OLDEST AND LEADING NEWSPAPER IN CIRCULATION IN THE COUNTY OF LINCOLN, NEW MEXICO

VOLUME 21

CARRIZOZO, LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, MAY 7, 1920

NUMBER 19

The Bloodless Fall of Juarez

CARRANZA REMAINS IN REBEL
Washington.—Relief was shown in both government circles and by revolutionary agents here today when it became known that Juarez, Mexico, where revolutionary fighting has always been a potential danger, was taken by the rebels without fighting.

Until now the rebels have succeeded in taking Carranza almost half of his territory without battle, but military men who have watched developments of the revolution assume a few stubborn contests probable. Mexican agents here persisted in the assertion that further cases of government troops declining battle will hasten the struggle.

Occupation of Juarez makes it possible, in the opinion of American military men, for the rebel leaders to divert their Sonora forces to a route southward from Chihuahua toward Torreon.

Possession of Torreon gives its holder an advantage operating eastward through Coahuila to Saltillo and Monterey, away to the south.

Carranza's strength in Coahuila his own state appears to be almost unimpaired, but in the adjoining state of Nuevo Leon, Andrew Almban and minor rebels have made progress south and west of Matamoros, at the south of Ruidre Grand.

With rebels on the east and west, the only outlet to the American border left the Mexican government is through Laredo and Eagle Pass. American officers do not believe Carranza will be forced to surrender or run for a considerable period of time despite the progress of the rebels.

Washington.—Secretary Daniels today said that additional warships would be sent to the east coast of Mexico "if they were needed."

El Paso.—An attempt to revolt against the Carranza government was made last night at Ojinaga, Chihuahua, by Colonel Salinas, commander of the force, but the loyal part of the garrison, according to a telegram received by A. R. Sandoval, acting consul general for the Carranza government, refused to revolt.

El Paso, Texas, May 3.—Juarez joined the rebellion in Mexico at 2 p. m. today. Revolutionary troops entering the city were acclaimed amid wild scenes of joy, bands playing and the populace crying "viva Obregon."

Agua Prieta, Son., May 3.—Advance forces of General Alvaro Obregon, revolutionary leader operating in southern Mexico, have reached Texcoco, four miles from Cuantlad, a suburb of Mexico City, according to an announcement made this afternoon by Juan Rico, of the publicity staff of the revolutionary army of the northwest, with headquarters here.

General Obregon's forces reached Texcoco yesterday, routing the federal troops there, according to Senor Rico. General Obregon himself is at Cuantlad, Morelos, organizing his forces in Morelos and Guerrero for a concerted drive upon the Mexican capital.

The federal forces at Texcoco numbered about 1,000 men, under the command of General Manuel W. Gonzalez; it was said at military headquarters here.

El Paso, Texas, May 3.—The

The U. S. Navy was Ready

From Admiral Sims' charges that at the beginning of the war the United States Navy was in a state of inefficiency and unpreparedness, Admiral Mayo and Admiral Rodman wholly dissent, observes the New York World. Both are exceptionally qualified to give expert testimony. Both were on sea service during the war, while Admiral Sims was stationed at London in charge of operations abroad. Admiral Mayo was in command of the Atlantic Fleet, and Rodman commanded the squadron of battle-ships attached to the British North Sea Fleet.

Equally to the point is the answer of Admiral H. B. Wilson, Commander in Chief of the Atlantic Fleet, to Admiral Sims' criticisms of the Navy Department's conduct of the war. He declares that the active fleet never was better prepared for war than in April, 1917, and that the Navy Department energetically co-operated with the Allies from the moment war was declared. The navy's accomplishments in the war, he says, "deserve the commendation of the nation, for they were so stupendous as to make relatively unimportant any mistakes."

Disagreement among experts is always to be expected. In the navy it is inevitable that they should divide into opposing camps, whether on the subject of guns, armament, plans for new construction or general policy. It is unfortunate for Admiral Sims that in the controversy he has carried on so aggressively he should have found so little support among officers of high rank.

But after all, navy officers testifying before the Senate investigating committee have given their personal opinions. The main issue remains unchanged. As a proof of its efficiency, the United States Navy conveyed nearly 2,000,000 troops to Europe without losing a man. In that fact the American people have reason to remember its service with pride, whatever mistakes of detail may have been made.

County School Budgets

Santa Fe, N. M., May 5.—Twenty-four of the state's twenty-nine county school superintendents met here yesterday with state school superintendent Wagner to discuss the school budgets for the coming year, soon to be submitted to the boards of county commissioners. As a result of the meeting a uniform budget form will be used in every county in the state, giving in detail every requisition for funds for every school purpose. The use of this budget form will permit county boards and taxpayers to know at a glance what each item of expense is for. School transportation, school sanitation, heating and questions of playground equipment, etc., were discussed at length but the principal work was devoted to teachers' salaries. The superintendents made it plain that increased efficiency is to be required with increased pay, and that advances in salaries will not be permitted to place a premium on inefficiency. A scale of salaries ranging from $55 a month for third grade teachers to $120 a month for experienced first grade teachers was generally agreed to.

The Picacho Test Well

Most of the test wells going down all over the State, run into trouble from time to time, through one cause or another. The Cox well in the Tularosa Basin and the McGee well near Tucumcari, for instance, both of which were well engineered. The Exploration company's test well, near Picacho, is no exception. Everything went along smoothly until the drill reached about 800 feet, when boulders, something unusual at that depth, were encountered. This meant a shut-down for some time. In the meantime a new driller was given charge. He disapproved of the diameter of the hole, with the result that the drill was withdrawn, and the diameter of the hole increased six inches. The drill has now passed the old mark, and is going down steadily night and day, and those most interested in the test are well pleased with the progress being made, and the prospects of eventually striking an oil pool.

The Southwestern's Well

A report to the News relative to the drilling at the Southwestern-Tularosa Basin Oil company's well is to the effect that the drill is going down at a rate of 40 or 50 feet per day. In a few weeks it is hoped to obtain a depth of 1800 feet where geologists look for the first showing of oil. The showing of gas was recently so strong that the forge with its flame was moved further from the well as a matter of precaution.

The Southwestern Leasing Company, an associated company with the drilling company, has recently leased upwards of 26,000 acres of state land near the present drilling site.

Wait No Longer

Do not put off till next year the building that might be started this spring, is, in short, the advice given to prospective builders and investors concerned about building by Alled E. Beals, secretary of the Dow Service Daily Building Reports. Building costs are excessively high, but this expert insists that nothing is to be gained by waiting unless one is prepared to wait five years or more. Even though the price peak of materials may be reached in less time than that, it seems to this authority on the building market that there will be a high price level either at or above the present prices which will be maintained for a long time. So the best thing for the builder to do is to start his plans at once instead of waiting until next year and finding that prices are still higher.—Literary Digest.

"Evangeline"

Do not forget the Senior Class Play next Monday and Tuesday nights, May 10th and 11th. The play is a beautiful classic of Longfellow's, full of love and pathos, fine sentiment and wholesome maxims. The proceeds will be used for some beautiful remembrance to be left to the school. It is a very worthy purpose. Give the school your patronage and good will. Every seat is a reserved seat and you do not have to go to the Crystal Theatre an hour or two before the play commences in order to get a seat. If you are an hour late your seat is there for you, but the same as if you

The New Mexico Oil Fields

Tucumcari, May 1.—The McGee well is now drilled to the depth of over 3,900 feet, has over 1000 feet of water in the hole according to the head driller. It is not known whether the drill has struck the vein of water or whether it comes into the hole from seepage. Mr. McGee says that he does not intend to raise off the water at the present time, until its source can be found. It is rumored that this well may go to a depth of 5,000 feet in order to give the well a thorough test, unless oil is found at a lesser depth.

