OLDEST AND LEADING NEWSPAPER IN CIRCULATION IN THE COUNTY OF LINCOLN, NEW MEXICO

VOLUME 21

CARRIZOZO, LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1920

NUMBER 48

District Court Adjourns

District Court adjourned Wednesday morning after having been in session a little over two weeks. A number of pleas of guilty for minor offenses charged in indictments returned by the grand jury were made and fines imposed by the court.

Two indictments for murder had been returned by the grand jury, viz: the Starkey Bros. for killing C. L. Hinnard, and Pascual Luttrell for killing J. M. Gillespie. The Starkey was continued because of the inability of one of the defendants to appear in court, but Luttrell was given a trial and convicted of murder in the second degree. This trial occupied practically all the second week, ending Saturday night, November 20, when the jury returned a verdict of second degree murder. The sentence imposed by the court was that the defendant should serve in the state penitentiary for a period of not less than 20 years nor more than 25. Defendant's attorneys made a motion for appeal which was granted and bond was fixed at $10,000, which is now being arranged for.

Civil matters occupied considerable attention of the court, the jury having been waived, and a number of cases were removed from the docket. Judge Mechem and other members of the court returned to their respective homes upon the completion of the term.

The Slump in Cattle

Live stock owners in this county are in a quandary. The price of cattle has dropped to the 1911-12 prices. The range is getting bare, feed is dear and hard to get and the vital question with the stock grower is: whether to market his surplus cattle at about one-half last year's prices, or take chances of them pulling through the winter, with no certainty that prices will be better in the spring. Large number of cattle are being shipped, but those who have feed stacked, will hold their stock in the hope of prices going up a notch or two in the spring. Long-headed cattlemen, however, look for no change for at least a year, and maybe not then.

A. B. Fall Barred

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20.—Mexican consular agents on the border, it was said today at the Mexican embassy, have been directed by Roberto V. Pesquiera, Mexican confidential agent in the United States, not to vize the passport of Senator Fall of New Mexico for the senator's proposed visit to Mexico to attend the inauguration of President-Elect Obregon on December 1. Information at the embassy was that Mr. Pesquiera's action was predicated upon what was regarded by him as the intervention attitude of Senator Fall, who is chairman of the senate subcommittee, which for upwards of a year has been investigating conditions in Mexico.

What is the Use of Courts?

(El Paso Herald)

Why not abolish the criminal courts in New Mexico and leave the administration of justice in the hands of governor Larrazolo? It would save a lot of money, and citizens would not have to waste their time serving on grand juries and trial juries. The mere fact that men have pleaded guilty of having taken human life wantonly does not seem to make any difference; or the fact that they were regularly indicted by a grand jury constituted with every regard for insuring to the accused their constitutional rights.

The governor excuses his action by saying that the Columbus raiders were acting under Villa's orders and therefore are not criminally liable.

So, applying the governor's argument logically, it follows that every murderer who has acted under Villa's orders in committing crime is not criminally liable.

Since Villa has been pardoned by the president of Mexico, and Villa's agents have been pardoned by the governor of New Mexico—why, one can only come to the conclusion that no wrong was ever committed, there was never any Columbus raid, there was never any Pershing punitive expedition.

The only folks who seem to have got the worst of it are the people Villa and his agents murdered, and the six Villistas who were hanged in New Mexico before governor Larrazolo was in position to prevent it.

The calm, orderly, law respecting conduct of the people of Columbus and Luna county toward the men identified as members of Villa's band of assassins was every way admirable. A splendid example to other states was set by the New Mexicans in the way in which, a few weeks after the raid, still in passionate recollection of the outrage, they refrained from a single disorderly act but quietly set about trying the cases through the regular courts by the normal processes of law.

Their evidence was practically a confession, evidence given by themselves that they were present and engaged in the raid, but claimed immunity on the ground that they were in the military service of Francisco Villa and acting under military orders.

No single executive should possess the power of his own initiative and uncontrolled impulse to undo the work of the regularly constituted courts and set convicts at liberty. There are cases in which "executive clemency" should be exercised, but—at least there should be a competent board of review which should conduct hearings, make open recommendations, publish its reasons, and share responsibility. In a case like this in New Mexico, the action is final, the governor is within his legal rights, and there is no redress. But it is a long way from finally convicting the great body of citizens that the act of wholesale pardon is wise or timely, or even just.

American Submarines Have Ears

During the late war you had occasion to read and learn much about German submarines. You probably know more of the ex-Kaiser's U-boats than you do about those of your own Navy, but we doubt very much if you have ever heard of the ears on board our under water craft which enables our little "Vipers of the deep" to hear.

The above picture shows some American sailormen at the Submarine Base, Coco Solo, Panama Canal Zone, making slight repairs on the microphones, or ears of the R-12, one of our latest submarines. There are three microphones to each vessel, placed near the bow, as may be seen from the picture. They are very sensitive, recording every disruption of the water below the surface; they will detect the hum of a steamer's propellers several miles away and indicate the direction and distance the object is from the listener.

The submarine base at Coco Solo is one of our best, the weather is always fine for diving and experimenting and it is here the several important inventions have been perfected to be used on our own U-boats. Experiments are being carried on every day with both submarines and scaphanes, many of them being of a secret nature.

There is always a certain amount of fun connected with work in the Navy, no matter how serious it is. For instance, the lad who sent this picture gave it the following title: "Submarine doctors giving a little treatment to the ears of the R-12."

Reily & Lujan Sell

Reily & Lujan concluded a deal this week whereby they sold their fixtures, stock—everything in their store and market—to the Pacific League branch of Co-operative Stores. They will invoice their stock soon after the first of December and on the morning of the 7th the business will open its doors under the new name. The purchasers conduct a chain of stores under the title given above and the stock is distributed among a large number of people. Locally, the venture is backed by a large per cent of our people, many taking various amounts of stock.

Mr. Lujan will be retained as assistant manager and will be of invaluable aid to the new management. Mr. Reily, the other member of the old firm, has made no announcement of his future plans. The old firm enjoyed a splendid business and the new one will no doubt receive an equal patronage.

James T. Davidson was a visitor Wednesday from Corona.

We Feasted

Dr. F. H. Johnson was the host yesterday at the Lackland House, to a quartette of the hungriest friends he could have found; which is proof of the doctor's judgment, as well as generosity. The four who sat at the table with the doctor were, A. H. Hudspeth, O. T. Nye, M. B. Paden and the writer. Nye, was appointed to carve the big turkey, the gift of A. B. Zumwalt, and which had been baked to a turn in the Lackland oven. Mrs. Lackland and Miss Statham served and so many good things were placed before the guests that their voracious appetites were stayed only when their capacities were exhausted; and still the table groaned with its load when chairs were pushed back and the host was congratulated upon his choice of guests, who gave such good accounts of themselves, and the fair ladies thanked for their kind attention and pleasing courtesy. From soup to nuts it was a delightful affair—the only thing lacking to make it perfect was chargeable to Mr. Volstead.

The Helen Rae Mine

The Helen Rae mine in Nogal Canon is one of the busiest properties in the county. A great deal of development has been done during the past year, and there is sufficient ore already mined to keep a mill running six months night and day. There are about 15 men employed on the property. Large ore bodies have been blocked out, and will be mined later.

A force of men are employed erecting a building to house the machinery already on the ground, for the reduction of the ore. The ore is mostly high grade, and it is said the mill will be in place early in the coming year, and turning out bullion. If the machinery is of the right kind, adapted for reducing iron-milling ore, there may be others installed on properties adjacent to the Helen Rae, which are iron-milling propositions.

The N. M. Educational Association

The State Educational Association was in session practically all this week in Albuquerque, and is said to have been the greatest meeting in the history of the association. It was, in fact, the biggest educational week in the history of the state and will have far-reaching effects. The attendance, members and associate members, exceeded a thousand, and Lincoln county sent her proportionate share of teachers, all of whom, including County Superintendent Mrs. Blaney, acquitted themselves in a most acceptable manner.

