Field Meet and Fall Festival at Carrizozo, Oct. 7 and 8

Carrizozo to Have Field Day and Fall Festival, Oct. 7-8

A meeting was held last Saturday to consider the question of Field Day meet and our Fall Festival. The decision was almost unanimous to hold the event, and the dates fixed were Friday and Saturday, October 7 and 8. The following committees were appointed:

The program and sports committee was instructed to outline a program and the amount necessary to carry it out. This was accordingly done, submitted to the executive committee and approved. A glance at the program will show a great number of sports and amusements, and the purpose of the committees is to crowd the two days full of fun, frolic and food.

Good weather and a good crowd are all that are now required to make the event a success. Everybody is welcome and wanted.

Badly Burned

Will C. Loughrey was badly burned about the face, hands and arms Tuesday afternoon while assisting a neighbor in disposing of mites in a chicken house. The inside of the building had been saturated with gasoline and when ignited by Will's match enveloped him in flames. Besides burning his face and singeing the hair on face and head, his clothing caught fire and in endeavoring to put that out he got his hands and arms quite painfully burned. The burns, while very painful, are not thought to be serious, unless one of his eyes is injured. He was taken to Hotel Dieu Wednesday morning.

Large Grain Crops

The present year has been a most productive one for the farmers of Lincoln county, and the grain and hay crops, especially, are, perhaps, the best in our history. The heaviest individual grower of grain in the county of whom we have knowledge is John Stuart, of Alto. His crop of grain this year will exceed 200,000 pounds, consisting of corn, wheat and oats. He has an abundance of hay, as well. The difficulty is that present prices will not justify the thrashing, baling and transportation of the grain to market, nor has he sufficient stock to which to feed it. And the same condition exists with reference to his hay.

Committees of live Carrizozo business men have outlined the programs and are completing the arrangements for the Field Meet and Fall Festival to be held in Carrizozo on Friday and Saturday, October 7 and 8. Read the program elsewhere in these columns and you will be convinced that there will be something doing every minute, and then some. There will be oodles of fun, athletic sports, horse races, dancing, good eats and no end of hospitality. Everybody invited; the more the merrier! Come! Carrizozo will do its part.

A Filver or Old Dobbin This Winter?

Jim Gatewood, who carries the mail from Nogal to Parsons, has purchased a Ford car and will use it for the transportation of mail in future. Heretofore the mail, on that route, was carried on horseback. Jim expects to make up the difference in running expense by carrying express and passengers to and from the Parsons district. The route has been changed from Nogal canyon to the Mesa and Bonito and then on to Parsons. This will make it a rural route, and it will be a great convenience to the farmers, who will have their mail delivered to their boxes, thus saving them a trip to Parsons or Nogal two or three times a week. But we believe that when the snow is two or three feet deep along that route, Old Dobbin will be commended to take the place of the Ford.

The Clean-Up Squad

"The Clean-Up Squad," consisting of representatives of the War Risk Bureau, Vocational Training department, Red Cross, etc., were here yesterday and spent a vigorous day. The purpose was to wind up all claims ex-soldiers might have against Uncle Sam, and to arrange for those desiring vocational training. Notice of the meeting was given to all applicants by the Red Cross chapter and the local American Legion post. Many of the boys came in, and the result of the day's work was as follows:

Cases contacted, 13; new applications for vocational training, 4; new compensation cases filed, 4; compensation cases appealed, 7; men examined, 4; miscellaneous claims, 1; delayed claims, 1; men interviewed, 36.

The squad put in a busy day, and was liberally assisted by members of the Red Cross chapter, Mrs. J. B. French and Miss Grace Jones devoting much time to the work.

Otero Elected Commander

At Silver City last Saturday Miguel A. Otero, Jr., of Santa Fe, was elected the New Mexico commander of the American Legion, and has tendered his resignation as member of the legislature to the secretary of state. Otero was not an active candidate for the position of commander.

In older times only druggists sold coffee.

May Take "Human Documents" to White House

Urban LeDoux, who has made himself conspicuous by putting unemployed men and women on the auction block at New York City, says he will plead with President Harding to publish a list of war profiteers with the hope that they would split half of their earnings with the destitute and unemployed war veterans. "I may take some human documents along with the hope of procuring an interview in the White House, where the president can hear, from the bottom of the men's hearts, their story," said LeDoux. "Six truckloads of human documents will be taken to Washington. There will be an encampment on the steps of the White House and at the doors of the unemployment conference until they act on my proposition."

Evidently LeDoux, who seems to care more for notoriety than for the unemployed, has never heard of what happened to the army of one Coney when it attempted to make camp on public grounds in Washington. A handful of sparrow cops chased that army out of town and scattered it in every direction except the one in which it wanted to go.

Says Over-Organization is Country's Plague

In a recent speech at Des Moines, Iowa, Senator Cummins declared that the present tendency toward over-organization in the country has created "a very difficult and alarming condition."

He says that organization has gone to such length that it is now practically impossible for congress to get an unbiased and unbiased opinion upon any public question.

"The United States," he declared, "is over-organized at the expense of the importance of opinion. The safety of this country lies in a consensus of judgment among intelligent people. We are drifting toward a condition in which it is impossible to get this consensus of opinion when every industry is closely and effectively organized.

"Where are we to get, in Washington, when every bit of information that comes to us comes from a selfish standpoint? Down there now it is simply a war between organizations. Congressional committees are constantly holding hearings, and I have yet to hear during this session a single man come to a committee hearing for the purpose of enlightening the committee from the public standpoint. All come to urge something that will help the particular organization with which they are affiliated. It creates, in my opinion, a very difficult and alarming situation."

Four Amendments Carry in Lincoln County

The board of county commissioners met Monday and canvassed the vote cast in county at the late election. The count showed that four of the eleven amendments carried and seven were defeated.

Following is the tabulated vote cast in the county:

Amendment	For	Against
No. 1	619	548
No. 2	795	398
No. 3	417	671
No. 4	686	475
No. 5	295	751
No. 6	314	742
No. 7	292	790
No. 8	367	850
No. 9	350	705
No. 10	374	701
No. 11	690	614

For U.S. Senator:—Bursum (r) 925; Hanna (d) 683; Sena (i, r) 11; Smith (s) 12.

He Farms "High Up"

H. E. Keller was down from the High Mesa last Monday. His place is located at an altitude of 8,000 feet, the highest farming section in the county. The past summer, he says, was the wettest in the 14 years he has farmed there, and as a result there was a reduction in the yield of cereal crops. Crops in his section, however, are above the average and might have been record-breakers if it had not been for the excessive summer rains. This is the first year, Mr. Keller says, that frost has held off so late. It usually comes within a day or two of September 15.

R. R. Men Vote for Strike, Leaders Advise Against It

"Our past experience has been that 98 per cent of the men will always vote for a strike." This startling statement was made by Vice-President James Murdock, of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, last Monday, at Chicago, where it was announced that a majority of the members of that labor organization favored a strike rather than accept the recent wage cut ordered by the United States Railroad Labor Board.

Whether a general strike shall be called by the six most powerful railroad unions may be decided within the next two weeks.

Next Monday officials of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Order of Railway Conductors, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers and the Switchmen's Union of North America will meet at Chicago to count strike ballots cast by their 250,000 members.

More than 200,000 shop crafts employees have already voted by an overwhelming majority to strike rather than to accept the wage cut, but, on advice of their leaders, are waiting for the labor board to complete its announcement of new working rules and for the other unions to decide whether or not they shall support the strike and make it general.

It has been announced that in face of the fact that the railroaders favor a strike, their leaders are advising against it and calling attention to the danger of hasty action. It is thought the conservative element will control.

Jewish New Year Monday

The Jewish New Year, better known by its Hebrew designation Rosh Hashabah, occurs this year on Monday, October 2.

According to the practice of the Synagogue, it will be observed as a holy day from Sunday, October 2, until the evening of the following day.

The legend that represents the Jewish New Year as marking the anniversary of the creation of the world would compute the ensuing year as the 5682 year since the world was created. According to rabbinical tradition, however, the New Year marks the anniversary of the creation of man. All humanity has, therefore, an equal share in the common heritage of a universal birthday.

Luckily we're not compelled to follow the advice given us.