Santa Fe, May 3.—Before July 1, it is authoritatively said, drilling for oil will be commenced on Lieutenant Governor Benjamin F. Pankey's Caja del Rio ranch, not very far from the city of Santa Fe. This ranch is now under lease to the Mid-Continent Oil and Gas company, of Kansas City, and this company has made the contract for the drilling of the well. The selection of the site for drilling will be made by H. J. O'Connell, geologist for the company. It is believed that within a period of one year some ten or more wells will be drilled by this company. It now holds under lease approximately 1,000,000 acres of New Mexico land.

Progress in Mexico

While it was probably too much to expect that the Mexican presidential campaign would culminate in the orderly election of President Carranza's successor, true friends of our revolution-ridden neighbors will find cause for genuine rejoicing in the fact that the latest revolt is much less bloody than any that have preceded it. Gradually the Mexicans seem to be getting away from the idea that the best way to get rid of a political adversary is to kill him, and it is cheering to note that Senor Arturo de la Huerta, who has been invested with the supreme power over in Sonora, has issued orders that there must be no death penalties meted out to captive Carrancistas. In Juarez, likewise, the new order seems to prevail. The officers who were so loyal to Carranza that their allegiance to the Obregon faction could not be obtained were permitted to leave town before the date set for the revolt. In other days, not so long distant, they would have been cast into prison and some, as a matter of routine, would have faced the firing squad.

This newspaper has never had any particular love for Carranza, nor have we ever had any quarrel with General Obregon, who seems fated to be the next occupant of the presidential chair in the ancient capital of the Montezumas. If General Obregon can bring peace to Mexico he will be entitled to the gratitude of Americans for, after all, the United States has only one desire as far as Mexico is concerned, and that is for the early restoration of tranquility and orderly government.

While the Obregon triumph is by no means an accomplished fact, the movement is fast spreading over the country, garrison after garrison in important places is quietly turning over to the new government, and there is plenty of reason for the belief that the end of the present month will see the end of the Carranza regime.

The Town Council

The outgoing town council met last Monday evening, and turned its books and business over to the new council. All old and new members were present. The new council was duly installed and given the oath of office, after which the council adjourned. The new council comprises: A. J. Rolland mayor; S. L. Squier, F. E. Richard, J. M. Taylor and Ben Lujan, trustees. W. W. Stadman, clerk.

District Court

The district court has been running steadily for two weeks, and will probably last another week. The criminal docket is light, no serious cases. The civil docket is heavy, and occupied most of the court's time so far. There are a number of cases on the criminal docket set for next week, some as late as the 14th, which means another full week of court. The cases mostly has to do with cattle stealing, illegal branding, etc.

A Fruit Grower's Opinion

Fred Phingsten, conceded the most progressive farmer on the Nogal Mesa, but now a fruit grower on the Lower Bonito, was in Carrizozo this week, with business before the probate court. In an interview with the News, he stated that the fruit on the Lower Hondo and Pecos Valley was killed beyond question, but there would be sufficient fruit raised in the mountain valleys of Lincoln county for home consumption, and some to ship to the Pecos valley. While frosts occur every night in the hills, fruits trees blossom two weeks later than in the lower valley, and unless hail storms occur the prospects are encouraging for a fair crop of apples, some pears, and an average crop of cherries. Pearmaines and other early blossoming varieties of apples were "knocked" last month.

Mother's Day

Next Sunday, May 9, will be observed as "Mother Day." The observance of the day that every-

Novelty Models in Spring Hats

Liberal coats of lacquer are applied to every sort of fabric for millinery use, frayed out horsehair cloth and violently thrusting feathers via with gayly dyed raffia and spun glass. There are not so many monkey hair scalp locks as during the winter season, notes a prominent fashion writer, but their place is taken by turbans of intricate design. Chinese hats have imitation queues dangling from their crowns and Egyptian hats have colorful earrings dangling from each side, while naive fruits, flowers and vegetable decorations decorate hats of every description.

The first, if not the last, word of any talk about early spring hats is news of the waxed and varnished fabrics which are so prominently in evidence. Beginning with that curious substance cellophane, which is confuted into so many forms, everything glitters, ribbon, satin, feathers and straw. Cellophane, as a brand in rather wide strips, resembles a flat, shiny straw, but there are many genuine straw braids which are treated to a highly polished finish.

Raffia, which is used so extensively in a decorative way, is also finely shredded and varnished until it appears like a delicate, silky floss, of which draped turbans are made and veiled with tulle. Another strange fabric, spun glass, twisted and as tough as wire, is made use of in a similar manner.

No End to the Unique. But there is no end to the unique and interesting substances which French milliners have been experimenting with in these early hats, whether to eke out a scarcity of straw, to distract attention from a lack of originality in design, or merely from caprice, it is impossible to say. How greater numbers later in the season. At the same time there are many satin hats and hats of fallie and taffeta combined with straw.

Ribbon-hats are having a great success, and the ribbon is used in many interesting and amusing ways, among them the fashioning of it into wings. Both silk and velvet ribbon are woven into a plaided fabric with strips of cellophane, and a clever little hat with a narrow upturned brim is concocted of alternate strips of ribbon and straw, which are twisted slightly on the crown and terminate at the top in a crisply tied ribbon bow.

The Egyptian influence. The only new note in line is provided by the Egyptian influence, so much talked of. In so far as hats are concerned, the Egyptian inspiration has rather attractive results, which are only possible with the hair bunched out over the ears according to the prevailing fashion. This balances the thrusting out of the hat brim over the ears and its characteristically flattened front.

The line is accentuated by spreading wings, by clumps of flowers and in a rather spectacular manner by large pendant-glittering ornaments resembling earrings. In a general way any hat which points out over the ears confesses Egyptian inspiration, a hat which is draped with a gracefully flung back veil inherits from the Spanish and a hat with a peaked crown acknowledges Chinese influence.

The hat brim-turned back from the face has found so much favor with women of all sorts and conditions that it is still a feature of the vast majority of the new hats, whether their brims are broad or only as high wide many of them will find permanent favor and last over into the normal spring hat season will develop later.

Use Fruit and Vegetables. Large turbans are not unusual, and all manner of little toques and berets have made their appearance in their accustomed manner. Among these are extraordinary embroideries in brightly dyed straws and applied silken figures, the latter outlined with a gray Chinese cord. A curious decoration makes a thing of wonder of a soft full beret in gray blue ratine. The color is produced by sprinkling the surface with pears, peaches, plums and cherries in soft yellow leather, painted in the most realistic manner by hand. The vines and leaves which connect these products of the orchard are worked in colored raffia.

Contrary to the usual practice, the early spring models are frequently flower trimmed, and extraordinary fruits and even vegetables are to find favor, the latter of course on sport hats. Large flat flowers are applied to the entire surface of a hat or flower petals may decorate the upturned brim. Little rosebuds border a close fitting toque of blue straw and two discs and solidly packed with roses over the ears, thus proclaiming itself an Egyptian hat.