The Live Stock Market

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 23.—Prewar prices for live hogs became general today throughout the United States. Big receipts from the farms appeared to be the immediate cause, the total supply of hogs on sale today at the 10 principal markets of the country being estimated at 182,000 head, as against 124,000 a week ago. In Chicago, the market closed at the bottom figures of the day, the lowest since December 16, 1916, and at an average drop of $1 a hundredweight as compared with yesterday. The principal top at the finish was $10 a hundredweight, whereas on July 31, 1919, hogs commanded $23 60, the pinnacle point on record. Five years before, the current price was $8.15.

H. J. Little Returns

Harry Little returned Sunday from a two weeks visit in Chicago, it was his first visit east in many years. He located a brother whom he had not seen since leaving there. He also rounded up an old friend, Charley Neeley, whom he prospected with 14 or 15 years ago in the Capitan mountains. Charley will be remembered by many of the old timers as a landscape painter, who did a little prospecting as a side line. When funds got low, he would paint a local scene on canvass, Harry would make a frame, the picture would be sold, and the proceeds used for a grub stake. Both would then start into the hills in quest of a vein of the yellow stuff. Several of the pictures are yet in Capitan and some are in Carrizozo. Wm. Reiley owns one that he values highly. Harry and Charley had a pleasant time raking up old reminiscences, but he was glad when he got back to old Lincoln county, where "the sun shines for all, all the time," as he only got one peek at old sol, during his two weeks in Illinois.

New Train Schedule

The El Paso & Southwestern has issued a new time table, effective last Sunday. Two new trains have been added and the schedule of the other four slightly changed. The schedule, as to Carrizozo, is as follows:
East Bound
No. 4 ar. 4:35 p.m. Leaves 4:45
No. 2 ar. 1:20 a.m. Leaves 1:30
No. 8 ar. 11:50 a.m. Leaves 12:15
West Bound
No. 3 ar. 9:15 a.m. Leaves 9:25
No. 1 ar. 2:25 a.m. Leaves 2:35
No. 7 ar. 2:15 p.m. Leaves 2:40
This give us three passenger trains each way, and the two new trains run through in daylight, giving a very convenient local service.

CHAPTER VIII.

A Touch of the Third Degree. It was Bucky that caught the convict. The two men met at the top of a mountain pass. Blackwell, headed south, was slipping down toward Stone's horse ranch when they came face to face. Before the bad man had his revolver out, he found himself looking down the barrel of the ranger's leveled rifle.

"I wouldn't," Bucky murmured generally. "What you want me for?" Blackwell demanded sulkily. "For the W. & S. robbery."

"I'm not the man you want. My name's Johnson." "I'll put up with you till I find the man I do want, Mr. Johnson," Bucky told him cheerfully. "Climb down from that horse. No, I wouldn't try that. Keep your hands up."

Buck took his prisoner straight to the ranger's office and telephoned to Cullison. The lieutenant did not know anything about book psychology, but he had observed that hunger and weariness try out the stuff that it's a man. Under the sag of them many a will soaps that would have held fast if sustained by a good dinner and a sound night's sleep. This is why so many "bad men" gun fighters with a reputation for gameness, wilt on occasion like whipped curs. In the old days this came to nearly every terror of the border. Some day when he had a jumping toothache, or when his nerves were frayed from a debauch, a silent stranger walked into his presence, looked long and steadily into his eyes and ended forever his reign of lawlessness. Sometimes the two-gun man was "planted," sometimes he subsided into innocuous peace henceforth.

The ranger had a shrewd instinct that the hour had come to batter down this fellow's dogged resistance. Therefore he sent for Cullison, the man whom the convict most feared. The very look of the cattleman, with that grim, hard, capable aspect, shook Blackwell's nerve.

"So you've got him, Bucky?" Luck looked the man over as he set handcuffed hands on the table and read in his face both terror and a sly, dogged cunning. Once before the fellow had been put through the third degree. Something of the sort he fearfully expected now. Villainy is usually not resistant. This hulking bully should have been a hardy ruffian. In stead, he shrunk like a schoolgirl from the thought of physical pain.

"Stand up," ordered Cullison, quietly. Blackwell got to his feet at once. "Don't hit me," he whined. Luck knew the man sweated under the punishment his imagination called up, and he understood human nature too well to end the suspense by making real the vision. For then the worst would be past, since the actual is never equal to what is expected.

"Well?" Luck watched him with the look of tempered steel in his hard eyes. "I—Mr. Cullison, I want to explain. Every man is liable to make a mistake—go off half cocked. I didn't do right. That's a fact. I can explain all that, but I'm sick now—awful sick."

Cullison laughed harshly. "You'll be sicker soon." "You promised you wouldn't do anything if we turned you loose," the man plucked up courage to remind him. "I promised the law wouldn't do anything. You'll understand the distinction presently."

what's right, Captain O'Connor. Whatever's right. You ask me any questions." "I want to know all about the W. & S. robbery, everything, from start to finish." "Honest, I wish I could tell you. But I don't know a thing about it. Cross my heart, I don't."

"No use, Blackwell. If I'm going to stand by you against Mr. Cullison, you'll have to tell the truth. Why, man, I've even got the mask you wore and the cloth you cut it from."

"I reckon it must a-been some one else, major. What I could help you, but I can't." Bucky rose. "All right. If you can't help me, I can't help you. Mr. Cullison, I reckon I'll run out and have some supper. Do you mind staying here with this man till I get back?"

"No. That's all right, Bucky. Don't hurry. I'll keep him entertained." Perhaps it was not by chance that his eye wandered to a blacksnake whip hanging on the wall. O'Connor sauntered to the door. The frightened gaze of the prisoner clung to him as if for safety.

"Major—Colonel—you ain't a-going," he pleaded. "Only for an hour or two. I'll be back. I wouldn't think of saying goodbye—not till we reach Yuma."

With that the door closed behind him. Blackwell cried out, hurriedly, eagerly: "Mister O'Connor! I—I'll tell you everything—every last thing. Mr. Cullison—he's aiming to kill me soon as you've gone."

"I've got no time to fool away, Blackwell. I'm hungry. If you mean business get to it. But remember that whatever you say will be used against you."

"I'll tell you any doggoned thing you want to know. You've got me beat. I'm plumb wore out—sick. A man can't stand everything."

"Sit down. There's a good dinner waiting for you at Cuno's when you get through."

His story was that he had found on the street a letter that had inadvertently been dropped. It was to Jordan of the Cattleman's National bank, and it notified him that $20,000 was to be shipped to him by the W. & S. Express company on the night of the robbery. Blackwell resolved to have a try for it. He hung around the office until the manager and the guard arrived from the train, made his raid upon them, locked the door, and threw away his mask. He dived with the satchel into the nearest alley, and came face to face with the stranger whom he later learned to be Fendrick.

Fendrick, who had heard the shouting of the men locked in the express office, stopped the robber, but Blackwell broke away and ran down the alley. The sheepman followed and caught him. After another scuffle the convict again hammered himself free, but left behind the hand satchel containing the spoils. Fendrick (so he later explained to Blackwell) tied a cord to the handle of the bag and dropped it down the chute of a laundry in such a way that it could later be drawn up. Then he hurried back to the express office and released the prisoners. After the excitement had subsided, he had returned for the money and hid it. The original robber did not know where.

ed somewhere. You're fixing to put me behind the bars, and he's the man that really stole it." From this they could not shake him. Fendrick, riding on Mesa Verde, met young Bob Cullison, and before he knew what had happened found a gun thrown on him.

"Don't you move," the boy warned. "What does this tommyrot mean?" the sheepman demanded angrily. "It means that you are coming back with me to the ranch. That's what it means."

"What for?" "Never fear mind what for." "Oh, go to Mexico," Cass flung back impatiently. "Think we're in some fool moving-picture play, you blamed young idiot? Put up that gun."

Shrilly Bob retorted. He was excited enough to be dangerous. "Don't you get the wrong idea. I'm going to make this stick. You'll turn and go back with me to the Circle C. You're wanted for the W. & S. express robbery. Blackwell has confessed."

Cass sat immovable as the sphinx. He was thinking that he might as well face the charge now as any time. Moreover, he had reasons for wanting to visit the Circle C. They had to do with a tall, slim girl who never looked at him without scorn in her dark, flashing eyes.

"All right. I'll go back with you, but not under a gun. I won't stand for any gun-play capture." "You'll have to stand for it," Fendrick's face set. "Will it? It's up to you, then. Let's see you make me."

