VOLUME 21

CARRIZOZO, LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, DEC. 29, 1922

Borah's Advice to Europe

(New York World)
Senator Borah's advice to Europe is all jug-handled. He is ready enough to tell Europe what to do, but is quite unwilling to tell the United States what it ought to do, even if Europe took the disinterested advice that he so gladly gives.

His formula for Europe is simple enough:

If these countries will signify their readiness to reduce and adjust reparations to a point which should permit Germany to pay and live, to reduce their land forces, to ratify the disarmament treaties, to recognize the Government of Russia, to expose the secret military conventions now obtaining between one of the great powers and a number of smaller powers, to waive the right to take possession of Ruhr, then there would be something upon which to begin to work out a plan of salvation.

But just what is Senator Borah, as one of the leaders of the Battalion of Death, willing that the United States should do to help Europe achieve these ends or to stabilize the results after they have been achieved?

The weakness of Senator Borah's case lies in his refusal at the outset to admit that there is any American responsibility for what happened there. He ignores everything that took place from April 6, 1917, until Nov. 11, 1918.

It is a fact, nevertheless, that during that period the United States was engaged in war with Germany as one of the powers associated with the Allies. It is also a fact that the military and economic intervention of the United States turned the scales in that conflict, ended the war, overthrew the Hohenzollerns and the Hapsburgs and helped to make the present-day Europe which Senator Borah so strongly disapproves.

More than that, having helped to make this Europe, the United States, assisted by Senator Borah, ran away from all its obligations and its responsibilities.

The Republican Senators among whom Senator Borah in this particular undertaking was a leader, decided that the war ended with the armistice and that the reconstruction of a wrecked civilization was a matter with which this country was not concerned. Accordingly they rejected the covenant of the League of Nations, they repudiated all the agencies that had been created for the stabilizing of peace, they helped to bring about a new war of economic attrition in Europe, and now Senator Borah comes along preaching a home-made gospel of repentance and warning Europe that it must mend its wicked ways if it expects to be saved.

With rare humor, the Senator from Idaho even goes so far as to inform European nations that among the elementary conditions of salvation they must recognize Russia, although the Harding Administration refuses to recognize Russia, the Republican party to which Senator Borah belongs refuses to recognize Russia, and the Republican Congress of which Senator Borah is a member refuses to say a word in favor of the recognition of Russia. Europe might properly say to Mr. Borah: "Convert Mr. Harding and Mr. Hughes first, and then maybe we'll start for the mourners' bench."

Everything that Senator Borah suggests to Europe could be brought about if the United States would volunteer its cooperation and agreed to assume the legitimate obligations incurred in the process. It cannot easily be brought about if the United States is to hold to Senator Borah's doctrine of isolation and to insist with him that the last possible word in respect to foreign relations was spoken by George Washington in 1796.

Mr. Borah's advice as a Senator helped to muddle the European situation, but his advice as a Senator will not help unuddle it unless he is willing to translate that advice into action.

One Shot Wounds Twice

Francisco Vigil was shot Wednesday night of this week, at Ancho, by a gun in the hands of Liandro Gonzales. The story is that the two men met on the railroad track and started to shake hands, but Vigil took hold of the gun Gonzales extended instead of Gonzales' hand. It seems a struggle ensued for possession of the gun, and the innocent gun was discharged. The ball passed through Vigil's hand and hip, touching no vital spot, and lodged just under the skin on the outside of the thigh. Vigil was brought to Carrizozo, the ball extracted and if the wound does not become infected he will not suffer serious injury. Gonzales was arrested, brought before Justice Weismore, examination waived and bond fixed at $1500.

A Flock of Weddings

The past week has been an active one for the little God of Love, and he brought a whole flock, in humble submission, to the altar of Hymen during the Christmas holidays. Those to whom the clerk has issued a marriage license since December 24 are:

Martin W. Connor and Mrs. Mildred Moore, Carrizozo;

Ellis Leslie and Miss Dora Walker, White Oaks;

William Phelps Walker and Miss Bettie Lue Ward, White Oaks.

Gregorio Mirabal and Miss Andrea Zamora, Lincoln;

Victor Serra and Miss Cirila Vigil, Capitan;

E. A. Kemper and Miss Eppie Causseaux, Capitan.

A Happy New Year

Thanking our many Friends and the Public generally for their very liberal patronage during the year just drawing to a close, and hoping for a continuance of same during 1923, we extend to them our best wishes for A Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Accidentally Shoots Self

Walter La Fleur, Jr., is suffering from a gun shot wound, accidentally inflicted. He and some companions went out shooting Tuesday morning, and while several miles from town Walter's gun was discharged in some manner and he received the bullet in his leg. The bullet entered on the outside of the right knee, raged downward and made its exit at the ankle. He was hurried to town; an examination showed no bones were broken; so the wound was dressed and is expected to heal rapidly.

