United States responded to the call to service rounded by President Wilson as head of the American Red Cross. This photograph is that of an enthusiastic young Japanese member of the Junior Red Cross of Spokane, Wash., starting out on the ambitious undertaking of collecting "a mile of pennies" for war relief. A comprehensive peace program is now being worked out for the Junior Red Cross, which is being held intact.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH THE AMERICAN RED CROSS. In Siberia.

Possibly the most important Red Cross work in Siberia, and one which most demands the continuance of operations there, is the campaign against typhus. Over a stretch of 4,000 miles the American Red Cross has fought the scourge. Here is seen "The Great White Train," an anti-typhus institution which, with its crew of doctors and nurses and cargoes of drugs, food and cleansing apparatus, has saved the lives of thousands.

STOMACH TROUBLE

Mr. Marion Holcomb, of Nancy, Ky., says: "For quite a long while I suffered with stomach trouble. I would have pains and a heavy feeling after my meals, a most disagreeable taste in my mouth. If I ate anything with butter, oil or grease, I would spit it up. I began to have regular sick headache. I had used pills and tablets, but after a course of these, I would be constipated. It just seemed to tear my stomach all up. I found they were no good at all for my trouble. I heard

COAT SEASON IS BIG PARIS CARD

Sometimes it is the separate dress and coat and sometimes it is the suit that holds the sway of style during a season. In Paris, without a doubt, declares a fashion writer, it is the coat this season.

Such attention as has been shown to morning and afternoon dresses in Paris would be hard to equal, and instead of their having declined in popularity after several seasons of attention, quite the contrary has happened. They are more in the limelight than ever.

In spite of the fact that there is no little conspicuous change in the line of the gowns, it is upon these "little dresses" that some of the most artistic touches have been lavished. The inconspicuous, unassuming gown for morning or for afternoon can have about it much genuine feeling. At each of the couturiers the same story is true: each one has outdone himself in presenting new reasons for the continued life of this popular garment.

Materials have for their leader one that has the sanction of ages behind it—blue serge. Then there are all of the soft surfaced fabrics—sweety, rusella, burella, and the allied fabrics. For afternoon there are charmeuse, of which there are a great many models to be seen, tulle, and velvet which has lost none of its vogue. There was nothing smarter than a black velvet gown and there is nothing smarter now.

The trimmings and touches on these dresses for daylight wear are fascinating in their variety. It is not so much the thing that is done as the way it is done. When one sees the clever little bits of hand-made braid and the inserts of bead work, the facings and the edgings, one wonders how there can grow so many new ideas in the course of a single season. But there they are, to be copied indiscriminately by less ingenious Americans.

Not so much hand work is to be seen about these dresses as was the case in former seasons. The little girls who used to do this work have learned by their connection with the war-time munition factories that a female is entitled to more of daily sustenance than it was possible for her to attain by doing embroidery. So the new frocks show the strain. But the Parisian designer gives us something quite as lovely even though it has but one-fourth its former embroidery for adornment, yes, even though there be no hand work at all and the decoration is found to be a product of the good old American machine. Rows of braid and bits of bright rib-bing cuffs which give an interesting line to the alhennette. The cuffs are set onto three-quarters or half-length sleeves, and sometimes they even flash in a thoroughly well done manner, the ends of sleeves that are of the shortest.

Fur is used sparingly on frocks of any sort. When it is seen there are apt to be narrow strips of it used as though they might be strips of embroidery. For this purpose mofeskia is popular, while kolinsky and seal come in for their usual attention.

Blue Chiffon, Blue Leather. By way of using two materials showing as great a contrast as it was possible to obtain one designer showed a frock made of dark blue chiffon with dark blue leather (or kid) trim-

An Attractive Tailored Suit of Velours de Laine and Kolinsky.

You will wonder, if you have not when it, how this could possibly be and what would be the effect produced. Well, it was as pretty as anything that could be imagined. The leather was used as a wide edging for the full peplum and it was worked into the bodice as well as making cuffs on the ends of the flowing sleeves. Not a little of the charm of this gown lay in the fact that the whole was built over a lavender foundation.