Sitting there with his gaze steadily on the boy, Cass had Bob at a disadvantage. If the sheep owner had tried to break away into the chaparral, Bob could have blazed away at him, but he could not shoot a man looking at him with cynical, amused eyes. He could understand the point of view of his adversary. If Fendrick rode into the Circle C under compulsion of a gun in the hands of a boy he would never hear the end of the laugh on him.

Bob put up his big blue gun reluctantly. Never before had it been trained on a human being, and it was a wrench to give up the thought of bringing in the enemy as a prisoner. But he saw he could not pull it off. They turned toward the Circle C. Kate was seated on the porch sewing. She rose in surprise when her cousin and the sheepman appeared. They came with jingling spurs across the plaza toward her.

"Where's Uncle Luck, sis? I've brought this fellow back with me. Caught him on the mesa," explained the boy sulkily. Fendrick bowed rather extravagantly. "He's qualifying for a moving-picture show actor, Miss Cullison. I hadn't the heart to disappoint him when he got that cannon trained on me. So here I am."

Kate looked at him and then let her gaze travel to her cousin. She somehow gave the effect of judging him of negligible value. "I think he's in his office, Bob. I'll go see."

She went swiftly and presently her father came out. Kate did not return. Luck looked straight at Cass with the uncompromising hostility so characteristic of him. Neither of the men spoke. It was Bob who made the necessary explanations. "I've been looking for you," Luck said bluntly, after his nephew had finished.

he looked the least in the world surprised at sight of the sheepman. "Morning, Cass," he nodded. "Morning, Curly," answered Fendrick. "Didn't know you were riding for the Circle C."

"He's my foreman," Luck explained. Cass observed that he was quite one of the family. Bob admired him openly and without shame, because he was the best rider in Arizona; Kate seemed to be on the best of terms with him and Luck treated him with the off-hand bluntness he might have used toward a grown son.

The stage brought the two men to town shortly after sundown. Luck called up O'Connor and made an appointment to meet him after supper. "There's a matter that needs explaining, Cass. According to Blackwell's story, you caught him with the goods at the time of the robbery, and in making his getaway he left the loot with you. What have you done with it?"

"Blackwell told you that, did he?" "Yes." "Don't doubt your word for a moment, Bucky, but before I do any talking I'd like to hear him say so. I'll not round on him until I know he's given himself away."

The convict was sent for. He substantiated the ranger reluctantly. He was so humored in that he did not know how to play his cards so as to make the most of them. Cass heard him out with a lifted upper lip and his most somnolent tittered expression. After Blackwell had finished and been withdrawn from circulation he rolled and lit a cigarette.

"By Mr. Blackwell's say-so I'm the goat. By the way, has it ever occurred to you gentlemen that you can't be convicted on the testimony of a single accomplice?" "We've got a little circumstantial evidence to add, Cass," Bucky suggested pleasantly.

"Not enough—not nearly enough." "That will be for a jury to decide," Cullison chipped in. Fendrick shrugged. "I've a notion to let it go to that. But what's the use? Understand this. I wasn't going to give Blackwell away, but since he's talked, I may tell what I know. It's true enough what he says. I did relieve him of the plunder."

"Sorry to hear that, Cass," Bucky commented gravely. "What did you do with it?" The sheep owner flicked his cigarette ash into the tray and looked at the lieutenant out of half-shuttered, indolent eyes. "Gave it to you, Bucky. Got that letter I handed you the other day?"

The officer produced it from his safe. "Open it." With a paper knife Bucky ripped the flap and took out a sheet of paper. "There's something else in there," Fendrick suggested. That something else proved to be a piece of paper folded tightly, which, being opened, disclosed a key. O'Connor read aloud the letter: "To Nicholas Bolt, Sheriff, or Bucky O'Connor, Lieutenant of Rangers: "Having come into possession of a little valise which is not mine, I am getting rid of it in the following manner. I have rented a large safety-deposit box at the Cattleman's National bank and have put into it the valise with the lock still unbroken. The key is inclosed herewith. Shaw, the cashier, will tell you that when this box was rented I gave explicit orders it should be opened only by the men whose names are given in an envelope left with him, not even excepting myself. The valise was deposited at exactly 10:30 a. m. the morning after the robbery, as Mr. Shaw will also testify. I am writing this the evening of the same day."

"Don't believe a word of it," Cullison exploded. "Seeing is believing," the sheepman murmured. He was enjoying greatly the discomfiture of his foe. "Makes a likely fairy tale. What for would you keep the money and not turn it back?" "That's an easy one, Luck. He wanted to throw the burden of the robbery on you," Bucky explained. "Well, I've got to be shown."

In the morning he was shown. Shaw confirmed exactly what Fendrick had said. He produced a sealed envelope. Within this was a sheet of paper, upon which were written two lines: "Box 2148 is to be opened only by Sheriff Bolt or Lieutenant Bucky O'Connor of the Rangers, and before witnesses."

Another Royal Suggestion. Griddle Cakes and Waffles

From the NEW ROYAL COOK BOOK

THERE is an art in making flapjack-pancakes, griddle cakes or waffles, call them what you will. But it is an art very easily and quickly acquired if you follow the right recipes. The secret, of course, is Royal Baking Powder.

Griddle Cakes
1/2 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
2 eggs
1 1/2 cups milk
1 tablespoon shortening
Mix and sift dry ingredients; add beaten eggs, milk and melted shortening; mix well. Bake immediately on hot griddle.

Waffles
2 cups flour
4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups milk
2 eggs
1 tablespoon melted shortening
Sift flour, baking powder and salt together; add milk to yolks of eggs; mix thoroughly and add to dry ingredients; add melted shortening and mix in beaten whites of eggs. Bake in well-greased hot waffle iron until brown. Serve hot with maple syrup. It should take about 1 1/2 minutes to bake each waffle.

Takashi Hara, premier of Japan, Baron Shidehara, Japanese ambassador to the United States, and Roland Morris, American ambassador to Japan, all are hopeful, even confident, that a better understanding between the two nations will soon be brought about and that international relations are in no grave danger of being overstrained. Marquis Okuma, former premier, is by no means so optimistic since the Californians endorsed their anti-Asian land law. In an address before a general meeting of the Japanese immigration association last week in Tokyo, Okuma said: "It is strange how cool the Japanese are towards a problem deciding the fate of their brothers in America."

The anti-Japanese movement in the United States, he asserted, endangers relations not only between Nippon and America, but also between Japan and other powers. "Germany," he said, "was reduced from leadership among nations because she ignored the principles of justice and humanity, and now America, ignoring them, is setting an example that Canada and Australia will probably follow."

"Must we, one of the five great powers, remain silent when others act inhumanely and unjustly towards our nationals? That is not the way the welfare of humanity is promoted."

Premier Hara regards the California agitation as sectional and not representing the country at large, and believes that if the thinking people in both countries are careful not to let the agitation go to extremes, sound judgment eventually will prevail and the matter will be satisfactorily adjusted.

Undoubtedly it will be left to the new administration and the new senate to make the adjustment, which may take the form of a new treaty. The plan favored by Japan is that Japan shall undertake to prevent further Japanese migration to the United States and that our government shall undertake to safeguard the property rights of the Japanese already in the country. Tokyo would prefer to have this in the form of a strengthened "gentlemen's agreement," but Governor Stephens and other leaders of opinion in California maintain the Japanese question never will be settled permanently until the "gentlemen's agreement" is abrogated, Japanese excluded by statute and Japanese property-holding rights restricted, as contemplated by the California referendum measure.

Armistice day, the second anniversary of the ending of the World war, was fittingly observed by all the allied and associated nations. The ceremonies in London and Paris were especially impressive. In the presence of King George, the heads of the government and the relatives of missing soldiers, the body of an unknown warrior was interred in Westminster abbey, this being the highest honor England can pay to one of her dead; and in Whitehall the king unveiled a permanent cenotaph dedicated to "the glorious dead."

The French took the body of an unidentified soldier from the cemetery at Verdun and interred it beneath the Arc de Triomphe. President Millerand heart of Gambetta, who brought France through the terrible days of 1870, was deposited in the Pantheon.

In the United States there were no ceremonies of a national character, but the day was generally observed with parades, memorial exercises and patriotic meetings. Former service men held a great gathering in New York and were addressed by General Nivelle, the defender of Verdun.

