Time to Call a Halt

(Albuquerque Morning Journal)

The public generally, but more especially the women, should be on guard not to allow themselves to be victimized by an adroit appeal to sentiment which is being inaugurated in behalf of Mrs. Ruth C. Miller, assistant to the state superintendent of public instruction, in charge of vocational work. The fact that the person in charge of this work chances to be a woman should not enter into the matter at all. Nor should the fact that there have been deplorable misfortunes in Mrs. Miller's private life be a factor in attempting to determine her fitness for present position. The department is in no sense a charitable institution, although due consideration to the feelings of everyone should be shown.

If the ultimate facts show that Jonathan H. Wagner has been guilty of waste, extravagance or gross negligence in handling the taxpayers' money, the Journal will insist that he carry out his announced determination to resign as president of the Normal should that prove to be the case. If he has shown himself to be incompetent as state superintendent to properly safeguard public funds, he should not be continued where he can expend further public monies. Whether or not such is the case will become fully known in a short time. If Mr. Wagner can clear his skirts, the Journal will say so.

So, also, if Mrs. Miller can show that she did not grossly waste the taxpayers' money, we will tell the public that such is the fact. But the truth is that Mrs. Miller was not asked by the state board of education to resign merely because of her extravagance in management, although she asked for no time in which to make rebuttal on that score.

The simple truth is that a large and growing element of people has seen for a long time that Mrs. Miller is a wasteful manager. The demand for her removal has been growing for the past year or more. Probably even this did not move the state board to act.

On the day on which the demand for Mrs. Miller's resignation occurred she had appeared before the state board to settle questions concerning the finances of the department. The newspaper men were present and heard all that occurred. Mrs. Miller was demanding that Mr. Conway sign his approval for the payment of $4,000 which his bookkeeper told him was not in hand. John Joerns, school auditor, was called in and confirmed the position of the bookkeeper. Mrs. Miller quarreled with Mr. Conway and Mr. Joerns in a most scandalous fashion and insisted that the papers be signed. She squarely accused Mr. Conway of speaking a falsehood. The proceeding was undignified, even disgraceful. It showed a turmoil in the office of the superintendent which could not be continued without ruinous results to education in the state.

An investigation among others in the department showed that Mrs. Miller was at variance with virtually every one in the office. The board felt that either Mrs. Miller must resign or else Mr. Conway. Such was the real cause of the board's action.

What considerations led the board to rescind its action at a later date, the Journal does not know.

The imputation that Mrs. Miller is being made "the goat" is untrue. As far as politics plays a part in this matter the pressure is all for Mrs. Miller and not against her. Strong political pressure is being used to protect her.

No hearing is necessary. Superintendent Conway and the state board all know that the department is disorganized for lack of harmony, and that everyone in the office, except Mrs. Miller, is out of step. Keeping or discharging her is a personal matter for Mr. Conway. No hearing can help him decide whether or not she is out of harmony with his program. If she is she should have the grace to resign. Mr. Conway was elected by the people and is responsible to the people. He cannot yield his authority or responsibility to Mrs. Miller. The route to harmony is for Mrs. Miller to resign.

The good ladies who have flown to her defense are in a mistaken position. If sex is to be used as a defense against charges of public unfitness, people will be afraid to put women into office. The women of New Mexico will be the victims of the error of these women. Public officials must measure up. They should all look alike as officials.

The women are more concerned than anyone else in seeing that this is true.

The Journal is opposed to Mrs. Miller in spite of the fact that she is a woman and not because of that fact. We prefer chivalry to candour in dealing with women. But the public welfare knows no sex.

School Notes

(By Superintendent E. E. Cole.)

All aboard for "The Royal Gorge" Thursday.

Misses Fordon and Herron went to the Albuquerque convention in their new Ford.

Four new pupils were enrolled in Mrs. Craddock's room on the east side.

Quite a number of tickets were sold for the basket ball game at Corona, which was to have been played last Saturday. These tickets will be good for the game to be played with Tularosa on December 3 at Carrizozo.

Miss Idalia Cowan is starting a physical training class to be held twice weekly in the Wetmore hall.

We wish to call attention to the work of the eighth grade domestic science class, which has been doing such interesting and practical work this term under the instruction of Mrs. Gumm. September lessons were devoted to hand sewing. The different stitches were learned, also their uses. Different kinds of patches were made. A sewing apron of unbleached domestic was made by hand and braid or cross-stitching, in fancy colors was used for its trimming. Besides practice work on essentials of sewing, one garment was completed each month. October was devoted to making a night gown of cotton crepe or muslin, the neck and sleeves finished with bias bands of contrasting colors; which color also appeared in the feather stitching of fancy designs and embroidery. Button-holes were a special feature of this month's work. For November the project was a saten underslip with its lower edge finished with button-holed scallops. Very useful and attractive garments have been completed this month. Stocking darning has been practised past two months, the button-hole and weaving stitch methods being used. Caps and aprons, plain and fancy, is the work outlined for December. The aim of the domestic art work is to give the girls instruction in practical every-day sewing, such as will meet their needs in making and caring for their clothing. The completed work of this class has been excellent, which encourages them to greater endeavors and care. The girls have shown enthusiasm in the industrial course. — Mrs. E. A. Gumm.

Homicide at Corona

Dr. J. T. Stone Dead and Dr. R. R. Davis in Jail Charged with the Killing

Dr. J. T. Stone was shot and killed last Friday evening at Corona by Dr. R. R. Davis. Three shots were fired, all taking effect, Dr. Stone dying two hours later. The accused slayer was arrested and brought to Carrizozo the same night and lodged in the county jail, to await a preliminary hearing which is set to take place at the courthouse tomorrow (Saturday) morning before Justice of the Peace Wetmore.

The body of Dr. Stone was shipped Saturday evening to his former home in Tennessee for burial.

Dr. Stone and Davis, it appears, had returned to Corona from Carrizozo after both had been here attending district court, wherein Dr. Stone had pleaded guilty to shooting and wounding Dr. Davis some time last spring. A fine of $500 and costs had been imposed by the court.

It seems that both men met on the evening stated in a meat market in Corona, and, according to rumor, Dr. Davis began shooting. No words were heard passing between the men.

There is confusion over reports preceding the shooting, and the preliminary hearing may disclose what these were, and what bearing they had on the tragedy.

Dr. Stone had practiced medicine for a number of years in Corona, and had a lucrative practice. He was a member of the board of county commissioners.

Dr. Davis was also a practicing physician at Corona, having located there about two years ago. He is an ex-service man and about 45 years old. Dr. Stone was about the same age and is survived by a wife.

The trouble originated from business jealousy, and is deeply regretted by the people of Corona, whose sympathy is about evenly divided between the deceased and the accused.

The preliminary hearing will be held at the county court house

Salvation Army.

The Lincoln county advisory board of the Salvation Army is a branch of that great international organization for practical Christian work that has for the past thirty or forty years given assistance to so many unfortunate people the world over.

The local advisory board was organized for the purpose of carrying this work into every home in Lincoln county where the need exists. No community is too remote for us to reach, and every case reported will be promptly investigated. If you know of a needy person or family in your neighborhood, please notify the board at once. Address:

at ten o'clock tomorrow (Saturday) morning. The State will be represented by W. C. Whately, assistant district attorney, and the defense will be looked after by Attorneys A. B. Renahan of Santa Fe and W. C. Merchant of Carrizozo. It is believed the hearing will hinge on fixing a bond for the appearance of the accused before the next grand jury.

New Mexico Calves in Demand.

Kansas City, Nov. 21.—Cattle were lower this week. Stockers and feeders and grass fat grades were down 35 to 50 cents. Heavy receipts or short fed cattle in Chicago caused the decline. Grass cattle were in diminishing supply and fed grades on the increase. The general opinion is that from now on the runs will be lighter and some improvement is expected in the trade.

Stock and feeder trade after some dullness is again active. Feeders are showing strong—a preference for good Texas and New Mexico calves, yearlings and twos, but the aged and thin steers are slow sale.

Texas and New Mexico feeding lambs brought $7.50 to $8.00 this week. Fat lambs sold mostly at $3.25 to $3.75. Sheep receipts will be light until after the first of the year.

Some New Mexico sales last week were:

R. C. Pitts of Carrizozo, 53 stockers, 550 pounds, $5.00.

H. Lutz, Carrizozo, 42 stockers, 520 pounds, $4.75.

J. Stratton, Capitan, 51 calves, 315 pounds, $5.00.

A Modern Damon and Pythias

Leavenworth, Kas.—Harry W. Haley has been released from the disciplinary barracks here after serving five months of the six months sentence of Thomas G. Jones, charged with being a deserter.

Haley confessed he served Jones' time under Jones' name because Jones saved his life in France.

Jones, who is married, lives in Canada. He'll have to serve his full sentence, despite Haley sacrifice, officials say.