Some of the neck lines on the new fall gowns are interesting because they are quite different from anything we have seen for some time. I mean those which are cut in a V and which are finished with frilled or shaped collars standing up quite high at the back of the neck, graduating in width as they reach the front, and gradually tapering off into nothing in a point somewhat below the bust. These are sometimes made of silk or satin to match the material of the gown in color and sometimes they are composed largely of lace or organdie in a plaited frill.

There are many varieties of blue serge. One has a plaited waistcoat made of crisp white organdie and a high collar tied with a pert black bow under the chin. This frock, for a very young person, has a little flat apron effect at front and at back and the panels are edged all around, with the serge done into a knife plaiting about two and a half inches in width. The panels, it may be added, are extensions of the waist and the skirt is a tight and short thing by itself.

Black Velvet Gowns. A black velvet gown which attracted attention was made with a roused neck and cut practically in one straight piece. For trimming there ran up the back in a straight line at either side, from hem to neck, rows of little white crocheted knots. They were continued round the neckline. By this method all of the trimming was confined to the back; the only hint in front being the inconspicuous neck edging.

A black velvet gown was made with two pulls over the hips. They were not overly conspicuous in appearance, just large enough to show that pulls were in fashion. From these the gathered skirt dropped straight to the hem, and the bodice was neatly fitted.

Many of the afternoon dresses show a strong Louis XIV influence. They are upstanding collars and frills, and even high necks with plaitings that stand out underneath the chin. The frills often form themselves into a S-shape.

Curious Fashion Box. One may be misled by simply glancing at the box of a dress.

For Better or Worse

By HENRY KIRK

(Copyright.)

Marion Story sat in the midst of her wedding gifts. They were spread about upon tables that lined three sides of the room.

There were little round boxes, and large square ones piled with glittering things—in one a rope of pearls, in another a collar of diamonds.

The girl to whom these things belonged sat very still and stared at them. There was no light of triumph in her eyes, no joy of possession that one might think should be there. She showed no satisfaction, no supreme elation. She was almost a thing of stone.

She looked over them all as if they did not exist, as if they were not even thought of, and the shining collar in its velvet box threw no light into her eyes.

A man who had been standing by the window turned carelessly.

"You'll have to send them back, won't you?" he said. The girl did not look at him. "Miserable business, but it's the thing to do. Wonder what they'll say?" He took up a sapphire brooch. "Mrs. Olla Wintthrop! Mrs. Olla will say, 'Thank heavens, I can use this again.'" The girl did not move. "For heaven's sake, old girl, why don't you look up!"

"My dear Fred, you will be good enough to remember that this is not your wedding!"

"Nor yours, either," the man laughed. "I don't see anything funny in that!"

"You know why you're going to do it?"

"Yes, I know that."

"And I'm going to do it!"

"What's all the fuss about, then?"

A man with iron gray hair and gray eyes came into the room.

"Father, I wish you would insist upon Fred being a little more decent!" She got up and went to the window. The young fellow started after her.

"Marion, I'm not doing anything. What's up? I think we're all concerned in this little strategy upon an equal footing."

"What is it?"

"Nothing, dad. I was only—trying to cheer Marion up a little."

"You don't seem to have gone about it in the right way, Marion!"

"Yes?"

"Come here." The girl went to her father.

"Beyliss is repeating his father's game. All day he has been at it—pushing me to the wall—and when he has me there, making me go upon my knees to him. Well, have you, nothing to say?"

The girl looked at her father with cold eyes. "What may I say? I am going to do this thing tomorrow. I am going to defy him at the altar in the presence of my friends and his friends—of the whole world, as far as that goes!"

"It is your duty."

"Yes, father, and I shall not shrink from it. For you—but what will become of me! What man would care to ask me to marry him after I had done such a thing!"

"I say, Marion!"

"Well, Fred Story, would you? Would you go to a girl who had refused a man at the altar, shamed him, humiliated him in the most horrible manner possible?"

