OLDEST AND LEADING NEWSPAPER IN CIRCULATION IN THE COUNTY OF LINCOLN, NEW MEXICO

VOLUME 21

CARRIZOZO LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, APRIL 23, 1920

NUMBER 17

The New Mexico Oil Fields

Late reports from the Bell well, center of the biggest oil excitement now touching New Mexico, are to the effect that steady pumping has failed to cause any appreciable diminution of the flow of oil. The gas pressure is so heavy that it is necessary to pump with a short slow stroke, faster or heavier pumping being impracticable. With the expected arrival of a new barrel for the pump it will be possible to make a more effective test of the capacity of the well. The main fact is that it is a steady producer.

Tularosa, April 17.—Frank Snyder, manager of the Southwestern Tularosa Oil Company, states that the deep test well north of Tularosa has reached a depth of over 900 feet and the drill is going down rapidly, indications of oil have already been found and Mr. Snyder feels sure that he will get a good well without going the depth required in the contract.

Tucumcari, April 17.—Oil and rumors of oil have been the subject of discussion many times during the past few weeks, but the McGee well north of here has very little to report, except that the drill is still going down and has now reached a depth of 3,400 feet. The formation now is brown shale and is very much the same as given out by the geological log before the well was started. Unless the well blows itself in before the depth of 4,000 feet is reached there will be no shooting done, and if no oil is found the company may decide to drill to a greater depth to give the hole a thorough test. The other wells at Eudee, Dripping Springs and the Comanche No. 2 are progressing nicely and will soon reach a depth that will be interesting.

Alamogordo, April 17.—H. C. Miller, manager and local representative of the Olean-New Mexico Oil company states that all the machinery which was ordered from California, arrived this week and that the pipe line from Escondido to the drill site is laid and the water has been turned in. The big drill will be started the first of next week.

Roswell, April 17.—The 20 inch casing in the well of the National Exploration company at Orchard Park has all been set and reaches a depth far below the quick sand. This will enable the company to start drilling with a 15 inch casing which will be carried down to a depth of 1,500 feet.

The Brown well, located seven miles southeast of Artesia, went on a rampage again this week and flowed over 100 barrels of oil in one hour, according to Charles S. Brown, owner of the well, who was at the site at the time. Mr. Brown thinks that this unusual flow of oil about every 30 days is due to the great pressure of gas and water underneath the oil until such time as the gas blows the well out.

Base Ball Dance

The dance given by and for the benefit of the base ball club last Saturday night at the K. P. Hall was a very pleasant affair. A fairly good crowd attended, the music was excellent and all had a delightful time.

Wool Growers' Marketing Association

The Wool Growers' Co-operative Marketing Association of New Mexico, was organized in Albuquerque last Friday under the direction of the C. A. McNabb of the bureau of markets, with a membership representing every section of the state. No decision was made by the directors relative to this year's clip, but will be announced later.

W. A. Spence of Carrizozo was chosen vice-president of the association. It is the purpose of those in charge of the association to hold a series of meetings at important wool-producing centers at a very early date for the purpose of organizing local units and securing membership to the association.

It was brought out by the speakers at the meeting that the finest grades of wool are now in great demand, the finest grade of Australian wool selling at as high as 90 cents per pound. The cheaper grades of clothing wool are relatively in less demand than heretofore due to the extravagant demand of certain American citizens for the very finest only.

Mr. McNabb, in his talk, stated that the difference in the cost of an amount of wool required in a man's suit before the war and at the present time represents an increase of but $3 to $4. The wool used in a suit that is retailed at $125 should not cost over $7.50 from the producer, he said.

Rescue Week

Albuquerque, N. M. April 20.—"To the rescue now let us help our own," is the Salvation Army slogan in its home campaign which will be sounded throughout the country during Rescue Week, May 12 to 20, according to Rabbi M. Bergman, chairman of the Salvation Army State Advisory Board, who will handle the Army's campaign in New Mexico.

Complete organization of state, county, financial, speakers and publicity committees has been completed and prominent men and women in all sections of the state are co-operating with the Army to make "Rescue Week" a success.

"Rescue Week" has been set from May 12 to 20, and during that time the Salvation Army's appeal for funds will be sounded throughout New Mexico. The program calls for the completion of several buildings now in course of construction, the erection of some necessary new ones, improvements to existing structures and a general extension of the Army's work into every county in New Mexico.

In addition to the requirements for general state purposes, building programs have been approved as follows: Albuquerque $11,500 and Roswell $1000 for repairs. None of the money will be used for foreign purposes, as the Salvation Army realizes that the emergencies at home must be the first consideration.

Four Million Fords

When the first six months of the Ford Motor company fiscal year ended January 31, more than half a million of the Fords had left the factory to join their three and a half million brothers and sisters on the world's highways.

Democratic State Convention

A state democratic convention is hereby called to be held in the city of Roswell, N. M., on the 3rd day of June, 1920, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of said date, for the purpose of electing six delegates and six alternates to represent the state of New Mexico at the democratic national convention to be held in the city of San Francisco, Calif., on June 26, 1920.

Each county will be entitled to the number of delegates in said state convention as follows:

Bernalille	18
Chavez	11
Colfax	13
Curry	10

Total	253

Pursuant to instructions as adopted by the democratic state central committee at its meeting held on the 12th day of April, 1920, in the city of Albuquerque, N. M., women delegates may be elected to attend county and state conventions and entitled to all the privileges thereof.

Further: A meeting of the democratic state central committee is hereby called to meet in the city of Roswell, N. M., at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of the 2nd day of June, 1920, for the purpose of preparing the temporary roll call of the convention, and the hearing of contests, if any exist, and for the transaction of such other business as may be properly considered by the said committee. It is urgently requested that every member of the state democratic central committee be present at the meeting.

By order of State Democratic Central Committee. ARTHUR SELIGMAN, Chairman. Byron O. Beall, Secretary.

A Bad Blizzard

The worst blizzard in years in the west set in last Saturday paralyzing railway traffic. It extended from Kansas to Arizona and from Montana to Texas, hitting New Mexico hard, with a freezing temperature and strong cold winds. Heavy snow falls are reported from most of the western states—two feet in Colorado, with drifts ten feet high in places.

Snow fell all over New Mexico, which will help farming and the range later. In the Capitan and Bonito districts from 12 to 18 inches is reported. The fruit growers were hopeful of gathering fair apple crops, but the snow and frost of Saturday did a great deal of injury to them. In a few cases the snow was so heavy that it was necessary to use dynamite to clear the trees with.

"American Day" Proclamation

I, O. A. LARRAZOLO, Governor of the State of New Mexico, acting in co-operation with the governors of the other states of the Union, do hereby proclaim Saturday, the first day of May, A. D. 1920, as "American Day."

I hereby invite the governing bodies of all incorporated municipalities throughout our state to also proclaim such a day as American Day, in their respective municipalities; I call upon the teachers in all our public schools and upon the heads of the various educational institutions in the state, to make known to the student body the meaning and the purpose of this proclamation; I invite all our people to join in a general celebration of that day, to hold street parades and public gatherings; that patriotic addresses be delivered to the people at such meetings, and to the student bodies in the school rooms; and in these addresses to dwell particularly on the excellency of our government, and in all it has done for the welfare, the happiness and prosperity, not only of the American people, but of all those who have sought protection under our flag.

I respectfully request that the attention of our people be particularly called to the danger and pernicious doctrines of anarchy that are being so liberally sown and scattered in our country, and that, in general, the people be thoroughly aroused to the great danger that our government is facing at this crisis in our national history.

Done at the executive office in the City of Santa Fe, in the State of New Mexico, this 10th day of April, A. D. 1920.

Witness my hand and the Great Seal of the State of New Mexico, O. A. LARRAZOLO, Governor of the State of New Mexico.

In conformity with the above from our governor, I, Frank J. Sager, Acting Mayor, hereby proclaim Saturday, May 1st, 1920, as American Day in the Village of Carrizozo and respectfully request that insofar as possible all suggestions made by our Honorable Governor, be complied with.

FRANK J. SAGER, Acting Mayor, Village of Carrizozo.

Distribution of Trucks

The State Highway Department, through State Highway Engineer Gillett, announces that it has a number of various makes of government trucks that will be rented to municipalities and organizations constructing public highways. The Kahn bill, recently enacted by congress and approved by the president, authorizes the Department of Agriculture to distribute these trucks at fair rental.