The remarkable flowers and fruits which trim the spring hats are made by hand of bits of silk and velvet. Wheat and grapes are made of shot taffeta and velvet plumes of natural size and coloring are arranged with sprays of wheat and small velvet flowers to produce a subtle and lovely bit of color. A huge pink silk rose with foliage and a long soft stem is frequently the only decoration of which a hat can boast.

PROBLEMS FACING STRICKEN WORLD

Shall Chaos or Reconstruction in Europe Follow the Great World War?

HOPE FOR PERMANENT PEACE

Those Who Fought, and Those Who Suffered at Home, Alike Favor Some Form of a League of Nations.

Article X.

By FRANK COMERFORD.

Europe was succumbing to exhaustion when the war came to an end. The terrible waste was telling. Endurance had reached the breaking point. With peace one thought ran around the world: There must be no more war. The men who did the fighting said it loudest.

"I'm glad I had a chance to do my part—I wouldn't have missed the show for a million dollars, and I wouldn't take a million dollars to go through it again," is the way they put it. Everywhere in Europe I heard, "It is over, it is finished, thank God."

The first thought of reconstruction was a plan to make peace permanent. The laboratory and the machine shop gave to this war a terrible meaning. New agencies had been introduced to kill and maim men, liquid fire, mustard gas, high explosives, bombs from the clouds, torpedoes from the sea depths. The world was horrified. The length of the war, the number of dead and crippled, the ridding and bombing of defenseless cities taught the world that an end must be put to war if civilization was to live.

So the people, particularly the working people, look back when a League of Nations was suggested as a means of enforcing peace. They placed their hopes in it. They had suffered most from the war. The dead were largely their dead. The returning cripples were blood of their blood. As they put it, they were from their class. Of course the sons of the other class fought, shared the hardships, paid the price, but they were few. The group from which they came is small, while the toll of casualties from labor's ranks was large.

All men know that controversies between nations are ineradicable. In the absence of some scheme of arbitration there is but one way that these controversies can be settled. It is force—war.

It is not uncommon for individuals to have serious differences of opinion. Every lawsuit, and there are thousands of them in every city of every country, represents a difference of opinion. If we did not have courts providing a peaceful determination of these disputes, the litigants would be compelled to settle their differences by force. Assault and battery would succeed orderly procedure. Nations have been without a peaceful means of adjusting their difficulties, and as a consequence they have been compelled to resort to force. Until some scheme of arbitration is created, to talk peace is to waste words, to hope for it is idle dreaming.

Peace Conference Fell Short.

The peace conference met in Paris. Labor watched it. At an early stage in its proceedings "League" was discovered at work. Wrangling, bickering, bargaining and trading for commercial advantage occupied the time and thought that the world expected would be devoted to the building up of a league that would at least decrease the chances of future wars. Statesmen in their blind devotion to expediency lost sight of the great reason for the conference. They talked of boundary lines, discussed frontiers, and always from the point of view of financial and military advantage to their respective countries. It was noticed that the territories over which they quarreled were rich in minerals or some other thing of great commercial advantage. They squabbled over spoils. Then, too, those men who were supposed to be concerned in the future peace of the world, in arguing over frontiers urged their respective claims as the grounds that their respective countries needed these frontiers to make them secure in future wars. What future wars and why the discussion of future wars at a conference, the object of which was future peace?

Working men watched, listened and thought. They construed these bickerings and wranglings as evidence of the fact that there is an interest in the world which does not believe in giving up force. I am only reporting the truth when I add they suspect this interest is Capital.

If the League of Nations fails this suspicion will be confirmed. The movement toward an internationalism of the workers will be given great impetus. The League of Nations failing, they argue there is only one other means of preventing war. It is for the men who make up the rank and file of the armies in time of war, the millions recruited from shops, factories and fields, to get together and organize an international labor organization.

one class in the world a power as great as political governments would be puppets in their hands, and yet in the light of the happenings of the last five years labor could not be blamed. The world is entitled to protection against such slaughter as we have just gone through, and if the political governments fail to take the necessary steps the plain people will.

World New Closely Knit.

Internationalism is coming—in fact it is already here. Inventions have brought the people of the world close together. The wireless and the cable give us the happenings of remote parts of the world in a few hours. Distance has been destroyed. We are becoming neighbors in knowledge of each other, whether we live on the same continent or not. Modern transportation is shortening the time between places. An air service is in prospect which promises to make London as near New York tomorrow as Chicago is today.

We already have a successful internationalism in finance and credit. Big business long ago obliterated national lines. The commerce of the world is already organized internationally.

The important question at this time is what form will the new internationalism take? Will it be an internationalism of organized dollars? If so, the world is in serious danger of a financial autocracy. Will it be an internationalism of organized labor? If this happens it means the dictatorship of the proletariat. Both are equally undesirable. No part of the people should be permitted to enforce their will upon the rest. One kind of slavery is as bad as another. The great majority of the human race wants freedom, not advantage. It is not ambitious to dictate—it will not be dictated to.

A League of Nations is the solution. It is a union of the nations of the world, and as the nations of the world represent all the people of the various states such a combination is democratic. That it is necessary is plain. Rivalry for markets, competition for trade, are bound to lead to war unless we have an agreement that these and other problems will be submitted to arbitration. It is not necessary to submit questions involving national honor. Few of such questions ever directly provoke war. It is when nations fighting each other for markets reach a point of positive disagreement that they begin calling each other names. These insults wound honor, war results.

Peace Table Proves Worth.

A League of Nations is a continuance of the peace table, and notwithstanding the wranglings of the present peace table there would have been war in Europe before this if it was not sitting in Paris. Two cases serve to illustrate. The coal fields of upper Silesia, to be determined by a plebiscite between Poland and Germany would have been a cause of war if the peace table was not in existence. Poland had troops on the border. Germany had her soldiers at the frontier. One thing, and one thing alone, prevented war—it was the fear of the peace table. The same facts described the controversy between Poland and Czechoslovakia; war has been avoided by the peace table submitting the Techen question to a vote of the people of the territory.

No League of Nations will, have much effect upon the future peace of Europe which does not include the United States. The nations of Europe do not trust each other. Every one respects the fact that the United States does not seek territory in Europe. This gives our country the commanding place as the one disinterested power in the world. With this moral force we can do much to maintain the peace of the world.

TAXES IN GERMANY HEAVY

Individuals Are Beginning to Feel That Country Really Suffered Defeat in the War.

The individual German has not begun to feel the peace terms, financially.

During the war the Germans have been leaning their money to the government. This year they have begun to give it.

There is an estate tax graduated as to size and as to relationship. It imposes the heaviest tax on the largest inheritance from the most distant relatives.

A peculiar feature of this law, illustrating its severity, is a provision that in no case may the tax exceed the amount of the inheritance taxed. No man could own more "spite money" which would compel the recipient to pay more than he got, anyhow.

An income tax ranges to about 70 per cent as the income grows.

LESS MEAT IF BACK AND KIDNEYS HURT

Take a Glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers You.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys; they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders. Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.—Adv.

What Neighbors Say

Walden, Colo.—"I am glad to add my testimony to the record. Dr. J. C. Fletcher's Auscic Tablets have done for me. I can now carry my life and I can be instrumental in helping others I will feel well repaid. My kidneys and bladder were in very bad condition for a long time and got worse every day. I used one bottle of a well-known kidney medicine without any result, then I took two bottles of another remedy and used them but got worse every day. I was in terrible shape, was disturbed eight to twelve times in a night and suffered excruciating pain and there would be a thick brown sediment. I was desperate. At last I saw 'Auscic' advertised in a Kansas City paper and I thought I just suited my case so I sent to Dr. J. C. Fletcher's Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for a trial package, which cost me $1.00. I had been a sufferer at night and felt much better in the morning and by the second morning I didn't feel any pain at all when voiding the kidney secretion. In a week there was no sediment in the water, and it has been normal ever since. This is 12 months ago, therefore it would be hard to make the claim for 'Auscic' too strong."—G. L. BUNDY.