Died at Ruidoso

Mrs. Eveline Hoagland, wife of Ed. Hoagland of Glencoe, formerly of Alto, died at her home on the Ruidoso Nov. 19. She was born in Missouri in 1858, but moved to Texas with her parents in early girlhood, where she married the late E. A. Crawford. She leaves a husband and three children. She was a good wife and mother, and a kind neighbor whom the community will miss.—A. Friend.

One Week's Extension

The Red Cross Annual Membership Drive has been extended another week by action of the executive committee of the Lincoln County Chapter. Reports from various communities in the county indicate a healthy interest in the drive and good results are anticipated from the chairmen of the several communities. It is now up to Carrizozo to make good, and if past results are sufficient evidence of what she will do, there can be no doubt of the result. Committees will visit all sections of the town during the coming week, and it is hoped they will be given an agreeable hearing and receive a hearty response.

Forest Road Money

Hon. Andrius A. Jones, United States Senate.

Dear Sir: The first apportionment of the $2,500,000 of the five million dollar appropriation for the construction of the Forest roads and trails has been made by the Secretary of Agriculture on the basis of area and value of National Forest land. As a result of this apportionment $119,639 has been set aside for expenditure in New Mexico under the terms of the law.

Seven million dollars of the appropriation for the fiscal year 1923 will be apportioned about January 1, 1922. From the data now available New Mexico's apportionment will be about $335,000.

The remaining $5,500,000 of the whole appropriation is, under the terms of the act, to be distributed by the Secretary of Agriculture upon the basis of fire hazard, value of resources, and other similar factors. This apportionment has not yet been made, but will be advised promptly as soon as the Secretary approves the further distribution.

Acting Forester.

Ten Million Required for Prohibition

Washington, D. C.—Congress will be asked for $10,000,000 for the enforcement of prohibition during the next fiscal year, an increase of $2,500,000, over the appropriation for the current year. Prohibition Commissioner Haines in making this announcement said the increase would be sought to enable a more complete and efficient enforcement of the prohibition laws through enlarged forces and facilities.

CHAPTER XI—Continued.

One evening, of that summer, Abe came out to the Taylors' with a letter in his hat for Sarah.

"How's business?" Samson asked. "Going to peter out, I reckon." Abe answered with a sorrowful look. "It will leave me badly in debt. I want something that would give me a chance for study and I got it. My dog? It looks as if I was going to have years of study trying to get over it. Have you got any work to give me? You know I can split rails about as fast as the next man and I'll take my pay in wheat or corn."

"You may give me all the time you can spend 'outside the store,'" said Samson.

That evening they had a talk about the whisky business and its relation to the character of Elliptical Biggs and to sundry infractions of law and order in their community. Samson had declared that it was wrong to sell liquor.

"All that kind of thing can be safely left to the common sense of our people," said Abe. "The remedy is education, not revolution. Slowly the people will have to set down all the items in the ledger of common sense that passes from sire to son. By and by some generation will strike a balance. That may not come in a hundred years. Soon or late the majority of the people will reach a reckoning with John Bartycorn. If there's too much against him they will act. You might as well try to stop a glacier by building a dam in front of it. They have opened an account with slavery, too. By and by they'll decide its fate."

Such was his faith in the common folk of America whose way of learning and whose love of the right he knew as no man has known it.

In this connection the New Englander wrote in his diary:

"He has spent his boyhood in the South and his young manhood in the North. He has studied the East and lived in the West. He is the people—I sometimes think—and about as slow to make up his mind. As Sarah says: 'He does not judge after the sight of his eyes neither reproves after the hearing of his ears.' Abe has to think about it."

In April Abe wrote another address to the voters announcing that he was again a candidate for a seat in the legislature. Late that month Harry walked with him to Pappaville where a crowd had assembled to attend a public sale. At one place there were men in the crowd who knew Harry's record in the war. They called on him for a speech. He spoke on the need of the means of transportation in Sangamon county with such insight and dignity and convincing candor that both Abe and the audience called him as a coming man. Abe and he were often seen together those days.

In New Salem they were called the disappointed lovers. It was known there that Abe was very fond of Ann Rutledge, although he had not, as yet, openly confessed to any one—not even to Ann—there being no show of hope for him. Ann was deeply in love with John McNeil—the genial, handsome and successful young Irishman. The affair had reached the stage of frankness. The look of sadness, which all had noted in his moments of abstraction; deepened and often covered his face with its veil. That is another way that Nature has of preparing the young. For these the roses have fallen and only the thorns remain. They are not lured; they seem to be driven to their fate, but for all, soon or late, her method changes.

On a beautiful morning of June, 1834, John McNeil left the village. Abe Lincoln and Harry and Samson and Sarah and Jack Kelso and his wife stood with the Rutledges in the doorway of the tavern when he rode away. He was going back to his home in the East to return in the autumn and make Ann his bride. The girl wept as if her heart would break when he turned far down the road and waved his hand to her.

"Oh, my pretty lass! Do you not hear the birds singing in the meadows?" said Jack Kelso. "Think of the happiness all around you and of the greater happiness that is coming when he returns. Shame on you!" "I'm afraid he'll never come back," Ann sobbed.

"Nonsense! Don't get a maggot to your brain and let the crows go walking over your face. Come, we'll take a ride in the meadows and if I don't bring you back laughing you may call me no prophet."

No the event passed.

Harry traveled about with Abe a good deal that summer, "electioneering," as they called it, from farm to farm. Abe used to go into the fields, with the men whose favor he sought, and bend his long back over a scythe or a cradle and race them playfully across the field of grain cutting a wider swath than any other and always holding the lead. Every man was out of breath at the end of his swath and needed a few minutes for recuperation. That gave Abe a chance for his statement of the county's needs and his plan of satisfying them. He had met and talked with a majority of the voters before the campaign ended in his election in August.

At odd times that summer he had been surveying a new road with Harry Needles for his helper. In September they resumed their work upon it in the vicinity of New Salem and Abe began to carry the letters in his hat again. Every day Ann was looking for him as he came by in the dim light of the early morning on his way to work.

"Anything for me?" she would ask. "No mail in since I saw you, Ann," was the usual answer.

Often he would say: "I'm afraid not, but here—you take these letters and look through 'em and make sure."

Ann would take them in her hands, trembling with eagerness, and run indoors to the candlelight, and look them over. Always she came back with the little bundle of letters very slowly as if her disappointment were a heavy burden.

"There'll be one next mail if I have to write it myself," Abe said one morning in October as he went out.

To Harry Needles, who was with him that morning, he said:

"I wonder why that fellow don't write to Ann. I couldn't believe that he had been fooling her, but now I don't know what to think of him. I wonder what has happened to the fellow."

The mail stage was late that evening. As it had not come at nine Mr. Hill went home and left Abe in the store to wait for his mail. The stage arrived a few minutes later. Abe examined the little bundle of letters and newspapers which the driver had left with him. Then he took a paper and sat down in a seat in the freight. While he was thus engaged the door opened softly and Ann Rutledge entered. The postmaster was not aware of her presence, but she touched his arm.

"Please give me a letter," she said. "Sit down, Ann," said he, very gently, as he placed a chair in the freight.

She took it, turning toward him with a look of fear and hope. Then he added:

"I'm sorry, but the truth is it ain't come. It is terrible, Ann, that I have to help in this breaking of your heart that is going on. I mean to be the head of the hammer that hits you so hard, but the handle is in other hands. Recently, Ann, I wish I could do the suffering for you—every bit of it—and give your poor heart a rest. Haven't we written you this summer?"

"Not where Jung took," she answered. "Then she continued to Abe that her lover told her before he went away that his name was not McNeil but McNamee; that he had changed his name to keep clear of his family; that he had made a covenant that he would come back to get his father and mother and bring them back with him—namely, she said in that tone that suggested her mother—the daughter of a big farmer and mother of John McNeil."

"That's all right," said Abe, "but I don't know what to think of it. I wonder what has happened to the fellow."

"I wonder why that fellow don't write to Ann. I couldn't believe that he had been fooling her, but now I don't know what to think of him. I wonder what has happened to the fellow."

"I wonder why that fellow don't write to Ann. I couldn't believe that he had been fooling her, but now I don't know what to think of him. I wonder what has happened to the fellow."

"You don't think that, do you, Abe?"

"No," said the latter, giving her the advantage of every doubt. "John did a foolish thing, but we must not condemn him without a knowledge of the facts. The young often do foolish things and sickness would account for his silence. You go home and go to sleep and stop worrying. Ann, you'll get that letter one of these days."

A day or two later Abe and Harry went to Springfield. Their reason for the trip lay in a talk between the postmaster and Jack Kelso the night before as they sat by the latter's fire-side.

