OLDEST AND LEADING NEWSPAPER IN CIRCULATION IN THE COUNTY OF LINCOLN, NEW MEXICO

VOLUME 21

CARRIZOZO, LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, AUGUST 26, 1921

NUMBER 34

Judge Rodley Still Insists That Bosses Be Rebuked

(By Bernard H. Rodley.)

It costs $20,000, owing to the vast area of New Mexico, to seek the nomination for a state-wide office—that is, in opposition to the bosses. If we had a direct primary law, it would cost nothing to get your name on the primary ticket to run for the nomination. That is why Bursum et al killed the direct primary law at the last three sessions of the legislature. Bursum was afraid to permit anyone but himself to be in the field. He was too cowardly to take his chances with any other republican. Therefore it will become him to claim in interviews that his nomination was the unanimous act of the convention. Of course, a hand-picked convention was expected to nominate him. No person who was against him would ever have had a chance to go as a delegate. Now that Bursum has got the "party" nomination he wants votes, so he says he is in favor of a direct primary law.

"When the devil was sick,
The devil a monk would be,
But when the devil got well,
The devil a monk was he."

The bosses have fixed it so that the people will have no chance, save to swallow the nominations. They have made it a crime in New Mexico to run for office save as the nominee of some party—there is no other way to get your name on the ballot. So that the bosses, knowing that you, Mr. and Mrs. Voter, are so bigoted that you will stick to your party, fix it so they name your party nominee for you, and, if you please, take it or leave it—you have no other choice. But this time it happens that you have. You can vote for only one candidate, but two—maybe three—will be on the ballot. Now, if you like Hanna, vote for him. If a good independent is nominated, you can vote for him, and if not, then write in a name and vote for it. There will be a blank on the ballot for that purpose.

Rebuke the bosses and defeat Bursum. He is wholly unfit to represent this state in the senate. All party arguments are pure rot, as Bursum's vote is not needed in the senate. The republicans have plenty of votes without his. If enough of you write in a name on your ballots and vote for it you will elect a senator. It also might be well, Mr. and Mrs. Voter, not to fool yourselves about it being a foregone conclusion that Bursum will be elected. Hanna is able and respectable. Also, there are those in the state who know that "a leopard cannot change its spots," and who do not feel that they are obliged to vote for the leopard. The old "push" have now at least 500 people over the state industriously making the statement that "Bursum will be elected hands down," so as to get the psychological effect of iteration before Hanna's friends get started. That old dodge is played out.

Mr. Voter, do your own thinking! Rebuke the bosses and the killers of the direct primary law!

School Notes

(By Superintendent E. E. Cole.)

The city schools of Carrizozo will open Monday, Sept. 5.

Since the state board of education has adopted a new set of text books for the next six years, pupils are urged not to buy their books until the teachers can tell them what to get. This change does not take place in the high school, yet several new, more modern and up-to-date texts will be used, and, therefore, high school students would better wait until they find out just what is needed. There is great freedom of choice in the high school, yet certain groups of studies must be taken. For this reason pupils ought to see Superintendent Cole before school opens and arrange their work. The superintendent will be glad to confer with parents, as well as pupils, during the next two weeks.

The school board is having made several desirable changes and improvements. A good cistern is in construction. All the rooms are well disinfected and the health of the pupils will be well looked after.

Saturday, Sept. 3, at 9 o'clock in the morning, will be held the general teachers' meeting, at which every teacher is expected to be present. Other conferences with teachers will be held at other times during the day.

Last June Superintendent Cole received notice that the Carrizozo high school had again been placed on the accredited list of the State university, and that Miss Eva Wack and Miss Lillian Merchant of the class of 1921 had been enrolled as students for next year, without any conditions whatever. Our high school course fully conforms to the minimum requirements of the North Central association and our State university.

While at the Normal university Superintendent Cole secured several teachers for Carrizozo. A full list of the teachers of the city and their positions will be given next week.

Carlbad Region Has Best Yield in 30 Years

The Carlbad project on the Pecos river in southeastern New Mexico has the largest area under cultivation and the finest crop outlook since farming began there over 30 years ago, says a dispatch from Carlbad. More than 22,000 acres of the 25,000 acres granted water rights by the reclamation service is in crops.

The leading crops are alfalfa, cotton and Indian corn, and a smaller acreage is devoted to sorghum grains, forage crops, beans, orchards and gardens.

Though the Carlbad project is splendidly adapted to dairying and hog raising, there are few milch cows and hogs on the farms.

600,000 Teachers Ready to Begin Work

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—An army of nearly 600,000 teachers and principals now is being mobilized to instruct American children when they resume school again next month.

The national problem of a shortage of teachers, which caused so much public consternation last year, now has practically ceased to exist, in the opinion of officials of the bureau of education, although no detail examination of the situation has been made by the bureau.

Last year the schools were short about 20,000 teachers, and many had to remain closed part of the year. In some districts children averaged only 90 days of schooling throughout the entire year. But now, however, the entire situation has changed.

Salaries of high school teachers have advanced 52.6 per cent since 1916, when the big shortage of teachers began, according to a detailed survey made by the bureau officials.

The average salary of high school teachers now is $1,677 a year, according to the bureau's survey. In 1918 the average was only $1,099 a year. No survey of the salaries of elementary teachers has been made, but officials believe that in the last year advances freely made by most school districts have brought the average salary up to about $1,000 a year.

Hundreds of trained teachers who left the service of the schools during the war for higher paid jobs now are hurrying back to get their old jobs.

Albert Farley is home again on a visit to his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Farley. Albert was twice an American soldier.

Wants 18 Additional Federal Judges

A dispatch from Washington says: Legislation creating eighteen federal judges at large has been recommended to President Harding and to the judiciary committee of the house and senate by Attorney General Daugherty as part of a plan for reorganization of the country's judicial system to remedy the congested conditions of federal court dockets all over the country.

Provision would also be made under the plan for an annual conference of the nine senior circuit judges with the chief justice of the United States and the attorney general to consider ways and means of expediting federal business and increasing the efficiency of the courts.

The new judges, it was explained, would not be assigned to any particular circuit, but would be available for service wherever court business piled up.

The congested condition of the courts is largely due to legislation relative to prohibition.

Democrats Name Hanna

At the democratic state convention in Albuquerque last week Judge Richard H. Hanna was nominated for United States senator. The election is to take place Sept. 30, and is to fill the unexpired term of Senator Fall, who resigned to enter President Harding's cabinet.

Judge Hanna is an able man, and one of the cleanest in New Mexico politics. He is honest and outspoken, and his record is an open book. He will make an active campaign, as far as time and conditions will permit. His nomination was unanimous and given unsought. The manner in which the honor was tendered is proof of the high regard in which the judge is held, and the belief that his candidacy would attract many independents who are dissatisfied with the manner and system that named his opponent. His election would be a forward step for New Mexico.