Down in southern Oklahoma, after the cotton crops are laid by, it is the custom of the colored population to hold big camp meetings. # WASHINGTON GOSSIP

Official Washington as Franklin K. Lane Sees It

WASHINGTON.—Official Washington, "a combination of political caucus, drawing-room and civil service bureau," containing "statesmen who are politicians and politicians who are not statesmen," is poorly organized for its task, which "fewer men of larger capacity would do better."

THOUGHT AND FEELS IN MIND

Such is an epitome of the views of Franklin K. Lane, retiring secretary of the interior, expressed in a characteristic parting report to the president on the occasion of leaving public life after more than twenty years' service—the last seven in the cabinet.

"Washington," says the retiring secretary, "is rich in brains and character. It is honest beyond any comparison. Fewer men of larger capacity would do the task better. Ability is not lacking, but it is pressed to the point of paralysis because of an infinitude of details and an unwillingness on the part of the great body of the public servants to take responsibility. Everyone seems to be afraid of everyone."

"We could save money for the government if we had more discretion as to how we should use that given us. For the body of the civil servants there should be quicker promotion or discharge and a sure insurance when disability comes. For the high administrative officers there should be salaries twice as high as those now given, and they should be made to feel that they are the department; the head being merely an adviser and a constructor of policies."

Abraham Lincoln's "Lost Speech" on Washington

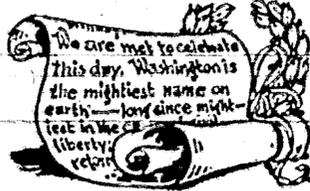

THIS is the one hundred and tenth anniversary of the birthday of Washington. We are met to celebrate this day. Washington is the mightiest name on earth—long since mightiest in the cause of civil liberty, still mightiest in moral reformation. On that name a eulogy is expected. It cannot be. To add brightness to the sun or glory to the name of Washington is alike impossible. Let none attempt it. In solemn awe pronounce the name, and in its naked, deathless splendor leave it shining on."

Abraham Lincoln said these words in Springfield, Ill., in 1842. The Associated Press sent it out recently as a "lost speech" by Lincoln, just discovered in a file of the Sangamon Journal. Many newspapers ran it on the first page. Representative Smith of Idaho had it read in the house, and not one of the 435 members had anything to say.

A few days later Smith of Idaho got unanimous consent to make an explanation and said in part:

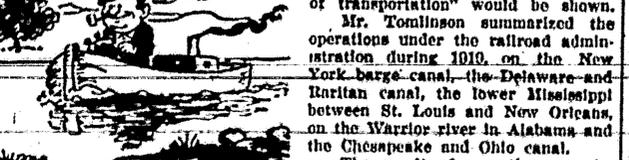

"Mr. Lucien Alexander of Philadelphia who discovered it, says this: Hay and Nicolay, and also Ida Tarbell, missed it, and so have all of Lincoln's biographers, so far as I can discover. "On inquiry I find, that not only this portion of Mr. Lincoln's address was printed in the Nicolay and Hay history, but the entire address delivered on that particular occasion. It has also appeared in other histories of Lincoln and in certain magazines. I therefore ask unanimous consent, in the interest of historical accuracy, that this portion of the Record of that day be excluded from the permanent Record."

But the "Lost Speech" stays in.

Urges Farther Development of Canals of Nation

URGING a thorough experiment in the development of the inland waterways of the country, G. A. Tomlinson, director of the division of inland waterways of the railroad administration, in his annual report to Director General Hines, declared that "a complete economic justification for these methods of transportation" would be shown.

Mr. Tomlinson summarized the operations under the railroad administration during 1919, on the New York barge canal, the Delaware and Raritan canal, the lower Mississippi between St. Louis and New Orleans, on the Warrior river in Alabama and the Chesapeake and Ohio canal.

The result of operations on the New York barge canal, the report said, substantiates the assumption that as soon as modern power barges now under construction are placed in service this waterway will become profitable.

On the lower Mississippi river the report put the cost of handling freight at from 96 cents to $1 a ton, the defective character of existing facilities and equipment necessitating expenditures of more than $65,000. The total local movement, both northbound and southbound, amounted to 96,325 tons, on which the average earnings amounted to $3.64 a ton.

Sees Wild Rice as Coming Food Crop in America

NEITHER the plow, the shovel nor the hoe is essential to one of the most important food crops in America today, according to Dr. Melvin R. Gilmore, curator of the North Dakota Historical society, who emphasizes the potential value of wild rice or "manak oats."

Dr. Gilmore is engaged in an investigation of North American possibilities in cultivation of native plants. One of his recent announcements relative to the food value of the water lily, genus "Nelumbo lutea," commonly known as the American lotus, has resulted in varied inquiries from the commercial world.

"Wild rice will flourish in any sweet water, water not alkaline," the investigator states. "It abounds in fresh water from a few inches to several feet deep. In its native state it sows itself and has thus become abundant in sections throughout the continent, particularly in the northern lake region. Although it is on the market to some extent, it is receiving by no means the attention it deserves from the American people as a whole."

"The Indians considered wild rice a food factor so vital that it was worth fighting for. The Chippewas pushed the Dakotas out of the Minnesota lake region in order to procure the rice fields."

By increasing the wild rice supply, the fish supply also would be increased, since it is a favorite food of water fowl. The biological survey at Washington is actively interested because of its value as food for ducks and water fowl.

Magnetism.

In October, 1818, Napoleon Bonaparte landed at St. Helena, a perpetual exile. For six years he listened to the sea-mew's call, in exchange for the thunder of subversive cannon. His name still shook the world, and kings looked startled in his conversation with ministers. The great Corsican, twisted between oceans, uttered as a the awe that the funeral cortege awakened as it swept from ocean to ocean, and with the dying words of the shaker of continents, "I desire that my ashes repose in the heart of the people which I have so loved" gave those sacred remains to France?

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promise of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it. A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years, and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills at least every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism. You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. ### CITY PEOPLE "EASY MARKS"

Many Bestowed Alms on Beggar for Whom Lusty Youth Was Engaged in "Barking."

Since efficiency is finding its way into all business one of the oldest "professions" of all has begun to adopt modern methods. The innovation is due to a beggar who made his stand opposite one of the subway entrances along the Williamsburg bridge approach on Delancey street, the New York Evening Sun states.

Many who passed this spot recently were struck by the appearance of this beggar, an elderly, long-bearded man, who sat huddled up in a wheel chair.

Alongside was a husky youth of nineteen or so, busily engaged in "barking" for the beggar. Secretly the latter must have thought it a good joke on the alms-giving public, for there was always a smirk on his face, as his friend shouted so none should neglect to drop a coin in the beggar's lap. His "spiel" was in Yiddish, which, roughly translated into English, would be: "Stop! Give charity, people." Many who ought to have known better stopped and gave.

COMMON ANCESTOR TO BLAME

Unlucky "Apple" is a Legacy Bequeathed to His Posterity by Old Father Adam.