Tonsils Removed

House Sweet had her tonsils removed yesterday at the Paden Hospital. Dr. Johnson, assisted by Dr. Paden, did the operation.

Methodist Pastor Leaves

Rev. J. M. Glazier, who, for the past two months has been pastor of the First Methodist Church, left Sunday night for Denver in order to be with his wife and children. Mrs. Glazier is in delicate health and Pastor Glazier felt it his duty to be near her so that he could minister to her needs in person. It is with much regret that we chronicle this pastor's departure, for he was not only a pleasant, affable gentleman but a deep thinker and entertaining speaker. He will be greatly missed by his congregation and by the people of the town generally.

Educational News

(By Mrs. M. L. Blaney)

The "Attendance Banner" was again won by the High School pupils of Corona. There were so many close seconds that space does not permit me to mention them. Who will be the next to win? Keep the banner on the wing.

The following schools have been visited during the past month: Smith, Encinosa, Arabela, Blue Water, Spindle, Macho, Deseo, Alto, Angus, Capitan, Lincoln, Hondo, Tinnis, and Picacho.

Excellent Christmas programs were being prepared and it was my pleasure to witness rehearsals as well as regular school work.

The following is a brief report of the work accomplished during my four years' of service to the county:

Eight new buildings; one room added to Arabela school building; two buildings that were destroyed by fire were replaced, and four underwent extensive repairs.

A system of recording credits made by high school pupils was instituted and a complete statistical record of school districts, teachers and eighth grade pupils have been kept.

The standard of teachers has been raised and at the present time there are no third grade certificated teachers in the county, and only four of second grade, seventy-three of first grade, and four of life certificates. Six of the first grade have life certificates pending.

I appreciate the co-operation of the teachers, directors, patrons and friends of education, and the many courtesies extended me by the county newspapers.

Secure New Quarters

The local Oddfellow Lodge, which has held its meetings in the Masonic Hall, over the Exchange Bank, has leased the Lutz Hall for a period of one year from January 1. The Oddfellows will meet every Tuesday night, while the Rebekahs will occupy the hall every Friday night.

This lodge is one of the thriving fraternal organizations of our city and has enjoyed a steady growth, despite the general depression. During the past six months it has added to its roll one member by initiation—Roy G. Skinner—and two by card—Walter J. La Fleur and Robert H. Taylor.

Dance Date Changed

The date of the New Year's dance at White Oaks has been changed to tomorrow (Saturday) night, December 30. Remember the prize offered the best waltzers and that refreshments will be served.

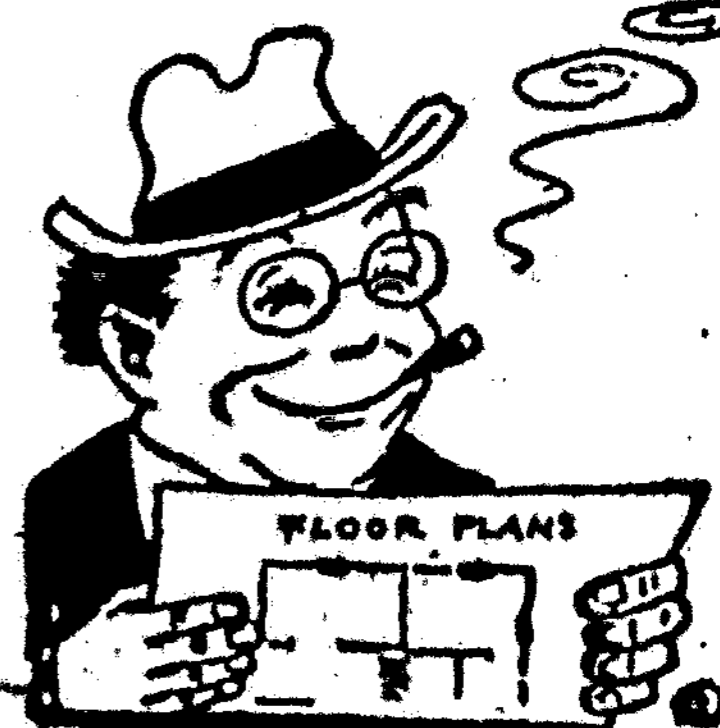

Fire at Capitan

Wednesday night of this week fire destroyed the Sears garage and its contents, including some cars, at Capitan. The origin of the fire is unknown, but inasmuch as it occurred at about 7:30 in the evening, it is not likely it was incendiary, but possibly an ignition of oil or gasoline from a smoldering cigarette stump or a match not wholly extinguished.