To Keep It in the Family

A dispatch from East Las Vegas says: "There is a bitter row on in San Miguel county among republicans over the filling of the shoes of Sheriff Secundino Romero, recently appointed United States marshal for New Mexico by Senator Holm O. Bursum. Antonio Gallegos is after the sheriff's job, an appointment to be made by the governor. It was the plan of Sheriff Romero to hand the job over to his brother, Cleofes Romero, thus keeping it in the family, but Gallegos and his friends are determined to block such procedure. Meantime Secundino Romero is holding on as sheriff and probably will not qualify for United States marshal until after the special election in September."

Cattle Sales

The past ten days have witnessed larger sales of cattle in Lincoln county than have taken place in many moons. Something like 2000 head of calves and steers were sold to outside buyers.

Stimmel & Finley, of the Carrizozo Commission company, sold 700 calves for O. Z. Finley to a Colorado buyer at $17.50 a head, and 125 steers for Jake Hicks to the same buyer at prices from $20 to $31.

Burton Brown, of Cuervo, purchased 1100 head or more through the same commission company, and the Reilly & Stratton Company. These steers came from different ranchmen in various parts of the county, and the contract price was $20. The steer delivery will be made immediately and the call delivery is to be made November 1 and February 1.

Educational Notes

Mrs. M. L. Blaney returned Monday morning from Santa Fe, being called there by Superintendent J. V. Conway for the purpose of discussing educational problems.

The last teachers' examination for the year will be held in the office of the county superintendent August 26 and 27.

A meeting of the Lincoln county board of education is called for August 29 to consider bids for transportation in school district No. 28. Those desiring to bid will please have sealed bids in the county superintendent's office by 10 a. m. August 29th, stating the kind of vehicle to be used and the price per month required.

Teachers are requested to file teachers' certificate, health certificate and institute attendance certificate in the office of the county superintendent before salaries can be paid.

The estimates for the maintenance of the schools of Lincoln county have been accepted, with a few changes, by the educational auditor and will be mailed to the clerks of the district boards within a few days.

Ball Game Sunday

The Vaughn baseball team will be here Sunday to test the metal of the local team. The Vaughn team has been playing good ball this season, and a lively game is anticipated, as that team has stepped with some of the best in the state.

In From the Lodge

The Lodge on Eagle creek was deserted by the summer colony this week, the excessive rains making the outing less pleasant than usual. Beautiful fall weather is anticipated in September, however, and many will return to the Lodge for a further vacation.

Need More Than 10 Mills

After a survey of the entire state, in which he visited 30 of the 31 counties of New Mexico, John Joerns, state educational auditor, who left Santa Fe favoring constitutional amendment No. 8, returned opposing it, and reported to Governor Meecham that over half the counties could not operate their schools on 10 mills or less.—State Record.

What Will A Year's Schooling Cost You?

The high cost of an education is keeping many young men and women out of high school and college these days.

Parents and students alike will appreciate a school that maintains low costs along with high standards.

Most reasonable rates for board and room.

Few necessary outside expenditures. Wholesome and enjoyable but inexpensive social life.

"That is why I am coming back," she insisted. "I told you I could shoot."

"All right," he grinned cheerfully. "Come along, then; only you keep down out of the way, and let me do the sniping. There! now you lost me a shot! Did you see that buck dodge between those two rocks? He'll try that trick again presently."

Oiga came back, creeping out cautiously and finding a place slightly behind where he lay. She held to the weapon, laying the other on the rocks, together with a belt filled with cartridges.

Shelby barely swept his eyes toward her, his whole attention concentrated on what was occurring below. Something was taking place down there, but exactly what could not immediately be determined. He had perceived men moving beyond range, dodging along from rock to rock, mere glimpses of dark figures, yet plainly enough Indians. Once he was almost sure he distinguished a white man, through a rift in a gully, but the fleeting view gained was not convincing. Nevertheless he had no doubt but what there were white men present. The method of attack was too bold, and determined, for savages alone; it was not the Sioux idea of war. Besides the one man who would have a real object in this assault would be Laud. Beyond all question it was he who was behind the effort, urged on by personal hatred, as well as a desire to gain possession of Oiga. Shelby wondered what the fellow might know. Could he be aware of the escape of Macklin? and that Pancha had ridden forth in search for help? If he did that might account for his desperate eagerness to overcome what resistance they could offer before she returned. Yet probably not, for if he did know the coward in him would cause him to seek flight before he could be cornered in this place. It was far more likely that he believed himself opposed merely by Shelby and the girl, armed with a revolver or two, and having a limited supply of ammunition. He saw little peril in the adventure, and figured that a quick, sharp rush, his warriors leaping from covert to covert, would win an easy victory. He would keep up a steady rifle fire from behind the rocks, forcing the defenders to keep under cover, and then suddenly send a charging party to end the affair.

Shelby smiled grimly at the mental picture, never turning his head as he spoke to the silent girl beside him.

"How's Macklin?"

"Dead, I think, Tom. He didn't seem to breathe even faintly."

"The poor devil; it will be mighty hard on Pancha though. You got your gun?"

"Yes."

"All loaded, I reckon; if not you better fill it up. There is no time to be had to pay presently. When I say so, you let drive. Keep down out of sight till then, but when you begin to pump make her act like a galling."

"But can't these riflemen see you there?"

"Well, it doesn't look much like they can, the way they are peepin' that rock. Nice little tussle the bucks are playin'. That's what makes me think something's up; they aim to keep us down out of sight, so we won't glimpse what's comin'. Tain't Indian nature to waste lead that way. Laud's back there somewhere playin' this game. I think I got sight of the sneakin' cuss a minute ago, but he was out of range."

"You believe they intend to try and get up here?"

"That's my present notion; they don't look for much trouble either. It is up to us to give that outfit the surprise of their lives."

She reached out her hand and found his, as it rested on the belt of cartridges.

"Tom!"

"Yes," he answered without removing his gaze from the trail below.

"Don't worry about me," she said earnestly. "You know what I mean; don't think about me when they do come. I'll take care of myself, all right."

He cast a quick glance into her face.

"Sure, I know you will. You are a trump, a good pardner. I thought that for a long while. You won't forget what I told you."

"I'll not forget."

There was a moment of silence when she spoke again, a sharp little catch in her voice which she could not restrain.

"Tom!"

"I—I don't know what is going to happen. I—I am not afraid, but I—I want to see you again. I—I want to see you when you come back."

"I'll not forget."

half afraid of you. But I ain't goin' to be any more; you sure mean it, don't you?"

Her eyes looked honestly, earnestly into his, answering him before her lips spoke.

"With all my heart, Tom."

He drew her softly toward him, forgetful of all else. Then a rifle spat viciously, and a ball struck the edge of the parapet, sending a splinter of stone flying past them.

