REPUBLICANS BREAK PRIMARY LAW PLEDGE

The fifth legislative assembly closed with one of the most important platform pledges of the republican party unfulfilled—that for a primary law. The platform specified primaries to select county officers and delegates to state and district conventions. The governor asked for a statewide primary law.

Several primary bills, following the platform pledge and the governor's personal promise to the people, were before the legislature. Each house passed a statewide primary bill, but the republican majorities refused to concur in either bill, although their provisions were almost identical.

THRIFT TALK FAILS TO BRING RESULTS

Although the republicans talked thrift in state expenditures and a reduction of taxes during the last campaign, they drew and carried into law an appropriation bill which not only failed to be economical, but which is the greatest appropriation a legislature has ever made. For the coming fiscal year and deficiencies for the past, the total is over $2,800,000, more than a quarter of a million of dollars more than the appropriation bill of two years ago carried.

With the slump in values of livestock and mining properties, the tax rate for state purposes will need to be curtailed substantially. The republicans sought to cover their tracks by passing a tax limitation bill which is designed to reduce expenses in county and city so that the state lavishness will not be noticed.

THE MOUNTED POLICE ARE PERMANENTLY FIRED

That the mounted police system of the state has been permanently junked was shown when the senate finally turned down the house of representatives' proposal for the creation of a force of state marshals. The house bill was reported to have been drawn in order to furnish employment to Lorenzo Delgado, appointed head of the mounted police, who was left out of a job when the legislature abolished the force.

When the bill was before the house, the democrats opposed it bitterly and were able to defeat it once aided by independent republicans. Later the party whip was applied and the republican majority succeeded in passing the bill. The democrats in the senate also stood firm and with independent republican senators, tabled the bill indefinitely.

WOULD DENY PEOPLE VOTE FOR SENATOR

One of the special republican bills introduced in the closing hours of the legislature was house bill 308, to allow the successor of Senator Fall in the U. S. Senate to hold office until 1925, instead of having him elected.

The bill was fostered by friends of Holm O. Bursum. Realizing that he would be named and that he had been twice defeated for governor in the state, they decided to make it possible for him to hold office for four years without running the risk of defeat in a popular election.

The bill passed the house before it was discovered that the federal constitution provides for an election. As it is, Senator Bursum will be forced to go before the people soon, possibly during the special election this fall.

UTILITIES AIDED BY G. O. P. LAW

Special legislation for the public utilities, particularly the electric light plant at Gallup, was enacted by the legislature just closed. House bill 168, passed by both houses, provides that existing public utilities shall not have competition unless the district court so orders.

The bill was vigorously supported by W. H. Gillenwater of Gallup, former republican state chairman, who is interested in a public utility there. The democrats in both houses opposed it, and denounced it from the floor as a particularly flagrant piece of special legislation for republicans only by republicans.

USELESS OFFICE EASILY CREATED

The republican party showed how much respect it had for its party pledge to abolish useless offices by creating the office of state archeologist.

There are no duties to be performed and for the present no appropriation is provided. That is to be taken care of by the next legislature. The present job was merely to create another useless office.

Sheriff Harris and Deputy A. M. Vega left for Las Vegas Tuesday having in charge Juan Maes, the latter having been adjudged insane by Judge Mechem. The unfortunate man who was taken to the asylum by the officers had lived in the Arabela country for a number of years.

Reception to Mr. Cribb

Carrizozo is soon to lose one of her most active, upright and progressive citizens. Mr. R. T. Cribb who has made Carrizozo his home for the past seven years, is preparing to leave next week for Scranton, Arkansas, to become pastor of the Southern Methodist church at that place. As a citizen, Mr. Cribb has been one of our best; as a social and community worker he has accomplished a great deal, and the good he has done will last long after his departure. In recognition of his faithful work here, he will be tendered a farewell reception at the First Methodist church Monday evening, March 21, beginning at 7:30. Mr. Cribb has made the town better for having lived in it; everybody is his friend, and a large crowd will be on hand to extend best wishes and hearty good will in his new work.

The Vera Cruz

The Vera Cruz mine, located about ten miles east, which has been shut down for some time, is about to be worked on a different plan. The tunnel will be abandoned, temporarily at least, and an 800 foot shaft sunk to connect with the ore body believed to lie at about that depth. Work will be pushed on the proposition until mineral in place is struck.

Gallacher—Gray

William W. Gallacher and Miss Edna Gray were quietly married at the Methodist parsonage at 8:30 p. m., Saturday, March 12, Rev. C. G. Higbee performing the ceremony. John Gallacher, a brother of the groom, and Mrs. L. T. Bacot, sister of the bride, stood with the couple during the ceremony, the ring feature forming part of the ceremonial.

There were also present the groom's mother, Mrs. Jane Gallacher, Mr. L. T. Bacot, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Maxwell. The contracting parties are among our best known and most popular young people. The groom has spent practically his entire life in Lincoln county, the notable exception being his service in the U. S. army from 1917 to 1919, and who, having grown to manhood in our county, has become one of our leading citizens and prominent ranchmen. The bride, whose parents reside at Hurley, is a sister of Mrs. L. T. Bacot of Carrizozo, and has lived with her sister the past year.

Mrs. Gallacher, who was one of the town's most attractive young ladies, with her sweet disposition and charming manners will lend a delightful radiance in the home of the man she has chosen for a life partner. The best wishes of a host of friends are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Gallacher, in which the News most heartily joins.

Mr. and Mrs. Gallacher left Sunday evening for Hurley, New Mexico, to visit the bride's family. Upon their return they will make their home at the Gallacher ranch eighteen miles north of Carrizozo.

Injured in Wreck Near Town

One of the most serious accidents in the history of the town occurred here Monday afternoon. As a result three people were most painfully injured, one of them dangerously. Pete R. Phillips lies at the Lackland House, still unconscious from the effects of the collision, with a cracked skull and possibly concussion of the brain. Mrs. Phillips also received severe head wounds; but recovered consciousness a few hours later, and is, apparently beyond danger; while the infant was badly shaken up, bruised and cut about the head, yet it seems to be entirely out of danger.

The accident occurred at the crossing of the railroad east of town, known as the Capitan-White Oaks crossing, wherein the Phillips automobile was struck by passenger train No. 7. The Phillips car was coming from White Oaks and was approaching the crossing just as Champ and Don Ferguson's cars approached it from another angle, the latter coming from Nogal. The Ferguson boys, seeing the train coming, had stopped, and noticed that Mr. Phillips checked his car, apparently to give the Ferguson boys the right of way, as they supposed Mr. Phillips had also seen the approaching train. Seeing the Ferguson car standing still Phillips gave his car gas and started across the track, and just as the car had almost cleared the crossing train No. 7 dashed by, striking the rear end of the car, throwing it high into the air, wrecking it completely and throwing its occupants violently to the ground. Mr. Phillips was picked up about 100 feet from the collision, and his wife and baby, who were more fortunate, not so far.

The Ferguson boys were the only witnesses from the ground, and it is said the engineer, C. V. Cook, did not see the automobile until a second before his engine struck it. This is quite natural, as the train comes out of a cut just north of the crossing, and until the train leaves the cut little can be seen. On the other hand it was a stormy day, and very likely Phillips was unaware of the train's approach.

The train was stopped as quickly as possible, backed up and the injured were placed on board and brought to the station. In the meantime one of the Ferguson boys who had witnessed the accident, hurried into town, saw Dr. Johnson, who met the train and had the injured conveyed to his office. Mrs. Phillips regained consciousness during the night, the baby recovered from the shock in a few hours, but the husband has remained in a comatose condition until this morning, when he began to show signs of returning consciousness and still later today appears rational, and the attending physician feels quite hopeful of his recovery.

Amendments

A half dozen proposed constitutional amendments were provided by the recent legislature to be submitted to vote of the people at a special election in September.

The Anti-Gambling Law

Below we give the main provisions of the anti-gambling law passed by the state legislature which has just adjourned. The law becomes effective June 15:

Section I. It shall hereafter be unlawful to play at, or operate any game or games of chance, such as keno, faro, monte, pass-forte, passmonte, twenty-one, roulette, chuck-a-luck, hazard, fan tan, poker, stud poker, red and black, high and low, craps, blackjack, or any other game or games of chance played with dice, cards, punch board, slot machines or any other gaming device by whatever name known, for money or anything of value, in the state of New Mexico.

Section II. Any person who is the owner or possessor of any game mentioned in Section I, or any person engaged in operating any such game, or knowingly supplying such game with cards or dice or other device, or who is in actual possession and control as owner, lessee or other wise of the premises upon which any such knowingly lease premises so to be used, or who having leased such premises knowingly permits the same to be used shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than $500 nor more than $1,000, and shall be imprisoned in the county jail for not less than three months nor more than six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Section III. Any person, or members of any organization or club who manages, controls, or banks any such game, or who takes or receives any money or thing of value of anything representing value for himself, themselves or such organization or club, or for any other person from such game to buy drinks, cards or for expenses of the game or for running such game, or for any other like or similar purpose shall be deemed an operator of such game.