The trucks to be distributed include the Velie, Kelley-Springfield, Peerless, Packard, FWD, Pierce-Arrow, Moreland, etc. Practically all the trucks are brand new and each truck is said to be worth several thousand dollars. The trucks will be distributed on contract and payment of $500.00, which covers life rental on the truck, or as long as it is serviceable condition. The institution renting the truck must keep it in repair and use it for the improvement of public highways.

Thieft and Accident

A Hudson Super Six was stolen last week in El Paso. Trace of car and driver was picked up at Capitan and W. A. Reed followed the car after receiving the notification. Car and driver were overhauled at the Sunset ranch, below Picacho. He returned with them to Capitan and notified authorities at El Paso.

City Detective Blesk, of El Paso, came up and took charge of the car and young man who was driving it and started to El Paso in the stolen car. Upon reaching Carrizozo, he was joined by W. M. Barnett, Bryan Casier, principal of the High School and a salesman by the name of Leass, and the trip was continued toward El Paso. A few miles beyond Tularosa, at the second dip between that town and Alamogordo, a wheel was broken and the car went over the embankment.

All the occupants escaped unhurt except Mr. Barnett, who had a hand badly lacerated. Another car was requisitioned. Alamogordo reached where the detective and prisoner took the train for El Paso, the others returning by train to Carrizozo. The prisoner is wanted for army desertion as well as for theft.

THE OVERLAND "LIGHT FOUR" TOURING CAR

There are many makes of autos on the market, from the Ford to the high-priced Packard, all of which have good and bad points, but for a car that is rapidly coming into popular favor in the southwest—a car that is reasonably low in price and exceptionally low in up-keep—the Overland "Light Four" touring car leads the procession. There is a reason. In a recent test to prove that the Overland Four is built to "stand the racket," eight-inch curb stones were surmounted, two-foot boulders were topped, a three-foot-deep ditch was crossed, and an embankment higher than a man's head was negotiated. These are just a few of the obstacles passed over in the test. The car, with three passengers and driver, made good at every barrier, and the new type of triplex spring suspension on which the car is balanced, proved all that is claimed for it by the manufacturer.

With the price of gasoline soaring, the question of gas economy must be considered when buying a car. On April 11 at El Paso, in a test run, the Overland Four traveled 31 and 7-10th miles on one measured gallon of commercial gasoline, at the rate of 24 miles an hour.

Taylor & Sons, of Carrizozo, are the agents for the Overland "Light Four," 5 passenger touring car, and will be well pleased to demonstrate its many new features to any one contemplating buying a car that won't need to be sent to a repair shop every so often. "It stands the racket and saves gas," besides being a good-looking, easy-riding car, on stout artillery wheels.—It

Hondo School Wins State Health Crusade Pennant

The Hondo school (Mrs. Geo. Dixon, principal) has been awarded the State Pennant of the New Mexico Modern Health Crusade, and one of the ten national pennants given this year by the National Tournament of Health Brotherhood. Mr. C. P. Anderson, Executive Secretary of the National Tuberculosis Association, will make a trip to Hondo about the first of May, for the purpose of personally

CARRIZOZO SCHOOL NOTES

Our worthy county superintendent, Mrs. Blaney, was a very welcome visitor at the high school last Tuesday morning. Mrs. Blaney will visit the grades later in the week.

Three mornings last week, Mr. Lynn, visited the high school and conducted the singing. On Friday morning, with the seven upper grades of the schools assembled in the large room, Mr. Check called for the singing of The Star Spangled Banner and other songs. The students responded with a will. Mr. Check said that he had not heard as good singing in the West, not even in the El Paso high school and that the Carrizozo students had evidently had good training in music.

Major Burger, of Fort Bliss, was present at the time and made an interesting talk to the pupils. On motion of Mr. Cole, Mr. Check, Mr. Lynn and Major Burger were given standing invitations to visit the Carrizozo high school whenever passing through the town.

The following is the honor roll in the Carrizozo Schools, as reported by the teachers: Miss Ivy Lindsay's room—Tabert McLean, Elizabeth Brockway, Freeman E. Douglas, Julian Taylor, Marguerite English, Evelyn Grumbles.

Miss Neff's room—Sue Ellen Baccot, Hada Corn, Catherine Patty, Gladys Dozier, Alvin Carl, Manuel Chavez, Jose Marcias, Robert Bullion, Arcadio Brady, Woodrow Clements.

Mrs. Massie's room—Dollie Corn, Frances Skinner, Georgia Saunders, Ruth Brickley, Leopoldo Ortiz, Morris Benson, Mack Shaver, Otto Prahm, Wilbur Smith, Raymond McClean, Morris Lemon, Edward Johnson, David Saunders, Richard Patty, Julian Clements.

Miss Holland's room—Glenneth English, Maria Romero, Beatrice Treat.

Miss Lucile Lindsay's room—Arnold Hobbs, Viviana Lueras, Josefa Brady, Natividad Brady, Emelia Gallegos, Nora Whittaker, Lorene Stimmel, Elise McQuillen, Lena Harris, Mildred Jones, Vera Richard.

Miss Jarrett's room—Nellie Shaver, Josephine Clements, Clifford Hobbs, Walter LaFleur, Donald McLean, Roy Richard, Paul Wack.

Miss Seale's room—Dora Anderson, Clinton Braum, Ida Bulliod, Maurine Collier, Maudie Hamilton, Lucile Jones, Maggie Lujan, Julian Lalone, Fred Lalone, Alfredo Lopez, William Moss, Frank Patty, Albert Roberts, Lee Stimmel, Kathryn Stidham, Leon Whitaker, Urbano Wilson, May Jaurequi, Miller Frauch.

Mrs. Vaughn's room—Robana Corn, Lillian Johnson, Abellina Lujan, Vaden Gallacher, Willie Hutchins.

Eighth grade—William Kahler, Evelyn French, Kastler Taylor, Lois Stidham, Lois Jones, Nellie Ayres, Alta Carl, Ada Corn.

Senior High School—Luzia Braum, Hilary Cooper, Roy Stimmel, Ruby Smith, Grace Taylor, Laureen Wilson.

The County Buys the Gonzales Toll Bridge

County Commissioners Taylor and Sevier made a trip to the Hondo and Ruidoso Tuesday, on county business. They bought the Gonzales Toll Bridge at Hondo for the county. The consideration was $3,000. The bridge will be open to the public from next Monday, when the deed will be signed up and recorded. The board will meet in special session Monday for the purpose of conducting a public hearing on the proposed changes in the

"MYSTERIOUS ROBBERY OF WELL-KNOWN AUTHORESS."

Synopsis.—While in the little Swiss town of Yevay, where the "staid, proper spinster" who tells the story is spending a vacation, she is asked to allow a young girl, Claire de Ravanel, to be her companion back to the United States. Although forming an attachment to the girl, the hospitable spinster, Monsieur de Ravanel, Claire's father, and declines. On the boat she finds Claire in the care of a casual acquaintance, Mrs. Delario, whom she had met while each was purchasing a pair of slippers, exactly alike, which figure largely in subsequent events. When they reach New York, where Claire was to have been met by her mother, the latter does not appear, and Claire perforce goes to Mrs. Delario's home. In the confusion at the custom house, the spinster carries off one of Mrs. Delario's slippers. Through that happening she learns later that someone unknown to her has been in her flat. Calling on Mrs. Delario, that lady shows her some remarkable gems, believing them to be rubies, but which are really blood-red diamonds, and easily worth a million dollars. Mrs. Delario admits the gems were smuggled, but offers no explanation. While they are talking, a pounding on the door throws them into consternation. The caller asserts to be an officer of the law, with a warrant for the arrest of Mrs. Delario's son on a charge of pecking the diamonds. She writes him and persuades the officer to take the gems to her home for safe keeping. Next morning, receiving the responsibility in her possession of the diamonds, the spinster takes them back to Mrs. Delario, but while there she learns that that lady's son has been kidnaped, supposedly on account of the gems, and agrees to keep them in a bunch of hysteresis and has the lock of her door changed and a chain-bolt added. Over the telephone De Ravanel informs her Mrs. Delario has met with an accident and urges her to call at once. Hastening to her friend, and leaving the gems, the heroine is met by De Ravanel, who claims the diamonds are his, stolen from Claire on the boat. He accuses Mrs. Delario of our friend the spinster of the staff, and demands their return. She accuses De Ravanel, who threatens her with a revolver, and escapes.