"HONEST ABE"

Synopsis—Samson and Sarah Taylor, with their two children, Josiah and Betty, travel by wagon in the summer of 1861 from their home in Vergennes, Vt., to the West. In the land of plenty their destination is the country of the Sangamon, in Illinois. At Niagara Falls they meet a party of immigrants, among them a youth named John McNeil, who also decides to go to the Sangamon country. All of the party suffer from fever and ague. Sarah's ministrations save the life of a youth, Harry Needles, in the last stages of fever, and he accompanies the Taylors. They reach New Salem, Illinois, and are welcomed by young "Abe" Lincoln. The Taylors are introduced to everyone and decide to settle at New Salem.

"Welcome! and here is the best seat at the fireside," he said to Samson. "My wife and daughter are away for a visit and for ten days I've had the cabin to myself. Look, ye worshippers of fire, and see how fine it is now! The homely cabin is a place of beauty. What a heaven it is when the flames are leaping! Here is Hogarth's line of beauty; nothing perpendicular or horizontal!"

He took Abe's hand and went on: "Here, ye lovers of romance, is one of the story-tellers of Ispahan who has in him the wisdom of the wandering tribes. He can tell you a tale that will draw children from their play and old men from the chimney corner. My boy, take a chair next to Mr. Traylor. Mr. Traylor, you stand up as proud and firm as a big pine. I believe you're a Yankee."

"So do I," said Samson. "If you took all the Yankee out of me I'd have an empty skin."

Then Abe began to show the stranger his peculiar art in these words: "Stephen Nickles used to say: 'God's grace embraces the Isles of the sea and the uttermost parts of the earth. It takes in the Esquimaux and the Hottentots. Some go so far to say that it takes in the Yankees but I don't go so far!'"

Samson joined in the good-natured laughter that followed.

"If you deal with some Yankees you take your life in your hands," he said. "They can serve God or Mammon and I guess they have given the devil some of his best ideas. He means to be getting a lot of Yankee notions lately."

"There was a powerful preacher in Kentucky against the Yankees," Abe went on. "Down there they used to tell about a Yankee who sold his horse and was driving them to town. On the way he decided that he had sold them too cheap. He left them with his drover in the road and went on to town and told the buyer that he would need help to bring 'em in."

"How's that?" the buyer asked.

"Why they all away an' go to runnin' through the woods an' fields an' we can't keep up with 'em."

"I don't think I want 'em," says

the buyer. "A speedy hog hasn't much perk to carry. I'll give you twenty for it."

"I don't think I want 'em," says

the buyer. "A speedy hog hasn't much perk to carry. I'll give you twenty for it."

"I don't think I want 'em," says

this when I saw Webster and heard him speak at Plymouth."

"What kind of a looking man is he?" Abe asked.

"A big erect, splendid figure of a man. He walked like a ram at the head of his flock."

Abe who since his story had sat with a sad face looking into the fire now leaned forward, his elbow on his knees, and shook his head with interest while his gray eyes took on a look of animation. The diary speaks often of the "sell of sadness" on his face.

"He is a very great man," Abe exclaimed.

"Have you learned that last noble sight of his in the reply to Haynes, as you promised?" Kelso asked.

"I have," said Abe, "and the other day when I was tramping back from Bowlin Green's I came across a drove of cattle and stopped and gave it to them. They all let go of the grass and stood looking."

"Good! Now stand up and let us see how you imitate the great chief of the Whig clan," said Kelso.

The link and awkward youth rose and began to speak the lines in a high-pitched voice that trembled with excitement. It lowered and steadied and rang out like noble music on a well-played trumpet as the channel of his spirit filled with the mighty current of the orator's passion. Then, indeed, the words fell from his lips "like the winter snows."

"They shook our hearts as the wind shakes the branches of a tree," Samson writes in his diary. "The lean, bony body of the boy was transfigured and as I looked at his face in the firelight I thought it was handsome."

"Not a word was spoken for a minute after he sat down. I had got my first look at Lincoln. I had seen his soul. I think it was then I began to realize that a man was being made among us 'more precious than fine gold; even a man more precious than the golden wedge of Ophir.'"

The Doctor gazed in silence at the boy. Kelso sat with both hands in his pockets and his chin upon his breast looking solemnly into the fire.

"Thank you, Abe," he said in a low voice. "Something unusual has happened and I'm just a little scared."

"Why?" Abe asked.

"For fear somebody will spoil us with another hog story. I'm a little afraid of anything I can say. I would venture this, that the man Webster is a prophet. In his Plymouth address he hears receding into never-returning distance the clank of chains and all the ill of slavery. It will come true."

"Do you think so?" Abe asked.

"Surely—there are so many of us who hate it. These Yankees hate it and they and their children are scattering all over the midlands. The love of liberty is the salt of their blood and the marrow of their bones. Liberty means freedom for all. Wait until these babies, coming out here by the wagonload, have grown to manhood. Slavery will have to reckon with them."

"I hate it, too," said Abe. "If I live I'm going to hit that thing on the head some day."

"Do you still want to be a lawyer?" Kelso asked.

"Yes, but sometimes I think I'd make a better blacksmith," said Abe. "I'm trying to make up my mind what's best for me."

"No, you're trying to decide what is best for your friends and your country and for the reign of law and justice and liberty."

under a great pack, partly covered with bed ticking, stood in the doorway.

"Hello, Mr. Kelso," the bearded man answered. "The poor wandering Jew has gone back again—hey? I think I had to take de lump off my back before I gits in."

Staggering beneath his load he let it down to the ground.

"Bring in your Trojan horse and mind you do not let out its four and twenty warriors until morning. I'll have some bread and milk for you in a minute. Gentlemen, this is my friend Eli—a wandering pleasure of trade."

"I had a wonderful line of goods—wonderful! wonderful!" said Eli, gesturing with both hands.

"First supper—then open your Trojan horse," said Kelso.

"First I want show my goods," Eli insisted. "An' I'll bet you take dem all—everything vat I have in dot pack an' you pay my price an' you thank me an' say 'Eli, vat you have to drink?'"

"I'll bet you four bits I don't," said Kelso.

"You are my friend; I would not take your money like dot so easy. No! It would not be right. These are Scotch goods, gentlemen—so rare an' beautiful—noting like dem in de world!"

He began to undo his pack while the little company stood around him.

"Gentlemen, you can see vat you cannot buy. Only my friend can have dem goods," he went on glibly as he removed the cover of the pack.

Suddenly there was a lively stir in it. To the amazement of all a beautiful girl threw aside the ticking and leaped out of the large wicker basket it had covered. With a merry laugh she threw her arms around Jack Kelso's neck and kissed him.

The men clapped their hands in noisy admiration.

"That's like him, isn't it?" said the Doctor.

"Exactly!" Abe exclaimed.

"I stop at David Barney's an' dere she took de goods out of my pack an' fix up dis job lot for you," said Eli with a laugh.

"A real surprise party!" the girl exclaimed.

She was a small-sized girl, bearing sixteen, with red cheeks and hazel eyes and blonde hair that fell to curls upon her shoulders.

"Mr. Traylor, this is my daughter Eli," said Kelso. "She is skilled in the art of producing astonishment."

"She must have heard of that handsome boy at the tavern and got in a hurry to come home," said the Doctor.

"Ann Rutledge says that he is a right purty boy," the girl laughed as she brushed her curls aside.

and put my mouth to the bung hole. I never drink it.

"Say," he added as he sat down and began eating a doughnut. "If you ever hit anybody take a sledge, hammer or a crowbar. It wouldn't be de- cated to use your fist."

They hewed a flat surface on opposite sides of the log which Samson had carried and peled it and raised its lower end on a cross timber. Then they marked it with a chalk line and sliced it into inch boards with a whip saw. Abe standing on top of the log and Samson beneath it. Suddenly the saw stopped. A clear, beautiful voice sang the music of "Sweet Nightingale" into the timbered hollow. It halted the workers and set the woodland ringing. The men stood silent like those hearing a benediction. The singing ceased. Still they listened for half a moment. It was as if a spirit had passed and touched them.

"It's Eli—the little vixen!" said Abe tenderly. "She's an odd child and as pretty as a spotted fawn, and about as wild. She's a kind of a first cousin to the bobolink."

When they were getting ready to go home that afternoon Joe got into a great hurry to see his mother. It seemed to him that ages had elapsed since he had seen her—a conviction which led to noisy tears.

Abe knelt before him and comforted the boy. Then he wrapped him in his jacket and swung him in the air and started for home with Joe astride his neck.

Samson says in his diary: "His tender play with the little lad gave me another look at the man Lincoln."