It was a long, nerve-racking wait, during which they rested side by side, intent on every movement below, but finding little opportunity for action. Occasionally they spoke, but generally remained silently watchful. The Indians kept up a desultory fire, and behind the screen were evidently making a change of position, yet so stealthily as to be hardly observed. They exposed themselves freely enough beyond pistol range, proof that they were fully aware of the caliber of the weapons confronting them, but closer in the savages crept from rock to rock invisible. Twice only did Shelby succeed in getting a fair shot—once clipping a scalp lock from an incautiously exposed head, and again wounding a brave who recklessly attempted to leap across a narrow opening. This fellow dropped in the open trail, wounded in the thigh, and unable to drag himself to shelter, and soon a sly red arm reached out from behind a rock in an effort at rescue. This was withdrawn quickly as a speeding bullet struck within an inch of the outstretched hand. The injured warrior lay there twitching with pain.

The minutes dragged into half an hour, the strained nerves of the defenders on edge. Oiga was trembling from head to foot, struggling to retain self-control, Shelby never relaxing a muscle, or averting the steady gaze of his eyes. Suddenly he rose to his knees, a revolver gripped in either hand.

"There's Laud now," he announced simply.

She saw the fellow also, lifting her head to peer over the low rim of rock, standing in the open trail, but just beyond range. He held a rifle in his hands, which he swung above his head, at the same time giving utterance to a hoarse shout. It must have been a signal, for instantly those rocks were black with half-naked figures, leaping madly forward, with rifles flung in air, and giving utterance to fierce yells. It was a wild race, but the steep ascent to the cave halted them. The two above, reckless now of exposure, stood as swiftly as they could press trigger, straight into the red faces. Some fell, shot down in their tracks, a few paused to reply, but the majority began to clamber up. Laud ran forward to join them, roaring out his orders. He was in full view against the snow-covered trail, and Shelby swung his smoking musketa down upon him. To the crack the fellow hung up both hands, whirled about, and crumpled into a shapeless heap. Shelby, scarcely realizing the success of his quick shot, staggered back, covered the gun in his hand, and struck with the butt of the best Indian appearing above the platform. It was hard to land.

The Fellow Plunged Up Both Hands.

There was a moment of silence when she spoke again, a sharp little catch in her voice which she could not restrain.

"Tom!"

"I—I don't know what is going to happen. I—I am not afraid, but I—I want to see you again. I—I want to see you when you come back."

"I'll not forget."

There now, they tell me. No less, sister."

It had begun to snow, big, heavy flakes, drifting with the wind, quickly whitening the landscape. The night marks of the trail were almost instantly obliterated, but the low range of hills ahead were a sufficient landmark, and she forced her horse into a swift pace; riding with her head lowered, but with watchful eyes peering through the snow curtain.

She was alone now; free, with nothing intervening between her and Gerlach's. Her heart bounded with the elixir of success—she would bring back the doctor to Macklin. She felt no doubt any more.

The direct trail circled just within the outer range of the sand hills, making it impossible for her to mistake the way even in that mass of snow. She rode more cautiously now that she was safely out of sight, and free from any possibility of pursuit. The horse, with lowered head, seemed to feel the urgency, and plunged forward eagerly. Suddenly as they swept around a sharp corner, seeing and hearing nothing to warn of any other presence in that solitude, they came at full tilt against a halted column of cavalry. Before Pancha could even jerk up her reins, a startled trooper had gripped the bit, and held her mount helplessly pawing the air.

"Well, what's this?" he growled, looking at the frightened animal, and dragged half of his feet in the fierce struggle. "A Mex! Say, fellows, this looks like Arizona. Lay hold here, Mopes! Call the sergeant, somebody; I've got this bird! What's there! Now, what's all this about, you lads?"

"What is it, sergeant?" the sergeant, pushing through the ring of men, peered curiously up at her from under the brim of a battered campaign hat.

"She just come steaming in, sergeant, like she was gold somewhere. She was sure ridin' like h—, an' she is Mex, all right."

"So I see. Well, sergeant, what are you doing out here?"

His face was kindly, if stern.

"Sergeant, I ride for a doctor," she said earnestly. "Please do not stop me—a man is dying."

"A man? Where? Is he a Mexican?"

"No, senator, an American; he was shot; he verra bad; if I find no doctor, he die maybe."

"But where were you going?"

"To Gerlach's, senator, there is army doctor there."

"Not now there ain't; he's back here with us somewhere. Where is this fellow who's hurt?"

She hesitated just an instant, yet there was no avoiding the truth. If the doctor was here among these soldiers, she would have to tell the truth or else desert Macklin to his fate. Besides, what did she care? Her hatred of Laud suddenly flared into new life. Here was the opportunity for revenge, as well as gratification.

"In Wolves' hole, senator."

"Wolves' hole! Good God! did you come from there? Pass the word for the doctor—come on. What's that?"

"Oh, around here, sir," she said simply to attention, facing the doctor, a middle-aged fellow, with iron-gray hair and beard.

"What's his name, senator?" the doctor asked eagerly. "Tell me."

"Laud, sir; but he ain't here no more. He's dead. He was shot by a Mex. He was a good fellow, but he was a Mex."

"What's his name, senator?" the doctor asked eagerly. "Tell me."

"Laud, sir; but he ain't here no more. He's dead. He was shot by a Mex. He was a good fellow, but he was a Mex."

"What's his name, senator?" the doctor asked eagerly. "Tell me."

"Laud, sir; but he ain't here no more. He's dead. He was shot by a Mex. He was a good fellow, but he was a Mex."

Well, What's This? He Growled.

"Well, what's this?" he growled, looking at the frightened animal, and dragged half of his feet in the fierce struggle. "A Mex! Say, fellows, this looks like Arizona. Lay hold here, Mopes! Call the sergeant, somebody; I've got this bird! What's there! Now, what's all this about, you lads?"

"To Gerlach's, senator, there is army doctor there."

"Not now there ain't; he's back here with us somewhere. Where is this fellow who's hurt?"

A way to get into Wolves' hole, I'll promise he'll take care of your man, all right."

"You ask me to guide you?"

"That's the bargain. We have been trying to locate the place for two days. Who is the leader of these outlaws?"

"Indian Joe Laud, senator."

"I've heard of the brute. Judging from the way you looked then, he is no friend of yours."

"No, senator; I hate him; he had my brother; now he try to kill me. I tell you 'bout—he an' two more Americans."

"Two more! This is becoming interesting, Sergeant. Let's have the straight story, senator. You want me to help these people—is that it?"

"If senator it is nothing to me what you do, I care for them not at all; they not my people any more. There are many—Indians a lot; they hide there."

"But, who are these Americans? They belong to the gang?"

"No, senator. One was a woman, senator; young, pretty woman; she captured and brought there. Set was her husband that try to save her. He follow an' git in some way, like the Mether of God help. His name was Shelby."

"Shelby?" broke in the sergeant, forgetful of the officer's presence in his surprise. "What Shelby? Was his other name Tom?"

"No, senator," and she turned her eyes to him. "You know this Tom Shelby?"

"Do I of course I do. You remember him, Major Hays. He was with us once in 'O' Troop; then later detailed with the scouts. He's up in this country, I know. I ran into him down at Posca when I came through there. Why, that was his wedding day, and I saw the bride."