We all "have it in" for Adam for shutting to our faces the gates of the Garden of Eden. But many of us, though we may not know it, bear a particular resemblance to this common ancestor that puts another chip on the shoulder. For it is generally conceded that an "Adam's apple" is no aid to beauty. And besides making of our Paradise a cold, bare world, it is Adam who inflicted upon us this additional burden. When our common progenitor took the fatal bite that forever doomed the rest of us to existence by the sweat of our brows, a piece of the fruit is supposed to have lodged in his throat and stuck there in his children's children unto the nth generation. And that is why the slight protuberance that some people have at the front of the throat is called "Adam's apple." Speaking of ancestry, some of us carry about on our persons unmistakable proof of our ancient lineage.—Chicago Journal.

The Present Congress Has A Sorry Record

Washington, D. C. - Only about thirty working days remain of this session of Congress, if the plan of the Republican leaders for a recess or adjournment early in June is followed.

Three or four appropriation bills must yet be considered by both the House and Senate; the House Ways and Means Committee is endeavoring to formulate a program for adjustment of the pay of returned soldiers; the House Committee on Immigration is considering the advisability of adding to the restrictions of the existing immigration law, and the Senate has before it the proposal to create a budget system. This is about all the work it appears Congress will attempt to dispose of.

Granting that budget legislation will be approved and that a bill for adjusted compensation for soldiers will get through, the record for thirteen months of this Congress will be:

Passed annual appropriation measures, which must be enacted yearly for the Government to function and which should not require more than two months of the time of any Congress.

Passed railroad bill, which actually held the attention of Congress as a whole about ten days.

Budget legislation, which should not require more than two weeks.

Soldier adjusted compensation legislation, which should require not more than one week.

In all, the work done by this Congress should not have required more than five months of real and sincere effort. But thirteen months of Congress, divided in two sessions, will have been required to pass this legislation.

Of course, the Congressional Record will be filled with discussions of private bills, etc., but it will be "quantity record," and is really a record of problems avoided and of almost complete success in the plan to do nothing. This was the plan of the Republican leaders when this session was convened, because of the desire, for partisan reasons, to postpone consideration of all important matters until after the November election.

From good Republican authority comes the admission that the Congress has done nothing. In a speech on the floor of the House recently, Representative Fuller, of Massachusetts, expressed the fervent wish that his party might be cured from the attack of "sleeping sickness" which he declared it has suffered from ever since it came into control of both branches of Congress. He declared that it has done nothing constructive, but had devoted the larger part of its time to criticism of the President.

The four months of 1920 shows a record of nearly 17,500 motor vehicle licenses issued by the secretary of state. This is within about 500 of the total number issued in 1919, which was just a little over 18,000.

Any Wheel Which Does Not Pull Equally With the Others Acts as a Brake

Look again at the drawing! You see four factors necessary in keeping the Big Wheel of continuous telephone service revolving at the proper speed. This Big Wheel must turn smoothly to grind out its daily grit of 80,000,000 calls over 11,788,747 telephones, of which 7,000,000 are Bell-owned.

Industrial progress depends more each day on the telephone to destroy space, save time and increase the efficiency of every worker in every field.

Therefore, the responsibility of each smaller wheel within the Big Wheel increases daily.

It is the duty of the public to pay an adequate rate for adequate service, and to protect the employes supplying the service.

It is the duty of the employes to provide sufficient satisfactory service to the end that the public will pay rates necessary to support the business.

It is the duty of the owners to provide efficient management to operate the property honestly and fairly.

The management must co-ordinate the whole effort and conduct the business to the end that:

—the public receive sufficient, continuous and efficient service.

—the employes receive fair wages and protection against a sudden shutting-down of the industry. Their positions must be secure through lean and fat years.

—the owners who buy shares of stock receive a fair wage for their savings invested in the business. A stockholder provides money to expand the business which grows daily; he must receive a fair rate of interest on his money invested.

Therefore, the management represents the employes in dealing with the owners and the public; the management represents the owners and the public in dealing with the employes. The management must co-ordinate the effort of each smaller wheel to the end that the Wheel of Continuous Service revolve every hour of every day, every year, at the speed necessary to protect industrial progress.

THE MAN WAS MONSIEUR DE RAVENOL.

Synopsis—While in the little town of Vevay, where the "staid, proper spinster" who tells the story is spending a vacation, she is asked to allow a young girl, Claire de Ravenol, to be her companion back to the United States. Although forming an attachment to the girl, the heroine takes a dislike to Monsieur de Ravenol, Claire's father, and declines. On the boat she finds Claire in the care of a casual acquaintance, Mrs. Delario, whom she had met while she was purchasing a pair of slippers, exactly alike, which figure largely in subsequent events. When they reach New York, where Claire was to have been met by her mother, the latter does not appear, and Claire performs a feat of heroism in the confusion at the custom house, the spinster carries off one of Mrs. Delario's slippers. Through that happening she learns later that someone unknown to her has been in her flat. Calling on Mrs. Delario, that lady shows some remarkable gems, believing them to be rubies, but which are really blood-red diamonds, and easily worth a million dollars. Mrs. Delario admits the gems were smuggled, but offers no explanation. While they are talking, a pounding on the door throws them into consternation. The caller asserts he is an officer of the law, with a warrant for the arrest of Mrs. Delario's son on a charge of stealing the diamonds. She outfits him and persuades the spinster to take the gems to her home for safe keeping. Next morning, realizing the responsibility for possession of the diamonds, the spinster takes them back to Mrs. Delario, but while there she learns that the lady's son has been kidnapped, supposedly on account of the gems, and agrees to keep them for a while. She hides them in a bunch of hyacinths and has the lock of her door changed and a chain-bolt added. Over the telephone she informs Mrs. Delario that with an accident and urges her to call at once. Hastening to her friend, and leaving the gems, the heroine is met by De Ravenol, who claims the diamonds are his, stolen from Claire on the boat. He accuses Mrs. Delario of carrying the diamonds, and demands their return. She defies De Ravenol, who threatens her with a revolver, and escapes. Alarmed for her personal safety, and almost believing De Ravenol, the heroine fears to return to her flat, and while uncertain what to do meets an old-time friend, Billy Rivera, newspaper reporter. They spend the evening at a theater, and Rivera accompanies her home. There they find the flat has been thoroughly searched but nothing taken. She does not confide in Rivera. Next morning Mrs. Jimmison, washwoman and general caretaker, comes to do the weekly cleaning. The spinster has not dared to look if the diamonds are safe, and Mrs. Jimmison throws the faded bunch of hyacinths away. They are rescued in time, but before the spinster can look to see whether the diamonds are safe a telegram comes from her brother asking her to come to Philadelphia.

The third queer thing was that there was no business of mine he could be needing to see me about, and if it were business of his, he'd ask it as a favor. It was then that my eye slid up to the date and I saw it had been sent from New York. Well, if he were in New York, why hadn't he telephoned me or come up to the house?

I wish I could say it flashed over me instantly that this was a decoy designed to get me into monsieur's clutches, but it didn't flash at all—I thought it queer, and I was puzzled; but I am free to confess that if it had been an ordinary business man's message, I should have packed my suitcase, put the diamonds in my stocking, and taken the train specified. But while I was still wondering what my brother could be wanting me for in this preposterous way, Mrs. Jimmison brought me the special delivery letter, which, with triumph and pleasure in her face, she said she had found under the set tubs.