"I've been living where there was no one to find fault with my parts of speech or with the parts of my legs which were not decently covered," said Abe. "The sock district of my person has been without representation in the legislature of my intellect up to its last session. Then we got a bill through for local improvements and the governor has approved the appropriation. Suddenly we discovered that there was no money in the treasury. But Samson Taylor has offered to buy an issue of bonds of the amount of fifteen dollars."

"I'm glad to hear you declare in favor of external improvements," said Kelso. "We've all been too much absorbed by internal improvements. You're on the right trail, Abe. You've been thinking of the public ear and too little of the public eye. We want show some respect for both."

"Sometimes I think that comely dress ought to go with comely diction," said Abe. "But that's a thing you can't learn in books. There's no grammarian of the language of dress. I'm a poor slob and awkward. It's a rather hopeless problem."

"You're in good company," Kelso assured him. "Nature guards her best men with some sort of singularity, not attractive to others. Often she makes them odious with conceit or deformity or dumbness or garrulity. Dante was such a poor talker that no one would ever ask him to dinner. If it had not been so I presume his misdeeds would have been badly crippled by indigestion. If you had been a good dancer and a lady's favorite, I wonder if you would have studied Kirkham and Burns and Shakespeare and Blackstone and Burke, and the science of surveying and been elected to the legislature. I wonder if you could even have whipped Jack Armstrong."

"Or have enjoyed the friendship of Bill Berry and acquired a national debt, as have saved my imperiled country in the war with Black Hawk," Abe laughed.

In the matter of dress the postmaster had great confidence in the taste and knowledge of his young friend, Harry Needles, whose neat appearance Abe regarded with serious admiration. He had asked Harry to go with him on his new session and help to choose the goods and direct the tailoring, for it seemed to him a highly important matter.

"The appropriation is only fifteen dollars," said Abe as they came in sight of "the big village" as a warm bright day late in October. "Of course, I can't expect to make myself look like the President of the United States with such a sum, but I want to look like a responsible citizen of the United States, if that is possible. I'll give the old Abe and Brown dollars to be worn for a new one and we'll see what comes of it."

Springfield had been rapidly changing. It was still a small town, but some of the best specimens of architecture had been built in the city. The streets were clean and the houses were comfortable.

"The two things when they were done, or some word or his own was done."

"I say as nearly as possible because."

"The matter of the return, which is the subject of a legend of the city, is that the return was made by the postmaster."

"The matter of the return, which is the subject of a legend of the city, is that the return was made by the postmaster."

has, in other-mounted harness, drawing carriages that show "so you could see your face in them," in quotes from Abe again, were on its streets.

The two New Salem men stopped and studied a big sign in front of a large store on which this announcement had been lettered:

"Clothes, cassimere, cassimere, velvet silks, satins, Marseilles waistcoating, fine, calf boots, seal and morocco pumps for gentlemen, crepe hose, lace veils. Thibet shawls, fine prunella shawls."

"Reads like a foreign language to me," said Abe. "How would you like a little Marseilles waistcoating?" Suddenly a man touched his shoulder with a heavy "Howdy, Abe!"

It was Eli, "the Wandering Jew," as he had been wont to call himself in the days when he carried a pack on the road through Peter's Bluff and Clara's Grove and New Salem to Beardstown and back.

"Dis is my store," said Eli. "Your store?" Abe exclaimed. "Ya, look at de sign."

The Jew pointed to his sign-board, some fifty feet long under the cornice, on which they read the legend: "Eli Fredenberg's Emporium."

"Eli Fredenberg's Emporium." Abe looked him over from head to foot and exclaimed: "My conscience! You look as if you had been fixed up to be sold to the highest bidder."

"The hairy, dusty, bow-legged, threadbare peddler had been touched by some miraculous hand. The Jewish hand of the West had showered her favors on him. They resembled in some degree the barbaric pearl and gold of the East. He glowed with prosperity. Diamonds and ruffled lace and Scotch plaid and red silk on his neck and a blue band on his hat and a smooth-shorn face and pertuery were the glittering details that surrounded the person of Eli."

"Come in," urged the genial proprietor of the Emporium. "I would like to show you my goods and introduce you to my brother."

In the man's department after much thoughtful discussion they decided upon a suit of blue jeans—that being the only goods which, in view of the amount of cloth required, came within the appropriation. Eli advised against it.

"You are like Eli already," he said. "You hat got de pack off your back. Look at me. Don't you hear my clothes say something?"

"They are very eloquent," said Abe. "Well, dey make a speech. Dey say 'Eli Fredenberg he is no more a poor devil. You cannot sneer at him once again. Nefer. He has climb de ladder up.' Now you let me sell you something vat makes a good speech for you."

"If you let me dictate the speech I'll agree," said Abe. "Well—vat is it?" Eli asked.

"I would like my clothes to say in a low tone of voice: 'This is humble Abraham Lincoln, about the same length and breadth that I am. He don't want to scare or astonish anybody. He don't want to look like a beggar or a millionaire. Just put him down for a hard-working man of good intentions who is badly in debt.'"

That ended all argument. The suit of blue jeans was ordered and the measures taken. As they were about to go Eli said:

"I forgot to tell you dot I hat seen Jim Kelso de older day in St. Louis. I hat seen her on de street. She had been like a queen so grand? De hat axed gwa from Paris and she walk so proud! Not she look not so happy like she wat to be. I speak to her. Oh my, she was glad and so surprised! She told me dot she would like to come for a visit but her husband he does not want her to go—nefer again. My jobber hat told me dot Mr. Biggs is git drunk every day. Was she 'vat de place no need?"

"Poor child!" said Abe. "I'm afraid she's in trouble. Her parents have begun to suspect that something is wrong. They have never been invited to go down there and visit the girl. I reckon we'd better say nothing to any one of what we have heard, at present."

Highway Improvement

PLANT BLACK WALNUT TREES

Particularly Adapted for Public Parks, Lawns, Along Highways and Other Places.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) The war demand drew heavily upon the black-walnut timber supply. The condition became alarming, as it was recognized that unless there should be a decrease in the cutting, the merchantable trees would soon be gone. Fortunately, however, the war ended before the larger trees entirely disappeared. Now a reaction is setting in. Black walnuts are being planted in small numbers by many persons, directly in harmony with the policy advocated by the United States Department of Agriculture.

A conspicuous instance of planting occurred near Saginaw, Mich. Last fall, W. S. Dinton, president of the Northern Nut Growers' association, procured 30 bushels of walnuts from trees at the house of George Washington at Mount Vernon, Va. These were shipped to Saginaw and in the main distributed among the school children of the county and planted two in a hill, on school grounds and along public roads and streets. Two thousand were placed in a nursery for later transplanting in one of the public parks of Saginaw.

When it became known that these nuts were available for planting, very keen and widespread interest in them developed. Telephone calls for them were numerous. Automobileists drove for many miles to call in person. Since then, enthusiastically attended meetings have been held in various places in the State to consider the question of black walnut tree planting along the highways. The suggestion is made that in view of the known differences of hardness existing in many species of native trees, special care should be exercised to avoid extensive planting of nuts or trees from the warmer portions of the country in sections where destructively low temperatures are occasionally experienced.

Doubtless the safest rule to observe in the North is to plant nuts from trees that have attained good size and habit, and as nearly as possible in the section where they are to be planted. No harm is likely to result from transplanting such trees from northern soils to more southern locations in so far as reaction to temperature is concerned.

The suitability of the black walnut for home planting is now being recognized as never before. That it is one of our most valuable American trees and that its numbers have steadily been decreasing has long been realized. To a considerable extent this tree was planted on the western prairie by the first settlers in compliance with the timber and stone act, repealed in the late eighties, which required that trees be planted in proportion to land taken up from the government. Some planting has been going on in states and districts beyond the range to which the species is indigenous.

Even now the forest service of the United States Department of Agriculture does not advise its planting in pure stands on land from which income is necessary during the lifetime of the average planter, as no returns in timber are probable under at least 25 or 30 years from the time of planting.

Department experts recommend that the walnut be included among the species for planting in public parks, on large, private lawns and dooryards, along highways, and in out-of-the-way places on the farm. It is invariably the single tree planted in the open, apart from other trees, that develops into the most perfect specimen. It is such trees that produce the greatest quantity of nuts. Usually the finest quality of kernels is from this source.

THE SANDMAN STORY

THE MARKED BIRD.

MR. WOODPECKER is a marked bird, as you all know who have seen him, for the red spot on the back of his head is plainly seen when he is pecking away at a tree, or even if half hidden by leaves the red spot is pretty sure to be seen and to reveal his working place, even when the sound cannot be located.

But the next morning, just as he was flying away, Mrs. Woodpecker was so upset she lost her temper and after him she threw the paint brush, which struck the back of her husband's head and left a spot of red paint.

Of course he did not know about the paint and thought his wife was cross, but there it was; and then Mrs. Woodpecker followed and caught her lazy husband, for now that she could see him some distance away, she took good care that he should not see her until she was beside him.