Section IV. Any person who shall play at any of the games of chance mentioned in Section I of this act, shall be punished by a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $400 and shall be imprisoned in the county jail for not less than 30 days nor more than six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Section V makes it the duty of district attorneys to institute proceedings by information against any persons charged by affidavit with violation of this act and all district courts shall especially charge the jury at each term of court on the subject.

Section VI relates to the habitual use of any place for gambling, while section VII defines the duties of the attorney general and district attorneys with reference to enforcing Section VI; and Section VIII authorizes the issuance of a warrant for search of a suspected building and the arrest without warrant of persons therein and to seize the gambling paraphernalia. Any gambling house is declared to be a public nuisance by Section IX. Termination of the lease of any tenement of property used for gaming purposes is the provision in Section X. Provision is made in Section XI for the subpoena of persons, to compel their attendance as witnesses and to compel them to testify as to the violation of this act; and add: "Any person so summoned or examined shall not be liable to prosecution for any violation of this act about which he testifies;" and further: "A conviction may be had for any violation of this act by the unsupported testimony of any accomplice or participant."

Nogal Mining District

A report from the Nogal district is to the effect that considerable mining activity is looked for in that district this year. The Helen Rae company which recently put in five stamps has ordered ten more. A foundation is being made for the new stamps. An order for 40,000 feet of rough lumber for sheds store houses, etc. has been placed, and it looks as if Nogal is about to stage a "come-back."

Plant Trees

Plans are being made for the planting of 70,000 young trees in New Mexico and Arizona by the forest service of Albuquerque. The trees will be furnished by the foresters of the district. A date will be set for the early part of April and the trees will be given free. Send your application to the nearest forest office.

Short Cuts To Wealth

FROM TIME TO TIME there flash across the background of sane and sober finance such startling figures as that of Ponzi, who promised and paid for a time, 50 per cent. interest on personal notes for forty-five days. They flash and disappear, leaving in their wake scores of sadder but wiser victims, whose small savings, representing years of effort, have been wiped out in as many days. Humanity is always impatient of results. We are all eager to find a short cut to health, fame, power or wealth. We scorn the well-established, toilsome, but certain route to our goal.

There is but one sure road to competence or wealth—through Industry or Thrift. Safely placed in this bank, your savings will be steadily earning 4 per cent. compounded twice yearly. There are always those who would have you scorn that modest 4 per cent., and who promise vastly greater returns. Remember, interest rates are set by the risk involved. You cannot afford to venture your all upon a "long chance."

If you have not already opened a savings account with us, come in and let us show you how co-operation will bring progress to both of us.

Yellow Men Sleep

The princess was startled, and her face seemed rather pale as she stared at him. It was apparent that she cherished the plan of the empire of the Yellow Sun, perhaps because she was born to be an American. Levington wondered if she knew what the Asiatic interpretation of this idea might require, from herself in particular. In caliphate and klanate, there can be no plan of priest, warrior or king that is not discussed behind the lattices of the female courts, and the girl is too young to know her place in the scheme. Indeed, the statecraft of the Orient often originates within these fragrant sanctuaries.

Tau Kuan imprisoned much of beauty. Helen had been broadly educated. Levington was tossed unhappily between the girlish purity of the princess and the probable depths of her sophistication. Something, perhaps a masculine pride, hinted to him that she was wrestling herself with two credulous white men. Something reminded him that she had Irish blood, the spring of sobriety and grave humor. The same faculty in Tom reminded him also how nicely she had concealed a surprise that would have been natural upon meeting two Americans for the first time in her life, and particularly one of them her own father. Yet this might be nothing more than a result of Chinese training, the self-control that nothing can disturb.

"Yes," she said slowly. "I have heard of the Molting Pot, but Chee Ming says there is no fire under it."

"He knows better than that, for he has been searched by it," said Con.

"But a race does not rise to greatness by fear and force," Andrew March was saying ardently. "A city cannot become perfect against its will. There is no love in Tau Kuan."

Helen was passive. "That is what mother used to tell me," she said.

March sighed bravely. Even Burch hated his self-imposition, and turned and small eyes upon his mistress.

"Levington has told you the truth about our country," March continued. "The fire that Chee Ming has overlooked is freedom. It is not in his philosophy. Under his guidance Tau Kuan might one day be a united nation, but it would be a race of—Burch."

"Does Burch trouble you?" she asked of Con, not hesitating to wreck her father's conversation.

"Not at all," said Levington, as he removed the spea from his neck for the fifth time. Nor did Con intend to grog serious, but he felt suddenly that this was the penalty for his wasted life—to come into her presence only in time to find that she was being drawn into an inevitable gray sacri-

free. He did not observe the glance March gave him, a look of trust and appeal. Helen did not comprehend the new intensity in Levington's gray-blue eyes; she knew nothing of the pain she started in the heart of this wanderer. Then her father humbly asked:

"Are you—are you fond of Prince Yekutai?"

She glanced at him quickly and smiled.

"You are like mother. She asked that question many times, when the prince and I were small, very young people."

"And what reply did you give your mother?"

"I do not remember. She counseled me, and made me promise—but I have forgotten. The prince can ride and shoot. He recites all the songs of his land. He is a very fine young man, a

If this were wanton torture, she delivered it with perfect calm. Levington caught his breath, and storm threatened within him. It was both a relief and an agony to know that she did not love the prince. Levington's personal state was sunk deeper when he recalled that he was himself a prisoner, and would doubtless be out of the way in a short while. And then he caught the sentence from her lips, a casual mention:

"Our nuptials begin at the new moon."

Andrew March leapt to the center of the rug, and his eyes were ablaze.

"Little girl, you do not know life! You speak of things unbearable. This is criminal. You are white, as your mother tried to impress upon you, and they have made you forget it. You cannot be handed about in the oriental fashion. They are crazy cat here. Yes, they are devils!"

Now the withered and double-scarred Chinese servant entered the room, and at his heels came four of the huge soldiers, the same who had ridden down the white men in the ravine, and who also had appeared against them before the prince. Their swords dangled and clinked. Their boots were free from dust, and the cloaks upon their high shoulders were of heavy raw silk, a golden yellow. Their hairy countenances were a fourfold replica of hate and cruelty. They had come to remove the prisoners. Tom Levington had to be urged.

CHAPTER IX

Below the Walls.

On his roof again, Con noted that an awning of green silk had been stretched over his doorway, and a couch placed beneath it in the open air for his abated comfort. A silver pitcher of wine stood on a table, and he found that the wine was acceptable, having been cooled in spring water. But all was secondary, even the silent departure of the guards, for he was thinking in a whirl of Helen March.

Her innocence was amazing, like her wisdom—an American personality with strange diagonals of the Orient. Con loved the tang of desert sunlight upon her face, her throat and arms. Her shoulders were neither wide nor narrow, and she was not tall. He remembered everything she had said, and was unable to evade her final utterance, which became more and more a sublimated poison to him. He turned back to yesterday, recalled how she had ridden, how her pony had galloped from the top of the ravine after her word had saved them, how her brown hair had streamed out from the soft gray cloak. No Chinese princess could ever have ridden at such a pace. But, again, there was the gentle, almost lifeless movement of her hands, and the low fullness of her voice when she talked of Tau Kuan.

She was a delightful sorrow to Levington, as if all his days, too, had foretold her. She did not know herself. She was eighteen. The ways of these outland people were familiar to her, and it was natural she should love their national interests, strangely like America's, bitterly different. The red-dish palace was home. Her mother was gone. The grand vizier had brought her American gowns, street suits, and other articles the models had displayed at Sperman's in the city terribly far distant.

There was no estimating the pains the old Chinese had taken to secure such things for her. Con knew at least of his connection with the Wedger house, which must have been arranged by secret means, and it was clear that Chee Ming had taken many a point from Cecil Wedger's incipient queens of the cinema. The vizier had been content to cook for a young man, merely to garner some information as to how a young American girl should be dressed, how she must talk and think, and what, if anything, might please her. Con appreciated the genius that had made the exclusive Wedgers a part of Chee Ming's plan for the completion of Tau Kuan, empire of the Yellow Sun.

The tangle of East and West troubled Levington more and more. Helen had almost lost her mother's counsel regarding Prince Yekutai. It was too easy to feel the dead Ethina's horror of the young Mongol, and of the plan she had foreseen, his marriage with her little white daughter. The mother must have striven to develop American instincts—the riding of ponies, love of oak trees, independence, and natural frankness.

Levington saw more vividly how March must have loved Ethina, how the loss of her had nearly broken down his spirit, and, at last, how he had kept secret his innermost intention for another journey into the perilous Gobi. It had meant too much for him to put his hope in words. He had planned to run down the international ban, to look at all that side of the story was just as he had confided it to Levington. But then there had been much more. March's interests did not begin or end in a federal commission. Con realized now she deep and double lea-

Chee Ming in Dory street, married the drug, only to find that the tracings led to the Gobi desert.

