OLDEST AND LEADING NEWSPAPER IN CIRCULATION IN THE COUNTY OF LINCOLN, NEW MEXICO

VOLUME 22

CARRIZOZO, LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, JAN. 20, 1922

Woman's Club Memorialized

Memorial to the Woman's Club of Carrizozo, New Mexico from the Woman's Club of Oscura, New Mexico, petitioning them to request Mr. J. B. French, representative from and for Lincoln county, New Mexico to the All Year National Park Association to cause the executive committee of the above association to have published a copy of the proposed legislation creating a National Park in New Mexico:

Whereas, inasmuch as the Hon. A. B. Fall, secretary of the Interior, has stated before a meeting of the "All Year National Park Association" that this proposed legislation is to come from the people, we therefore believe that the bill which their committee is preparing to be presented to Congress, to cause the creation of a National Park in New Mexico, should be published in the various papers throughout the state, so that the people may become familiar with the construction and conditions of the proposed legislation before it is presented to Congress; thereby enabling the people to know of the proposed boundaries, effect upon the rights of Indians, homesteaders, soldier settlers, owners of patented lands, lands leased from the state for grazing and agricultural purposes and lands under purchase contract from the state, embraced within the boundaries of this proposed National Park, and further, if the passage of this proposed legislation will deprive the individual, corporation, state or government of the right to use the natural waters within the boundaries of the proposed National Park for public utility, thereby permitting the people to ascertain in their judgment, the benefit or injury that will result from the passage of such legislation and permitting "the people" from whom this proposed legislation is supposed to come, to intelligibly stamp their approval upon the construction of the Park bill.

Whereas, the Woman's Club of Oscura is in favor of National Parks wherein there are embraced the essentials of interest necessary to a National Park, to a National Park to both the people within and without the State.

Therefore Be It Resolved: That a copy of this Memorial be forwarded to the Woman's Club of Carrizozo, as a request that they instruct their representative to the "All Year Park Association" Mr. J. B. French, to offer a resolution to the executive committee that the proposed bill be published in full in the newspapers throughout the State of New Mexico prior to its being introduced in Congress.

Be It Further Resolved: That a copy of this Memorial be sent to all the papers in the County. Mrs. Helen A. RANNOCK, President Oscura Woman's Club Mrs. Marbury Burns, Sec.

Train Control Appliances

The Interstate Commerce Commission has issued an order to forty-nine of the main railroads of the country to install automatic train-control devices. The roads are required to show cause by March 15, why complete systems of train-control should not be required, and the decision of the board practically makes it mandatory for the installation by July 1, or suffer a penalty to do so.

The board makes no particular suggestion as to what control-appliances is to be installed, but does set forth a list of requirements that a machine must possess to make its installation acceptable. Machine after machine has been presented to the roads in the past few years, but none have been adopted, although tests have been made with many. The Automatic train stop patented by M. Bulls, conductor of the E. P. & S. W. railroad, and the stock of which company is owned almost wholly here and in El Paso, will probably receive a large share of attention for the railroads the months immediately following this order by the I. C. C. It is claimed for this machine that it possesses a cure for railroad accidents, and that its installation is so much more economical that it is in a class by itself. It may be installed, we are told, for about $100 per mile, whereas its nearest competitor costs twenty-five times as much. Inasmuch as the machine fulfills every requirement of the commission and its installation is so much more economical, it appears fair to assume that this machine, in which many of our local people are interested, may become an appliance as common as the air brake, and in correcting human errors prove a boon to the traveling public in its prevention of disasters that human agencies have not been able to overcome.

A Fort Stanton Youth Killed at Salt Lake

The following is clipped from a Salt Lake City paper:

The first serious coasting accident of the season resulted in the death of Gilbert Worley, 11 years of age, son of Dr. and Mrs. J. F. Worley, 350 East South Temple street, last night. Worley and his brother George, 7 years of age, were coasting on Fourth East street, which is not designated as a coasting hill by the police.

They slid crashed into an automobile driven by Mrs. A. J. Oakes, 1585 Harvard avenue. Mrs. Oakes turned her car in an endeavor to avoid the accident, but failed. George escaped injury, but Gilbert suffered an internal hemorrhage and died at the emergency hospital several hours after the accident.

The Worley family came here about two months ago from San Diego, Cal. The father is in the United States public health service. He was in Logan at the time of the accident and arrived here at 1:30 o'clock this morning, just prior to the boy's death.

Young Worley was born in Topeka, Kan., and was a pupil at the Lowell school here. Funeral services were held last Monday afternoon from the Hall-Ricketts parlors. Dr. George E. Davis officiating. Interment being in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

Dr. Worley was stationed at Fort Stanton for three years before he was transferred to Camp Kearney and thence to Salt Lake City. While at Fort Stanton, Dr. Worley and family acquired many friends throughout the county who will sympathize with them in their bereavement.

Gilbert although a student was a favorite among the children and they will mourn the loss of their playmate.

The Story of New Mexico

The "Story of New Mexico" by Gov. Merritt C. Mechem in "The Earth" a Santa Fe Ry. publication, last month is far reaching and a fitting tribute to the sunshine state. Gov. Mechem says:

New Mexico's agricultural prospects in 1922 should climb rapidly towards a prolific and permanent zenith. We have vast domains of agricultural land rich in productivity, which are bound to yield big crops. Our mining industry is extending developments. Stock men have weathered the financial stringency and are re-stocking their ranges. We have vast stretches of prairie land for homesteading, also for sale or lease by the state, on extremely easy terms for homeseekers.

New Mexico is becoming less and less an arid state as the rainfall is annually on the increase and splendid crops of wheat and corn already are grown independent of irrigation.

New Mexico is unique for its lack of labor trouble. Our biggest employers of labor are the coal mines, railroad and live stock industries. Laborers are earning good wages and the "non-employment problem" is practically unknown in this state.

The Methodist Church Banquet

The banquet at the Lutz Hall last Friday night, given under the auspices of the Methodist church, attracted a large crowd, and the program was as entertaining as the banquet was appetizing.

Dr. E. E. Cole was toastmaster and put over the program in a very pleasing manner. Judge Crews, Judge Hewitt and Senator Brickley delivered short talks on subjects assigned them. All were well received and a proper appreciation shown. Misses Claire Adams, Hilary Cooper and Carrie Roberts and Mrs. E. D. Boone each rendered a solo, each of which brought forth its due meed of approbation, and gave evidence of the fact that music goes far toward the success of any program. Ferguson and Pitts, piano and violin, give a number of musical selections which never fails to bring an encore.

The affair from the beginning to its close was most delightful and the promoters have a right to be justly proud over the results. Much labor in preparation was expended, and yet the banquets were made to feel that it was rendered freely and joyfully. The surroundings, the welcoming spirit that abounded and the courteous reception tendered made it evident that frost and ice could not survive such an atmosphere.

Obituary

William Henry Walker, for many years a highly respected citizen of this county, died at his home in White Oaks last Sunday. The following obituary was furnished the News:

"William Henry Walker was born at Fort Worth, Texas, on January 23, 1863, and had he lived one more week would have been fifty-nine years old. He came to this locality in 1881 and was employed by the Block ranch where he stayed 11 years and for 3 years of the time he was their foreman. For 5 years he was postmaster at Alto, where he established the postoffice. He was married on January 29, 1891, at Texas Park, to Miss Ruth Olive Lacey who survives him. To this marriage, nine children were born, eight of whom are living, Ben, Beattie, John, Phelps, Ruth, Dora, Harvey and Melvin. They are all at home except the oldest daughter Bessie Rogers, who lives in Lynchburg, Texas. Three grand children also survive. The oldest son Frank died March 4 1912, and he also has two brothers at Westburg, Texas.