It was no use to deny it now, for she saw with her own eyes that there were plenty of insects and he had to do his part after that toward supporting the family.

And that is the reason that Mr. Woodpecker wears a red spot on the back of his head and his wife does not, so the little bird from Rickland told the story.

Little Mrs. Woodpecker tried to watch her mate and flew after him when he went away, but he was too clever in dodging for her to follow him, for he could easily hide against the bark of a tree and she could not find him.

One Day Mrs. Woodpecker Asked the Goblins to Help.

Of course, she could hear him hammering, but his bright eyes always saw her afar off and he was on the wing and away before she could get near.

So one day Mrs. Woodpecker became very desperate and asked the goblins to help her. "I can't get him to bring home a thing for the children to eat," she said, "and they eat so much I am just worn out. Do tell me what to do. If I could follow him and catch him at work then I should be certain he finds plenty of food, but I cannot prove that he does not, for I can never surprise him."

The little goblin was sitting on a rock, out of which he had just jumped, and, laying a finger on one side of his nose, he thought a minute. "I have it, Mrs. Woodpecker," he said, "jumping up. I will get the fairies to let you have some of the red like my cap. You can paint his head red some night when he is asleep, and with a red cap like mine you can see him anywhere in the forest."

Mrs. Woodpecker went home with a light heart and that night she met the goblin, who had an acorn cupful of red paint for her. But the rest was not so easy, for when she flew home with the paint and tried to paint her husband's head while he slept he kept waking up and asking, "Who is tickling the top of my head?" and poor little Mrs. Woodpecker could not mark her mate.

Small service is true service while it lasts—Wordsworth.

It is at all times risky to recommend anything. Yet in the very order of things we all do recommend the things we like to our friends. It is too much to ask us always to recommend with a reservation. We should be quite stilted and unnatural if we did that. Perhaps it is a better suggestion to say that we should always take a recommendation with reservations.

If a friend of yours tells you that she has found a good dressmaker she really puts herself under no obligations to prove her statement, but if you should ask for the dressmaker's address you put your friend under the necessity of proving that the dressmaker is good. So if you do ask people to recommend anything, you must show your good breeding by abiding by the results without complaint. It would be the height of rudeness on your part to criticize a dressmaker whose address you had asked for from a friend who had told you about her. If you do not agree with the friend's recommendation you are, of course, at liberty never to have her again. Of course the dressmaker is only an example and the same rules hold good of anything that is recommended to you—from a book to a new kind of breakfast food. You don't have to take the recommendation. But if you do it is the well-bred thing not to criticize the result.

Some people give up recommending books because those they recommend them to do not like them. But one of the things that makes books interesting is the discussion they evoke. You are not casting aspersions on a

That Needed Town Hall

If our article some weeks ago on the need of a public hall for Carrizozo aroused anything more than a passing interest we have not been made aware of it. However the need still exists, and will exist, until a comfortable hall is secured. We believe too much stress cannot be placed on the necessity for a place of public gathering, and some steps should be taken to make it an accomplished reality.

While we take pride in urging civic improvements of this nature, we take no pride in the suggestion itself; for that proposition, or a similar one, was first suggested by the Woman's Club, and has been advocated by some of the leading men of the town. Our support is merely as an auxiliary—to help those who hatched the idea. We are quite willing to push without laying any claims to leadership, and entertain for the proposition the highest opinion, even though we lay no claim as the originator of the project.

This proposition should meet with the hearty approval of our people, and some organization should be perfected whereby it could be successfully consummated. If it should be found to be too difficult of accomplishment at this time, it will be well to bear it in mind, and push it when the time does come. Comment it; talk it; agitate it; keep it alive.

The Tax Revision Bill

In discussing the Tax Revision Bill which passed the Senate by a vote of 38 to 24, Senator Hiram Johnson made the following left-handed characterization of that iniquitous measure:

"A wag said the other day, though, of course, I would not dare subscribe to such a thing, that the title of the pending bill ought to be changed to read 'An act to permit the dishonest to cheat the government.'"

In the meantime, the general character of the bill was expressed in the following statement from a speech by Senator Simmons of the Senate Finance Committee:

"Taking all the reductions you have made in behalf of all the other taxpayers of the country, the individual income taxpayers, the miscellaneous taxpayers, you have taken more off the corporations than you have taken off all the balance put together. Can you justify that? When you do that sort of thing are you not guilty of the charge I made when I opened the debate that your bill is a bill to relieve the great, rich, powerful corporations at the expense of the balance of the taxpayers of the country?"

Those who are not members are not members are invited to attend and get acquainted with the work of the organization, and those who are members are urged to attend and get into harness and help the officers of the association in the work they are trying to do for the benefit of the live stock industry of the state.

Some of the questions to be discussed are:

Reduction in state land leases and purchase price of same.

Reduction in taxes, as well as tax levies.

Postponement of payment of grazing fees on the National forests, the amount equaling these fees to be used by permittees under supervision of forest officials in making range improvements. A bill is now before congress relative to the above.

Parsons News Letter

All roads lead to the hills this week, and soon all deer trails will lead to the safety zone.

Mrs. Maude Blaney, the county superintendent of schools, made a week-end visit to this district, and aside from visiting the school was fortunate enough to be able to visit each family in the community.

J. M. Rice, who has been ill for the past week, is now on the road to recovery.

Dr. Bailey and Miss Backus, Mr. Tucker and Miss Kuntz, of Fort Stanton, took advantage of Armistice Day to visit friends in the hills.

John Wright of Carrizozo also spent the week end in Parsons.

Arthur and Newt Givens have gone to the Jarilla mining district to secure work.

The cider mill in the old Skinner orchard is still doing a good business.

Mr. and Mrs. Ora Stearns and children were week-end guests of the Reddy family.

There have been more hunters in the woods this past week than deer, or turkey either, for that matter. The hunting season has not proved profitable—except to the dispensers of guns and ammunition.

Dr. and Mrs. W. O. Howell, of Fort Stanton, also Dr. Bailey and Miss Klotz Backus came up for the week-end with friends. The two doctors would a hunting go, and are now qualified to testify as to the steepness of the hills and elusiveness of wild turkeys.

James Gatewood spent some time here in the pursuit of game, but like many others, returned home a disappointed man.

NOTED MEN MAKE PLEA FOR RED CROSS

That the American Red Cross is a non-sectarian and non-political organization is evident from the many letters received in Washington recently from men of national and international prominence, congratulating the new Chairman of the Red Cross Central Committee, Judge John Barton Payne, on his appointment to the head of the organization. Messages were received from President Harding, Vice-President Coolidge, General John J. Pershing, Chief Justice of the United States William Howard Taft, Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes, His Eminence Cardinal Dougherty, the Surgeon General of the Army General M. W. Ireland, Secretary Denby of the Navy, from Bishop William F. McDowell of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the Polish Minister, Prince Casimir Lubomirski, His Eminence Cardinal O'Connell, Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, Right Reverend Bishop Daniel S. Tuttle, Presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church in America, Kathleen Booth of the Salvation Army, Secretary of Labor James A. Davis, Secretary Andrew W. Mellon of the Treasury, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York, and from others of equal note. Letters from Cardinals Dougherty and O'Connell follow:

"His Excellency, the President of the United States, having declared by proclamation that the Annual Membership Roll Call of the American Red Cross shall begin on Armistice Day, and continue until November 24th, I deem it a duty to exhort all our citizens to enroll themselves in this admirable organization, which, for many years past, and especially during the World War, has rendered to mankind such noble services and benefactions.

"In times of peace, it has come to the rescue of the victims of pestilence, famine, fire, floods, and other great calamities; and it strives to devise and carry on measures for preventing the causes of suffering.

"In war, it has been a medium of communication between the American people and their Army and Navy; and it has cared for the sick and wounded throughout the world, irrespective of race and creed.

"I bespeak for it a wide membership.

(Signed)
D. CARD, DOUGHERTY,
Archbishop of Philadelphia.

"The American Red Cross is an organization of which our country is justly proud. It is dedicated to a noble purpose, the alleviation of suffering mankind, and the story of its achievements speaks for itself.

"In order that this organization may continue faithful service and bring assistance to suffering humanity in the various crises which arise from time to time, it needs constant encouragement and support.

"It has ever been the just and proud boast of America that she has never been wanting in generosity in any need, and I am confident that American citizens will not fail to respond as they have in the past to help the Red Cross to continue its ministrations to the unfortunate and suffering.

KANSAS JUNIORS DOING BIG COMMUNITY WORK

The Junior Red Cross of Republic County, Kansas, has been especially active during the last year in organizing classes conducted under the Junior plan, such as health work in the schools, patriotic program, community play, making of toys and hospital supplies, civic training, making of Easter cards and equipment, and preparing hot lunches for school children.