The affair of the present morning returned to mind—the monzol in his enchanted garden. Despite seeming leisure, events in the palace went too swiftly for a final valuation. Con was puzzled to find that the more closely he tried to recall the garden, the appearance of the fat lord, the singing bird, the dancer, and the magician, the less he knew about them. Had the juggler poured his wine into the fourth dimension, or was the watcher merely transported by a breath of the drug? Levington went now to the outer corners of his prison, enduring the hostile eyes of a double guard, to look for the vine-covered bower of royal entertainment, but could see nothing of it. He must have turned into a courtyard of the palace itself. One grim assurance clung to him—the staler fragrance of Kerech.

Through mid-afternoon, as often as his active mind abandoned some new and equally futile plan of escape, his thought circled around to Helen. He reclined under the green silken awning and repeated her name. He was awakened to the center of his being, and was scarcely aware that every new plan for escape included two others besides himself, and one a princess. Mentally she remained with him—in the throne room, her glance toward the prisoner she had spared, her freedom with the proceedings, her beautiful feet, a Western woman as he must have guessed had it not been for the slight tilt of her brows and this he had seen, more closely, to be but the cunning work of her maid-servants; in her own apartment, surrounded by things American, the transformation that was not complete because of her Chinese training, personal qualities that tantalized him, the first words that had thrilled him so unaccountably and the last bringing a clutch of terror; the clear young beauty of her face, her lips, the soft brown of her hair, the curve of girlish shoulders, the grave pleasure at meeting that stranger, her father, and the memorial view she held of her own future as queen of this fantastic state. These fragmentary thoughts possessed Levington, brought him life as it had never come before, hurt him awfully, so that he sighed and tossed about on the green cushions.

Then he remembered once again that they would not permit him to "live." This fact had a totally new aspect, and the novelty of it now brought him to his feet. His gray slave started up in surprise, and the pair of big-sworded soldiers made themselves felt at the stair-head. For the first time in his career Con rebelled against death. It seemed no longer a part of the game. Instant or slow, death did not interest him now; it was a stupid rule of the play. He wanted mightily to live. There was something both sweet and very bitter in dwelling in the same desert city with Helen March. There were so many things he had to tell her, so much he longed to ask; also an additional urgency for a talk with her father.

Late in the afternoon, he retreated to his inner chamber, hot and impatient. In the smaller of two rooms, which were barely furnished, the walls in creamy white, he hung himself upon the soft couch, but his touch was oddly unpleasant, like a caress from the wrong person. He arose in disgust, and stared at the brass lamp with its fragrant green oil. The gray boy also had come in out of the sun, and was now a squint beside the divan. Slowly he pulled the cord that set the long curtains swaying overhead. From time to time he sprinkled water upon these curtains, then resumed the fainting. But physical comfort only heightened Con's uneasiness. He felt the power of the fact that they were bestowing these elaborate attentions upon him only to make him a better white slave in the history of Tau Kuan.

No one came. The sun laid a golden path across the rug of the outer room. Levington's repeated requests, invitations and demands for Chee Ming resulted in nothing. The day seemed interminable.

At the hour of sunset his two warriors appeared at the door, with two others. They were always the same sort of tall, muscular riders, and seemed to represent a certain blend of large-boned races, especially designed for war. They led Con to the baths, and March was already there, prone upon the mat, suffering the barber. The familiar key-shaped blade was poised and darting about his face.

"They brought me a Kurdish woman," said March, with a tinge of disgust.

"What is our move?" asked Levington, as they unrolled his costume, and the manservant appeared at his side.

"I can't hear it," said March. "I can't get to find a way. Have you figured out anything?"

"I haven't forgotten that we are at least five weeks' journey from anywhere, and every hour of those weeks an impossibility to us."

The irony hurt the younger man, who saw that his friend was broken. The noble slumped slumped. His bein this weird defeat. "And it is too late to stop their marriage," he concluded. His despair was very hard for Con.

The baths were accomplished without another opportunity for words, and Con was taken under guard to his two rooms and the roof. He had seen no more of the palace than before—the same ill-scented corridors, the spray of three fountains, the broad shadow crescents that its roofs cast down upon the houses clustered under the eastern wall. He could not guess how many human beings were contained here. He saw nothing of the stunted and crooked men of the mines, for they did not dwell within the city. The soldiery was in evidence, mostly upon steeds that were more sturdy than symmetrical. On the return across the palace lawn Con had noted a small party of women, closely veiled, moving toward the fountain. Their robes were of figured stuffs, the ends of their head-veils drifting white. Two coffee-colored giants had walked behind them.

Food was served as before. Attendance was servile and silent. The dinner was worth eating, for it included roast lamb, a salad of small orange-colored leaves, spicy and each as round as a penny, and vegetables which were in favor like potato crossed with celery. The wine was an evening breath from fruitful places.

Again he sent for the vizier and no one came. The wails of day's end lifted from the western fields, and once again the flocks were herded away for the night. Just over the western fortification four camels were unhitched from their plows and driven to the rusty spring near the sheds. The little monkey visited the white man again in time to share cucumbers and green tea. Levington began all over, pacing the roof, searching mentally for escape. He wanted to talk with March.

Final rays of sunlight touched the high apartments of the palace, but left his own in blue twilight. The curving tiles jutted down closely over every window, like clinging, watchful shadows. The walls felt cruel to the white man. He began to imagine the marriages and matings in those upper chambers, the deaths and births and sudden hearts, cold lust, endless lassitude.

With the darkness came the Arabian girl. One of her gurgils remained with the two at the stairway. The maid faced again the man who puzzled and terrified her. Con could not read the warm depths of her eyes, but fancied many things. She attempted a few words in her own language, then smiled faintly as he failed to comprehend. He would never know what she had wished to tell him. Again he gave her the inner chamber and drew the curtains after her, again he went circling about his inclosure. The monkey whimpered, then climbed over the wall the way he had come, quite distressed that his new friend should not notice him.

Night hours deepened about the palace. Some time toward midnight a number of words reached the prisoner from a space below. This was unusual, for the voices of the city were too far distant to carry to the roof and the shalving palace was mute. The sound continued, indistinctly. Levington waited at the edge of the wall, but could not hear clearly. Evidently it was a prayer, very earnestly presented. More and more it sounded like the voice of Andrew March.

Prominent New Hampshire Woman Says Tanlac Brought About a Wonderful Change in Her Condition.

MRS. AURORE BARRETTE of Manchester, New Hampshire

"Tanlac is a grand medicine, and I think every suffering woman ought to know about it," was the statement made recently by Mrs. Aurore Barrette, at her residence, 133 Second Street, Manchester, New Hampshire. Mrs. Barrette is a well known and highly respected resident of that city.

"I have not felt at all well for the past year or more," she continued. "I haven't been sick enough to be in bed, but I was far from being a well woman. At times I thought I had kidney trouble, for I suffered almost constantly from severe pains across my back, just over the kidneys. Whenever I tried to do any housework at all that dull pain would be there, and if I attempted to stoop over it just felt as though my back would break. I would get so weak and worn out I would have to sit down and rest several times a day, and I felt tired all the time.

"This condition made me awfully nervous, so that I rarely ever slept well at night, and every now and then I would jump in my sleep, as if in a fright, and my condition was really becoming serious.

"Only two bottles of Tanlac have brought about a wonderful change in my condition. In fact, the results I have received from this medicine have really surprised me. Those terrible

BUT HE MADE FINE SPEECH

Fact That Candidate Didn't Say What He Was Talking About Was Really Small Matter.

"Well, Jack," asked Mrs. Monrough of her husband, "and what did you think of the speech of our new candidate for parliament at the next election?"

"Oh, Mary, he certainly is a great speaker!" answered her husband.

"That so?" commented his wife. "Did he speak for long?"

Jack Monrough whistled. "Yes, my dear. He could beat even your sex at the game," he added humorously. "He spoke for three solid hours!"

Mrs. Monrough was accustomed to her husband's jibes and she let it pass unanswering.

"What did he talk about?" she queried.

Mr. Monrough scratched his head in perplexity. "Come to think of it," he answered at last, "he didn't exactly say!"—London Answers.

pains in my back which used to trouble me every day have almost disappeared, and I am going to keep on taking Tanlac until they leave me entirely. I have lots of energy now, and am not only able to do my housework, but I get through the day without feeling the least bit tired. I am no longer nervous like I was, and I sleep well at night.

Material Called Lamb's Fleece in Syria Merely Went by Another Name in England.

A certain young globe-trotter, possessed of more money than brains, was prevailed upon by one of the sons of the prophet to purchase at a very large price a quantity of what was described as Syrian lamb's fleece.

This, when he returned to London, he sent to his tailor with orders to line an overcoat with it. A few days after he called to try on the coat.

"You didn't send us quite enough material, sir," remarked the tailor. "And I had to get some more to line the sleeves."

"But," remarked the traveler in surprise, "it's impossible to obtain that fleece in England. It's only to be obtained in Syria."

"Not at all, sir," was the reply. "In England we call it rabbit skin!"—Montreal Herald.

Stock Raising in WESTERN CANADA

is as profitable as grain growing. Successes as wonderful as those from growing wheat, oats, barley, and flax have been made in raising horses, cattle, sheep and pigs. Bright, sunny climate, pure low grass, good water, enormous lumber crops—these are the reasons why the farmer and stock raiser. And remember, you can buy on easy terms.