He moved to Oklahoma and resided there for 10 years, but returned to this community 5 years ago and entered the grocery business 2 years ago and has been postmaster here since then.

Mr. Walker was a kind man, always devoted to his family, and he had many friends in the surrounding country. His death was so sudden and unexpected it came as a great shock to his family and many friends.

Mr. Walker was a member of the Christian church and has always been a faithful follower of the Lord.

Educational News

(By Mrs. M. L. Maney)

A visit last week to the Carrizozo High School found teachers and pupils making strenuous efforts to accomplish the purpose of the institution. The atmosphere was one of harmony between teachers and pupils as well as of work and pleasure. The development of the moral character was manifested and it certain to bring results. The work Mrs. S. H. Nickels accompanied by the pupils of the Nogal school visited the art exhibit at the court house last week. We are pleased to see the interest shown this exhibit by teachers and pupils.

Lincoln county board of education met in the office of the county superintendent of schools last Friday with the following members present: Paul Mayan, Carrizozo; Robt. Brady, Hondo; Frank Salazar, Lincoln and Mrs. M. L. Blaney. The county board of education is responsible for the finances of the various school districts and desiring to "play fair" to all and desiring a clear record when the books are audited passed the following resolution: "All bills must be accompanied by itemized statements and receipted bills where money is advanced by teachers."

A Sunday school has been organized at Bogle which is another proof of the progressive spirit of that community. Sunday school training is one of the assets of age.

The Baca Canyon school has an average daily attendance of 100 per cent, but the report reached this office after the banner had been sent on its journey. I regret this mistake which under the circumstances could not be avoided, and trust Baca Canyon will repeat this record and have reports in on time.

The executive committee of the Lincoln county teachers' association has been appointed as follows: E. E. Cole, Carrizozo; W. J. Klopp, Capitau; K. T. Dunlap, Corona; Mrs. Mabel J. Burleson, Lincoln and J. W. Wilferth, Hondo. It is the duty of this committee to decide upon the date and place of meeting.

A Man for the Ages

A Story of the Builders of Democracy

By IRVING BACHELLER

The young man disappeared through the door of the private office and soon returned and conducted Samson into the presence of Mr. Davis. The two men recognized each other.

"Well, sir, what is it about?" the young speculator demanded.

"The daughter of my old friend, Jack Kelso, owes you some money and I want to pay it," said Samson.

"Oh, that is a matter between Miss Kelso and me," Mr. Davis spoke politely and with a smile.

"Not exactly—since I knew about it," Samson answered.

"I refuse to discuss her affairs with you," Davis declared.

"I suppose you mistrust me," said Samson.

"Well, I've offered to pay you and I'm going to make it plain to them that they don't have to worry any more about the money you loaned them."

"Very well, I bid you good morning."

"Don't be in a hurry," Samson answered. "I have a note of five thousand dollars against you. It is endorsed to me by Henry Brimstead and I want to collect it."

"I refuse to pay it," Davis promptly answered.

"Then I shall have to put it in the hands of a lawyer," said Samson.

"Put it where you like but don't consume any more of my time."

"But you'll have to hear me say that I don't think you're honest."

"I have heard you," Davis answered calmly.

Samson withdrew and went to the home of Mrs. Kelso. He found her with Bill's boy in her lap—a handsome little lad, then a bit over two years old—at the house on La Salle street.

Samson told of the failure of Bill's letter to reach him and of his offer to return the money which Davis had paid for their relief.

"I don't like the man and I don't want you to be under obligation to him," said Samson.

"The story of Harry's death was false and I think that he is responsible for it. He wanted her to marry him right away after that—of course. And she went to the plague settlement to avoid marriage. I know her better than you do. She has read him right. Her soul has looked into his soul and it keeps her away from him."

But Mrs. Kelso could believe no evil of her benefactor, nor would she promise to cease depending on his bounty.

Samson was a little disheartened by the visit. He went to see John Wentworth, the editor of the Democrat, of whose extreme length Mr. Lincoln had humorously spoken in his presence.

The young New Englander was seven feet tall. He welcomed the broad-shouldered man from Sangamon county and began at once to question him about Honnet Abe and "Stroyo" Douglas and O. H. Browning and E. D. Baker and all the able men of the middle counties. At the first opportunity Samson came to the business of his call—the miscellaneous he regarding Harry's death which had appeared in the Democrat. Mr. Wentworth went to the proofroom and found the manuscript of the article.

Samson told of the evil it had wrought and conveyed his suspicions to the editor.

"Davis is rather unscrupulous," said Wentworth. "We know a lot about him in this office."

Samson looked at the article and presently said: "Here is a note that he gave to a friend of mine. It looks to me as if the note and the article were written by the same hand."

Mr. Wentworth compared the two and said: "You are right. The same person wrote them. But it was not Davis."

When Samson left the office of the Democrat he had accomplished little save the confirmation of his suspicions. There was nothing he could do about it.

He went to Bill Frodenberg. "What has Davis done to you?" Samson asked, recalling where he had met Bill that morning.

Bill explained that he had borrowed money from Davis to take him over the hard times and was paying 12 per cent for it.

"This morning I got dot letter from his secretary," he said as he passed a letter to Samson.

It was a demand for payment in the handwriting of the Brimstead note and had some effect on this little history. It covered definite knowledge of the authorship of a malicious falsehood. It aroused the anger and sympathy of Samson Trowler. In the conditions then prevailing Bill was unable to get the money. He was in danger of losing his business. Samson spent the day investigating the source of the demand. His secretary told him that several letters of his faith in the future of Chicago had not abated.

He wrote a long letter to Bill recounting the history of his visit and frankly stating the suspicions to which he had been led. He set out on the west road at daylight toward the Riviere des Plaines, having wisely decided to avoid passing the plague settlement.

CHAPTER XXI.

Wherein a Remarkable School of Political Science Begins Its Sessions in the Rear of Joshua Speed's Store. Also at Samson's Fireside Honest Abe Talks of the Authority of the Law and the Right of Revolution.

The boy Joe had had a golden week at the home of the Brimsteads. The fair Annabel, knowing not the power that lay in her beauty, had captured his young heart scarcely fifteen years of age. He had no interest in her younger sister, Mary. But Annabel, with her long skirts and full form and glowing eyes and gentle dignity, had stirred him to the depths. When he left he carried a soul heavy with regret and great resolutions. Not that he had mentioned the matter to her or to any one. It was a thing too sacred for speech. To God, in his prayers, he spoke of it, but to no other.

He asked to be made and to be thought worthy. He would have had the whole world stopped and put to sleep for a term until he was delivered from the bondage of his tender youth. That being impossible, it was for him a sad, but not a hopeless world. Indeed, he rejoiced in his sadness. Annabel was four years older than he. If he could make her to know the depth of his passion, perhaps she would wait for him. He sought for self-expression in the Household Book of Poetry—a sorrowful and pious volume. He could find no inluder of rhyme with an adequate reach. He endeavored to build one. He wrote melancholy verses and letters, confessing his passion, to Annabel, which she did not encourage, but which she always kept and valued for their ingenious and noble ardor. Some of these Anacreontics are among the treasures inherited by her descendants. They were a matter of slight importance, one would say, but they mark the beginning of a great career. Immediately after his return to the new home in Springfield, the boy, Josiah, set out to make himself honored of his ideal. In the effort he made himself honored of many. His eager brain had soon taken the footing of manhood.