"You say those rascals devils have got them both there in the Hole?" broke in the major, "prisoners?"

"They got away now; they hide in a cave," she explained.

"And you will show us the way in?"

"Sergeant, the doctor he will care for this man if I do."

"I pledge you my word he will."

"And you had Indian Joe Laud, senator?"

"Well, surely do our best."

"Then I show you—yes; who that man there?"

Shelby wheeled about to face the fellow she pointed at, gripping him with one hand, and dragging him forth from among the circle of soldiers.

"This is the bird they gave us for a guide," he said shortly. "You know him?"

"He," she gave vent to a bitter laugh. "That fellow Dan Kuller; had Indian horse thief. Why they give you him?"

"I—I know. What'll I do with the cuss, major?"

"Have a couple of men hold him under guard. We seem to be on the right track now; senator, where is this Wolves' hole?"

Four Drowned in Ontario

Ottawa, Ont.—In an unsuccessful attempt to save his 9-year-old daughter, Laura, Thomas Toobey, age 35, and three other members of his family were drowned in Otter Lake, Laura, the youngest, waded beyond her depth while bathing a few feet from shore.

18,000,000 Facing Starvation

London.—Eighteen millions of Russians are facing death in the famine district, according to the latest estimates from Riga. The starvation zone is 800 miles long, stretching along the middle and lower Volga valley. The Poles have discussed closing the frontier but the fact that 1,500,000 Poles held prisoner in Russia are being returned makes the closing difficult even if politically advisable.

Business Conditions Improving

Washington.—More active buying by retail dealers in some sections of the country during July indicates a slight improvement in the business situation, according to Archer Wall Douglas, chairman of the committee on statistics and standards of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, in a monthly review of business conditions.

Reduction in Crop Yield

Washington.—Practically every important farm crop showed a loss in prospective production as a result of adverse conditions during July. The Department of Agriculture's report forecasts 52,000,000 bushels less wheat than estimated a month ago, 11,000,000 bushels less corn, 392,000,000 bushels less oats and 81,000,000 bushels less potatoes.

Olympic Makes Fast Trip

New York.—The liner Olympic completed her fastest transatlantic voyage, having made the trip from Southampton and Cherbourg in five days, 18 hours and 18 minutes. Sir Bertram Hayes, her commander, said the big boat would have done better had she not been delayed longer than usual at the French port.

Dr. Harding Marries Nurse

Monroe, Mich.—Dr. George T. Harding, father of President Warren G. Harding, came to Monroe, married Miss Alice Stevens, for many years nurse in his office at Marion, Ohio, and left the city before more than a score of Monroe citizens had guessed his identity. Dr. Harding is 76 years old, while his bride is 52.

Facing to Fight Prohibited

Washington.—Midnight racing of immigrant-juden steamers into American harbors to land the monthly quotas in the first minutes of the first day of the new month, may be done away with if ship line officers and immigration officials can get together and formulate a new agreement. The difficulty is said to be with the smaller lines.

Learn to Swim, $120

Crofton, England.—Forty dollars an hour is the cost of learning to fly at an airplane school just opened here. If you're quick, you can learn to operate a "ship" in three hours. Then, if you have more coin, you can take a post-graduate course, including loop-the-loop and other stunts.

Child Saved After Seven Hours

Burlingame, Calif.—Four-year-old Baby Jean Sanders of Burlingame, Wash., stuck with a log in her back, was rescued after seven hours of surgery.

THE SANMAN STORY

A BRAGGING ROOSTER.

MRS. HENNY HEN had a large family of chickens and I am sorry to tell you that sometimes they did not behave, but pecked and flew at each other, quarreling just as some little children do, bothering their mother very much.

Little Rooster Chick thought because he was the brother that he was braver than the sister chicks, and he also thought they should mind him and do just as he told them.

Of course, this made sister chicks very angry and caused many quarrels.

but one day something happened which changed all this and made little Rooster feel very foolish.

One warm day Mrs. Henny Hen took her family under the bushes out of the heat and told them to keep quiet, but little Rooster began to brag that he was very brave and that some day he would be the cock of the yard and that all the others would have to obey him.

"I shall drive out all the other roosters and I shall have all the corn I want to eat before I let any of the hens eat a bit," said little Rooster.

"I guess you will have to be braver than you are now," said one sister chick. "I saw you run when the cat chased you the other day and Mother had to drive her away."

"I wasn't afraid of that old puss," stammered little Rooster. "I wanted to see her run, and when I grow up I shall drive her out of the barnyard."

But his sisters did not believe this.

How It Started

IN 1842 J. H. Schultze accidentally discovered that silver chloride was darkened by light. Hellet, in 1737, made the same discovery about silver nitrate. Wedgwood, in England, made silico-graphs by the use of this chemical. In 1804, Herschel discovered the fixing solution, or "hypo." These independent discoveries were united in 1840, when Miss Dorothy Catherine Draper posed for the first picture ever taken. The next year Talbot discovered the developing fluid, and the art of photography was born. The invention of the roll film instead of the glass plate started the kodak.

"What's in a Name?"

Facts about your name: its history, meaning, whence it was derived, significance, your lucky day and lucky jewel

By MILDRED MARSHALL

EDNA.

IF THERE was ever a name with a lot of home or country antecedents or parentage it seems to be Edna. Etymologists record frankly nothing in the case of Edna. She seems to have just appeared. Something about her is reminiscent of the Norse and we can imagine Valkyries or the daughters of Vikings bearing such a name, but history fails to back up our fancy.

It must seem then that Edna came in some way from the ever popular masculine Edward. It may, indeed, be a contraction of the feminine form Edwina. Such being the case, Edna's ancestors must have been the famous Fran-Ueta, mother of Kriemhild, who interpreted her dream and predicted the early death of her bridegroom. She is the original source of Edwin and they all told him he was afraid and not brave enough to be the ruler of the barnyard.

"I am brave," piped up little Rooster. "I will show you how brave I am some day when a hawk comes to carry off my mother. I will fly right at him and drive him away."

Mrs. Henny Hen did not hear her children quarreling, for she had left the shade of the bushes and was scratching for worms a little way off, and just then she clucked to her children to come and have part of the feast she had found.

All the chicks ran, but little Rooster reached her side first, and just as his mother was dragging from the ground a large, plump worm a very large Mr. Blackbird, who was sitting on a limb of the tree just over Mrs. Hen, flew down and grabbed the worm.

He did not get it, because Mrs. Hen was too quick for him, but little Rooster, thinking it must be a hawk, peeped loudly and ran as fast as he could back to the bushes.

All his sisters peeped and fluttered about, calling him a "fraidy chick" and telling him he would never be a brave Rooster, who could protect the barnyard fowl.

Little Rooster felt very foolish, but it cured him of bragging, for every time he began to talk of his bravery all his sisters would peep. "Who was afraid of Mr. Blackbird?" and little Rooster would stop bragging, right away.