Crosses and medals were presented to American naval heroes by the navy department. The Red Cross took advantage of the day of celebration to start its drive for a vastly increased membership, and the response to this call was immediate and general throughout the country.

All preparations were made last week for the first meeting of the assembly of the League of Nations in Geneva November 15. Whatever may be accomplished at this session, it will be a notable gathering of great men. Every nation member of the league has sent eminent men to represent it, among them being Arthur Balfour, H. A. L. Fisher and George Barnes for Great Britain; Leon Bourgeois and André Tardieu for France; Filotti for Italy; Hymans for Belgium; Paderewski for Poland; Branting for Sweden; Baron Hayashi, Ishii and Matsugata for Japan; Motta, Ador and Usteri for Switzerland, and accomplished statesmen for each of the Latin-American republics.

The countries not represented at the Geneva meeting, because they are not members of the league, include Germany, Austria, Bulgaria, Turkey, Russia, Mexico and the United States of America.

Statesmen and publicists of France have been especially active since the election of Senator Harding in discussing the probable revision of the treaty of Versailles and the chances of forming an association of nations which the United States would join. Ambassador Jusserand will soon return to Washington, after spending several months in Europe, and it is believed he will bring the latest views of his government on the subject of recasting the league covenant. Through him, France may renew its efforts to have the senate ratify the treaty guaranteeing protection to France against exterior aggression.

Developments of the week in the Near East were not especially favorable to the allies in several instances. First, and most important, was the news that Armenia had concluded an armistice with the Turkish nationalists, whose seat of government is in Angora. The Turks had captured Kars and Alexandropol and were moving toward Erivan. The Georgians being threatened, were mobilizing on their frontiers and hoped to save Batum. This action of the Armenians opens the way for direct junction of the nationalists and the Russian soviet forces and creates a serious condition for Great Britain, France, Italy and Greece in Asia Minor. Kemal Pasha's armies are still intact, because the allies cannot get far from the sea coasts, and his government is going ahead regardless of the fate of Constantinople and the sultan. Its authority is supreme in Anatolia and it is probable that the Turks there will elect a new sultan after separating the sultanate and the caliphate, and that thereafter a new caliph also will be chosen.

The nationalists insist that the treaty of Sevres must be revised and that Smyrna, Cilicia and part of Thrace must be returned to Turkey. France especially would oppose this, fearing that Germany would take it as a precedent and ask modification of the treaty of Versailles. The Turkish treaty has not yet been signed, the Turks having said the time for such action was unpropitious.

News of Baron Wrangel's desperate struggle against the Bolshevik armies in southern Russia is a trifle confused, but on the whole not very encouraging to his well-wishers. Dispatches from Sevastopol said the soviet forces had broken through his outer works at Foros, but that the situation was he had fallen back into the Crimea and that the retreat had been conducted with notable success, the morale of his troops being unimpaired. He hopes, with proper material, to maintain his position until cold weather brings about the disintegration of the soviet armies. The Moscow government says its troops east of Perkop have crossed the Sivach river into the Crimean peninsula.

At last Italy and Jugo-Slavia have come to an agreement in the Adriatic dispute. It was said the settlement of the Istrian frontier is in favor of Jugo-Slavia, though Monte Nevoso goes to Italy; Fiume is to be independent, with territorial continuity to Italy; the Italians get the islands of Cherso, Lussin and Uolo and suzerainty over Zara. It was understood the territorial pact would be accompanied by commercial and political agreements.

Premier Lloyd George, in an address at the inauguration of the new lord mayor of London, took occasion to warn Ireland again that the British government was determined to put an end to the campaign of assassination, and that there will be "no real peace in that island, no real conciliation, until this murder conspiracy has been shattered." He warmly defended the work of the police in Ireland, saying: "They are getting the right men. They are dispersing the terrorists. If the police need more power they shall have it."

The Irish republicans, seemingly, have accepted the challenge, for the murders of policemen and soldiers continue, and preparations are being made to meet the emergency of the threatened closing of the railway and mail systems of the island. Committees are organizing to provide food and fuel to the towns along the railroads. Some fool friends of the Irish, in this country, sent to the British chief secretary for Ireland a threat of reprisals against Englishmen resident in the United States, "if there are any more reprisals in Ireland on and after the fourteenth day of November." The British embassy in Washington has called the attention of the State department to this and it is understood the department has started an investigation.

The Walsh congressional committee which for more than a year has been investigating the operations of the shipping board and its Emergency Fleet corporation stirred up a hornet's nest last week when it published the report of A. M. Fisher and J. E. Richardson, who had conducted inquiries for the committee. This makes broad charges of corruption of officials and employees of the corporation, graft in purchasing supplies for and in repairing government-owned merchant ships and the use of political and other influence in obtaining construction contracts and the allocation of vessels to operating companies. The board is accused of gross waste of the government funds and of failure in co-operation. In his testimony before the committee, however, Mr. Richardson said his report did not purport to fix any illegal act on any person. Charles Piez, director general of the corporation during the war, before being called before the committee entered a general denial of the charges of corruption and graft. Commander A. B. Clement, executive assistant to Admiral Benson, chairman of the board, told the committee the only real ground for criticism of the board's administration was the lack of perfect co-ordination between the different departments. Representative Walsh said Admiral Benson probably would be called on to testify. There was considerable criticism of the committee for making public, for the second time, charges against the shipping board without first giving the organization a chance to defend itself.

An interesting development of the baseball situation was the decision of the eight National league clubs and three of the American league clubs to form a twelve-club league, and the offer of the chairmanship of the new board

There are only 259 convicts now in the New Mexico state penitentiary. This number may be considered 259 too many, but for all that it is said to be the lowest enrollment at the pen in ten long years or more. There have been as high as 600 prisoners at one time on the roll call, although some of them have been in road camps.

A press dispatch last month telling of the detention at Nogales, Ariz., of Charles Lacey and his wife in connection with the death here of A. J. With fifteen state fairs in the past, each one annually marking another onward step in the progress and prosperity of the state, Arizona set a new record with the opening of the sixteenth annual state fair when the big main gates of the fair grounds swung open to admit the crowds of enthusiastic operators of the gigantic six-day programs of sports and exhibits. Thousands of visitors were in Phoenix.

The agricultural conditions in Roosevelt county, New Mexico, during the past season are the best ever known, and the acreage of grains was the largest in the history of the county. The growing of sweet potatoes is rapidly becoming one of the principal industries of the county and the new warehouse which was recently built has a storage capacity of over 4,500 bushels, besides many private plants in different parts of the county.

Judge Samuel L. Pattee of Tucson, sitting in the Bisbee deportation trials at Douglas, wiped the court clean of all these criminal cases on motion of H. N. HONORED AS GREAT TEACHER

Works of Euclid, Ancient Mathematician, the Foundation of the Science of Geometry.

Euclid was an ancient mathematician, who is said by some to have flourished in the third century before the Christian era. It is generally held that he was a Greek, but the date and place of his birth are unknown. It is generally held that much of his work was done at Alexandria, Egypt, which in those ancient times was a famous seat of learning and the center of extensive commerce. The most famous work of Euclid that has come down to us is the Elements of Geometry in 13 books. The first six are the most valuable. They contain the foundation of geometry, on which is based several branches of higher mathematics. These books are still used in schools and colleges. The next three books deal with the properties of numbers but they are superseded by modern arithmetic. Euclid also left other works, such as treatises on harmony and optics.

Lige Parsons Was Not Actually on the Warpath, but it Seemed There Were Casualties.

"Everybody expects a Kentuckian to tell a feud story," stated Governor Morrow of Kentucky recently. "The thing has really been much overdone, but the story of Lige Parsons may be worth telling. Lige dropped into the courthouse to see his friend, the probate judge. "Howdy, Lige," greeted the judge. "Howdy, judge!" "What's doin' down your way, Lige?" "Nuthin', Judge, nuthin'." "T'other evenin' I was a-settin', a-readin' of my Bible, Judge," spoke up Lige, "when some shootin' begun. One of my gals said 'twas the Harris boys down by the middle pasture. Now, Judge, I didn't mind them Harris boys a-shootin', but I was afraid a stray bullet might hit a calf or one of the kids, so I picked up my rifle and dropped a few shoots down that way and went back a-readin' of my Bible. Next mornin' I went down that way an' they was all gone 'cept four.'" Harper's Magazine.