FLOUR SACK CAUSES FIRST-AID CALL

An odd case of first-aid was required of a newly installed Red Cross nurse at Bendona, Kan., recently, according to advices from that town.

A deaf man, who was endeavoring to help the woman clerk in a grocery store carry a sack of flour from the store room to his waiting automobile, inadvertently caught the drag-hook in her finger and dragged her instead of the sack of flour across the floor. His back was turned, and being too deaf to hear her cries, he did not know of the accident until he turned to lift the flour into his machine.

The hook was so deeply imbedded in the woman's hand that surgery was necessary to remove it, but the Red Cross nurse was able to relieve her pain with first-aid at once while a surgeon was being summoned.

Red Cross nurses in the chapters where public health work is conducted are constantly having just such calls as this, and frequently find themselves the only available help in serious emergencies. In many of the Red Cross chapters employing public health nurses, the work is honored by the receipts from the annual Roll Call. The Roll Call this year will take place November 11th to 24th and will be held throughout the United States.

PUBLIC HEALTH NURSES CARE FOR 200,000 IN THE SOUTHWEST

Workers in Red Cross Chapters in Seven States Have Big Job.

If the 194 public health nurses now working under the emblem of the Red Cross in the Southwestern Division of the American Red Cross were withdrawn tomorrow, more than 200,000 sick and infirm men, women and children would be left without nursing care and advice, according to Miss Olive Chapman, Director of Nursing of the Southwestern Division of the American Red Cross.

The Public Health Nurse is one of the most important officers in the American Red Cross today. Her job is to help the people to get well and to keep well. She teaches mothers how to look after their babies and school children how to avoid illness and disease. She is found in schools, homes, playgrounds, industrial plants, department stores, hospitals, and health centers. Her work is in the small towns and in the big cities, in the rural communities and in the lonely mountain regions of the West. She is wherever there is need for her service, regardless of race, religion or social conditions.

Any form of community work in which the health of the public is concerned is hers. She visits the rich and the poor alike and teaches both the common sense rules of good health. She locates tuberculous patients and cares for them, and at the same time teaches the families how to prevent the disease from spreading to other members. She assists in school medical inspection of children and follows defective children into their homes to advise the parents and induce them to act on the advice of the school doctor. She watches over families in which there are contagious diseases, such as diphtheria, scarlet fever, whooping cough and influenza, and teaches the families how to isolate the patient so as to prevent infection.

She takes care of the mother before the baby arrives and builds for the future by showing the mother how to care for her baby. She gives instruction in sanitary living conditions, and even at times in questions of diet.

She is the closest point of contact between the great American Red Cross and the public.

There is a known shortage in the United States today of several thousand public health nurses and there is a greater shortage of hospital and private nurses. Many chapters in the Southwestern Division of the American Red Cross maintain public health nurses and conduct work of a greater or less scope through the agency of such a nurse. These chapters are depending upon the membership fees coming in from the annual Red Cross Roll Call to finance their public health nursing program for the coming year. The Roll Call will take place November 11th to 24th, according to announcement given out at the local Red Cross headquarters.

MALNUTRITION IN AMERICA AMONG RICH AND POOR ALIKE

Only four per cent of the children in the plains section in the United States are normal, according to a survey recently made by the American Red Cross and the United States Public Health Service jointly. A large percentage of abnormal children are so because of malnutrition. Malnutrition is answerable for more ill in the child life of America than any other cause, it has been ascertained, and this condition is found as frequently among the children of the rich as in the families of the poor.

The Red Cross, through its nutrition classes and diet educational work, is endeavoring to correct the widespread condition of under-nourishment and to lay the foundation for a healthier next generation by building up the strength of the children. In the United States there are over 1,000 nutrition classes in which more than 25,000 children are enrolled. In addition to this there are 163 classes in Food Selection with over 1,500 students, all of whom either are in advanced school grades or are adults.

With a work of this magnitude, with an effort constantly to increase its scope, the Red Cross hopes in the next few years to teach American children what to eat, when to eat it, and how much of it to eat, so that under-nourishment will no longer be a menace to the health of the nation.

SOUTHWESTERN GIRLS SERVING AS RED CROSS NURSES IN RUSSIA

The American Red Cross Commission to western Russia and the Baltic States, which is under the direction of Lieutenant Colonel Edward W. Ryan, issues a monthly bulletin printed in English, and giving news of the work of the commission. The last number to reach this country is the September issue. In it there is mention of three Southwestern Division workers who had arrived during August. They are Miss Nell W. Crouch, of Lawrence, Kan.; Miss Hazel M. Drake and Miss Gladys E. Nicholson, of Kansas City. They have joined the commission and will be bringing the total of nurses on the commission's staff up to twelve. Miss Nicholson and Miss Crouch have been assigned to the Leningrad District.

FIFTH ANNUAL ROLL CALL BEGINS ARMISTICE DAY

American Red Cross to Enroll Members Throughout Nation November 11 to 24.

The American Red Cross will conduct its Fifth Annual Roll Call this year beginning on Armistice Day, November 11, and ending the eve of Thanksgiving Day. National headquarters in Washington, division headquarters in the eight divisions of the Red Cross, and headquarters of each of the more than 2,000 chapters, are busily engaged on their Roll Call program, according to information given out at local Red Cross headquarters. The effort will be to re-enroll every present member of the Red Cross and to add as many new members to the roster as possible in the period given.

There are at present 6,041,163 members in the American Red Cross. John Barton Payne, chairman of the Red Cross, hopes to hear the answer, "present," when each one of these names is called between Armistice Day and Thanksgiving Day this year, he says, thus providing for the continuance of the work of service to the public of America and the sufferers in foreign lands which the Red Cross has started and is conducting on the basis of its peacetime program.

In a letter sent out from national headquarters, W. Frank Persons, vice-chairman of the American Red Cross in charge of Domestic Operations, calls attention to the fact that the strength of the Red Cross in the past has been in its volunteer workers. He urges, therefore, that all chapter membership committees seek to re-enlist the largest number possible of the men and women who have served the Red Cross as volunteers in the past, and suggests that the Roll Call is a logical channel for bringing former workers back to service in the Red Cross.

The interest manifested in the Red Cross Convention at Columbus, Ohio, the first week in October, showed that the public is as keen to stand behind the work of the Red Cross in its peacetime program as during the war, and that the thinking public realizes that the Red Cross is as necessary to the welfare of the civilized world in times of peace as in war. Officials of the Red Cross believe, therefore, that the Roll Call this year will result in many more members than were placed on the roster of the American Red Cross last year.

The Red Cross throughout the country is putting on this year its new peacetime program, which includes public welfare service in every direction wherever such service is needed. In health work alone in the last year, 200 chapters have organized health centers with 6,264 clinics and 90,252 cases in these clinics. More than 4,000 health talks have been given by these and other chapters engaged in health work, and health exhibits to the total of 780, both traveling and stationary, have been set up to inform the public on matters pertaining to their own and their community's health.

TEXAS RED CROSS READY FOR FLOOD

Chapters Near Stricken District Send Aid Inside Twelve Hours.

The Southwestern Division, so exceptionally hard-hit these last three years by disaster of various kinds, had a fine exhibition of chapter preparedness in the recent Central Texas flood, according to information given out at the headquarters of the Southwestern Division at St. Louis.

When the Brazos River started rising and floods seemed imminent, the Division Disaster Relief Director was notified and as soon as it was found necessary to send relief, a night letter was sent to chapters in the vicinity of the flooded district but outside of the flood area. The call asked for clothing principally, and in less than seven hours in one case and twelve hours in others, supplies were on their way.

Dallas replied at 4 p. m. following the call received in the morning, that clothing had been shipped. Waco not only responded to the first request, but sent a second supply of clothing. Houston sent 800 garments which had been cleaned and sterilized. Other towns in the adjacent territory sent more than their quota within the next two days, and the result was that by the time a sufficient degree of order had been created to look after the stricken inhabitants of the flooded area, there were supplies on hand sufficient to meet all the needs of the situation.

A feature of this wonderfully ready response, it is stated, was that all the garments sent were usable and were the type needed. This showed that the chapters sending them considered the character of the disaster and the conditions of the people needing relief, making their contributions accordingly, and did not use the "hit or miss" method of collecting supplies so frequently seen in cases of similar catastrophes.

The towns contributing to this particular flood, the statement show, in addition to those mentioned above, were Fort Arthur, Jasper, Huntsville, Jacksonville, Greenville, and Denton, Tex., and Okmulgee, Okla. The latter sent its box of clothing, containing seventy-five garments, substantially

New Mexico Wool Brings Good Price in Boston

Boston, Mass., Nov. 19—The demand for wool has continued steadily during the week, all grades being in request, although some of the larger mills have shown a marked interest in good fine stapled graded wools. The choicest Montana has been sold at 30 cents.