Farm Land at $15 to $30 An Acre

—land equal to that which through many years has yielded from 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre—grazing land convenient to good roads and markets. The land is sold at proportionately low prices. The lands have every rural convenience: good schools, churches, roads, telephone, etc., close to live towns and good markets.

If you want to get back to the farm, or to farm on a larger scale than is possible under your present conditions, invest in the best Western Canada has to offer you.

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Light-Fingered Officers of the Cabinet

WASHINGTON.—A well-dressed little man wearing a cutaway coat and tortoiseshell spectacles—a veritable Raffles—was surprised by newspaper men the other day in the cabinet room of the White House executive offices while he was in the act of lifting a brass plate from the chair which has been occupied since March 3, 1910, by Secretary of War Newton D. Baker.

The little man had his back to the door when the reporters entered the room stealthily. He was so busily engaged with his pocket knife endeavoring to pry the brass plate from the chair he did not heed the intruders.

"Ah," the little man exclaimed, after a moment's exertion, "now I've got you."

"And we've got you!" shouted one of the newspaper men as the Raffles of the White House turned. Then the surprised reporters found themselves looking straight into the tortoiseshell spectacles of none other than Newton D. Baker himself.

"Well, boys," he said, "you've got me and I will confess," as he held up the brass plate bearing the inscription: "Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War, March 3, 1910."

"You may call it lifting the loot if you will," continued the secretary, "but I want this plate as a souvenir of my stewardship."

For mitigating circumstances the secretary took the reporters about the room and showed them how he had been preceded by other light-fingered cabinet officers. Plates were missing from the chairs of the secretaries of state, commerce, and interior and the attorney general.

"All these fellows beat me to it," the secretary said.

Airplane and Bomb Against Battleship

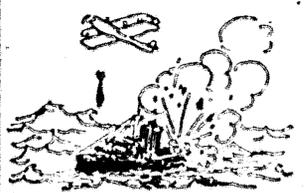

PARTICIPATION by the War department in experiments to determine the value of aircraft against major naval vessels has been invited by Secretary Daniels in a letter to Secretary Baker.

The first test will be conducted within ninety days, Mr. Daniels said, with conditions similar to those of battle. The captured German battleship Ouffriesland, of 20,500 tons, probably will be used.

Admiral R. E. Coontz, chief of naval operations, previously had told the house naval committee that within three months the Navy department would bomb a large warship from the air in the open sea in an effort to test the theory advanced by Brigadier General Mitchell of the army air service that airplanes had made capital naval vessels useless.

Representative Mondell of Wyoming, Republican floor leader, who preceded Admiral Coontz, warned the committee that unless expenditures for military establishments were cut some larger nations would be driven into bankruptcy.

The United States should take the lead in disarmament, he said, adding: "If an agreement is not reached for the limitation of armaments and warlike expenditures in the near future the fault will be that of America; as in former days the fault was that of Germany."

Discussing disarmament, Admiral Coontz advised against stopping any of the 1916 building program so far as big ships were concerned.

Secretary Daniels, in making public his letter, pointed out that by allied agreement the United States was obligated to destroy the Ouffriesland, and other former German naval vessels given this country, as soon as experiments under way were concluded. He could think of no more fitting or useful method of destroying them, he said, than by using them in aviation bombing experiments. He intimated that the old battleship Iowa, already fitted with radio control apparatus, would be used for a similar purpose.

The Ouffriesland was one of the more modern battleships of the former Kaiser's navy, mounting 12-inch guns. It is fitted with a very thorough system of bulkheads and water tight compartments.

Senate Prefers Blue Air to Blue Laws

SMOKING by employees is held responsible for several fires that have recently occurred in government buildings. In at least one of these fires valuable archives were destroyed. Senator Smoot of Utah has been trying to get in an amendment somewhere that would prohibit smoking during business hours.

Nevertheless, the senate has declined to embark on the making of blue laws. By an overwhelming majority, it rejected an amendment by Senator Smoot banning smoking in the government departments.

It did, however, adopt a mild substitute offered by Senator Wadsworth of New York, leaving it to the discretion of department heads to forbid smoking where valuable public records were endangered.

Spirited debate preceded the rejection of the Smoot amendment. Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democrat, declared that the measure was adroitly framed so that it would not forbid senators and representatives smoking in the capitol, although it would prevent the president from enjoying an after-dinner cigar at the White House. He considered this unfair discrimination.

Senator Knox of Pennsylvania, Republican, agreed with him. He called attention to the fact that the bill merely tabooed the smoking of tobacco and insisted the measure should be amended to cover "alleged" tobacco.

"Some of the odors that arise in the cloak rooms from the cigars gentlemen are smoking, make me doubt whether they can be called tobacco," said Senator Knox.

Senator Smith of Arizona, Democrat, characterized the measure as "the entering wedge of a most contemptible and restraining blue law," and charged that its supporters were nonsmokers.

Senator Smith declared that if this sort of legislation were to be enacted the United States would raise a generation of "dudes and nincompoops."

Germany's Big Bill for U. S. Soldiers

GERMANY apparently is running up quite a bill in the matter of the pay of United States soldiers in the army of occupation. Senator McKellar of Tennessee made a statement the other day in brief as follows:

Mr. McKellar.—Mr. President, I desire to make a statement in reference to the testimony of the Secretary of War a few days ago before the Military Affairs Committee of the Senate, as to the amount of the cost of our forces in Germany. The total cost of our forces in Germany up to date is the sum of $203,628,320. Up to September 30, 1920, Germany had paid $35,878,058, leaving a balance due the United States of $228,064,622. The average cost to Germany, when she pays it, will be $71,218 per day.

There was a good deal of doubt in the testimony which was adduced before our committee, and I have the figures up to September 30, 1920. Since that time an examination has been made, but up to date we have found no subsequent payments. At all events, the very conservative sum of $228,000,000

ing made to procure the payment, I ask unanimous consent to put these figures in the Record.

DARLING BABY BRIGHTENS HOME

Children's Laughter a Pleasing Sound

Altoona, Pa.—"I am writing to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. We had six children die almost at birth. From one hour to nineteen days is all they have lived. Before my next one was born I took a dozen bottles of your Vegetable Compound, and I can say that it is the greatest medicine on earth, for this baby is now four months old, and a healthier baby you would not want. I am sending you a picture of her. Everybody says 'That is a very healthy looking baby.' You have my consent to show these few lines to anybody."—Mrs. C. W. BENZ, 131 3rd Avenue, Altoona, Pa.

Mrs. Janssen's experience of interest to childless wives.

Millston, Wis.—"I want to give you a word of praise for your wonderful medicine. We are fond of children, and for a considerable time after we were married I feared I would not have any. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it strengthened me so I now have a nice, strong, healthy baby girl. I suffered very little at childbirth, and I give all the credit to your medicine, and shall always recommend it highly."—Mrs. H. H. JANSEN, Millston, Wis.

Mrs. Held of Marinette, Wis., adds her testimonial for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She says:

Marinette, Wis.—"I was in a nervous condition and very irregular. My doctor advised an operation. My husband brought me one of your booklets and asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It overcame my weakness so that I now have a healthy baby girl after having been married nine years. I am glad to recommend your medicine, and you may use my letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. H. B. HELD, 330 Jefferson St., Marinette, Wis.

There are many, many such homes that were once childless, and are now blessed with healthy, happy children because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored the mother to a strong and healthy condition, as it acts as a natural restorative for ailments as indicated by backache, irregularities, displacements, weakness and nervousness.

Women everywhere should remember that most of the commoner ailments of women are not the surgical ones—they are not caused by serious displacements or growths, although the symptoms may be the same, and that is why so many apparently serious ailments readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it acts as a natural restorative. It can be taken with perfect safety and often prevents serious troubles.

Therefore if you know of any woman who is suffering and has been unable to secure relief and is regretfully looking forward to a childless old age, ask her to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it has brought health and happiness into so many homes once darkened by illness and despair.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent to you free upon request. Write to The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.

WHEN JEFFERSON TOOK OATH HAD REPUTATION TO SUSTAIN

Early Presidential Inauguration at Which There Was an Abundance of Ill Feeling.

The first Jefferson inauguration had more drama about it than its three predecessors. The President-elect was received upon the portico of the newly completed north wing of the capitol by Aaron Burr, whom Jefferson cordially distrusted. And the oath of office was administered by one of his bitterest enemies, Chief Justice Marshall, who had been appointed to office by Adams in the closing days of the administration, an act which Jefferson regarded as not only an impropriety but a personal affront. Jefferson's feelings towards Burr and Marshall were well known.

Then the new president was escorted to the senate chamber, where he delivered his inaugural address, one of the most notable of all such speeches. He was afterward escorted to his boarding house, where he received the congratulations of the foreign diplomats and of the leaders of the popular party, who rejoiced over the defeat of the Federalists.

Farmer Had No Idea of Allowing Hired Man to Beat Him in Gathering Corn.

A Sullivan county farmer hired a man to help him gather his corn last season. Now, the farmer had a reputation for being an efficient worker, but the hired man was not daunted by it. They started out side by side, the hired man being advised by the farmer to keep as close to him as he could with the row he was gathering.