ADDRESSING LETTERS.

The true, strong, and sound mind is the mind that can embrace equally great things and small.—Johnes.

NEVER use the form "Dear Friend." This was once in good form but it is decidedly out of favor now.

Never address a letter intended for various members of the same family thus: "Mrs. John Smith and family." Instead use this form: "Mrs. John Smith; The Misses Smith."

A simpler way is to address the envelope of the letter to the head of the family and explain within that your letter is intended for the whole family.

Never enclose a postage stamp in anything but a business communication when you ask for a reply. This is not necessary if you are transacting business in which your request is not in the nature of a favor.

Never even in a business letter use the expression, "Let me know by return mail," or "Send by return mail." As a matter of fact mails are so frequent between big cities now that it would probably be quite impossible to return by the next outgoing mail and obviously there is no return mail now

HOW DO YOU SAY IT?

By C. N. LURIE

Common Errors in English and How to Avoid Them

"MAD" AND "ANGRY."

FEW words are more frequently misused than "mad" and "angry." It must be confessed, however, that there is some excuse for the misuse of the words, since many psychologists hold that it is difficult to tell, when the emotions of a person are aroused, just where anger ends and madness begins. But in grammar there is a sharp distinction between "angry" and "mad." The former means to be vexed or out of patience, while the latter indicates madness, insanity. A person who is insane is mad, but a person whose mail is delayed is not mad, but merely angry. There is a figurative use of the word "mad"—that is, a use in which the words are not to be taken literally—such as "mad with pain," "mad with terror," etc.

"I am mad at that fellow," says a man; "he cheated me in a stock deal." He should say, "I am angry at that fellow," etc.

But words are things, and a small drop of ink, falling like dew upon a thought, produces that which makes thousands, perhaps millions, think.—Byron.

MUTTON WITH SAUCES.

Mutton would be far more popular in many homes if care in removing the skin were observed. The woolly flavor so objectionable is found in the skin. If the animal has been well dressed there should be no strong flavor.

There are two ways of cooking mutton. For those who are fond of the mutton flavor it is cooked to bring out the natural flavor; the other way unites it with highly flavored vegetables or seasonings which produce a combination of flavors.

One of the important things to remember in serving mutton and lamb with the gravy containing any of the fat is to have it piping hot, as the fat hardens so quickly that it leaves an unpleasant furry feeling on the tongue. Everything used in the serving of mutton, service plates, platters and gravy dishes, should be well heated.

Roast Saddle of Mutton.—A saddle of mutton is the loin cut off in one piece. It is a favorite roasting piece. Sprinkle the meat with salt and pepper, place in the baking pan on a rack and dredge with flour. Bake in a hot oven, basting frequently and allow ten or fifteen minutes to the pound, depending upon whether it is to be rare or well done. The leg of mutton is roasted in the same way. Serve with a brown gravy with or without currant jelly. In making the gravy allow two tablespoonfuls of fat for each cupful of gravy desired. Pour off all the fat and measure the desired amount, add three tablespoonfuls of flour for each two of fat and cook until well browned. Add broth or boiling water—one cupful to the proportions of flour and fat given. Season with salt and pepper and add one glass of currant jelly to a cupful of gravy. This makes a delicious sauce for reheated cold mutton.

Caper Sauce.—Melt one-third of a cupful of butter, add two tablespoonfuls of flour and cook thoroughly. Pour on gradually one and one-half cupfuls of hot mutton broth, add one-half cupful of capers drained from their liquor and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Chopped sour pickles may be substituted for the capers. This sauce is served with boiled mutton.

SUMMERY DISHES.

Take a choice of any of these appetizing salad combinations which will supply the family for a week or two: Hard-cooked eggs with lettuce and mayonnaise; lettuce and cooked asparagus, or tomato with asparagus; tomato stuffed with chopped cucumbers or asparagus; head lettuce with Roquefort dressing; green pepper shredded, mixed with cottage cheese, boiled dressing; watercress and egg; pepper grass, radishes and French dressing; orange and pineapple with French dressing; spinach with eggs and boiled dressing; lettuce with chopped peanuts, onions and French dressing.

Chicken Jelly Salad.—Soften one-half teaspoonful of gelatin in four tablespoonfuls of cold water, add to one cupful of boiling chicken broth, stir till well dissolved, adding salt, pepper, onion juice and celery salt to season. Chill until cold, then add part of this to a cupful of finely chopped cooked chicken in layers with the broth as it hardens, adding cooked egg, carrots or beets cut in shapes to decorate. Let each layer become firm before adding another.

Cream of Spinach Soup.—Wash two quarts of spinach and place in a saucepan over a moderate fire, adding no water. Stir with a fork and leave the kettle uncovered. Cooked in this way it loses none of its flavor and little color. When tender put through a sieve and add to it six cupfuls of thin, white sauce prepared as follows: Take one-fourth of a cupful of butter, one-third of a cupful of flour and cook until bubbling hot, then add four cupfuls of chicken broth, cook until smooth and add two cupfuls of milk. Season to taste and serve with croutons.

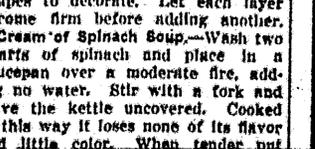

Golden Parfait.—Take one-half cupful of finely chopped French fruit and soak over night in orange juice to cover. Cook two-thirds of a cupful each of water and sugar together until it is thick enough for frosting. Pour the hot sirup in a fine stream on five well-beaten egg yolks; beat until the mixture thickens, setting the pan over hot water. Beat until cold, fold in cream whipped. Put into a mold, layers with the fruit. Pack with ice in tin and wait.

While going through the grocery department of one of our large stores recently I noticed a crowd around a demonstrator, but I paid no attention to what she was saying. On the table was a dish of what I thought were maraschino cherries. I took one and put it in my mouth. With the first bite I had the crowd around me. I thought I was poisoned and could not understand the laughing and screaming of the crowd. Instead of a cherry, as I thought, it was a capsule containing coloring matter for oleomargarine that the lady was demonstrating. My lips, chin and waist were colored a beautiful yellow. I must have looked like the Yellow Kid. This cured me of the bad habit of sampling things.—Exchange.

NEW ONE TO HAT.

One of Kansas City's welfare societies provides a summer camp for children. Each child is given a thorough outing for $1 a week. Children are not accepted under the age of nine, but now and then a well-coached child gets by a few months younger. The other day a little girl with all the earmarks of seven years applied with a dollar in the camp. "How old are you?" she was asked. "Nine," replied the child glibly. "Where were you eight?" This was an unexpected question. "Eight?" she stammered; "why, do you have to be eight before you are nine?"—Kansas City Star.

TIME NOT WHOLLY WASTED

Youth Missed Acquiring Academic Knowledge, but Probably Learned Something Worth While.