"Some one proposed once that we should call that stream the Minnehaha," said Abe as he walked along. "After this Joe and I are going to call it the Minnehahook."

The women of the little village had met at a quilting party at ten o'clock with Mrs. Martin Waddell. There Sarah had had a seat at the frame and heard all the gossip of the countryside. The nimble-fingered Ann Rutledge—a daughter of the tavern folk—had sat beside her. Ann was a slender, good-looking girl of seventeen with blue eyes and a rich crown of auburn hair and a fair skin well browned by the sunlight. She was the most dexterous needle worker in New Salem.

John McNeil, whom the Taylors had met on the road near Niagara Falls and who had shared their camp with them, arrived on the stage that evening. He was dressed in a new buttoned suit and clean linen and looked very handsome. Samson wrote that he resembled the pictures of Robert Emmet. With fine, dark eyes, a smooth skin, well-moulded features and black hair neatly brushed on a shapely head he was not at all like the rugged Abe. In a low tone and very modestly, with a slight brogue on his tongue he told of his adventures on the long shore road to Michigan. Ann sat listening and looking into his face as he talked. Abe came in, soon after eight o'clock, and was introduced to the stranger. All noted the contrast between the two young men as they gazed each other. Abe sat down for a few minutes and looked sadly into the fire but said nothing. He rose presently, excused himself and went away.

CHAPTER IV.

Which Presents Other Leg Cabin Folk and the First Step to the Making of a New Home and Certain Capabilities and Incapabilities of Abe.

Next morning at daylight two parties went out in the woods to cut timber for the home of the newcomers. In one party were Harry Needles carrying two axes and a well-filled lunch-box; Samson with a saw in his hand and the boy Joe on his back; Abe with a saw and ax and a small jug of root beer and a book tied in a big red handkerchief and slung around his neck. When they reached the woods Abe cut a pole for the small boy and carried him on his shoulder to the creek and said:

"Now you sit down here and keep order in this little frog city. If you hear a frog say anything improper you fetch him a whack. Don't allow any nonsense. We'll make you mayor of Frog City."

The men fell to with axes and saws while Harry limbed the logs and looked after the mayor. Their huge muscles sang the sharp axes into the timber and gnawed through it with the saw. Many big trees fell before noon time when they stopped for lunch. While they were eating Abe said:

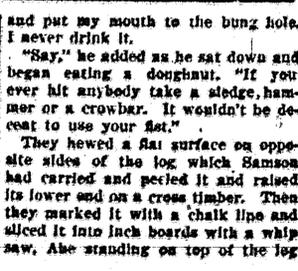

"I reckon we better saw out a few boards this afternoon. Need 'em for de seats. We'll tote a couple of logs up on the side of that knoll, put 'em on skids an' whip 'em up into boards with the saw."

Samson took hold of the middle of one of the logs and raised it to the ground.

"I guess we can carry 'em," he said. "Can you shoulder it?" Abe asked.

"Easy," said Samson as he raised an end of the log, stepped beneath it and, resting its weight on his back, soon got his shoulder near its center and swung it clear of the ground and walked with it to the knollside where he let it fall with a resounding thump that shook the ground. Abe stopped eating and watched every move in this remarkable performance.

"You walk with the log," Traylor said the law of gravitation with that marvellous quickness of his.

625,000 BOTTLES SOLD IN NEW YORK

Biggest Thing of Kind Ever Seen in That State, Declares Big Wholesaler.

The fact that 625,000 bottles of Talc have been sold in the state of New York since its introduction there less than one year ago, is a big business item that will attract unusual attention throughout the entire East, for nothing like it has ever happened before. It breaks all records.

Mr. George E. Evans, manager of the Gilson-Snow Company, the well-known wholesale druggists, with branches in Albany, Buffalo, Rochester and Syracuse, recently announced that the preparation was now selling in their trade territories alone at the phenomenal rate of approximately 500,000 bottles a year.

"If the present rate continues," said Mr. Evans, "this rate alone will probably require considerably over 750,000 bottles a year. This is a tremendous figure, but I am really conservative in making this statement."

Talc is sold by leading druggists everywhere.—Advertisement.

Which Kind of a Pipe-Smoker Are You?

There's the man who doesn't care what kind of tobacco he smokes in his pipe just so it holds fire and makes rings.

And there's the man, minded to have all there is to smoking, who will fill his pipe only with tobacco of real quality and flavor.

The man who insists upon having quality and flavor in his pipe-tobacco may have to pay somewhat more for it nowadays than before the War. That's true of Edgeworth and of good tobacco in all forms.

But the difference in price a man pays for good tobacco is too narrow to influence the judgment of a pipe-smoker who loves his own brand. Other things—all things—cost more in proportion, and he is generally a tolerant fellow who knows that when it is time for good tobacco to come down in price, it will come.

There is something in the very nature of the business of making tobacco that seems to prevent injustice in the matter of price. Whether or not it is the good fellow-ship, the comradeship of pipe-smoking that reaches back into the factory, we don't know. But we know we do try to keep the price as low as we can without detracting one iota from the quality.

We feel that an Edgeworth smoker wants Edgeworth and will pay a right price for his smoke. There's such a lot of comfort in a smoke. It smooths away a lot of small worries and fits a man to tackle things as they are.

Provided it's the tobacco that absolutely suits his taste.

Every man knows what a good smoke is. The old pipe, a brimming bowl of the right tobacco, a few minutes of perfect comfort.

If you haven't yet found just the right tobacco, we wish you would try Edgeworth. Edgeworth may or may not be just the right tobacco for you, but you can learn at our expense.

Merely write upon a postcard your name and address, then that of the dealer usually filling your smoking needs, and we will willingly send you generous samples of Edgeworth in both forms—Plug Slice and Ready-Rubbed.

Edgeworth Plug Slice is pressed into cakes, then cut into very thin slices. One moist, waferish slice rubbed between the hands makes an average pipe load.

Edgeworth Ready-Rubbed reaches you ready to pour right from can to pipe. It packs well and burns evenly, freely.

Edgeworth is sold in various sizes, suited to the needs and tastes of all purchasers. Both Edgeworth Plug Slice and Edgeworth Ready-Rubbed come in great, pocket-size packages in attractive tin holders and glass jars, and in economical in-between sizes.

For the free samples, address Lucas & Brother Company, 41 South Erie Street, Richmond, Va.

To Retail Merchants—If your stock cannot supply you with Edgeworth, Lucas & Brother will gladly send you a supply of our pipe-tobacco. Please send post a one-cent stamp to the Retailer for the name of your nearest Edgeworth dealer.

Paris Fads and American Taste

Paris proposes, but the American woman disposes, asserts a prominent fashion authority.

No one knows that better than the American importers, or the buyers for American stores, who go pouring onto the continent and fairly tread on each other's toes in their effort to follow what is new in French clothes and to make necessary purchases.

It is important for them to know Paris—at least the Paris that centers its interests in making and wearing clothes at this time of year. It is important for them to know how to buy. Lots of things are important—but most important for them is the knowledge of American women. Conglomerate though we are, product of a melting pot in which have been thrown all the races of Europe, there is a very distinct something that is American taste, as unlike French taste as it is unlike British or South American taste.

The French dressmakers and designers; most of them, think they know what the American taste amounts to. They seem to think that by making certain alterations to suit the different average anatomy of the American figure, by eliminating certain trimmings and adding some others, lengthening one season, and shortening another, they will suit the American taste. But there is more of it than that. It is the result of so many complex forces that when a man or woman possesses this interpretation of American taste we usually call it intuition.

Interpreting Dress Events.
Some women—many of them—and diversion and help, sometimes even a source of economy, in interpreting the events in the dress centers of France for themselves. You may follow the development of fashion because somehow or other it shows you better than anything else the trend of opinion and taste, because it brings you into very close touch with France in a season when you must stay at home. How much easier to imagine the French races if you know that this season they have worn black and white, combinations of black and white and shades of violet, if you know that there have been striking examples of long bouffant skirts with the predominance of skirts in straight lines only fairly long, that fringe and jet have played an important role, that women are wearing Spanish hats, that black lace floats from these hats or forms the wraps with which they are worn, that sleeves that are long or flowing form a contrast to sleeves that still reveal almost the entire arm!