Economy a Civic Duty

In the great campaign for readjustment to a sound peace basis there is no higher civic duty than personal economy.

We wasted, or as good as wasted, for economic purposes, twenty billion dollars on the European war, expanding prices twenty billions more.

If every family of five persons in our country would save and lay by in the banks a thousand dollars this coming year that would be made up.

There would be abundance of capital to build railroads, undertake great reclamation and irrigation works, build homes to relieve the house shortage and extend mining and utilities.

Without economy on the part of the individual there will be no storage of reserve capital to undertake development and keep labor employed.

Suppose in a county of 50,000 people a great public improvement were needed like a railroad or an irrigation project and no money available.

If half the people would save and deposit in the banks $200 each there would be at the end of the year five millions of stored capital available.

Two thousand communities at this rate would store ten billions of available capital and all this capital would seek investment at interest.

Is not individual economy the highest and most patriotic civic duty under the circumstances and is not economy what our nation most needs?

Coming Down

A reader complains of the slump in farm products and he asks, "Shall I stay on the farm as long as the bank will stay by me or shall I go to town where I can get a job at $5 a day?"

As a farmer this man has credit at the bank and business standing. That's something.

As a wage earner he couldn't borrow 10 cents at the bank. Neither he nor the banker would know how long he could hold his 5-dollar job.

Town jobs are not so plentiful as they were. They are coming down.

The current is turning from town to country. If this man believes he can swim against it, let him try.

But even if farm products are getting the short end of the deflation process, as necessarily they will as long as farmers are not adequately organized, this is a poor time to quit the farm. Five dollars a day does very little for a family in town.

Moreover, it should be easier farming next year. Labor has been on the auction block and the farmer has been an unsuccessful bidder for man power—but the auction block is shrinking.

The Gold Miners Problem

H. M. Parks, director of the Oregon State Bureau of Mines and Geology, in discussing decreasing gold production said the decrease "is due not to any material lessening of the available gold remaining to be mined, but to the fact that the gold mining industry has suffered more heavily than any other from the general decrease in commodity costs in recent years."

The relief has been impossible for the gold miners because the value of their product is fixed by statute and is unchangeable."

The McFadden bill, now before congress for the relief of the gold industry provides that an excise tax of $10 an ounce be placed upon manufactured gold in order that the gold producer may receive from a fund derived from the tax a premium of $10 an ounce for newly produced gold. The price of gold for coinage purposes would remain the same hence our standard of values would not be upset.

Release of Mexican Raiders Halted

TEXAS STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION WILL AID U. S. SAVINGS CAMPAIGN

Austin, Texas—Cooperation between the State Department of Education of Texas and the Savings Division of the United States Treasury Department for the Eleventh Federal Reserve District for the coming year has been placed on a definite basis. Miss Anna Webb Blanton, State Superintendent, approved the program proposed for the school by the Savings Division, assigning a Supervisor to prepare material the Savings Division will furnish teachers.

Representatives of the State Department of Education have presented the Division's school plans to institutions in which teachers of about one hundred counties were assembled during the first week of September. S. M. N. Marra, Chief Supervisor of High Schools, read the program to teachers at fourteen counties in joint institutes at Canyon; Assistant Superintendent E. L. Dohoney, explained the plan at Victoria, Huntville and Beaumont and other institutes visited. L. D. Borden, Chief Supervisor of Rural Schools, included it in his speeches at Beaville, Woodville, Orange and other institutes. W. E. James, Rural School Supervisor presented the matter to institutes at Waxahatchie, Hillsboro, Marshall and other cities.

"Earn, save and invest" said Fayette Irving, Jr., Director's assistant for education for the Division, "is the slogan. Pupils are taught how to care for their business affairs as well as their language, their morals and their physical welfare. They must know it is a privilege, a blessing as well as a duty, to work. They must come to feel intuitively that they must live on less than they earn, and put away savings for future needs; otherwise they face dependency or crime. It is the duty of teachers to see these teachings fruit into action. Savings Securities, Thrift Stamps, War Savings Stamps of the Government, and savings banks are to be recommended for pupils to use in preserving and increasing their savings."

WISE YOUNG MEN AND WOMEN MAKE SAVINGS A PART OF ENGAGEMENT

Every young man should be very careful in choosing the young woman he wishes to marry; and no less caution should be exercised by a young woman in accepting seriously the attentions of a young man.

The girl who permits and encourages her escort to spend money unnecessarily and extravagantly upon her will seldom make a good wife. Good wives are economical, careful of expenditure and capable of making the dollar go a long way. Girls who do not have this trait before marriage seldom develop it after marriage. Marriage is a partnership, and a badly managed partnership is seldom a happy one. The young man who does not save, who is not building up a reserve fund, but who is "throwing his money at the birds" will seldom do any better after marriage.

Some young couples in this state, instead of spending all they earn on meaningless pleasures, are wisely building their savings funds together with War Savings Stamps. More than likely, there will be a happy marriage.

COUNTY SUPT. McDONALD QUOTES JAS. J. HILL

Dallas, Texas.—"It is a brutal bed rock truth, that James J. Hill uttered when he said, 'if you want to know if you are going to be a success or a failure in life, the test is simple and infallible; are you able to save money? If not, drop out. You will fail as sure as you live. You may not think so, but the seed of success is not in you,'" said A. F. McDonald, County Superintendent of Dallas County, when a representative of the Savings Division had advocated children saving and investing in War Savings Stamps and other government Savings Securities.

"That saying of Hill is plastered all over my boy's room. It is on the head of his bed; it is stuck on his mirror, it is glued into his bank book, he sees it on his check book. I try to have him form the habit of asking himself whenever he spends, 'am I buying something worth to me, what it costs?' He is now headed on that path. If he reads it continually, there is nothing to fear for his future. He will own his share of Treasury Certificates and Liberty Bonds."

We bought in the United States this year $370,570,172 worth of chewing gum, cameras and sporting goods, necessaries. Were the amount spent for Fourth Liberty Loan Bonds at $23.33 it would have bought $444,000,000 in 4 1/2% bonds and would have brought in annual interest $24,370,000. Shall it be chewing gum or Liberty Notes?

For the timid investors, who have been frightened by the fluctuations of Liberty Bonds, the government provides War Savings Stamps and Registered Treasury Savings Certificates. They are redeemable by the government at any time and are always worth more than they cost.

Green doesn't collect at the bottom of the year unless you don't connect.

Raiders Pardoned

Santa Fe, N. M., Nov. 22—Declaring he does not believe the men were responsible for their action at the time they invaded New Mexico with Pancho Villa's bandit army early in 1916, and shot up Columbus and its citizens, Gov. O. A. Larrazolo today pardoned 16 men serving life terms in the state prison for complicity in the outrage.

Fifteen were serving terms of 70 to 80 years. The other was sentenced to be hanged but had his sentence commuted to life imprisonment.

All but one had pleaded guilty to second degree murder, the other getting a sentence for first degree.

The governor stated he believed the men were ignorant and not criminally responsible and emphatically denied the report that the pardons were "to further friendly relations with Mexico."

The raid on Columbus took place shortly after midnight on the night of March 9, 1916.

Villa and his force of men slipped into the little town of Columbus in the darkness, surrounded the city and began shooting and killing its citizens. Men, women and children were shot down in cold blood by the Mexican bandits. No mercy was shown. The town was set on fire.

United States troops of the 12th cavalry finally drove them out of the town, after they had looted and killed and burned, and chased them over the border into Mexico, killing several of the bandits in the running fight. However the bandits were in Columbus for over an hour before the troops were able to disperse them. It was charged that the American forces had not taken proper precaution to guard the place and an official inquiry was held by the war department.

The invasion of Mexico by the Pershing expedition followed this raid by Villa and his bandits, coming about 10 days later. Gen. Pershing was ordered to go in and capture Villa, but was ordered out of Mexico before he succeeded.

Much of England's trouble has been due, perhaps, to having a dub in Dublin Castle.

How Long Distance Service is Constantly Guarded

As carefully as the sentinel guards the camp of his comrades in time of war, we guard your telephone talks over the long-distance telephone lines.