I pulled it out of the envelope and read:

"Madame was seen by two witnesses to carry away the package containing the jewels referred to. If madame desires to return them to their owner, telephone Hotel Imperial at 3 a. m. The owner gives madame this one opportunity to rectify her mistake without further trouble or publicity. Failure to comply with the request to telephone will prove madame's intentions and necessitate active measures for the recovery of the jewels."

"Oh, you don't say!" I sneered. "Well, I wonder what next!" And by that letter I knew I still had the diamonds!

So I was to telephone at nine o'clock! By rights—and monsieur's calculations—I should have received the letter before the first delivery; instead, it had come after and by accident I hadn't read it till noon. The telegram was timed nine forty-five.

It was then that I began to see through a hole in a stone. I had not telephoned—which proved I meant to keep the diamonds. My next move, obviously, would be to get them out of the city—to my brother's, of course. The telegram gave me the excuse for doing it; also told him by what train and station I should leave, for he had set them himself. But why had he set a day train? Why not one at night? It puzzled me at first until I saw his reason—I could disappear out of a day-light crowd about four times easier than out of a night crowd. Who would notice, among hundreds of women going through the Pennsylvania station, a woman as simply dressed as I, carrying a common suitcase? Probably no one.

I tore open the bunch of hyacinths. The diamonds were there. "Good Lord!" I said as I saw them. The things were a calamity.

I rolled them up again, but I must get a new bunch of hyacinths; I must do something—I must act—I must get the stones home to Mrs. Delario—I must at least ask her what she wanted done with them and tell her how unsafe they were with me.

I tried the telephone, but got no answer, and while I was clacking at it Mrs. Jimmison came home from the delicatessen and I had to hang up. While I ate, my mind went like a hammer. How could I get the diamonds out of the house? To whom could I entrust them? Not a living soul, so far as I could see—unless I could get them back to Mrs. Delario herself, which didn't seem likely in the present state of the case.

You see just how the man had me at his mercy. If I'd been a person accustomed to sneaking round and making quick getaways, I'd have known what to do and how to do it. In the next place, I hadn't the least idea of the number of people I was pitted against—the strength of the opposing forces. At that time, I hadn't the dimmest suspicion that he was playing practically a lone hand in the game and had only one hired detective and he didn't know what he was watching Mrs. Delario and me for. But as a result of my thinking, the idea came to me to find out if I were now watched and followed.

Telling Mrs. Jimmison to wait till I came back, and though it was raining hard, I went out for an investigatory walk around the block.

A man sat in the lower hall as I stepped out of the elevator. His back was toward the light of the front door. I think the devil himself must have got into me then; for without looking at Mr. Man, except the glance I gave him as I left the car, I walked straight into him and stepped on his toe, hard.

He said: "Ouch!"

"I said: 'Oh, my pardon! Did I hurt you very much?'"

"No—not very," he replied, and looked glum.

Now, I had calculated this way—to pass him in the act of stepping on him and make him turn when he answered me so the light would fall on his face. I got the look at him I wanted and went out.

I walked half a block and turned sharply in my tracks. Mr. Man was about twenty feet in the rear, following me. He began to limp the moment he saw me noticing him.

I walked past my house to the end of the block. As I turned north, I saw Mr. Man ambling along in my direction. I stepped into a series of slippers and bought a fresh bunch of hyacinths.

By the time I had them paid for, Mr. Man had reached the store and was looking in the window, pretending not to see me.

"Did I hurt you very much?" I asked sweetly.

"No—not very," he touched his hat and I thought he looked annoyed.

I sprang along ahead of him and turned at One Hundred and Forty-fifth street. I fancy Mr. Man had to do a little spry thing on his poor limping foot. I had vanished into a toy shop and was buying a doll for my niece when he discovered me—and pretended he didn't see me. He walked on ahead, but I caught up with him.

I sprang over and turned south on Amsterdam. There, I went into a stationery store and bought an ink eraser. Mr. Man passed the door and glanced in. I motioned him to wait, but he proceeded not to see. He was some distance ahead when I came out. I ran after him and caught up.

"Did I hurt you very badly?" I asked.

"No—not very," he answered, eying me narrowly. "I'm afraid you're giving yourself too much concern over a little accident." He was, I saw, beginning to wonder which of us was following which!

"No," said I quietly, "I'm not giving myself the least concern over your stepping on me—I'm simply noting it as an excuse to get a good look at you in various lights so I'll know you again in any possible disguise you may assume."

I have always regarded that episode—and those last words—as a stroke of genius on my part, if I do say it! It came to me on the spur of the moment without thinking about it, and nearly bowled Mr. Man over. Before he had decided what to say, or what to do to allay my suspicion of him, I bolted across the street, diagonally, ducked between two trolley cars, one of which hid me from view long enough for me to get into the corner drug store where I dashed into the telephone booth and called up Mrs. Delario.

I had considerable difficulty in getting her and I felt every second was precious. My detective mind was looking about somewhere looking for me, and I rather guessed she had one watching her. My suspicions seemed confirmed, for the moment she recognized my voice she said, "I can't talk to you," in a tragic determined sort of way and I felt her in the act of hanging up.

"Wait!" I shouted peremptorily. "Why can't you talk to me? Are you watched? Is everything you say overheard?"

"Yes."

"All right—then I'll do the talking. You can answer yes and no, can't you?"

"Yes."

"Well, we're both in the same boat—I'm watched too—followed by a detective. This is the first chance I've had to get you and I don't know how soon I'll be able to get you again. Is your house watched?"

"Yes."

"Could I run the blockade?"

"No!" This was fairly shouted at me.

"Is there any way I could get those articles back to you today?"

"No—none whatever now. No—not under any consideration."

"Couldn't you come up and get them?"

"No—of course not."

"Couldn't you send up?"

"Whom could I send? Impossible—totally impossible." Her tone was emphatic that I knew there was nothing to be hoped for in that quarter.

I felt she was about to ring off and leave me with that and shouted at her: "Here—hold on! I don't know what to do—you'll have to advise me."

"But I can't! You must do as you think best—you understand it."

"I don't! That's just the trouble. Listen. There are some things I've got to know about. You keep on answering yes and no—that isn't going to give anything away at your end, and I'm in a drug store and I don't think anything will get out from this end. . . . You knew I was at your house yesterday?"

"Yes—after you had left."

"You knew I was accused? And that I denied everything?"

"I thought it happened that way—I wasn't sure."

"Were you accused, too?"

"Yes."

"Of the same thing?"

"I presume so."

"You denied everything?"

"Absolutely."

"Now I really must know this—did you bring those articles in yourself?"

"Yes."

"You said a friend did."

"Well—I didn't feel I could explain at the time. There were circumstances connected with it—"

"At the time we crossed together—this last trip?"

"Yes. Can't you see how things have been worked? If I'd followed my intuitions, I shouldn't have allowed—"

"The girl to come with you?"

"Yes. It was planned."

"Wait! There's another thing I want to know."

"Tell me later."

"No—now. How did they get through?"

"I can't tell you."

"But I must know—it's a matter of great importance to me."

"One of those slippers we bought in Paris is lost."

"No it isn't—I have it. Please answer my question—how?"

"Good-by."

That was all. I couldn't get another word. She'd rung off. Just as I was trying to get her back, I saw Mr. Detective Man slip into the drug store. He saw me in the booth. Then he quickly slipped away again. I hung up and stepped out; but I looked back as I opened the street door—Mr. Detective Man was just sliding into the booth to find out what number I'd called!