Now you may read fashion news merely for this sort of diversion. You are wise if you look at this matter subjectively, asking yourself as you read of these departures in dress just what bearing they may helpfully have on your personal dress problem. Anything like a literal reading would be absurd. Just because one French woman makes a fad of wearing real flowers on her hat, don't come to the conclusion that you must consult the forist as well as the milliner about your new hat.

Because the correspondents make a good deal of the fact that some one appeared in the Bois de Boulogne wearing a white shoe with a black stocking and a black shoe with a white stocking, don't imagine that Parisians have all gone in for a pebbled effect. Just because some friend in Paris writes you that "Every one in Paris is wearing enormous, long skirts," don't be entirely convinced. Remember that one very long bouffant skirt would attract more attention than four of the sort you see in the street.

to wear in the autumn, possibly into the winter?

French women are going slowly and American women will go even more slowly. However, the very short skirt is gone. For some women who never did take up the very short skirt—and there were a very great many even among the smartly dressed who did not—this means to stand so far as skirt lengths are concerned. The skirt that touches or nearly touches the toes will be extreme for many months, as it rarely is now. And remember this, if you do decide to indulge in this extreme be sure that you select for your long skirted frock one that is to be extremely well made and obviously smart in other respects. Don't trust the little dressmaker by the day with your first very long skirt. It is the easiest thing in the world to have this new skirt look dowdy. If you don't take care you will look as if you had gone backward to fashions that are out rather than forward to those that are coming.

The skirt that is both long and full should not be selected for a street costume. It is better to cling to the straight silhouette save for indoors and evening. There have been circular skirts that were attractive and that called forth much favorable comment. But to be on the safe side select a skirt whose fullness is disposed in side draperies or in straight lines.

Long Sleeves Are Good.
The long sleeve is better established than the very short skirt. For the most part sleeves are either very short or very long, although the loose three-quarter sleeve has received the approval of two or three of the French dressmakers. The sleeve that is long and tight seems to be sidetracked for the present, and if you are one of these neat souls who delight in feeling a cuff fastened securely around the wrist you will have to endure patiently the floating drapery of a sleeve that hangs loose from the armhole.

Don't fail to observe that many of the dressmakers—Lanvin, for instance—are making use of a "V" neck line, this does not mean, as you may have heard, that the bateau or boat-shaped neck line is done for. This is probably good for many months to come. But as an alternative, if you find the bateau line unbecoming, or merely as a matter of variety, you may select a rather narrow "V" which may be used on the otherwise unbroken surface of the bodice. For bodices are left very plain. There are no plaits or tucks or gathers, and the tendency is to pile trimming on the skirt and to omit it from the bodice. Sometimes when embroidery is used it is worked heavily on the sleeves and on the skirt drapery, while the bodice is left in striking simplicity.

Loose, Low Waist Line.
If you are one who is waiting patiently for a more definite waistline you will probably have to keep on waiting. For the most part waistlines are still wide and fairly low. There is little chance that they will be raised or tightened for some time to come.

To be sure there are some exceptions where the waistline seems to be closely confined. Polart on certain evening frocks makes use of metal cloth that drapes very snugly from one shoulder down and around the waist at the opposite side. This is used in connection with a very full, very long full skirt that balloons out at the hips, giving stress to the drawn lines of the bodice. Again there are bodices that are quite fancily draped and confined in at the waist. But these are not numerous and always the clinging in is more obvious than real. Quite definitely we are getting away

Highway Improvement

GOOD ROADS AID PROSPERITY

Instance Cited of Virginia Community Where Great Progress Has Been Accomplished.

That good roads are closely related to prosperity there is no question of doubt. Only a few years ago this section of Virginia had but one macadam road, one creamery, which went to the wall, and a mere handful of pure-bred dairy cattle, writes C. C. Conner, Jr., of Virginia in the Practical Farmer. One not familiar with the many blessings good roads bring about might wonder in what way good roads would affect creameries and pure-bred cows. Let us take, for instance, Rockingham county, and see just what good roads did in this section in the dairy business alone, to say nothing of the prosperity good roads brought about in various other ways. Previous to our good roads the one creamery did some business during the summer months, when the dirt roads were at their best, but business dwindled to nothing during the winter months because farmers could not get over the roads to deliver their milk. The creamery finally closed down for the lack of milk. About this time a mere handful of progressive farmers began a movement for better roads, calling a meeting at a little village centrally located in the county. The attendance was good, and a great deal of "good roads" enthusiasm was aroused. It was the first step in better roads that gained impetus by leaps and bounds. Today, in a few short years, we have a network of fine macadam roads throughout the entire county. Following good roads came creameries. They sprang up over night like mushrooms, till today the county is dotted with creameries, the sight of which does not look much like closing down for the lack of milk, particularly during the early hours of the day, when auto trucks are pouring in from the country, bringing milk from every nook and corner of the county. Pure-bred cows came with the creameries. Till today scrub stock no longer dominates our farms. Ask any farmer why he disposed of his scrub cows, replacing them with pure breeds, and he will tell you the creameries did it.

Stretch of Hard Surface Road in Virginia.

Ask him what brought the creameries, and he will tell you better roads. While milk has slumped somewhat at times in this section, it has never halted the dairy business, and farmers are now reporting fair profits in dairying. The wealth that good roads has brought to this section in dairying alone is astonishing. We are striving for more wealth and prosperity by building still more good roads. Experience has taught us that good roads, wealth and prosperity go hand in hand.

ROAD MARKERS AID TOURISTS

Trunk Highways Designated by Number to Correspond With One on Official Map.

Since the adoption of a standardized system of highway markers by the state of Wisconsin, five other states and England have followed the model plan. Each of the state trunk highways is designated by number to correspond to the number on the official road map. Markers have been placed at close intervals carrying the number shown on the map, making it easy for the tourist to reach the most remote villages in the state.

Some More Truths.

WOULD you use a steam shovel to move a pebble? Certainly not. Implements are built according to the work they have to do.

Would you use a grown-up's remedy for your baby's ills? Certainly not. Remedies are prepared according to the work THEY have to do.

All this is preliminary to reminding you that Fletcher's Castoria was sought out, found and is prepared solely as a remedy for Infants and Children. And let this be a warning against Substitutes, Counterfeits and the Just-as-good stuff that may be all right for you in all your strength, but dangerous for the little babe.

All the mother-love that lies within your heart cries out to you: Be true to Baby. And being true to Baby you will keep in the house remedies specially prepared for babies as you would a baby's food, hairbrush, toothbrush or sponge.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Are You Prepared?
A doctor in the house all the time would be a good idea. Yet you can't afford to keep a doctor in the family to keep baby well or prevent sickness. But you can do almost the same thing by having at hand a bottle of Fletcher's Castoria, because it is a wonderful remedy for indigestion, colic, feverishness, fretfulness and all the other disorders that result from common ailments that babies have. Fletcher's Castoria is perfectly safe to use. It is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrup. Children cry for Fletcher's Castoria, and mothers recommend it because they have found it a comfort to children and a mother's friend. If you love your baby, you know how sweet it is to be able to help baby when trouble comes. You cannot always call upon a doctor. But doctors have nothing but good to say of Fletcher's Castoria, because they know that it can only do good—that it can't do any harm—and they wouldn't want you to use for baby a remedy that you would use for yourself.

Hated to Leave—But

Sheriff Harris had an experience this week that was somewhat amusing, though the principal actor would probably decline to accept it in that light. However, the story follows:

A boy in his teens, whose home was in Arizona, had entered the military institute at Roswell. For some reason or other the regulations there did not track with the young man's idea of personal freedom. One morning he was missed at inspection—he had taken French leave. Later, Sheriff Harris received a wire from the boy's father in Arizona, stating that the boy was near Carrizozo and requesting the sheriff to see the boy and induce him to go back to school.

The boy was located at the Dixon ranch, and agreed to return to school with the sheriff. So next morning, the boy having remained at the ranch the night before, the sheriff desiring to relieve the truant of as much chagrin as possible, the two started for Roswell. Upon reaching Capitán the sheriff had some business matters to look after and gave little concern to his quasi-prisoner. When the business had been completed the sheriff returned to the garage where he had left the car and where he had seen the boy enter shortly before. The delinquent student was not to be seen; he had vanished without a trace, but, as an evidence of his courteous nature and as proof that he appreciated the kindness of Sheriff Harris, he had written a note on a City Garage heading, found in the sheriff's car, which reads as follows:

"Ed.: I hate like hell to do this, but I know what I will get if I go back there some. I am going to Douglas. Don't look for me. B. MOON."