CHAPTER VII—Continued.

Clammy sweat broke out all over me as I thought of what he might do. He might have twenty accomplices—he evidently had money enough to play the game to a finish. Where could I go tonight? To a hotel? I didn't have any luggage. To a friend's house? I should have to explain—and I couldn't I might go over to Philadelphia to my brother's but I didn't have money enough in my purse to pay my fare. And could I go off and leave the diamonds in my flat? Or could I take them with me, and perhaps be kidnaped, robbed and then murdered to keep my mouth shut? After what I'd seen of him I now felt him capable of anything.

With these thoughts I staggered out into the street. I noticed the clock as I passed—five minutes to eight, and I had come in at a quarter to six. I saw spies everywhere. I was afraid to go home and I didn't know what else to do. I knew I ought to communicate with Mrs. Delario, but I didn't dare—even to try to reach her on the telephone might make it the worse for her.

In this frame of mind I reached Broadway—here at least I felt temporarily safe—and staggered right into the arms of—Billy Rivers!

"Billy!" I cried, as soon as I saw who it was. "My rescuer!" For next to having a thick policeman to take care of me I'd rather have a thin reporter. Billy might not be able to save my life now, but he and his paper would at least avenge my death.

"Billy, where are you going?"

"Just home. Left the water at Clifton Springs this morning. Meeting you now is what you might call—"

"Standing your aunt from home," I suggested.

"Much better than any aunt I ever had," returned Billy gallantly; which didn't mean much, since all he had in the world was an only mother. He asked, "Say—I was just thinking of you, too. I was coming up to see you and get some really, truly advice. While I was over there in Paris I sort of got the idea that I'd try my hand at the mummy game."

"Don't!" I cut him short. "Stick to the daily news and the things—" seemed to find it to his liking, and commented on it freely—I remember his exclaiming at a "sweet bunch of potatoes" and I wondered what his mother would say to that. But the thing dragged along in its meaningless changes, and I sat there trying to find some coherence in its plot—or at least some gleam of real humor besides horseplay, and all the while there kept running through my head the words, "Your flat is being robbed—robbed—robbed!"

Billy and I came home on a local that dumped its passengers at One Hundred and Thirty-seventh, and I said, "Let's walk up," and pulled him out of the station and then into a side street and around a block until we were out of earshot of other pedestrians; then I said: "Billy, I've got a hunch that I've been robbed while we were at that show. You've got to come up with me."

"Aw, now—don't go worrying," he began soothingly. "Lots of people have hunches that never come to anything. But of course I'll go up with you—call the police afterward, too, if you want."

"Don't joke," I begged. "I've got five hundred dollars in the house—it would be just my luck." This was an good explanation as any, and it was true. I didn't dare to tell him about the diamonds and my afternoon's adventure.

Billy whistled. "Good chance for me—if you haven't been burgled already. Three months in Paris for yours truly?"

"Billy, listen," I begged, ignoring his attempt to be funny and cheer me up. "If George has gone off the elevator, all right—we walk up; but if George is still on—now listen, Billy, and play your part, for if I've been robbed George mustn't know it: if George is on I'll tell him you're from the office and have come up for some papers." George has his virtues and the defects of his virtues—he keeps tabs on everybody in the house, who their friends are, how often they call and how late they stay. For me—who never did such a thing—to bring an apple-checked young man to my flat after midnight would be nothing short of an adventure in George's eyes—a thing to be told through the house for a month of Sundays afterward. So I got out a quarter—to be ready with my thanks, in case he'd stayed on, waiting for me, as he often did; and there he was, smiling.

I slipped the quarter into his palm and told him how glad I was that I didn't have to walk up—and this gentleman, too, who "had come up from the office to get some papers"—I didn't say what office.

The car slid up—my heart slid down: monsieur was in that flat waiting for me and I knew it. Don't ask me to explain how I knew it—I knew it—and I knew that he was in the kitchen—or would be in the kitchen, when the car stopped at the sixth; that he meant to let me come in, shove the door on myself, and then appear; that he had the kitchen window open ready to retreat by the fire-escape if I should happen not to come alone.

showed nothing out of the way—that had been rearranged to let me get inside and shut the door without suspicion. As to the rest of the flat—words fall me! It was literally turned inside out and upside down. Drawers had been emptied out on the floor, then piled up and refilled with other things to get them out of the way. Even the bookcases had been moved and searched behind and hundreds of books were heaped on the floor, heater-skillet. Pictures had been taken from the walls and pillow cushions cut open; actually, the breakfast food in boxes, the butter and food in the refrigerator had been searched.

And in the midst of the disorder one thing alone had apparently not been touched—the bunch of hysteresis! I saw it the moment I got the dining-room light turned on. There it stood on the table, just as I had left it when I had crowded the diamonds down among the steams. But were the diamonds there!

I was in the act of making a dash to find out, when I remembered Billy—Billy mustn't know. He had ejaculated, "Love and potatoes! You did have a hunch!" I pulled off my gloves—I must see if the diamonds were safe—just a touch with the end of my fingers and I'd know—

"I didn't do it with a hunch, Billy," said I, and I stooped to pick up a table drawer and slide it into place, for there was a considerable barricade between me and the hysteresis that were now out of my reach.

"I didn't suppose you did," Billy was generous enough to admit.

"I did it with a piece of unmitigated folly—" "Say—where did you leave the cash?" he questioned quickly, and I remembered the five hundred dollars that I'd forgotten for the moment.

I forgot the diamonds and sank into the nearest chair. I stammered, "Billy, I must know the worst, and I'm afraid to go to my bedroom and see if it's gone. It was in the bureau drawer."

Billy struck a match and went down the hall. Then I saw the electric light illuminate the doorway and heard Billy:

"Love and pumpkins! Come here—quick!"

I rushed after him, without waiting to see if the diamonds were safe. He pointed to the bed: "Will you look at that!"

All the bed covers had been thrown off and on the mattress lay the five hundred dollars, spread out in rows of tens and fives!

The sight fairly caved me in. It was a great deal worse than if the money had been stolen. The thought that instantly struck me, and Billy too, for Billy said it was, "That fellow certainly had plenty of time, and what's more, I bet he was waiting for you."

"He was," said I with conviction, catching at the foot of the bed for support.

Billy gathered up and counted the money. It was all there, five hundred dollars.

"Now what—do you make—of that?" he meditated.

I knew what I made of it, but for Mrs. Delario's sake I did not tell Billy. He handed the bills to me.

"There's more to this," he observed. "Some mystery. I must search the other rooms."

"Listen!" I said.

We listened but heard nothing. Then he opened the bathroom door—nobody there. And with that he marched straight to the kitchen door and back to me in a flash.

"You open the front door and get ready to yell 'bloody murder' if anything happens," he commanded.

"Gee whiz! I believe you're right," he cried, looking about again, with a new light in his eyes.

"I say—the plot thickens! This is a real mystery!"

"Don't you see why it mustn't be known?"

"And do you know who searched and what he searched for?"

"I think so."

Billy stared at me for some seconds before he brought out, "I believe you know more about this than you're telling me. You're concealing something. Well—tell me this—did he get it?"

"I don't know."

Billy whistled and stared. "Say—this begins to be romantic."

"Romantic!" I sneered. "You don't know what romantic is!"

I managed to stop there. However much I respected Billy in general, I hadn't much confidence in his discretion.

"Billy, do you remember the time your mother put on your brand-new Fauntleroy suit and told you not to go to the swimming hole and you went?" I asked desperately, trying to get at him somehow and lead him to a promise to keep this to himself. "And you went—and the boys threw you in, and you and I? And I found you and took you home and ironed you and curled you up fresh and saved you from—"

"A lickin'—and a good one," he finished for me. "Those were the matter's lickin' days—before she lost the girls. And it wasn't the only lickin' you saved me from," he added, in the grateful way I'd always loved him for, even when I just couldn't love him, he was so bad.

"Billy, dear," I said, pressing my hands on his shoulders, "it's your turn now. Do you understand—and you've got to forget that you're a reporter and remember only that you're my friend and that I need one; for I'm in a lot of trouble and I simply can't explain."

"Don't say any more," said Billy with a fine air, taking up his hat. I remembered then that he had come for papers—George would be looking for some evidence of my truthfulness—and I snatched up the first sizable book I saw—my German dictionary, though I didn't notice what it was—and a bunch of odd papers and thrust them into Billy's hand and got him out and George up in spite of protests that I ought not to stay alone after that.