"His father almost ruined your father—nearly disgraced him! Is that something to forget? And the hate of that man is in his son. I hate him as much as he hates me. The whole Beyliss tribe—for fifty years they have been in my way, and this boy is doing the same thing his father did—no, only trying to do it, for I shall have him where I wish him!"

"Don't get melodramatic, dad; you know very well Billy Beyliss isn't that bad, although it's crude enough as it is. Marion will turn him down tomorrow—then we will call it square. 'Do you take this man?—Not on your life!—Big!—Wedding ring thrown upon floor—Exit haughty Marion Story amid the applause of the gallery and the howl of the opposing faction!'"

Four girls came gaily into the room. "Marion," said one of them, "I've brought the girls to see the things. You've met my father; my brother Fred? Aren't they simply glorious? Just look at this collar!"

Miss Story waited in her father's drawing-room for the man she had promised to marry.

He would come to her in a moment, with violets or some other delicate offering.

Her romance with Will Beyliss had begun six years before, when they were little more than children.

She learned that her father had been forced to the wall, and his influence, his very credit threatened. This roused her father's blood in her, and she felt that she hated the man's son.

Whatever it was that had separated them, she knew that they were no longer as they had been.

She stood very still, waiting for him to come in.

Then he came into the room, a very tall, clear-eyed young fellow. He came directly toward her, carrying half a dozen orchids and a mass of violets. She took them silently and sat down. Then she covered her face with the flowers.

The man looked at her a moment without a word, then he said slowly: "Marion, I am afraid we have—"

He hesitated. "I am afraid we have not—you have not been happy. I do not know how to say it, but—"

The girl looked at him quietly. "But what?"

"If you do not wish to—have this—thing go on—"

"You mean, you mean you do not wish to—oh, I cannot say it!"

"Marion! Marion! That I do not wish to—that I—"

"Yes, that you do not wish to marry me! I know! I know!"

The man's lips twitched, but he never took his eyes from her. "I mean that, if you did not—"

"Have I said so?"

"No."

"I wish you—to be happy!"

"That is the greatest wish that one could have for another, isn't it?" She laughed a little hysterically.

"I have never wished you to be anything else. There's only one thing that we should understand before—and that is—"

"I know, that you will be the master!"

"There must be some one to say what shall be done, although master is an ugly word."

"Yes, men never like it in that way, but it is true! What do you mean by saying this?"

"I mean only that our home shall be our own, and that we shall live in it alone."

"I know—you do not wish my father—"

"I wish only your happiness, and my own. It has been a trying winter. You do not know it, but my father's affairs were not in the best way when he died—"

"Are you intimating that my father was at all responsible?"

"The Street is a strange place, Marion, and many odd things happen there—old friends become enemies, and—well—what is the use in reviving unpleasant memories? It is all dead—"

"Revive them? They are not dead with me, but you have been busy in the Street, and I know what you are doing there!"

"It has been for you. That is all that I may say about it, Marion, won't you believe in me? I may have neglected you, but I was thinking of you all the while, down there. Won't you trust me?"

The girl rose. "Will you pardon me if I say good night?" she said. "I am tired!"

The next day at noon, Miss Story went up the aisle of the church upon the arm of her father. Her friends filled the seats about her. There seemed so many of them, they almost hung from the arched roof.

The triumphal music crashed from the organ and flooded her entire being, but with a mockery that almost choked her.

If they had only run away, as they had planned so many times when they first began to know their love!

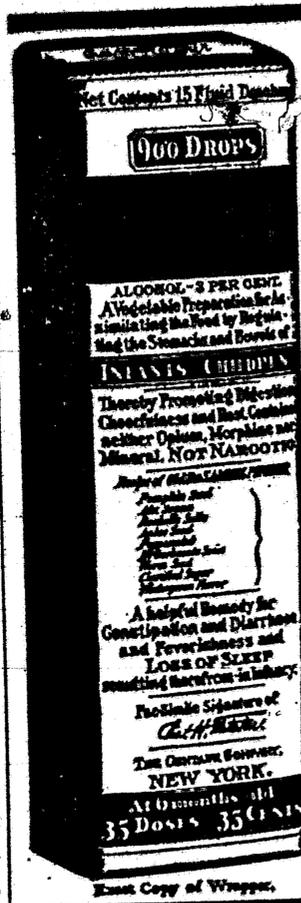

The long aisle seemed interminable. With every step it seemed to stretch on and never end, and her agony with it. Then in a moment it did end, and the organ ceased. He was there waiting for her, and he took her hand.