The G. A. R. Reunion

The Grand Army of the Republic held its annual reunion at Indianapolis this week—and our old friend, William Kahler, was not there, because the expenses of traveling is so great he felt he could not afford the long trip this year. But he says he will take in the next reunion, even if he has to borrow a silver dollar to do it. He has missed only two of the annual gatherings of the "old boys" in the past.

time until reunions of the Civil war veterans will be a thing of the past—when "the boys in blue" and "the boys in gray" will be but a memory, when the last of them will have taken "the long march." But in the 56 years since Lee's surrender they've seen the end to the bitterness caused by civil strife and honored one another as they marched together behind the banner of an undivided country—no "north," no "south."

The United Confederates hold their reunion at Chattanooga, Tenn., some time in October.

Good Work of Democratic Women

The democratic organization is to be congratulated this year on the work of its women. Especial credit is due Mrs. Frances Nixon, state vice-chairman in charge of headquarters, for her unvarying industry, smiling courtesy, tact and efficiency, and the organization was fortunate to command her services in this important post. The women assisting her worked faithfully and enthusiastically, both here and out in the counties; their campaigning was absolutely clean and good-tempered, and they have set an example for women in politics which may well be emulated.—Santa Fe New Mexican

The studies were followed by the cooking of meats and making from them certain foods, such as beef cakes, with tomato sauce and stuffed tomatoes. 940,140 Acres of Hunting Grounds Closed

The state game commission has ordered the closing to hunters and fishermen of 940,140 acres of land within the state in an order establishing game refuges, rest grounds for migratory birds and posted lakes and streams. The order affects a mountain and river districts in twelve counties in the state. The open season for big game is established as from November 20 to November 30.

Among the game fields affected by the order is the White Mountain game refuge, in Lincoln county, described as follows: Beginning at the junction of the north and south forks of Eagle creek, in approximately Sec. 31, Tp. 10 s., R. 13 e., N. M. P. M.; thence up the north fork to a point about one-half mile above the lodge of the Southwestern Forest, Fish and Game Protective association; thence leaving the north fork and proceeding in a northwesterly direction to the Rio Bonito and White mountain trail; thence along this trail to Lookout cabin, continuing to Fire-lookout point and on to saddle between said point and White mountain peak; thence down tributary to north fork of the Rio Ruidoso, continuing down north fork to point where low saddle permits easy access to the south fork of Eagle creek; and thence through this saddle to the south fork of Eagle creek and down the creek to the place of beginning, containing an area of 9,400 acres more or less within the Lincoln national forest and Meacal Apache Indian reservation.

The order is the most sweeping one ever issued in the state, and Thomas P. Gable, state game and fish warden, says it will take weeks for men to post the game grounds and streams closed.

Hunting in the posted area is a misdemeanor and is punishable by a fine of not less than $25 or more than $300 or imprisonment in the county jail for not less than five days or more than 30 days.

Three crops a year can be grown in the Panama canal zone.

WHO AM I? Watch This Space for the Answer. I was born on the 1st day of June, 1900, at Duran, of sturdy, loyal and honest parentage, of the type that held above everything the much-sought-after and once-attained cherished ideal of Righteous Service to their Fellowman; and it was during my short but pleasant sojourn in the vicinity of Duran that I learned from practical experience the great, inestimable value of the true and loyal friendship of the happy people of this thriving community. Then like unto the impulse that is best known to youth, I moved to Vaughn, where the Great Ideal which was my heritage began to manifest itself, and like, perhaps, best unto the pine, which, having attained sufficient age to bear its cones, my Ideal began to bud forth and prove its true worth by the many true and loyal friends I acquired during my residence in this peaceful, thrifty sector, many of whom I still have the pleasure of meeting now and then to renew our unbroken friendship. Having grown somewhat older as my dauntless spirit craved for more—True and Loyal Friendship—I moved to Corona to take up my abode and settle down for life and where I have now lived for the past seven years and more, and where I think I can beat anyone else. It is here where my Ideal is blooming, which is being made possible through the loyal and cheerful support I received from newly-formed acquaintances and the staunch friendship I have been able to enjoy here, blended together with those whom I met earlier in life, all of which gives me the true value of my Ideal, which I hope to preserve through eternity and which has made me what I am today. My Christian name is SECURITY; my second name is SERVICE. Who am I? Watch this space next week for the answer.

Parsons News Letter

Colder weather, frosts and dabs of brilliant color in the hills tell us that the fall is not advancing. The harvest moon is a thing of the past, but not the harvest itself. Frequent rains have hindered the haymakers so that it may be a week or so before the hay is all in. Then comes potato digging time. Verily, the Bonito valley is no place for anybody not looking for work.

Mr. and Mrs. George Titsworth and Miss Mildred Peters were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Rice.

The first of October marks a new era up here in the hills. There is a sudden demand for mail boxes and an increase in the manufacture of suitable sacks for carrying mail. Jim Gatewood will start on the new mail route Saturday, the first of the month. Maybe he has things to say about the condition of the roads, and maybe he doesn't. Anyway, all are happy to have their mail delivered at their doors, instead of having to go after it—that is, except those who live in Nogal canyon.

Miss Helen Rice, who has been visiting friends in Carrizozo and Capitan, has returned home.

The first of October, too, marks the 20th anniversary of Mr. Rice's postmastership at Parsons. His predecessor was "Mother" Parsons, who kept the postoffice in a corner of the kitchen in the cabin where she lived down by the old Parsons mill.

Bob Corn and family spent Sunday with Mr. Corn's sister, Mrs. Maggie Greer, on the old Green homestead.

Allen Lane, of White Oaks, who has been working all summer at the Helen Rae and making frequent week-end trips over the hills to the Bonito, thinking of the winter coming on and of the impassable road over the divide, had a brilliant idea. He drove over in his car one day—the long way round—and induced the "attraction" to return to White Oaks with him. Since then Mrs. Reddy is minus a guest, but Mr. Lane has acquired a wife. The year she spent here won Miss Jackson many friends who will miss her greatly, but they all wish her happiness and congratulate the lucky man who won her affections.

John Wright, accompanied by Mrs. J. H. Fulmer, Len Walters and Miss Charlotte Rice, made a shopping expedition to Capitan Tuesday.

First Methodist Church

The new Sunday school year begins next Sunday at 9:45. The changes in faculty will be made at that time. The "promotion day" program will be at the 11 o'clock hour. Teachers of the various classes will give a resume of the past year's work and a prospectus of the work for the coming year. Promotion certificates will be issued to pupils who pass to higher departments. The Epworth League will give an open session at 7:30, to which the public is invited. There will be special music and addresses by the young people. The Pastor.

Washington News Letter

(Special Correspondence.)

Washington, Sept. 26.—After a month's unearned holiday, congress is again in session with practically all its important work yet to be done, and President Harding, refreshed by new golfing and cruising experiences has returned from his latest vacation. The tax revision bill as rewritten by the senate is just reported in that body and will be the subject of long debate while business feverishly waits.

By general consent the tariff bill, through which the republicans were going to restore prosperity at once, must wait perhaps until the very last. According to the newspaper recognized here as President Harding's mouth-piece, many returning congressmen are of the opinion it ought to be passed up altogether, or at least until the disarmament conference is over. The economic monstrosity, known as the Fordney tariff bill, has been riddled by house and senate republicans, as well as by democrats, until it will no more hold water than a sieve, and yet enough blind partisans were found in the house to pass it. It is not satisfactory to anyone except the profiteering big manufacturers. Bankers and other business men oppose it and the greatest merchant perhaps in the world, the head of Marshall Field & Co., Chicago, has shown that the "American valuation" clause would destroy what little foreign trade there is left in merchandise.

Among the big measures yet to be acted upon is the war loan funding bill introduced by Senator Penrose, which empowers the secretary of the treasury to do anything he pleases with the $10,000,000,000 foreign loans, and to be the sole judge of the transactions he may enter into in funding the debt. This, as has been pointed out by Senator McKellar (democrat of Tennessee) and by Senator Underwood, the democratic senate leader, is an unprecedented and unwarranted grant of power which no one man ought to have or ought to be willing to accept. It is the most sinister and dangerous measure ever introduced in any session of congress and is sure to result in acrimonious debate.