The pursuit of learning is not always an easy matter, as a young student found who set forth from Iribane to study at Edinburgh, for when he reached the port of Falmouth he found that, owing to having taken 200 days on the journey at sea, the term was over. Contrary winds and other contretemps accounted for the delay, during which the crew had to get about finding means of turning some of the corn they were carrying on a cargo into bread. They found an old berry-mill—but the story is too long to tell. It is one of the sea's many yarns, and leaves the conviction that that student, if he is worth his salt, will not object to having lost some of the academic year learning of the ways of a barque on the ocean.—Christian Science Monitor.

BETWEEN TWO FIRES.

The young couple were dining out. In the middle of their meal a tall and beautiful woman passing near their table gave the young man a look of recognition and a smile.

So dangerous was the smile that the girl said, "John, who was that woman?"

John held up his hand.

"Now, for goodness sake," he said, "don't get bothering me about who she is. I shall have trouble enough explaining to her who you are."

Why are people indifferent? They apparently overestimate others.

Gassing Business

It was too much to expect—though many were fooled last fall—that any political party could restore normal conditions in a few months after assuming control of affairs, but it was not unreasonable to expect some more serious attempts of a restoration to normal than have been made during the last six months. The so called revenue bill holds out a promise of reduction in taxes—to certain classes—but this is overcome by increases in the proposed tariff bill; so that there is little hope for relief from high taxation. The charge of extravagance in the past still holds good, for government cost is higher in 1921 than the year previous. In many ways things are at a standstill, or have grown worse, and no improvement is in sight—unless something comes out of the disarmament conference that will bring about a better understanding between nations. The United States cannot prosper as long as the whole world is bankrupt. Some understanding must be reached with the peoples of the world so that they may purchase the goods we have to sell and that they may sell, or trade, us the goods they have to sell. The nations and peoples of the world are "busted," and we know they have no money to buy our goods, and must barter what they have for what they want. But the republican answer to this is the Fordney tariff bill that practically prohibits the importation of goods. To gas a man to increase his breathing capacity would be as logical.

The disarmament conference, for which President Harding issued the call, is a kind of a side entrance to the League of Nations, and yet we had understood that this country had turned its back on "entangling alliances." Certain gentlemen who were so cocksure a year ago as to what should be done are beginning to realize that "alcoholism" has brought disaster. They are marking time, hoping that in some mysterious manner something will happen to pull them out of the hole.

Extra Size 30x3 1/2 $16.65

Now $13.95

Firestone first made the low price of $13.95 on the Standard Non-Skid, May 2. Unusual purchasing power through big volume of business, and the great efficiency of its $7,000,000 Plant No. 2, manufacturing exclusively 30x3 1/2 size, made this possible. Now, the production of the Extra-Size 30x3 1/2 tire has been transferred to Plant No. 2. This permits the price reduction on this tire from $16.65 to $13.95. No such value has ever before been offered tire users. If your dealer hasn't the Extra-Size in stock ask for our Standard Non-Skid type at the same price. You will still be getting an unusual tire value.

Preliminary Work on Dam Across the Pecos

Preliminary work on the construction of a large power dam across the Pecos river southwest of Dexter is rapidly taking shape, says a dispatch from Rowell. Soundings of the river have been completed, and at the location which has been decided upon it has been found that a solid rock foundation may be secured at a depth of 11 feet. A concrete dam 500 feet in length and 20 feet in height is proposed, and it is estimated that with the normal flow of water at this point several thousand horsepower can be developed.

The need of this power is becoming more and more apparent as this section of the valley is developed. At least two towns, and probably three—Dexter, Hagerman and Artesia—can be furnished light and power from the project more cheaply and in greater quantity.

Gets $12,000 for Trainload

Of course, we don't know much about railroading, but the freight rate on wheat seems excessive. We are informed by grain dealers that it costs $300 freight to ship a carload of wheat from Plainview to Galveston. Many trains are composed of 40 cars, hence the total revenue received by the railroad for a trainload of wheat is $12,000—and all it does is haul the train, for the consignee unloads it. The farmer has to foot the bill, for the local price paid for wheat is based on delivery in Galveston. — Plainview News.

5,735,000 Unemployed

(New York World.) The secretary of labor estimates the number of persons out of employment in all the industries of the country at 5,735,000.

This is far in excess of all the armed forces that the United States government mobilized during the war. To find anything that compares with it as a record of economic collapse we must go back to the troubled months in 1914 which followed the German declaration of war, when American finance, commerce and industry were suddenly paralyzed by the transformation of Europe into an armed camp.

It is easy and usually foolish to blame government for unemployment, but in this case there is a clear and unmistakable relationship. When the republican senators under the leadership of Henry Cabot Lodge began their fight against the treaty of Versailles they began also to recruit this vast army of unemployed.

At the time these senators organized their intrigue against President Wilson, American labor was at work and American factories were all running full time. American industry was looking forward to a long period of prosperity in which it was to reap the reward for its participation in the reconstruction of a war-devastated Europe. It was plain enough that American prosperity hinged on the rehabilitation and stabilization of political and economic conditions in Europe.

American interests were intricately involved with European interests. To get the world back on its feet it was imperative that the United States should ratify the treaty of Versailles and exert all its influence and power to re-establish a real peace in Europe.

Instead of doing the obvious thing, the American people permitted the republican senators to wreck the treaty in order to gratify their hatred of Woodrow Wilson, and when the treaty was wrecked by the senate Europe was given over to economic disintegration.

Not satisfied with this exploit in malicious destruction, the republican leaders in control of the republican congress that was elected in the fall of 1918 refused to revise taxation and refused likewise to reduce expenditures to a peace-time basis. Their answer to every plea for action was that if the country wanted them to revise taxes it must give them complete control of the government in 1920. The country gave them complete control of the government and they have failed to carry through a single pledge that they made.

American foreign trade has steadily diminished since it became evident that the senate would not ratify the treaty of Versailles. American industry has steadily declined under an unbearable burden of taxation. Hundreds of American merchant ships are rusting away because American commerce has been strangled by republican politics, and now a republican secretary of labor admits that 8,735,000 American workmen are walking the streets because they can find nothing to do.

This is the supreme achievement of normalcy.

Drunkenness showed an increase of 65 per cent in Britain during 1920.

Nearly twice as many people are killed yearly by automobiles as by trains.

A pipe's a pal packed with P. A.!

To Serve You

In the everyday use of your telephone you perhaps give little thought to the number of people or the amount of machinery which is necessary to provide you with telephone service.

Engineers determine where the plant is to be built, how constructed and expanded. Other employees do the construction work and keep the property in repair. Operators handle the calls and bookkeepers keep the accounts. And behind all, efficient management is necessary to finance the business and see that everything runs smoothly.

New Mexico is a new and growing state. Each year produces requirements for additional telephone plant. New plant requires new capital, and capital is attracted only by assurance of a fair return. The public and the Company must work together to supply future needs.