I closed the door and put up the chain-bolt, and seeing my clothes all in a heap, went in and hung them up and threw the blankets on the bed. I turned out all the lights but one. And throughout all these operations I kept asking myself, "Did he get the diamonds?"

Did the mysterious burglar get the diamonds?

UNABLE TO IDENTIFY MUMMY
London Officials in Something of a Quandary as to Disposition of "Old Jimmy."

One of London's problems at the present hour is what to do with a mummy that lies at the back of the Mansion house in one of the oldest churches of that ancient city. No one knows where it came from, and the jocular element around the Mansion house describe it as "Old Jimmy—a former lord mayor of London." The rector is in a quandary over its disposal. The figure is perfectly preserved; eyes, hair, nose, teeth, nails and ribs.

Inside the door of the mummy's box is a glass lid, which was removed a few days ago for the first time for many years. The mummy was covered with cobwebs, but was still in good condition. "It feels like leather," said an onlooker as he touched "Old Jimmy's" elastic ribs. The rector invites suggestions from the public as to what to do with the mummy. The mystery as to its identity arises from the fact that during the great London fire in 1666 it was hurriedly removed from another church and placed where it now lies, so as to escape the ravages of the conflagration.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.
To half-pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and 1/2 oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, but will make harsh hair soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Adv.

He Went to L.
The late P. T. Barnum delighted to tell of his thousand and one amusing experiences, especially some that happened during his first tour of England with "the greatest show on earth." One of the best is a joke on the "champion humbugger" himself. Barnum, on a leisure evening, bought a ticket to an English music hall. Imagine his keen delight as he heard the usher, as he took the tickets of the people ahead say: "Latter Day, first row; latter Day, fifth row; latter Day, sixth row; latter Day, ninth row," and then, in response to Barnum's inquiry, "Where do I go?" he said: "You go to Hall, sir."

Private.
In one of our camps, just before our entrance in the war, an officer was making a round of inspection when he came upon a big, round-eyed private with red hair and a gun that he held in anything but the approved fashion. "Don't you know better," demanded the officer, "than to point an empty gun at me?" "But it ain't empty, sir," protested the private. "It's loaded!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

1919 Railroad Freight Robberies of $45,000,000

WASHINGTON.—Wholesale looting of merchandise in transit upon the railroads of the United States caused a loss of approximately $45,000,000 in 1919, according to United States railroad administration statistics. A technique of robbery has been developed so highly that the methods of "master thieves" are similar in the United States, England, France, Italy and Argentina. Thief hunters here, however, are inclined to discredit the belief that a "widespread international organization" is at work stealing merchandise.

Substitution is the usual method used by the robbers. Boxes supposed to contain velvets are found at their destination to be filled with cheaper cloth or waste paper. These are referred to as "concealed losses" by railroad men, and are especially difficult to trace, as it is almost impossible to discover at what point the theft occurred.

The silk industry has been one of the most severely hit in the last year, and so great has the risk become that the railroad administration has been considering excluding raw silks from the privilege of freight transportation by rail.

The jewelers, who have always been looked upon as easy prey by thieves, fared better last year by approximately 50 per cent than in the previous year, it was said by the Jewelers' Protective union.

Among the methods frequently used by thieves are the following: A trackman at a freight station with a load of goods watches his opportunity and takes the freight clerk's receiving stamp, puts it on the bill of lading, and then drives off with the goods.

Another method is for a truckman to drive into a city freight yard with an empty box on his truck. He substitutes a box of stolen merchandise for the empty one brought in.

Robbers often get aboard trains and throw goods out for confederates to pick up along the route.

Women Voters Desire a Department of Education

WOMEN voters of the United States—actual and prospective—and especially by the teachers, are interesting themselves and other citizens in the measure now before congress known as the Smith-Towner bill. This bill seeks to make what is now the bureau of education in the department of the interior a department of the government itself, with administrative functions and a secretary the same as any other department.

The bureau of education gathers information showing the condition and progress of education and has been of great help in giving advice to state, county and municipal officials respecting the administration and improvement of schools. It cannot interfere directly with state operations, nor could a national department if created. But the bureau has not hesitated to call public attention to unsatisfactory conditions whenever criticism was desirable in the interest of the children, and thus it possesses a power of great value for the public good. It has direct charge of the education of the native children of Alaska, and promotes home gardening under school direction and increased food production.

But because it is a bureau, one of many of a great department, the women assert that it has not the influence which the importance of its work justifies. It is looked upon as a minor branch of the government, whereas, because of the value of education to the people as a whole, it is claimed it should be on an equality with other affairs of not greater moment to the nation.

To it could be transferred the educational activities which exist to some extent in both the army and navy, and especially the children's bureau, which now functions under the department of labor.

Incidentally, if a woman is ever to have a seat in the cabinet, a department of education seems to be her best chance.

Overlooked by the Correspondents in Washington

THE senate, the other day, passed a bill directing the secretary of the treasury to pay "to Gertrude Lustig, the sum of $1,250.53, being the amount she would have received as pay and allowances as chief nurse, army nurse corps, from September 23, 1918, the date of her unjustifiable dismissal from that position, to May 22, 1919, the date of her restoration to the service." In reply to questions Senator Wadsworth said:

"The unfortunate thing was that the nurse in question was in jail during that entire time. This case constitutes one of the most distressing and horrible things that I have ever encountered in connection with the treatment of a good woman by the government. It arose from a frame-up. The story is a rather distressing one, and I hesitate very much to tell it. The military intelligence department of the war department realized the error that had been made, and the department of justice also realized it; and both departments, together with the surgeon general, the head of the whole medical service, joined in an urgent request that this relief be granted to Miss Lustig. She has been restored to service, and she is now a member of the army nurse corps. I may say to the senators that the government has done its best to locate the blame for this thing. The persons involved in it have utterly disappeared."

This is practically all that was said in the senate concerning the facts in the case. Senator King of Utah said: "I feel that the war department should determine who committed this crime against the nurse and prosecute them criminally, and compel them to refund the amount. After waiting a reasonable time I shall ask an investigation of the entire matter."

Vacancies in United States Diplomatic Service

ASIDE from the enemy countries and nations with which the United States has severed diplomatic relations there are eight vacancies in the American diplomatic list. The United States has no minister at the capitals of China, Denmark, Costa Rica, Greece, The Netherlands, Salvador, Siam and Switzerland. While Finland has a minister here, no American envoy has yet been sent to the new Finnish republic.

As many shifts usually occur following a change of administration, fear is expressed that it will be difficult to find men willing to accept some of these appointments who are well suited to the work. Many men would welcome an appointment for one year as ambassador or minister, but experience seems to show that the first year has been merely a training period for most diplomats.

Successful diplomatic achievement, as a rule, depends largely upon continuity of service. Consequently, it is said, the men best qualified to fill the existing vacancies would not care to undertake the duties of envoy for so short a period.

Furthermore, most of the secretarial positions held by diplomatic secretaries are now performed by civil service, and diplomatic secretaries who are

Nothing Lost by Keeping in Mind "Safety First."

Government Bulletin Lists Varieties of Accidents in Industries That Might Easily Be Avoided by the Exercise of Care.

Electric signs blink the slogan, "Be Careful," around the big mills. From mother's apron strings to the latest newspaper the voices of safety first call "Be Careful."

Now comes the United States labor department and tells how many ways you can get hurt by falling. There are three kinds of falling: (1) Falling from a high place to the level; (2) falling from the level into a place below level; (3) falling while walking or standing on the level.

In the first classification we find all kinds of high places to fall from. In the card indexes of the safety engineers they have records of people falling from benches, boxes, chairs, tables, bridges, dams and docks, cranes, elevators, derricks, hoists—elevated bins, pockets, tanks (falls from but not falls into)—buildings in construction or demolition—floors—ladders, scaffolds, staging—boilers, engines, machines—piles, poles, trees, roofs, runways, balconies, platforms, gangplanks, stairs and steps, tramways, trestles, windows, walls and wall openings.

Ladders, by the way, are the worst and trickiest of all. More falls from ladders than from any other high spots are recorded. As the safety engineers classify ladder falls: (1) You hit the ground because the ladder broke or a step in the ladder went to pieces under your foot; (2) either you slipped and twisted or the ladder slipped and twisted; (3) somebody or something knocked you off the ladder; (4) or how it all happened was a mystery.