Gone to Texas

G. T. McQuillen, manager of the local Telephone Exchange and one of our city dads, left yesterday for McGregor, Texas, for a visitor with his father and other relatives. It has been many years since Mac has seen his father, and that portion of the state where he resides, and, naturally, anticipates a pleasant time.

"A Word to the Wise"

(Saturday Evening Post)

There is discontent among some of the manufacturers and the big corporations of America. They want more immigrants from whom to draw the cheap labor. When corporations and manufacturers emit deafening bellows to the effect that they can't get along without more immigrants, they usually mean that they are unwilling to adjust their businesses to the well-being of the country.

This is the most wasteful and shortsighted nation and the most most wasteful and shortsighted age that the world has ever known. We exterminated the buffalo for the sake of a plentiful supply of buffalo robes, which have now worn out; and some corporations and manufacturers are willing to waste our national characteristics by importing aliens by the million, and to waste our national resources by forcing the country to support the labor surplus at times when the manufacturers and corporations find it convenient to do so—in other words, to store labor for them when the demand is slack. In the coal industry alone there are two hundred thousand extra men. At times the two hundred thousand and their families—half a million people, at a guess—must go into storage. The country may think that these people pay for their own storage. Actually the country and everyone in it pays for it.

It's about time that all corporations and manufacturers made an end of their stupid attitude on cheap labor and the immigration question. When they stop employing labor in a manner as reminiscent of reckless waste as the slaughter of passenger pigeons, they may be able to show reason why their demands should be treated with respect by the House and Senate Immigration Committees. But while they employ their laborers on seasonal work during part of the year, and waste their labors entirely for the remainder of the time, the House and the Senate Immigration Committees should accord them about the same respectful consideration that is usually accorded the scapegrace son who wastes his inheritance on special automobile bodies and gold diggers.

JUNIOR RED CROSS MAKES GOOD CITIZENS

Through It Children Learn Patriotism, Altruism and Generosity.

The Junior Red Cross exists for the purpose of making good American citizens. This statement was made by an eminent authority in a recent answer to the question, "What Is the Junior Red Cross?" In the United States there are 5,000,000 members of Junior Red Crosses and in the Southwestern Division the membership of children in this organization numbers 424,578 and here is some of the work these children do.

They support work in Europe to children who are in need. They send Christmas boxes of goodies to children who do not have them. They make shipments of garments abroad to the destitute children of war-crippled Europe. But this is not as interesting to Americans, perhaps, as the work which the Juniors do at home. One of the biggest problems in America today according to experts, is the tremendous amount of malnutrition found among the children of this country. One-third of the children of America are malnourished, according to actual counts. The Junior Red Cross, through its school auxiliaries and growth classes, is seeking to eliminate a large part of this malnutrition and has succeeded to a very gratifying extent.

The Junior Red Cross also is answering the question of how to eliminate individual, group, racial and international hatreds which exist among people today. The polyglot character of the personnel of the average American school gives an excellent field for work of this kind and foreign children as well as native-born Americans learn what good citizenship is in their Junior Red Cross activities even more than they do in the patriotic exercises of their school rooms. Loyal and serviceable citizenship, that absolute essential to a great democracy, is being created in the breasts of these little foreign-born Americans through the Junior Red Cross activities as it never could be otherwise.

One of the helps to this is the work the children are doing for the disabled ex-service men in hospitals, for the sick and crippled children who need help and cheer, in equipping play grounds so that sad-eyed little children of the congested districts are taught the joy of a normal childhood. By learning to serve others in these and many other ways, lessons of community spirit and co-operation are taught the growing boys and girls of this country.

Another thing the Juniors are doing is assisting in the promotion of health in their communities by clean-up campaigns and other civil undertakings. On the whole, one of the most constructive pieces of work done in the Southwestern Division, American Red Cross, during the year, in the opinion of those who have studied the situation, is that among the children, which has been carried on through the Junior divisions of Red Cross chapters and the school auxiliaries of Junior members.