Jumping on a man when he is down, assailing an individual behind his back and otherwise taking advantage of persons who are not in a position to defend themselves are practices of which few Americans approve. Yet we have witnessed exhibitions of this sort by republicans in congress, not once, but many	sincerely believed. And it will take many a year to erase memories of the merciless, malignant, mendacious attacks to which he has been subjected almost daily during the long months since he was stricken with illness. Colds & Headache

"For years we have used Black-Draught in our family, and I have never found any medicine that could take its place," writes Mr. H. A. Stacy, of Bradyville, Tenn. Mr. Stacy, who is a Rutherford County farmer, recommends Black-Draught as a medicine that should be kept in every household for use in the prompt treatment of many little ills to prevent them from developing into serious troubles.

THE DORFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT

"It touches the liver and does the work," Mr. Stacy declared. "It is one of the best medicines I ever saw for a cold and headache. I don't know what we would do in our family if it wasn't for Black-Draught. It has saved us many dollars. . . I don't see how any family can hardly go without it. I know it is a reliable and splendid medicine to keep in the house. I recommend Black-Draught highly and am never without it."

Answering the Call of the Great Outdoors

The forest regions of the United States are the great vacation playgrounds of the American people, millions of whom visit them each summer in search of outdoor sport and enjoyment. Here is a typical scene in one of the favorite camping regions.

Woman Prefers Air Limousine

Owns Ranches and Uses It in Preference to Trains and Automobiles.

PLANS TRIP TO NEW YORK

California Woman Invites Her Friends Out for Air Flight Just as One Would for Ride in Motor—Makes Record Trip.

San Francisco.—The day of air limousines is here. If you suddenly make up your mind you want to hop off for anywhere within gasoline range, merely call up your air chauffeur and tell him to have the ol' boat ready.

That is what Mrs. W. A. Keddie, owner of a string of ranches in Nevada, did the other day when she decided to fly to Reno.

Mrs. Keddie, who purchased the plane some time ago, merely called up her pilot and said, "Let's go at two o'clock." Then she called up her friend, Mrs. Maude Faulk of San Francisco and asked her to go along. Mrs. Faulk accepted pronto.

Great Convenience.

W. W. Williams, formerly of the Royal Flying Corps of Canada, who acts as pilot, had the motor turning over when the two women, dressed in flying togs, reached the Marina. As soon as the women had taken their seats he stepped on the throttle and the big Standard J-1 plane, with a Curtiss K-6 motor, was on its way.

Mrs. Keddie, who acts as manager for her various ranches and calls Fallon, Nev., her home, purchased the machine some time ago to fly between her various ranches. She found it so successful that when she found it necessary to return to Reno in a hurry she telegraphed to Fallon for the machine and stayed another day in San Francisco, finishing up business affairs. Landing fields have been built at each ranch and a system of lighting has been installed so that night landings can be made. She has attempted only a few night flights, but she says she enjoys them quite as much as day flying.

First on Record. Mrs. Keddie expects to leave Reno soon to make a quick tour of her properties. Later this summer she expects to take a vacation—an aerial vacation in which she expects to fly by easy stages from San Francisco to New York.

Can't Find Name for Nineteenth Offspring.

Lynchburg, Va.—Fred O. Shamer, father of 19 children, 18 of whom are living, has, he says, run out of names and he is asking his friends here to suggest a name for the last, a two-months-old boy. The eighteenth child was named Thomas Jefferson by former President Woodrow Wilson at Mr. Skinner's request two years ago.

Aged Kansas Men Enjoy Vacation Period of Life.

Retired Preacher Writes a Book, Artist Collects Bugs and Farmer Takes Up Sculpture.

Topeka.—The vacation period of life—years well along toward the horizon—has brought pleasant occupations to three aged Kansas men. Having retired from active pursuits, each today is following the bent of his inclinations and declares he is enjoying his pastime immensely—one writing and printing a book, another collecting insects, and the third as a sculptor of stone.

Dr. A. N. See, eighty, retired Methodist preacher, who, with his wife, lives in the Methodist Home for the aged in Topeka, has just completed a history of the northwest Kansas conference. He not only gathered the historical data and wrote the manuscript for a 200-page book, but also printed the pages on a little hand press, and bound the volumes. Doctor See was a pioneer circuit rider in the big northwest Kansas conference, for many years was superintendent of the district.

Karl Stecher, twenty, of Wichita, artist and educator, chose to pursue what he claims always has been his hobby—collecting insects. An extensive collection, gathered and mounted by Mr. Stecher, recently was displayed in the show window of a Wichita bank. It includes specimens obtained by him on his travels through six countries—Switzerland, France, Italy, Turkey, Canada and the United States.

Mr. Stecher was born in Oberkirch, Germany, and came to America 48 years ago. Having made a comfortable fortune farming since he came to this country with his father, 56 years ago from his native Belgium, Charles DeLays of Ensmet devotes much of his time to sculpturing and making unique stone decorations for his house and lawn.

Some of these works, which include a large stone gate arch, a decorative wall, a huge basin surmounting a stone base ten feet in diameter, are of mosaic design of varicolored stones set in concrete and decorated with the sculptor's chisel. The decorative wall is 127 feet long and inland with more than two hundred kinds of rocks.

Says Flavoring Extract Alienated Her Husband

Salisbury, N. C.—When a wife sues for damages for alienation of her husband's affections, she generally names another woman. Not so with Mrs. Melissa J. Woodington of this city. Flavoring extracts, says Mrs. Woodington, alienated her husband from her. Mrs. Woodington filed suit for $10,000 against W. A. Rowman, a grocer, who she charges sold to her husband favoring extracts which caused him to neglect and desert her. Mrs. Woodington is suing for the divorce.

HE HAS TWO SETS OF ORGANS

Man Can Swallow Water and Then Baths in It.

Russian, "Discovered" by French Academy, Used Peculiar Talents to Fool Germans During War.

Paris.—The French Academy of Medicine, announces the discovery of what it terms a "man most fortunately constructed physiologically for braving the torrid heat wave." The man is Vladimir Bogarsky, formerly a captain in the Russian army and since the Bolshevik revolution a refugee in Paris. According to the report, Bogarsky has a "dual personality of digestive organs."

He simply drinks 80 glasses of ice water, which feet occupies him some three minutes, then, being thus cooled inside his trick organs return the water by way of the mouth in the same condition as when swallowed, and with such force and velocity that the stream rises to a height of six feet, falling back upon him in tiny needle-like jets like a shower.

Bogarsky put his talents to good use while fighting on the side of the allies. The Russians had an important battery well camouflaged, but being worried that the Germans might discover it, they constructed a dummy battery at some distance. Bogarsky was placed in a well-protected spot in front of the dummy battery and having smoked many packages of cigarettes and swallowed the water, he admitted smoke in such manner that the Germans, convinced that the battery was in operation, did not attack it.

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Poor Uncle Sam Has Well-Off Nephews

WASHINGTON.—The government obtained $1,289,000,000 in revenue from personal income taxes in 1918—an increase of $11,800,000 compared with 1917—according to a preliminary report by Internal Revenue Commissioner Clair.