A remarkable school of political science had begun its sessions in the little Western village of Springfield. The world had never seen the like of it. Abraham Lincoln, Stephen A. Douglas, E. D. Baker, O. H. Browning, Jesse B. Thomas, and Josiah Lamborn—a most unusual array of talent as subsequent history has proved—were wont to gather around the fireplace in the rear of Joshua Speed's store, evenings, to discuss the issues of the time. Samson and his son Joe came often to hear the talk. Douglas looked like a dwarf among those long-garbed men. He was slight and short, being only about five feet tall, but he had a big, round head covered with thick, straight, dark hair, a bulldog look and a voice like thunder. Douglas and Lincoln were in a heated argument over the admission of slavery to the territories the first night that Samson and Joe sat down with them.

"We didn't like that little rooster of a man, he had such a high and mighty way with him and so frankly opposed the principles we believe in. He was an out-and-out pro-slavery man. He would have every state free to regulate its domestic institutions, in its own way, subject only to the Constitution of the United States. Lincoln held that it amounted to saying 'that if one man chose to enslave another no third party shall be allowed to object.'"

In the course of the argument Douglas alleged that the Whigs were the aristocrats of the country.

"That reminds me of a night when I was speaking at Havana," said Honest Abe. "A man with a ruffled shirt and a massive gold watch chain got up and charged that the Whigs were aristocrats. Douglas in his broadcloth and fine linen reminds me of that man. I'm not going to answer Douglas as I answered him. Most of the Whigs I know are my kind of folks. I was a poor boy working on a farm at eight dollars a month and had only one pair of breeches and they were worn-out. If you know the nature of business, you know that when that watch chain was on it will strike and my breeches will strike and my watch will strike and my hat will strike several inches of

"But look at the New England type of Whig exemplified by the imperious and majestic Webster," said Douglas.

"Webster was another poor 'lad,'" Lincoln answered. "His father's home was a log cabin in a lonely land until about the time Daniel was born, when the family moved to a small frame house. His is the majesty of a great intellect."

There was much talk of this sort until Mr. Lincoln excused himself to walk home with his two friends who had just returned from the North, being eager to learn of Samson's visit. The latter gave him a full account of it and asked him to undertake the collection of Brimstead's note.

"I'll get after that fellow right away," said Lincoln. "I'm glad to get a chance at one of those men who have been skinning the farmers."

They sat down by the fireside in Samson's house.

"Joe has decided that he wants to be a lawyer," said Samson.

"Well, Joe, we'll all do what we can to keep you from being a shotgun lawyer," Abe Lincoln began. "I've got a good first lesson for you. I found it in a letter which Rufus Choate had written to Judge Davis. In it he says that we rightly have great respect for the decisions of the majority, but that the law is something vastly greater and more sacred than the verdict of any majority. 'The law,' he says, 'comes down to us one mighty and continuous stream of wisdom and experience accumulated, unceasing, widening and deepening and washing itself clearer as it runs on, the agent of civilization, the bulwark of a thousand cities. To have lived through ages of unceasing trial with the passions, interests and affairs of men, to have lived through the drama and trappings of conquest, through revolutions and reform and all the changing cycles of opinion, to have attended the progress of the race and gathered into itself the approbation of civilized humanity is to have proved that it carries in it some spark of immortal life.'"

The face of Lincoln changed as he recited the lines of the learned and distinguished lawyer of Massachusetts.

"His face glowed like a lighted lantern when he began to say those eloquent words," Samson writes in his diary. "He wrote them down so that Josiah could commit them to memory."

"That is a wonderful statement," Samson remarked.

Abe answered: "It suggests to me that the voice of the people in any one generation may or may not be inspired, but that the voice of the best men of all ages, expressing their sense of justice and of right, in the law, is and must be the voice of God. The spirit and body of his decrees are as indestructible as the throne of Heaven. You can overthrow them but until their power is re-established, as surely it will be, you will live in savagery."

"You do not deny the right of revolution,"

"No, but I can see no excuse for it in America. It has remained for us to add to the body of the law the idea that men are created free and equal. The lack of the saving principle in the codes of the world has been the great cause of injustice and oppression."

Honest Abe rose and walked up and down the room in silence for a moment. Then he added:

"Choate phrased it well when he said: 'We should beware of awaking the tremendous divinites of change from their long sleep. Let us think of that when we consider what we shall do with the evils that afflict us.'"

The boy Joe had been deeply interested in this talk.

"If you'll lend me a book, I'd like to begin studying," he said.

"There's time enough for that," said Lincoln. "First, I want you to understand what the law is and what the lawyer should be. You wouldn't want to be a pettifogger. Choate is the right model. He has a dignity suited to the greatness of his chosen master. They say that before a justice of the peace, in a room so bigger than a shoemaker's shop, his work is done with the same dignity and care that he would show in the supreme court of Massachusetts. A newspaper says that in a dog case at Beverly he treated the dog as if he were a lion and the crabbed old squira with the consideration due a chief justice."

"He knows how to handle the English language," Samson observed.

"He got that by reading. He is the best read man at the American bar and the best Bible student. There's a lot of work ahead of you, Joe, before you are a lawyer, and when you're identified success comes only of the capacity for work. Brothman wrote the perfection of his speech in the case of Queen Caroline—

Working Hours of Women Vary

States Differ Widely in Regulating Labor of 8,000,000 Wage Earners.

NO LIMIT IN FIVE STATES

Regulations on Night Employment—South Dakota Has 70-Hour Week—Minimum Wage Laws in Force in Some States.

New York.—With more than 8,000,000 women "gainfully occupied" in the United States, the legal status of women as employees becomes a matter of increasing importance to industry, according to a statement issued by the National Industrial Conference board. "According to the most recent official summaries, daily working hours for women in the United States are limited," the statement says, "as follows:

To eight hours in the District of Columbia, Colorado, California, Washington, Montana, Nevada, Utah, Arizona and New Mexico; in Kansas there is a law providing punitive overtime for work over eight or nine hours, according to the industry; to eight and one-half hours in North Dakota; to nine hours in Massachusetts, New York, Maine, Ohio, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Arkansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Texas, Idaho and Oregon; to ten hours in Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, Kentucky, Georgia, Mississippi, Louisiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, South Dakota and Wyoming; to ten and one-half hours in Tennessee and Vermont; to eleven hours in North Carolina; to twelve hours in South Carolina; while no legal limitations exist in Iowa, Indiana, West Virginia, Alabama and Florida.

No Limitation in Working Hours.

These latter five states have no limitation in the weekly working hours of women. The 48 hours a week limitation is prescribed in Massachusetts, California, Oregon, Utah and North Dakota; in Illinois and South Dakota the legal limitation is 70 hours a week. In Ohio 60 hours; in Wisconsin, Connecticut and Delaware 55 hours; in New Jersey, Wyoming, Kentucky, Mississippi, Louisiana, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia and Maryland 60 hours; in Vermont, Washington, Montana, Nevada, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico 56 hours; in Tennessee 57 hours; and in all the other states, Maine, New Hampshire, New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Texas 54 hours. The variation as to weekly hours is, therefore, much greater than the variation as to daily hours.

Night work for women is prohibited in more than one occupation in New York, Connecticut, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Kansas, Oregon and California; in industry only in Massachusetts,

Pennsylvania and Indiana; in mercantile employment only in South Carolina; for railroad and street railway ticket sellers only in Ohio; in the District of Columbia the number of hours that may be worked at night is limited in the same manner as day work.