Your telephone is sheltered in home or office, but the wires connecting it with telephones in other cities and towns cross bleak mountain ranges and storm-swept prairies, subject constantly to the ravages of the elements.

Day and night the wire chiefs watch the circuits, testing them, keeping them clear and preparing in cases of emergency to rush repairmen to the scene of trouble.

Every morning at 6 o'clock, before the day's business begins, tests are made with delicate apparatus, and with it the place can be determined within at least 100 feet where a loose wire, a broken cross-arm or even a broken tree branch hanging in the wires, may be causing trouble.

Every month repairmen go over all the circuits. Cross-arms damaged by lightning are repaired, poles or wires loosened by the wind are strengthened, broken insulators are replaced and all other needed repairs are made. Even overhanging trees are trimmed up properly.

To insure the public against sudden breaking of poles, carrying down with them perhaps a score of wires, at regular intervals pole-to-pole inspections are made. Every pole is tested, decayed wood scraped away and a record of the condition of each pole placed on file so replacements may be made as needed.

Carefully, constantly and unceasingly the long-distance lines are guarded to provide immediate service.

Why Suffer?

Cardui "Did Wonders for Me," Declares This Lady.

"I suffered for a long time with womanly weaknesses," says Mrs. J. R. Simpson, of 57 Spruce St., Asheville, N. C. "I finally got to the place where it was an effort for me to go. I would have bearing-down pains in my side and back — especially severe across my back, and down in my side there was a great deal of soreness. I was nervous and easily upset.

Desert Is Safe for Travelers

Government Issues Guide to Springs and Wells in Salton Sea Region.

PROSPECTOR STARTS MOVE

United States Geological Survey in Co-operation With Engineering Department of California University Makes Survey of Desert.

Washington. The repellent though interesting phrase "Great American Desert" was applied across a large part of some of the earlier maps of our western and southwestern territory, and though the area of supposed desert land was thus exaggerated, enough real desert remains to justify large studies of methods of utilizing it and special studies of its water resources and watering places in order to make journeys across it safe for travelers.

Travelers in the desert region of the Southwest must depend for their existence on "water holes" (springs, wells or natural tanks), many of which are separated from one another by a hard day's journey with team and wagon. The water holes in most of this region have never been accurately mapped or described, no systematic provision has been made for maintaining them, and the roads leading to them have not been marked with substantial and reliable signs, so that travel in the parts of the region that are remote from settlements has been precarious and even perilous.

A Pioneer for Safety in the Desert.
The movement for the protection of prospectors and travelers on the arid desert plains of his country was begun many years ago by George W. Parsons, a prospector and desert expert of Los Angeles, Cal. In 1901 Mr. Parsons made a trip across the desert region of California with Prof. W. L. Watts, state mineralogist, and, on his return, urged upon the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce the necessity of placing guide posts and of developing water holes in the desert.

Mr. Parsons' work led to an appropriation by congress, as a result of which the United States geological survey, Department of the Interior, in co-operation with the department of engineering of the state of California, surveyed the southern California desert and has recently issued a report, entitled "Routes to Desert Watering Places in the Salton Sea Region, California," by John S. Brown.

Region Covered by the Report.
The region covered by this guide is in the southwest corner of California and is about one hundred miles in length and breadth, covering about ten thousand square miles. Its northern limit is the thirty-fourth parallel and its southern is the boundary between the United States and Mexico; its eastern border is marked by Colorado river, which separates California and Arizona, and its western by the meridian of 116 degrees 40 minutes. It therefore includes Imperial county and the most arid parts of Riverside and San Diego counties.

In addition to maps showing the roads and the watering places, the guide contains road logs and brief descriptions of the watering places. For the convenience of travelers coming and going, the logs of nearly all the roads are given in two directions. Information and sketch maps are included for certain roads that extend somewhat beyond the northern boundary of the region as defined above, in order to connect the routes in this region with watering places beyond its limits. On the other hand, a considerable area in the western part of the region is high and well-watered and the routes in it are given only for certain irregular westward extensions of the desert.

The report just published, which is listed as water supply paper 490-A, may be obtained free of charge by applying to the United States Geological Survey, Washington, D. C.

CHOLERA INCREASES IN CHINA

Troop Movements Blamed for Worst Condition in Twenty Years, Says Professor Dye.

New York. As a result of the frequent movements of Chinese troops in Szechuan province, West China, cholera has spread more extensively recently than in the last 20 years.

This is the opinion of Prof. Daniel S. Dye of West China Union university, expressed in a letter to Roy W. R. Taylor, a representative of the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society in China, now on furlough here.

The disease has caused great ravages in Tungshwan, Chungking and Chengtu, as well as many of the smaller villages.

Americans and Europeans are virtually immune, Professor Dye said, due largely to precautions in preparation of food and in the matter of hygiene.

Indian Sells Land for Plane; Heap Big Chief

Hawatha, Nan—Chief Havelson—Came to Kansas City several months ago to give exhibition flights. He brought the plane to his home here, where scores of relatives assembled to see their chief fly. Chief Havelson had sold his last eighty acres of Indian land and was preparing to fly high when the plane came down with a sickening thud. Chief Havelson had $2,700 invested in the machine, but sold it for $100 to an oil man from Texas.

Use Film in Surgery

Is Especially Useful for Students as Instructor Can Explain Every Move Made.

New York.—Many prominent physicians and the student body of the New York Homeopathic Medical College attended the unique celebration of National Homeopathic day at the New York Homeopathic Medical College and Flower Hospital, Avenue A, between Sixty-third and Sixty-fourth streets. Interest centered around the exhibitions of herniotomy under local anesthesia by Dr. Fred A. Kelly of Detroit, surgeon of the Grace hospital of that city and President of the Michigan State Homeopathic society. The application of local anesthesia, which means the deadening of the nerve centers in the region of the operation without causing the patient to lose consciousness, to herniotomy, which included operations for hernia and rupture, is something entirely new in medical science. The first demonstration was a four-reel moving picture showing every detail of preparation and actual carrying out of the operation as performed by Doctor Kelly and his assistants in the Grace hospital in Detroit. This moving picture is especially useful in that one who understands the operation can stand and explain every move made to students and surgeons interested and also in that it has the advantage over the actual operation itself in that the entire operation or any part of it can be reviewed as many times as is desired by the instructor or student.

The picture was followed by a demonstration by Dr. George F. Laidlaw and Dr. Milton J. Ralsbeck of the electro-cardiograph, an electrical instrument used for the purpose of detecting and diagramming irregularities in the heart. The advantage of this apparatus is that the part attached to the patient may be attached in his bed at home, and by means of connecting wires, the results of the test may be recorded on the machine in the hospital miles away. This does away with the necessity of carrying about the entire apparatus, it being necessary to have on hand only the part attached to the patient's arms and legs.

The next demonstration was the performance in the operating room of the Flower hospital of an actual operation by Doctor Kelly after the manner described in the motion picture shown earlier in the afternoon. The operation was successfully performed upon an inmate of the hospital, who had recently been brought into the hospital suffering from rupture.

IN COLOR SCHEME

Harmonious Hues Should Be Aim, Fashion Writer Says.

Choice of Pleasing Shades Affects Mental and Physical Health and Happiness; Avoid Discord.

Much that is beautiful in art, nature, and in costume makes its appeal to us through color, asserts a fashion writer. We see a rare picture, we are attracted by a pretty gown, or we look upon a bed of poppies nodding in the wind, and exclaim, "How beautiful!" If we but stopped to analyze that remark, we should realize that the common quality that appeals to us in these different cases is color.

The choice of a harmonious color scheme in clothing and in the decorating of our homes affects our mental and physical health and so our general happiness. Color has virtually the same effect on us as music. It makes us sad or it makes us happy; it invigorates or depresses us. It is a language without words. And just as we are annoyed by discord in music, so are we disturbed by discord in color.

All music is based on the octave. All color music is based on the color of the rainbow, which is the best color chart. A particular color is like a particular note in music. It may be pleasing even by itself; but it is much more pleasing when it is combined with discordant colors. Every note on the violin or piano, as every color of the rainbow, is pure in itself; but when combined with notes that are not related to it and to one another, it produces a discordant effect. So, to produce harmonious results, one color must be related in some way to the other color or colors, with which it is combined. For a brown dress, for instance, following the correct color chart, one combination would be violet blue, which is the complement of brown; another combination would be orange-yellow, for brown is its tertiary shade. Brown also may be combined with cream or lavender, for the tertiary tint.