Getting into Class B, where the fall is from the level into territory not on the level, people fall into excavations, pits, shafts, bins, vats, floor openings, manholes. If standing or moving on the level you slip or stumble, you get into Class C. A stumble, however, may be caused by fixed objects or loose objects. A sleeping dog or a trunk of pig iron may trip up the feet that do not respectably elevate.

The number of falling objects that knock people down and get their names into the accident records are collapsing buildings, walls, scaffolds, stagings, chutes, conveyors, slides stacked, stored or piled-up material. Also racks, shelves, machines, work benches, temporary floors, trees, ditch and trench cavities, mine and quarry coal, rock and ore.

Experiences with "injuries due to scuffling, larking or horseplay" are noted in the federal labor department bulletin by Commissioner George Kingdon of the workmen's compensation board of Ontario, Can. A way porter wrenched his foot but was denied compensation because he "was larking with two young ladies" and showing them how nifty he was at jumping trains. Claims were allowed "where a Chinaman employed in a factory was the innocent victim of horseplay—blown up by hose; where a man had been teased by another workman suddenly turned in revenge and hit an innocent party; where a man about to punch the time clock was hit from behind by another workman, injured man innocent of any horseplay."

All of which gives us a bunch as to what the electric signs mean blinking late at night and early morning, "Be Careful."

His Own Consolation. One of the best of many good stories in "As a Tale That is Told," Rev. F. W. Macdonald's book of reminiscences, concerns a theological argument he once overheard between two Scottish cattle drovers.

One belonged to the Free Church of Scotland (the other to the United Presbyterian, known for short as the "U. P.'s").

From belittling each other's churches (says the author) they descended to personalities, and finally the U. P. man roundly denounced his opponent and all his ancestors, winding up with:

"Your father was a thief, and your mother was a witch."

"Maybe they was" replied the other. "Maybe they was. But they wasn't U. P.'s!"—Pearson's Weekly.

Where He Would Begin. "I have made up my mind that I should like to devote the remainder of my life to serving my fellow men," said the man of wealth.

"Fine idea," said one of his friends. "I presume you will now start out to help the poor and devote yourself to charitable service."

"No, that isn't my thought exactly. I had an idea I should like to start my public life in the United States senate."

Willing to Learn. "I see where a college professor advertises for a job that will pay him a living wage."

"Does he say what he can do?" "No; but he says if somebody will give him a chance he will forget that he studied abroad and got a string of degrees."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

ROAD BUILDING

RAILROADS AND GOOD ROADS

Comparison of Future Transportation Problems Seen in Hard-Surfaced Highways of Country.

Any student of the railroad situation must reach the conclusion that railroad operation in America has reached the height of its efficiency and hereafter it will remain stationary or decrease.

It is always possible that some revolutionary process will be discovered, but the long years without marked improvement of process indicate that railroad mechanics have about reached their maximum while bureaucratic and political control now assured will be as deadening to all mechanical improvement as they will be to effective management.

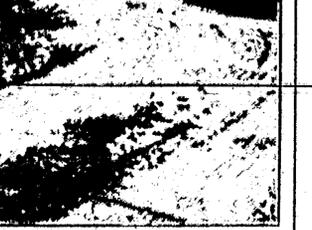

Progress in transportation, therefore, must be in other lines. Navigation has been heralded for some years as a solution, but in spite of heavy government assistance, water traffic, even on the Great Lakes, has steadily declined. The remedy does not appear to rest there, at least for the present.

There remain the highroads. In their salvation lies, says Chicago Tribune, the war, which proved the utter incapacity of the French government-owned railways to rise to the emergency, established the motor truck in its full majesty. What the French railroads could not do the motor trucks on fine French highways did.

What the highroads are in France they must be made in America.

Fortunately, we have an excellent little beginning in the middle West. The principle of hard roads has been accepted and until beginnings have been made in a number of states, chief among them Illinois. Let us understand, and immediately, that what has been done and what has been legislated for is merely the thin entering wedge of our highroad program. The narrow ribbons of concrete roads laid out by legislation will no more carry the forthcoming auto truck traffic than the old narrow gauge single track railroads were able to carry the railroad traffic which they caused to develop.

It is fortunate that we have many agencies building roads. The nation will do something for the most backward. The states, however, should treble or quadruple all national allowances. In the beginning, and until the principles of highroad traffic are generally understood, it will probably be necessary for counties and even cities to provide the wide thoroughfares necessary at the points where traffic centers.

To illustrate, the 18-foot roads which are perhaps adequate a hundred miles in the country are even now more congested ten miles out from the city limits than are our most crowded city streets.

BILLION DOLLARS FOR ROADS

But Doan's Effected a Complete Recovery After Other Remedies Failed. Now in Good Health.

Mrs. J. A. Sitworth, E. Bell Ave., Red Key, Ind., says: "Kidney trouble came on me suddenly and before I realized it I was in a critical condition. My body bloated and my feet and ankles swelled like toy balloons. The kidney secretions burned terribly in my passage. My face puffed up and the flesh under my eyes and on my cheeks hung down in folds. I had another thing, when I thought I would die. So much water had collected under my skin, I weighed 175 pounds, a gain of 45 pounds. My sight failed and little black specks passed before my eyes. I felt drowsy and was so nervous, I couldn't stand the least noise. Rheumatic pains darted all through me and it felt as if every nerve in my body was affected. Medicine didn't help me and I had little hope or strength left. Finally I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they restored me to health. I am now well and strong."

"TRAPPING" THE CONGREGATION

(The Literary Digest)

Whether a man comes of a praying mother, or is himself a Christian, is not the business of a minister to inquire during public worship, and the habit of some preachers and evangelists of calling on their congregation to proclaim their virtue or to admit their sin is not only bad manners but bad morals as well, we are told by The Watchman-Examiner (New York). The Baptist weekly is drawn to the subject by the story of a missionary who requested a number of seminary students to stand up if they had been blessed with praying mothers. It was a question of delicate intimacy, one which the missionary had no right to put. Of course, nearly the whole student body rose, "but what about those who did not rise? How did they feel?" Probably some of them did a "bit of lying" to shield their mothers: "That minister did a foolish and ungenerous thing and some one ought to have said, 'Never mind our mothers, Mr. Preacher, just stick to us.'"

"Years ago the writer had a popular evangelist assisting him in evangelistic services. The evangelist felt obliged to get results, and he resorted to every method known to evangelists, big and little. First he asked all the Christian people to stand that he might single out the non-Christian people, and ask them to stand with the Christians. Well, that did not work very well, and after all had been seated for a while he asked the whole congregation to stand. Then after a short exhortation he asked the Christian people to be seated. One lone man remained standing, and he was a handsome, up-standing naval officer. It was an electric moment. The preacher, a bit nervous, said: 'Sir, don't you want to be a Christian?' Quick as a flash came the answer: 'I can not say that I do at this time. I am standing simply because I am an honest man. You asked the Christians to sit down and not being a Christian I felt obliged to remain standing. Then he quickly resumed his seat. Of course, he had been insulted by the evangelist. He never crossed the threshold of that church again when evangelist meetings were in progress. He was right, absolutely right, and the pastor of the church was humiliated and ashamed.

"A church edifice is a place of public assembly. There are certain well-known courtesies and amenities due those who attend public worship. No minister has a moral right to divide a congregation into groups that will embarrass a part of the congregation. To do so is to take advantage of a common understanding which has become an unwritten law in the conduct of public worship. It is perfectly right to invite men to stand or to come forward in confessing Christ, because those who remain in their pews are not subjected to embarrassment. To lay a trap for people is not only bad manners, but bad morals. A man is entitled to immunity from insult even in a church.

When asked what kind of advertising is most fruitful, Van Camp, the baked beans man, said he could not tell, but what he did know was that when he advertised he got the business, and "Riches amassed in haste will diminish, but those collected little by little will multiply."

WHY not have a home of your own? The problem isn't a big one, but it's a sane one. You can approach this question in a very practical way right now by starting a "Home Fund" in the form of a 4 per cent savings account, making the growth of that fund the par-amount issue of your financial problem.

Remember the money you save for this undertaking now will have a greater purchasing power when later your "Home Fund" has reached a size to warrant the next step.

We shall be glad to explain the possibilities in this idea.

CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

You can rely on Cardui. Surely it will do for you what it has done for so many thousands of other women! It should help. "I was taking sick, seemed to be . . . writes Mrs. Mary E. Vester, of Madison Heights, Va. "I got down so weak, could hardly walk . . . just staggered around. . . I read of Cardui, and after taking one bottle, or before taking quite all, I felt much better. I took 3 or 4 bottles at that time, and was able to do my work. I take it in the spring when my strength is low. I had no appetite, and I commenced eating. It is the best tonic I ever saw."—The Cardui.

52¢
How would YOU like a raise like this?

—and for 34 Years Work

THAT is the kind of increase in salary the minister has received. His living expenses have risen just as fast and as far as yours.

But he is paid on the average just 52 cents more per church member than he was paid 34 years ago.

The Minister Never Fails You

Every officer of the Government with a war message to deliver appealed to the ministers first of all.

But 80% of the ministers receive less income than government economists figure as a minimum for the support of an average family.

When hospitals need money they enlist the support of the ministers—and receive it.

But when sickness visits the minister or the members of his family they must be treated in a charity ward. His pay is less than a day laborer's.

8 out of every 10 ministers receive less than $20 a week—about half the pay of a mechanic.

We Pay Him Half the Wages of a Mechanic

And of these pitifully inadequate salaries, how much do you contribute? Nothing if you are outside the church; an average of less than 3c a day if you are a church member.

All of us share in the benefits of Christian ministers to the community. They marry us; bury us; baptize our children; visit us when we are sick. In their hands is the spiritual training of the youth.

We Are All Profiteers at Their Expense

Part of the Interchurch World program is this—a living wage for every minister of Jesus Christ; an efficient plant, and a chance to do a big man's job.

If you want better preachers, help to pay the preachers better. It's the best investment for your community—and for your children—that you can ever make.

SLEEP MALADY FOLLOWS "FLU"

Always Has Appeared in Wake of Epidemics of Influenza.

IS TRACED BACK TO 1730

Italian Scientists Study History of Disease—Best Way to Avoid the Sick-ness is to Keep Resistance at High Point.

Rome. Sleeping sickness, or sleeping headache, as the Italian scientists prefer to call the malady which has appeared in Rome and several other Italian cities, is believed by Prof. Giuseppe Sanarelli, the distinguished Italian bacteriologist, to be the same as that which followed other waves of influenza. Pope Benedict XIII died from influenza in 1730. The after effects of the epidemic at that time were so baneful that his successor, Benedict XIV, waived the fasting of churchmen during Lent, and similar action was taken by Pope Leo XII in 1830, when there was another wave of influenza or the grippe.

Keep Up Resistance. Professor Sanarelli, who has been studying the disease, says that the best way to avoid sleeping sickness is to keep the powers of resistance up to the highest point, as it seems to attack chiefly persons who are in a run-down condition. He also warns the public not to be unduly alarmed about the disease, and says he is unwilling to concede it is highly communicable or contagious until the actual cause of the malady is determined. And he does not think the germ will be discovered until after extensive experimentation with the brains of monkeys, such an expensive work, that it can be carried out only with the aid of the millions of

Fish, Given "Drink," Comes Back to Life
London.—The whole town of Yarmouth has viewed a small fish, a bream, and marveled. It has been named Jonah No. 2. Robert Watling, Cottishall, Norfolk, caught a 20-pound pike on Barton Broad. Some time later, when the pike was cleaned, a bream was found inside it. When examined, the bream's tail was seen to quiver. "Thereupon," said Watling, "I poured a drop of brandy down the fish's throat and placed it in a bait can, changing the water every 20 minutes. It soon began to revive, and in a short time was swimming around as full of life as ever."

MUST READ THE PSALMS

Used in Reading Test for Aliens at Ellis Island.

Required to Read From 30 to 40 Words in Any Language He Desires.

New York.—Uncle Sam will soon be conducting great classes in reading the Psalms aloud at the feet of the Statue of Liberty. The pre-war practice of examining all immigrants who come by steamer at Ellis Island has been restored.

Some philanthropic millionaires like John D. Rockefeller.

Professor Sanarelli says because of the sporadic appearance of the disease it is reasonable to assume many persons carry the germs but are immune to the disease until there is some sudden let-down in their physical condition which overcomes their power of resistance.

As the malady always makes its appearance at the same season as influenza.

LID IS NOW ON IN ALASKA

Newest Mining Camp Is Real "Spotless Town."

Gold Seekers Rushing There in Spring Will Find Place Quiet as Church.

Ketchikan, Alaska. Hyder, newest of Alaskan mining camps, is a "spotless town" and many stampered who may rush there in the spring are not going to find drinking, dancing and gambling going on wide open, as in the gold camps of the first stampede in '98, long before prohibition came, according to reports received here.

If Hyder's new residents find anything out of the ordinary next spring they may find it in Stewart, a Canadian town not far from Hyder. It is probable, however, that the red-coated constables of the Royal Northwestern Mounted police, who kept order at Confiscation of Estates by People's Commissioners in Germany Held Illegal.

Berlin, Germany.—The former reigning duke of Gotha has won his suit against the free state, which peremptorily confiscated his property and incorporated it among the state's assets without affording the duke the slightest reimbursement. The duke immediately began suit to recover the estate and also claimed damages. In their defense the people's commissioners pleaded that they had acted within the letter of their prerogatives and were not answerable to the court. This suit had been retained by the state

Chicago, Ill.—A 2,800-mile hike from Toronto, Canada, to Oakland, Cal., is being undertaken by John Thornton, twenty years of age, who arrived here the other day. Thornton has been promised a job on his brother's ranch in Oakland, and not having the price of a ticket, decided to walk.

"I expect to say 'hello' to my brother some time in March, 1920," he said. He sleeps in the open after resting off some 18 or 20 miles a day.

A Feeling of Security

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit-producing drugs.

Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, kidney, liver and bladder remedy. The same standard of purity, strength and reliability is maintained in every bottle of Swamp-Root.

It is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs.

It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses.

It is not recommended for everything. It is nature's great helper in relieving and eradicating kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

PNEUMONIA LEFT BOY WEAK AND SICKLY

Parents Were Almost Hopeless, But He is Now Well and Strong.

"Our little boy's health was so poor we were afraid we were going to lose him. He is ten years old, and has had weak lungs ever since he was eight months old, caused by pneumonia. We have been very careful with him and doctors have been continually, but we had almost despaired of ever having a strong, well boy.

"But since giving him Milk's Emulsion all his troubles are gone, and he is in perfect health."—Mrs. G. W. Smiley, 20 Maple St., Boston, Mass.

For restoring appetite, health and strength in sickly children, mothers will find Milk's Emulsion the thing they have always sought. Most children like to take it, because unlike many emulsions and tonics, it really tastes good.

Milk's Emulsion is a pleasant, nutritive food and a corrective medicine. It restores healthy, natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and physic. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. As a builder of flesh and strength Milk's Emulsion is strongly recommended to those whose sickness has weakened and impaired the effects of feeding.

Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved—usually in one day.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream.

No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milk's Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions, and if not satisfied with the results your money will be promptly refunded. Price 50c and $1.00 per bottle. The Milk's Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold by druggists everywhere.—Adv.

BILIOUSNESS Caused by Acid-Stomach

If people who are bilious are treated according to local symptoms they seldom get very much better. What relief is obtained is usually temporary. Treat biliousness to its source and remove the cause and the chances are that the patient will remain strong and healthy.

Doctors say that more than 75 per cent of all diseases can be traced to an Acid-Stomach. Biliousness is due to indigestion, heartburn, belching, sour stomach, flat and gas are other signs of acid-stomach. EATONIC, the most modern stomach remedy, brings quick relief from these stomach miseries which lead to a long train of ailments that make life miserable if not corrected.

EATONIC literally absorbs and carries away the excess acid from the stomach, strong, cool and comfortable. Helps digestion; improves the appetite and you then get full strength from your food. Thousands say that EATONIC is the most effective stomach remedy in the world. It is the help YOU need. Try it on our money-back guarantee. Satisfied or your money back. All druggists. Only 25 cents for a big box.

SANDWICHES AND OTHER GOOD THINGS.

For the housewife who finds it necessary to pack a lunch for the dainty SCHOLAR, the husky lad or the business man, working outside or inside, the nature of the sandwich will vary. More satisfying and hearty fillings will be necessary for the man at hard labor.