New Mexican wools have been sold again this week at 23 and 24 cents for original bag fine and fine medium wool, or about 70 cents, clean basis, and some Magdalena wools have been sold at 22 and 23 cents in the grease or 65 cents, clean.

Some fairly good scoured New Mexican has also been sold at 60 to 65 cents.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Conference on Armaments and Far East Questions is Formally Opened.

HUGHES IS MADE CHAIRMAN

Nations Pay Tribute to America's Unknown Soldier on Armistice Day—Senate Passes Tax Revision Bill—Elections of Week Please Democrats.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

SATURDAY, November 12, may, and it is to be hoped will, be set apart in the history of the world as one of its most momentous dates. On that day was formally opened in Washington the conference on limitation of armaments and Far East questions which, if it is successful, will go far toward curbing some of the worst ills of what we are pleased to call civilization. The projectors of, and participants in, this meeting do not entertain the illusory hope that it will result immediately, or even soon, in the abolishing of warfare, but they do believe, and the world trusts, that their deliberations and agreements will settle peacefully the tangled affairs of the Pacific and the Orient, and so far cut down the naval and army programs of the great powers that the tax-burdened peoples will experience a tremendous financial relief, and the threat of another general or even important war will be far removed.

It was in the handsome auditorium of the Continental Memorial hall that the opening session of the conference was held. When Secretary of State Hughes arose to call to order, he faced the most distinguished assemblage of men and women this country ever has seen. Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, Belgium, Holland and China had sent each some of her most eminent statesmen, and our own representatives are acknowledged of the first rank. After the delegates were the extensive advisory staffs, and, of course, the diplomatic corps was there in full force. The members of the senate and house, invited guests and other privileged persons filled the hall to overflowing.

Mr. Hughes, in opening the conference, welcomed formally the foreign delegates, and stated briefly the objects of the gathering. President Harding then stepped forward and, after the storm of applause had subsided, he told more at length of the hopes and purposes that had led him to invite the powers to this conference. His words were persuasive and well; even the most pessimistic of his hearers could not help but feel that there was a fair chance that those hopes would be realized.

After the formalities, the conference organized for business, Secretary Hughes being elected chairman, and other officers being chosen. Adjournment was taken until Monday.

One great figure was absent from the opening of the conference—David Lloyd George, premier of Great Britain. Kept at home for the present by the Irish negotiations and the unpropitious situation, he cabled to the government the assurance that he would sail for Washington as soon as possible.

YET another event made last week memorable—the burial of America's unknown dead soldier on Armistice day. In this nation, through its highest representatives, paid tribute to the many thousands who, serving and unremembered individually, gave up their lives in the cause of patriotism and freedom in the World War. The unknown hero was brought home by the Olympian, Admiral Dewey's old flagship, and on Wednesday his casket was placed under the dome of the capitol on the catafalque on which had rested the bodies of Presidents Lincoln, Grant and McKinley. Around it stood in solemn rows, the five soldiers of the last guard, and all things were over it were the speeches which had covered it on the way across the ocean. An officer placed on the flag at the head of the coffin the badge of the Legion of Honor conferred by the French government, and then came in President and Mrs. Harding, Vice President Coolidge, Speaker Gillett and Chief Justice Taft. Mrs. Harding laid across the casket a white ribbon, and on it the President placed a wreath of red rosebuds. Wreaths from congress, the Supreme court and the War and Navy departments were added, and the honor guard was left alone with the dead. On the following day decorations and wreaths from foreign nations and floral designs from every state were brought in.

On Armistice day the great ceremony was carried out. The parade down Pennsylvania avenue was the most impressive ever seen in Washington. From the capitol as far as the White House, President Harding walked in the ranks with generals, admirals, practically every government official in the city, veterans of the Civil war and every war America has had since then, and large detachments from the army and navy. At the White House President Harding and most of the other civilians dropped out of the procession, and went to Arlington in motor cars, but General Pershing trudged on afoot all the way with the body of his dead comrade-in-arms. The unknown was interred in front of the pavilion of the National cemetery, with every honor that could possibly be paid him. The funeral address, delivered by President Harding, was replete with passages of eloquence and pathos, and with expressions of hopefulness for the future peace of the world. Much of it is worth quoting; for instance:

"On the threshold of eternity, many a soldier, I can well believe, wondered how his ebbling blood would color the stream of human life, flowing on after his sacrifice. His patriotism was none less if he craved more than triumph of country; rather, it was greater if he hoped for a victory for all human kind. Indeed, I reverse that citizen whose confidence in the righteousness of his country inspired belief that its triumph is the victory of humanity. 'This American soldier went forth to battle with no hatred for any people in the war, but hating war and hating the purpose of every war for conquest. He cherished our national rights, and abhorred the threat of armed domination; and in the maelstrom of destruction and suffering and death, he fired his shot for liberation of the captive conscience of the world. In advancing toward his objective was somewhere a thought of a world awakened; and we are here to testify undying gratitude and reverence for that thought of a wider freedom.'"

TWO governments have announced that they will not be bound by any agreements reached by the Washington conference. Neither is represented in that meeting. First came defiance from Moscow, the soviet rulers declaring they not only would not recognize the decisions of the conference, but would adopt all means to defeat them. Next in this line of action was Dr. Sun Yat Sen's southern Chinese government. Mr. Bao, representative of Doctor Sun in America, departed from Washington after announcing that the government of southern China would fight any plan for the settlement of China's affairs that is accepted by the official Chinese delegation to the conference. For the time being, the latter case may be the more important of the two, but the time will come when Russia's power and interests in the Orient will have to be taken into account.

Tchitcherin, soviet foreign minister, says Russia's policies are now directed only by economic interests, and not by doctrine; and Russia is welcoming vociferously every indication of the investment of foreign capital. Premier Lenin is protesting that the chance for gold will lead to war between America and Japan or America and Great Britain in 1920 or 1921. The soviet announced it had succeeded in suppressing the revolt in the Ukraine, led by General Petlura, partly because the negotiations of that region related to the soviet revolution, but this was contradicted by later news.

ALEXANDER finally went to Belgrade to be crowned king of the Serbs, and found himself in the midst of difficulties immediately. The Serbs were pressing their invasion of Albania, in the hope of reaching Tirana before the meeting of the League of Nations council in Paris, November 18, and the council of ambassadors ordered them to get outside the boundaries it had just decided on for Albania. Premier Pachitch offered his resignation, but Alexander refused to accept it, indicating he was satisfied with the premier's foreign policy, and the Serbian army continued its advance. The Montenegro, who never have consented to the merging of their national identity in the Yugo-Slav state, have joined forces with the Albanians, and the prospects for another Balkan war are excellent.

THE cabinet has received from Lloyd George an outline of the negotiations with the Sinn Fein representatives and of the tentative peace plan, and is considering it. Meanwhile, the Hibernians issued this statement: "Sir James Craig (the premier) on behalf of the cabinet of northern Ireland, wishes it clearly understood that there can be no surrender of Hibernia's rights."

Parliament was prorogued on Thursday, after being reassured that nothing would be finally settled with regard to Ireland without calling the house together.

AT THE close of a fifteen-hour session, the senate passed its version of the tax-revision bill, and on Thursday the conference committee began its task. The Republican "insurgents" in the lower house, who favor the senate maximum surtax rate of 40 per cent, forced an agreement that the house would be given a chance to vote on that feature before the conference reached a final decision on it. The "insurgents" claimed to have from 80 to 85 votes, which, with the votes of the Democrats, would be enough to accept the senate rate.

The bill, as passed by the senate, is estimated by Treasury experts to yield about $3,250,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30 next, or $200,000,000 less than the existing law. But ultimately it would reduce the nation's tax bill by approximately $750,000,000.

ELECTIONS held last week in various parts of the country were highly pleasing to the Democrats, though the most talked-of contest, in New York city, really was not much influenced by party politics. There Mayor Hylan, Tammany candidate, was re-elected, having a tremendous plurality over Curran, the coalition candidate. Hylan stood for 5-cent street car fare and for local self-government, with which the Republican state assembly was trying to interfere. In Kentucky the Democrats regained control of the legislature; in Maryland they increased their control; in Virginia they elected E. Lee Trimble for governor and the entire state ticket.

THE next man who undertakes to rob the United States mails will probably run up against a "devil-dog" who will unhesitatingly kill him full of lead. The mail robberies were becoming so frequent and so great that Postmaster General Hays was driven to ask for protection. The President and cabinet decided that marines should be ordered on that duty, and 1,000 of them have been detailed to guard postal stations, railway mail cars and mail trucks, pending the organization of a permanent armed guard as a branch of the postal service. "There is no length to which the department will not go to prevent these mail robberies," says Mr. Hays.

THE ECONOMY

BAKING POWDER

CALUMET

Calumet possesses the farthest-reaching baking powder economy. It is the most economical leavening agent. It saves in more ways—and makes more important savings than most other baking powders.