But lo! the new worker after a few minutes of keeping up with the farmer, passed him and soon was several feet ahead. Frantically the farmer pulled the ears from the stalks, but the new man still kept gaining. Then all at once he heard the farmer shout: "Stop," he yelled. "Stop, if you want to work for me. I never yet let any man who worked for me get ahead of me."

Willing to Hold. "I've been reared in the lap of luxury," said a millionaire's daughter. "Try mine for a change," suggested the impetuous young man.—Baltimore American.

Clara Hamon Acquitted

Clara Smith Hamon is a free woman this morning, the jury returning a verdict of acquittal yesterday at Ardmore, Okla., after having been out only 40 minutes. We scarcely believed the jury would do otherwise, whether it thought she killed Jake Hamon accidentally or intentionally. We trust now that the center of interest will be transferred from Ardmore, and further, that Clara doesn't break into the movies.

Tombstones for Deceased Soldiers

The American Red Cross is informed by the Cemeterial Division of the War Department that the government furnishes headstones for every ex-soldier buried in city or national cemeteries.

Each grave in a national cemetery is furnished with a headstone and all expenses attached to the erection of such headstone are borne by the government. However, in cases where soldiers are buried in town or private cemeteries, it is necessary for the deceased family to make application to the Quartermaster General of the Army for a headstone, which will be furnished free of charge by the government and sent prepaid to the freight yard in the town where the cemetery in which the deceased is buried is located. The family must meet the expense of hauling the stone from that point to the cemetery, and the erection.

Dwelling Burglarized

The dwelling of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Maxwell was entered and robbed Monday night while the members of the family were absent. Mr. Maxwell was out of town, and Mrs. Maxwell and children were calling at the home of a neighbor. Returning, after having been absent for perhaps a hour, Mrs. Maxwell found that the house had been entered and a number of articles taken. The principal items missing were a diamond ring, about $22.50 in money and a gun. Examination showed the burglar had entered through the back door, having made a slit in the screen which gave him access to the door which yielded to his methods. No trace of the culprit or the plunder has

The young people found at their first meeting in the church balcony that the light was insufficient; or, rather, that it came from the wrong direction. Accordingly a four-light cluster was placed in the center of this compartment last week, which proves materially serviceable to the new quarters. The home-like atmosphere grows with each succeeding meeting. The young people feel much more at ease in this friendly circle.

School Notes

(Sart E. Cole)

The Girls' Club, as guests of Misses Forden and Herron, met last Tuesday at the home of Mrs. John E. Wilson. Light refreshments were served. The Girls' Club is in a flourishing condition and no member misses a meeting if she can possibly avoid doing so.

A few days ago Mr. Cole took little Miss Lorene Stimmel of the fifth grade, into the Senior and Junior High Schools, to show the students of the higher grades what a fifth grade pupil could do. The little lady read extremely well and was heartily applauded. She read fluently and with great clearness, carried herself well and every vowel and consonant could be distinctly heard. There are four other pupils in the fifth grade who are about as good readers as Lorene.

Mr. Jay Vaughn has made a present to the pupils of the fifth grade which is greatly appreciated by them. It consists of five flower boxes, hopper-shaped and painted green. Being square-cornered in shape they are much more artistic than an ordinary rectangular box, and with the flowering plants in them they do much to add beauty to the room. Mr. Vaughn's generosity is to be highly commended.

It looks good to see the little tots of the lower grades back again after a siege of the whooping cough. Miss Ivy Lindsay, Miss Burton and Mrs. Massie are among our best teachers and are doing special work to bring good results after the lost time.

The Boy Scouts and Scoutmaster Cole "hiked" to the mal pais last Saturday. This lava flow is a most curious one. The crater is about twelve miles northwest of Carrizozo. The entire flow is sixty miles long, and, in order to flow so far, must have been very thin. The lava of Mt. Vesuvius is always thick; that of the Hawaiian Islands is very thin. This lava bed of New Mexico lies at the bottom of a broad and shallow valley and seems to have covered a great deal of fine grass land. It is curious to note that the edge of the lava is steep and about thirty feet above the grass land. This is accounted for by the fact that the edge of the flow cooled faster at the edge than in the middle. In some places the lava broke out, running out in "tongues" or promontories. Where this occurred it left valleys and caves at the edge of the lava bed. Running around these valleys and parallel at the distance of about fifteen feet, are deep fissures made by the tendency of the lava to slip into the valleys. A great deal of the lava looks like taffy which has been pulled, then twisted, then twisted again. In one place we found where the lava had been forced up into the form of a conical cave, hollow and open on one side. It is very properly called the "Tepee." There is, here and there, a great deal of grass. A flock of about a thousand sheep was seen grazing on top of the lava beds. The destination of Scouts was "The Island," high land not covered by the lava, a mile long and half a mile wide. The Scouts greatly enjoy these "hikes," and are learning something of the wonders of nature.

Uncle Walt's Story

WEXATION OF SPIRIT "WHEN I was in business," said the retired merchant, "I never had time to read much, and I used to look forward to the glad day when I could revel in literature. I felt sure I'd be entirely happy. I used to jot down the titles of books I intended to read, and when I retired from business I had a list as long as the Russian battle line. "And now that I can read all I want to, I don't get any enjoyment out of books. They bore me the worst way. I get sleepy as soon as I begin to read, and my wife comes and tells me my snoring is disturbing the neighbors."

"It's that way with everything we look forward to," observed the hotel-keeper, sadly. "Man always will be, but to never bleed, as some half-baked poet remarked. Young Gooseworthy was in here last evening, bubbling over with happiness. There wasn't anybody around, so he took me into his confidence. He's going to marry Gwendolin Jimalong, next month, and he's perfectly satisfied that his married life will be one long stretch of sunshine. He seems to have the idea that he's going to do something original when he gets married, but the idea isn't new. Men have been getting married ever since Christopher discovered Columbus, Ohio, and every duggone man jack of them had the idea that overhauling bliss was going to be inaugurated on the wedding day. "I listened to Gooseworthy for three hours, and hadn't the heart to say anything that would dampen his enthusiasm. His twittering recalled the long vanished days when I was getting ready to be married. I felt about it then just as he does now. I thought the parson opened the gates of paradise when he joined two loving hearts. My wife lived up to all the plans and specifications, and was and is one of the best women in the United States. But I hadn't been married three months before I had a sneaking conviction that the man who gets married is a chump. "A good many optimists say that a married man doesn't need any more money than a single one, if he marries the right sort of woman, but they might as well go to the blackboard and demonstrate that two and two make two, instead of four. I fell for that cheerful theory when I was married. I was earning enough to keep myself comfortably, and never had any financial worries. I could have been buried for less money than it took to be married, and the expenses from that time forward were double what they used to be, although my wife was so economical she used to make waists and such things for herself out of my superannuated shirts. "Oh, doggone it, there isn't any unadulterated happiness in matrimony. I wonder that young fellows like Gooseworthy don't look around them, and contemplate the dejected appearance of the majority of husbands. But even if they did, it wouldn't do them any good, I suppose, for they are full of pipe dreams, and they think the girls they are going to marry are different from all other girls, and that they will prove exceptions to the general rule. "I had a wise old uncle in those halcyon days, and about a week before the wedding day, he backed me into a corner and handed me a dust-proof package of wisdom. He tried to lead me into taking a sensible view of the future. He talked about the cares and responsibilities that would be mine after the wedding, and wanted to know if I felt equal to them. He tried to show me that I wasn't going to marry an angel, but a human being like myself, with a human being's faults and frailties. "I let him get that far, and then I told him that his gray hairs alone saved him from having his head remodeled, and said I never wanted him to darken my door, and he never did. I had to darken it myself, with wal nut stain. But many a time afterward, I recalled his wise words and wept over his grave."

Well Off. "After all a man never knows when he's well off." "What's happened now?" "I was just thinking what a fool I was for trading off my Liberty bonds for oil stock." Nut Walter Wanted. An old lady, after waiting in a confectionery store for about ten minutes, grew grossly impatient at the lack of service. Finally she rapped sharply on the counter. "Here, young lady," she called, "who waits on the nuts?"-Everybody's Magazine. The Consequence. "At the anti-dog meeting nobody muzzled the speakers." "That was the reason, then, there were so many biting remarks."

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Allies, Rejecting the Counter-Proposal of the Germans, Issue an Ultimatum

WILL OCCUPY RHINE CITIES

Armed Force Will Be Applied Immediately—French Troops Ready to Move—President Harding's Inaugural Address Indicates His Attitude Toward League of Nations.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.
"Rebusci," which used to be the favorite adjective of the Germans, may well be applied to their nerve as displayed in the counter proposals on reparations, submitted to the supreme council in London by Foreign Minister Simons and his colleagues. The world had expected from them something inadequate in the way of an offer, but the incidence of the proposal was something, even to unofficial Germany. Lloyd George and Brand heard it with ill-concealed decision, and the formal statement of the allies was that "it does not merit either examination or discussion."