Control of Night Work.

State control of night work for women exists only in 14 states; Delaware, Kansas, Maryland, Nebraska, New Hampshire and Wisconsin limit the night hours of all women wage earners. Connecticut, Delaware, Indiana, Kansas, Massachusetts, Nebraska, New York, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Utah and Wisconsin prohibit women from night work in certain occupations. Wisconsin and Nebraska limit night work to eight consecutive hours. Delaware and Maryland limit hours to eight and further specify definite hours as night hours. Kansas, New Hampshire and Wisconsin limit night hours to eight and weekly night work to 48 hours. The number of occupations covered is, as a rule, small. Indiana and Pennsylvania cover manufacturing establishments only.

Mandatory minimum wage laws for women, with rates fixed by a commission are in force in Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, Kansas, Arkansas, Colorado, Washington, Oregon and California; in Utah and Arizona there is a mandatory minimum wage law with the wage fixed by law; in Massachusetts there is a minimum wage fixed by a commission, but not mandatory; in all of the other states there is no law.

MANY NEGROES MOVING NORTH

Census Bureau Report Places Number at 780,794.

Counter Movement Back to Southern States Also Is Shown—47,223 Negroes Born in North Migrate to the South.

Washington.—The total number of negroes reported as born in southern states and living in the North and West had increased from 430,534 in 1910 to 780,794 in 1920, the census bureau announced in a special report on negro migration based on returns of the last census. The southern boundaries of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri and Kansas were taken as the dividing line between the North and South for the purposes of the report.

Of the 10,381,300 negroes enumerated in the last census, there were 38,575 for whom no state of birth was reported. The 780,794 southern-born negroes shown to have migrated to the North or West constituted 8.1 per cent of the total of 9,600,725 negroes born in the southern section. The percentage of this migration for the preceding decade was not shown.

Against this migration from the South to the North and West, of the total of 741,791 reported in the last census as born in states of the latter region, 47,223, or 6.4 per cent, were living in the South. Thus the proportion of southern-born negroes who migrated to the North or West, according to the report, was only about one-fourth larger than the proportion of those born in the latter region who migrated to the South.

"While it is impossible to calculate exactly the extent of negro migration from the South during the decade ended with 1920," the census report said, "the available data indicates that approximately 400,000, or somewhat more than half of the 783,571 survivors of the net negro migration from the South to the North and West prior to January 1, 1920, left the South subsequently to April 15, 1910."

"Although migration to the North and West has not taken place among the far southern negroes to the same extent, relatively to their total numbers, as among the negroes in the northern part of the South, there was, nevertheless, a pronounced increase in such migration from the Far South during the past decade."

As examples of this gain, the report cited increases in the migration of negroes from southern states to Pennsylvania from 1010 to 1920 as follows: Georgia, 1,578 to 10,199; South Carolina, 2,115 to 11,624; Florida, 393 to 5,370. The migration from Alabama to Ohio increased from 781 to 17,589; from Mississippi to Illinois, 4,612 to 19,487; Texas to Missouri, 1,907 to 4,344.

His Luck Is Out When Tadpoles Hatch in Milk

Nairobi, Africa.—A native charged in the resident magistrate's court here with milk adulteration strenuously denied the allegation.

NOW MONTE CARLO OF THE EAST

Macao, Once Holy City, Now Given Up to Gambling.

First-Class Gambling Houses and Ruins of Great Cathedral Form Contrasting Pictures—Once Haven for Traders.

London.—Macao is the Monte Carlo of the Far East, says a writer in the Daily Mail.

Two contrasting pictures of Macao (pronounced Makow), are the ruins of the majestic cathedral dating back more than 500 years and a garish building at the end of a narrow cobble street with its illuminated signs, first-class gambling houses.

The contrast stems up the hillside history of the city, which the estuary of the Pearl river, lies Macao. The pioneer European settlement in China, it came into Portuguese hands in 1587 as a reward to the "long-bearded and large-eyed men" for their assisting the Chinese against river pirates.

It was a far-famed haven for traders, and when, in 1875, Pope Gregory XIII founded the episcopal see, Macao became the beacon-light of Christendom in the Far East.

But no longer in the old, bearded houses of bias and white and terra cotta do the wealthy colonial merchants of old Portugal give their brilliant dinner parties. No longer do the silvery voices of their women folk fill the tropic night with songs of the nightingale. Trade and wealth have gone and the colony lives almost on the revenue from the opium to be run chiefly for the benefit of the Chinese.

The Macanese, descendants of the early settlers, many of whom married Japanese or Malacca women, are scattered in the treaty ports of China and form the bulk of the clerical class working for foreign firms.

The star of Macao as a trading center set with the marvelous rise of the British crown colony of Hongkong, about the middle of last century. Only 40 miles away, with a magnificent harbor which all ships could enter, Hongkong attracted all the trade. It was evident from the first that Macao was side-tracked.

Help Your Kidneys Fight That Cold! Winter Colds and Chills Weaken the Kidneys and Are the Direct Cause of Many Serious Kidney Disorders

Is winter-time your backache-time? Does every cold, chill or attack of grip leave you lame, aching and all worn out? Does your back throb and ache until it seems you just can't keep going another day?

Then look to your kidneys! Grip, colds and chills throw a heavy strain on the kidneys. They overload the blood with poisons and impurities that the kidneys have to filter off. The kidneys weaken under this rush of new work; become congested and inflamed.

It's little wonder then, that every cold finds you suffering with torturing backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and annoying bladder irregularities.

But don't worry! Simply realize that your kidneys are overworked at such times and need assistance. Get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills today and give your weakened kidneys the help they need. Assist them also by drinking pure water freely, eating lightly, and getting plenty of fresh air and rest. Doan's Kidney Pills have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These Good Folks:

A. C. SAMMON, Railroad Station Agent, Main St., Buena Vista, Colo., says: "I caught cold and it affected my kidneys; the kidney secretions were highly colored. I bought Doan's Kidney Pills and two boxes regulated my kidneys."

MRS. L. L. BROWNING, 214 W. Cedar St., Denver, N. M., says: "Several years ago my back was bothering me and my kidneys were out of order. The trouble was brought on by a cold which settled on my kidneys. It seemed as though my back would never stop aching. Any household like sweeping or dusting, which required stooping, was almost unbearable. Doan's Kidney Pills had been used in the family with success, so I tried them. They soon removed all the trouble."

How's Your Appetite? Headache? Weak? Good Looks Follow Good Health

Saratoga, Texas.—"A year ago I tried several different medicines, but kept getting worse, and felt that I never would have good health again. I became so poor and weak I could hardly do my housework. I suffered from loss of appetite, headache, constipation, shortness of breath, also functional disturbances. Sometimes I would have spells of indigestion and weak sick spells and thought I would die. I never expected to be well any more. At last I wrote to Dr. Pierce and he advised me to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, Golden Medical Discovery and Pleasant Pellets (sold by druggists) and now I can truthfully say I am in better health than I have been for several years. (By Superintendent W. E. Cole.) Louise Sweet went to El Paso last week to hear Sousa's band.

Miss Herron is receiving a visit from her sister from Monroe, Louisiana.

Last Monday afternoon at one o'clock, all the pupils of the two buildings on the west side were collected into the large high school room to hear the Queen City Juvenile Concert Company. This company is one of America's cleverest entertainers, giving a musical program from opera to jazz. The members are young people from about twelve to twenty years of age. In the evening they had a crowded house at the Crystal Theatre. The five young performers of the company have their own teacher; during the day they study and recite their lessons, thus they become artists as musicians, keeping up their school work and see the country.