I went quietly home feeling I had gained forward one step at least—Mrs. Delario had admitted her smuggling—which I didn't consider any of my affairs—and she had confirmed my suspicion that De Ravenol was trying to rob her. "All right, let's see him do it!" thought I but how—? she hadn't told him—and she said she hadn't—and of and my trip through the hall to the elevator was noiseless. The elevator was up, and as I heard it coming down I did not ring. I was standing with my back to the shaft, facing the door of the rear flat—I stood at most three feet away from that door.

Without the slightest sound of footsteps from the hall of the flat, that door opened—a man's face looked out—looked at me—and the door noiselessly closed.

It happened in a flash, so stealthily, that had my back been turned; had I been watching the descent of the car, I should have been none the wiser.

The man who opened the door was Monsieur De Ravenol.

I could not possibly be mistaken. The main hall light shone full on his face: He was hatless, and what was more—he recognized me and knew I had recognized him!

I was stupefied! The man was evidently living in the same house with me!

The rattling elevator recalled me to my senses as George, smiling and talkative, opened the door for me to get in. How much did George know? The car slid up.

"Who is the gentleman living in the rear flat?" I asked with as much concern as I could. "The French gentleman—foreigner—I don't know if he's French or what. What is his name?"

"His name?" George considered this past another floor, and I repeated the question.

"I don't know his name—he ain't been here long."

"When did he take the flat?"

"Well, how I don't know jes' which day it was, but it was before you come home—maybe two days, maybe a week, an' he ain't really moved in yet—only a bed an' some chairs. He've got furniture comin' from the other side an' he don't want to buy no more here than he can help."

"Naturally. Did he speak to you about me?" I put the question boldly as the car stopped at my floor. George hesitated and then admitted:

"Well, he did say he thinks he knows you." He appeared reluctant to discuss monsieur.

I broke out in a new line. "The gentleman is very rich, George. I hope he tipped you well."

George was instantly enthusiastic. "He done that! He gimme ten dollars."

"He's good for another ten, George, if you work him right," I affirmed. "Oh, you needn't be so shy! He asked you a lot of questions about me and you don't want me to know it. You told him everything you knew—"

"Well, that's right," George broke in sheepishly. "He did ask me some questions, but honest to goodness, I ain't tell him anything bad—I tell him I don't really know much about you. That's what I tell him, honest to goodness."

"He really paid you for telling him every time I went out or came in, didn't he?"

"But George was suspicious and on guard at once. He threw open the car door without answering.

"Oh, all right," said I carelessly, but not stepping out as I saw he wished me to. "You needn't give it away, but I know, all the same, so it doesn't matter whether you tell me or not."

"What you suppose he so particular to know fer?" asked George, ingeniously feeling he was guarding his secret while gratifying his curiosity.

"How should I know? Maybe he wants to hang fowers on my door. He's very nice, I understand."

George grinned, interested and sympathetic. He scented romance and it explained all to him as adequately as it had to Mrs. Jimmison.

I unlocked my door as quickly as I could—I didn't mean to let George think I attached any importance to monsieur. I knew enough. The man was a fellow tenant in the same house, in the flat directly under mine, and George was his paid spy. As I shut the door, I said myself, "What next?"

I had a fleeting idea of keeping Jimmison with me for the night; but I couldn't think of any explanation for so unusual a request. I could not take her into my confidence—if she stayed, I could hardly keep her out of it. She was anxious to go home—I saw that—and I didn't blame her; and I was anxious to be alone and think, and I felt only relief as I saw the last of her faded skimpy goods, her faded skimpy form, and I said good-by to her heartily, little realizing that she was the one human being who stood between me and monsieur's machinations, and that when she closed herself out, she closed me in—a prisoner.

She—Her car ran into a motorbus. Nothing very serious, only the enamel scraped off.

He—Her face or the machine?

Stupid!

Pete—Have you got any mail for me?

Postman—What's your name?

Pete—You'll find it on the envelope.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barba Compound, and 1/2 oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any drugist can get this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and will make harsh hair soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.

New Wireless Distress Call.

A novel wireless emergency device by which ships in distress can ring alarm bells on other ships within wireless range is reported by the American chamber of commerce in London. The present wireless system of communication requires that an operator to hear a call must be on duty, wearing the usual telephone headset. The new device is said to enable any station or ship equipped with a special automatic transmitter key to call up any station or ship within range, fitted with a corresponding receiver relay, even if the operator is absent. The calling up, according to the American chamber, is effected by a bell which starts ringing on the ships called.

It is claimed that one of the most important uses of the device will be to insure immediate and general attention to U. S. calls.

WHAT HE SHOULD HAVE SAID

Reporter Had Much to Learn About Proper Method of Referring to Different Speakers.

"I'm afraid you won't do for us," said the editor, controlling his temper with an effort, as he eyed the new reporter coldly.

"Why not, sir?" asked the reporter in surprise.

"Well, you said you had had considerable experience as a political reporter."

"So I have," retorted the scribe. "Then why on earth did you make use of such unjournalistic language in this report. You said that 'Mr. William Blank addressed the meeting.'"

"Well, isn't that right?"

"Right?" the editor's voice was torn with scorn. "It's all wrong. One would imagine that the meeting was in support of our candidate instead of the opposition."

"What difference does that make? How should I have—"

"Why, 'Bill Blank next harangued the mob,' of course."—London Answers.

It Comes High.

Ellis Root told at a dinner a prohibition story:

"It is astonishing," he said, "what a high value is placed on whisky, now that prohibition has come in."

"Two men were out sailing down in Florida. They had a bottle with them, and Jim was taking a drink when a gust of wind capsized the boat."

"Tom clung to the bottom of the craft all right, but Jim, handicapped by the bottle, was a good deal knocked about in the heaving waters."

"After a time his strength began to fail him, and, swimming with one hand and holding the bottle high with the other, he shouted, despairingly:

"Tom, I'm afraid I can't make it!"

"Tom shouted back: 'Well, Jim, if you can't make it, throw it!'"

If people like each other well enough they will argue. They're not afraid to.

Find Date Valuable Food.

Dates form the staple food of the Arabs in a large part of Arabia and are served in some form at every meal. Strip and vinegar are made from old dates, and by those who disregard the teachings of the Koran a kind of brandy is distilled from them. The date pit is ground and fed to the cows and sheep, so that nothing of the precious fruit may be lost. Whole pits are used as beads and counters for the Arab children in their games on the desert sand.

ESCAPED AN OPERATION

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Many Such Cases.

Cairo, Ill.—"Sometimes ago I got so bad with female trouble that I thought I would have to be operated on. I had a bad displacement. My right side would pain me and I was so nervous I could not hold a glass of water. Many times I would have to stop my work and sit down or I would fall on the floor in a faint. I consulted several doctors and every one told me the same but I kept fighting to keep from having the operation. I had read in my paper of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I began taking it. It helped my system as I began taking it. I have never felt better than I have since then and I know how and am able to do all my work. The Vegetable Compound is certainly one good medicine."

—Mrs. J. E. Matthews, 2811 Spycamore Street, Cairo, Ill.

Of course there are many serious cases that only a surgical operation will relieve. We freely acknowledge this, but the above letter, and many others like it, amply prove that many operations are recommended when medicine in many cases is all that is needed.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (conditional) Lynn, Mass.

THE SANDMAN STORY

THE FAIRIES' HOLIDAY.