STYLES IN EVENING GOWNS

Long and Slim Dresses Chief Note at Paris Openings—"Bouffant" Draperies Disappear.

The chief characteristic about the latest among the evening gowns shown at the Paris openings is the fact that they are all long and slim. The "bouffant" draperies of last season have all disappeared and there remain only those lines which follow the grace of the natural figure. All of the materials which were used in those beautiful gowns of last season are still seen, only this year they never protrude in any way.

The thicker fabrics are being used for the formal evening gowns of the winter, velvets, thick satins with heavily woven backgrounds that make them drapable, and metal cloths, which are more apt to be plain than brocaded. The new metal materials look like thick and lustrous taffetas, with, of course, much more quality and body about them and always with that sumptuous glitter woven into their meshes. Lanvin remains faithful to the full dress, and she has created one famous model called the "Empress Eugenie," for which is promised a wave of popularity. It is made of white net with fittings for trimmings and with youthfully drooping shoulders that cannot help but charm.

Less gowns and gowns in feminine tones, especially for gowns for wear at night. After all it is the handsomest of all materials, and there is always that very feminine charm connected with it which cannot be duplet blue, which is the complement of brown; another combination would be orange-yellow, for brown is its tertiary shade. Brown also may be combined with cream or lavender, for the tertiary tint.

There are three primary colors, red, yellow and blue, the pure hues of which are called the intense, or spectral colors. There are six of these, as you know: red-orange (a mixture of yellow and red) blue-violet (a mixture of red and blue), yellow-green (a mixture of yellow and blue).

The spectral colors are divided into two classes: warm and cold. Red, orange and yellow are warm; green, blue and violet are cold. As a rule warm color combinations are to be preferred; but when complementary colors are used, warm and cold are nicely balanced, and the effect is always pleasing. For example, in a room furnished in brown tones with hangings and upholstery of blue, a judicious use of orange-yellow or gold for the bright color note produces a harmonious effect.

Knowing, then, the basic rules of color combination, and looking to nature as the best teacher in color harmony, we should apply those rules to our clothes, our homes and our handicrafts.

Black Lace and White Velvet.

Some of the most striking combinations of black and white are seen in models of black lace used in conjunction with white velvet. A favorite way of making a dress from these materials is to develop a simple foundation of black lace with long sleeves that hang loosely to about the elbow from where they fit tightly over the lower arm and wrist. The velvet is used to form the front portion of the dress, which is in apron panel effect. Often the white velvet panels carry beautiful embroidery in black.

Breakfast Coats.

Breakfast coats are bewitchingly pretty pieces of feminine wearing apparel and something that most women can make for themselves.

AFFORD VARIETY IN CLOTHES

Necklines, Sleeves and Trimmings Supply Modes to Choose From; Little Change in Silhouette.

With so little change in the silhouette we are in a measure dependent on necklines, sleeves and trimmings for variety in our clothes, asserts a fashion authority.

While there is nothing strikingly new in the cut of the neckline, there is so much diversity that we have a great deal from which to choose. One sees the straight-across line on both day and evening dresses, the square-cut décolletage and the 1880 style for evening, as well as the low-cut back. Any number of the daytime models show high collars, but in many instances these are arranged so that they may be taken off at will, thus revealing a collarless dress.

It cannot be said that dressmakers are featuring any particular style in sleeves. Many styles are noted, from the short, little-sleeved puff to the long, light-fitting type. The latter is a feature of the lace dresses, and frequently is seen in dresses of other materials. Sleeves of other

Nothing Helped Me Until I Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Wyandotte, Mich.—"For the last four years I have doctored off and on without help. I have had pains every month so bad that I would nearly double up. Sometimes I could not even get up a room without stopping to rest, and everything I ate upset my stomach. Three years ago I lost a child and suffered so badly that I was out of my head at times. My bowels did not move for days and I could not eat without suffering. The doctor could not help me and one day I told my husband that I could not stand the pain any longer and sent him to the drug-store to get me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and throw the doctor's medicine away. After taking three bottles of Vegetable Compound and using two bottles of Lydia E. WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

GOOD ROADS

QUALITY OF ROAD MATERIALS

Bureau of Public Roads Seeking Information of Especial Value to Highway Engineers.

Such important questions as how hard a heavy motor truck pounds a pavement when going at 5 miles an hour and at 15 miles an hour are being answered by investigators for the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, in a series of scientific experiments, which, when completed, promise to be of great value to highway engineers. Already sufficient tests have been made to show that increased speed of a vehicle equipped with hard rubber tires tremendously increases the impact which its wheels make on the roadway where there is any unevenness. On the other hand, where pneumatic tires are used increased speed adds comparatively little to the impact. It has been suggested that these tests will be of great value not only in settling questions of design but may also lead to a rational basis for determining license fees for motor vehicles.

Trucks have been used in these tests varying in size from a 1-ton truck up to a 7½-ton truck carrying an excess load. Each truck was run over a special recording device embedded in a roadway and the impact made by a 2-inch drop from a ledge built in the surface caused the deformation of specially prepared copper cylinders forming part of the apparatus. The magnitude of the blow was accurately ascertained in pounds by measuring the extent to which the cylinder had been forced out of shape.

Recent tests were made with a 3-ton truck loaded with a 4½-ton load so that the total weight on each rear wheel was 7,000 pounds, the unsprung portion (that not supported by the springs) being 1,700 pounds and the sprung portion (that portion supported by the springs) 5,300 pounds. The truck was equipped first with an old solid tire that had been worn down to a thickness of 1 inch. Then, with exactly the same load on the truck, a wheel was used fitted with a new tire 2½ inches in thickness. And finally the truck was equipped with pneumatic tires 42 by 9 inches and blown up to a pressure of 142 pounds per square inch. The test demonstrated very clearly the bad effects an old tire is likely to have on a road surface and the greatly lessened impact produced by trucks when they are equipped with pneumatic tires. The tests show that as the vehicle's speed increased the impact from the old hard rubber tire increased greatly. The impact from the new hard rubber tire was somewhat less.

BUILDING PERMANENT ROADS

Eventually Highways Will Be Made Suitable for Bearing Burdens of All Vehicles.

Only cardinal roads can be made of expensive material at great cost in money and labor, yet every road should, and will, eventually be made suitable for bearing the burdens in proportion to the number and weight of the vehicles that use them.

HELP APPEARANCE OF ROADS

Trees and Shrubbery Should Be Planted at Various Places Without Obstructing Traffic.

Now is a good time to give some attention to the appearance of public highways in the community. There should be trees and some plantings of shrubbery at places where they will not interfere with traffic.

Obstacles in Road Building

The building of improved roads to meet the traffic requirements is fraught with almost as many obstacles at the present day as that of half a century ago.

Best to Improve Roads

It is better to improve the roads than to pay an indirect tax for bad ones.

Beauty Doctors

A woman's fondest hope is to stay young. She often resorts to paints, powders and cosmetics to hide her years. Some women pay large sums to so-called "Beauty Doctors" in the belief that money will buy youth. Others wear girlish dresses, thinking they can fool the world about their age. But no one is deceived. The more you try to hide your age, the more it shows.

There is but one thing that holds old age back, and that is health. Sickness and weakness bring old age early in life. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a building-up medicine for women. It makes them healthy and strong when they suffer from women's troubles. It keeps them looking young by keeping them well. It is a woman's tonic for the frail, the delicate and those who are nervous, dizzy and who have backache and dragging pains. Favorite Prescription is altogether vegetable and without a particle of alcohol. It is safe to take. Try it now. In tablet or liquid form at all druggists, or send 10c for trial package of the tablets to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y.