Last Saturday, the Carrizozo boys' town team, and a girls' team consisting of six school girls and two town girls motored to Alamogordo where they played the "All Stars" of that place. The Alamogordo boys' team easily defeated the Carrizozo boys by a score of 45 to 16. The girls' team was well matched and the game was hard fought, but the superior team work and basket shooting of the Carrizozo girls finally won the game for them, the final score being 20 to 9. education is for sufficient buildings to accommodate the students and for better qualified teachers. The course of study should be flexible enough to permit the pursuit of subjects suited to the ability and pleasure of the students, instead of being purely academic. The old curriculum caused many students to leave the high school before the close of the first year. Courses of study today are prepared to train the hands, the head and the heart, and to create a love for education; to prepare the student to meet the opportunity which lies ahead." "The Four Horsemen"

Rex Ingram's $1,000,000 production of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," made for Metro, is announced by the Crystal Theatre for Wednesday and Thursday, February 1-2, matinee at 2:15 p. m. and night at 7:15 each day. This will be the first showing here of the screen version of Nicente Blasco Ibanez's novel that has been acclaimed in all the big cities of the country as marking a new epoch in the development of motion pictures. At its New York opening people paid $10 a seat. Critics said, the picture had definitely established the screen not only as capable of rivaling the stage at its best, but of surpassing it in its grip upon the emotions.

"The Four Horsemen" is the supreme expression of the Great War. Certainly no novel has stirred the universal appeal created by the Ibanez masterpiece. The book, now in its one hundred and sixty-sixth edition, has been read throughout the world. The monumental task of transferring it to the screen was accomplished by June Mathis, who made a scenario that from all accounts has preserved the force of the original and in many incidents heightened it. But it is the director, Rex Ingram, who has apparently achieved the most sensational success. He is credited with having set a new mark in artistry of picturization.

Those who have read the novel will recall that the story opens on the Argentine ranch of old Madariaga, whose territories are as extensive as those of the great independent barons of the feudal period; and Madariaga rules with feudal power. He is filled with Castilian pride of family and his greatest desire is for a son to carry on the family name and tradition. This is denied him; but he has two daughters, both of whom marry ranch employees; one a Frenchman, the other a German. The Frenchman and his children won the old Don's love, while the German and his descendants were objects of the old man's hatred. Madariaga dies suddenly without making a will, and both families share alike in the vast estate; and with this sudden acquisition of wealth both families leave the Argentine for Europe.

Society, with its Paris fascinations, attract the French family, and the rapidly approaching war produces no effect on its younger members. The German family goes its way. When the Great War broke, the French son joined the colors and was killed in a trench raid by his German cousin.

Through it all are galloping the four horsemen, spoken of by St. John in the book of the Apocalypse—the grim figures of Conquest, War, Famine and Death.

This wonderful picture will be shown at the Crystal Theatre Wednesday and Thursday, February 1 and 2, two shows each day; at 2:15 p. m. and at 7:15 at night.

LUNCHEON FOR TWO

A dinner lubricates business.—Lord Stowell.

A YOUNG woman in business asks to know whether it is ever in good form for a young woman to take luncheon alone in a restaurant with a man with whom she is associated in business. To be sure there are times when it would be distinctly unwise for her to do so, and other times when it would not only be in perfectly good form but almost necessary to the smooth running of her business relations. For more and more men and women in business meet on a basis of good fellowship and with none of the consciousness of sex that characterized the treatment of young women in business some fifty years ago.

Though the over prudish one might say that an unmarried woman ought never to take a meal alone in a public place with a man to whom she was not closely acquainted without a chaperone, no sane person can feel that this applies to the woman who is earning her living. Imagine asking the business associate to permit you to send for your married aunt or mother when obviously the object in luncheon with you was to save time by talking business at the same time that you have luncheon and to better understand each other's business methods under the favorable influence of some hotel's good cookery.

In general, having luncheon with a business associate is something that almost every business girl of any experience would at times consent to do, while having dinner is quite another matter. The young business woman can always excuse herself on the ground that she does not wish to remain away from home at dinner time or that she never lets business concerns intrude on the evening hours, but she has no excuse for luncheon and, in truth, no one misjudges a woman nowadays who goes to lunch alone with the man she knows in business.

If you ask a young woman to have luncheon with you, always defer to her in the matter of choosing the place. If you know of some interesting place you may make the invitation to go to that place. If it is not mentioned in the invitation, then the young man should always ask the woman whether there is some place that she would prefer. If she mentions none and has no preferences, then he might suggest a couple of places where he knows the cooking is good. The gracious young woman will always decide on one of these unless she has some reasonable objection to them. If no suggestion is made, then she could not suggest the most expensive hotel in town.

When a young man has taken a young woman to luncheon with him he should always remember that it is up to him to thank her for having given him her society for the time. A young woman should hardly thank her escort, but should assure the man that she has had an enjoyable time and convey by her manner the feeling that she is enjoying the "treat."

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meanings; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel.

PEARL

PEARL is undoubtedly a name of great price! Not only is it musical in sound, but it honors the exquisite translucent gem which is the symbol of purity for the world over.

The Persian term for the jewel is Muryad, meaning "child of light." Their legend of the origin of the pearl, a charming and beautiful fancy, is in accordance with the ancient idea that the oysters, rising to the surface of the water at night and opening their shells in adoration, received into their mouths drops of dew, congealed by the moonbeams into the lustrous gems which resemble the moon itself.

The pearl has always been associated with purity and sanctity. Pearls were chosen as the jewels to adorn the gates of the Celestial city and the gem has had countless uses as a symbol in the religions of all countries.

Pearl is enormously popular in England. Like Muriel and Molly and Vivian and Sibyl, it may almost be said to be one of the national feminine names. In this country it has, likewise, a widespread vogue. We have even gone further and made a diminutive, Pearley, which is popular in some sections, though a trifle provincial.

Pearl's talismanic stone is, of course, her own gem, the pearl. It promises her great charm and affability, and many friends. It will always guard her from dangers and evil and preserve her purity. Thursday is her lucky day and 2 her lucky number. The marguerite, or daisy, is her flower.

Colds & Headache

"For years we have used Black-Draught in our family, and I have never found any medicine that could take its place," writes Mr. H. A. Stacy, of Bradyville, Tenn. Mr. Stacy, who is a Rutherford County farmer, recommends Black-Draught as a medicine that should be kept in every household for use in the prompt treatment of many little ills to prevent them from developing into serious troubles.

THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT

"It touches the liver and does the work," Mr. Stacy declared. "It is one of the best medicines I ever saw for a cold and headache. I don't know what we would do in our family if it wasn't for Black-Draught. It has saved us many dollars . . . I don't see how any family can hardly go without it. I know it is a reliable and splendid medicine to keep in the house. I recommend Black-Draught highly and am never without it."

Arms Conference Receives the Completed Program for Naval Reduction.

"SUB" TONNAGE NOT LIMITED

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

WITH ITS WORK almost completed, so far as it can be, the armament conference at Washington met in plenary session at the close of the week and heard a report of the program for naval reduction and limitation as completed by the naval committee and its corps of experts. The treaty for a ten-year naval holiday to be entered into by the five principal powers of the world was presented, together with the technical details for carrying it out.