When the tax bill passed the house fifty republicans voted with the democrats to recommit the bill for revision. Here are the reasons as given by a western representative:

From a speech by Representative Schall, republican, of Minnesota:

"The test should be ability to bear the burden. The man who is able should pay. The man who has profited most should hand over in proportion. Spending should not be the basis for tax. Earnings are the only just basis. The present tax bill is fashioned to lay the heaviest tax burden on the backs of those least able to bear it. Think of the number of new millionaires, those who stayed at home and profited. Think of the profits—50, 100, yes, even 1,000 per cent—made at the cost of our necessity, at the price of our boys' blood and agony, and now, forsooth, the surtax, the excess profits tax, must be cut down.

"I shall vote to recommit the bill, with instructions to report it back, minus the repeal of surtaxes.

"The tax should be made enforceable. A definite and certain

Fire Guards Again Placed in Forests

Lack of rain in some of the forest sections is again putting forests in Arizona and New Mexico in great danger, according to messages received at the district office at Santa Fe. Extra fire guards are being put on again. Several small fires have been reported in the last few days.

The Santa Fe and Lincoln forests in this state have replaced the fire guards, one small fire being reported from the Santa Fe.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Delegates and Agenda for the Armament Conference Are Being Determined.

FOUR SELECTED FOR AMERICA

Secretary Hughes Suggests Topics for Discussion—League of Nations Elects Moore Judge of International Court—Senate Completes Its Draft of Tax Bill.

Preliminary work on the conference on limitation of armaments and Far Eastern problems is going on steadily, and before long it will be known just who will take part in the meeting, and in a general way what they will discuss. The several nations concerned are selecting their representatives, those for the United States being the first to be announced. President Harding has appointed for that high duty Secretary of State Hughes, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Elihu Root and Senator Oscar W. Underwood—three Republicans and one Democrat. As Premier Hara will be unable to come, Admiral Baron Kato has been selected to head the Japanese delegation, and Ambassador to the United States Shidehara will also be a member. It is still believed Premier Lloyd George will lead the British contingent, and it is likely that his associates will be Andrew Bonar Law, Secretary for War Evans and Lord Lee of Farnham, first lord of the admiralty. The British dominions, especially Australia, New Zealand, and Canada, have been strenuously arguing their right to representation in the conference in view of their great interest in matters concerning the Pacific and Far East, and it is believed that some of their leading statesmen will be asked to attend in the capacity of advisers.

Two more nations have been added to the list of those invited to the conference. With the consent of five principal powers Holland and Belgium will participate in the proceedings insofar as their interests in the Far East are concerned. Their status thus will be the same as that of China, for it is not to be supposed they will take part in the discussion on armaments.

Diplomatic conversations and informal exchanges between the governments concerned have progressed so far that Secretary Hughes has been able to send to the other four great powers and to China a suggested outline of the topics for the conference. This proposed agenda has not been made public, pending its acceptance by the other governments, but is believed to include, aside from limitation of armaments, these suggestions:

Territorial integrity of Russia, the open door, and equal opportunity for economic activities, the powers acting as trustees until Russia shall have recovered and set up a central, representative government.

Territorial integrity of China and the "open door."

The substitution of international cooperation for the past practice of seeking selfish, monopolistic advantages in China.

Assistance to China in achieving administrative, fiscal and judicial reforms.

A Tokyo newspaper says Mr. Hughes also includes in his suggestions mandates if they have not been previously settled, and Manchuria and the Chinese Eastern railway. That question of mandates—meaning in this case especially Japan—is causing the Japanese a lot of worry. They don't want it brought up in the conference and are doing their utmost to get it settled before the Washington meeting opens. Their continued occupation of Shantung is another matter they desired to keep out of the conference, but in this they are likely to be disappointed. They have asked China to order the Chinese mandarin for the settlement of that question, but the latter has refused to do so.

has refused Japan's proposition, fearing that it would be overthrown if it accepted. Some of the leaders in that government have long been suspected of being pro-Japanese. An interesting report in Washington is that Robert Lansing, former secretary of state under President Wilson, will be an adviser to the Chinese delegation.

The assembly of the League of Nations continues to function, in disregard of the assertions of various persons that the league is virtually dead. Parenthetically, it may be said that the treaty of Versailles guarantees the league's life for 30 years for the purposes of administering the Saar basin and the control of Danzig. The chief accomplishment of the assembly last week was the election of judges of the International court of Justice. Elinor Root having declined, for personal reasons, to be a candidate, the Latin-American group brought about the election of John Bassett Moore of New York. He and ten others were accepted by the council. Three deputy judges also were elected and confirmed, but there was trouble over the choice of the fourth deputy. Three times the assembly elected Senor Alvarez of Chile, and three times the council voted for M. Descamps of Belgium. At last the deadlock was referred to a committee. Senor Amador of Panama threatened to withdraw his delegation if Alvarez was not accepted by the council.

The question of the league's competence to judge the Texas-Arizona dispute and the Chile-Bolivia treaty was referred to a committee of three jurists. Senor Edwards of Chile stated that he was not prepared to admit that the league was licensed to intrude in purely South American affairs in violation of the Monroe doctrine. Senor Aramayo of Bolivia, having received new instructions from La Paz, withdrew his demand that the dispute with Chile be included in the agenda of the assembly.

The Irish—meaning the Sinn Fein—were willing to hold a conference with the British cabinet at Inverness this week, as proposed by Premier Lloyd George, but, as was easily predicted, they didn't want to submit to the only condition imposed, that the Sinn Fein must abandon its demand for separation from the empire. De Valera sent Harry Boland and Joseph McFirth with his acceptance of the invitation, but in his letter he made several reservations, chief of which was his objection to admitting Ireland's allegiance to the British crown before entering the conference. He also argued that if the premier objected to the secession of Ireland from the empire he should not support the secession of Ulster from Ireland.

Mr. Lloyd George sent the couriers back to Dublin with a message to De Valera that his note was unsatisfactory and he had better write another. This the governor supplemented by a telegram to De Valera cancelling the arrangements for the Inverness conference because he felt that, in view of the Irish attitude, negotiations would be useless. The premier was as conciliatory as he could be consistently, but at this writing it is uncertain whether the negotiations for peace will continue. The Daily Mirror, however, named its delegates for the conference, if it is held, and De Valera is not one of them. The delegates are: Arthur Griffith, founder of Sinn Fein and republican foreign minister; Michael Collins, minister of finance; Robert Barton, secretary of economic affairs; Eamon Duggan, chief Irish republican army liaison officer, who helped to arrange the truce, and George Gavan Duffy, the Irish envoy to Rome.

Several of these men are classed as moderates. The Freeman's Journal of Dublin says: "Their task may have its difficulties, but its successful accomplishment will be the crown of a great achievement. Both nations have their hearts set on an honorable ending here and now to the struggle of centuries. Their desire is well within the realm of possibility and practicality. All the efforts of the would-be wreckers in Great Britain and elsewhere have failed. There is too much common sense in the Irish delegation to believe that they will not use every effort to bring about peace."

of the details of the cut of $350,000,000 in the ordinary government expenditures for the current fiscal year. Reductions for the War department, shipping board, railroads, veterans' bureau and in miscellaneous places will provide $305,000,000 of this. The remainder will be saved by better coordination in handling departmental purchases and sales of supplies.

The finance committee completed its redrafting of the house tax bill and experts began getting the measure ready for presentation in the senate on September 21. Disregarding the recommendations of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, the committee voted to repeal the excess profits tax beginning January 1, 1922, and the capital stock tax effective in 1922, and to substitute for these a flat corporation tax of 15 per cent, effective January 1, 1922. Among other changes in the house bill voted by the committee are retention of freight and passenger transportation taxes at half their present rates and those on express shipments and oil pipe lines at their present rates for another year, and continuation of many miscellaneous taxes which the house voted to repeal.

The fight against the Ku Klux Klan is growing more interesting and more widespread every day, and the Klan is fighting back against its enemies with vigor. Various papers in many parts of the country have undertaken "exposures" of the organization and its methods and aims, and the Klan has started or says it will start libel suits against those publications that misrepresent it. In Chicago an organization called the National Unity council has been formed with the avowed purpose of suppressing the Klan and its so-called "invidious empire." The council, which is to be extended throughout the country, is headed by Edward F. Dunne, former governor of Illinois. He says the Ku Klux are a menace to the nation because they "avowedly proscribe millions of their fellow citizens solely because, either they worship God in a manner permitted by the Constitution of the United States, or because they were born without the United States. They place the black man without the pale of the law. Such organizations foment racial, religious and political enmities instead of encouraging unity and friendship between all classes of American citizens which should be the aim of every broad-minded American."