WASHINGTON SIDELIGHTS

United States Has Eye on Mexican "Reds"

WASHINGTON.—The Fourth International, in the affairs of which the Russian Bolshevik leaders have assumed a commanding position, will meet in Mexico City next January. This statement is printed in a recent issue of El Universal of Mexico City, which points out that already the "Red" element is at work to exclude from the international at its coming meeting the leaders of the Liberal, or "yellow" element, as the Mexican calls the moderate radical. Furthermore, El Universal asserts that the present Mexican government will take no steps to oppose the meeting of the extreme radical groups of the world from assembling in Mexico City. That Bolshevism is making headway in Mexico is reported in advices being received here from numerous sources in Mexico. There was a demonstration a few weeks ago in front of the national palace in Mexico City, and only a few days ago a similar demonstration was held in the state of Nayarit, formerly known as the state of Tepic. Additional evidence that very little is being done to check the spread of Bolshevik doctrines south of the Rio Grande is the fact that the present Mexican government has failed to keep its word, given a few weeks ago, to deport from the country the various alien agitators, who, it is admitted, are the leaders and the brains of the Mexican radical movement.

In announcing that the Fourth International will be held in Mexico City, El Universal says in part: "In workingmen's centers a great animation is noted because by resolution taken in the Third International, held in Moscow last June, the Fourth International will be held in Mexico City next January. "The First International was held in London, the second in Petrograd, the third in Moscow and the fourth will be held in Mexico. "In the Third International, as we were told by various leaders of the workingmen, it was agreed that as the first three Internationals had been held in Europe, it was proper to hold the fourth on the American continent." It is asserted that the United States government is being kept advised fully of the radical movement south of the Rio Grande.

Country Runs Up Big Bill for Luxuries

IT COST the women in the United States approximately $750,000,000 last year to rouge their cheeks, comb their noses with powder and make themselves fragrant with perfume, according to a compilation of the luxury tax returns which have been made by Uncle Sam.

The cost of cosmetics and perfume was more than twice that of women's furs—in a year when the fur prices were the highest in history. The amount spent on furs was approximately $300,000,000.

The year 1919 was luxurious, according to the tax figures, which show that the amount spent on luxuries was $22,700,000,000. The ladies did their part in spending money on luxuries, but the expenditures were not confined to them. Eight hundred million dollars went up in smoke—cigarette, smoke, while $510,000,000 were burned up in the form of cigars.

Jewelry cost $200,000,000—an impressive sum, but only two per cent of luxurious expenditures. Planes, organs and phonographs entertained the people to the tune of $250,000,000, while automobiles cost $2,000,000,000.

When it comes to deciding what is and what is not a luxury your Uncle

Sam proves he's some tax collector. For instance: The gum the stenographer chews is a luxury; the diamond engagement ring is a luxury; the automobile that brings you to your work is a luxury; and toilet soap, cigars and soda water are placed in the same category.

Here follows some of the high spots in the nation's luxury bill: Soft drinks, $250,000,000; toilet soaps, $400,000,000; chewing tobacco and snuff, $800,000,000; ice cream, $250,000,000; chewing gum, $500,000,000; cake and confections, $350,000,000; "luxurious services" (whatever that means), $3,000,000,000; luxurious food (and you can write your own answer to that), $5,000,000,000; joy riding, pleasure resorts and races (if this is clear to you), $3,000,000,000.

Fix Strength of National Guard Units

TWO decisions of importance to National Guard organizations throughout the United States are announced by the War department.

The first prescribes 65 active enlisted men as the minimum strength at which National Guard infantry companies may be maintained, while the second permits the enlistment of recruits up to the day upon which organizations leave home stations for annual field training.

The announcement states that after July 1, 1921, the minimum peace strength of National Guard units shall be the same as those prescribed for the regular army. When the peace strength is greater than 65, National Guard organizations may be maintained at 65 active enlisted men, and such number of National Guard reserves as will equal or exceed the minimum peace strength for similar units of the regular army. While the policy establishes the active peace strength for companies and corresponding units of the National Guard, it is desired that every effort be made to encourage the maintenance of such units at the peace strength prescribed for the regular army, which will be approximately 100 enlisted men.

In order to facilitate the reorganization of the National Guard until July 1, 1921, companies and corresponding units are to be recognized with a minimum strength of 60 active enlisted men.

The second decision changes regulations which required members of National Guard organizations to be enlisted at least 60 days prior to attendance at camps of instruction in order to receive pay for such service. Under this change recruits may be enlisted at any time and paid for attendance at camp.

Optimist Finds Amusement on Street Cars

IS THERE no balm in Gilead? Are there no amusements aboard Washington street cars? One would think riding on local street cars is totally divested of happiness of any sort, to listen to some wailings on the subject. As a matter of fact, this is much as in other matters in life—you carry your happiness with you, even on a street car. Watching the motorman is interesting. If you become bored with yourself on a car, try to figure out what you would do with the motorman's evers and brakes if he should suddenly have a fit and the running of the car should devolve on the passengers. Hanging to a strap may be made a splendid exercise by alternate suspension by the right and left arms. Balancing without manual support develops muscles of equilibrium as well ger your capacity for good humor also is tested. Those with manifold leanings are in a paradise while riding on a Washington street car. How many men get seats next windows? What per cent of the male population arises to give what per cent of the female population seats? How many do get up to give their seats to other women, and

GREEN'S AUGUST FLOWER

The Remedy With a Record of Fifty-four Years of Surpassing Excellence. Those who suffer from nervous dyspepsia, constipation, indigestion, torpid liver, dizziness, headaches, coming up of food, wind on stomach, palpitation and other indications of fermentation and indigestion will find Green's August Flower a most effective and efficient assistant in the restoration of nature's functions and a return to health and happiness. There could be no better testimony of the value of this remedy for these troubles than the fact that its use for the last fifty-four years has extended into many thousands of households all over the civilized world and no indication of any failure has been obtained in all that time where medicine could effect relief. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

It Was Potent. "How about the haunting goods in this town?" asked the stranger. "In what particular?" said the old inhabitant. "Is it potent?" "Potent is the word. A gentleman of my acquaintance stepped out of a theater one night during an intermission and purchased a few drinks in a nearby alley. Then he returned to the theater." "Well, what is so remarkable about that?" "He didn't know, until the doorkeeper kindly told him, that it was the next night."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Politeness That Pays.

Two little girls were seated before a plate that contained two bunches of grapes—one a very large and tempting and perfect bunch, and the other a small and hard and green bunch. The youngsters regarded the two bunches for a space of time during which they said nothing. Finally, the polite child asked: "Are you greedy?" "No," said the other, "I'm not a bit greedy." "Then," said the first child, "You choose."

Back Given Out?

There's surely some reason for that lame, aching back. Likely it's your kidneys. A cold or strain often congests the kidneys and slows them up. That may be the reason for that nagging backache, those sharp pains, that tired, worn-out feeling. You may have headaches and dizzy spells, too, with a smoky bladder irregularity. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. They have helped thousands. Ask your neighbor!

A Wyoming Case

Mrs. Julia M. Gordon, 224 Orbell St., Cheyenne, Wyo., says: "Several years ago I was suffering with a dull heavy ache through the small of my back, and sharp pains would run through my kidneys. I was always tired out and languid. I used three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and they relieved me quickly and strengthened my kidneys."

New Style or Ignorance.

Mary had a new "fellow" and at the breakfast table members of the family who had given him the once over the evening before, were not backward about making comments. Father said: "Mary, why does the young man wear his hair so long?" Mary replied: "To tell the truth I don't know; it may be a new style or it may be just plain ignorance."

O. T. Nye arrived Saturday last from Los Angeles, and will be here and in the surrounding county for still another week, or more. Mr. Nye says his interests in Lincoln county brought him here at this time, but from an idea obtained from a conversation with him we are inclined to the belief that old associations had something to do with his return. At any rate, he speaks enthusiastically of our bright stars—in the firmament—beautiful nights, pleasant days, familiar surroundings. He speaks also of California, his present place of habitation, entertainingly, and says its a wonderful country—for people who like it.

Woman's Club

The regular meeting of the Woman's Club was held at Lutz Hall at 3:30 p. m. Nov. 19th, Vice President, Mrs. O. Z. Finley, presiding.

After the minutes of the last meeting were read and approved, suggestions for club motto, colors and flowers were handed in and the suggestions of Mrs. O. Z. Finley adopted as follows:

Motto: "One another help one another." Colors: Purple and Gold. Flower: White Carnation.

At each meeting new members are being added to the Club. To date forty-two members have been reported.

Year books are being prepared for the coming year and will soon be handed to the members.