As finally decided upon, the agreement is not so drastic in its plan for reductions as was proposed by the American delegation, but the fact remains that it puts an end, for a decade, to the navy building race that threatened to swamp the taxpayers of several nations, and it is admittedly a great step toward world peace. Modifications of the original plan resulted in slight increases in the tonnage limits, and it is asserted these changes really strengthen relatively the American navy.

For the United States, Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy, the capital ship ratio is 5:5.3:1.07:1.67. The tonnage allowed America and Britain is raised from 500,000 to 525,000 each, and that of the others is proportionately increased. France is permitted to build a limited number of capital ships during the ten-year period, and Great Britain may construct two 37,000-ton vessels of the Hood type. France won out in her contentions concerning submarines and auxiliary craft. No limit is placed on the aggregate tonnage of these vessels, but their maximum size and gun caliber is fixed. A limit of 10,000 tons each is put on auxiliary ships and light cruisers, and their guns are not to exceed eight inches. The ratio for airplanes carriers is to be 5:5.5:2.22:2.22 and the maximum tonnage for the two largest powers 135,000. These vessels are limited to a tonnage of 27,000 each, and their gun caliber is restricted.

American naval officers, it is asserted, rejoiced over Japan's successful demand that she be allowed to retain the dreadnaught Matsui and France's persistence regarding submarines and auxiliary ships. In both cases the necessary adjustments recommended to the relative strengthening of America's navy. It retains two almost completed dreadnaughts, and it will have almost as great a tonnage in submarines as it first proposed instead of only 60,000 tons, the point to which the American delegates were about to recede when Great Britain asked the abolishing of the U-boat. The British announced that if France had a great submarine fleet, they must be permitted to build as many auxiliary cruisers as they wished, and it is now agreed America will equal the British fleet in every respect.

At this writing there appears to be little doubt of the approval by the conference of the Root resolutions declaring the employment of submarines against commerce as piracy, and Mr. Balfour's amendment under which the banning of submarine operations against merchantmen shall become immediately effective as among the five major powers.

JAPAN and China, through their delegates, requested the international prohibition of the use of chemical and bacteriological weapons.

Tainanfu railway were still the sticking point. Japan persists in her demand that Chinese borrow the necessary funds from Japanese bankers, which, as has been explained, would mean a continuation of Japanese control of the road's operation. It was hoped, however, that this Shantung matter would be settled early this week through the "good offices" of Messrs. Hughes and Balfour.

THE delegation from the Far Eastern republic, not being given a hearing by the conference, created something of a sensation by giving to the press copies of alleged secret notes and treaties revealing a military and political alliance between France and Japan for the purpose of establishing Japanese domination in Siberia and stabilizing French interests in Russia, and to frustrate America's policy in the Far East. The documents were declared to be fabrications, by both the French and the Japanese delegations, and the United States government stated it has no official information concerning any such agreement. But it is asserted there are in the files of the State department reports from American observers in a general way confirming the allegations of the Chita representatives, and there is talk of a senatorial investigation into the Siberian situation.

Later in the week the Chita delegates produced another document, this time an alleged treaty between the Japanese army in Siberia and Russian officers connected with Semenov, anti-Bolshevik leader, whereby the Japanese agreed to support with arms and money an offensive against the Chita republic. Baron Kato, in reply, admitted that a former Japanese cabinet paid Semenov a certain amount of cash to keep him in the field.

SENATOR HIRSH JOHNSON in an address in San Francisco set forth in considerable detail his objections to the Pacific peace treaty agreed to by the arms conference. He especially dislikes Article 2, which he thinks as bad as Article 10 of the League of Nations. Senator McNary of Oregon thinks the treaty offers a fine chance for settling the Philippine problem and when it comes before the senate he will offer this reservation:

"The United States agrees within two years to grant complete independence to the people of the Philippine islands, provided the high contracting parties will obligate themselves to respect the political independence and territorial integrity of the Philippine nation."

FRANCE'S attitude in the Washington conference had its reflection in the conference of the allied premiers in Cannes, France, for the purpose of discussing German reparations and the economic welfare of Europe generally. Lloyd George went there apparently with the intention of making the improvement of Franco-British relations dependent on Briand's consent to plans for the economic rehabilitation of Germany and Russia. Briand and his staff were pledged to make France's reconstruction the basis for the rebuilding of Europe, but they found that they had the full support of Belgium alone. In an interview in the London Daily Mail Briand proposed a defensive alliance between Great Britain and France, and in a preliminary talk with Lloyd George he suggested that such an alliance was the only way in which the two nations could avoid a controversy over submarines and naval strength. It was said the British premier rebuffed the suggestion, and there is good reason to believe the British public would not stand for an alliance until France has made considerable concessions, especially concerning Germany and Russia.

Ambassador Harvey is present at the Cannes conference, but only in the capacity of official observer, for the United States has no vote and has taken the position that it will enter European affairs only when its interests directly are involved. While not concerned in the plans for payment of the reparations money of the defeated nations, the United States is certainly interested in the meeting of the allied supreme council was opened on Thursday.

DEBATE on the Irish treaty was almost overshadowed in Dublin by the kidnapping, presumably by supporters of De Valera, of A. B. Kay, correspondent of the London Times, and by a hot discussion in the Dail Eireann concerning the freedom of the press, provoked by an attack on the Freeman's Journal because it advocated ratification of the pact. The correspondents united in a demand that Mr. Kay be released and that a public apology for his kidnapping be made in the Dail Eireann.

The strength of the opposition to the peace treaty in the Dail Eireann when it reassembled after the holidays was unexpected. De Valera, Countess Markiewicz and many others denounced the pact bitterly and were not at all abashed by the arguments of its supporters. On Wednesday De Valera issued a proclamation to the "People of Ireland" and also circulated copies of the "Document No. 2" showing several of its clauses. This latter was De Valera's proposed alternative pact, and a fierce debate at once arose over whether it should be considered as an amendment to the treaty and voted on first, as De Valera wished, or whether a vote should first be taken on the treaty and, if it were unfavorable, then on the alternative. In the course of the row De Valera shouted that he was "going to move this amendment at my own time and in my own way," and when reminded this was a matter for the chair to decide he hotly retorted: "I am the president here and I am going to make my own rules of procedure in my own way and at my own time."

The alternative is not vastly different from the treaty arranged in London. It provides that the legislative, executive and judicial authority of Ireland shall be derived solely from the people of Ireland; that for the purpose of common concern, Ireland shall be associated with the states of the British empire, with rights, status and privileges in no respect less than those states, and that for the purposes of the association Ireland shall recognize his Britannic majesty as head of the association. Most of the other terms are similar to those of the treaty.

THE death of Senator Boies Penrose of Pennsylvania not only deeply grieved his many friends and admirers. It also caused considerable dismay among those who do not approve of the so-called agricultural bloc in the senate. For Penrose was chairman of the senate finance committee and if the system of seniority is adhered to his successor in that place of power will be Senator McCumber of North Dakota, one of the charter members of the bloc. Penrose also was recognized as the leader of the conservative element in the senate, and in this position he is succeeded by Senator Watson of Indiana.

Gov. W. C. Sprout of Pennsylvania was urged by some Republicans to resign and accept appointment to fill out Penrose's unexpired term, but this he declined to do.

PRESIDENT and Mrs. Harding revived the custom of holding a New Year's reception to the public, and all official Washington followed suit by keeping open house on Monday. Among the callers at the White House and guests at the diplomatic breakfast was Dr. Karl Lang, the newly arrived German charge d'affaires.