This was followed by an ultimatum in which the German delegates were informed that if Germany did not accept the fundamental conditions laid down by the supreme council in Paris the allies would take immediate steps. First of these steps will be the occupation by allied troops of the cities of Dusseldorf, Dusseldorf and Julliere; second, each allied country will place on German merchandise such a tax as it may deem proper; third, a customs boundary will be established along the Rhine under allied control. Germany, said Premier Lloyd George in his reply to the German proposal, would be permitted to suggest no modifications of the Paris decisions except as to conditions of payment.

Doctor Simons answered that the German position had been misunderstood, and that he would reply on Monday to the ultimatum.

Briefly stated, Simons proposed that Germany pay the allies as war reparations about 50,000,000,000 gold marks—approximately $7,500,000,000—which is about one-seventh of the sum demanded by the allies. Also, the offer was conditioned on two provisions, that Germany be accorded free commercial privileges throughout the world, and that Upper Silesia, where a plebiscite soon is to be held, shall remain German.

Especially impudent was the suggestion to capitalize Germany's reparations payments through an international loan to be divided among allied countries and held free from taxation in all countries. This meant that the Germans want the allies to furnish them the money to pay their debts by allowing the Germans to offer so attractive an investment that it would outshine other securities and be made still more attractive through the surcharge of tax revenues by the allied governments.

Meanwhile the French, anticipating the outcome of the conference, were getting ready to enforce payment by Germany. Their plans for military action were prepared and submitted by Marshal Foch, and after prolonged discussion Lloyd George was persuaded to agree to Great Britain's participation in the use of armed force. A French officer in London said French long-range guns had already been moved forward to a position from which they commanded Brest where the Krupp works are located. Field artillery, cavalry and tank and armored car formations were held in readiness for the advance, and the air squadrons were awaiting the word to "take off." At Coblenz it was stated that the American troops, in the event of unbridled advances, would wage campaign to occupy the social lines now held by them.

and Britain in the Essen-Dusseldorf district. She had 13,000 troops on the Rhine and has sent two more divisions there. The French have 150,000 men in the occupation zone and 200,000 in reserve close by.

Among the interesting side-lights on the "poor mouth" presented by the Germans is the information afforded by a reliable American officer who has recently made a thousand-mile motor car trip through the chief agricultural and industrial districts of Germany. He says that Germany can pay the sums demanded; that he saw everywhere amazing evidence of productive labor and growing wealth.

All American eyes were turned toward Washington on Friday when Warren G. Harding was inaugurated President, and all American ears were open to hear what he had to say of the policies that shall control his administration. The ceremonies were simple and dignified, in conformity with the wishes of Mr. Harding. The new President, in his address, left no one in doubt as to his attitude toward the League of Nations as now constituted. Much of what he said was devoted to the general subject of international relations. He asserted that America had proved the wisdom of its inherited policy of non-involvement in old world affairs; that it can be a party to no permanent military alliance; that it can enter into no political commitments nor assume any economic obligations "which will subject our decisions to any other than our own authority." At the same time, he said, America is ready to associate itself with all other nations for conference and counsel; to seek ways to bring about approximate disarmament; to promote mediation, conciliation and arbitration, and to establish a world court for the disposition of justiciable questions submitted by agreement.

To his fellow citizens President Harding made an eloquent plea for "the resumption of our normal, normal way," for sane reconstruction after the devastation of war, for readjustment with care and courage without any wild expectations. Said he: "We must face a condition of grim reality, charge off our losses and start afresh." For his part, he promised administrative efficiency and economy, lightened tax burdens, adequate credit facilities, sympathetic concern for all agricultural problems, omission of unnecessary interference of government in business, and an end to government's experiment in business.

Among the interesting things which Mr. Harding hopes to bring about, according to unofficial announcement, is the creation of a "ministry of defense" under a cabinet officer, to control the national defense on land, on sea and in the air. This, of course, would mean the consolidation of the War and Navy departments. It is said the plan meets the approval of both Secretary of War Weeks and Secretary of the Navy Denby, and that both of them have agreed to give way if the plan is adopted.

In the last hours of its life the congress reached agreement on the army appropriation bill and it went through with provisions fixing the strength of the army for the next year at 136,000. The house had put the figure at 150,000 and the senate wanted 175,000, so the result is a compromise in which the upper house yielded most. The bitterest struggle was over the naval appropriation bill in the senate, the controversy being over the $100,000,000 added to it by the naval committee. This fight prevented the passage of a number of measures, among them the soldiers' bonus bill, against which Senator Thomas of Colorado threatened filibuster.

Contrary to predictions, the house judiciary committee took the charge against Judge Landis in all seriousness, and presented a report recommending that they be fully investigated by the next congress. The report said that if it were true that Judge Landis had accepted the position of baseball arbiter while holding his judicial position—and of course that is true—his action was "at least inconsistent with the full and adequate performance of the duty of United States District Judge, and that said act would constitute a serious impropriety on the part of the judge."

Judge Landis' reply to this was to refer to his statement of last December, when he said: "They will never impeach me. If both houses of congress by a majority vote pass a resolution expressing disappointment at my attempt to benefit 10,000,000 persons who have a whole-hearted interest in baseball, I will send my resignation as a federal judge to Washington by telegram."

John Skelton Williams retired Wednesday as comptroller of the currency, and in accepting his resignation President Wilson took occasion to comment on the "gross injustice" done Mr. Williams by the senate banking committee, which had prevented his confirmation. One of Mr. Williams' last official acts was to charge the United States Steel corporation with exacting excessive and unjustified prices for its iron and steel products. The accusation was vigorously denied by E. H. Gary, chairman of the corporation.

The house committee which investigated the doings of the shipping board made a report recommending the transfer of the functions of the board to an executive department because what is needed is more centralization of administrative authority than can be had with a large board. The committee found there had been waste, inefficiency and lack of coordination in the work of the board, but found no evidence "to prove that dishonest or fraudulent motives actuated any member of the shipping board of trustees of the Emergency Fleet corporation." Specifically, Charles M. Schwab and H. W. Bolling, brother-in-law of Mr. Wilson, were exonerated from charges of interested action. In general, the board was praised for "the most remarkable achievement in shipbuilding the world has ever seen."

A small slide door in the temple of Janus has been thrown open in honor of Panama and Costa Rica, which small republics seem determined to go to war over Coto, a piece of territory which contains valuable oil deposits and which is claimed by both. Indeed, hostilities already have broken out, a "battle" has been fought and several soldiers have been killed. A small detachment of Costa Ricans that had occupied the disputed territory was attacked by a Panamanian force and defeated. The excitement in both countries is intense, and in the city of Panama a war-mad mob even attacked the presidential mansion because President Porras had declared himself in favor of a diplomatic settlement of the quarrel. At latest reports Costa Rican forces were being rushed to the Coto district. It was believed some of them would be landed on the eastern shore of Burica point to cut off the Panamanians from their supplies. As this shore was given to Panama under the arbitration ruling of Chief Justice White in 1914, it was feared the United States might be involved, under the assumption that it is obligated to protect the territorial integrity of Panama.

Many stories, more or less detailed, of widespread revolt in Russia against the soviet rule have been coming to the outer world, usually by way of Finland. Hundreds of thousands of workmen, hungry, cold and without employment, were said to have opened war on the Bolshevik armies and rulers, and, especially in Petrograd, there were heavy casualties. These reports lacked confirmation, and were declared false by the soviet authorities. Recent dispatches from Helsinki reported the soviet government had not lost control and that Lenin was promising the workmen all the relief in his power.

In the death of Champ Clark of Missouri, former speaker, the country lost a distinguished citizen and the Democratic party one of its strongest members. He never entirely recovered from his defeat for the presidential nomination in the Baltimore convention and of late years had been comparatively inactive, but his life record in one of earnest and at times eminent labor for his country.

Hastings was arrested at Kingman, Ariz., on a charge of violating the Lyster act in the alleged stealing of an automobile and conveying it to another state.

The Salt River Valley Cotton Company's gin at Florence, Ariz., has suspended operations after a season of four and one-half months. Of this amount over 500 bales are in storage in the Salt River valley.

Work of placing a concrete top over the subway near the Baptist church in Tombstone cañon, in Bisbee, Ariz., for use as a parking place for autos, is progressing satisfactorily under the direction of P. H. Halleck, city engineer, and is about one-third completed. Halleck said that it would take a month to complete the work. The parking place will go a long way toward relieving congestion on the downtown streets.

Five members of the local order of the Knights of Pythias of Raton, N. M., had a narrow escape when the auto in which they were returning from Trinidad, skidded on the wet slushy road near the Colorado line, and turned over. The car fortunately left the road where there was a low drop, and although the five men were thrown into the ditch none of them were seriously injured, but all received a good shaking up.

Of the 1,200,000 head of cattle in New Mexico on Jan. 1, 1920, over 50 per cent or more than 600,000 head belong to members of the New Mexico Cattle and Horse Growers' Association while the members of the association number somewhat in excess of 40 per cent of all of the cattle owners in the state. The figures give some indication of the importance, not only to the cattle industry but to the state as a whole, of the seventh annual convention of the association, which will be held at Albuquerque, March 29, 30 and 31.