You save when you buy it. The price is moderate—it leaves you money over the cost of high-priced brands for purchase of other articles. Costs but little more than cheap powders—far more valuable in quality.

You save when you use it. Possesses more than the ordinary raising force—you use only half as much as is ordinarily required.

You save materials it is used with. Calumet never fails with any kind of recipe or with any kind of flour—always produces perfectly raised, delicious bakings.

You'll notice a great difference when you use Calumet. Calumet produces light, sweet, wholesome, flaky bakings. You will notice with some of the cheaper brands the bakings are soggy, heavy, dark in color, and sometimes have a bitter taste.

The Law Says 16 oz. to a Pound. A pound can of Calumet contains full 16 oz. Some baking powders come in 12 oz. cans instead of 16 oz. cans. Be sure you get a pound when you want it.

It might be well, while correcting our disobedient offspring, to remember that we did not die young.

WESTERN CANADA Land of Prosperity

Plans to have twelve subdivisions that cannot be secured elsewhere. The Government of Canada from the United States who have granted Canada a generous offer to settle on 160 to 320 acre parcels of land in the best growing areas in the West. These parcels are available on easy terms.

Fertile Land of $15 to $30 an Acre

With such a wide variety of crops, such as wheat, corn, alfalfa, etc., and the fact that the land is so fertile, it is possible to raise a large amount of stock, such as cattle, horses, etc., and to produce a large amount of wool. The land is also well suited for the raising of fruit, such as apples, peaches, etc., and for the raising of poultry, such as chickens, turkeys, etc.

SUFFERED SEVEN LONG YEARS

Finally Relieved by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Reverend W. V. A. "For seven long years I suffered from a female trouble and inflammation so bad that I was not able to do my work. I consulted several doctors but none seemed to give me relief. I read in a paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I decided to try it, and before the first bottle was gone I found great relief. I continued using it until I had taken eight bottles. Now I am very well and can do my own housework. I can gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine to suffering women." — Mrs. BETTIE LAMSON, E. F. D., Ravenswood, W. Va.

There Was No Reply. Robert Perry, age six, is the son of Paul Perry, of Greensburg. Like all boys of school age, he is of an inquisitive turn of mind, and frequently asks questions of his father which bring only a grunt in reply. At dinner the other evening Robert was eating steak. "Papa, what is steak? Where does it come from?" "That was an easy one for papa, and he promptly responded: "From cows, son." But he was not prepared for the next one: "From our two cows, papa!" — Indianapolis News.

Make Your Own Opportunities. When you feel the fancied greater opportunities of other fields tugging at your sleeve just hold a short consultation with yourself and remember that it's the man and not the thing which achieves success. You will then decide that there is nothing better than the work you are doing and that you make your own opportunities by the spirit you put into your task every day of the year. — Selected.

Don't Fear Aspirin IF IT IS GENUINE
Look for Name "Bayer" on Tablets, Then You Need Never Worry.

To get genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" you must look for the safety "Bayer Cross" on each package and on each tablet. The "Bayer Cross" means true, world-famous Aspirin, prescribed by physicians for over twenty-one years, and proved safe by millions for Colds, Headache, Rheumatism, Toothache, Neuritis, Lumbago, Neuritis, and for Pain in general. Proper and safe directions are in each unbroken "Bayer" package. — Advertisement.

BOSCHEE'S SYRUP
Alleviates Irritation, Soothes and Heals Throat and Lung Inflammation. The almost constant irritation of a cough keeps the delicate mucous membrane of the throat and lungs in a congested condition, which Boschee's Syrup gently and quickly soothes and heals. For this reason it has been a favorite household remedy for colds, coughs, bronchitis and especially for lung troubles in millions of homes all over the world for the last fifty-five years, enabling the patient to obtain a good night's rest, free from coughing, with easy expectoration in the morning. You can buy Boschee's Syrup wherever medicines are sold. — Advertisement.

Time Kept by Standard Clocks.
The time of the whole of the United States east of the Rockies is regulated by three standard clocks kept in an underground vault at the naval observatory in Washington. These clocks are wound by electricity, and their beats are transmitted electrically throughout the observatory; the vault is never entered except in cases of emergency.

Daily Short Story.
Poliphar Wampoodle had words with his wife at breakfast about the way the eggs were cooked. "I'm tired of this sort of thing," he declared. "From here I go to the river." So he did. He loafed around the river front, kidded the boatmen, and even accepted a little guaranteed hooch. It was very late when he wended his way homeward. Then he had words with his wife about some alleged pork chops he found on the supper table. — Louisville Courier-Journal.

First "Weather Man."
An Englishman, Francis Galton, was the first real weather man. Galton was a cousin of Charles Darwin. He was born in England in 1824. Whether he was really able to forecast rain and sunshine with more accuracy than his successors is an open question; but it is certain that he was the first to attempt the charting, on a large scale, of the progress of the elements of weather. The methods devised by him, in modified form, are used to this day.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

It costs a lot to live these days, more than in days of yore. But when we come to think of it, it's worth a good deal more.

GOOD THINGS FOR THE TABLE.
A few pieces of nicely smoked trout added to a potato salad give a flavor that is especially appetizing.

Sweet Potatoes, Southern Style.—Cook the potatoes in their skins until soft. Cut them, after peeling, in rather thick slices and lay them in a greased baking dish, sprinkling with sugar and adding butter to each layer. Bake half an hour in a slow oven and serve from baking dish. Placing a marshmallow on top of each slice and letting it puff and brown, makes a more attractive dish.

Chestnut Dessert.—Take a pound of chestnuts, cut a slit across the top of each, then drop them into boiling water to cover, boil for five minutes, then peel them. Put two cupsful of hot water into a pan, add one cupful of sugar and the thinly pared peeling from a lemon; bring to the boiling point and add the nuts and cook until tender. Take them out of the syrup, pound them and rub through a sieve. Whip one cupful of cream, add one-half teaspoonful of lemon extract, a little red coloring, the chestnut puree and enough of the syrup to sweeten. Heap in a pretty dish and serve with wafers.

Corn Pudding.—Open a can of corn and let it air an hour before using. Beat three eggs, add a pint of rich milk, the corn, one tablespoonful of melted butter, salt, pepper, and one-half teaspoonful of mustard with three teaspoonfuls of Worcester'shire sauce. Cook until the mixture is firm.

Sponge Bananas.—Cover the bottom of a baking dish with small sponge cakes, cover with a layer of bananas, sprinkle with sugar and the juice of a lemon, add chopped nuts, or coconut and bake fifteen minutes. Serve with a custard or thick cream.

Coffee Custard, Parisian.—Cook four tablespoonfuls of coffee in a pint of milk five minutes, strain through a jelly bag; add the yolks of four eggs beaten, a cupful of sugar and cook until smooth and thick. Cool, add one-third of an ounce of softened gelatin and a pint of whipped cream. Stir and stand in a cold place for an hour before serving.

Let us sometimes live—he it only for an hour, and though we must lay all else aside—to make others smile. — Charles Wagner.

VEGETABLES.
Usually two or three vegetables with the meat course is considered enough. With the variety from which to choose there is no limit. Squash, turnip, carrot, cabbage, cauliflower, eggplant, celery, sweet and Irish potato, beets and vegetable oysters are some of the many to be found in almost any market.

Hubbard squash is usually considered one of the dinner vegetables. Sweet potato is a good substitute. Squash may be baked in the shell, then scraped from the shell and mashed with butter, salt and pepper for seasoning. This is one of the vegetables which requires butter in large quantities for seasoning. The squash may be peeled and steamed until tender, then dried out in the oven somewhat before mashing and seasoning.

A most delicious way of serving sweet potatoes is to parboil them until partly done. Peel and slice, arrange the slices in a baking dish; spread with butter and sprinkle thickly with sugar, bake until the sugar is well melted and just before taking from the oven place a marshmallow on each slice; serve when the marshmallow is well browned.

Beets are never better than when baked until tender, peeled and chopped, adding plenty of butter and a dash of vinegar if liked. Some prefer olive oil instead of butter with a dash of lemon juice and cayenne and salt.

Stuffed Eggplant.—Take two good-sized eggplants and boil until tender. Remove from the fire and cool. Into a wooden bowl put two good-sized onions, peppers and a few sprigs of parsley, four cloves of garlic, four or five ripe tomatoes all chopped fine. Add two cupfuls of cracker crumbs, mix well. Scoop out the center of the eggplant, being careful not to break the outside. Put this into the bowl with the seasoning and salt and butter; fill the shells with the stuffing and sprinkle buttered crumbs over the top with grated cheese. Brown in the oven. Serve from the shell.