Meanwhile the Klan continues to grow in numbers with extraordinary rapidity, now having, it is said, more than half a million members, and being organized in every state in the Union except New Hampshire, Utah and Montana.

The great packing concerns of Armour, Swift, Wilson and Cudahy last week put into operation the newly devised "American shop representation" system, their government-sponsored agreement with their workers having expired. All disputes are to be submitted to shop councils comprised of employees' elected representatives and persons selected by the employers, and national councils, to which shop councils may appeal, are to be formed in similar manner. Employees' representatives must be employed in the shop and must be citizens or have taken out their first papers. Any person is eligible for employment, whether a union member or not. While this is "open shop," the packers say it is not a change of policy since they always have been open shop. Ninety per cent of their workers, they say, assented to the plan.

The terrific flood that struck San Antonio and other parts of Texas has subsided, but its full results are just beginning to be realized. Several hundred persons, mostly negroes and Mexicans, perished. The property loss in San Antonio is placed at $2,000,000 and elsewhere at $10,000,000. The mayor of the city appealed to Washington for army tents and cots for the thousands of homeless refugees.

The British cruiser Dauntless, bearing the bodies of the American victims of the RMS liner, wrecked at New York, was recovered by a fleet of search, destroyers and other vessels. Twenty structures on the land were destroyed and the ship's crew were rescued.

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Have Been Scenes of Notable Events

WASHINGTON.—Like the Rome of old, Washington has its road of fame, its Apollon way. On Pennsylvania avenue, familiarly known to Washingtonians as "the Avenue," some of the most notable events of our national history have occurred. Here passed the conquering hosts of the country's brave, as in 1865, 1868 and 1918. Here, too, march with the waiting step that tells of age and feebleness, the veterans of interminable strife.

Along the same way Presidents ride to take the oath of office. One of the twins hears the cheers with restrained gladness, the other knows a bitterness he cannot conquer as he reflects on the "changes and chances of this mortal life."

Another celebrated avenue is Connecticut avenue. In the spring the display there of dress and wealth rivals that of the famous Fifth avenue in New York city. On this street are legations, both splendid and imposing of great sister nations and stately homes of famous men and women. It is the most cosmopolitan street in Washington. Even the African race has a representative there. As neighbor to a marble mansion is the modest home of a darkey pater familias, whose little ebony children tumble and play, all undisturbed by the vicinity of their fashionable neighbors.

The stranger in Washington would conclude, strolling along F street, that it resembled a country street more than the main artery of the capital of a vast nation. Here and there are passers-by leisurely sauntering and chatting, but nowhere is there congestion of the ordinary large city. No crowds. Ah, wait a minute! It is 4:30 and the clocks around tell out the half hour. The doors of the government buildings open. Out pours a throng of men and women, and all in a mad rush for home. In this crowd the man from Connecticut may find an old neighbor or boyhood chum. One from Texas, too, could find old friends here.

With the soft insistence of the southern tongue mingles the nasal twang of the "Dove East" Yankee. But there is good comradeship. Uncle Sam provides for that. He insists that "politics and religion should not be discussed in mixed company."

The streets of Washington present an interesting study in nomenclature. It is rather amusing to discover a street with a long pause sometimes, but an alleyway named after some hero of American history, who would discern the passageway if he but knew it.

Must Not Use "Inside Information"

ATTORNEY General Daugherty, in an opinion now being drafted for the guidance of all members of the cabinet, holds that the old law of 1873 forbidding former officials from appearing before government departments in cases which are pending during their terms is sufficiently drastic when placed parallel with other statutes to insure penalties for practitioners who would abuse their former connections.

The Department of Justice, it was said, now holds that passage of the Edmonds bill, pending in the house, providing amendments to the law of 1873 in the shape of fines and jail terms, is not necessary to a more complete readjustment of the rules of procedure governing practice of lawyers before the departments.

As a result of this opinion, therefore, department heads immediately will direct the chiefs of divisions in all branches of government activity that hereafter the appearance of former officials of the government in cases which may have arisen when they were in office can be made the basis for drastic action in the way of penalties that may be applied in the discretion of the head of a particular department.

Officials of the Department of Justice estimated that at least 300 lawyers, now stationed in Washington and elsewhere, will be affected by the new ruling. Most of the attorneys whose practice deals with department claims, or other litigation of that character, are here. Many who are not quartered in local office buildings are members of firms which have been established for some time. Not a few of the firms which are to be hit by orders now to be issued have only been operating since the close of the Wilson administration.

Engineers Seek Uniform Boiler Law

FAILURE to regulate the steam boiler has cost the United States thousands of lives and millions of dollars, according to a statement issued by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, which, through its boiler code committee, is seeking to bring about uniform standards in this country. The statement pointed out that 30 states are joining in a nationwide movement to lessen the industrial accidents by eliminating the dangers that lie hidden in the steam boiler, called by engineers, more dangerous than dynamite.

"In the boiler code of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers the country has a standard worthy of general acceptance," said the statement. "If all boilers were made in accordance to well-known principles, boiler explosions would be of rare occurrence."

"In an effort to secure the universal adoption of this code in this country the Uniform Boiler Law society has been organized and has done a great deal more good than shows in the lists of states and municipalities that have actually adopted the code, in promulgating an understanding of it and creating a sentiment in its favor that will result in a rapid falling into line of the remaining states when the time is a little more pronouncedly established."

The statement indicated that the National Board of Boiler and Pressure Vessel Inspectors is working on several problems designed to preclude boiler explosions. These include an interstate inspection and the stamping of boilers by the manufacturers. The latter plan is intended primarily to keep a record of a boiler from the time it leaves the manufacturing plant until it is scrapped.

Ship Board Starts Ousting of Aliens

SHIPS owned and controlled by the United States shipping board are to be thoroughly Americanized, as are all the district and foreign offices of the board, it has been announced. Changes in the personnel of the board and the men aboard ships soon will probably make the entire force employed by the shipping board 100 per cent American. Wherever it is possible to obtain services of an American, it will be done.

The board now is conducting an investigation of the clerical forces at home and the men aboard ships to see what steps will be necessary to bring about the desired change. The change will also probably bring about a severance in the personnel of the shipping board and the men aboard ships to see what steps will be necessary to bring about the desired change. The change will also probably bring about a severance in the personnel of the shipping board and the men aboard ships to see what steps will be necessary to bring about the desired change.

Edmond, S. G.—"I was run down with nervousness and female trouble and suffered every month. I was not able to do any work and tried a lot of medicine, but got no relief. I saw your medicine advertised in a little book that was thrown in my door, and I had not taken two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before I could see it was helping me. I am keeping house now and am able to do all of my work. I cannot say enough for your medicine. It has done more for me than any doctor. I have not paper enough to tell you how much it has done for me and for my friends. You may print this letter if you wish."—ELIZABETH C. CORLEY, care of A. P. Corley, Edmond, S. G.

Ability to stand the strain of work is the privilege of the strong and healthy, but how our hearts ache for the weak and sickly women struggling with their daily round of household duties, with backaches, headaches, nervousness and almost every movement brings a new pain. Why will not the mass of letters from women all over this country, which we have been publishing, convince such women that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help them just as surely as it did Mrs. Corley?

"SHOWING OFF" THE COLONEL

Storekeeper Had Eye for Business in Keeping Good-Looking Customer Waiting for Attention.

A woman in a small town asked her husband, Colonel Blank, to call in at the dairy when passing to order some new-laid eggs. After making a brief demand the colonel yielded. A little later he called at the shop in question, quite a small and unimportant establishment on a back street.

Two or three minutes passed; then, as no one came to serve him, the colonel gave a gentle knock on the counter. This had no effect; so a smart double rap was given. Then a curly-headed youngster put his head around the door and announced, "Father's a-comin'."

"By the time the father arrived the colonel was boiling with rage. "What do you mean by keeping me waiting all this time?" he roared. "Very sorry, sir," said the man, "but you see it's like this. You're the very first good-looking man that I've had in my shop, and as there were a lot of people passing by I thought what a good advertisement you was a standing there."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Considerable Agitation.

"Either my eyes are acting funny or else there's something powerful wrong with your house," said an acquaintance who had halted in the big road to stare at the Johnson domicile. "I reckon it must be my eyesight, but the doghouse looks like it was shaking and abbering like it was going to tumble down."