The commissioner's report showed there were 5,223,700 personal returns filed in the calendar year 1918, representing a growth of 207,646 from 1917, while the total amount of net income reported for 1918 was $18,859,000,000, an increase of $3,984,000,000 over the previous year.

The average net income per return for 1918 was $3,629.05, the average amount of tax $238.08, and the average tax rate 6.59 per cent.

There were 65 returns of net income of $1,000,000 and over; 199 of $500,000 to $1,000,000; 425 of from $300,000 to $500,000; 1,864 of $150,000 to $300,000; 2,063 of $100,000 to $150,000; 12,830 of $50,000 to $100,000; $7,477 of $25,000 to $50,000; 162,485 of $10,000 to $25,000; 438,861 of $5,000 to $10,000; 1,180,488 of $3,000 to $5,000; 1,569,741 of $2,000 to $3,000, and 1,924,872 of $1,000 to $2,000.

Wives making separate returns from husbands numbered 58,584; single men, heads of families, 362,797; single women, heads of families, 88,585; single men, all other, 1,603,277; single women, all other, 861,900.

New York filed the greatest number of returns, 688,065, or 12.781 per cent of the total. The amount of net income reported by New York was $3,486,548,178, or 17.31 per cent of the total, and the tax paid was $309,792,351, or 31.40 per cent of the total. The per capita income for New York, according to the population of the census for 1910 was $330.89.

Individuals with net income of $1,000,000 or more mounted from 60 in 1914 to 120 in 1915, and then to 208 in 1916. From that year they have decreased annually, there having been 141 in 1917, 67 in 1918 and only 69 in 1919.

The net income of individuals in the class from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 is given as $41,098,453; from $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 as $22,166,906, and $2,000,000 and over as $38,574,356.

"Small Regular Army in Time of Peace"

IN CONFORMITY with President Harding's interpretation of the army reorganization act of June 4, Secretary of War Weeks has instructed General Pershing, chief of staff, to employ all the available resources of the military establishment to organize, train, and otherwise develop the National Guard and reserve corps into the effective forces.

Under the terms of this order no skeleton regiments will be maintained in the regular army, but the 150,000 men allowed by congress will be concentrated in fully manned, effective units, while surplus units will be placed "out of commission" and the surplus officers assigned to the organization and training of the National Guard and reserve corps.

"An examination of the statute," says the Weeks order, "shows that the new law is based on the idea that in the future, as in the past, great wars are to be fought, in the main, by armies composed of citizen soldiers. We still have the conception of a small regular army in time of peace. But whereas in the past the necessary citizen forces have been completely extemporized or materially reorganized upon the occurrence of an emergency, the new law provides that they shall be allocated by territory, that their officers and men shall be assigned to local units, and that as funds become available provision shall be made for the training of these officers and men.

"As the law provides for a military expansion by reinforcement of the regular army from the organized citizen forces, the President directs that these forces shall be developed to the fullest extent and that the maximum practicable number of carefully selected officers of the regular army be employed for that purpose."

Query: Does He Really Carry a Gun?

VIOLENT hostilities between Representative Ben Johnson of Kentucky and Charles A. Braun, brother of Grover C. Bergdoll, the draft slacker, broke up a Bergdoll investigation committee in riotous disorder. Hostilities burst from a tranquil sky while Representative Johnson was questioning Braun, who occupied the witness stand. Johnson didn't like the way Braun answered questions.

"You aren't telling the truth," remarked Johnson. Braun rose from his chair, leaned across the table, looked Johnson in the eye, and in even, measured tones said: "You are a liar." Johnson leaped to his feet, reached into his pocket as if about to draw a weapon, and started around the table after Braun. Women spectators shrieked. Mrs. Johnson was the first to act. She threw herself upon her husband, holding his right arm, screaming: "No, you must not do that!"

A second later Representative Peters of Maine, chairman of the committee, tackled Johnson football fashion. Two more of his colleagues, Representatives Flood of Virginia and Lohring of Indiana, rushed to his assistance. Johnson, struggling with the fury of a madman, was on the verge of shaking off his captors, when a husky captain of marines went to their aid.

Meanwhile Sergeant-at-Arms Joe Rogers started to lead Braun out of the room. Johnson cursed with the vehemence of a pirate. "Am I not going to have a chance to settle with that—?" he shouted. "Won't this committee let me punish him; that flag-hating—?" The committee and Mrs. Johnson and the marine captain held him tight. As he left the hearing room, Johnson said: "I would have killed him in another second if I had not been held back."

Need of Navy Now Airplane Carriers

THE destruction by army air bombers of the German dreadnaught Ostfriesland has convinced leading military and naval strategists that control of the air is now the most urgent need of our national defense.

The best of these experts, even those most enthusiastic and forward looking in their claims for aircraft, do not concede that the battleship, as the fighting bulwark of the sea, has been made obsolete, but they do insist vigorously that battleships, as the strong right arm of national defense, are going to be worse than handicapped unless they can be accompanied to sea with equivalent aircraft, to drive off enemy bombing planes.

"Get airplane carriers and get them quickly," exclaimed one prominent naval officer who witnessed the sinking of the Ostfriesland. "England already has six airplane carriers," he continued. "Japan is getting two. The United States has none, except the old cutter Jupiter now being turned into one, and unless Congress speedily acts, we shall be unable to cope with the aerial bombardment of our fleet."

Ostfriesland demonstrated the hard, cold fact that the battleship can be quickly sunk with heavy bombs dropped from the air, and that the dreadnaught can be disposed of by dropping bombs into the water, without even hitting the ship.

The airplane carrier, a gigantic naval vessel, larger and speedier than any warship afloat, fast as the destroyer, and carrying a cargo of many planes—bombers, reconnaissance, and scouting—is regarded as the best way to meet the new aircraft bombing menace to the battleship.

What Else Was It Possible for Him to Say of the Soloist's Vocal Efforts?

The soloist was an egotist and the rest of the choir hated him cordially. And when it gave a recent concert they were provoked when he got the very best parts. But still the members felt that they had one way left to get even with him. One of their members did the publicity work for them and they knew that he too disliked the baritone, and hoped that he would give him no publicity—a thing he craved more than all else.

But to their dismay the next morning's paper read, "Mr. Blank's rendition of his solos was very satisfying." They took the writer to task. And he retorted, "I had to mention them, didn't I? Well, what else could I say? They were certainly satisfying to himself, and as for the rest of you I didn't hear you clamoring for any more of them, did I?"

And they were convinced he was right.

Bar Trapping of Bear.

Increased bounties on ferocious animals and ferocious birds and protective measures with a view to conserving the bear, which is becoming scarce in many parts of British Columbia, feature new game regulations which have recently been announced. Trapping of bear is now prohibited, and only three bears may be shot in a season. Bounty for panthers has been increased to $40, timber wolves $25, crows 20 cents, magpies 20 cents, and big-horn and snow owls, $1 each.