NURSE IN SOUTHWEST DIVISION COVERS BIG TERRITORY

Miss Mary Fitzsimon, Washington County (Arkansas) Red Cross nurse, is in charge of one of the largest territories covered by one individual in this capacity in the Southwestern Division. Ten towns are in her district and her work covers all kinds of ailments and illnesses, serious and simple, as well as general sanitation and health information.

The well people of one neighborhood in Washington County are particularly indebted to Miss Fitzsimon for having discovered a contaminated water supply which might have caused the illness of the entire community.

In cases where contaminated water supplies were not discovered in time, Miss Fitzsimon has been able to offer an anti-typhoid inoculation which has been so successful in the army as a means of stamping out this disease.

A group of trachoma cases discovered in July by accident is being successfully treated. The mother of this family already had lost her sight, but the other members probably will be not much the worse after the treatment is finished.

A number of ex-service men who have not received their compensation and other disabled soldiers who wanted assistance or vocational training also were cared for during the summer and spring.

Upper Roswell Items

Dec. 26, 1922.

The glad Christmas time was appropriately celebrated at our two schools. Miss Ola Casey's school rendered its program last Thursday evening to a very large and appreciative audience. A beautifully decorated tree, with gifts for all, and dear old Santa Claus were attractive features of the evening.

Miss Josephine Stetson's school gave a program Saturday evening. Here also was a large and well entertained audience. A beautiful tree, Santa Claus—and a Christmas dance following—made this also a very enjoyable evening.

Miss Era Browning, who is attending Roswell High School, is spending the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tod Browning.

Mrs. D. H. Lucas is visiting friends and relatives in Roswell.

An enjoyable Christmas day gathering occurred at the E. J. Peyton home where a large number of the neighbors assembled, bringing well-filled baskets of delicious eats. The day was spent in real and true neighborly sociability.

Miss Ola Casey is spending the holiday season with her parents at Tinnie.

The attendance at Sunday School at the Hale school house last Sunday was good and the interest manifested points to a growing attendance from week to week.

Mr. Heath reports that much good work has been done on the new road leading to the Pajarito flats. By spring this road will probably be completed and will be of great benefit to the entire neighborhood.

Herbert Neal is in Lubbock, Texas, this week. He and John Bell shipped a carload of cabbage to that point.

Several trucks from north of Roswell and points in western Texas have been loading up with cabbage and apples—the former from the Davis-Neal farm and the latter from the Coe and Bonnell fruit storage.

The Miller brothers, Yule and Ulrich, spent the Christmas with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fount Miller.

Now, to one and all we wish a Happy New Year.

"Strong and Well" I WISH you could know how much I am improved since taking the Cardui, writes Mrs. Nasale Brown, of Black Rock, Ark. "You wouldn't know me for the same weak invalid I was before I took it. At my... I had to keep off my feet or I would fall. I couldn't do my housework, and just got where I'd most as like to be dead as living. Some one told my husband of Cardui. He got it for me and I took three bottles before I stopped—then off and on for the last three years just as a tonic. I saw a decided improvement after my first bottle. I need the three, and was able to do my work with ease, and now I saw for my family and for others. I am feeling fine, and strong and well." Take Cardui! It may be just the medicine you need. The Carrizozo Entertainers Gave Most Pleasing Program

Thursday evening, December 21, the Carrizozo Entertainers presented a very pleasing program—in fact, many people say it was the best yet given by these popular entertainers. The program was presented to a good house, and every number was accorded generous applause. The regular program, published in a previous issue of the News, was rendered, interspersed with the following extras:

Piano Solo.....Otto Prehm
Piano Solo.....Rue Shulda
Musical Dialogue....Helen Sterling and Maurice Lemon.

A splendid reception was given every number; the trio by Leora Taylor, Lois Jones and Audrey Miller, the musical dialogue by Helen Sterling-Maurice Lemon and the dancing by Lewis Jones called forth rounds of applause. The audience was thrilled by the dancing of Lewis Jones, his production being an eye opener, and encore after encore brought him before the footlights. His performance had so much the appearance of a professional that it was pronounced by many to be equal to anything they had ever seen in this line. The entire program had been well prepared and each presentation received its due meed of approbation.

The Redpath Lyceum Committee, under whose auspices these entertainments have been given, announce that all indebtedness has been wiped out, save a balance due George Dingwall of $30, who has patiently waited two years for his money; and to Will Sterling for rental of the theatre during the production of this series of entertainments. To both of these gentlemen the committee feels under obligations, and does not intend to stop until these obligations have been adjusted.