BUILDING MANY NEW TRAILS

To Assist in Construction of Highways Federal Fund of $64,533,019 Has Been Approved.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Between 9,000 and 10,000 miles of the marked trails which now crisscross the country from east to west and north to south are to be constructed by federal aid. This amount is composed of 836 projects, which form links in one or the other of the 24 marked trails which have been laid out by private associations.

Every automobilist is familiar with the Dixie highway, the Mohawk trail, the Roosevelt highway, and a score of other marked trails, which are so well built and maintained that driving on them is a joy and comfort. To assist in building these highways a federal fund of $64,533,019 has been approved by the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture up to September 30, 1920.

These trails do not constitute an entirely satisfactory system of transcontinental roads, as officials of the department say their selection in many cases has been influenced too much by such factors as pre-existing conditions, promise of improvement by local communities, pressure of selfish influence, and a desire to touch points of scenic and historical interest.

The extent to which federal aid has been applied to the trails varies in the different states. Naturally the Western states are using much more of their federal apportionments in developing roads of this character than the Eastern states. This is due to the fact that the trails in the Eastern states had already been improved to a large extent before the roads were selected by the pathfinders. This was not true in the West, where long stretches of the selected roads were still in an unimproved condition when they were designated.

Nevada leads in its use of federal funds on roads of this character.

A Trail Through the Mountains in Nevada.

Eighty-three per cent of its entire mileage of approved federal-aid roads lies on one or the other of the trails which cross the state. On these roads Nevada will spend 90 per cent of the federal money which has been granted to her.

DRIVERS CAN ASSIST ROADS

In Going Up Hill, Particularly One Paved With Concrete, Right Side Is Favored.

"Drivers can do as much, almost, for the maintenance of good roads as highway engineers," declares Alfred F. Masury.

"Did you ever notice," asked Mr. Masury, "in going up a hill, particularly one paved with asphaltic concrete, that the surface on the right-hand side of the road is wavy and rough, while that on the left-hand side is smooth?"

"Well, the reason is this: The extra traction required to climb the hill wears and tears the surface, while there is little or no traction down hill."

"Another thing, the right-hand track of the road in either direction is the one which is worn most. This is because of the arched surface of the road which throws the greater weight and strain on the right-hand side of the vehicle and consequently the right-hand side of the roadway. Truck builders and wagon makers have even adjusted their axles and springs so as to withstand the greater strain on the right-hand side of the vehicle."

Prices Must Decrease. Road materials must go down in price or the hard road building program will be discontinued, according to Gov. Len Small of Illinois.

Fear Roads Cause Loss. Bad roads keep you from marketing your products when the market is right.

To Plant Mines With Planes.

Washington—A new method of planting mine fields, involving the use of aircraft and a special type of mine equipped with a parachute, has been the subject of recent experiments conducted by the navy in Chesapeake bay, it was learned here. The mine used is the invention of Charles Kee, mechanical engineer, of Portsmouth, Va. The mechanism consists of the mine, anchor, cable and silk parachute. Large numbers of air planes, each carrying a number of the mines, can be sent over the area to be mined and the devices dropped at regular intervals. The parachute causes the descent to the exact spot selected and the instant the mine hits the water the parachute is detached and floats away to sink later.

Will See Twin Beds.

Chicago—"Kismet" is not the kind of moving picture which children of Winnetka, a north shore suburb, should be allowed to see, is the conclusion of the managers of the community house in that suburb. "The community house tries to provide pictures that are interesting, educational and good for the young mind," explained the Rev. L. W. F. Davies, director of the institution. "What picture will take the place of Kismet?" he was asked. "Well, let's see," he mused. "I cannot think of the title just now—it's—er—oh, yes! They call it 'Twin Beds.'"

Ford, Railroad President.

Detroit.—Henry Ford has been elected president of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton railroad at a meeting of directors of the road, to succeed Joseph A. Gordon, who remains on the board of directors. It was announced at the railroad's offices. Control of the road was assumed by the Ford interests last autumn.

Chicago.—The jest of jail companions who told him burglary was a hanging offense, was held responsible for driving Joseph Zeman, 18-year-old prisoner held for burglary, to the insane asylum. When he was arrested several months ago, he was sane, according to jail authorities. When jail inmates told him he could be hanged for burglary, he became insane, according to physicians.

Dawson, Y. T.—Tales of an oil well which produces 1,500 barrels a day and shot oil 100 feet into the air before it was capped were brought from Fort MacPherson by Canadian mounted police who made a 800-mile trip to the mouth of the Mackenzie river. Fort Norman is on the Mackenzie river about 400 miles south of the Arctic ocean and 500 miles east of the Alaskan border. The information was contained in letters received at MacPherson while the patrol was stopping there.

Yankee Sailors Expert at Sea

U. S. Merchant Marine Blessed With Officers and Men Quick to Learn.

CREWS ARE NOT MUTINOUS

Accidents to Ships Growing Fewer Because of Increased Experience—Make Good When Emergencies Arise at Sea.

Rotterdam.—Whatever may be the ultimate fate of the American merchant marine, the American Jack Tar has come back to his own. This is the verdict of constant observers in the shipping department of the United States consulate general at Rotterdam, one of the biggest ports for American ships in Europe, to which come monthly thousands of American merchantmen.

These Yankee ships' officers and sailors, for the most part products of only two or three years of training, have learned to handle their big freighters with all of the skill of the wildjammer crews of the old Yankee clipper days. They do not, for the most part, know how to reef a top-sail or do any of the hundreds of nautical things for which there were rich-sounding terms in the days of the sailing ships.

There is an emergency. But when it comes to plotting a big steamer through a heavy gale, stoking the fires of the coal burners or turning to with a vim at any of the emergency tasks that may develop at sea, the American born, American trained ship's officer or "A. B." (able bodied seaman) in the language of the seamen's resorts on the Schiedamsche dijk here, "won't take nuthin' from nobody."

The big books of the consulate general, in which are recorded the histories of the voyages of these American ships and the complaints of the crews, bear out Jack's contention that he is as able a seaman as any who sails the seven seas.

"These records show," said one of the consular officials, "that American ships' officers are as efficient as British, Dutch or Scandinavians trained long to the sea. They show that the young American sailor can learn his work quickly, that a boy whose nautical experience—three years ago—was confined to pumping water for the cows on the farm, or bathing in the old swimmin' hole, can adapt himself to his ship as well as a Norwegian lad who has been trawling for fish since he first wore trousers.

Different Now. "For a short time, because of lack of proper charts and much experience, accidents to American ships seemed much more frequent than to those of other nationalities. Now, this is changing. "American-born, newly-trained captains have no more trouble with their crews than the masters of ships flying other flags, or masters who have become naturalized Americans in order to get an American ship. In fact, in many cases they have less. "Not long ago, an American captain who was only 27 years' old, brought his tramp freighter all around the world, making money on the voyage, and his crew had not a single complaint to record against him."

Pennsylvania Surgeon Removes Own Appendix

Kane, Pa.—That he might exemplify in his own case that dangerous anesthetics were not necessary in an operation for the removal of the appendix, Dr. Evan O'Neill Kane, sixty, one of the most noted surgeons of this state, calmly sat upon an operating table and cut out his own appendix, while doctors and nurses stood by and watched. He applied only a local anesthetic.

Measure "Crepe Ring"

Observations of Planet Saturn Made by Harvard Astronomer.

Finds That the Inner Ring or "Crepe Ring," as it is Known to Astronomers, is 2,000 Miles Thick.

Cambridge, Mass.—The inner ring of the planet Saturn, known to astronomers as the "crepe ring" on account of the fact that it is much less brilliant than the others, has a thickness of 2,000 miles, while the other rings are very much thinner, according to observations made by Prof. William H. Pickering of Harvard at the Harvard Astronomical station at Mandeville, Jamaica.

The thickness of the rings of Saturn is a matter which has long attracted the interest of astronomers. This planet is surrounded by what appears through a small telescope to be a single flat ring of exceeding thinness. Through a larger telescope this is seen to be in reality three concentric rings.

WORM MAKES SOIL TILLABLE

Earth Would Be Barren Without Them, Says British Professor.

London.—The worm, persecuted, abused and misunderstood, is worthy of consideration, according to Professor J. Arthur Thomson of Aberdeen university, who has just completed a series of lectures on the evolution of life. Professor Thomson says that the worm is one of our earliest ancestors and was the first creature to emerge from the sea with the coming of dry land.

Realizing the great task that lay before them, the worms at once began the custom of moving with one end of the body forward. Plowing beneath the surface of the earth, they turn over the soil for a depth of three inches once every 15 years. Were it not for this natural serratting of the land, trees, plants and grains would not grow, and the earth would be a barren, sandy place unfitted to sustain any form of life.

Snow Saves Man's Life.

Casper, Wyo.—A thick blanket of snow on the ground here saved the life of F. E. Waggoner, World war veteran, who has been decorated for bravery in France.

An explosion resulted in Waggoner becoming a "human torch," when his clothing was soaked with flaming gasoline. Rushing from the building where the explosion occurred, the former service man rolled in the snow until the flames were extinguished. He suffered severe burns, but probably will recover.