Of the first importance in the preparation of sandwiches is bread of a close texture, 24 hours old. White, entire wheat, graham or brown and rye are all favorites. Nut bread makes an especially nice sandwich bread, either that raised with yeast or baking powder bread. The following is a baking powder bread which may be used when cold: Take one cupful of milk, one beaten egg, half a teaspoonful of salt, one-half cupful of sugar, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, sifted with two and one-quarter cupfuls of flour. Bake in a loaf pan in a moderate oven 45 minutes.

Bread made of sweetened bread dough, with an egg, cinnamon or orange and lemon rind for flavoring, when sliced thin and spread with fresh butter, is most satisfactory and gives variety.

Bread for sandwiches should be sliced thin. The butter should be softened and creamed to spread without difficulty. The butter may be creamed with nuts, pounded mint or parsley, celery or any desired flavor.

Lettuce, tomato, cucumber and mayonnaise combinations should not be made long ahead of time. Such sandwiches are best made a few minutes before serving.

Sandwiches may be kept in a light tin box near the ice, but not in it. Sandwiches in waxed paper are not good. If wrapped in waxed paper and kept in a cool place they will be in good condition for half a day, or longer. The removal of the crust is desirable when serving a dainty sandwich for an afternoon tea or luncheon; cut in fancy shapes and decorated with chopped vegetables in designs, they look very fancy, but for ordinary occasions the crust is retained.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Noble deeds are held in honor, but the wide world rarely needs hearts or patience to unravel the worth of common deeds.—Stedman.

WHAT TO HAVE FOR DINNER.

A rather unusual cake is prepared according to the following recipe:

French Sponge Cake.—Separate the yolks and whites of four eggs, beat the yolks to a cream, add gradually one cupful of powdered sugar, then fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Sift one cupful of flour with one teaspoonful of baking powder; add to the first mixture, stirring lightly.

Bake in two small layers. When cold, spread with the following filling: Beat to a cream two tablespoonfuls of butter, add gradually one-quarter of a cupful of powdered sugar; drop into this the yolk of an egg, beat well; add a second yolk and beat again. Add a tablespoonful of strong coffee infusion. Stand on ice until cold.

Mock Cherry Pie.—Mix one cupful of cranberries, cut in halves and washed under the tap to remove the seeds; add one cupful of raisins, one cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of flour and one-third of a cupful of hot water. Set in a warm place while preparing the crust. Bake with two crusts.

Nut Omelet.—Put through a meat chopper a half cupful of nuts; beat three eggs until light, add salt and pepper and three tablespoonfuls of cold water; then add the nuts and mix well. Put a piece of butter the size of a walnut in a frying pan; when hot, pour in the mixture, and as soon as it begins to set lift the edges until it is firm all through; fold over and send it to the table on a hot dish.

Harvard Pudding.—Mix and sift two and one-half cupfuls of flour with three and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt and one-third of a cupful of sweet fat. Beat one egg, add one cupful of milk and combine with the flour mixture. Turn into a buttered mold, cover, steam two hours. Serve with warm apple sauce and hard sauce.

Parasol Croquettes.—Cut in halves, lengthwise, four uniform-sized parasols; cook until tender; remove the skins and mash until perfectly smooth; add butter, salt and pepper and set aside to cool. When cool mold into balls, roll in egg, then crumbs, and fry in fat. Serve as a garnish for a roast.

Chocolate Cake.—Take one cupful of brown sugar, add half a cupful and a half of flour sifted with a teaspoonful of baking powder. Dissolve two squares of chocolate in half a cupful of boiling water and add to the cake the at thing. Flavor with vanilla and add a little salt. Bake in two layers.

Reflect upon your present blessings, of which every man has many, not on your past misfortunes, of which all men have some.—Dickens.

MOTHERS, PREPARE

Kansas City, Kans.—"When I was a girl just coming into womanhood I became ill with a nervous ailment. I was pale as death; my people became very much alarmed—thought I was going into a decline. My mother took me to our druggist and asked him if he could recommend some medicine that he thought would be good for my case. He told her to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and she did. I had only taken it a short time when I began to improve and it was not long when I was well—in the best of health. I have since taken 'Favorite Prescription' during epidemics and found it a wonderful help. I believe it will and strong the cure for—Mrs. Emma C. Calkins, 2025 Roosevelt Ave.

WOMAN'S CRITICAL TIME

Omaha, Neb.—"I have used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for many years at certain critical times when such a tonic was necessary and it never failed to strengthen and build me up. When I was raising my family I took it and always the results were most satisfactory; then during middle life it helped me to come through in a strong and healthy condition. I am very enthusiastic concerning Dr. Pierce's medicine and have recommended it not only to members of my own family but to many others besides and have never heard one complain. Dr. Pierce's book, the Common Sense Medical Adviser, has been in my house for 25 years and I know it has saved me many a doctor bill, as well as many of my friends whom I have advised through it."—MRS. The following is a baking powder bread which may be used when cold: Take one cupful of milk, one beaten egg, half a teaspoonful of salt, one-half cupful of sugar, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, sifted with two and one-quarter cupfuls of flour. Bake in a loaf pan in a moderate oven 45 minutes.

Bread made of sweetened bread dough, with an egg, cinnamon or orange and lemon rind for flavoring, when sliced thin and spread with fresh butter, is most satisfactory and gives variety.

Bread for sandwiches should be sliced thin. The butter should be softened and creamed to spread without difficulty. The butter may be creamed with nuts, pounded mint or parsley, celery or any desired flavor.

Lettuce, tomato, cucumber and mayonnaise combinations should not be made long ahead of time. Such sandwiches are best made a few minutes before serving.

Sandwiches may be kept in a light tin box near the ice, but not in it. Sandwiches in waxed paper are not good. If wrapped in waxed paper and kept in a cool place they will be in good condition for half a day, or longer. The removal of the crust is desirable when serving a dainty sandwich for an afternoon tea or luncheon; cut in fancy shapes and decorated with chopped vegetables in designs, they look very fancy, but for ordinary occasions the crust is retained.

This Medicine Recommended by a Doctor

When a doctor uses a medicine himself besides prescribing it to his patients, he must know that it has merit.

This is what Dr. J. H. Wagner, a prominent physician of Skate, Kentucky, has to say about Dr. Hartman's well-known remedy, PE-RU-NA: "I have used PE-RU-NA myself for catarrh and have given it to others for catarrh, bloating after eating and other ailments. It has proved a success in all cases with old and young men and women. All speak well of PE-RU-NA. It is the best of all tonics."

Dr. Wagner, out of the fullness of his own personal experience, for the good of all sick and suffering, recommends a medicine which he knows to be good. You may be sure a doctor would not endanger his professional reputation by endorsing PE-RU-NA unless satisfied beyond a doubt of its value.

Whether your trouble be a cough or a cold, or a more subtle catarrhal affection of the stomach, bowels or other organs, give PE-RU-NA a trial. The immediate improvement which you will see will satisfy beyond a doubt that PE-RU-NA is what you need. PE-RU-NA may be purchased anywhere in tablet or liquid form.

The job was on shore leave and happy because he had found a girl as affectionate as he. His joy was dimmed, however, for a bluecoat had forbidden spooning in the park and his girl had tabooed it in the streets. But life took a new turn when he saw a man kiss his wife farewell in front of the Pennsylvania station, New York. He rushed his girl toward a crowd hurrying toward the Philadelphia express and bade her a fond farewell. When the crowd thinned, they joined a throng for Washington and repeated the act. They repeated it again before the Chicago train.

This was too much for a colored porter who had been watching. He stepped up to the job. "Boss," he said, "why don't you go downstairs and try the Long Island station? Dem local trains ain't leavin' mos' all de time!"—Everybody's.

PRIMARY CAUSE OF UNREST

With the Passing of "Small Business" Went the Feeling of Community Interest, Which Meant So Much.

Article VIII.

By FRANK COMERFORD.

Not many years ago something happened which changed the relations between employer and employee. That happening has had a marked effect upon industrial discontent. Something was lost out of the relation between the owner and the man who worked for him. The human element, the personal touch, between the boss and the workers stopped. With its passing unrest grew with great vigor. It was a new kind of unrest, too. It was a lasting, determined, resolute discontent. This came to pass in the day that small business entered the twilight.