ONE morning when Elsie got up she found it was raining very hard and that of course put an end to all that Elsie had planned for the day. She was to take her lunch with some other girls and their mothers and go to the park for a picnic. Elsie did not want any breakfast. She did not want to say good morning even. She was cross at everybody because it rained.

"I just think it is too mean for anything, this old rain to come and spoil our fun," she said.

"But, my dear, the park will be much sweeter and clearer after the rain," said her mother. "Be a good, cheerful little daughter and smile."

But Elsie would not smile. She pouted and even cried, and when breakfast was over she went sulkily upstairs to the playroom and looked out of the window.

"Horrid old raindrops!" Elsie said. "I just hate raindrops!"

"Oh, I am sorry," said a voice beside her. "For these are my sisters out there on the window pane."

On the arm of the big chair in which she was sitting, Elsie saw a pretty little creature all in silver, which sparkled like a diamond, and she knew that her visitor was a fairy, because she carried a wand.

"I am sorry you hate the raindrops," said the fairy again. "I am sure you won't when you know who they are."

"They have spoiled my picnic in the park," said Elsie, "and I am sure I shall never like raindrops again."

"But wait until I tell you about them!" said the fairy. "Those are my sister fairies, and the only time we ever have a holiday is when we can disguise ourselves as raindrops and have a day off."

"A day off?" questioned Elsie.

"What do you mean by that?"

"Oh, dear! Didn't you know that a fairy is just as busy as can be, running about and whispering good things into the ears of children who think wrong things?"

"No; I didn't," said Elsie. "I never heard you whispering to me!"

"Oh, yes, you have—many times," replied the fairy. "Only, of course, you did not know it was a fairy who made you do right!"

"But why are you not having a holiday, too?" asked Elsie.

"I was until you said such things about us, and then I had to change my dress and come to tell you who the raindrops are. We work so hard all the time that I am sure now you will not be cross with us for having a holiday, and when you see how bright and green everything is tomorrow in the park I am sure you will forgive us for playing today."

When Elsie opened her eyes, for, of course, she had been asleep, the fairy had gone. But outside were all the little raindrops chasing each other down the window pane, and as Elsie watched them with great interest now one drop, larger than the others, stopped until it was pushed on by the others.

"That drop must have been my fairy," thought Elsie. "Oh, you cunning little raindrops! I don't hate you at all—I love you, and I am glad you have a good time," she said, "and I'll never be cross and cry again when it rains, for I shall know it is a fairy holiday, and I do hope I did not spoil the day for the little fairy who told me about it by being cross."

THE TEETH.

ONCE every six months the woman who values her good looks will go to a dentist and have her teeth looked after. During this time, very little decay can take place, and such tiny cavities as appear can be fixed with small expense and trouble. The longer the time between visits, the greater the damage to the teeth and the more painful the fixing.

At this half-yearly visit, the teeth should be cleaned by the dentist. All the tiny lime deposits that collect and yellow the teeth are removed by a small knife like instrument, the teeth are then cleaned with powdered pumice on a small whirling brush, and then cleaned again with chalk. They look beautifully white.

To keep them white—though milk white teeth are no longer considered so beautiful—a little peroxide may be used once a week. This foams inside the mouth and is one of the best antiseptics that could be used. But daily use would injure the gums. The woman should find out from her dentist whether she is subject to acid mouth or not, and which dentifrice would suit her best.

The teeth should be brushed twice a day, night and morning. Many recommend three times daily, but this is almost needless cleanliness. The brush should be used up and changed, not overused, so the bacteria

THE MORNING HOURS.

"You think 'an hour's an hour'?" Well, you get another guess. Some hold a great deal more of good, some hold a great deal of less. The hours when the day is old, and resting-time draws nigh, are feeble, listless hours and they creep instead of fly. The morning hours in larking some, and goes on weary feet—the morning hours are the ones that simply can't be beat!

The morning—when you're full of pep, the whole big day ahead! The terrors of the night are gone, discouragements are fled. It's youth again—and truth again—come back with hope renewed. With yester's wisdom standing by to check each impulse crude. The early, peppy hours are the ones that can't be beat or wronged. The hurly-burly hours when the day is young and sweet!

PUBLIC ROADS

HORN AUTOMATICALLY TOOTS

Device installed on "Dead Man's Curve" in North Carolina Warns of Approaching Motor.

"Sound your horn!" "Dangerous curve ahead!" The roads are well fortified with these bright red warnings. But you can't see signs by the roadside at night, and you surely don't want to toot your horn continually, waking sleepers in the houses you pass. What then?

The solution lies in the unpretentious oblong piece of metal-lying in the road. As your car passes over it a horn a few feet in front of you automatically toots loud and long, letting the people around the curve know that you are coming.

The device is not unlike the light signal system used in the New York subways and that are operated automatically by the trains.

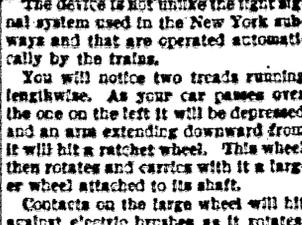

You will notice two tracks running lengthwise. As your car passes over the one on the left it will be depressed and an arm extending downward from it will hit a ratchet wheel. This wheel then rotates and carries with it a larger wheel attached to its shaft.

Contacts on the large wheel will hit against electric brushes as it rotates. Wires from the brushes lead to the horn and its motor. When the circuit is thus closed the horn will toot.

But why have this revolving wheel instead of ordinary metal contact? Because if your automobile is going at the usual rate of 30 miles an hour the tread will be depressed for only about one hundredth part of a second—such too short a time for even starting the motor on the horn. The revolving wheel tends to prolong the contact.

And now for the tread on the right side. This prevents the horn from tootling unnecessarily when a car approaches from the opposite direction where it has already passed the danger.

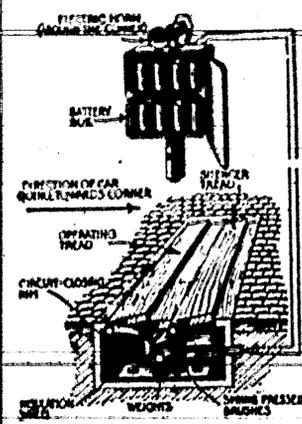

The right tread likewise has an arm attached to it. But this arm is fixed at an angle so that it almost touches the arm of the left tread. Then, when the right tread is depressed, the right arm swings into the left one and throws it clear of the ratchet wheel. There is no rotation and no consequent tootling.

As the Operating Tread is Depressed, a Contact is Made Through a Revolving Wheel and a Horn on a Post a Few Yards Away Will Toot.

The device was invented by Charles E. Lyman of Asheville, N. C., and the first one was installed on "Dead Man's Curve" in Buncombe county near the building of a casket company.—Popular Science Monthly.

ROAD TESTS IN CALIFORNIA

Concrete on Slides With Oiled Macadam in Middle is Being Tried on County Highway.

An experiment in road construction over adobe land is being made in a section of the county highway between Baypoint and Pittsburg, Cal.

Experience has shown that concrete roads built over adobe land results in the cracking and disintegrating of the road in a few seasons and in an effort to overcome this trouble County Surveyor Arnold is having the link of the county highway constructed in a manner tried in several eastern states and proved successful.

The concrete is laid in two separate sections, each eight feet wide, with a two-foot strip through the center. In this strip is placed oil macadam, which is placed level to the surface of the concrete and the entire surface is faced with a topping.