BLANCHE BLAIR

REGINA MCCABE and RICHARD LEARY

THAT Tanlac is a wonderful medicine for delicate children is conclusively proven by the remarkable results accomplished in the cases of the three children shown in this picture.

Little Blanche Blair, of Providence, R. I., age 12, gained 10 pounds; Regina McCabe, at right, age 9, of Scranton, Pa., gained 15 pounds; little Richard Leary, Jr., of Philadelphia, who was very delicate, is now in fine, robust health. The statements made by their parents are as follows:

Mr. A. M. Blair, residing at 20 Atwood street, Providence, R. I., said: "We are just so happy over the change Tanlac has made in our little girl that we can't do or say enough to show our appreciation. She had lost nearly 20 pounds in weight and looked so frail and weak that her mother and I were both almost worried sick over her condition. Since taking Tanlac, she has already gained 10 pounds, her color is better than it ever has been and she looks and acts like a different girl."

Mrs. Catherine McCabe, 414 Dickens Ave., Scranton, Pa., said: "The 'fin' left my little Regina in such a bad condition that I have no idea she would be with me now if it hadn't been for Tanlac. It is a mystery to me how she lived on the little she was eating and was so listless she never even cared to play with the dolls and toys she got at Christmas. Since taking Tanlac she is as hardy and well as any child could be and has gained 15 pounds in weight. I will always praise Tanlac for restoring our little girl's health."

Richard Leary, 2342 Palethorpe St., Philadelphia, said: "There is no doubt in my mind but that Tanlac saved my little boy's life. For two years I wouldn't have been a bit surprised to have seen him drop off at any time. He had stomach trouble and many a time the gas pressed up into his chest until his heart palpitated so I thought sure he couldn't breathe but a few more gasps. But Tanlac gave him back to us strong and well and we will praise it to our dying day."

The effect of Tanlac on the delicate stomachs of the young is one of the strongest evidences of its wholesomeness as well as its unusual merit. Although a powerful reconstructive, Tanlac contains no harmful ingredients, minerals or opiates which are so often found in other medicines. Being composed of the most beneficial roots and herbs known to science it is purely vegetable and can be taken by the most delicate children, and does not upset or injure the weakest or most delicate stomach.

There is a Tanlac agent in every town.—Advertisement.

Cities as Thunderstorm Spots. The conclusion has been reached by a well-known engineer who has given the subject considerable attention that certain cities, if not indeed most inland cities of any 100,000 population or more, appear to be "thunderstorm spots." The observation has been made by E. R. Horton, of Voorheesville, N. Y., who also points out that "a shallow lake with sandy margins located in a forest may serve as a thunderstorm 'breeder' and cities as proof observations made by him over Oneida lake, New York.

Old Court Has Much Power. In Liverpool (Eng.) there still exists one of the very few remaining medieval borough courts of record. At one time there were 215 in various parts of the kingdom. The Liverpool court of passage, as it is called, has practically unlimited jurisdiction in cases of action arising within the city, and has more power than has the City of London court which has jurisdiction only when the defendant is employed in the city itself.

Jewish Physicians to Popea. Many examples might be enumerated of popes who patronized Jewish physicians. An exception was Paul IV, who introduced the Ghetto into Rome, but at least a score of popes seem to have gone out of their way in extending friendly recognition to the medical members of this race.

A "balanced diet" may sound confusing to many people

The facts, as explained here, are simple.

The secret of a "balanced diet" is to have food containing all the elements needed for proper nutrition. These elements are protein, to nourish the tissues; starch and sugar to furnish energy; fat to supply heat; and mineral salts to provide the material necessary for building nerves, brain, and tooth and bone structure.

Grape-Nuts, the nourishing cereal made of whole wheat flour and malted barley, served with cream or milk, is a complete food for young and old alike.

Go to your grocer today and get a package of Grape-Nuts. Eat it with milk or cream for breakfast; or with stewed fruit, jelly or jam, as a delicious dessert for lunch or dinner.

Every member of the family will relish this palatable and nourishing food—

VI. HIRE GOVERNMENT HELP

The civil service commission hires all employees in the classified service of the government. The only thing to be said about the classified service, is that it has not yet been classified.

There is an utter lack of definitely planned and well-organized employment policy in the government service.

There is need for a centralized employment office with jurisdiction in all matters relating to employment.

The employment methods of the government should be such as to serve for a model for private business.

There is at present no central control over the executive service short of the President. The President is a busy man and cannot concern himself with the details of the executive departments.

The lack of efficiency in government offices has a marked effect on private business.

Definite information concerning the number of federal civil employees in different branches of the service and the amount of the government payroll are not readily available.

An official register, or blue book, is issued every two years. It is out of date long before it is printed.

A provision of the civil service rules theoretically gives the civil service commission authority to collect and maintain complete personnel statistics.

In addition to the limits of the commission's authority is the absence of authority to enforce its findings.

The commission can make recommendations to the departments and offices and urge their observance, but it cannot enforce them.

Congress passed what is known as the civil service law January 10, 1883. This act created the United States civil service commission.

The law was intended to cure in part the evils traceable to the spoils system, which grew out of the four-year-tenure-of-office act of 1820.

During the first 40 years after the organization of our government, administrative practice with regard to the civil service seemed to conform to the intention of the founders.

The Constitution fixed the term of no officer in the executive branch of the government except those of the President and vice president. It was the established usage during these first 40 years to permit executive officers, except members of the cabinet, to hold office for an unlimited period during good behavior.

The fundamental purpose of the civil service law was to establish, in the parts of the service covered by its provisions, a merit system whereby selection for appointment should be made upon the basis of demonstrated relative fitness, without regard to political, religious, or other such considerations.

The act requires that the rules shall provide, among other things, for open competitive examinations for testing the fitness of applicants for the classified service, the making of appointments from among those passing with highest grades, an apportionment of appointments in the departments at Washington among the states and territories, a period of probation before absolute appointment and the prohibition of the use of official authority to coerce the political action of any person or body.

In 1883, the year in which the civil service law was enacted, 13,024 positions in the civil service were made subject to competition.

The entire number of positions in the federal executive civil service on June 20, 1916, was 490,327. At the height of the war expansion there were approximately 1,000,000 men and women employed in the federal executive civil service, about 700,000 of whom held positions subject to competition.

On July 31, 1920, the entire number of federal executive civil positions, as nearly as can be estimated, had been reduced to 691,116. Approximately 450,000 of these were subject to competition, or, in other words, in the classified service. The force is still slowly but steadily decreasing.

During the 10 months of our participation in the war the civil service commission gave competitive examinations under the civil service law and rules to slightly less than 1,000,000 persons, and about 400,000 persons with tested qualifications were supplied by the commission to the service.

A normal year's business is about 200,000 persons examined and about 60,000 appointed.

MAKE YOUR VOICE HEARD

Secretary Mellon of the treasury, in a letter to Representative Fordney, chairman of the committee on ways and means of the house of representatives, says: "Ordinary expenditures for the first three quarters of the fiscal year, 1921, have been $3,783,771,006.74, or at the rate of about $5,000,000,000 for the year."

According to the latest estimates of the spending departments, ordinary expenditures during the fiscal year, 1922, including interest on the public debt, will be over $4,000,000,000.

"The nation cannot continue to spend at this shocking rate. As the President said in his message, the burden is unbearable, and there are two avenues of relief. One is resistance in appropriation and the other is the utmost economy in administration."