Pumpkin and winter pie are the usual desserts. In most families there is a cherished recipe for mince-meat, which is never equalled by any other ever eaten. Pumpkin, to be good, should be well cooked and brown, then the pie will have a rich flavor and color.

Cauliflower is a safety vegetable served in a drawn butter sauce, in a cream sauce or au gratin.

Air Traffic in Germany Grows

First Timetable and Schedule Are Published in Berlin, a Great Center.

COMFORTABLE AS STEAMERS
Fares Are Cheaper Than on Rival Lines in Other Countries, Though Engine Fuel Is More Expensive.

Stuttgart and Constance is furnished by the Stachle Air Line. Then there is the Deutsche Luft-Lloyd, which has several planes traveling daily from Berlin over Magdeburg to Hamburg and Bremen, and from Bremen over Magdeburg to Leipzig and Dresden. At Hamburg and Bremen connections can be made with Dutch and Danish air lines for Amsterdam, Rotterdam and Copenhagen. From Amsterdam and Rotterdam, French and English planes take passengers to London or via Brussels to Paris, where air connections can be made for Spain.

German Lines Cheaper.
Although the price for benzine and gasoline is much higher in Germany than in all the other countries the fares on the German air lines are the cheapest.

Travelers coming to Berlin can fly for two hours all around the surrounding districts for 200 marks—about $2 at the present rate of exchange. This price even includes the automobile from the offices of the Hamburg-American line or the North German Lloyd, both of which are in the downtown district, to the flying field, some ten miles out of town.

So far 5,581 persons have been transported by the regular air service.

Berlin.—Germany's first air traffic timetable has just been published here. It contains many interesting facts about the development of Germany's peaceful air fleet, which leading air navigation experts claim will become a strong competitor of the republic's newly organized railroad system at the very moment that the entente lifts the ban on the building of planes intended for peaceful air traffic.

Today Germany is rebuilding on the wreck of the old an entire new air fleet of modern construction. The modern airplane factories of Germany are equipping their planes with large, comfortable cabins and staterooms. In the first eight months of this year 3,714 scheduled flights were made, against 1,878 flights in 12 months the year before. This not only indicates that this year more flights were made compared with last year but also that new air routes were opened and more planes were added to the fleet. The German Air Navigation service, as the associated enterprises call themselves, has today about 150 airplanes of one type or another at its disposal.

Berlin the Great Center.
The new air service schedule just published shows that Berlin has been made the center of all important air routes.

From Berlin there are daily trips to and from Brunswick, Dortmund, Dresden, Hamburg and Bremen, extended by the Baltic Air-service of the Sabinating airplane firm to Travemünde, Warnemünde and Sassnitz, making connections with the steamers leaving town for Sweden, Norway and Denmark.

Then there is the Danzig Air service, which co-operates with the Sabinating service in maintaining the flying routes between Berlin and the East Prussian route—Danzig, Koelnberg, Memel—with connections at Riga and Reval.

The Lloyd Air Service Sabiniating has an additional route from Berlin to Westphalia, Muenster, Bremen, Wuppertal.

The Rumpier Air service provides planes for the Berlin, Leipzig, Nuernberg, Munich, Augsburg route, and at Munich the Bavarian Air Lloyd provides transportation facilities by air to Constance.

Hickory Cut Down as It Reaches 100 Years

Middletown, N. Y.—Probably the last hickory tree in this section, planted in honor of Andrew Jackson, has just been cut down at Walton, Delaware county, because it was so badly decayed.

When Jackson was elected President in 1828, Col. John Townsend set out the sapling in honor of "Old Hickory." A count of the rings in the wood after the cutting showed the tree was one hundred and eight years old.

this year. During all of last year only 2,000 persons were carried. This shows how rapidly the new air passenger service is developing in Germany in spite of the prohibitive articles of the Versailles treaty.

Beggar Has Wealth.

Makes Self Village King.
Calcutta.—F. H. Charles, a European well known in Calcutta, has proclaimed himself king of a Tibetan village. It is stated that he is accompanied by his wife and child.

CHOLERA HAS RUN ITS COURSE

Coming of Cooler Weather Checks Disease Along Volga.

Medical Men With Knowledge of Health Conditions in the Region Say Death Rate Ranged From 50 to 75 Per Cent.

Samara.—Cholera has about run its course along the Volga for this year and, as the weather grows cooler, is disappearing very rapidly in spite of the weakened condition of the famine-stricken population and the unsanitary condition of impoverished refugees crowded into camps where there is absolute lack of sanitary precautions.

Vital statistics are lacking, but the testimony of medical men who have wide knowledge of health conditions in the Volga districts indicates that the death rate among persons who were taken with cholera ranged from 50 to 75 per cent. This was attributed to the undernourished condition of the population and lack of facilities to treat the malady.

Dr. Emily Burkhardt, a Russian physician who is now in the service of the American committee for relief in the Near East, with headquarters in Tiflis, visited the famine area recently to study the cholera situation.

She is an expert in the treatment of cholera and talked with many physicians and nurses who are battling with the disease in the famine area. The testimony of these medical men and women was that they were helpless because of the lack of beds for patients and proper facilities for their treatment.

"The work of the doctors and nurses has been highly dangerous and hopeless," Doctor Burkhardt said. "Underfed doctors and nurses who try to care for cholera patients without decent hospitals and every facility for protecting themselves against the disease know that they are really risking suicide.

"The greatest guarantee against cholera is a stomach filled with properly prepared food. Proper feeding generates acid in the stomach, which kills the cholera germs and makes the attendants immune.

"Years ago I saw one of my professors at the University of Moscow drink a pure culture of cholera germs to prove that persons who are in good health and properly fed have acid in their stomachs which combats the disease. He suffered no ill effects.

"The underfed medical men and women in the famine area undertake their task with the full knowledge that they risk death every time they touch a patient. Their hospitals are not screened. They have no saline solution and in most cases haven't the means for injecting it. They are without medicines and frequently without disinfectants."

UNITED STATES DISOWNS YANKS

Men Who Joined Spanish Army Hit by State Department.

Officials Say American Recruits Need Not Apply to Consuls or Diplomatic Agents for Assent.

Two hundred and fifty Americans who have enlisted in the Spanish army and taken oaths of allegiance to the Spanish crown, are now at Ceuta, a debarcation point on the coast of Morocco.

They are awaiting transport to the zone where Spanish troops are waging war on Moroccan revolutionaries. These Americans are mostly veterans of the World war. Some of them were officers. They were picked up by Spanish recruiting agents in the cepted 250 men. Hundreds of applications still are pending. Many of the recruits were of Spanish or South American descent.

The State department declared it will have nothing to do with Americans in the Spanish forces, and that they need not apply to American consular or diplomatic agents for relief in case they get into trouble.

Lightning Shaves One Side of Rancher's Face

Bowman, Mont.—A bolt of lightning played a mean trick on Steve O'Donnell, Gallatin Valley rancher, a few days ago. It struck a haystack on which he was riding and shaved all the hair off the right side of his head, as clean as a razor would have done, leaving the hair on the left side unscathed. The shock was only slightly burned.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Richard Brockman, the plumber and copper smith at Fort Stanton, spent Thanksgiving in Carrizozo.
Mr. Brockman is well known between here and the Fort, where he has been attached to the Public Health Service for many years.
Aside from his dissecting a Carrizozo gobbler he had business with the railroad ticket office.

Rev. L. E. Conkin, pastor of the M. E. church, and Mrs. Con-kin, are spending the week in the hills in the vicinity of Eagle Creek. No; he is not on a hunting trip, as one of the commandments (we forget which) says:
"thou shalt not kill," but if he should happen to run on to that fellow with the cloven hoof, you bet he'll make him hard to catch.

Misses Fannie Fordon and Ellen Herron are in Albuquerque this week attending the annual convention of the New Mexico Educational Association. The High School teachers are taking care of Miss Fordon's classes while she is absent, and Mrs. J. B. French has Miss Herron's room.

G. B. Greer was in Friday and Saturday from Parsons on his way to his goat ranch in the San Andres. He loaded a wagon with arising since the adjournment of court last Friday.

The "Old Maids"

The "Old Maids" held forth at the Crystal theatre last Friday night to a large and appreciative audience. It was one of the most laughable farces put on the Carrizozo stage for a long time, and brought into prominence many maids—some not so "old"—who displayed exceptional histrionic talent. It was a splendid evening's entertainment, and settled the society producing it a neat sum.

Bazaar and Tea

Tuesday afternoon the Women's Missionary Society had a very pleasant meeting at Mrs. E. F.
Stimmler's. The business of the society took up most of the afternoon. The hostess served refreshments.

On Saturday afternoon, December 3, at Luis hall, from two to five o'clock, a bazaar and tea will be held. There will be aprons, towels, pillow cases and a number of other articles suitable for Christmas gifts on sale. The prices will be reasonable, and the sale, bazaar and tea will be a most successful one.