In the day of the small plant, business was owned and run by a man, or a number of men, doing business as a partnership. These men lived in the community in which their men lived. They worked with their men. In the front of the plant was the office of the boss. He was on the job. He wasn't a hired boss, either—he was the real boss—the owner. The sign under which the business was run bore his name. It identified him with the business. The boss had his home in the city in which the plant was located. His children went to the public school, frequently to the same school to which the children of his workmen went. If he was a church-going man—and generally he was—so and his family went to religious services on Sunday to the same church that many of his men and their families attended. The men who worked for him knew him, at least to the extent of recognizing him when they saw him. He knew many of them, and recognized them with a nod or "Good morning" when he saw them on the street. Few people realized how much this meant to harmonious relations in the industrial world. When working men had a grievance, or thought they had, they took it directly to the boss. He talked it over with them. He was reasonable and fair. If the complaint was well founded, it was given consideration, a remedy was found. The working man was satisfied. He had had his say. He was treated as a human being by a human being. He felt he was part of the business—so did the boss.

Regulated by Public Opinion.

In the day of small business, the owner of a factory or plant who paid his men an unliving wage was a marked man in the community. Public opinion chastised him for his selfishness and inhumanity. The people said he was a sweeper, a slave driver, and held him in contempt. They contrasted his good clothes, the style of his family and his fine mansion, with the rags his working men wore, the hovels in which they lived. He was pointed out, hated, despised. The thought of the community was that it would be better for him and his to give up some of their excess luxury and give the men living wages. The disgrace fell not only upon his head, but it followed his wife and children. When they went to church they were looked upon as hypocrites, for all the people knew that every day in the week he was insulting the Christ he pretended to worship on the Sabbath. Few men are so thick-skinned as not to feel the lash of public opinion. It isn't easy to bear the hate of one's neighbors. It is natural for men to want the good opinion of their fellows. In the day of small business, public opinion held a lash over the inhuman and greedy, kept hirers of men human, but in the progress of the world the small employer was doomed to go.

The partnership passed off the stage, and with it the personal touch between employer and employee. The corporation, a soulless body, was born of the law. It absorbed small plants and small businesses. It collected under a single roof thousands of men. The corporation, the combination, the trust, had come. This new order of doing business on a large scale was efficient—economical. It eliminated waste and duplication. It was a great, smooth-running machine. It represented progress in doing the world's work.

The corporation name did not disclose the owner of Big Business. It was an impersonal, inhuman thing. Frequently the stockholders did not live in the cities where the plants were located. The real owners were unknown to employees and public. Many of the large shareholders had never seen the plant. The men who worked in the plants had never seen the men for whom they worked. The man actually running the business was only an employee. He was paid a large salary and it was made plain to him when he was hired that his salary and his job depended on his ability to make profits. The corporation was organized for million-dollar profits. The man who was measured by this definition of success, to make profit it is necessary to keep down the cost of production. The principal item in the cost of production is the labor charge, the wages of the men. The employee manager set himself to his task. One object, one thought, was always before him—keep down wages. He drilled this idea into his staff, his superintendents, his foremen. The first commandment of Big Business to him was "make dividends or quit."

Evil in Over-Capitalization. Frequently these large industrial corporations were greatly overcapitalized. A corporation representing an actual investment of $100,000,000 was organized for $200,000,000. It didn't take a financier to see that $400,000,000 of its capitalization was wind, water, take-a-hill. The law that gave the corporation a right to exist forgot to keep it under control. The stock was sold, shares representing fiction as well as those representing value. The Captain of Industry spoke of the $400,000,000 of overcapitalization as a "massion." The law should have written it down larceny. The selling of this stock was nothing more or less than obtaining money under false pretenses. When a working man obtained bread under false pretenses he was sent to jail. When honest men cried out against this grand larceny they were called muckrakers, agitators, and charged with provoking unrest, disturbing business. If this did not silence them, paid publicity told the world that the stock was held by widows and orphans; that the attacks upon it were efforts to rob them.

The state, the law, the government, had given dollars the right to organize. A corporation is a union of dollars, exactly as a labor union is an organization of men. The men organized as a matter of self-defense. They knew the individual no longer had a chance to register his complaint with the owner and that as an individual the worker was utterly meaningless in such a large scheme. When he complained he was told, "Take things as they are, stop whining; if you don't like your job, quit. There are thousands of men waiting to step into your shoes."

One of the first things the corporation did was to deny to men the right the law gave it—the right to organize. In defiance of their attitude the men did organize and forced the strike as a weapon with which to fight for their rights. The law had not kept pace with the times. It failed to furnish protection. It failed to provide a reasonable control over these powerful big combinations. The men asked for the privilege of collective bargaining. It was a simple request, a just one; its meaning is clear. The men wanted the right to appoint a committee to represent them and discuss with the men who hired them the terms of employment. The directors, generally men who never saw the plant, telegraphed the employee boss, the manager, a direction to refuse the demand for collective bargaining. There was only one reply the men could make. They made it. It was force—the strike. The last twenty-five years have been filled with strikes, which created waste and caused hate, which grew out of the refusal of Big Business to concede to men a right the law conferred on it, the right to organize.

Capitalistic Dupility.

When the cost of living forced men to ask for an increase in wages they were often met with the answer, "We can't afford it." The men could not afford to work longer for the wages they were getting, because they were unable to make both ends meet. The pay envelope was not large enough. The men pointed to the fact that the answer given by capital was not true. To show their good faith the capitalists told the general public, "We are only making 3 per cent on our capital; men who loan money get 5 per cent." They did not tell the people they were receiving 3 per cent on $500,000,000, while the real capital invested was only $100,000,000. The sweat of men was being used to pay dividends on $400,000,000. If the dividends earned were distributed over the capital actually invested, $100,000,000, the profits would have been shown in their true light. The reasonableness of the demand of the men would have been disclosed. It was a case of crooked capitalization, lying to protect its ill-gotten gains. Big Business needs ethics—Captains of Industry need ideals.

Let me repeat: the law left the men helpless. They had only one course—Fight, Strike! Strikes cause great public inconvenience. The people smarting under hardships condemn and blame the strikers. Strikes have another effect that is even worse. They harden hate into a concrete class feeling. Strikes are responsible for the attitude of mind of many working men today who say, "I will do as little work as possible for the money I get." It is a vicious circle of hate. Co-operation is made impossible, confidence is destroyed, trust killed; the chasm between employer and employee is widened and deepened. A final consequence of these physical and psychological effects is the tendency towards riot. The strike is a training school. It develops hate. It creates lawlessness, idleness, hunger, hate, irritation, disregard of law which, when combined and concentrated, make Revolutions.

The seed of unrest is planted.

High School Class Play
The Senior Class of the Carrizozo High School classes, will at the close of the present school year, present Longfellow's “Evangeline.” Only a few years ago was this beautiful poem put into dramatic form. The author, Mary O'Reilly of Chicago, had many difficulties in making the dramatization. Chief among these was the inequality of the distribution of the dramatic situations in the poem. However, Longfellow's words were used wherever possible. Besides these points, there were incidents told in narrative, character development shown, and a general spirit pervading the poem which are preserved, at the time same time giving due consideration to dramatic effect.

“Evangeline” was published in 1847. With the exception of “Excelsior” and “Psalm of Life” it has been translated into more languages than any other of Longfellow's poems. The French Province of Acadia received its name from Henry IV. of France, who, in 1603, granted a commission to colonize what is now Nova Scotia and neighboring lands. The territory included in the original charter extended south as far as Philadelphia. In 1621 a charter was granted by the English Government which included the same territory. The disputed claim was a source of continual strife between the colonists until settled by the treaty of Paris in 1763. The French settlers of Canada continually incited the Indians to hostilities against the English, but those French settlers of the country about the Bay of Fundy, known as Acadians, were a home-loving simple and industrious people who enjoyed an abundance as the fruits of their labor.

When the French and Indian War broke out the English tried to compel the Acadians to take the oath of allegiance to the British Government. This they refused to do. At the same time the British authorities would not allow them to join the French. In 1755 it was decided to transport the small body of Acadians and scatter them among the English colonies from Massachusetts to Georgia. This act was considered the most atrocious in Colonial history, as the cruel manner in which it was done admits of no defence, as families were separated never to be reunited. Longfellow says, “Friendless, homeless, helpless, they wandered from city to city.” The same old saying means “bringing glad news.” The descendants of this unfortunate family are still living in northern Maine. Everyone should read the story before seeing the play. This is a historical play. The best of characters will come to life to the public.