R. C. Lemingwell, formerly an assistant secretary of the treasury, whom I have quoted previously in these articles, and who is still deeply and actively interested in securing retrenchment in national expenditures, commenting on this utterance of Secretary Mellon, says: "Why should there be retrenchment in public expenditure? Why does the secretary of the treasury speak of current and estimated expenditures as shocking? What is the evil that we are discussing and what is its effect?"

"Government expenditures must be met from taxes. To the extent that they are met promptly from taxes and from honest taxes directly laid upon the incomes of the people, and in proportion to those incomes, exaggeration of the evil of government expenditure is avoided. Government expenditure takes the money of all the people for the supposed benefit of a portion of the people, honestly or dishonestly, equally or unequally, avowedly by direct taxation, or surreptitiously by the indirect taxation which results from inflation of currency and credit and of the public debt.

"Government expenditure takes the fruits of the earth and the labor of the people and diverts them from the productive and reproductive enterprises of men, from the natural enjoyment of the man, who by their prudence, foresight and effort, created the wealth and made it available, to the sometimes benevolent and sometimes selfish and almost always economic aspirations of men for a better world or a better distribution of the good things of this earth, government imposes upon all of us ever-increasing burdens in the effort to benefit vociferous and organized minorities.

"Each of the executive departments is concerned to improve its service and to discover new and useful fields of service. The entire organization of the army, of the navy, of each of the departments, independent offices and agencies of the government, is devoted to an important task. Its particular function seems of vital usefulness, even necessity. Experts in each are alive to its defects and to the opportunities for usefulness which have not been availed of.

"The secretary, or other head of the department, drawn from private life, perhaps wholly ignorant at the outset of the nature and extent of its problems, promptly becomes the advocate of the policies and demands of his permanent assistants and bureau chiefs. If he does not become such an advocate, he may break down the morale of his organization and possibly lose the confidence of his personnel.

"Behind it all is the pressure of organized interests in the constituencies, which are the beneficiaries of specific expenditures, operating upon politicians, executive departments, senators and congressmen. The strident voice of greed is heard in the market place and in legislative halls; the voice of the people is barely audible.

"The fact that each project is considered separately, without reference, either in executive departments or congress, to ways and means of financing it, prevents concentration of popular opinion on the awful total. All agree that there must be economy, but as each item is presented all seemingly agree that that is not the proper field for economy. There must be economy, but there must be a merchant marine, whatever the cost. There must be economy, but the government must pay high wages to railroad employees and furnish transportation on the railroads at less than cost. There must be economy, but the World War soldiers must have their bonuses. There must be economy, but Civil War pensions must be increased. There must be economy, but we must prepare for war, regardless of expense."

TRAFFIC WEAR ON BRIDGES

New Instrument Measures With Scientific Precision the Effect of Every Shock.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

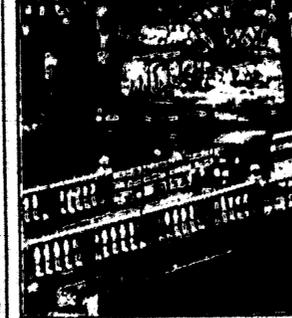

A new instrument devised by the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture measures with scientific precision the effect of every shock and blow delivered by moving vehicles in crossing a bridge. Attached to any part of the bridge structure, this instrument makes a photographic record of the effect of stretching or shortening of the part as a result of the shocks is represented by a fine black line on the photograph.

No blow or shock can be delivered so quickly that the instrument will not record its effect. It has never before been possible to measure the effect of such blows. Engineers have long been able to calculate the effect of standing loads very exactly; but because of their inability to measure the effect of quickly delivered blows or impacts, they have never been able to proportion the various parts of a bridge with absolute assurance. It has been necessary to make a liberal allowance for this unknown quantity. In some cases the allowance has not been sufficient and the bridges have collapsed under moving loads.

Many bridges still in service are probably too weak to withstand safely the sharp blows of swiftly moving vehicles, though they will safely carry the same vehicles at rest or moving at slow speed. The familiar warning posted at the portals of a bridge: "Speed limit on this bridge eight miles per hour," means that the design of the bridge to which it is attached is not strong enough to allow for impact. In the light of the recent experiments with motortrucks in which it was shown that a swiftly moving motortruck may strike a blow equivalent to seven times its actual weight, it is rather surprising, the department road experts say, that failures have been so few.

It is believed this new measuring instrument will soon do away with uncertainty. The knowledge gained by its use will enable the engineer to design bridges which are sure to hold up under fast-moving vehicles, and to build such bridges without undue waste of material and money.

When one stops to think that in every township laid out in sections there are 72 miles of roads, it is easy to imagine the mileage of roads in this country, says a writer in an Exchange. Of these hundreds of thousands of miles of roads and streets, comparatively few miles are paved, and a noted authority on road building prophesies that not more than 5 per cent of all the roads in this country will be paved by 1920.

It would be excellent if we could have all hard roads—brick, concrete or macadam roads, which are good all-year roads. We should have more of them. But it is impracticable to pave every country road. However, it is just as important to have good laterals leading to the main roads as it is to have hard surfaced main roads. So we must do the best we can and properly maintain our dirt roads and streets.

Automobiles Must Take Turn. Twenty-one thousand miles of roads have been built with federal aid in the last five years, and these, of course, help out a whole lot, but progress may have to be even greater in road building unless the automobiles are to take turn about.

Presence of a Canary or Goldfish in the Sickroom Invariably Has Beneficial Effect.

Next time you sit in a room, the furnishings of which include a bowl of goldfish, consider how much time you spend watching the small fish as they swim slowly about or dart about in pursuit of each other.

Probably you will conclude you were indulging the usual tendency of the normal person to be attracted to moving objects. In sick persons and convalescents this tendency is more pronounced, and in the aged and very young it is still more so.

That psychology of this attraction was given by Dr. Edward N. Leary, formerly veterinarian to the animals in Central park zoo. He is now connected with a Fifth avenue pet store.

"Sick persons lying in bed spend a great deal of time watching the goldfish if an aquarium is in their room," he said. "It takes their minds off their pains and aches and is very beneficial."

Canaries share with goldfish the honor of being the chief animate entertainment to the sick.—New York Sun.

Take your own case: If you don't know for sure whether tea or coffee is harming you, you do know that many are harmed by the drug element in tea and coffee, and that headaches, nervousness, or high blood pressure are symptoms which often tell that the drug, caffeine, is giving the nervous system too much jolt.

Probably you know, too, that some people can't drink a cup of tea or coffee at bed-time, and sleep well that night.

Where many have been harmed by tea and coffee, and you may be harmed, isn't it well to put the benefit of the doubt on your side before doubt becomes an unpleasant certainty?

J. H. Fulmer was down from Parsons the first of the week and he stated that the good reports from the Helen Rae mine did not surprise him, as his acquaintance with that district for 16 years convinced him that there is a net work of mineral bearing veins running through it, and all that has ever been needed there was capital to follow the veins and find the mineral in place. Those longest acquainted with the Nogal and Parsons districts would he believed, endorse his opinion. But mineral in place is not found at the grass roots—it takes work and money to reach it in a body.

Clark Hust, who has lived, prospected and mined in the foothills for at least thirty years, and who is familiar with the different mining enterprises there during that period, was always a firm believer that the Helen Rae mine would prove to be a bonanza, if intelligently worked. But, there are others, he said—the American for one, and the Vera Cruz, eight miles from Carrizozo, the other. The latter, he believes, from studying the formation, will prove a mint, if handled right. As he forcibly put it: "It may not be in our day, but the Vera Cruz will be one of the richest gold mines on the continent, when the right men get hold of it."