The old minister who had baptized her stood there with open book, and faintly she heard his droning chant.

She heard him say "I will," knew her time had come, and raised her eyes.

Her father was behind her, and all he meant—the opposition of her family, the fearful strength of which oppressed her senses. She was one of them.

It was her hour, and she rejoiced in her heart, so loudly that she hoped no sound of regret would be heard above it.

MYOGA HAD DONE ITS WORK

Ample Proof of Its Potency, Though There Was No Occasion for Many Congratulations.

A Japanese, Mr. Aisaku Wazeda, discusses Japanese humor in the Tourist, and offers the following selection:

Said an innkeeper's wife to her husband: "The guest who came this evening carries a package which seems to contain things of great value. I wish he would leave it behind."

"I have a good idea," said the husband. "I will give him a great deal of myoga."

The innkeeper carried out his plan and gave myoga, a spicy vegetable supposed to produce forgetfulness, in abundance to the guest with soup and with vegetables, and soon after the guest had departed he hopefully inspected the room. There was no trace of the coveted baggage.

The landlady began to scoff at the inefficiency of myoga as an oblivion producer, but her husband admonished her not to lose faith so easily.

"The myoga has had its effect," he declared.

"What do you mean?" demanded the woman.

"Why, he forgot to pay his bill," replied the husband.

Cash Tied Up. A short time ago my girl friend and myself went into an ice-cream parlor. A number of young men were there. While I was waiting for the ice cream cones I raised my hand to my hair and my money (a dime, which was all I had), dropped down my back, and you can imagine my embarrassment when I was compelled to ask the proprietor to charge the cones.—Exchange.

Her Glass. "I caught her pussyfooting around my room the other day."

"The old cat?"

Say, what a world we could have, if everybody would stop hitting for the bad in folks and try to find the good.

WEARY OF "FOOLING 'ROUND"

Common-Sense Maid Decided It Was High Time Bashful Swain "Popped the Question."

A speaker declared that the old-style bashful swain has ceased to exist since the war. "Proposals have no terrors for the boys now. In a young friend of mine, however, I must note an exception."

"He had been going with the girl before war broke out, but even in the stress of going away had not mustered up courage enough to put the question. When he came back he went to her, and though he had faced the terrors of the trenches and even the horrors of the Hun, yet he still hesitated."

"Dearest," said the girl finally, "didn't you once say that you would do anything for me? Didn't you once ask me to put your devotion to the test?"

"Indeed I did," he responded warmly; "there is nothing in the world I would not do, no sacrifice I would not make to prove to you how much I think of you."

"Well, then," said the maid, "ask me to marry you. We've fooled round long enough."

Brown County Values. One of those country gentlemen who owns a farm in Brown county, but lives in Indianapolis and only spends his week-ends on the farm, asked one of his neighbors down in Brown: "Did you know that T. C. Steele sold the picture that he painted on your farm?"

The farmer made no reply to this and then the country gentleman told him the price Mr. Steele got for the canvas.

"I just wish I had known the fellow liked the place well enough to pay that for a picture of it," the farmer said. "I'd a sold him the farm for $200 less than that."—Indianapolis News.

Reports from the fruit-growing districts are to the effect that the apple crop was about 90 per cent full. Most of the growers sold their crops to outside buyers; others shipped considerable fruit to commission houses, while others have stored their apples for spring trade when prices will be up.

Norwalk Inner Tubes and Republic Casings. Both guaranteed Western Garage.

Albert Brown, who had a foot injured last week by a horse throwing him, is reported getting along nicely at the Woods hospital, but it will be several months before he will be able to get around. Brown put in a year and a half chasing Huns and dodging German bullets, without getting a scratch, and then to get knocked out by a darned old bronco, makes his trouble hard to bear.