"Aw, I reckon likely my fourteen children happen to have took a notion to scratch their chiggers at the same—p'nt—same time," replied Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, who was hanging over his own front fence, hooked on by the elbows.—Kansas City Star.

When a man knows but one thing he feels capable of giving advice on all subjects.

To the hasty demand, give the tellingly reply.

Do you discriminate at the dining table—or are you thoughtless?

In thousands of homes, a "line" is drawn at the breakfast table. Tea or coffee is served for "grown-ups" and Postum for children. But some parents do not discriminate. Caffeine and tannin, the injurious contents of coffee and tea, seriously retard the development of the delicate nerve tissues in children.

Consequently, instead of rich, satisfying Postum, children are over-stimulated by the drugs in tea and coffee; and so may grow up irritable and nervous. Any doctor can tell you that this is a great evil and should be corrected.

Although some parents feel a certain justification for the personal indulgence in coffee, yet the harm to them may be equally serious. It may take a little while longer for the drugs in coffee and tea to affect

"Well," said the secretary, "she's the only girl I know with Yale eyes and a Harvard complexion."

Sister Nation Wants Own Flag

Canada With Unrepresentative Ensign Seeks Ideas for Proper Heraldic Device.

MAPLE LEAF IN HIGH FAVOR

Emblem Now in Use Unauthorized and No Longer Represents Canada as Five of Its Provinces Are Not Included.

Toronto.—Canada is a "nation" but it has no flag. Herein it is unique among all nations.

A so-called Canadian flag is in use but its use is unauthorized and it no longer represents Canada. It is the red ensign of the British mercantile marine with the coat of arms of Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick in a quartered shield on the field of the flag.

This flag, by warrant dated February 2, 1892, was authorized by the British admiralty, "to be used on board vessels registered in the Dominion." This limits its domain to Canadian merchant ships, as no authorization was given to fly it on shore. When it is flown on land, it is out of its jurisdiction. In any case, it has not been formally adopted by the Canadian people and it now has decided limitations.

Its shield contains the devices of only four of the nine provinces which now form the Dominion of Canada. The four coats of arms make an almost indecipherable emblem owing to the crowding of their devices into so small a space. If the emblem was brought up to date by adding the arms of the other five provinces, the result would be a hopeless confusion of armorial bearings; the significance would be destroyed and the flag be lacking in distinction and beauty.

Australia's Flag. Australia, when it organized its commonwealth, chose a flag from 50,000 competing designs. It has the Union Jack in the upper left-hand corner, with the constellation of the southern cross, white on a blue field. New Zealand also has a flag. It is also based on the southern cross constellation, red stars on a blue field. There are only four stars compared with Australia's six.

As for South Africa, Premier Smuts has declared that she, too, will have her own national flag.

The Manitoba Free Press, speaking for a province not represented in the present unofficial Canadian ensign, is agitating for a new Canadian flag and has received hundreds of proposed designs. The Free Press itself puts forward an adaptation of the most prominent feature of northern skies as an appropriate design. Certainly the "dipper" and the pole star are not without some symbolism to most Canadians. The dipper, the Free Press says, "is the conspicuous constellation of our Canadian heavens, circling slowly around the steadfast polar star; it lights up the night sky over the Atlantic provinces and over the Pacific slopes of British Columbia; it circles above the night silences of the Western prairies; it can be seen by the trapper in the woods of the Northwest territories, by the settler on his homestead, by the city dweller high above the glitter of his lamp-lit streets, the most distinctive constellation of the northern hemisphere." The dipper and the pole star, it thinks, look as though they were a great heraldic emblem on the dark field of the Canadian night sky, and it seems natural to take them down and emblazon them on the white field of a flag for the young Canadian nation. The only objection would come from those who objected to Kipling's "Our Lady of the Snows."

Favor Maple Leaf.

Most suggestions involve some use of the maple leaf.

Nationhood flowers in a flag, thinks the Free Press, which argues the case this way: "Canada has one of the great geographical surfaces of the world. Canada has a vigorous, thriving and enterprising people. Canada sent 600,000 men to the war, good soldiers who fought with distinction and put luster on the Canadian name; Canada has a rich tradition behind

BLIND HERO OF WAR WINS OUT

Former Marine Is Gaining Success in Business.

Sightless From Shell, He Studies Mechanical Business Management With Help of Wife.

Chicago.—To Corporal Christian Poulsen of the United States marines his discharge from an army hospital in February, 1919, meant beginning life anew—the life of a blind man. In two years' time he has completed that readjustment and today Poulsen is in the fuel and feed business in Chicago, does a full day's work every day and, with the aid of his wife, is taking a correspondence course in business management.

Poulsen was with the Sixth regiment of the marines when a few thousand troops were chosen from the vanguard of the American army to help block the German advance on Paris in June, 1918. The Sixth marines gave their aid to the allies, but among those who were left on the battlefield was Corporal Poulsen, fully conscious, but bleeding and sightless from the burst of a high explosive shell. Poulsen was wounded just one year to a day from the date he enlisted. He has been totally blind ever since.

Following his discharge from the army hospital, Poulsen entered Evergreen, the Red Cross school for the blind, in Baltimore. There he took

Dozen Toes Too Many Extras Are Amputated

Wille Diekyns of Chicago, whom nature endowed with 12 toes, couldn't stand the fakes of his playmates, so he underwent an operation to have the two extra toes cut off. He asked the doctor to preserve the toes in a jar of alcohol so he would have something to show the kids that the other boys didn't have.

"The kids used to call me 'ducky' when I went in swimming and when I wore shoes they called me 'Big Feet.'" Wille told Dr. Karl Meyer. "Those toes took up a lot of room."

her; her laws and system of government are rooted in the principles of liberty and justice; the great highway of national expansion is opening before Canada, and as a nation she is preparing to walk in it; Canadian status and nationality have never been so universally admitted as they are today, and despite all this, Canada lacks the distinctive badge of nationality possessed by even the smallest and humblest nation—a national flag. The national flag stands for something vital in the nation. National flags are emblems around which nations rally. The crosses on the Union Jack the lion of Scotland, the lion of England the Irish harp, the stars and bars of 'Old Glory' are of a piece with the national life out of which they merge."

Students Decrease in Paris.

Paris.—The increased cost of student life in Paris is preventing families of moderate means from allowing their sons to take up a liberal career. NOVEL AUTO RULES IN CHINA

Chinese Prescribe Regulations to Prevent Accidents.

Chauffeurs to Be Looked in Room With Wax Images of Victims to Make Them Sorry.

Shanghai.—As a means of preventing automobile accidents the Health Precautionary association, an organization composed of leading Chinese of Shanghai, recently prepared a list of suggestions among which are several of engaging novelty. The suggestions which were adopted at a meeting after lengthy debate were submitted to the municipal council of the International settlement.

All motorcars have rubber-tired wheels and run without noise. It is too late to blow a horn when a car has already collided with a pedestrian. A car should have a car-shaped bell and this bell should be kept ringing all the time so that when pedestrians hear it they can get out of the way.

"This bell should be half the size of a bicycle bell. Each car should have a speed limit, but the fire brigade, doctors and police motorcars should be exempted.

"A chauffeur should wear a brass badge on his breast. The badge should be three inches in diameter and should have his name and the number of his license in English and Chinese inscribed thereon. The badge should be issued by the municipal council at a few cents each. Then a man not licensed will not dare to drive a car.

"All motortrucks should have rails or iron chains around the cars to insure safety and in case of collision the cars will be prevented from falling and injuring pedestrians. Cargo should not be piled too high to prevent danger when passing over bridges.

of each motorcar or truck. The assistant should sit behind and keep a lookout when the car turns around, goes backward, enters or leaves the garage. The owner of the car will not mind spending a little money in employing an assistant chauffeur.

"After a person is killed by a motorcar a wax image of the deceased should be made and placed in a room and any chauffeur who causes injuries to others should be locked up in this room so that he will see the image and feel sorry. This may cause him to repent. This has been introduced in America and has produced successful results."

Fewer Children in Austria.

Vienna.—Curious freaks of population are shown by the details of the latest Austrian census. For instance, there are 300,000 fewer children under 10 years of age in the country than in 1910, while the number of men between 40 and 60 has increased by 150,000. It is explained by the fact that adult men survived the privations of the last three or four years