A picture show will be given as the next number, the date of which will be February 1, 1923. Mr. Brickley, who has headed these entertainments from the beginning, will be in attendance upon the sessions of the State Legislature at the date of the presentation of the picture show February 1; hence the decision to substitute the picture for a prepared program. After Mr. Brickley returns, sometime in March, the Entertainers will put on a regular program. No January dates are contemplated for the reason that the musical department of the Woman's Club have dates for the "Dixie Minstrels" during the month.

ROSES IN DECEMBER

By MILDRED WHITE

Alan had been a rapid and tempestuous wooer. And when after their engagement, he settled down to an absorbed life of business, Peggy just could not understand it. At first, she was too proud to inquire; then as evening passed with Alan absent from her side, she reproved him with the fact of his indifference. Alan was grievously surprised.

"Why, dear," he said, "don't you realize that I am hurrying now as fast as I can to make a nest for you?" For the time being Peggy was placated. Then came the occasion of the Wellstown picnic, and Alan failed to arrive.

Alan had forgotten; a big business deal had come up unexpectedly at the last moment, he explained, to take his attention. He would be with her as soon as a car could bring him. But angrily Peggy replied—she would go on with the crowd; and she went, only it was not exactly the crowd who accompanied Peggy, but one particular and delighted member.

Roy Ralph had long enviously regarded the lucky, as he called him, Alan. Roy was jolly and generous, and—prompt. Thereafter he frequently and joyously substituted for the absent and unknowing Alan.

"For if he does not care to inquire how I amuse myself during his satisfied hours in the city, why should I enlighten him?" Alan's fiancée asked herself.

One of the crowd, called the busily-engaged young man one day.

"Look here, Alan, how long do you intend to let Roy make hay while your sun shines?"

Though Alan laughed, the thought rancored.

"What did he mean?" he questioned Peggy.

She laughed, "That you have a rival, Alan."

"But an engaged man may not have a rival," he answered troubled, "you belong to me, Peg. That's why I'm working so hard to earn a home."

"Better think of me, then, once in awhile," she smilingly warned him. Alan kissed her, comfortably assured.

But when again she was obliged to call him up regarding the entertainment course, and their tickets engaged for the evening, Alan concurred with a venture that promised much, answered abruptly, that he would be unable to go, and she must provide herself with other friendly escort. Peggy was more than annoyed; tears, not only of disappointment, oozed down her cheeks. Love was not so lax, she told herself bitterly—Alan did not really love her. Then indignation turned sorrow to anger.

"When I shall call you again, Alan Moore," she said, "or when I shall come to see you—something Peggy considered an impossibility. "Roses will grow in December?" "in our garden," added the flushed and turbulent Peggy.

The telephone receiver snapped into its hook. But the very, very strangest thing was, that Alan appeared to take her at her word.

And when Roy again obligingly offered to take Alan's place as escort to his surprise, and her own, he was curtly refused.

Moreover, as weeks passed, the girl seemed to lose interest in the gay little affairs that had formerly delighted her. Here also, Alan had deliberately absented himself.

It was two months since she had seen Alan's face. But of course, she told herself miserably, he never had loved her. Otherwise, it would be impossible for him to stay away. And at the time Alan was telling himself, and miserably, that of course Peggy never had loved him—Otherwise, why should she have used such a hopeless simile, as roses growing in December, in her garden.

Peggy, looking around the corner beneath Alan's office windows, looked up with the old hope that was promptly turned to disappointment. He was not near the window.

Now, Alan's business absorption was to dull an aching heart. So, went the mad world until—December. Both young people in their separate places thought of Peggy's idle words. Peggy, by her own freude, jumped up hastily: "I'll do it," she remarked to the amazed cat, dislodged from her knee.

Alan banged shut his office desk. "I'm going home now," he informed his stenographer.

Upon the way home he was obliged to pass Peggy's house. Tonight, a yellow placard tacked on the veranda post, forcibly attracted his attention from some distance. He passed close to the veranda post; the placard read simply and astonishingly:

"Alan—please go to the back door." Slowly, wonderingly, Alan went. At first he was unable to take in the situation. Then, blunderingly, it burst upon him. For in Peggy's garden in December, a rose tree grew in its decorated pot. Mysteriously Alan saw the rose tree bell instantly. Peggy was at the door—in another moment, she was standing arms.

"I set the tree out as you come alone," she explained.