We meet all competition. Write for our prices. Western Garage.

J. McSmith, who had the misfortune to lose all his personal effects by a fire recently, was here in town this week from the Spence ranch. Mac was smiling as generally as ever, however; still had that Edward VII's appearance and laid in a stock of wearing apparel that will keep him in comfort throughout the winter, barring another fire.

Mrs. Penfield was here last week, during the storm, from Lincoln, guest of Mrs. R. K. Lemon. Mrs. Lemon entertained Friday, Mrs. Penfield being the honoree, and the blanket of snow kept none away, neither did it mar the pleasure of the occasion. With subsidence of the storm, Mrs. Penfield returned to her home at Lincoln.

Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Nye and children left Monday for Los Angeles, California, accompanied by Mrs. Gwinn, a sister of Mrs. Nye's. The family will spend the winter, most of the year, but will return to El Paso in the fall.

Mrs. R. L. Lamay, of the Mesa, who underwent an operation for chronic appendicitis at the Hotel Dieu, El Paso last week, is reported to be getting along fine. The operation was a very successful one, and will relieve her of an ailment from which she has suffered for several years. She is expected home in the course of a week.

According to weather reports the eastern and middle states are tightly held in the grip of winter, with ten feet of snow in some states, and a fuel shortage, to make matters worse, while New Mexico is basking in beautiful sunny weather with plenty of good coal to burn and sell—at least in this part of the sunshine state.

Sam Fambrough, a cattle grazier from the Jacarilla country, was in town yesterday. He reports cattle in fine shape, and good range, with plenty of moisture. The late heavy snow was preceded by 36 hours of steady rain in which ensures early grass in the spring. The cattlemen has no kick coming, as this has been the best year in his long experience in the cattle growing business, and there is plenty of feed in sight to pull stock through the winter.

S. W. Davis, of the Mesa, returned Tuesday from a five months stay in California. The climate he pronounced salubrious and the state a one in which money is more easily spent than earned—a beautiful place for people of color with money to spend, but for the man of limited means there are many states better. He will visit for a while at the home of Ed Phingsten.

The farmers have about garnered all their crops, and are making daily and bi-daily trips to Carrizozo to market some of their surplus stuff. They all state that the 1919 harvest was the most bountiful in many years and consequently they wear a perpetual smile. Their granaries and barns are well filled, their live stock fat, and their families happy. The h. c. of living touches the farmers very lightly.

Ed Hansen left last night on delayed No. 3 for Portland, Maine, via New Orleans. Mr. Hansen recently sold his bakery to C. H. Hines, of Silver City, and goes to Maine to be with his aged mother and to take care of property interests. Ed has lived among us the past few years, conducting an up-to-date bakery and his business life, daily conduct and generous actions won for him the highest regard of our people. We hope we may have the pleasure of announcing his return to this section in another year passes.

School Courts

With the consent of the faculty the pupils of the Las Cruces High School have adopted a plan for conducting the local high school themselves. They will elect a legislature, a justice court, a governor, etc., and every time there is a breach of discipline one of these bodies will fix the punishment of the delinquent pupil. All sentences must meet with the approval of the principal, Miss French. The plan has been put into effect in a number of cities of the country and has almost invariably met with success, and it is believed it will prove satisfactory here.—Las Cruces Republic.

A Real Brokerage Connection for Carrizozo

F. W. Gurney and E. C. Moutroe have taken the Carrizozo branch of McClure-Randle Brokerage house of El Paso and will devote their time to making it one of the best institutions in this section.

Both men are well known locally and need no recommendation to the investors of the Carrizozo section. The firm of McClure-Randle have an exceptionally good record, and have established branch houses all over the Tri-State district. They handle all kinds of stocks and other investments, and are not of the so called "fly by night" variety of brokers. At present they are only handling one oil stock, that being "Service Oil Corp." as they feel it is the one best bet ever offered.

They have this to say in regard to any oil stock: "Pay your money bills first before you buy any oil stock, but if you can afford to play, buy Service."