Build these more stately mansions. O, my soul, As swift seasons roll! Leave thy low vaulted past! Let each new temple nobler than the last Shut thee from heaven with a dome more vast, Till thou at length art free, Leaving thine outgrown shell by life's untreating sea. —Oliver Wendell Holmes.

EVERYDAY GOOD THINGS. A good meat dish and one which will appeal because of its economy is: Hot Pot.—Take one pound of beef—a cheap cut—cover with water and cook slowly until tender. Cool and cut into small pieces. Place the meat in a baking dish with two cupfuls of diced uncooked potatoes, one cupful of carrots cut in cubes and one cupful of onion. Add salt and pepper and cover with gravy. Bake slowly one hour or in a fireless cooker two hours.

Philippine Salad.—Take one-half cupful of diced celery, two pimentoes chopped fine, one cupful of walnut, one-half of a green pepper chopped. Mix the ingredients well. Add mayonnaise and serve on shredded lettuce nests. This amount will serve six.

Apple Crisp.—Butter a fireproof dish and fill with sliced apples, using eight; add one teaspoonful cinnamon and one-half cupful of water. Work together one cupful of sugar, three-fourths cupful of flour and seven tablespoonfuls of fat until crumbly. Spread over the apple mixture and bake uncovered. Serve with whipped cream, top milk or maple syrup.

Cream Pie.—Take two cupfuls of top milk, two eggs, separating and heating yolks. Mix the yolks with three-fourths of a cupful of brown sugar and one-half cupful of flour. When well blended add the scalded milk, a teaspoonful of vanilla and a tablespoonful of fat after the mixture has cooked until smooth. Cool and fill a baked crust. Cover with meringue made from the two whites and two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Bake until the meringue is brown.

Egg in Nest.—Prepare a piece of toast, cut round. Heap on the white of an egg beaten stiff and drop the yolk in the center. Put in the oven to set the egg. Serve with dots of butter and a dash of salt and paprika.

A kindly deed Is a little seed, That groweth all unseem; And lo, when none Do look thereon, Anew it springeth green.

MEALS FOR THE FAMILY. A slice of ham will often be found a most appetizing dish for those whose appetite has begun to sag.

Virginia Ham.—Have a slice of boiled ham cut one and one-half inches thick. Sprinkle with brown sugar attention placed in a shallow pan, then pour over enough cream, one cupful or more, and bake slowly three-quarters of an hour. Serve from the baking dish.

French Pastry.—Line a deep pie plate with a good rich biscuit dough rolled out rather thin. Add one-half pound of fresh pork that has been browned in a hot frying pan and one pound of diced lean veal, uncooked. Sprinkle with a generous layer of minced onion and cover with a thick layer of thinly sliced uncooked potatoes. Season well with salt and pepper and put on the top crust with a good opening for the steam to escape. Bake until the potatoes are very tender. Remove from the oven, wrap in a towel and let steam for ten minutes to soften the crust. Then serve.

Waldorf Ham.—Make a rich, highly seasoned white sauce, using cream and making it rather thick. Add minced ham. Heap this in the center of a hot platter. Butter small custard cups and sprinkle the lower half thick with parsley. Break an egg in each and bake until the eggs are set. Dot with bits of butter after turning out around the white sauce. One may prepare one-half the cups with parsley and the other half without, alternating them around the center.

Egg and Ham Scallop.—Take six hard-cooked eggs, slice and mix in one pint of thick, highly seasoned white sauce. Butter a shallow baking dish. Put in a layer of crumbs, then a layer of egg and sauce and a thin layer of minced ham. Proceed until the dish is full. Finish with crumbs well buttered. Serve after heating in a hot oven.

Pumpkin Pone.—Put one pint of stewed pumpkin through a sieve and mix with one pint of cornmeal, one teaspoonful of salt and one-third of a cupful of sugar, being careful to blend well. Make in ponces or cakes the shape of the hand and one-half inch thick. Place in a well-greased pan and bake in a quick oven until brown—about thirty minutes. Serve very hot with plenty of butter. Canned pumpkin may be used.

Bold Robbers Rifle Bank; But it Had Failed

The sheriff of Molina, Fla., is searching for one or more sadly disappointed bank looters who broke into the state bank at Molina and carried away the safety deposit boxes to inspect them in the privacy of distant woods. The bank had failed four months before the robbery, and there was no loot.

British Smoking Less.

London.—There has been a marked reduction in the retail sale of champagne and cigars in England. Clear merchants say that recent clearances from bond and importations from Cuba have practically been suspended. The public, it is stated, refuse to buy at the high prices necessitated by the heavy duty and the inflated cost of tobacco.

DIES TRAGIC DEATH

Diary Tells of Fight for Life in the Frozen North.

Body of Duluth Man Found by Trappers 200 Miles From Nearest Trading Post.

The Pas, Manitoba.—Out of frozen expanses of Barren lands, 200 miles from the nearest trading post, news has just reached the provincial police here of the tragic death of A. O. Rinehart of Duluth, Minn., a trapper. His body was found in a shack last October by two other trappers. Beside it was a diary which recorded how for months he had fought a solitary and courageous battle against disease, hunger and cold. The last entry was dated April 9, 1920.

Rinehart left The Pas in August, 1919, on the long journey into Barren lands for a trap line. During the next three months his life apparently was without incident, for the first entry in the diary was dated November, 1919.

Four months later, March, 1920, the trapper's notes revealed his almost helpless plight—helplessly confined to his bed. Realizing his predicament, he had stored all his supplies within reach.

The final chapter told of his inability to get out of bed to keep the fires going, the exhaustion of his water supply, and his slow death. S. P. McClennahan, one of the trappers who found Rinehart's body, said the diary showed the doomed man had scorned suicide, and to make sure he would keep his resolve not to end his life he had broken the mechanism of his revolvers and rifles. His notes expressed hopes that someone would come to his rescue.

A letter the dead trapper had written to a relative, Waldo Rinehart of Shawano, Wis., also was found in the shack.

Paul Wilson, A. H. Norton and Geo. Weishar came over from the Jicarilla country Saturday to spend the week end in the county seat and see the motion pictures.

Jacob H. Fulmer, Jr., president of the Parsons Mining Co., is again here after a few weeks in the mountains at Nogal and Parsons, looking after mining interests.

Ralph M. Dow, chief deputy sheriff, went to Fort Bliss Tuesday to deliver to the authorities there a deserter who had been apprehended here.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Mintz, who live at White Mountain, came up from El Paso Wednesday. Mr. Mintz underwent an operation two weeks ago and has just been discharged from the hospital.

W. J. Langston and Calvin Carl went to Alamogordo Monday afternoon to assist in instituting an "encampment," which is an advanced branch of the I.O.O.F. in that lodge.

Owen I. Langseth, manager of the Co-Operative Store, will leave next Tuesday, March 22, for San Francisco, to attend the Co-Operative Convention which begins March 25 and ends on the 28th. He will bring back a great message to the people of Carrizozo and hopes to inspire its worthy citizens to a more substantial idea of what real co-operation means.

A. H. Hudspeth, U.S. marshal, spent the past week here and in the surrounding country attending to official matters. He left Wednesday night on his return to Santa Fe.

G. B. Greer of Bonito was in Carrizozo Monday, and took a load of supplies to his goat camp in the San Andreas. Shearing time is approaching and he expects a large clip of mohair.

H. S. Hanner was down Monday from White Oaks. He reports the discovery of a mineral deposit between White Oaks and Jicarilla in which iron predominates but carrying considerable gold.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Walker arrived last week from Houston, Texas. Mr. Walker left Wednesday for Chicago in the interest of the Harvester mine near Nogal, which he hopes to have producing gold in a short time. Mrs. Walker remained with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. McGhee.

Senator E. M. Brickley and Representative Henry Lutz returned this week from Santa Fe where they have been the past sixty days, serving the people of this district and county in the legislature. They return fairly well pleased with the results of their labors, and feel that while all that was desirable was not attained, much good legislation was enacted, which will be a stepping stone for further and more favorable action later.

T. E. Kelley, C. A. Hooper, W. P. Loughrey and G. J. Dingwall went to Roswell Sunday, returning Tuesday night. They made the trip in the interest of the "Lodge" on Eagle Creek, which is under the control of the Southwestern Game and Fish Protective Association, but found the Roswell people, or many of them, interested in "Pine Lodge", a report at the east end of the Capitan mountains, and, therefore, accomplished little for their association. Their visit was not altogether lost, however, as they feel that the seed sown may later bear fruit.

White Oaks Dance

The big dance at White Oaks last Saturday night was all that its promoters claimed it would be. The surrounding country contributed liberally in numbers and donations and Carrizozo furnished its share in everything for which the Woman's Club of White Oaks through its president, Mrs. H. S. Hanner, expressed the highest appreciation.

The Ferguson Jazz Band of Carrizozo furnished the music, which was highly pleasing to all, and which received the highest praise and the heartiest thanks of the club. A luncheon, sandwiches, cake and coffee, was served and was a pleasant addition to the entertainment of the evening. The prize cake offered for the best dancers had to be divided, the awarding committee declaring a tie between Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cleghorn of the Oaks, and Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Bacot of Carrizozo.
